

THE Calcutta Weekly Notes.

---

LAW NOTES

AND

NOTES ~~OF~~ CASES

OF THE

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT

AND OF THE

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL

AND

The English Law Courts.

VOL. V.

NOVEMBER TO OCTOBER.

1900-1901.

---

CALCUTTA.
WEEKLY NOTES OFFICE
3, HASTINGS STREET

[All rights reserved.]

CALCUTTA :

PRINTED AT THE WEEKLY NOTES PRINTING WORKS,

3, HASTINGS STREET.

---

TABLE OF CIVIL CASES.

(Vol. V).

PRIVY COUNCIL.

	Page		Page
Ahmad Yar Khan v. The Secretary of State for India (5 C. W. N. clxiii, cclxii) ...	634	Kong Yee Lone & Co. v. Lowjee Nanjee (5 C. W. N. cclxiv) ...	714
Annoda Mohun Roy Chowdhury v. Bhuban Mohini Debi (5 C. W. N. cclvi; I. L. R. 23 Cal. 546) ...	489	Maharajah of Bharatpur v. Rani Kanno Dei (4 C. W. N. cclxxxvii and 5 C. W. N. xxviii; I. L. R. 23 All. 181) ...	187
Aziz-un-nissa v. Tassaduq Husain Khan (5 C. W. N. cclxii) ...	569	Malkarjun bin Shidramappa Passare v. Narhari bin Shivappa and another (4 C. W. N. cclxiv; I. L. R. 25 Bom. 337) ...	19
Banarasi Parshad v. Kashi Krishen Narain (5 C. W. N. liv; I. L. R. 23 All. 227) ...	193	Moung Tha Hnyin v. Mah Thein Myah and another (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 53) ...	114
Batul Begum v. Mansur Ali Khan (5 C. W. N. cclxxxii) ...	888	Mujib-un-Nisa v. Abdul Rahim (I. L. R. 23 All. 233) ...	177
Bhup Indar Bahadur v. Bijai Bahadur Singh (4 C. W. N. cclxiv; I. L. R. 23 All. 152) ...	52	Mumtaz Ali Khan v. Sakhawat Ali Khan (5 C. W. N. cclxxxvii) ...	881
East India Railway Co. v. Kalidas Mukerjee (5 C. W. N. cxxxi; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 401) ...	449	Padmanund Singh v. Hayes (5 C. W. N. cclxxxiv) ...	806
Ganga Baksh Singh v. Dalip Singh (5 C. W. N. ccli) ...	781	Radha Krishn Das v. Rai Bishun Chand (5 C. W. N. cclii) ...	689
Garurudhwaja Pershad v. Saparandhwaja Pershad Singh (4 C. W. N. cclxxxvii; I. L. R. 23 All. 37) ...	33	Radha Raman Shaha v. Pran Nath Roy (5 C. W. N. cclii; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 475) ...	757
Harendra Lal Roy Chowdhry v. Maharani Dasi (5 C. W. N. cxxx; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 557) ...	536	Rai Radha Kissen v. The Collector of Jaunpore (5 C. W. N. xxix, liii; I. L. R. 23 All. 220) ...	153
Harris v. Brown (5 C. W. N. cccx) ...	729	Shankar Sarup v. Lala Phul Chand (5 C. W. N. cclxiii) ...	649
Hodges and another v. The Delhi and London Bank, Limited (4 C. W. N. ccliii; I. L. R. 23 All. 137) ...	1	Sukh Dei v. Kedar Nath (5 C. W. N. cclxi) ...	895
Immadipattam Thirugnana Kondama Naik v. Periya Dorasami (5 C. W. N. xxix, liii; I. L. R. 24 Mad. 377) ...	217	Surjan Singh v. Sardar Singh (4 C. W. N. cclxv; I. L. R. 23 All. 72) ...	49
Jafri Begum v. Syed Ali Reza (5 C. W. N. cliii) ...	585	Vasudeva Padhi Khadanga Garu v. Maguni Devan Bakshi Mahapatralu Garu (5 C. W. N. lx, clki; I. L. R. 24 Mad. 387) ...	545
Jagdish Bahadur v. Sheo Pertab Singh (5 C. W. N. ccliv) ...	602	Yarlagadda Mallikarjuna Prasada v. Raja Yarlagadda Durga Prasada (4 C. W. N. cclxxix; I. L. R. 24 Mad. 147) ...	74

FULL BENCH.

Amrita Lal Bose v. Nemai Chand Mukhopadhyaya (5 C. W. N. xcix; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 382) ...	474	Pareesh Nath Singh v. Nobogopal Chattopadhyaya (5 C. W. N. cclxxxvi) ...	821
Khadem Hossein v. Emdad Hossein ...	617	Ram Tarack Hazra v. Dilwar Ali (5 C. W. N. c) ...	531
Matungini Debi v. Makrura Bibi (5 C. W. N. xcvi) ...	438

ORIGINAL APPEAL.

Rhobonath Lahiri v. Radhaprosad Lahiri ...	119	Chooney Money Dassie v. Ram Kinkur Dutt (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 155) ...	242
Brij Coomaree v. Ramrick Dass ...	781	Dinendra Nath Dutt v. T. H. Wilson & Co. (5 C. W. N. lxxxvii; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 264) ...	434
Chetty v. Mahomed Essa Saheb ...	692

ORIGINAL APPEAL—contd.

	Page		Page
Khas Mehal, In the goods of (Prince Kusatula in Mirza v. Administrator-General of Bengal) ...	505	Royal Insurance Co. v. Akhoy Coomar Dutt (5 C. W. N. lxxxiv; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 272) ...	387
Mokhoda Dassee v. Nundo Lal Haldar (5 O. W. N. xcvi; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 278) ...	297

ORIGINAL CIVIL.

Bheoni Money Dassee v. Notobar Biswas (I. L. R. 25 Cal. 452) ...	659	Quazie Mahmudar Rohman v. Sarat Chandra Dutt (5 C. W. N. xlvii) ...	259
Bhugwan Das Sureja v. Heera Lal (5 C. W. N. lxxxix) ...	417	Raj Narain Ghosh v. Abdur Rahim ...	454
Bhuputram v. Hari Prio Coach ...	313	Sham Chand Giri v. Bhaya Ram Pandey ...	365
Hadjee Ajam Golam Hossein v. Secretary of State ...	257	Siddesury Dassee v. Jonardan Sarkar (5 C. W. N. lxxviii) ...	549
Kusum Kumari Roy v. Satya Ranjun Das ...	162	Sattya Sankar Ghosal v. Ranee Golap-monee Debee ...	223
Netai Chand Chuckerbutty v. Ashutosh Chuckerbutty (5 C. W. N. cv) ...	408	Suttya Suttya Ghosal v. Rani Golap Moni Debi ...	27
Nobin Kally Dabee v. Ambica Churn Banerjee ...	813	Upendra Nath Mitter v. Obhoy Kali Dassee ...	593

CIVIL REFERENCE.

Jogendra Narayan Bose, In the matter of (4 C. W. N. ccxxi) ...	48	Nritya Gopal Sen, In the matter of (4 C. W. N. ccxxxii) ...	45
--	----	---	----

CIVIL RULE.

Nabu Bepari v. Sheikh Mahomed ...	207	Sujan Bibi v. Sagar Mandal ...	145
Nitya Nanda Patra v. Hira Lal Karmakar ...	63

TESTAMENTARY AND INTESTATE JURISDICTION.

Harendra Krishna Mukerjee, In the goods of ...	383	Mohendra Narain Roy, In the goods of (4 C. W. N. ccxxxix) ...	377
--	-----	---	-----

CIVIL APPELLATE.

Ajodhya Pershad Singh v. Sheo Pershad Sahu ...	58	Durga Mohun Das v. Rakhal Chandra Roy Chowdhury ...	801
Baidya Nath Bahara v. Dhon Krishna Sirkar ...	515	Fazlar Raluman Chowdhry v. Raj Chunder Sen ...	234
Beni Madhab Mitter v. Priya Nath Mandal (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 303) ...	268	Frizoni v. Ram Narain Singh (5 C. W. N. cxlviii) ...	426
Bhola Nath Das v. Profulla Nath Kundu Chaudhuri (4 C. W. N. cclxiv; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 122) ...	80	Giribala Debia v. Rani Mina Kumari ...	497
Bhugwanbhatti Chowdhurani v. A. H. Forbes (4 C. W. N. cciii; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 78) ...	483	Girish Chunder Dey v. Juramoni De (5 C. W. N. xxiii) ...	83
Biraj Mohini Dasi v. Chinta Moni Dasi ...	877	Gopal Das v. Hardeo Das ...	86
Caspersz v. Kedar Nath Sarbadhikari (5 C. W. N. cclxxix) ...	858	Gouri Kant Burman v. Damodar Das Burman (4 C. W. N. cclxiv) ...	90
Caspersz v. Kumar Singh ...	535	Gudar Tewary v. Brij Nandan Pershad ...	880
Chhotu Mahton v. Sheebarti Koer ...	445	Hari Doyal Singh Roy v. Sheikh Samuddin ...	240
Collector of Dacca v. Jagat Chandra Goswami ...	873	Hari Saran Maitra v. Jotindra Mohan Lahiri ...	393
Dew Narain Choudhury v. O. R. H. Webb (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 86) ...	160	Hem Chunder Misri v. Sourindra Mohan Tagore ...	482
Dhukiram Srimani v. Jogendra Chandra Sen ...	347	Hiramoni Dassi v. Radha Churn Kar ...	128
Domah Pandey v. Panchu Kole (5 C. W. N. xxii) ...	185	Ishan Chandra Burdhan v. Ainuddin Mia ...	720
		Ishan Chandra Dey v. Gonesh Chandra Parshi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 139) ...	419
		Ismail Khan Mahomed v. L. P. D. Broughton ...	846

CIVIL APPELLATE.—contd.

	Page		Page
Jarao Kumari v. Gopi Chand Bothra ...	562	Purna Chandra Sarkar v. Nil Madhub Nandi (4 C. W. N. lxxii) ...	485
Jatindra Nath Chaudhuri v. Amrita Lal Bagchi (4 C. W. N. cxix) ...	20	Raghu Nath Ghosal v. Mafaksher Hossain (4 C. W. N. cxxj; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 177) ...	192
Jigri Begum v. Syed Ali Nawab (5 C. W. N. cxxiv) ...	494	Raj Narain v. Khobdari Rai (5 C. W. N. clxxvi) ...	724
Jogahundhu Majumdar v. Rasho Monjan Dassya (4 C. W. N. cxlvi) ...	272	Ram Komal Saha v. Bank of Bengal of Akyab ...	91
Jogeshur Bhagat v. Ghanasham Dass (5 C. W. N. xci) ...	356	Rammoy Hazra v. Prem Chand Naskar (5 C. W. N. xcii) ...	423
Kailash Chandra Neogi v. Harish Chandra Biswas ...	158	Rooke v. Bengal Coal Co. (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 485) ...	840
Kedar Nath Chatterjee v. Ardha Chandra Roy Chowdhury (5 C. W. N. clxxxviii) ...	763	Sadai Naik v. Serai Naik (5 C. W. N. lxxi; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 532) ...	279
Kedar Nath Mukerjee v. Prosonna Kumar Chatterjee ...	559	Sakalboti Mandarain v. Babulal Mundar (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 190) ...	455
Khem Narain Chowdhury v. Ganesho Kuar ...	287	Sarat Kumari Debi v. Nimai Charn Dey ...	265
Khonkar Abdur Rahaman v. Ali Hafez (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 256) ...	351	Saroda Sundari Dassi v. Kristo Jiban Pal ...	300
Lala Suraj Prosad v. Golab Chand (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 517) ...	640	Shama Prosad Ghose v. Taki Mullick ...	816
Lalita Sundari v. Surnomoyee Dasi ...	355	Sheik Jafar v. Kamalini Debi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 238) ...	150
Mahomed Alam v. Dilbar Khan ...	285	Sheikh Karban Ali v. Sheikh Jafar Ali (5 C. W. N. ccxvi; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 471) ...	798
Mahomed Ali Hossein v. Mir Nazar Ali (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 289) ...	326	Sheikh Mongola v. Maharajah Kumud Chunder Singh Bahadur ...	60
Manoo Lal v. Durga Prasad Singh (5 C. W. N. cxvii) ...	653	Sheikh Nizamuddin v. Momtazuddin (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 135) ...	263
Mathewson v. Gobardhan Tribedi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 492) ...	654	Sheikh Sarafuddin Mondul v. Chandra Mani Gupta (5 C. W. N. xxxi) ...	405
Methuram Dass v. Jaggan Nath Dass (5 C. W. N. clxxxvii) ...	804	Sheo Pershad Singh v. Babu Tiluk Singh (4 C. W. N. ccxxiii) ...	232
Miller v. Lakhimoni Debi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 419) ...	761	Shib Narain Pahari v. Shankar Panigrahi ...	403
Mozam Hassain v. Bhoudin ...	189	Sourindra Mohan Tagore v. Shiromoni Debi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 171) ...	307
Mohesh Chunder Das v. Jahiruddi Mollah (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 324) ...	509	Sri Narain Chowdhry v. Jodoo Nath Chowdhry ...	147
Mohunt Jagannath Ramanuj Das v. Chandra Kumar Bose ...	421	Surja Kumar Dutt v. Arun Chandra Roy (5 C. W. N. clxxix; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 465) ...	767
Mohunt Sieram Das v. Mohunt Mohabir Das ...	362	Surjamani Dassee v. Kali Kanta Das (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 37) ...	195
Moti Lal Saha v. Monmohan Gossami ...	56	Syed Moazzim Hossein v. Raphael Robinson ...	741
Narain Chunder Boral v. Secretary of State (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 152) ...	349	Tekait Mon Mohini Jomadaï v. Rai Basant Kumar Singha ...	673
Nilratan Khasnobish v. Ram Rutton Chatterji ...	627	Ugra Mohun Thakur v. Bedeshi Roy ...	360
Nobin Chandra Soot v. Nabad Ali Sarkar ...	343	Uma Charan Das v. Mukta Keshi Dasi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 149) ...	443
Nokori Dpur v. Sarup Chunder Dey ...	341	Umakant Roy v. Deno Nath Sanyal (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 4) ...	124
Patit Sahu v. Hari Mahanti (4 C. W. N. ccxxv) ...	126	Umesh Chandra Pramanick v. Mathur Mohan Haldar (5 C. W. N. lxxix; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 246) ...	607
Peary Mohun Mukherjee v. Badal Chunder Bagdi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 205) ...	310	Umesh Chunder Dey v. Sharbessur Chunder (5 C. W. N. lxx) ...	304
Peary Mohan Mukherjee v. Narendra Krishna Mukerjee (5 C. W. N. xxxix) ...	273
Pijraddi Naskar v. Ambica Churn Mitter ...	121
Protap Narain Mukerjee v. Sarat Kumari Debi ...	386

CASES REFERRED TO.

	Page		Page
A
Abbas v. Fassih-ud-din, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 413 (1897), referred to ...	723	Arnold v. The Cheque Bank, 1 C. P. D. 578 (1876), referred to ...	314
Abdul Fata Mahomed Ishak v. Russomoy Dhur Chowdhry, L. R. 22 I. A. 76 (1894), cited ...	179	Arunachellam Chetti v. Arunachellam Chetti, L. R. 15 I. A. 171 (1888), referred to ...	524
Abdul Gafur v. Nizamuddin, L. R. 19 I. A. 170 (1892), cited ...	180	Ashutosh Chandra v. Tara Prosunno Roy, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 612 (1884), referred to ...	877
Abdul Haiy Khan v. Chuia Kuar, I. L. R. 8 All. 377 (1886), explained ...	192	Asmutunnissa v. Ashruff Ali, I. L. R. 15 Cal. 488 (1888), referred to ...	825
Abdul Mazumdar v. Mohamed Gazi, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 605 (1894), followed and referred to ...	559, 758	Atulya Churn Bose v. Tulsi Das Sarkar, 2 C. W. N. 543 (1895), referred to ...	439
B
Abdur Rahim v. Birju Sahu, 5 B. L. R. 676 (1870), cited ...	148	Baeo Rulyut v. Jeychand Bellais 43 : s. c. I. Mor. N., S. 181 (1843), referred to ...	196
Abhya Dassi v. Pudma Lochun Mondol, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 802 (1895), followed ...	124	Bagal Chunder Mukerjee v. Rameshur Mundul, I. L. R. 18 Cal. 496 (1891), cited ...	525
Achalabala Bose v. Surendra Nath Dey, 1 C. W. N. 550 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 466 (1897), approved ...	137	Baijnath v. Luchman Das, I. L. R. 7 All. 888 (1885), referred to ...	421
Adamson v. Jarvis, 4 Bing. Rep. 66 (1827), referred to ...	393	Baijnath Sahai v. Ramgout Singh, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 775 (1896), referred to ...	88, 524
Adhibai v. Cursandas Nathu, I. L. R. 11 Bom. 199 (1886), cited ...	551	Bai Mangal v. Bai Rukhmini, I. L. R. 23 Bom. 291 (1898), referred to ...	298
Administrator-General of Madras v. Anandachari, I. L. R. 9 Mad. 466 (1886), referred to ...	196	Bainbridge v. Blair, 3 Beav. 421 (1841), cited ...	417
Advocate-General of Bengal v. Ranee Surnomoye Dassee, 9 Moo. I. A. 387 (1863), referred to ...	659	Bai Sari v. Sankla Hira Chand, I. L. R. 16 Bom. 714 (1892), referred to ...	196
Ahmed Nanu Bhai v. Kharap Karim Bhai, 6 Bom. H. C. 149 (1869), referred to ...	693	Bakar Sajjad Ali v. Udit Narain Singh, I. L. R. 21 All. 361 (1899), approved and referred to ...	137, 654
Akikunnissa Bibi v. Rup Lal Das, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 807 (1898), distinguished ...	196	Balaji Narayan Patvardhan v. Ram Chandra Gobind, I. L. R. 19 Bom. 660 (1894), referred to ...	223
Ali Abbas v. Kalka Pershad, I. L. R. 14 All. 405 (1892), approved ...	1	Balkishen Das v. Legg, 4 C. W. N. 153 : s. c. L. R. 27 I. A. 58 (1899), referred to and followed ...	327, 351
Amirunessa Khatoon v. Secretary of State, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 63 (1883), referred to ...	523	Balkrishna v. Masuma Bibi, L. R. 9 I. A. 182 (1882), referred to ...	526
Amir Hassan v. Sheo Baksh, I. L. R. 11 Cal. 6 (1884), referred to ...	510	Balwant Singh v. Rani Kishore, L. R. 25 I. A. 54 (1897), cited ...	810
Amolak Ram v. Lachmi Narain, I. L. R. 19 All. 174 (1896), overruled ...	137	Banarsi Parshad v. Kashi Krishna Narain, L. R. 27 I. A. 11 : s. c. 5 C. W. N. 193 (1900), referred to ...	690
Amstil, In re, L. R. 2 P. D. 186 (1877), cited ...	786	Bangarusami v. Balasubramanian, I. L. R. 13 Mad. 496 (1890), referred to ...	748
Anand Lal v. Shib Chunder Mukerjee, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 477 (1896), referred to ...	800	Banister, In re, (Broad v. Munton), 12 Ch. Div. 131 (1879), referred to ...	593
Anando Kishore Dass Bakshi v. Anando Kishore Bose, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 50 (1896), referred to ...	767	Bank of England v. Vagliano Bros., L. R. (1891), App. Cas. 107, referred to ...	314, 646
Annot Lytle, In re, L. R. 11 P. D. 114 (1886), cited ...	789	Bank of Ireland v. Trustees of Evans Charities in Ireland, 5 H. L. Cas. 389 (1855), referred to ...	314
Anderson, Ex parte, L. R. 5 Ch. App. 473 (1870), cited ...	781	Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Company, 19 Q. B. D. 155 (1887), referred to ...	Adm
Anund Chunder Pal v. Punchoo Lal Soobalah, 14 W. R. (F. B.) 33 (1870), followed ...	761

	Page		Page
Barton v. Rock, 22 Beav. 81, 876 (1856), cited ...	792	Bindubasini Chowdhurani v. Jahnabi Chowdhurani, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 260 (1896), cited ...	791
Basdeo v. John Smidt, I. L. R. 22 All. 55 (1899), followed ...	92	Bishambar Haldar v. Bonomali Haldar, 3 O. W. N. 283: s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 414 (1899), referred to ...	526
Basi Poddar v. Ram Krishna Poddar, 1 C. W. N. 135 (1896), approved ...	821	Biswa Nath Chaki v. Bani Kant Dutta, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 406 (1896), approved of ...	617
Basanta, Oommar Roy Chowdhri v. Pro- motha Nath Bhattacharjee, 3 C. W. N. 36: s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 130 (1898), overruled ...	438	Boloram Dey v. Ram Chundra Dey, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 279 (1895), overruled ...	617
Baswantapa v. Ranu, I. L. R. 9 Bom. 86 (1884), distinguished ...	10	Brajeshware Peshkar v. Bhudhanuddi, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 268 (1880), referred to and explained ...	403
Bazloor Raheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867), re- ferred to ...	195	Brewer v. Yorke, L. R. 20 Ch. D. 669 (1882), cited ...	790
Beni Ram v. Kundan Lal, 3 C. W. N. 502: s. c. I. L. R. 21 All. 496; I. R. 26 I. A. 58 (1899), referred to ...	857	Brindabun Chandra v. Chandra Kurino- kar, I. L. R. 12 Cal. 140 (1885), re- ferred to ...	196
Beni Madhub Roy v. Joad Ali Sarkar, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 390 (1890), referred to ...	763	Brij Indar Bahadur Singh v. Ranees Janki Koer, L. R. 5 I. A. 1 (1877), referred to ...	604
Beni Prashad v. Dudh Nath, L. R. 26 I. A. 216 (1899), cited ...	810	Brij Mohan Thakur v. Rai Uma Nath, I. L. R. 20 Cal. 8 (1892), distinguished ...	510
Betts v. Gibbins, 2 A. & E. 57 (1834), referred to ...	393	Brojendra Kumar Roy Chowdhury v. Rash Behari Roy Chowdhury, I. L. R. 13 Cal. 300 (1886), referred to ...	393
Bhagain Megh Ranees Koer v. Gooroo Pershad Singh, 25 W. R. 68 (1876), followed ...	353	Brojo Behari Mitter v. Kedar Nath Mozumdar, I. L. R. 12 Cal. 80 (1886), referred to ...	423
Bhagvant Govind v. Kondi, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 279 (1889), unsupported ...	11	Brojo Durlab Singh v. Roma Nath Ghose, 1 C. W. N. 597: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 908 (1897), distinguished ...	877
Bhagwan Dai v. Hira, I. L. R. 19 All. 355 (1897), cited ...	154	Brown v. Brown, 11 Beav. 562 (1849), referred to ...	437
Bhagwati Prasad v. Jamna Prasad, I. L. R. 19 All. 136 (1896), referred to and followed ...	426	Bungshidhar Haldar v. Kedar Nath Mundal, 1 C. W. N. 114 (1896), re- ferred to ...	64, 827
Bhai Chal Nasya v. Shaik Shamnuyasij Mahomed, 1 C. W. N. 152 (1894), distinguished and explained ...	121	Buzloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867), re- ferred to ...	678
Bheka Singh v. Nakshhed Singh, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 40 (1896), referred to ...	407	Bykant Monees Roy v. Kisto Soonderees Roy, 7 W. R. 392 (1867), considered ...	20
Bhola Bhai v. Adesang, I. L. R. 9 Bom. 75 (1884), cited ...	484	Carus-Wilson v. Greene, L. R. 18 Q. B. Div. 7 (1886), referred to ...	242
Bhoobun Mohini Debia v. Hurriah Chun- der Chowdhry, L. R. 5 I. A. 138 (1878), distinguished ...	806	Caspersz v. Kedar Nath Sarbadhikari, 5 C. W. N. cclxxix, 858 post (1901), distinguished ...	846
Bhoobun Moyee Debia v. Ram Kishore Acharj Chowdhury, 10 M. I. A. 279 (1865), considered ...	20	Chamberlain v. Boyd, 11 Q. B. D. 407 (1883), cited ...	659
Bhowani Prosad v. Kallu, I. L. R. 17 All. 537 (1895), referred to ...	648	Chandidat Jha v. Padmanand Singh Bahadur, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 459 (1895), referred to and cited ...	362, 786
Bhubaneswari Debi v. Hari Saran Moitra, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 720 (1880), referred to ...	400	Chandra Kant Roy v. N. P. Pogose, 3 B. L. R. O. S. 83 (1869), cited ...	260
Bhubun Mohun Pal v. Nonda Lal Dey, I. L. R. 26 Cal. 324: s. c. 3 C. W. N. 399 (1899), referred to ...	125	Child & Co. v. Thurley, L. R. 16 Ch. Div. 151 at p. 155 (1880), referred to ...	360
Bhugwan Chunder Bose v. Bindoo Bashinee Dassee, 6 W. R. 286 (1866), cited ...	551	Chotun Bibee v. Ameer Chand, 6 W. R. 105 (1866), referred to ...	195
Bhup Indar Bahadur Singh v. Bejai Bahadur Singh, 5 O. W. N. 52: s. c. L. R. 27 I. A. 209 (1900), referred to ...	618	Chunder Kumar Mukerji v. Secretary of State, 4 C. W. N. 586: s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 698 (1900), referred to ...	525
Bijai Bahadur Singh v. Bhupindar Baha- dur Singh, L. R. 22 I. A. 139 (1895), cited ...	50	Clark v. Clark, L. R. 10 P. D. 188 (1886), cited ...	678
Binda v. Kaunsilia, I. L. R. 13 All. 126 (1891), referred to ...	196, 682

	Page
Clarke v. Morgan, 38 L. T. 354 (1878), cited	659
Collet v. The London and North-Western Railway Company, 16 Q. B. 985 (1851), explained	449
Cookney v. Anderson, 31 Beav. 452 (1862), referred to	743
Cooper v. Adams, 2 Ch. 557 (1894), cited	642
Cotton v. Wood, 8 C. B. N. S. 568 (1860), cited	451
Credits Gerundouse, Limited v. Van Weede, 12 Q. B. D. 171 (1884), re- ferred to	746
Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. Div. 700 (1884), referred to	338

D

Debendra Kumar Mandel v. Rup Lall Dass, 1 L. R. 12 Cal. 546 (1886), referred to	821
Dadaji Bhikaji v. Rukma Bai, 1 L. R. 10 Bom. 301 (1886), referred to 196,	678
Daivanayagam Pillai v. Rangasami Ayar, 1 L. R. 19 Mad. 29 (1894), followed	124
Dame Janbai v. Sale Mahomed Jaffer- bhoy, 1 L. R. 19 Bom. 10 (1894), referred to	563
Daniel v. Metropolitan Railway, L. R. 5 E. & I. App. 45 (1871), cited	451
Davis v. Duke of Marlborough, 2 Swans- ton 108 (1819), cited	417
Davis v. Solomon, 41 L. J. Q. B. 10 (1871), cited	659
Dawkins v. Lord Rokeby, L. R. 7 H. L. 744 (1875), referred to	804
De Bussche v. Alt, L. R. 8 Ch. D. 289 (1877), cited	848
Debiruddi v. Abdur Rahim, 1 L. R. 17 Cal. 196 (1888), referred to	264
Degumbur Chatterjee v. Ram Prea Debea, Marshall's Rep. 517 (1863), approved	269
Dengu Kazi v. Nobin Kishore Chow- dhraim, 1 C. W. N. 294 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 482 (1897), considered and explained	799
Desai Lallubhai Jethubhai v. Mundas Kuber Das, 1 L. R. 20 Bom. 390 (1895), referred to	420
Devey v. Thornton, 9 Hare. 222 (1851), cited	791
Devji v. Sambhu, 1 L. R. 24 Bom. 135 (1899), cited	646
Dewan Ran Bijai Bahadur Singh v. Rae Jagatpal Singh, L. R. 17 I. A. 173 (1890), followed	602
Dewan Singh v. Mahip Singh, 1 L. R. 10 All. 456 (1888), referred to	664
Dhani Ram Shaha v. Bhagirath Saha, 1 L. R. 22 Cal. 692 (1895), referred to	274
Dharmaya Sangappa v. Sayana Malapa, 1 L. R. 21 Bom. 53 (1895), referred to	494
Dharam Singh v. Kissen Singh, 12 C. L. R. 532 (1883), cited	787

Dhunput Singh v. Gooman Singh, 9 W. R. (P. C.) 7 : s. c. 11 M. I. A. 493 (1867), cited and referred to	848, 859
Dhunput Singh v. Mahomed Kazim Ispahain, 1 L. R. 24 Cal. 296 (1896), approved	353
Dinabandhu Shaha v. Lolit Mohan Mitter, 2 C. W. N. 595 (1898), re- ferred to	407
Dixon v. Smith, 5 H. & N. 450 (1860), cited	659
Drinkwater v. Ratcliffe, L. R. 20 Eq. 528 (1875), cited	129
Dugappa Chetti v. Vidhia Panna Tinha- sani, 1 L. R. 6 Mad. 263 (1882), re- ferred to	858
Dukhoda Sundari Dassi v. Sreemuntha Joardar, 3 C. W. N. 657 (1899), re- ferred to	342
Dulhin Golab Koer v. Radha Dulari Koer, 1 L. R. 19 Cal. 463 (1892), referred to	618
Durga Churn Mundal v. Kaliprosunno Sircar, 3 C. W. N. 586 : s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 727 (1899), referred to	764
Durga Mohun Das v. Rakhal Chunder Rai, 5 C. W. N. 801 (1901), dis- tinguished	846
Dwyer v. Moohan, 18 L. R. Ir. 138, cited	650

E

Ebrahim v. Fukrunnissa Begum, 1 L. R. 4 Cal. 531 (1878), cited	785
Edulji v. Manekji, 1 L. R. 11 Bom. 241 (1886), referred to	748
Eisenlohr v. Goona Moni Debi, unreport- ed (1895), cited	260
Else v. Else, L. R. 13 Eq. 196 (1872), re- ferred to	593
Eshan Chunder Singh v. Shama Churn Bhutto, 11 M. I. A. 7 (1866), referred to	26
Evans v. Harris, 1 H. & N. 251 (1856), cited	659

F

Fadu Jhala v. Gour Mohun Jhala, 1 L. R. 19 Cal. 544, at p. 662 (1892), re- ferred to	885
Faith v. Richmond, 11 A. & E. 339 (1840), referred to	716
Fakaruddin Mahomed Ahsan v. The Official Trustee of Bengal, 1 L. R. 10 Cal. 538 (1884), distinguished	626
Fakirganda v. Gangi, 1 L. R. 23 Bom. 307 (1898), referred to	196
Forbes v. Ameeroonissa Begum, 10 M. I. A. 340 (1865), referred to	891
Forbes v. Marshall, 11 Exch. 166 (1855), cited	717
Forget v. Ostigny, L. R. (1895) App. Cas. 318, cited	717

G

Ganeshee Lal v. Toola Ram, N. W. P. H. C. Rep. 376 (1868), referred to	890
---	-----

	Page		Page
Ganga Narsain Gupta v. Tilukram Chowdhry, I. L. R. 15 Cal. 583 (1888), referred to	92	H
Gatharam v. Moohita Kochin, 23 W. R. 179 (1875), referred to	196	Hadjee Ismail v. Hadjee Mahomed, 13 B. L. R. 91 (1874), cited	435, 791
Ghayidin v. Fakir Buksh, I. L. R. 7 All. 73 (1884), cited	784	Halloddhar Biswas v. Mohesh Chunder Haldar, S. D. A. for 1861, p. 8, followed	279
Ghulam Kadir Khan v. Mustakin Khan, I. L. R. 18 All. 109 (1895), referred to	425	Hamidal Huq v. Matangini Dasi, 2 O. W. N. colviii (1898), distinguished and approved	63, 821
Gieve, In re , I. R. (1899), 1 Q. B. 794, cited	717	Hamidun-nessa Bibi v. Zohiruddin Shaik, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 670 (1890), referred to	679
Girijanath v. Ram Narain, I. L. R. 20 Cal. 264 (1891), referred to	524	Hankin v. Turner, L. R. 10 Ch. Div. 372 (1878), cited	119
Gobindo Nath Roy v. Ram Kanay Chowdhury, 24 W. R. 183 (1875), considered	20	Hardei v. Ramlal, I. L. R. 11 All. 319 (1889), cited	179
Gobind Chandra Kondoo v. Taruk Chandra Bose, I. L. R. 3 Cal. 145 (1877), distinguished	234	Hari Singh v. Danesh Mahomed, 20 W. R. Cr. Rulings 46 (1873), cited	170
Goffin v. Donnelly, 6 Q. B. D. 307 (1881), referred to	804	Harlock v. Ashberry, L. R. 19 Ch. Div. 84 (1881), cited	119
Gokibai v. Lakhmidas Khimji, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 490 (1890), followed	549	Hewetson v. Deas, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 526 (1894), cited	119
Gones Dass v. Luchmi Narayan, I. L. R. 18 Bom. 570 (1893), referred to	313	Himalya Bank v. The Simla Bank, I. L. R. 8 All. 23 (1885), referred to	420
Goordhan v. Heera Singh, S. D. A. N. W. P. 181 (1866), referred to	890	Hira Lal v. Badri Das, I. L. R. 2 All. 792 : s. c. L. R. 7 I. A. 167 (1880), referred to	151
Gopal Prasad v. Radho, I. L. R. 10 All. 358 (1888), referred to	148	Hira Lal Sahu v. Parmeshwar Rai, I. L. R. 21 All. 356 (1899), cited	642
Gopal v. Teluck, 10 M. I. A. 183 (1865), cited	849	Hoskins v. Campbell, W. N. for 1869, p. 59, cited	417
Gopinath Birbar v. Goluck Chunder Bose, I. L. R. 16 Cal. 292 (1884), referred to	457	Hukum Chand v. Hira Lal, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 159 (1876), referred to	158
Gopi Nath Masat v. Adoitonak, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 776 (1894), cited	800	Hunt v. Hunt, 4 D. F. & J. 221 (1862), cited	676
Goursimull v. Dhunsuk Das, 7 B. L. R. 289 foot-note (1865), referred to	314	Hurri Krishna Panda v. Balabhadra Panda, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 431 (1896), referred to	494
Govett v. Richmond, 7 Sim. 1 (1834), referred to and distinguished	260	Hurri Chunder Chowdhry v. Kali Sundari Debi, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 594 (1881); on appeal, L. R. 10 I. A. 4 : s. c. I. L. R. 9 Cal. 482 (1882), referred to	782
Govind bin Lakshmanshet v. Dhondbrar bin Gavnbarar, I. L. R. 15 Bom. 104 (1890), cited	484	Hurri Chunder v. Mohinee Mohun, 9 W. R. 582 (1868), referred to	816
Govindram v. Tatia, I. L. R. 20 Bom. 383 (1895), approved	767
Gregory v. Mighell, 18 Ves. 328 (1811), referred to	638	Inder Kumari v. Jaipal Kumari, L. R. 14 I. A. 11 (1886), referred to	797
Grish Chandra Mitter v. Jata Dhari Sadukhan, 3 C. W. N. 551 : s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 653 (1899), followed	659	Inderun v. Ramaswamy, 12 W. R. P. O. 41 (1869), referred to	196
Groom v. Wilson, I. L. R. 3 Cal. 539 (1878), cited	259	Iron-Mongers Company v. Attorney-General, 10 Cl. & F. 908 (1844), cited	791
Gujraj Sahav v. Secretary of State, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 414 (1890); on appeal, L. R. 20 I. A. 70 (1893), referred to	524	Ishan Chunder Sirkar v. Beni Madhub Sirkar, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 62 (1896), distinguished and referred to	403, 655
Gungadhar Shikdar v. Ayimuddin Shah Biswas, I. L. R. 8 Cal. 960 (1882), referred to	859	Ismail Ariff v. Mahomed Ghous, I. L. R. 20 Cal. 834 : s. c. L. R. 20 I. A. 99 (1893), distinguished	234
Gunga Dye v. Shama Bibee, unreported	552	Ismail Khan v. Joygoon, 4 C. W. N. 210 : s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 570 (1900), referred to	856, 859
Gurdial Singh v. Raja of Faridkot, I. R. 21 I. A. 171 : s. c. I. L. R. 22 Cal. 222 (1894), followed and explained	741	Isri Dut Koer v. Hansbutti Koerani, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 324 (1883), distinguished	446
Gur Prasad v. Ram Lal, I. L. R. 21 All. 20 (1898), referred to	655
Gyannessa v. Mobarakannessa, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 210 (1897), distinguished	724

	Page		Page
J		K
Jadumoni Dassee v. Kshettra Mohan Shil, Shama Churn's Vyavastha Darpan Precedents, 3rd Ed., p. 362, cited ...	552	Kamala Kant Sen v. Abdul Bakrul, I. L. R. 27 Cal. 180 (1899), referred to ...	357
Jagabundhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal, 4 C. W. N. 734 (1887), overruled ...	474	Kamini Dassee v. Chandra Pote Mondle, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 373 (1889), followed ...	549
Jagadamba Chowdrain v. Dakhina Mohun, L. R. 13 I. A. 84 (1886), applied ...	11	Kankatala Chellamaiya v. Polsheth Papaiya, 6 Mad. H. C. 36 (1870), referred to ...	693
Jagrup Rai v. Radhey Singh, I. L. R. 13 All. 288 (1890), referred to ...	420	Kantiram v. Kutubuddin, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 33 (1894), cited ...	823
Jamna Bai v. Ray Chand Nahal Chand, I. L. R. 7 Bom. 225 (1883), considered ...	20	Karoonamoyee Dabee v. Gangadhar Surmah, 20 W. R. 50 (1873), referred to ...	195
Janardhan Ganguli v. Kali Kristo Thakur, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 393 (1895), referred to ...	827	Kashi Prasad v. Miller, I. L. R. 7 All. 752 (1885), referred to ...	761
Janki v. Nandram, I. L. R. 11 All. 194 (1888), followed ...	549	Kasi Nath v. Sada Siv, I. L. R. 20 Cal. 805 (1893), cited ...	824
Jehan Kadar v. Afsar Bahu Begum, I. L. R. 12 Cal. 1 (1885), cited ...	50	Kasiram v. Bhadu, 7 Bom. H. C. R. (A. C.) 17 (1870), referred to ...	663
Jethabhai Dayalji v. Girdhar, I. L. R. 20 Bom. 158 (1894), referred to ...	420	Kasturbai v. Shivajiram, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 372 (1879), followed ...	549
Jivi v. Ramji, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 207 (1879), discussed and cited ...	202	Kasturi v. Venkatachalapathi, I. L. R. 15 Mad. 412 (1892), referred to and followed ...	498
Jiwan Ali Beg v. Basa Mal, I. L. R. 8 All. 203 (1886), cited ...	119	Kay v. Briggs, L. R. 22 Q. B. D. 343 (1889), cited ...	786
Jogendra Deb Roykut v. Fanindro Deb Roykut, 14 Moo. I. A. 367 (1871), cited ...	642	Kedar Nath Coondoo v. Hemangini Dassee, I. L. R. 13 Cal. 336 (1886), cited ...	551
Jogendranandini Dassee v. Hurry Dass Ghose, I. L. R. 5 Cal. 500 (1879), referred to ...	196, 684	Keshab Pandurang v. Vinayak Hari, I. L. R. 18 Bom. 355 (1893), referred to ...	420
Jogeshwar Singh v. Jawahar Singh, I. L. R. 1 All. 311 (1876), applied ...	888	Kesho Pershad v. Hirday Narain, 6 C. L. R. 69 (1880), explained ...	58
Jogeshwar v. Dinaram, 2 C. W. N. cxiii (1898), cited ...	664	Khadem Hossein v. Emdad Hossein, 5 C. W. N. 617 (1901), referred to ...	876
Jogobundhu Pattuck v. Jadu Ghose Alkushi, I. L. R. 15 Cal. 47 (1887), referred to ...	763	Khajah Assenoo Majoo v. Solomon, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 533 (1887), cited ...	116
Jonardan Dobey v. Ramdhone Singh, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 738 (1896), cited ...	154	Khedam Mahato v. Budhan Mahato, 4 C. W. N. 333 (1900), distinguished ...	279
Jones v. Simes, L. R. 43 Ch. Div. 607 (1890), referred to ...	242	Khenamaji v. Shushee Bhusan, 9 W. R. 94 (1868), referred to ...	858
Joseph v. Solano, 9 B. L. R. 441 (1872), cited ...	260	Khetramani Dasi v. Kashi Nath Das, 2 B. L. R. (A. C.) 15 (1868), referred to and followed ...	298, 549
Joykishen Mookerjee v. Ataoor Rohoman, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 22 (1880), referred to ...	192	Kirk v. Blurton, 9 M. and W. 284 (1841), referred to ...	716
Jugmohun v. Pallonjee, I. L. R. 22 Bom. 1 (1896), referred to ...	857	Kishen Persad Panday v. Tilucdari Lall, I. L. R. 18 Cal. 182 (1890), cited ...	786
Juhooree Lall v. Dear, 23 W. R. 399 (1875), cited ...	849	Kishori Mohun v. Nund Kumar, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 720 (1897), referred to ...	503
Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Co., 8 B. L. R. 433 (1872), cited, commented on and followed ...	435, 782, 787	Kishory Mohun Roy v. Mohamed Mojafer Hossein, I. L. R. 18 Cal. 188 (1890), cited ...	525
		Kishun Lal v. Muhammad Safdar Ali-khan, I. L. R. 13 All. 383 (1891), referred to ...	240
		Knight v. Gibbs, I. A. and E. 43 (1834), cited ...	659
		Komol Lochun Dutt v. Nilrutton Mundle, I. L. R. 4 Cal. 360 (1878), followed and distinguished ...	377, 383
		Komul Chunder Bose v. Nobin Chunder Ghose, 10 W. R. 184 (1868), cited ...	659
		Koobur Khansama v. Jan Khansama, 8 W. R. 467 (1867), referred to ...	195
		Krishna Chandra Sen v. Sushila Soon-dury Dassee, I. L. R. 26 Cal. 611 (1899), referred to ...	439
K
Kaleeram Dokanee v. Gendhenee, 23 W. R. 178 (1875), referred to ...	196, 681
Kalipado Mukerjee v. Denonath Mukerjee, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 315 (1897), distinguished ...	150
Kali Prosunno Basu v. Lal Mohun Guha, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 258 (1897), distinguished ...	192

	Page
Krishna Kishore v. Mir Mahomed, 3 O. W. N. 255 (1899), referred to ...	857
Kunhamied v. Narayan, I. L. R. 12 Mad. 320 (1888), cited ...	848

L.

La Banque v. La Banque, L. R. 13 App. Cas. 111 (1887), cited ...	848
Lachlan v. Reynolds, Kay's Rep. 52 (1853), referred to ...	593
Lakhmi Chand v. Gatto Bai, I. L. R. 7 All. 542 (1885), cited ...	119
Lala Chhajmal Das v. Brij Bhukan Lall, L. R. 22 I. A. 199 (1895), referred to ...	357
Lala Himmat Sahai Singh v. Llewellyn, I. L. R. 11 Cal. 486 (1885), referred to ...	158
Lala Mabaruk Lal v. Secretary of State, I. L. R. 11 Cal. 200 (1885), referred to ...	524
Lala Ramjewan v. Dalkoer, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 406 (1897), referred to ...	301
Lalessor Babui v. Janki Bibi, I. L. R. 19 Cal. 615 (1891), cited ...	194
Lalit Mohan Singh v. Chukkun Lal Roy, 1 C. W. N. 387: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 834 (1897), referred to ...	301
Lalji Mal v. Nand Kishore, I. L. R. 19 All. 332 (1897), referred to ...	654
Lall Nath Misser v. Sheoburn Panday, 20 W. R. 92 (1873), referred to ...	196
Lane v. Esdail, L. R. (1891) A. C. 210, cited ...	786
Lekhraj v. Kunhya, I. L. R. 3 Cal. 210 (1877), cited ...	849
Lekraj Kuar v. Mappal Singh, L. R. 7 I. A. 63 (1879), cited ...	33, 50
Levenson v. Lane, 13 C. B. 278 (1882), referred to ...	716
Lewis v. Allenby, L. R. 10 Eq. Cas. 668 (1870), cited ...	180
London and South-Western Railway Co. v. Gomm, 20 Ch. Div. 562 (1882), referred to ...	345
Lutchman Pandeh v. Maddan Mohun Shye, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 513 (1880), referred to ...	150
Lutchmee Narain v. Rungo Lal Lohea, 2 C. W. N. 57: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 437 (1897), cited ...	337
Lutf Ali Khan v. Asgur Reza, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 455 (1890), cited ...	785
Lynch v. Knight, 9 H. L. C. 594 (1861), referred to ...	659

M

Mackintosh v. Great Western Ry. Co., 4 Giff. 683 (1887), distinguished ...	693
Macnaghten v. Mahabir Pershad Singh, I. L. R. 9 Cal. 656 (1882), referred to ...	523
M'Culloch v. Gregory, 1 Kay & Johnson 286 (1855), referred to ...	593
Madho Das v. Ramji Patak, I. L. R. 16 All. 286 (1894), referred to ...	655
Madhub Lall Dugur v. Woopendra Narain Sen, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 573 (1896), cited ...	260

Madhusudan Singh v. E. G. Rooke, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 1 (1897), relied upon ...	280
Mahomed Abdul Hai v. Gujraj Sahai, I. L. R. 20 Cal. 826 (1893), referred to ...	88
Mahomed Gazeer Chowdhry v. Ram Lall Sen, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 757 (1884), referred to ...	265
Mahomed Hamidulla v. Tohurenmissa, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 155 (1897), approved of ...	58
Mahomed Ismail Khan v. Mahomed Tahir, 6 N. W. P. 38 (1873), cited ...	659
Makbul Ahmed v. Rakhal Das Hazra, 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900), dissented from and approved of ...	327, 474
Mallikarjuna v. Pathanevi, I. L. R. 19 Mad. 479 (1896), referred to ...	510
Maneckji Limji Mancherji v. Goolbai, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 241 (1878); cited ...	119
Manick Lall Seal v. Sarat Kumari Dasi, unreported, Suit No. 338 of 1883, Norris, J., 23rd August 1883, dissented from ...	434
Manly v. Patterson, I. L. R. 7 Cal. 339 (1881), cited ...	785
Marshall v. Marshall, L. R. 5 P. D. 19 (1879), referred to ...	683
Matadin v. Kazim, I. L. R. 13 All. 432 (1891), referred to ...	836
Matra Mondal v. Hari Mohan Mullick, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 155 (1889), referred to and approved ...	510
Mayor of the Staple of England v. Bank of England, 21 Q. B. D. 160 (1887), referred to ...	314
Melaram Nudial v. Kanooram Bainun, 9 W. R. 552 (1868), referred to ...	195
Merryweather v. Jones, 4 Giff. 519 (1863), referred to ...	684
Merry Weather v. Nixan, 8 T. R. 186 (1799), referred to ...	393
Mewa Lal Thakoor v. Bhujhun Jha, 22 W. R. 213: s. c. 13 B. L. R. App. 11 (1874), referred to ...	559
Miller v. Ranga Nath Moulick, I. L. R. 12 Cal. 389 (1885), referred to ...	359
Mohabir Prosad Sing v. Adhikari Kunwar, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 473 (1894), referred to ...	796
Mohammed Ewaz v. Birj Lall, L. R. 4 I. A. 166 (1877), cited ...	179
Mohendra Narain Roy, In the goods of, 5 O. W. N. 377 (1900), referred to ...	383
Mohesh Chandra v. Madhub Chandra, 2 B. L. R. Short Notes of Cases, p. 13 (1868), distinguished ...	510
Mohesh Chunder Dhal v. Satrugan Dhal, 4 C. W. N. 34: s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 1: s. c. I. L. R. 26 I. A. 281 (1899), referred to ...	309, 797
Moheshur Singh v. The Bengal Government, 7 Moo. I. A. 283 (1859), referred to ...	510, 619
Mohibal Huq v. Shew Sahay Singh, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 85 (1897), referred to ...	524
Moore v. Meagher, 1 Taunt. 39 (1807), cited ...	659
Motilal Prannath v. Bai Kashi, I. L. R. 17 Bom. 45 (1892), discussed and doubted ...	74

	Page		Page
Moula Buksh v. Kishen Pertab, I. L. R. 1 Cal. 102 (1875), cited ...	785	Nisu Chand Gaita v. Kanchiram Bagani, 3 C. W. N. 568 (1899), distinguished ...	234
Moung Tha Huyeen v. Moung Pan Nyo, 4 C. W. N. 808 (1900), distinguished ...	693	Nityananda Patra v. Hira Lal Karnakar, 5 C. W. N. 63 (1900), overruled ...	821
Muhammad Abdul Majid v. Fatima Bibi, L. R. 12 I. A. 159 (1885), referred to ...	569	Nooral Hossein v. Ramr Coomar Sahee, 25 W. R. 326 (1876), referred to ...	526
Muhammad Sulaiman Khan v. Fatima, I. L. R. 11 All. 314 (1889), explained ...	192	Norway v. Rowe, 19 Ves. 144 (1812), referred to ...	114
Mungul Pershad Dichit v. Grija Kant Lahiri, I. L. R. 8 Cal. 51 (1881), explained and distinguished ...	80	Nursing Narain Singh v. Roghoobur Singh, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 609 (1884), referred to and followed ...	496
Munna Singh v. Gajadhar Singh, I. L. R. 5 All. 577 (1883), referred to ...	240	O.
Musaji Abdulla v. Damordas, I. L. R. 12 Bom. 279 (1888), cited ...	785	Oakey & Sons v. Dalton, L. R. 35 Ch. Div. 700 (1887), referred to ...	242
N		Oriental Bank Corporation v. Gobin Lall Seal, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 713 (1884), cited ...	791
Nalla Karuppa Sattiar v. Mahomed Iburaam Saheb, I. L. R. 20 Mad. 112 (1896), referred to ...	742	Pachayappan v. Narayana, I. L. R. 11 Mad. 269 (1887), referred to ...	240
Nanomi v. Modun Mohun, L. R. 13 I. A. 1 (1885), cited ...	642	Padma Kumari Debi v. The Court of Wards, I. L. R. 8 Cal. 302 (1881), considered ...	20
Narain Mahton v. Manof Pattuk, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 489 (1890), referred to ...	764	Paigi v. Sheonarain, P. L. R. 8 All. 78 (1885), referred to ...	196, 683
Narayanan Numbudri v. Damodaran Numbudri, I. L. R. 17 Mad. 189 (1893), approved ...	767	Palani Goundan v. Ramya Goundan, I. L. R. 22 Mad. 207 (1898), referred to ...	646
Narayan Rao Ram Chandra Pant v. Rama Bai, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 415 (1879), discussed ...	74	Palmer v. Wick and Pultenecytown Steem Shipping Co., Ltd., L. R. (1894) App. Cas., p. 318, referred to ...	393
Narendra Nath Bose v. Hari Lall Mallick, unreported (1898), referred to ...	261	Parneswara Namasudra v. Kali Mohan Namasudra, 4 C. W. N. 801 : s. o. I. L. R. 28 Cal. 127 (1900), referred to ...	764
Narendra Nath Sarkar v. Kamalbashini Dass, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 571 (1896), referred to ...	646	Parvathi v. Mani, I. L. R. 8 Mad. 175 (1881), cited ...	660
Nassurooddeen Chowdhry v. Lall Mahomed Pramanick, 13 W. R. 234 (1870), referred to and approved ...	510	Pearson v. Skelton 1 M. & W. 504 (1836), referred to ...	393
Nath Prasad v. Ram Paltan Ram, I. L. 4 All. 218 (1882), referred to ...	889	Pedda Ramappa Nayaniwaru v. Bangari Seshamma Nayaniwaru, I. L. R. 8 I. A. 1 (1880), referred to and followed ...	602
Nathu Singh v. Gumani Singh, I. L. R. 18 All. 320 (1896), cited ...	613	Perry v. Jackson, 4 T. R. 519 (1792), referred to ...	769
*Nava Kumar Roy v. Golam Chunder Dey, I. L. R. 18 Cal. 422 (1891), followed and cited ...	124, 525	Peyton v. Bond, 1 Sim. 390 (1827), referred to ...	434
Nawab Azmutali Khan v. Jowahir Sing, 13 Moo. I. A. 404 (1870), followed ...	83	Phillips v. Homfray, L. R. 24 Ch. Div. 439 (1883), referred to ...	242
Nawab Malika Jahan Sahiba v. Dy. Commissioner of Lucknow, L. R. 6 I. A. 63 (1879), cited ...	50	Pirthee Singh v. Rance Raj Kower, 20 W. R. 21 (1873), followed ...	298, 549
Nawab Sidhee Nuzur Ally Khan v. Ojoodhyaram Khan, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 185 (1865), cited ...	790	Polini v. Grey, L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 438 (1879), followed ...	782
Nemai Chand Kanji v. Denonath Kanji, 2 C. W. N. 691 (1898), referred to ...	125	Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, L. R. 33 Ch. Div. 76 (1886), referred to ...	119
Nilmadhub Mookerjee v. Dookeeram Khottah, 15 B. L. R. 161 (1875), cited ...	659	Pramotha Nath Sandal v. Dwarka Nath Dev, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 851 (1896), referred to ...	57
Nil Madhub Patra v. Ishan Chandra Sinha, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 787 (1898), referred to ...	361	Pran Nath Roy v. Mohesh Chandra Moitra, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 546 (1897), followed ...	559
Nilmoni Singh v. Tara Nath Mookerjee, L. R. 9 I. A. 174 (1882), referred to ...	299	Prannath Shaha v. Modhu Khulu, I. L. R. 13 Cal. 96 (1886), cited ...	265
Nilratan Sen v. Jogesh Chandra Bhat-tacharjee, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 983 (1896), referred to ...	169	Prem Chand Naskar v. Mokshada Debi, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 201 (1887), referred to ...	763
Nissarini Das v. Nanda Lal Bose, 3 C. W. N. 670 (1899), followed ...	556	Priya Nath Saha v. Madhusudan Bhuya, 2 C. W. N. 562 : s. o. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 608 (1898), followed 836, 851, 352

	Page		Page
Prosunna Coomarr Chatterjee v. Jagunnath Byasack, 10 C. L. R. 25 (1881), referred to ...	859	Ram Kamal Saha v. Bank of Bengal, 5 C. W. N. 91 (1900), referred to ...	90
Prosunna Coomaree v. Sheikh Rutton Bepari, I. L. R. 3 Cal. 698 (1877), referred to ...	801	Ramkoomar v. Brojohurree, 10 W. R. 410 (1868), cited ...	845
Pryag Lal v. Jainarain, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 419 (1895), referred to ...	524	Ram Logan Ojha v. Bhawani Ojha, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 9 (1887), referred to ...	522
Puddo Kumari Debi v. Juggut Kishore Acharjee, I. L. R. 5 Cal. 615 (1879), considered ...	20	Ram Ranjan v. Ram Narain, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 533 (1894), cited ...	845
Pundit Sirdar v. Meajan Mirdha, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 378 (1893), referred to ...	423	Ramsden v. Dyson, 1 E. & I. Ap. 129 (1866), referred to and cited 634, 848, 863
		Raniganj Coal Association v. Judoo Nath Ghose, I. L. R. 19 Cal. 489 (1892), referred to ...	842
Q		Rash Dhary Gope v. Khakon Singh, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 433 (1897), distinguished and explained ...	121
Queen-Empress v. Gobinda Pillai, I. L. R. 16 Mad. 235 (1892), referred to ...	804	Ratcliffe v. Evans, L. R. (1892), 2 Q. B. 524, referred to ...	363
R		Ravji Vinayakrao v. Lakshmibai, I. L. R. 11 Bom. 381 (1887), considered ...	20
Radha Kissen v. Fateh Ali Ram, I. L. R. 20 All. 532 (1898), referred to ...	454	Reid v. Croft, 5 Bing. N. O. 68 (1888), referred to ...	92
Radha Rani Dassi v. Brindabun Chundra Bosack, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 320 (1897), referred to ...	404	Roberts v. Tucker, 16 Ad. and El., p. 560 (1851), referred to ...	313
Raghunath Sahay v. Lalji Singh, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 397 (1895), referred to ...	348	Roberts v. Roberts, 33 L. J. Q. B. 249 (1864), referred to ...	664
Rai Charan Ghose v. Kunud Mohun, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 571 (1898), cited ...	484	Rotherham Alum and Chemical Company, In re, L. R. 25 Ch. Div. 103 (1883), referred to ...	390
Raj Chandra Chukervarty v. Dina Nath Saha, 2 C. W. N. 433 (1898), referred to ...	342	Rousillon v. Rousillon, 14 Ch. Div. 351 (1880), referred to ...	746
Rajit Ram v. Katesar Nath, I. L. R. 18 All. 396 (1896), followed ...	92	Rujjomoney Dassee v. Shib Chunder Mullick, 2 Hyde's Rep. 103 (1864), cited ...	551
Rajkishan Mookerjee v. Modhoo Soodun Mundul, 17 W. R. 413 (1872), cited ...	759	Run Bahadur Singh v. Lucho Koer, I. L. R. 11 Cal. 301 (1884), referred to ...	80
Rajnarain Bhaduri v. Katvayani Debi, 4 C. W. N. 337 (1900), referred to ...	301, 648	Runchordas Vandrawandas v. Parvati-bhai, L. R. 26 I. A. 71 (1899), cited ...	180
Rajoni Kant Bagchi v. Hossain Uddin Ahmed, 4 C. W. N. 538 (1899), explained and distinguished ...	124	Rutherford v. Evans, 4 Car. & P. 74, cited ...	659
Rakhal Chunder Bose v. Dwarka Nath Misser, I. L. R. 13 Cal. 346 (1886), distinguished and referred to ...	63, 825	Sadagar Sirkar v. Krishna Chandra Nath, 3 C. W. N. 742 : s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 937 (1899), referred to ...	765
Ramalakshmi Ammal v. Sivanantha Perumal Sethurayar, 11 Moo. I. A. 570 (1872), referred to and followed ...	602	Sadhu Sazan Singh v. Panch Deo Lal, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 1 (1886), overruled ...	522
Ramasamayyar v. Virasami Ayyar, I. L. R. 21 Mad. 222 (1898), referred to ...	646	Sadiq Hosain v. Lalta Prasad, I. L. R. 20 All. 139 (1897), referred to and followed ...	426
Ramasami Aiyar v. Venkata Ram Aiyar, I. L. R. 2 Mad. 91 (1879), considered and cited ...	20, 674	Sahibzada Zain-ul-Abdin Khan v. Sahibzada Ahmed Raza Khan, L. R. 5 I. A. 223 : s. c. I. L. R. 2 All. 67 (1878), cited ...	154
Ram Chandra v. Sagunbai, I. L. R. 4 Bom. 261 (1879), cited ...	552	Sah Makhun Lall Panday v. Sah Koon-dun Lall, L. R. 2 I. A. 210 (1875), cited ...	179
Ram Chunder v. Jogesh, 12 B. L. R. 229 (1873), cited ...	849	Saiyad Muzhar Hossein v. Bodha Bibi, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 112 (1894), cited ...	621
Ram Chunder Roy v. Poorno Chunder Roy, 4 C. W. N. clxxv (1900), dissented from ...	434	Saput Singh v. Imrit Tewary, I. L. R. 5 Cal. 720 (1880), referred to ...	393
Ramdoyal v. Junmejy, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 791 (1887), cited ...	306	Sarat Chunder Dawn v. Kristo Dhone Dawn, 5 C. W. N. lxxxiii (1901), dissented from ...	434
Rameshur Singh v. Sheodin Singh, I. L. R. 12 All. 510 (1889), dissented from ...	510	Sarat Chunder Ghose v. Kartick Chunder Mitter, I. L. R. 9 Cal. 810 (1883), referred to ...	880
Rameswar Koer v. Syed Mahomed Medhi Hossein Khan, 2 C. W. N. 633 : s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 43 (1898), referred to ...	137, 654	Sardarmal Jagonath v. Aramvayal, I. L. R. 21 Bom. 205 (1896), referred to ...	761

	Page		Page
Saroda Charan Bandopadhyaya v. Kista Mohan Bhattacharjee, 1 C. W. N. 516 (1897), referred to ...	524	Smith v. Armitage, L. R. 24 Ch. Div. 727 (1883), cited ...	165
Sartaj Kuari v. Deoraj Kuari, I. L. R. 10 All. 272 (1887), referred to ...	74	Sonbai v. Fazul Habi Dhari, 9 Bom. H. C. R. 398 (1872), cited ...	785
Satku Valad Kadir Sansare v. Ibrahim Aga Valad Mirza Aga, I. L. R. 2 Bom. 457 (1877), referred to ...	286	Soorendra Nath Roy v. Heeramonee Burmoneah, 12 M. I. A. 81 (1868), followed ...	353
Saturjet Pertap Bahadoor Sahi v. Dulhin Gulab Koer, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 469 (1897), referred to and distinguished ...	269	Sreehuree v. Gopal Chunder, 15 W. R. 500 (1871), referred to ...	748
Savitri v. Ramji, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 232 (1889), referred to ...	510	Sreeputty Roy v. Loharam Roy, 7 W. R. 384 (1867), referred to ...	393
Savitribai v. Luxmibai, I. L. R. 2 Bom. 573 (1878), cited ...	551	Sri Maniyam Mahalakshamma v. Sri Maniyam Venkataratnamma, I. L. R. 6 Mad. 83 (1882), discussed ...	74
Schibsy v. Westenholz, L. R. 6 Q. B. 155 (1870), referred to ...	746	Srimanta Raja Yarlaggadda Durga Prasada v. Srimanta Raja Yarlaggadda Mallikarjuna, I. L. R. 24 Mad. 358 (1901), dissented from ...	782
Scott v. London Dock Company, 3 H. L. Cas. 596 (1865), referred to ...	451	Srinivasa v. Ayyathorai, I. L. R. 21 Mad. 416 (1897), referred to ...	825
Scott v. Scott, Amb. 383 (1859), cited ...	206	Sri Raja Papamma v. Sri Vira Pratapa, I. L. R. 19 Mad. 249 (1896), referred to ...	826
Secretary of State for India in Council v. Shanmugaraya Mudaliar, L. R. 20 I. A. 80 (1893), referred to ...	351	Stephens v. Reynolds, 5 Hurl. & Nor. 512 (1860), referred to ...	716
Seshan v. Raja Gopala, I. L. R. 13 Mad. 236 (1889), disapproved ...	767	Stevenson, Ex parte, 1 Q. B. 294; L. R. (1892) A. C. 609, cited ...	786
Shadi v. Anup Sing, I. L. R. 12 All. 436, 438 (1889), cited ...	791	Stocker v. Dean, 16 Beav. 165 (1852), referred to ...	346
Shafi Makhum Lall v. Sree Kishan Singh, 12 M. I. A. 157 (1868), referred to ...	619	Stone v. Attorney-General, L. R. 28 Ch. Div. 464 (1885), cited ...	180
Shama Charn Roy v. Ablul, 3 C. W. N. 158 (1898), cited ...	849	Subba Sastri v. Bala Chandra Sastri, I. L. R. 18 Mad. 421 (1894), dissented from ...	510
Sham Chand Giri v. Bhay Ram Pandey, 5 C. W. N. 365 (1894), referred to ...	362	Subbaraya v. Ponnusami, I. L. R. 21 Mad. 364 (1897), approved ...	137
Sham Chand Koondoo v. Brojo Nath Pal Chowdhury, 21 W. R. 94 (1873), cited ...	128	Subudhi v. Singi, I. L. R. 13 Mad. 141 (1889), followed ...	146
Sheikh Golam Ali v. Kazi Mahomed Zahur Alum, 6 B. L. R. App. 76 (1871), cited ...	148	Suha Bibi v. Hara Lal Das, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 519 (1894), referred to ...	343
Sheikh Hossein v. Govardhone Das, I. L. R. 20 Bom. 1 (1895), referred to ...	858	Suntosh Ram Dass v. Gera Pattack, 23 W. R. 22 (1874), referred to ...	196
Sheik Mahomed Ashanulla v. Amarchand Kundu, L. R. 17 I. A. 28 (1889), cited ...	180	Suraj Bansi Koer v. Sheo Proshad, L. R. 6 I. A. 88 (1879), cited ...	642
Sheonath v. Ramnath, 10 M. I. A. 413 (1865), referred to ...	619	Surnomoyee v. Suttees Chunder, 10 Moo. I. A. 123 (1864), referred to ...	859
Shib Davee v. Doorga Pershad, 4 N. W. P. 63 (1872), referred to ...	553	Surjya Moni Dasi v. Ratikanta Das, 5 C. W. N. 195; s. c. I. L. R. 28 Cal. 37 (1900), referred to ...	681
Shib Kristo Shaha Chowdhry v. A. B. Miller, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 150 (1883), distinguished ...	761	Surta v. Ganga, I. L. R. 7 All. 875 (1885), referred to and followed ...	192
Shita Nath Biswas v. Kishen Mohun Mookerjee, 5 W. R. 130 (1866), referred to and distinguished ...	269	Suttosurrun v. Mohesh Chunder, 12 M. I. A. 263 (1868), cited ...	849
Shyam Chand Koondoo v. The Mortgage Bank of India, I. L. R. 9 Cal. 695 (1883), referred to ...	274	Syed Muzhar Husein v. Bodha Bibi, L. R. 22 I. A. 1 (1894), cited ...	155
Sidheswari Debi v. Abhoveswari Debi, I. L. R. 15 Cal. 818 (1888), referred to ...	362	Tagore v. Tagore, 18 W. R. 359 (1872), considered and cited ...	810
Sieshamma v. Chenappa, I. L. R. 20 Mad. 467 (1897), referred to ...	274	Taruk Podo Ghosal v. Shyama Churn Napti, 8 C. L. R. 50 (1881), referred to ...	801
Sita Nath Mookerjee v. Haimabutty Dabi, 24 W. R. 377 (1876), referred to ...	682	Tasadduk Rasul Khan v. Ahmed Husain, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 66 (1893), referred to ...	524
Sivamma v. Subamma, I. L. R. 17 Mad. 477 (1894), referred to ...	494	Taylor v. Parry, 1 Man. and Grang. 604 (1840), referred and distinguished ...	269
		Taylor v. Taylor, L. R. 6 P. D. 29 (1881), cited ...	769

	Page		Page
Thakoor Hurdeo Bux v. Thakoor Jawahir Singh, 4 I. A. 178 (1877), cited ...	781	Ven Koba v. Subbanna, I. L. R. 11 Mad. 151 (1887), cited ...	194
Thakurdass v. Futteh Mull, 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871), referred to ...	313	Virankutti v. Chiyamu, I. L. R. 7 Mad. 557 (1884), cited ...	170
Thakur Ishri Singh v. Baldeo Singh, L. R. 11 I. A. 135 (1884), referred to ...	606	Vishnu Bhikaji Phadke v. Achut Jagannath Ghate, I. L. R. 15 Bom. 438 (1890), approved ...	649
Thakur Nitpal Singh v. Thakur Jai Singh Pal, 23 I. A. 147 (1896), referred to ...	40	Vithilinga Padayachi v. Vilbilinga Mudali, I. L. R. 15 Mad. 111 (1891), cited ...	484
Theyyavelan v. Koochan, I. L. R. 21 Mad. 7 (1897), referred to ...	342	W
Thomas v. Powell, 2 Cox. 394 (1794), referred to ...	593	Waka v. Conyers, 1 W. & T. L. O. 175, cited ...	849
Tilashar Rai v. Parbati, I. L. R. 15 All. 198 (1893), relied upon ...	80	Wakelin v. London and South Western Railway, L. R. 12 App. Cas., p. 41 (1886), cited ...	451
Toolsee Money Dassee v. Sudevi Dassee, 3 C. W. N. 347: s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 361 (1899), cited ...	785	Wall v. Howard, I. L. R. 17 All. 438 (1895), cited ...	786
Toolshi Pershad Singh v. Rajah Ram Narain Singh, L. R. 12 I. A. 205 (1885), referred to ...	569	Wallingford v. The Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 697 (1881), referred to ...	92
Trevelyan v. Trevelyan, 53 Law Times 853 (1885), cited ...	346	Watson v. Aga Mehedee Sherazee, L. R. 1 L. A. 346 (1874), referred to ...	693
Tripura Sundari v. Juggur Nath Dutt, 24 W. R. 321 (1875), referred to ...	345	Welfare v. L. B. and S. O. R., L. R. 4 Q. B. 693 (1869), cited ...	451
Troyluckko Nath Mozumdar v. Pahar Khan, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 641 (1896), overruled ...	522	Westmeath v. Westmeath Jacob, 135 (1821), referred to ...	684
Tulsi Pershad Bhakt v. Banayek Misar, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 918 (1896), referred to ...	457	Whaley v. Busfeld, L. R. 32 Ch. D. 123 (1886), referred to ...	746
Tunncliffe v. Moss, 3 Carr. & K. 83 (1850), cited ...	659	Wieland v. Bird, L. R. (1894) P. D. 262, cited ...	788
Turnbull v. Walker, 67 Law Times 767 (1892), referred to ...	743	Wight v. Maunder, 4 Beav. 512 (1842), referred to ...	92
Turquan v. Board of Trade, L. R. 11 App. Cas. 286 (1886), referred to ...	766	Wigney v. Wigney, L. R. 7 P. D. 177, (1882), cited ...	791
U		Wilkes v. The Hungerford Market Co., 2 Bing. N. C. 281 (1836), referred to ...	286
Udeyadeta Deb v. Gregson, I. L. R. 12 Cal. 624 (1886), referred to ...	785	Wilkinson v. Gangadhur, 6 B. L. R. 486 (1871), cited ...	308
Uman Pershad v. Gandharp Singh, 14 I. A. 127 (1887), cited ...	33, 50	Wilkinson v. Downton, L. R. (1892), 2 Q. B. 57, referred to ...	659
Universal Stock Exchange, Ltd. v. Strachan, L. R. (1896), App. Cas. 166, approved ...	714	Wilmott v. Barber, L. R. 15 Ch. D. 96 (1880), cited ...	848
Unkar Das v. Narain, I. L. R. 4 All. 24 (1881), referred to ...	890	Wilson v. Church, L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 454 (1879), followed ...	782
Unniraman v. Chathan, I. L. R. 9 Mad. 451 (1886), referred to and distinguished ...	269	Wilson v. Wilson, 1 H. L. O. 538 (1848), referred to ...	683
Upendra Narain Myti v. Gopee Nath Bera, I. L. R. 9 Cal. 817 (1883), distinguished ...	445	Winterbottom v. Lord Derby, L. R. 2 Ex. 316 (1867), followed ...	285
V		Y
Vellanki Venkata Krishna Rao v. Venkata Rama Lakshmi, I. L. R. 1 Mad. 174 (1876), considered ...	20	Yamin-ud-Dowlah v. Ahmed Ali Khan, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 565 (1894), cited ...	792
		Yamunabai v. Narayan Moreshwar, I. L. R. 1 Bom. 164 (1876), referred to ...	196
		Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Beatson, L. R. 5 O. P. D. 109 (1880), referred to ...	716
		Z
		Zamir Hassan v. Sundar, I. L. R. 22 All. 199 (1899), approved ...	767

INDEX OF CIVIL CASES. (Vol. V.)

	Page		Page
ABANDONMENT or loss of interest by laches, if mere refusal to advance money by a partner amounts to. See PARTNERSHIP ...	114	ACT OF 1881, V. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT.
ABATEMENT OF SUIT. See HINDU LAW ...	242	----- 1882, IV. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.
ACCEPTANCE OF VAKALATNAMA BY PLEADER, if required to be in writing. See VAKALATNAMA ...	816	-----, XIV. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
ACCOUNTS, rendering of, by guardian after termination of guardianship—Power of Court to order. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, ss. 34 and 41 ...	207	----- 1885, VIII. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT.
----- OF PARTNERSHIP BUSINESS when mixed up with private accounts of accountable party, procedure in cases of. See PARTNERSHIP ...	114	----- 1886, II. See INCOME TAX ACT.
-----, Receiver's Accounts. See RECEIVER ...	223	----- 1887, XII. See CIVIL COURTS ACT.
ACQUIESCENCE—Conduct of the party—Arbitration award, if binding on a person not a party to the reference. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 506 ...	268	----- 1889, VII. See SUCCESSION* CERTIFICATE ACT.
-----, Permanent tenancy. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	846, 858	----- 1890, VIII. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT.
-----, alternative plea of, by conduct on failure of proof of substantive defence as to evidence of permanent tenancy, if permissible. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	856	----- 1891, XIV, s. 8—Act XIV of 1891, sec. 8—Jurisdiction—Appeal—Additional Judicial Commissioner sitting alone.] Case in which an appeal, heard by the Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh sitting alone, was remanded to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner to be tried by the Judicial Commissioner and the Additional Judicial Commissioner sitting together. GANGA BAKSH SINGH v. BABU DALIP SINGH AND OTHERS ...	781
-----, whether a question of fact. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	858	----- 1893, IV. See PARTITION ACT.
ACTS 1 and 2 Vict., c. 110, s. 17. See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW.		----- 1894, I. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT....
----- 11 and 12 Vict., c. 21. See INSOLVENCY ACT.		----- 1896, XI. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, 1879.
----- 24 and 25 Vict., c. 104. See CHARTER ACT.		----- 1898, V. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
ACT OF 1839, XXXII. See INTEREST ACT.		ACT B. C. OF 1868, VII. See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT.
----- 1859, X. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT.		----- 1869, VIII. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT.
----- 1865, X. See SUCCESSION ACT.		----- 1876, VI. See CHOTA NAGPUR ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT.
----- 1868, I. See GENERAL CLAUSES ACT.		-----, VII. See LAND REGISTRATION ACT.
----- 1869, I. See OUDH TALUKDAR ESTATES ACT.		----- 1880, VII. See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT.
----- 1872, I. See EVIDENCE ACT.		-----, X. See CESS ACT.
-----, IX. See CONTRACT ACT.		----- 1884, III. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT.
----- 1875, XVIII. See LAW REFORMS ACT.		----- 1895, I. See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT.
----- 1876, XVII. See OUDH LAND REVENUE ACT.		ACTION IN DAMAGES for words spoken in answer to a police-investigation. See LIBEL ...	804
----- 1877, I. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.		-----, See RIGHT OF SUIT.
----- 1877, III. See REGISTRATION ACT.
-----, XV. See LIMITATION ACT.
----- 1879, XVIII. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT.

Page

Page

ADJOURNMENT.—Where, the Defendants' failure to have all their witnesses in attendance was due to a belief, induced in them by the previous procedure of the Court in the case, that there was no chance of all their witnesses who were present being examined on that day, and such belief was not unreasonable, the Court would exercise a sound and wise discretion in granting an adjournment. Akikuntisu Bibi v. Rup Lal Das, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 807, distinguished. SURJAMONI DAS v. KALKANT DAS ... 195

ADMINISTRATION, subsequent, of testator's estate. See MORTGAGE ... 408

SUIT—Practice—

Pleadings—Adoption—Administration, suit for—Will, construction of—Administration, prayer for, without asking for declaration with regard to an alleged adoption—Amendment—Adoption, preliminary trial of the question of.] Suit for administration and construction of a Will, under which Plaintiff's interest was restricted in case a son was adopted to the testator. Plaintiff, inter alia, stated that Plaintiff was informed that in Jaisto 1297 the widow of the testator purported to take in adoption a son, whose natural father was at the time and is now a Brahmo and had renounced the Hindu religion. She submitted that such adoption was absolutely invalid and did not operate to pass any title to the adopted son. There was, however, no prayer asking for any declaration with regard thereto: Held—That upon the suit as at present constituted, the question of adoption was not in issue, and upon the pleadings the fact and validity of the adoption must be taken to be admitted. That if a declaration with regard to the adoption is sought, the plaintiff must dispute the fact or validity of the adoption and should contain a prayer for a declaration as to the fact or validity thereof. The whole substance in the claim for administration being dependent on the adoption being out of the way, the questions raised in the suit cannot be gone into till the question of adoption is determined once for all. Ordered—That on the plaintiff being amended, the issue as to the adoption to be tried as a preliminary issue between the Plaintiff and the adopted son. SM. KUSUM KUMARI RAY v. SATYA RANJAN DAS ... 162

Administration suit—Receiver—Discharge of Receiver before completion of administration decree.] No order can be made for the discharge of a Receiver appointed in an administration suit and directing him to make over possession of the estate to the Plaintiff, before the completion of the administration decree. BHUGWAN DAS SUREKA v. HEERA LAL ... 417

ADMINISTRATION—contd.

See MORTGAGE ... 403

ADMISSIBILITY IN EVIDENCE. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 60 ... 33

A petition purporting to emanate from a particular person and filed on his behalf by a pleader acting on a vakalatnama signed by one who represented himself to be the attorney of that person, is prima facie evidence that it proceeds from him and is as such admissible in evidence in a subsequent suit. Soorendra Nath Roy v. Musst Heeramonee Burmoneah, 12 M. I. A. 81 (1868), Bhagain Megh Ranee Koer v. Gooroo Pershad Singh, 25 W. R. 68 (1876), followed. RANI LALITA SUNDARI AND ANR. v. RANI SURNOMOYEE DAS v. ANR. 253

ADOPTION. See HINDU LAW ... 20

—, Pleading.—No declaration ought to be granted where the case upon which the declaration is sought to be obtained is not only not the case made in the plaint but is one that is wholly inconsistent with it. Eshen Chunder Singh v. Shama Churn Bhutto, 11 M. I. A. 7, referred to. RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI ... 20

—, See ADMINISTRATION SUIT 162

ALIENATION, power of—Hindu widow—Bequest by husband. See HINDU LAW ... 300

—, voluntary of ward's property, not for benefit of ward, nor to his advantage. See ODH LAND REVENUE ACT, s. 161 ... 881

AMBIGUITY—No ambiguity in decree—Duty of executing Court. See MORTGAGE ... 137

AMENDMENT OF PLAINT. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 53 ... 273

—, application for rehearing of appeal returned for amendment. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 560 ... 816

ANNULMENT OF INCUMBRANCE, notice for—Contents of notice. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 167 272, 310

APPEAL :—

(1) AMENDMENT OF PLAINT IN. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 53 ... 273

(2) ATTORNEY, change of, by next friend of infant. See INFANT 434

(3) CONSENT DECREE, validity of, whether may be questioned in. See CONSENT DECREE ... 877

(4) MISJOINDER OF APPELLANTS—It is irregular for persons with different defences to a suit and with different reasons for appeal

	Page		Page
APPEAL— contd.		APPEAL— concl.
to join in a single appeal. HODGES AND ANR. v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LD. ...		current findings of fact. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 596	455
(5) ORDER :		ii Appeal when fit but certificate defective. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 600	689
i Determination of mesne profits. See MESNE PROFITS	52	iii Appeal—Substantial question of law. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 596	198
ii Remand. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 153	515	iv ————The mere fact that the High Court have certified the sufficiency of the amount and the value of the suit for in appeal to the Privy Council, cannot make appealable an order which does not fulfil the statutory conditions. RAI RADHA KISSEN v. THE COLLECTOR OF JAUNPORE	153
iii s. 562, CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 108, 562, 594, 595 (a)— Ex parte decree —Appeal from order refusing application under sec. 108, Civ. P. C.—Remand under sec. 562, Civ. P. C., appeal from order of —Sec. 562, Civ. P. C., what can be remanded under—Final order—Interlocutory order.] In an appeal from an order refusing to set aside a decree under sec. 108, Civ. P. C., on the ground that that section did not apply, the only case which can be remanded by the Appeal Court, to be tried on its merits, is the application under sec. 108, and not the original case, the decree in which is sought to be set aside. Such order of remand is merely an interlocutory order relating to procedure and no appeal lies therefrom. RAI RADHA KISSEN v. THE COLLECTOR OF JAUNPORE	153	v Execution, stay of. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179	347
(6) PARTIES—Decree on appeal—Restitution of property. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 583	426	(10) PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, s. 90. See s. 86	443
(7) PARTITION SUIT—Preliminary decree—Partition suit—Preliminary decree—Final decree—Appeal—Right to question preliminary decree in appeal from final decree.] Held —By the Full Bench (MACLEAN, C. J., and RAMDINI, J., dissenting), that in an appeal against the final decree in a partition suit it is open to the Appellant to question the correctness of the preliminary order or decree for partition when no appeal was preferred against such order within the time allowed by law Bolarum Dey v. Ram Chandra Dey , I. L. R. 23 Cal. 279 (1895), overruled; Biswa Nath Chaki v. Bani Kant Dutt , I. L. R. 23 Cal. 406 (1896), approved of. KHADEM HOSSEIN v. EMDAD HOSSEIN	617	(11) PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT—Appeal to Commissioner. See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, s. 10	86, 521
(8) PRACTICE. See PRACTICE	337	(12) REHEARING OF. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 560	816
(9) PRIVY COUNCIL :		(13) RES JUDICATA—Two suits not open to appeal in the same way. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 13	483
i Appeal to Privy Council—Con-		(14) i SECOND APPEAL—REVIEW. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 260	192
		ii ————, right of, on mere allegation of fraud. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 244	124
		iii ————, See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 153	515
		(15) STAY OF EXECUTION—Pendency of appeal. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179	347
		(16) SUBSTITUTION. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 372	307
		(17) VERIFICATION of plaint, defective, defect of, on appeal. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 435	91
		APPELLATE COURT, power of, to allow amendment of plaint. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 53	273
		———, power of, in respect of Commissioner's report. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 394	692
		APPOINTMENT of guardian with direction to make over gift on legatee attaining majority, effect of. See WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF	729
		APPOINTMENT OF PLEADER—Acceptance of vakalatnama by pleader, whether required to be in writing. See VAKLATNAMA	816
		APPORTIONMENT of debt. See MORTGAGE	423
		ARBITRATION AWARD, if binding on a person not a party to the reference. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 506	268

	Page		Page
ARBITRATION AWARD—contd.		AWARD—contd.
—, application to set aside. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 158 ...	813	was her separate property, is no part of his award and confers no title on the Defendant. An arbitrator has no power to alter the devolution of property in a mode at variance with the ordinary principles of the law governing the parties, in the absence of a special custom prevailing in the family. He has no power to make property which is divisible by law in- divisible for ever. MUSST. JAFRI BEGUM v. SYED ALI REZA ...	585
—, See AWARD.		BAIRAGI OR ASCETIC—Succession. See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION ...	873
ARBITRATOR—Valuation—Abatement of suit, Civil Procedure Code, s. 522. See HINDU LAW ...	242	BELCHAMBERS' RULES AND OR- DERS—Rules 615 (567, 1st Ed.), 617. See PRACTICE ...	337
—, power of, to give awards beyond terms of reference. See ODDH LAND REVENUE ACT, s. 161 ...	881	BENAMIDAR OF SIMPLE MORT- GAGEE, whether a, can apply un- der sec. 310A, C. P. Code, to set aside sale in execution of rent-decree. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ...	821
ARREAR OF RENT, whether should be mentioned in, sale* notification. See SALE ...	497	BENAMI PURCHASE—Right of suit See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 317 ...	341
ASCETIC OR BAIRAGI, succession to the estate of. See LETTERS OF AD- MINISTRATION ...	873	— by decree-holder —Fraud. See SALE ...	265
ASSENT OF RESPONDENT to an ap- peal whether sufficient to give right of appeal, when the law does not. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 596 ...	193	BENGAL, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act. See CIVIL COURTS ACT. BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 3, cl. (2). See s. 60 ...	482
ASSIGNMENT OF DECREE. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 583 ...	426	(1). See s. 167 ...	310
— by land- lord of portion of interest to a mort- gagee. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 60 ...	482	—, s. 50, cl. 2 —Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII. of 1885), sec. 50, cl. (2). Presumption as to uniform payment of rent. ] When a tenant has paid rent for over twenty years prior to the date of suit at a uniform rate which has not changed, the presumption of law under sec. 50, cl. (2) of the Ben- gal Tenancy Act would arise if there is no allegation or proof that a ten- ancy commenced in a particular year after the Permanent Settlement. The mere fact that the tenant shows by documentary evidence that the rate of rent has not changed from a particular year would not preclude him from the benefit of the presump- tion given by cl. (2) of sec. 50. SHEIKH MONGOLA v. MAHARAJAH KUMUD CHUNDER SINGH BAHADUR AND ORS. ...	60
ATTACHING CREDITOR—Priority of claim. See INSOLVENCY ACT ...	761	s. 60— Suit for rent—Assignment by landlord of portion of interest to a mortgagee— Registered proprietor—"Rent due" —Right of mortgagee, whether may be set up in defence—Bengal Ten- ancy Act (VIII of 1885), sers. 3, cl. (2), 60.] In a suit for rent by a pro- prietor registered under the Land Registration Act (VII, B. C., of 1876) the Defendants are precluded, by reason of sec. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act from pleading as a de- fence to the claim that the rent is
ATTACHMENT IN EXECUTION of a decree for rent—Claim. See BEN- GAL TENANCY ACT, s. 170 ...	474
ATTESTING WITNESS—Witness of a deed. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 68 ...	454
ATTORNEY, change of, by next friend of infant. See INFANT ...	434
AWARD OF ARBITRATOR—Civil Pro- cedure Code, s. 522. See HINDU LAW —, See CIVIL ...	242
PROCEDURE CODE, s. 506 ...	268
—, See LIFE ...	569
INTEREST ...
—, application to set aside. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 158 ...	813
— beyond terms of reference, if legal. See ODDH LAND REVENUE ACT ...	881
—, ultra vires. ...	881
See ODDH LAND REVENUE ACT ...
AWARD—Award—Arbitrator, powers of —Entry by arbitrator after award made—Devolution of property, altera- tion of, by arbitrator.] Where a Plaintiff seeks to enforce an award so far as it is operative in law but dis- putes the legal effect of a particular clause and contends that an un- authorized addition to the award by the arbitrator after the award had been made is ultra vires: Held—That it is not a suit to cancel or set aside an award, and Art. 91, Sch. II of the Limitation Act does not apply. An entry made by an arbitrator in the schedule of the property after he had made his award to the effect that a particular portion had been given to the Defendant as dower and

	Page
BENGAL TENANCY ACT—contd.
due to a mortgagee to whom the landlord has assigned a part of his interest but whose name has not been registered under the Land Registration Act. HEM CHUNDER MISRI AND ANOTHER v. RAJAH SIR SOURINDRA MOHAN TAGORE BAHADUR ...	482
... s. 67. See	438
s. 179	438
... s. 85. See	310
s. 167	86—
There may be a valid surrender of an occupancy holding without a written document. KHONKAR ABDUR RAHAMAN v. ALI HAFEZ ...	351
105— Record-of-rights—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Chap. X, secs. 105, 106—Res judicata—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Settlement proceeding—Entry of rent—Procedure. ] Sec. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act lays down that during the pendency of the draft publication any person affected by an entry in the record may raise an "objection." With regard to it, which the Revenue Officer is to "receive" and "consider" and dispose of in a summary manner. From an order disposing of such an "objection" there would be no appeal and no second appeal, and the order cannot have the effect of res judicata . A "dispute" under sec. 106 is to be "heard" and "decided" by the Revenue Officer under the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits and is subject to appeal and second appeal, and an order, disposing of such a "dispute" will have the effect of res judicata . DENGU KAZI v. NOBIN KISHORE CHOWDHRAIN, 1 O. W. N. 294: s. O. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 462 , considered and explained. SHEIKH KARBAN ALI v. SHEIKH JAFAR ALI ...	798
... s. 106. See	798
105
... s. 106—
Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 106—Res judicata—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Parties. ] Plaintiffs initiated proceedings under sec. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act against the landlord and the Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 who claimed to be rival tenants of the land, to have their names recorded as tenants in the settlement proceedings. The settlement officer, not by the landlords, but made an order in Plaintiffs' favour. On appeal held that the Plaintiffs were the tenants and by Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 the Special Judge reversed the decision and ordered that the names

	Page
BENGAL TENANCY ACT—contd.
of Defendants Nos. 2 to 9, whom he held were the tenants, be registered. The Plaintiffs thereupon brought the present suit to have their rights declared as tenants of the land: Held —That the previous decision of the Special Judge not having been a decision between the parties, is the Plaintiffs, tenants on the one hand and the landlord on the other, it could not operate as res judicata in the present suit. MOHUNT JAGANNATH RAMANUJ DAS v. CHANDRA KUMAR BOSE ...	421
... s. 148. CL.
(b)— Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 148, cl. (b)—Rent suit, issue in—Plaint, whether to contain extent and boundaries of the lands. ] In a suit for recovery of rent where the allegation was that the Defendant held a tenure consisting of 61 odd bighas of land within certain boundaries as specified in the plaint and the defence was that the area was only 36 bighas within certain boundaries as mentioned in the written statement at a certain rate of rent per bigha, and the lower Appellate Court decreed the suit without deciding the question as to the area of the lands and keeping the question open: Held —That the decision of the Subordinate Judge was correct and did not contravene the provisions of sec. 148, cl. (b) of the Tenancy Act. Per BANERJEE, J.—That in a rent suit it is not absolutely necessary for the Plaintiff to give the extent and boundaries of the lands in respect of which rent is claimed where there is any difficulty in giving those particulars and that in such cases it is enough if a description sufficient for identification is given. That the Court is not bound in every suit for arrears of rent to determine the extent and boundaries of the Defendant's holding or tenure. Bhai Chal Nasya v. Shaik Shammuyasi Mahomed, 1 O. W. N. 152 (1894) , and Rash Dhary Gope v. Khakon Singh, 1. L. R. 24 Cal. 433 (1897) , distinguished and explained. PIRJADDI NASKAR v. AMBIKA CHARAN MITTER ...	121
... s. 153—
Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 153—Appeal—Second appeal—Rent suit—Rate of rent—Pleadings. ] In a suit for rent for less than Rs. 100, the Defendant pleaded that he was the tenant, not of the Plaintiffs but of some other persons at a rate lower than that claimed in the suit, no issue was raised as to the rate of rent and the lower Court merely decided that the Defendant was

BENGAL TENANCY ACT—contd.

Plaintiffs' tenant and decreed the suit: Held—That the Question of the rate of rent not having been raised and decided no second appeal lay. BAIDYA NATH BAHARA v. DHON KRISHNA SIKKAR ... 515

s. 167—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), secs. 22 (1), 85, 167—Purchase of a raiyati holding by a landlord in execution of a decree for rent—Annulment of incumbrance—Notice, if necessary.] An under-raiyati lease if created by an instrument which is not registered is invalid under sec. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and a landlord purchasing the holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to take khas possession by ejecting such under-raiyat without annulling the same by a notice under sec. 167. The rights under such an under-raiyati lease are not protected by sub-sec. 1 of sec. 22 of the Act. RAJAH PEARY MOHAN MUKHERJEE v. BADAL CHUNDER BAGDI ... 310

s. 167—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 167—Annulment of incumbrance, notice for—Notice, contents of—Notice joint, to several persons.] A notice to annul an incumbrance under sec. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not bad though it does not specify the particulars of the land held by the tenant or the rent payable by him. Such a notice if addressed to several tenants jointly is not bad if it is served in accordance with the prescribed rules. JOGABUNDHU MAJUMDAR v. RASHO MONJAN DASSYA 272

s. 170—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 170—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 278—Claim adverse to the tenure or holding, if maintainable when attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent.] Held by THE FULL BENCH (BANNERJEE, J., dissenting)—That sec 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act bars a claim under sec. 278, C. P. C., to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon, in all cases and the operation is not confined merely to claims to the tenure or holding but extends to claims based on the ground that the property claimed does not form part of the tenure or holding attached. Jagabundhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal, 4 C. W. N. 734 (1887), overruled; Makbul Ahmed v. Rakhal Das Hazra, 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900), approved of. AMRITA LAL BOSE v. NEMAI CHAND MUKHOPADHYA ... 474

BENGAL TENANCY ACT—contd.

s. 171. See
CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ... 821
s. 174. See
CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ... 821

s. 179—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), secs. 67, 179—Interest at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum—Permanent lease—contract.] Held BY THE FULL BENCH—AMEER ALI, J., dissenting) that sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not control the provisions of sec. 179 of the same Act. That in granting a permanent lease within the terms of sec. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a condition that interest shall be payable at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum, as allowed by sec. 67 of that Act, is permissible. Basanta Coomarr Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhattacharjee, 3 C. W. N. 36 : s. 8. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 120 (1898), overruled. MATUNGINI DEBI v. MAKRURA BIBI ... 438

SCH. III,
ART. 3—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Sch. III, Art. 3—Limitation Act (XV of 1877); Sch. II, Art. 47—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 146.] The limitation as prescribed by Art. 3, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act begins to run from the date of the actual ouster, and if subsequent to the ouster some dispute arises between the parties and an order is passed under sec. 146, Cr. P. C., attaching the land, the limitation which has already begun to run does not cease, and the Plaintiff does not get a fresh start of limitation from the date when the order under sec. 146, Cr. P. C., is made. DEW NARAIN CHOUHDURY v. C. R. H. WEBB ... 160

SCH. III,
ART. 3—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Sch. III, Art. 3—Limitation—Dispossession by a co-sharer landlord—Recognition of tenant's title.] Where one of two co-sharer landlords brought a suit to have his right established to sell the occupancy holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for money obtained by him, and it was proved that although the other co-sharer landlord had dispossessed the raiyat more than 2 years before the institution of the suit, but that notwithstanding the unlawful dispossession, the title of the raiyat was throughout recognised by all parties concerned, and the recognition had been up to within two years of the institution of the suit: Held—That the suit was not barred by the two years' rule. SHEIKH SARAFUDDIN MONDUL v. CHANDRA MANI GUPTA ... 405

	Page		Page
BENGAL TENANCY ACT—concl'd.		CESS ACT, s. 4—Cess Act (IX of 1880,
ART. 6. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. III,		B. C.), sec. 4—Cultivating raiyat—
II, ART. 179	763	Tenure-holder.] A tenant holding
BENGALI WILL. See WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF	729	land and paying as rent therefor a
BEQUEST, vesting of a, words necessary for. See WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF	729	sum of money exceeding one hundred
BY HUSBAND—Power of alienation by Hindu widow. See HINDU LAW	300	rupees per annum is, for the purposes
BONA FIDE CLAIM OF RIGHT—Joint wrong-doer. See CONTRIBUTION	393	of assessment under the Cess Act, a
BOUNDARIES AND EXTENT OF LANDS, if and when necessary to a determination of a rent suit. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 118, CL. (b)	121	tenure-holder and not a cultivating
confusion of—Compensation. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	846	raiayat. A. CASPERSZ v. KUMAR SINGH	535
BREACH OF CONTRACT—Construction of mortgage decree. See CONSENT DECREE	536	CHARITABLE USES. See WAKF	177
BURDEN OF PROOF—Contract to transfer, implement of. See TRANSFER	217	CHARTER OF THE SUPREME COURT, 1726. See SLANDER	659
Insolvency, claim in, by unscheduled creditors. See INSOLVENCY	91	CHOTA NAGPUR ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT—Substitution by proprietors after discharge of an encumbered estate. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 372	307
Mesne profits, suit for. See MESNE PROFITS	720	CIVIL COURTS ACT, Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam, ss. 13, 17. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 223	150
Mortgage suit—Fraud—Collusion. See MORTGAGE	403	s. 37. See HINDU LAW	673
Railway—Carriage of passenger by Railway Company—Reasonable care and diligence. See RAILWAY COMPANY	449	CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 2. See MESNE PROFITS	53
raiayat holding at fixed rate. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	880	PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW	741
Will—Burden proof—Will.] The burden of proof lies upon the person who sets up a Will and not upon the person who is prepared to impeach it. SUKH DEI v. KEDAR NATH	895	s. 13. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 106	421
Will of a Mahomedan—Undue influence—Onus on the propounder. See WILL OF A MAHOMEDAN	505	BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 105	798
CALCUTTA, application of Common Law of England in. See SLANDER	659	PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW	741
CANAL, construction of. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	634	s. 13—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Res judicata.] Where a certain matter was not really dealt with and decided in a previous suit although an issue was raised in regard to that matter, a subsequent suit involving the same matter would not be barred by reason of the previous suit. UMESH CHUNDER DEY v. SHARDESHUR CHUNDER	304
CARRIAGE of dangerous goods. See RAILWAY COMPANY	449	s. 13—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Res judicata—Decisions in two suits not open to appeal in the same way—Joinder of several causes of action—Claim for cess.] To make a matter res judicata it is not necessary that the two suits should be open to appeal in the same way. A Plaintiff cannot be allowed to evade the provisions of sec. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code by joining several causes of action against the same Defendant in one suit and by bringing his suit in a Court of superior jurisdiction. MUSST. BHUGWANBUTTI CHOWDHURANI v. A. H. FORBES	483
CAUSES OF ACTION, Joinder of—Res judicata. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 13	483	s. 13—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Res judicata between co-Defendants—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), sec. 118—Exchange or partition—Transfer, without writing or registration.] In a suit
CERTIFICATE OF HIGH COURT, that a case is "otherwise fit" for appeal to the Privy Council, requirements of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 596	193
OF APPEAL, if defective—Appeal to Privy Council. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 600	689
CERTIFIED PURCHASER—Benami. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 317	341

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

for a declaration of title to a certain property, when the Court makes a declaration in favour of the Plaintiff as to a certain share of the property and a declaration as to certain other shares in favour of some of the Defendants, the latter declaration is not binding on the other Defendants.

RAJ NARAIN v. KHOBDARI RAI ... 724

....., s. 39. See ... 724

VAKALATNAMA ..... 816

....., s. 53—

That an Appellate Court has power under sec. 582 read with sec 53 of the Civil Procedure Code to allow an amendment of the plaint. Where the object of an amendment of a plaint is merely to seek relief ancillary to the principal prayer of the plaint, such amendment does not alter the character of the suit. Shyam Chand Koondoo v. The Land Mortgage Bank of India, I. L. R. 9 Cal. 695 (1883); Dhani Ram Shaha v. Bhagirath Shtha, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 692 (1895); and Sieshamma v. Chenappa, I. L. R. 20 Mad. 467 (1897), referred to. RAJAH PEARY MOHAN MUKHERJEE v. NARENDRA KRISHNA MUKERJEE ... 273

....., s. 108.

See APPEAL ... 153

....., See

RIGHT OF SUIT ... 757

....., s. 108 —

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 108—Sufficient cause—Non-appearance of a guardian of a minor, in a suit whether a good and sufficient cause—Ex parte decree, setting aside of, against one of several Defendants, effect of, as to the decree against other Defendants. The simple fact that a guardian did not appear in a suit is not good and sufficient cause within the meaning of sec. 108, C. P. C., for setting aside an ex parte decree passed against a minor. There are different considerations which bear upon the matter, the question always being whether, in what the guardian did, he acted in the best interest of of his ward. Kesho Pershad v. Hinday Narain, 6 C. L. R. 69 (1880) explained. In a case where an ex parte decree was set aside against one of the Defendants, and the Subordinate Judge set aside the decree against others who did not appear and one of whom made an application to set aside the ex parte decree: Held—That this was rightly done. Mahomed Hamidulla v. Tohurensa, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 155 (1897), approved of. AJODHYA PERSHAD SINGH v. SHEO PERSHAD SAHU ... 58

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

141.

See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, s. 7 494

....., s. 206 —
Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 206, 622, 623—Order amending decree—Appeal—Second appeal—Review. An order under sec. 206, C. P. C., amending a decree is not a decree and no appeal lies against such an order and the proper remedy is by an application under sec. 622, Civ. P. C. Sarta v. Ganga, I. L. R. 7 All. 875 (1885), referred to and followed; Joy Kishen Mookerjee v. Ataoor Rohoman, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 22 (1880) referred to; Kali Prosunno Basu v. Lal Mohun Guha, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 258 (1897), distinguished; Abdul Hayai Khan v. Chaita Kuar, I. L. R. 8 All. 377 (1886); Muhammad Sukhman Khan v. Fatima, I. L. R. 11 All. 314 (1899), explained. RAGHU NATH GHOSHAL v. MAFAKSHAR HOSSAIN CHOWDHURY ... 192

....., s. 211.

See MESNE PROFITS ... 52, 720

....., s. 223—
Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 223, 649—Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), secs. 13, 17—Execution of decree—Jurisdiction, transfer of, of Court—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sec. 14.] An execution of a decree of the Court of the Munsif of Nawabgunge having been taken out in the Court of the Munsif of Maldah by reason of transfer of the local jurisdiction of the former by the Local Government under Act XII of 1877, a sum of money was paid in part satisfaction. A second application was objected to on the ground that the Maldah Court had no jurisdiction. A fresh application with a certificate transferring the decree from the Nawabgunge Court was resisted on the ground of limitation: Held—That the Nawabgunge Court did not cease to have jurisdiction but that the decree could also be executed by the Maldah Court. Luchman Pandeh v. Maddan Mohun Shye, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 513 (1880), referred to; Kalipado Mukerjee v. Deno Nath Mukerjee, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 315 (1897), distinguished. Held further—That proceedings to enforce a decree taken bonâ fide before a Court which the party bonâ fide believes to have jurisdiction is a proceeding within the meaning of sec. 14 of the Limitation Act. Hira Lal v. Badri Das, I. L. R. 2 All. 792: s. c. I. L. R. 7 I. A. 167 (1880), referred to. SHEIK JAFAR v. KAMALINI DEBI ... 150

....., s. 235.

See SALE ... 265

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.		Page
INSOLVENCY	s. 244. See	761
RIGHT OF SUIT	See SALE	265

Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 311, 312, 588, 244 (c)—Allegation of fraud against decree-holder, without any attempt to prove the same—Irregularity in the publishing or conducting of the sale question of—Second appeal.] A mere allegation of fraud in an application under sec. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure without any attempt in any way to substantiate it cannot give a right of second appeal in a case which would not otherwise have arisen. Nava Kumar Roy v. Golam Chunder Dey, I. L. R. 18 Cal. 422 (1891); Abhaya Dassi v. Pudmo Luchun Mondol, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 802 (1895); Dairanayagam Pillai v. Rangasami Ayyar, I. L. R. 19 Mad. 29 (1894), followed; Rojoni Kant Bagchi v. Hossain Uddin Ahmed, 4 C. W. N. 538 (1899), explained and distinguished. UMAKANT ROY v. DENO NATH SANYAL ... 124

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 244, 578, 623—Execution proceedings, re-opening of—Mistake in calculating amount due—Jurisdiction.] Where the Court passed an order in an execution case stating that the case had been disposed of by reason of both sides having represented to the Court that the decree had been satisfied: Held—That an application to allow the execution proceedings to be re-opened was maintainable under sec. 244, C. P. C., on the ground that the decree-holder had acted under a mistake of calculation in fixing the amount that was due. Fakamuddin Mahomed Ahsan v. The Official Trustee of Bengal, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 538 (1884) distinguished. Where such an application was made by the decree-holder referring to both secs. 244 and 623, C. P. C., and the first Court thought that the latter section was inapplicable and re-opened the proceedings under sec. 244: Held—That even if sec. 623 only was applicable, the order of the first Court could not, having regard to sec. 578, C. P. C., be interfered with in appeal. NILRATAN KHASNOBISH v. RAM RUTTON CHATTERJI ... 627

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 244—Ijaradar of judgment-debtor, whether a legal representative—Right of suit.] An ijaradar of

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.		Page
a property of the judgment-debtor is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of sec. 244, C. P. C. A suit brought by a decree-holder against the judgment-debtor and his ijaradar to have it declared that the ijarah was null and void is not maintainable as that is a question which should be decided by the Court executing the decree. Lalji Mal v. Nand Kishore , I. L. R. 19 All. 332 (1897); Madho Das v. Ramji Patak , I. L. R. 16 All. 286 (1894); Gur Prasad v. Ram Lal , I. L. R. 21 All. 20 (1898); and Ishan Chunder Sirkar v. Beni Madhab Sirkar , I. L. R. 24 Cal. 62 (1896), referred to. H. MATHEWSON v. GOBARDHAN TRIBEDI ... 654	247.	497
See SALE	278.	474
See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 170	284.	497
See SALE	...	287.
See SALE	...	294.
See SALE	...	295

Mortgage Priority, relinquishment of—Civil Procedure Code (Act X of 1877), sec. 295—Distribution of sale-proceeds—Suit for refund of money so distributed—Order in a suit—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 13.] An order for distribution under sec. 295, Civil Procedure Code, is an order in a suit and as such excluded from the operation of Art. 13 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act. The scheme of sec. 295, Civil Procedure Code, is rather to enable the Judge as a matter of administration to distribute the price according to what seem at the time to be the right of the parties, and does not import a conclusive adjudication on those rights, which may be readjusted subsequently by a suit. A suit for refund of money paid to the Defendant under an order of Court made under sec. 295, Civil Procedure Code, on the ground that the Plaintiff was entitled to it in preference to the Defendant, is not a suit to set aside the order of distribution and does not come within the Limitation Act, Art. 13. Vishnu Bhikaji Phadke v. Achut Jagannath Ghate, I. L. R. 15 Bom. 438 (1890), approved. SHANKAR SARUP v. LALA PHUL CHAND ... 649

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 310A—"Whose immovable property is sold," meaning of, in sec. 310A—Sale in execution of rent decree—Simple mortgagee, right of,

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

to apply to set aside sale.] • A simple mortgagee is not a person entitled to have a sale set aside under sec. 310A, C. P. C. Hamidul Huq v. Matangini Dasi, 2 C. W. N. cclviii (1898); Rakhul Chunder Bose v. Dwarka Nath Misser, I. L. R. 13 Cal. 346 (1886), distinguished. NITYA NANDA PATRA v. HIRA LAL KARMAKAR ...

63

... s. 310A—*Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 310A—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 174—Mortgagee of a tenure or holding—Sale in execution of decree for arrears of rent—Right of such mortgagee to set aside such sale under sec. 310A, Civil Procedure Code—Benamidar, right of, to apply under sec. 310A, Civil Procedure Code—Simple mortgage—Mortgage by conditional sale—Interest of mortgagee of immoveable property, if itself immoveable property—Order setting aside sale under sec. 310A, effect of, on the rights of the parties—Sec. 310A, Civil Procedure Code, scope of—General Clauses Act (I of 1868), sec. 2, cl. 5.] THE FULL BENCH (RAMPINI, J., dissenting).—A mortgagee, whether by a simple mortgage or a mortgage by conditional sale, of a tenure or holding sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect of it, is a "person whose immoveable property has been sold" within the meaning of sec. 310A, Civil Procedure Code, and is entitled to make an application under that section. Hamidul Huq v. Matangini Dasi, 2 C. W. N. cclviii (1898), approved; Nityananda Patra v. Hira Lal Karmokur, 5 C. W. N. 63 (1900), overruled. A benamidar of a person whose immoveable property has been sold has a right to apply under sec. 310A. Basi Poddar v. Ram Krishna Poddar, 1 C. W. N. 135 (1896), approved. Per BANERJEE AND PRATT, JJ.—The interest which a mortgagee has in immoveable property is itself immoveable property. Per RAMPINI, J. (contra).—A mortgagee is only the owner of an interest in immoveable property and such interest is not an immoveable property. Debendra Kumar Mandel v. Rup Lal Dass, I. L. R. 12 Cal. 546 (1886), referred to. Per BANERJEE, J.—Whether a mortgagee can apply under sec. 310A, Civil Procedure Code, depends upon the nature, not of the mortgage, but of the execution sale. The mortgagee is entitled to apply if the sale is free from the mortgage, but not if it is subject to the mortgage. An order under sec. 310A*

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

setting aside a sale does not determine any question as to the relative rights of the parties to the property sold. Those rights remain as they were before. Per AMEER ALI, J.—The words "any person whose immoveable property is sold" in sec. 310A include every person who has an interest in the property in question, whether qualified, partial or absolute. PARESH NATH SINGHA v. NOBOGOPAL CHATTOPADHYA ...

Page

s. 311. See 821
s. 310A ... 821
... See
s. 244 ... 124
... See
RIGHT OF SUIT ... 757
... See
SALE ... 10, 265
... s. 312. See
s. 244 ... 124

... s. 315—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 11, 315—Refund of purchase-money when judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property sold—Suit for such refund, whether maintainable—Remedy. Sec. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive and does not confine an execution purchaser to the special remedy provided by that section and a suit lies under sec. 11 of the Code for a claim to get a refund of the purchase-money when the judgment-debtor is found to have no saleable interest in the property sold. Munna Singh v. Gajadhar Singh, I. L. R. 5 All. 577 (1833); Kishun Lal v. Muhammad Safdar Ali Khan, I. L. R. 13 All. 383 (1891); Pachayappan v. Narayana, I. L. R. 11 Mad. 269 (1887), referred to. HARI DOYAL SINGH ROY v. SHEIKH SAM-SUDDIN ... 240

... s. 317—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 317—Suit for establishment of title against attaching decree-holder to the property purchased in the benami of the judgment-debtor. In execution of a decree for arrears of rent Plaintiff purchased a property in the benami of his son R. This property was attached in execution of a decree by Defendant No. 1 against R, and the Plaintiff preferred a claim which was rejected; Plaintiff brought the present suit to have his title established; R having died his son was made a party: Held—That sec. 317 of the Civil Procedure Code is no bar to the suit. That the protection afforded by that section only extends to the certified purchaser and not to one who derives title from him. Raj

Page

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

Chundra Chuckervarty v. Dina Nath Saha, 2 C. W. N. 433 (1898); Dukhoda Sundari Dassi v. Sreemuntha Joadder and others, 3 C. W. N. 657 (1899); Theyyavelun v. Kochan, I. L. R. 21 Mad. 7 (1897), referred to. NOKORI DHUR v. SARUP CHUNDER DEY ... 341

—, s. 342—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 342—Imprisonment for debt—Period of imprisonment—Jurisdiction.] The Court cannot fix any term of imprisonment for a debt under sec. 342, Civil Procedure Code, when committing a debtor to jail. Subudhi v. Singi, I. L. R. 13 Mad. 141 (1889), followed. SUJAN BIBI v. SAGAR MANDAL ... 145

—, s. 345. See INSOLVENCY ... 90

See INSOLVENCY ... 90

See INSOLVENCY ... 91

—, s. 350. See INSOLVENCY ... 90, 91

—, s. 351. See INSOLVENCY ... 91

—, s. 353. See INSOLVENCY ... 91

—, s. 372—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 372—Appeal—Substitution of proprietors after discharge of an encumbered estate—Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act (VI of 1876, B. (1)).] An appeal lies against an order directing substitution of parties under sec. 372, C. P. C.; such an order amounts to an order disallowing objections to substitution. In a case where the suit was brought by a manager appointed under the Encumbered Estates Act (VI of 1876), the proprietors of the estate are entitled to be substituted on the record after the discharge of the manager whose interest devolves upon them within the meaning of sec. 372 of the Code of Civil Procedure. RAJAH SOURINDRA MOHAN TAGORE v. RANI SHIROMONI ... 307

s. 375. See CONSENT DECREE ... 877

—, Ch. XXXIX—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), Chap. XXXIX—Negotiable Instruments—Summary Procedure—Leave to defend, extension of time to apply for—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sec. 4 and Sch. II, Art. 159.] In a suit under Chap. XXXIX, Civ. P. C., the Court has no power, after the time fixed by the summons for obtaining leave to appear and defend has expired to extend the time. Quære—Whether

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE— contd.		Page
the Court has power to grant an extension of time if an application for such extension be made before the time fixed by the summons has expired. QUAZIE MAHMUDAB ROHMAN v. SARAT CHANDRA DUTT ...	s. 375.	259
See CONSENT DECREE ...	s. 375, 536, 537
Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 375—Compromise decree—Extraneous matter. A decree passed on a compromise cannot be regarded as ultra vires simply because it goes beyond the subject-matter of the suit and contains other conditions. The other conditions, if they are the considerations for the compromise of the subject-matter of the suit, must be incorporated in the decree; but if the other conditions are independent of it they may be regarded as surplusage. PURNA CHANDRA SARKAR v. NIL MADHUB NANDI ...	s. 375—	485
Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 394, 395—Report of a Commissioner—Order confirming the report, appeal from—Appeal Court, power of, to deal with findings of fact by the Commissioner. Held per PRINSEP and HILL, J.J. ( MACLEAN, C. J. , dissenting).—In an appeal from a judgment and order confirming the report of a Commissioner appointed under sec. 394, Civ. P. C., it is open to the Court of Appeal to deal with the report on matters of fact, and its powers are not limited to questions of principle when examining such report. Ahmed Nanu Bhai v. Khurap Karim Bhai , 6 Bom. H. C. 149 (1869); and Kankatala v. Polsheth , 6 Mad. H. C. 36 (1870), referred to. The Court whether of first instance or of appeal must be satisfied with the proceedings of a Commissioner before it accepts them and the fact that the judgment of the first Court is in affirmation of the report of a Commissioner does not affect the powers of the Court of Appeal. Moung Tha Hanyeen v. Moung Pan Nyo , 4 C. W. N. 808 (1900), distinguished. Watson v. Aga Mehmed Sherazee , L. R. 1 I. A. 346 (1874), referred to. Per PRINSEP, J.—The Report of a Commissioner requires affirmation by an order of Court to make it operative and cannot be regarded as a judgment of a Court. Per HILL, J.—Under sec. 395, Civ. P. C., the report of a Commissioner if accepted by the Court is only evidence in the suit of facts found by him, but is not a decision upon it, nor can it be treated on the same footing as the ver-	SB. 394, 395—

Page

Page

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

dict of a jury. Mackintosh v. Great Western Ry. Co., 4 Giff. 683 (1887); and Moung Tha Hnyeen v. Moung Pan Nyo, 4 C. W. N. 808 (1900), distinguished. Boroness Wenlock v. River Dee Company, 19 Q. B. D. 155 (1887), referred to. Per MACLEAN, C. J.—If there has been a fair investigation of the matter by the Registrar and his finding has been confirmed by the Judge of first instance, the Court of Appeal ought not to interfere except on the strong ground of manifest error or manifest abuse. It should not interfere merely on the ground that if the matter was res integra it would have been disposed to attach more weight to this or that particular piece of evidence. Mackintosh v. Great Western Ry. Co., 4 Giff 683 (1887); and Moung Tha Hnyeen v. Moung Pan Nyo, 4 C. W. N. 808 (1900), referred to. R. M. S. CHITTY v. MAHOMED ESSA SAHEB ... 692

s. 435—

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 435—Verification on behalf of a Corporation—Verification of plaint, defective, effect of, on appeal—Insolvency—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 347, 350, 351, 353 and 578.] Where a petition by the Bank of Bengal was verified by a person described as the Officiating Inspector of Branches, Bank of Bengal, and there was nothing to show that he was not the officer authorised to sue or verify the petition on behalf of the Bank at Chittagong or that he was not able to depose to the facts of the case: Held—That the petition was properly verified under sec. 435. Civ. P. C. Defective verification, if there is no reason to suppose that any one is prejudiced thereby, is no ground, at an appellate stage, either for returning the plaint for amendment or for refusing relief on the basis of the alleged defect in the plaint. Rajit Ram v. Katesar Nath, I. L. R. 18 All. 396 (1896); and Basdeo v. John Smidt & ors., I. L. R. 22 All. 55 (1890), followed. RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGA AND AKYAB ... 91

s. 506—

Arbitration award, if binding on a person not a party to the reference—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 506—Acquiescence—Conduct of the party.] Mere silence on the part of a person, not party to an order of reference to arbitration, and his omission to inform the arbitrators that he was not a party to the reference, cannot make the award of the arbitrators binding on him even though, during the arbitration, he produced, through a servant, a document before the arbitrators in obedience to a summons and declined to produce others. Saturjet Pertap Bahadoor Sahi v. Dulhin Gulab Kaer, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 469 (1897); Unniraman v. Chathan, I. L. R. 9 Mad. 451 (1886); Shita Nath Biswas v. Kishen Mohun Mookerjee, 5 W. R. 130 (1866); Govett v. Richmond, 7 Sim. 1 (1834); and Taylor v. Parry, 1 Man. and Grang. 604 (1840), referred to and distinguished. Dergumbur Chatterjee v. Musst. Ram Prea Debea, Marshall's Rep. 517 (1863), approved. BENI MADHAN MITTER v. PRIYA NATH MANDAL ... 268

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

s. 506.

See HINDU LAW ... 242

s. 516.

See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 158 ... 813

s. 522.

See HINDU LAW ... 242

s. 540.

See MEENE PROFITS ... 52

s. 545.

See EXECUTION, STAY OF ... 781

s. 560—

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 39, 560—Rehearing of appeal, heard ex parte—Limitation—Amendment.] An application for rehearing of an appeal presented originally within the period of limitation but returned for amendment and presented after amendment after the period of limitation, cannot be rejected as being out of time. SHAMA PRASAD GHOSE v. TAKI MULLIK ... 816 562.

See APPEAL ... 153

s. 562—

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 562, 566, 578, 588, cl. (28), and 591—Appeal—Remand order—Jurisdiction.] The lower Appellate Court erroneously remanded a case under sec. 562 instead of under sec. 566 which it ought to have done, and on appeal to the High Court against the decree of the lower Appellate Court passed on appeal against the decree of the first Court made after such remand, the Appellant took objections to the legality of the order of remand: Held—That such objections may now be raised although no appeal had been preferred against the order of remand previously. Moharajah Moheshur Singh v. The Bengal Government, 7 Moo. L. A. 283 (1859); and Savitri v. Ramji, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 232 (1889) referred to. That the word "jurisdiction" may either mean what is ordinarily understood by the term "jurisdiction" when used with reference to the local or pecuniary jurisdiction of a Court or its jurisdiction with reference to the subject-matter of a suit; or it may mean the legal authority of a Court to do certain things. The term "jurisdiction" in sec. 578, C. P. C., is used in the former sense. That sec. 578 of the Civil Procedure Code is applicable in curing the defect of an erroneous order of remand if it does not affect the merits of the case.

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

Rameshwar Singh v. Sheodin Singh, I. L. R. 12 All. 510 (1889); and Subba Sastri v. Bala Chandra Sastri, I. L. R. 18 Mad. 421 (1894), dissented from. Brij Mohan Thakur v. Rai Uma Nath, I. L. R. 20 Cal. 8 (1892); and Mohesh Chandra v. Madhub Chandra, 2 B. L. R., short-notes of cases, p. 13 (1868), distinguished. Amir Hassan v. Sheo Baksh, I. L. R. 11 Cal. 6 (1884); and Mallikarjuna v. Pathaneni, I. L. R. 19 Mad. 479 (1896), referred to. Nassurooddeen v. Lal Mahomed, 13 W. R. 234 (1870); Saritra v. Ramji, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 232 (1889); and Matra Mondal v. Hari Mohan, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 155 (1889), referred to and approved. MOHESH CHANDER DAS v. JAHIRUDDIN MOLLAH ... 509

See s. 562 ... 509

See s. 562 ... 509

See s. 562 ... 509

See s. 562 ... 509

s. 244 ... 627

INSOLVENCY ... 91

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

See s. 53 ... 273

Page

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

ment-debtors thereupon applied to the Subordinate Judge for a refund to them of the proportionate value of the 2 annas share: Held—That the application fell properly within sec. 583, Civ. P. C., and should have been made, not before the Subordinate Judge, but before the District Judge who had "passed the order against which the appeal was preferred." KHEM NARAIN CHOWDHURY v. MUSST. GANESHO KUAR ... 287

See s. 583—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 583—Application for restitution of property—Execution of decree of Appellate Court—Decree, whether capable of execution against and binding upon person not a party to appeal—Assignment not subsequent to the decree—Lis Pendens—Refund by assignee. Under sec. 583 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the decree of the Appellate Court has to be executed and by the very scope of the section it can only apply to the parties to the appeal; it cannot be executed against a person who was no party to the decree of the Appellate Court and who has not derived any interest subsequent to such decree. Bhagwati Prasad v. Jamna Prasad, I. L. R. 19 All. 136 (1896); and Sadiq Husain v. Lalla Prasad, I. L. R. 20 All. 139 (1897) referred to and followed. B. L. FRIZONI v. RAJA RAM NARAIN SINGH ... 426

See s. 584 ... 279

See s. 588 ... 124

See s. 244 ... 192

s. 206 ... 307

See s. 372 ... 509

s. 562 ... 591

See s. 562 ... 594

See APPEAL ... 153

s. 596 ... 193

s. 600 ... 689

See APPEAL ... 153

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

See s. 600 ... 689

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 583—Jurisdiction—Refund, application for.] A mortgagee, in execution of a money decree, purchased 2 annas out of 8 annas of certain property mortgaged to him. He subsequently obtained a mortgage decree and in execution the Subordinate Judge passed an order for the sale of the 8 annas. On appeal the District Judge directed that only 4 annas of the property should be sold. On second appeal the High Court held that execution should have been issued after deducting an amount proportionate to the value of the 2 annas share previously purchased by the mortgagee. In the meantime, the 4 annas share had been sold as directed by the District Judge. The judg-

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 595, 596 and 600—Appeal to Privy Council—Substantial point of law—Certificate of High Court—Assent of Respondent to the appeal.] Under sec. 596, Civ. P. C., there is no right of appeal to the Privy Council simply on the ground that a substantial point of law is involved. The presence of such a question does not give a right of appeal when the value is below the mark; the requirement of it restricts the right when the higher Court affirms the lower and the dispute either directly or indirectly relates to an amount of Rs. 10,000. Under secs. 595 and 600, Civ. P. C., there is a right of appeal if the High Court certifies that the case is "otherwise" a fit one for appeal. The word "otherwise" refers to special cases, such as, where the point in dispute is not measurable by money, though it may be of great public or private importance. But in all such cases a special certificate to that effect must be granted by the High Court. The mere assent of the Respondent to an appeal does not give the Appellant a right of appeal, which the Code does not allow, or sustain a certificate which is obviously erroneous. BANARASI PARSHAD v. KASHI KRISHN NARAIN 193

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—contd.

Appeal to His Majesty in Council—Leave to appeal—Concurrent findings of fact—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 596. Where there are concurrent findings of the lower Court and of the High Court upon questions of fact and no question of law arises, a certificate granting leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council should not be granted. MUSST. SAKALBOTI MANDARAIN v. BABULAL MUNDAR ... 455

See s. 596 ... 193

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 595, 596 and 600—Appeal to Privy Council—Certificate where case is "otherwise" fit for appeal. In considering under what section of the Civil Procedure Code the certificate of fitness was given by the Court, it is the certificate itself which has to be looked at and not the order for the certificate. In granting a certificate under sec. 600, Civ. P. C., the Court must exercise its judicial discretion upon the matter. Unless the certificate upon which the leave to appeal is based is in such a form as to justify that leave, the Court must find that leave was not properly given and the appeal must be dismissed. Banarsi Parshad v. Kashi Krishna Narain, L. R. 27 I. A. 11 : s. c. 5 C. W. N. 193 (1900), referred to. RADHA KRISHN DAS v. RAI KRISHN CHAND ... 689

See s. 608 ... 562

Page

CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE—concl'd.

Page

Execution, stay of—Appeal to Privy Council—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 603, 608. An application for stay of execution under sec. 608, C. P. C., cannot be granted before an appeal to the Privy Council is finally admitted under sec. 603, C. P. C. SM. BIBI JARAO KUMARI v. GOPI CHAND BOTHRA ... 562

See s. 206 ... 192

See s. 206 ... 192

See s. 244 ... 623

See s. 629 ... 485

See s. 206 ... 192

The admission of a review presented out of time without any sufficient cause is a good ground of appeal under sec. 629, cl. (c) of the Code of Civil Procedure. In granting a review the Court should not travel beyond the grounds mentioned in the application for review. PURNA CHANDRA SARKAR v. NIL MADHUB NANDI ... 485

See s. 223 ... 150

Form 190. See MORTGAGE, 'Sch. IV, ... 137

Part E, Form 115. See REVOCATION OF PROBATE ... 383

CLAIM by unscheduled creditor. See INSOLVENCY ... 91

to attached property—Execution of rent decree. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 170 ... 474

CO-DEFENDANTS, res judicata between. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 13 ... 724

COLLUSION, plea of, onus. See MORTGAGE ... 403

COMMISSIONER, power of, to deal with findings of fact. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 394 ... 692

Report of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 394 ... 692

COMMON CARRIERS—Dangerous goods. See RAILWAY COMPANY ... 449

COMMON LAW OF ENGLAND, application of, in India. See SLANDER ... 659

COMMUNIS ERROR FACIT JUS, maxim of. See OUDH TALUKDARS ESTATES ACT, ss. 8, 22 ... 602

COMPENSATION—Fishery—Yearly tenant of a tank. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT, s. 23, cl. (4) ... 349

sale of dwelling-house—Misstatement. See SALE ... 593

See DAMAGES.

	Page		Page
COMPROMISE of doubtful rights—Person beneficially entitled thereunder—Necessary party. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, s. 23, CL. (c) ...	386	CONSENT DECREE— contd. decree—Execution matter. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 375 ...	485	375— Jurisdiction—Appeal. ] When a decree is passed by consent of parties, the question as to whether or not the compromise decree is valid cannot be gone into on an appeal against that decree. Ashutosh Chandra v. Tara Prosunno Roy , I. L. R. 10 Cal. 612 (1884), referred to. Brojo Durlab Singh v. Itoma Nath Ghose , 1 C. W. N. 597 : s. C. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 908 (1897), distinguished. BIRAJ MOHINI DASI v. SRIMATI CHINTA MONI DASI ...	877
See CONSENT DECREE ...	536	CONSTRUCTION of canal. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	634
CONDITIONAL SALE, whether a conveyance is—Extrinsic evidence. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92 ...	351	MEANING OF
CONDUCT OF PARTIES—Meaning of words. See LIFE INTEREST ...	569	WORDS AND CLAUSES :—
CONFUSION OF BOUNDARIES—Compensation. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	846	BELCHAMBERS' RULES—"Fraud, surprise or mistake or such other special ground," meaning of. See PRACTICE ...	337
CONJUGAL RIGHTS, enforcement of. See HINDU LAW ...	195, 673	CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A, "whose immoveable property is sold," meaning of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ...	63
CONSENT OF GUARDIANS to marriage of minor, absence of, if would invalidate a marriage properly celebrated. See HINDU LAW : RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS ...	195	... s. 372, "Devolution of interest," meaning of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 372 ...	307
CONSENT DECREE—Consent decree, construction of— Solehnama—Mortgage suit—Breach of contract. ] In a suit on a mortgage for Rs. 49,855 and odd, a consent decree was made whereby the Defendants consented to judgment for the entire amount but subject to the proviso that, if on a certain date the Defendants should pay to the Plaintiff the sum of Rs. 35,000, the decree should be considered as satisfied. The decree further, provided that if for the payment of the aforesaid sum it should be necessary for the Defendants to sell any portion of the mortgaged properties, they should give the particulars of the properties to be sold to the Plaintiff who should then appraise the same within 30 days and after crediting the proper price against the Defendants' debt, should execute a deed of release or deed of consent. The Plaintiff, however, refused to appraise any properties when asked to do so, and by reason of such refusal the Defendants were unable to pay up the amount within the date fixed. The Plaintiff thereupon applied for execution for the whole amount of the decree : Held —That by reason of the breach of contract by the Plaintiff, he was only entitled to a decree for Rs. 35,000. That that sum must be regarded as having been tendered and refused on the date fixed for payment thereof and would not therefore carry any interest. HARENDRA LAL ROY CHOWDREY v. MAHARANI DASI ...	536	... s. 578, "Jurisdiction," meaning of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 562 ...	509
... validity of, whether may be questioned in appeal.— Consent decree—Compromise—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec.		CONSENT DECREE. See CONSENT DECREE	536
		CONTRACT ACT—"Gaming and wagering as used in the English statute and by way of wager" as used in s. 30 of the Contract Act. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 30 ...	714
		GRANT : "Always and for ever," whether implies perpetual grant. See LIFE INTEREST ...	569
		HINDU LAW : Text of Hindu Law. See OUDH TALUKDARS' ESTATES ACT, s. 22 ...	602
		... Text of Hindu Law. See HINDU LAW ...	673
		INTEREST—"Date of payment," meaning of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 372 ...	307
		LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, s. 14—"Any other reasonable cause," meaning of. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, s. 14 ...	48
		SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE : Grant. See HINDU LAW ...	806
		TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, "Interest or charge upon property. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 91 ...	88
		WILL, ' Parjyapta haibek ,' meaning of. See WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF	729
		CONSULTATION by one Judge (trying a case) with another Judge. See JUDGE ...	729
		CONTRACT—
		(1) BREACH OF : within jurisdiction if necessary. See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW ...	741
		(2) HUSBAND AND WIFE—As to wife's residence. See HINDU LAW ...	673

	Page
CONTRACT— contd.
(3) INTEREST—Bengal Tenancy Act, s. 67. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 179	498
(4) RUNNING WITH LAND. See SALE	343
(5) SALE OF DWELLING HOUSE—Misstatement—Compensation. See SALE	593
(6) TRANSFER—Implement of, to transfer. See TRANSFER	217
(7) Wager. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 30	714
CONTRACT ACT, s. 30—Contract Act (IX of 1872), sec. 30—Gambling and wagering contract—Suit for value received in "difference" on rice.] There is no difference between the expressions "gaining and wagering" as used in the English Statute and "by way of wager" in sec. 30 of the Contract Act. Two parties may enter into a formal contract for the sale and purchase of goods at a given price and for their delivery at a given time. But if the circumstances are such as to warrant the legal inference that they never intended any actual transfer of goods at all, but only to pay or receive money between one another according as the market price of the goods should vary from the contract price at the given time, that is not a commercial transaction, but a wager on the rise and fall of the market. Universal Stock Exchange, Ltd. v. Strachan , L. R. (1896) App. Cas. 166 approved. KONG YEE LONE v. LOW-JEE NANJEE	714
—, s. 135—A surety can contract himself out of the rule which exonerates him from liability if time be given by the creditor to the principal debtor. Where a surety alleged that he signed the bond without reading it and that he was not given to understand that he was contracting himself out of the ordinary rule: Held —That people who induce others to advance money on the faith of their undertakings cannot escape from their plain effect on such plea. It requires a clear case of misleading to succeed on such a plea. HODGES &amp; ANR. v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED	1
CONTRIBUTION. See MORTGAGE	423 —, Contribution, suit for— Joint wrong-doers — Bona fide claim of right .] When a joint decree was passed against several persons, no suit for contribution would lie as between them if they were wrong-doers in the sense that they knew or ought to have known that they were doing an illegal or wrongful act. But if they were not guilty of wrong in that sense but acted under a bona fide claim of right and had reason to suppose that they had a right to do what they did, then

	Page
CONTRIBUTION— contd.
there is a right of contribution inter se . Some time in 1826 R, the common ancestor of the parties, dispossessed K of a share in a certain property; after an interval of 27 years and 6 months K brought a suit and proved his right and recovered possession; meanwhile, i.e., 5 years after the dispossession R had died and had been succeeded by his sons. There was nothing to shew that R or after him his heirs knew that they were doing a wrongful or unlawful act or that they did not do it under cover of a bona fide claim of right. The circumstances pointed to the opposite conclusion: Held —That in such a case a suit for contribution lay. Merry Weather v. Niran , 8 T. R. 186 (1799); Betts v. Gibbins , 2 A. & E. 57 at p. 74 (1834); Adamson v. Jarris , 4 Bing. Rep. 66 (1827); Pearson v. Skelton , 1 M. & W. 504 (1836); Palmer v. Wick and Pul-tencytown Steam Shipping Company, Ltd. , L. R. App. Cas. for 1894, p. 318 (1894); Sreeputti Roy v. Loharam Roy , 7 W. R. 384 (1867); Saput Singh v. Imrit Tewary , I. L. R. 5 Cal. 720 (1880); and Brojendra Kumar Roy Chowdhury v. Rash Behari Roy Chowdhury , I. L. R. 13 Cal. 300 (1886), referred to. HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHIRI	393
CONVEYANCE—Extrinsic evidence, if admissible to shew that a conveyance is a mortgage by conditional sale. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92	351
CORPORATION, verification on behalf of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 435	91
CO-SHARER, rent decree obtained by. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179	763
— landlord, dispossession by. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, SCH. III, ART. 3	405
COSTS, security for, application for, when to be made. See PRACTICE	119
COSTS, recoverable by judgment-debtors against decree-holders, inclusion of in application for execution, effect of. See SALE	497
COURT OF WARDS, power of, to alienate ward's property. See OUDH LAND REVENUE ACT, s. 161	881
CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, words spoken in answer to police-investigation. See LIBEL	804
—, s. 146. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, SCH. III, ART. 3	160
— See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 47	166

	Page
CULTIVATING. RAIYAT. See Cess Act , s. 4 ...	535
CUSTOM AND USAGE OF FAMILY, evidence as to. See EVIDENCE ACT , s. 60 ...	33
—, ancient and definite, proof of. See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION ...	873
DAMAGES, suit for, against Railway Company. See RAILWAY COMPANY ...	449
—, Interest—Mortgage. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT , s. 73 ...	356
—, obstructing public road—Right of suit. See WAY ...	285
—, special damage. See SLANDER ...	659
DAUGHTER, sonless and widowed—Marriage, effect of, on the status of a daughter. See HINDU LAW ...	297
DEBT, suit for recovery on promissory note, false or forged. See PROMISSORY NOTE ...	56
DEBTOR —Surety—Time given to principal debtor. See CONTRACT ACT , s. 135 ...	1
DECREE—
(1) EFFECT OF PREVIOUS DECREE —Possession without title. See POSSESSION ...	224
(2) MORTGAGE —Decree on unregistered mortgage—Priority. See REGISTRATION ACT , s. 50 ...	419
—, Interest—Construction of decree—Duty of executing Court when no ambiguity in decree. See MORTGAGE ...	137
(3) ORDER determining mesno profits, whether a decree. See MESNE PROFITS ...	52
(4) PARTIES —Whether decree binding on persons not parties. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 583 ...	426
(5) RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS , attachment of conditions in decree. See HINDU LAW — RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS ...	195
(6) SETTING ASIDE DECREE , suit to. See RIGHT OF SUIT ...	559
DECREE-HOLDER AND OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE —Priority of claim—Vesting order. See INSOLVENCY ACT ...	761
—, Joint decree-holders one of whom is a minor. See LIMITATION ACT , s. 7 ...	767
DEED, explanation of, to a purdanashin lady. See PURDANASHIN ...	489
DEFAMATION —Imputation of unchastity. See SLANDER ...	659
—, words spoken in answer to police-investigation. See LIBEL ...	804
DEFENDANTS — Res judicata between co-Defendants. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 13 ...	724
DENIAL of landlord's title. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	263
DEVOLUTION of interest, meaning of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 372 ...	307
—, property, alteration of by arbitrator. See AWARD ...	585

	Page
DISCHARGE of Receiver. See ADMINISTRATION SUIT ...	417
DISCONTINUANCE of possession—Joint family property—Disability. See LIMITATION ACT , ss. 7, 28 ...	545
DISCRETION, judicial, exercise of—Appeal. See EXECUTION, STAY OF ...	781
DISPOSSESSION —Suit for possession—Want of title. See POSSESSION ...	234
—, by co-shebait—Limitation Act, Sch. II, Art. 120. See HINDU LAW ...	273
—, by co-sharer landlord—Limitation. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT , Sch. III, Art. 3 ...	405
—, by landlord—Liability to pay rent. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	353
DISSOLUTION of partnership—Refusal to advance money. See PARTNERSHIP ...	114
DISTRIBUTION of sale-proceeds. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 295 ...	649
DISTURBANCE of quiet possession by landlord. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	353
DUTY of Judge—Propriety of Judge trying a cause consulting another Judge. See JUDGE ...	729
DWELLING HOUSE, sale of—Misstatement—Compensation. See SALE ...	593
EASEMENT —Right to open window—Privacy. See PREScription ...	147
EJECTMENT —Permanent tenancy—Presumption. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	846, 858
ENCUMBRANCE —Sale notification. See SALE ...	497
ENDORSEMENT for realisation. See HUNDI ...	313
ENDOWMENT. See WAKF ...	177
ENGLISH LAW, applicability of, in Calcutta. See SLANDER ...	659
ENHANCEMENT, suit for rent and for. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	880
ENQUIRY —Summary enquiry. See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT , s. 7 ...	494
EQUITY. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	634
ESTOPPEL —Hundi made over the servant for realisation, effect of—Payment to wrong person. See HUNDI ...	313
ESTATE OF INHERITANCE —Estate for life—Grant. See HINDU LAW ...	806
EVIDENCE. See ADMISSIBILITY IN EVIDENCE.
EVIDENCE of mode of dealing with land demised of acts and conduct of parties. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	858
EVIDENCE ACT , s. 32. See s. 60 ...	33
—, s. 32—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 32—Pedigree, admissibility of, to prove relationship—Wajib-ul-urz.] Where a pedigree was tendered in evidence but neither any of the bards who were said to have prepared it nor the Raja who assembled the bards of the family and with their assistance had the pedigree drawn up was called as a witness, and no proof was adduced

EVIDENCE ACT— contd.	Page that they were within any of the descriptions given in sec. 32 of the Indian Evidence Act which made it unnecessary to call them: Held —That the Court below was right in not admitting the pedigree in evidence. The Wajib-ul-urz was too vague to be of any value in support of Appellants' claim. SURJAN SINGH v. SARDAR SINGH ... 49
Right of Suit, s. 44. See ... 559
Right of Suit, s. 49. See s. 60 ... 33
Right of Suit, s. 60. See s. 32 ... 49
Right of Suit, s. 60—Evidence Act (I of 1872), secs. 48, 49 and 60—Relationship—Opinion—Grounds of such opinion based on information, admissibility of— Wajib-ul-urz , value of, as evidence.] A statement by a witness of his opinion on the existence of a family custom and as the grounds of that opinion, of information derived from deceased persons is admissible in evidence, but it must be the expression of independent opinion based on hearsay and not mere repetition of hearsay. The weight of such evidence would depend on the position and character of the witness and of the persons on whose statements he has formed his opinion. A special family custom involving a departure from the ordinary Hindu law should be properly proved. Certain Wajib-ul-urz put in were evidence in favour of the Respondents but they were not sufficient to outweigh the evidence afforded by the actings of the parties and actual descent of the estate. GABURIDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDEWAJA PERSHAD SINGH ... 53
Right of Suit, s. 68—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 68—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), sec. 59—Attesting witness—Mortgage—Writer of the deed.] A person who is present and witnesses the execution of a deed and whose name appears on the document, though he is therein described merely as the writer of the deed is a competent witness to prove the execution of the deed. He need not be described in the deed as an attesting witness. Radha Kissen v. Fateh Ali Ram , I. L. R. 20 All. 532 (1898), referred to. RAJ NARAIN GHOSH v. ABDUR RAHIM ... 454
Right of Suit, s. 92—Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 92—Oral evidence to contradict the recital in a deed.] When one of the parties to a deed is, under any of the provisions of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act, permitted to go into oral evidence, it is open to the other party also to

EVIDENCE ACT— concl.	Page
rebut that evidence by oral evidence. Where a deed recited the payment of a certain consideration and the Plaintiff denied the passing of any consideration and adduced evidence in support of his contention under the provisions of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act, it is open to the Defendants to go into oral evidence to show that there was some consideration for the deed though not the same recited in the deed. Lala Himmat Sahai Singh v. Llewellyn , I. L. R. 11 Cal. 486 (1885), Hukum Chand v. Hiralal , I. L. R. 3 Bom. 159 (1876), referred to. KAILASH CHANDRA NROGI v. HARISH CHANDRA BISWAS ... 158
Right of Suit, s. 92—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 92—Conduct, evidence of, to vary the meaning of a deed—Mortgage—Sale, out-and-out.] Oral evidence as to the acts and conduct of the parties is admissible to show whether a certain deed is, as it purports to be, an out-and-out sale or a mortgage. Priya Nath Shah v. Madhu Sudan Bhuiya , 2 C. W. N. 562: s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 603 (1898), followed. Oral evidence of the intention of the parties is, however, not admissible. Balkishen Das v. Legge , 4 C. W. N. 153: s. c. I. L. R. 27 I. A. 58 (1899), followed. MAHOMED ALI HOSSEIN v. MIR NAZAR ALI ... 326
Right of Suit, s. 92—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 92—Extrinsic evidence, whether admissible to prove that a conveyance is a mortgage by conditional sale—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 86—Surrender of occupancy holding.] Sec. 92 of the Evidence Act does not exclude the evidence of acts and conduct of the parties in order to shew that a conveyance is really a mortgage by way of conditional sale. The Full Bench decision in Preo Nath Shah v. Modhu Sudan Bhuiya , 2 C. W. N. 562: s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 603 (1890) has not been in any way overruled by the decision of the Privy Council in Balkishen Das v. Legge , 4 C. W. N. 153: s. c. I. L. R. 27 I. A. 58 (1899). KHONKAR ABDUR RAHAMAN v. ALI HAFEZ ... 351
EXECUTION to accounts. See RECEIVER ... 223
EXCHANGE or partition. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 118 ... 724 EXECUTION OF DECREE:—
(1) ENCUMBRANCE—Sale notification. See SALE ... 497
(2) IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 342 ... 145
(3) JURISDICTION. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 223 ... 150

	Page
EXECUTION OF DECREE—contd.
(4) LIMITATION. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179.
s. 7	767
(5) NOTICE—Execution proceedings against estate of deceased judgment-debtor without notice to legal representative or making him a party—Irregularity. See SALE	10
(6) RE-OPENING OF—Mistake. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 244	627
(7) RESTITUTION OF PROPERTY. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 583	426
(8) SALE. See SALE	265
(9) STAY OF—Appeal to Privy Council. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 608	562
Stay—
When there still remains something substantial to be done under a decree before it can become thoroughly effectual, that decree has to be "executed" within the meaning of sec. 545, Civ. P. C. A decree directing the issue of a grant of probate to the propounder of a Will is one that is capable of execution and stay of execution of such decree can be granted under sec. 545 of the Civil Procedure Code. An Appellate Court ought to be extremely chary of interfering in matters dependent upon the exercise of the judicial discretion of the Court below, but it can interfere and sometimes has to interfere if it thinks the facts warrant such interference. The principle which underlies all orders for the preservation of property pending litigation is this, that the successful party in the litigation, that is, the ultimately successful party, is to reap the fruits of that litigation and not obtain merely a barren success. Polini v. Grey , L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 438 (1879) and Wilson v. Church , L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 454 (1879), followed. Terms upon which stay of execution pending an appeal was granted. Musst. Brij Coomaree v. Ramrick Dass	781
EXECUTION OF WILL , rules applicable to the. See WILL OF A MAHOMEDAN	505
EX PARTE DECREE , suit to set aside on the ground of fraud when application under sec. 108, C. P. C., is refused. See RIGHT OF SUIT	767
EXPLANATION OF DEED to a purdahnaship. See PURDANASHIN	489
EXPLOSION in railway carriage. See RAILWAY COMPANY	449
EXTINGUISHMENT OF RIGHT to property. See LIMITATION ACT, s. 7	545
EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE , whether admissible to prove that a conveyance is a mortgage by conditional sale. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92	351

	Page
FAMILY ARRANGEMENT—Contract to transfer. See TRANSFER	217
FATHER , mortgage by— Mitakshara family—Son whether a necessary party. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 85	640
FISHERY —Yearly tenant of a tank whether entitled to compensation. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT, s. 23, CL. (4)	349
FIXED RAIYAT , proof of, onus. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	880
FORECLOSURE—Foreclosure by mortgagee by conditional sale—Pre-emption, suit for—Possession, physical, meaning of—Possession of undivided share of a zemindari, nature of—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Arts. 10, 120 and 144—Time from which limitation commences.] In Art. 10, Sch. II of the Limitation Act "physical possession" means "personal and immediate" possession. The definition of "actual possession" given by Stuart, O. J., in Jageshar Singh v. Jawahar Singh , L. L. R. 1 All. 311 (1876), is correct and applies with still more certainty to "physical possession." The vendee of a share of a zemindari tenure gets only formal possession and cannot get physical possession of the share purchased by him except by enforcing partition. A suit for pre-emption by a co-sharer where the vendee has only obtained formal possession does not fall under Art. 10 of the Limitation Act, but under Art. 120 thereof. Art. 144 of the Limitation Act does not apply to suits for pre-emption. Where a mortgagee by conditional sale of a share of a zemindari has foreclosed, the period of limitation in a suit for pre-emption by a co-sharer, begins to run from the expiry of the year of grace after which the mortgagee's right of possession becomes mature. Ali Abbas v. Kalka Prasad , L. L. R. 14 All. 405 (1892), approved. BATUL BEGUM v. MANSUR ALI KHAN	888
FOREIGN JUDGMENT , suit on, to recover money due for board, lodging and tuition. See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW	741
FORFEITURE—Denial of landlord's title—Act VIII of 1869 (B. C.). See LANDLORD AND TENANT	263
FORGERY—Forged signature. See HUNDI	313
FRAME OF SUIT. See SALE	10
See MORTGAGE	423
FRAUD—
BENAMI PURCHASE by decree-holder at a price less than that permitted by Court. See SALE	265

	Page		Page
FRAUD — contd.		HEARSAY , opinion as to existence of family custom based on. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 60	38
SECOND APPEAL—Allegation of fraud without any attempt to prove the same, whether gives a right of second appeal. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 244	124	HEIRS —Partial acceptance or renunciation of inheritance—Liability for rent. See INHERITANCE	189
SETTING ASIDE DECREE AND SALE. See RIGHT OF SUIT	559, 757	HIGH COURT , meaning of. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, s. 50	377
GAMING and wagering contract. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 30	714	—, Jurisdiction—Revocation of probate. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, s. 50	377
GENERAL CLAUSES ACT , s. 2, cl. 6. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A	821	HINDU LAW :—
GIFT —Meaning of words. See LIFE INTEREST	569	(1) ADOPTION.
— of life estate and a moiety thereof to children. See HINDU LAW	806	(2) ALIENATION.
GOVERNMENT ENGAGEMENT with private party for the construction of canal. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	634	(3) CONSTRUCTION—Manu, Ch. V, verses 122 to 125. See OTHER ESTATES ACT, s. 22	602
GOVERNOR-GENERAL , power of, to declare principal place of business. See INCOME TAX ACT, s. 47	257	(4) MAINTENANCE.
GRANT —Meaning of words. See LIFE INTEREST	569	(5) MARRIAGE.
GRANT OF LIFE ESTATE and a moiety thereof to children of the grantee, effect of—Person unborn at the time of execution of the grant. See HINDU LAW	806	— See RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS.
GUARDIAN , appointment of, with direction to make over—Gift on legatee attaining majority, effect of. See WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF	729	(6) MORTGAGE—Mitakshara family, whether son a necessary party. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 85	640
GUARDIAN OF MINOR , non-appearance of, in suit, whether sufficient for setting aside decree ex parte . See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 108	58	(7) PARTITION.
—, liability of, after attainment of majority by ward. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, ss. 34, 41	207	(8) RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS.
GUARDIANSHIP on termination of, power of Court to order accounts. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, ss. 34, 41	207	(9) SHERAIT.
GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT , ss. 34, 38 to 42— Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), secs. 34, 41, 38-42 —Guardianship, termination of—Guardian, liability of, after attainment of majority by ward—Power of District Judge—Jurisdiction.] The summary powers created by sec. 34 of the Guardians and Wards Act cease as soon as the minority of the ward ceases. The object of that section is to give the Court, as representing the interest of the minor, certain summary powers for the protection of his property during minority. Sec. 11 cannot be construed into giving the Court, by summary procedure, a power to order accounts to be rendered after the termination of guardianship. NABU BHAPARI v. SHEIKH MAHOMED	207	(10) SUCCESSION to estate of ascetic or Bairagi. See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION	873
		— (1) ADOPTION. See ADMINISTRATION SUIT	162
		—, Hindu Law
		—Adoption—Hindu widow—Successive adoption—Adoption of a second son after death of first, whether divests the mother's estate—Right of reversionary heir.] A Hindu widow adopting a son under the authority of her deceased husband upon the death of a son begotten or adopted whose estate she inherited as mother, divests herself of that estate by the act of adoption in favour of the son last adopted by her and such son takes the estate immediately on his adoption. Musstt. Bhoobun Moyee Debia v. Ram Kishore Acharj Chowdhury , 10 M. I. A. 279 (1865), Vellanki Venkata Krishna Rao v. Venkata Rama Lakshmi , I. L. R. 1 Mad. 174 (1876), Ramasami Aiyar v. Venkata Ramaiyan , I. L. R. 2 Mad. 91 (1879), Bykant Monee Roy v. Kisto Soonderee Roy , 7 W. R. 392 (1867), Gobindo Nath Roy v. Ram Kanay Chowdhury , 24 W. R. 183 (1875), Puddo Kumari Debi v. Juggut Kishore Acharjee , I. L. R. 5 Cal. 615 (1879), Padma Kumari Debi v. The Court of Wards , I. L. R. 8 Cal. 302 (1881), Tagore v. Tagore , 18 W. R. 359 (1872), Jamnabai v. Ray Chand Nahal Chand , I. L. R. 9 Bom. 225 (1883), and Ravji Vinayakrao Jaggannath Shankarsett v. Lakshmidai , I. L. R. 11 Bom. 381

	Page		Page
HINDU LAW—contd.		HINDU LAW—contd.
(1887), considered. RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI ...	20	dismissed suit. ] Where a Hindu widow mortgaged a portion of her husband's estate for a small sum of money which might be paid off by the widow in her life-time, a suit by the reversionary heirs, specially when there is a dispute as to who the nearer reversionary heir or heirs are, is premature and not maintainable. A Civil Court has ample discretion under sec. 42 of the Specific Relief Act to exercise jurisdiction vested in it and to decline to set aside, during her lifetime, an alienation made by a Hindu widow when no proper case has been made out by the party seeking to have such alienation set aside. Upendra Narain Myti v. Gopeenath Bera , I. L. R. 9 Cal. 817 (1883) and Isri Dut Koer v. Hansbutti Koerani , I. L. R. 10 Cal. 324 (1883), distinguished. A declaration affecting the Plaintiff in a suit which is dismissed is not legal. CHHOTU MAHTON v. MUSST. SHEO-BARTI KOER ...	445
(2) ALIENATION—Hindu Law—Hindu widow—Alienation, power of, over immoveable property—Bequest by husband—Will, construction of—Grant of absolute power, express or implied—Restrictions imposed upon power of alienation—Indian Succession Act (X of 1885), sec. 82.] Though a mere gift of immoveable property by a Hindu husband to his wife, does not carry with it the power of alienation, yet where any such property is given by the husband similarly enjoy and appropriate at her will the entire aforesaid property in full to the wife with express power of alienation, or when this power is implied by the grant, she would acquire an absolute power of disposal over the property; and when the gift is made by Will, the legatee is entitled, under the provisions of sec. 82 of the Indian Succession Act, to the whole interest of the testator, unless it appears from the Will that only a restricted interest was intended to be given. Where a Will does not in express terms convey any estate of inheritance to a Hindu widow, still the widow will be entitled to alienate the property at her pleasure if there is no restriction imposed by the terms of the Will, so far as the power of alienation is concerned. Upon a construction of the Will in this case which provided as follows:—"If neither of them (the wives) have any children then both my wives will enjoy and appropriate at their will the entire property moveable in equal shares in full proprietary right. In the absence of one, the other will proprietary right. In the event of her death, my next reversionary heir will have such moveable and immoveable property as will remain." Held —That an absolute power of alienation was intended to be conferred on the widows. Lalit Mohon Singh v. Chukkun Lal Roy , 1 O. W. N. 387 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 834 (1898), Lala Ramjiwan v. Dalkoer , I. L. R. 24 Cal. 406 (1898) and Rajnarin Bhaduri v. Katayayni Debi , 4 C. W. N. 337 (1900), referred to. SARODA SUNDARI DASBI v. KRISHO JIBAN PAL ...	300	Hindu Law—Estate for life—Grant of a moiety thereof to children of the grantee, effect of—Estate of inheritance—Person unborn at the time of execution of the grant—Equity—Specific performance—Construction.] A grant of the whole of an estate to a person for his life and as to a moiety thereof to his children and descendants after his death, with a restriction as to the power of alienation either by the grantee or his descendants, does not confer on the grantee an inheritable estate as to the latter moiety and an heir of the grantee not in existence at the time of such grant is, in Hindu law, incapable of taking thereunder. Bhoobun Mohini Debia v. Hurrish Chunder Chowdhury , L. R. 5 I. A. 138 (1878), distinguished. The fact that for some time after the death of the grantee, the grantor treated his heir, who was not in existence at the time of the grant, as entitled thereunder, does not create an equity in favour of such heir and the latter is not entitled to specific performance of the agreement under which the grant was made. RAJA PADMANUND SINGH v. HAYES ...	806
Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), sec. 42—Suit to set aside a mortgage—Reversionary heirs—Dispute as to nearer heir—Mortgage for a small amount which may be repaid by widow—Maintainability of suit—Declaration in a		(3) CONSTRUCTION—Oudh Talukdari Estate—Succession—Elder son born of younger wife—Younger son born of first wife—Oudh Estates Act (I of 1866), sec. 22, cl. 11—Nature of estate—Conflict between ambiguous and unambiguous texts of Hindu law—Interpretation, rule of—Communis error facit jus—Oudh Estates Act (I of 1869), list

HINDU LAW—contd.

2, secs. 8 and 22, Manu, Chap. XI, verses 122 to 125.] An estate taken under cl. 11 of sec. 22 of Act I of 1869 descends as an impartible estate under the provisions of Act I of 1869, list 2, secs. 8 and 22. Dewan Ran Bijai Bahadur Singh v. Ruz Jagatpal Singh, L. R. 17 I. A. 173 (1890), followed. The eldest son, though born of a younger wife, is entitled to succeed in preference to the younger son though born of the first wife. The principles, upon which the first-born son has been held to be entitled to succeed, apply equally to a son of a first-married wife and sons of other wives. Ramakshmi Ammal v. Sivanantha Perumal Sethurayar, 14 Moo. I. A. 570 (1872) and Pedda Ramappa Nayani-varu v. Bangari Seshamma Nayani-varu, L. R. 8 I. A. 1 (1880), referred to and followed. In construing texts of Hindu law where certain verses are inconsistent, and one is reasonably free from ambiguity and the meaning of the others at the best ambiguous and doubtful, the plain language of the one ought not to be overridden or controlled by the obscure utterances of the others. Where it was alleged that the interpolation of the words "but of a lower class" in Manu, Chap. IX, verse 122, was by mistake attributed by Sir William Jones to Kalluka Bhatta whereas it was interpolated by a later and inferior commentator and the interpolation had been accepted by the Indian Courts: Held—That the maxim communis error facit jus is a sound maxim. Manu, Chap. IX, verses 122 to 125, discussed. JAGDIS BAHADUR v. SHEO PERTAB SINGH ... 602

(4) MAINTENANCE—Hindu Law—Maintenance, suit for, after dismissal of previous suit for partition—Arrears of maintenance—Maintenance, wrongful withholding of.] A suit for partition of a zemindary, in which the zemindary was found to be impartible and a decree was made for partition of a portion of the family property unconnected with the impartible zemindary, does not make the family a divided one, and a subsequent claim for maintenance is not inconsistent with the previous claim for partition. The right to arrears of maintenance for any period not excluded by the law of limitation, is not forfeited by the claim for partition made in the previous suit. In order to recover arrears of maintenance it is not necessary to prove a demand for each year's maintenance as it became payable, and although the non-payment of maintenance to a person entitled thereto does not necessarily give him a right of action for arrears, it constitutes a prima facie proof of wrongful withholding. Whether such prima facie proof has been rebutted or not must depend on the circumstances of each particular case. Nartaj Kuari v. Deoraj Kuari, I. L. R. 10 All. 272 (1887), referred to; Jivi v. Ramji, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 207 (1879), Sri Maniyam Mahalakshamma v. Sri Maniyam Venkataratnamma, I. L. R. 6 Mad. 83 (1882) and Narayan Rao Ram Chandra Pant v. Rama Bai, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 415 at p. 421 (1879), discussed; Motilal Prannath v. Bai Kashi, I. L. R. 17 Bom. 45 (1892), discussed and a portion doubted. Quære—Whether, if the Defendant had been misled by the previous suit for partition into the belief that the claim for maintenance was abandoned and had not in consequence set aside any portion of his annual income so to meet such a claim, he would have a good defence to a subsequent suit for arrears of maintenance. RAJA YARLAGADDA MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. RAJA YARLAGADDA DURGA PRASADA and Same v. RAJA YARLAGADDA VENKATA RAMALINGAMMA ... 74

HINDU LAW—contd.

Hindu Law

—Bengal School—Maintenance—Daughter, sonless widowed—Marriage, effect of, on the status of a daughter.] A widowed daughter-in-law is not bound to reside in the house of her father-in-law. Rajah Pirthee Singh v. Ramee Raj Kover, 20 W. R. 21 (1873), followed. When a Hindu maiden marries, she becomes incorporated into her husband's family and it is to that family that she must, in the first instance, look for her maintenance on becoming a widow. A widowed daughter is not, any way, entitled to maintenance from her father's heir, who has succeeded to his estate, unless and until it can be satisfactorily shewn that she is unable to obtain maintenance from the family into which she has married; even then, however, is doubtful if she can succeed against her late father's estate. Bai Mangal v. Bai Rukhmini, I. L. R. 23 Bom. 291 (1898), referred to. When an offer has been made by her late father's heirs to provide her with a home and food and raiment, she is not entitled to a separate maintenance from him apart from his house and in a house of her own. Quære—Whether under certain circumstances

Page

Page

HINDU LAW—contd.

there is or is not a legally enforceable right by which a widowed daughter's maintenance can be claimed as a charge on her father's estate in the hands of his heirs. Khetramani Dasi v. Kashinath Das, 2 B. L. R. A. C. 15 (1868) and Bai Mangal v. Bai Rukhmini, I. L. R. 23 Bom. 291 (1898), referred to. SREEMUTTY MOKHODA DASSEE v. NUNDO LAL HALDAR ... 297

Hindu law
—Bengal School—Mitakshara—Maintenance—Widowed daughter-in-law, maintenance of—Moral obligation—Heir of father-in-law—Legal obligation—Moral right, forfeiture of—Severance from father-in-law's family. It is the duty of the father-in-law to maintain his widowed daughter-in-law. This obligation is legally enforceable where the father-in-law has by survivorship obtained property in which his son had a vested interest as in a Mitakshara family. Where the father, on the death of his son, does not become entitled to any interest or property which the son had, the obligation to maintain the son's widow is only moral and cannot be enforced in a Court of law. Khetramoni v. Kashinath, 2 B. L. R. (A. C.) 15 (1868), followed. The moral obligation in the father to maintain his widowed daughter-in-law becomes a legal obligation in the inheritor of his property. Janki v. Nandram, I. L. R. 11 All. 194 (1888) and Kamini Dassee v. Chandra Pote Mondle, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 373 (1889), followed. The right to be maintained where it exists is not necessarily forfeited by a widow who resides away from her father-in-law's house as long as she remains chaste. Raja Pirthee Sing v. Rani Raj Kower, 20 W. R. 21: s. c. 12 B. L. R. (P. C.) 238 (1873), Kasturbai v. Shivajiram, I. L. R. 3 Bom. 372 (1879) and Gokibai v. Lakhmidas Khimji, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 490 (1890), followed. If therefore the daughter-in-law remains a dependent member of her husband's family, the mere fact of her residence elsewhere will not disentitle her to maintenance. Where a daughter-in-law leaves her father-in-law's house during his lifetime with the intention of residing permanently in her father's house as a member of his household and demands and obtains from her father-in-law a Government promissory note belonging to her husband which was all the money she considered herself entitled to, and intends to and does sever herself from her deceased husband's family, though she leaves the house without any quarrel with her father-in-law, she ceases to be a dependent member of her father-in-law's family, and there is no longer any moral liability on the father-in-law to support her. There being no moral liability on the father-in-law, there is no legal liability on the person who takes his property to maintain the widowed daughter-in-law. SIDDESURY DASSEE v. JONARDAN SARKAR ... 549

HINDU LAW—contd.

(5) MARRIAGE—Hindu law—Suit for enforcement of conjugal rights—Act XII of 1887—Husband contracting out of his rights—Public policy—Marriage under the Hindu law. Where in a suit by a Hindu husband for enforcement of conjugal rights, the wife relied on an agreement, executed at the time of marriage by the guardians of the husband, then a minor, and also by the husband, covenanting that the husband would always live at his mother-in-law's house and that the wife would never be required to leave her parental home and reside elsewhere with her husband: Held—That the parties being Hindus, the rule of decision in such a case is, in accordance with sec. 37 of Act XII of 1887, the Hindu law except in so far as it has by legislative enactment been altered or abolished. Under the Hindu law, marriage besides being a contract is a sacrament, it being more religious than secular in character and it is the bounden duty of the wife to live with her husband wherever the latter may choose to reside and to submit herself obediently to the authority of the husband: Held also—That the agreement relied on by wife, if permitted, would defeat a rule of Hindu law and is opposed to public policy. TEKAIT MON MOHINI JOMADAI v. RAI BASANT KUMAR SINGHA ... 673

See RES-
TITUTION OF (CONJUGAL RIGHTS) ... 195

(6) MORTGAGE—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), sec. 85—Parties—Hindu Law—Mitakshara family—Mortgage by father—Suit by mortgagee against father alone—Decree whether binding upon son—Son interested in the property. In a suit against a Mitakshara father on a mortgage of ancestral property executed by him alone, the son is a necessary party where the mortgagee has notice of his interest. The language of sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act is compulsory and all persons having an interest in the property mortgaged or, in other words, in the equity of "redemption ought to be made parties to a suit on the mortgage. In a suit by a Mitakshara son for a declaration that a mortgage decree obtained against the father alone is not binding on him on the ground (1) that he was not made a party to that suit and (2) that the debt was for immoral and illegal purposes, where it is found that the debt was not contracted for immoral and illegal purposes, the only remedy the son is entitled to is a right to redeem. LALA SURAJ PRASAD v. GOLAB CHAND ... 640

HINDU LAW—contd.

(7) PARTITION, decree for, of family property unconnected with impartible estate whether makes the family a divided one. See HINDU LAW—MAINTENANCE ... 74

Hindu Law
—Hindu mother, interest of on partition—Abatement of suit—Arbitrator
—Valuator—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 506, 522—Decree upon award of valuator—Right to sue, revival of. Upon a partition, D. was allotted a one-third share of certain premises as a Hindu mother. A suit brought by her to restrain Appellant, who had purchased the two-thirds share of the sons, from encroaching upon her was compromised and by consent an order purporting to be made under sec. 506, Civ. P. C., was made referring it to certain persons to settle the price of D.'s share and interest in the disputed property, and directing that, upon payment by the Appellant to D.'s attorney of the price so settled, D. do convey all her share and interest in the property to the Appellant. After the award as to the price, but before decree thereon, D. died leaving two sons, the present Respondents, who obtained an ex parte order reviving the suit in their names. They subsequently applied for a decree upon the award under sec. 522, Civ. P. Code: Held—That the order of reference upon the compromise gave D. certain fresh rights in respect of which the right to sue survives to her representatives, the present Respondents. Oakey and Sons v. Dalton, L. R. 35 Ch. Div. 700 (1887), Jones v. Simes, L. R. 43 Ch. Div. 607 (1890) and Phillips v. Homfray, L. R. 24 Ch. Div. 439 (1888), referred to. The persons to whom it was referred to settle the price of D.'s share were rather valuers than arbitrators and the order of reference cannot accordingly be regarded as one under sec. 506, Civ.

Page

HINDU LAW—contd.

P. C. In re Carus-wilson v. Greene, L. R. 18 Q. B. Div. 7 (1886), referred to. No decree on the award of the valuers can be made under sec. 522, Civ. P. C. CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE v. RAM KINKAR DUTT ... 242

(8) RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS—Hindu Law—Marriage—Restitution of conjugal rights—Minor wife—Decree—Restoration to caste and position as wife—Adjournment—Practice—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 35.] A suit for restitution of conjugal rights between Hindus is maintainable. Bazloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867). Chotun Bibee v. Ameer Chand, 6 W. R. 105 (1866), Koobur Khansama v. Jan Khansama, 8 W. R. 467 (1867), Melaram Nudial v. Thanoo-ram Bamun, 9 W. R. 522 (1868), Koroonamoyee Dabee v. Gangadhar Surmah, 20 W. R. 50 (1873), Lall Nath Misser v. Sheoburn Pandey, 20 W. R. 92 (1873), Gatha Ram v. Moohita Kochin, 23 W. R. 179 (1875), Jogendranandini Dassee v. Hurry Doss Ghose, I. L. R. 5 Cal. 500 (1879), Yamunabai v. Narayan More-shwar, I. L. R. 1 Bom. 164 (1876), Dudaji Bhikaji v. Itukmabai, I. L. R. 10 Bom. 301 (1886), Bai Sari v. Sankla Hira Chand, I. L. R. 16 Bom. 714 (1892), Fakirgauda v. Gangi, I. L. R. 23 Bom. 307 (1898), Paigi v. Sheonarain, I. L. R. 8 All. 78 (1885) and Binda v. Kaunsilia, I. L. R. 13 All. 126 (1890), referred to. Such a suit would lie against a minor wife, if she is of sufficient age to perform her conjugal duties. Suntosh Ram Doss v. Gera Pattuck, 23 W. R. 22 (1874), Kaleeram Dokanee v. Musst. Gendhanee, 23 W. R. 178 (1875), Binda v. Kaunsilia, I. L. R. 13 All. 126 (1890), Fakirgauda v. Gangi, I. L. R. 23 Bom. 307 (1898) and Bazloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867), referred to. Art. 35, Sch. II of the Limitation Act does not apply to suits for restitution of conjugal rights between Hindus. Where the minor wife, under the influence of her relatives, has lost caste by living with another person as his wife, a decree for restitution of conjugal rights should not be passed, except upon the condition, that the husband should make all the arrangements necessary for the restoration of the wife to caste and to her position as his wife in his household. Bazloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867), Paigi v. Sheonarain, I. L. R. 8 All. 78 (1885) and Jogendranandini

Page

HINDU LAW—contd.

Dossee v. Hurry Doss Ghose, I. L. R. 5 Cal. 500 (1879), referred to. In a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, where the validity and legality of the marriage is one of the most essential points in issue, no presumption arises from the mere fact that the marriage was celebrated, that all the rites and ceremonies necessary to constitute a legal and valid marriage were performed. Inderun v. Rama Swamy, 12 W. R. 41 P. C. (1869), Brindabun Chandra v. Chandra Kummokar, I. L. R. 12 Cal. 140 (1885) and Administrator-General of Madras v. Anandachari, I. L. R. 9 Mad. 466 (1886), referred to. If such a marriage was actually and properly celebrated the absence of the consent of the person whose consent ought to have been obtained would not make it illegal or invalid. Bacc Rulyut v. Jeychand, Bellais 43: s. c. 1 Mor. N. S. 181 (1843), referred to. SUBJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS ... 105

(9) SHEBAIL—Hindu Law—Shebail, suit by, for recovery of advances made by him—Dispossession by co-shebail—Limitation Act (XV of 1817), Sch. II, Arts. 36, 120—Parties—Plaint, Amendment of—Appellate Court, power of, to allow amendment—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 53, 582.]

J, the grandfather of the Plaintiffs and of some of the Defendants, and great grandfather of the remaining Defendants, established certain idols and dedicated certain properties for their worship, etc., and prescribed a certain order in which his descendants were to become shebails. When the office of shebail devolved upon Plaintiffs' father B, he was kept out of possession by Defendant P of a portion of the debutter estate, and in a suit by B against P, and certain other persons, B having died during the pendency of the suit, it was decreed declaring the properties in dispute to be debutter and that B was entitled to be shebail. B had to advance money out of his own estate to meet the expenses of the debutter estate. The Plaintiffs brought the present suit, as heirs and legal representatives of B, for recovery of the said money, as also for monies realised by P out of the debutter estate. The plaint stated that as it was not certain who amongst the Defendants was entitled to be shebail, all of them were made parties, but the Court was not asked to determine who was entitled to be shebail: Held—That the Plaintiffs as creditors of the debutter estate were not entitled to any relief against Defendant P personally simply on the ground of his having realised money from the debutter estate. That the suit against P personally was barred under sec. 36, Sch. II of the Limitation Act. That as to the suit against the debutter estate, the period of limitation did not begin to run from the time when the advances were made but from the time when the Plaintiffs' father B died and Art. 120 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act applied to the case. That the suit was not maintainable, inasmuch as it was not stated in the plaint who the person was that was entitled to represent the estate as shebail and the Plaintiffs had not asked for the determination of the question as to who was the shebail for the time being. RAJAH PEARY MOHAN MUKHERJEE v. NARENDRA KRISHNA MUKHERJEE 273

Page

HINDU LAW—contd.

(10) SUCCESSION—Bairagi or ascetic—Letters of administration, application for, by his preceptor's preceptor—Succession—Custom, ancient and definite—Dyabhaga, (Ch. XI, sec. 6, para. 35—Vyavastha Darpana, Ch. V, sec. 1, para. 144—Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872), s.c. 42.] On the death of a Bairagi or an ascetic his preceptor's preceptor applied for letters of administration claiming that according to the custom prevailing in the sect of which he and the deceased disciple were, respectively, members, he, as the preceptor of the dead man's preceptor was entitled to his property: Held—The custom set up was proved. THE COLLECTOR OF DACCA v. JAGAT CHANDRA GOSWAMI ... 873

HUNDI—Hundi—Shahjoge hundi—Endorsee for realization—Endorsement, effect of such—Maintainability of a suit by such endorsee for realization—Delivery, title by—Negligence—Payment to wrong person—Forged signature—Hundi made over to servant for realization, effect of—Estoppel.] A hundi payable to shahjoge (to the respectable holder) was endorsed by the drawer "hundi sent for realization by G (drawer) to B of Calcutta (Plaintiffs)," and sent by him to the Plaintiffs. The Plaintiffs handed the hundi to one S, the Plaintiffs' jemadar, who had been in the habit of taking hundis on their behalf for acceptance and payment, to be taken by him to the Defendants for acceptance. S took the hundi to the Defendants but subsequently, one R, who had no authority from the Plaintiffs to receive payment, acting on information either from S or some other source, represented himself to the Defendants as a jenadar of the Plaintiffs, wrongfully obtained the hundi from the Defendants, forged the Plaintiffs' signature to it and obtained payment. The Defendants before such payment, had made no enquiries as to the position or respectability of R and paid the hundi on the faith of the forged signature: Held—That such an endorsement coupled with the delivery of the hundi entitles the Plaintiffs to sue for and receive payment of the hundi from the acceptors, though as between the drawer and the Plaintiffs the latter are mere agents or parties with a defeasible title. Such an endorsement is in the nature of a restrictive endorsement, giving the endorsee the right to receive payment of the hundi and if necessary to sue the acceptor for the amount, but not to transfer his rights as endorsee to anybody else; and defence which could be available to the acceptor against the drawer would be available against the endorsee. A hundi payable shajoge is only payable to the respectable holder and is not the same as a hundi payable to bearer. Thakurdass v. Futteh Mull, 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871), referred to. The hundi continued to be shajoge even after such endorsement. Gones Dass v. Luchmi Narayan, I. L. R. 18 Bom. 570 (1893), referred to. That the Plaintiffs are entitled to claim the amount of the hundi from the Defendants, unless they were guilty of such negligence or carelessness as would estop them from disputing the validity of the payment to R. That even if S colluded with R and fraudulently obtained payment from Defendants, there was no negligence on the part of the Plaintiffs in entrusting the hundi to S. Even if such an act was negligent, the negligence was not so immediately conducive to the payment of the hundi as to estop the Plaintiffs from saying that R had no authority from them to receive payment and that the payment has not been made to them. Robarts v. Tucker, 16 Ad. and El., p. 560 (1851). Bank of Ireland v. Trustees of Evans Charities in Ireland, 5 H. L. Cas. 389 (1855). Arnold v. The Cheque Bank, 1 O. P. D. 578 (1876). Mayor, etc., Merchants of the staple of England v. Bank of England, 21 Q. B. D. 160 (1887) and Bank of England v. Vagliano Bros., L. R. (1891) App. Cas. 107, referred to. Quere—Whether such a hundi would not, before acceptance, pass merely by delivery to a respectable holder. Goursimull v. Dhansuk Das, 7 B. L. R. 289 foot-note (1865) and Thakurdass v. Futteh Mull, 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871), referred to. BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH ...

Page

HUNDI—contd.

Page

HUNDI—concl'd.

Page

HUSBAND AND WIFE—Husband contracting that wife is never to leave parental home. See HINDU LAW ... 673

IJARDAR of judgment-debtor whether his legal representative. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 244 ... 654

"IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY" whether includes a simple mortgagee's interest. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ... 821

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 342 ... 145

INCOME TAX ACT, s. 47—Income Tax Act (II of 1886), sec. 47—[Principal place of business of a person, power of Governor-General to declare.] Sec. 47 of the Income Tax Act so far as it empowers the Governor-General in Council to declare which of several places of business shall be deemed to be the principal place of business, applies only to the case of a company or a firm and not to the case of an individual carrying on business. HADJEE AJAM GOLAM HOSSEIN v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL ... 257

INCUMBRANCE, annulment of—Joint notice to several persons, if legal. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 167 ... 272

INDIAN CONTRACT ACT. See CONTRACT ACT.

INDIAN LAW REPORTS ACT. See LAW REPORTS ACT.

INDIAN REGISTRATION ACT. See REGISTRATION ACT.

INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT. See SUCCESSION ACT.

INFANT—Practice—Attorney, change of, application by next friend of an infant for—Grant of such application as a matter of course—Appeal from an order refusing change—Appeal, heading of.] A next friend of an infant is entitled to an order for change of attorney on the same terms as any other litigant qui juris. It is not necessary for him to shew that such change is for the benefit of the infant, though the Court will interfere and remove the next friend if it appears that in the matter of such an application he was acting in a manner detrimental to the interests of the infant. So long as he continues to be the next friend, he is entitled to appoint and change his own solicitor. Peyton v. Bond, 1 Sim. 390 (1827), referred to; Manick Lal Seal v. Sarat Kumari .

	Page
INFANT— contd.
Dasi , unreported. Suit No. 338 of 1883. Norris, J. , 23rd August 1883, Ram Chunder Roy v. Pooro Chunder Roy , 4 C. W. N. clxxv (1900) and Sarat Chunder Dawn v. Kristo Dhone Dawn , 5 C. W. N. lxxxiii (1901), dissented from. Semble —An appeal lies from an order refusing change of attorney. DINENDRA NATH DUTT v. T. H. WILSON &amp; Co. ... 464
INHERITANCE, estate of— Grant. See HINDU LAW ... 806

Inheritance, partial acceptance or renunciation of—Liability of heirs for rent.] There cannot be a partial acceptance or renunciation of an inheritance, nor can one of several heirs accept a part only of an inheritance to the prejudice of the other heirs and of the creditors of the deceased. An acceptance in part has the effect of an acceptance of the whole and carries with it the same liability. If a person accepts the inheritance in whole or in part he is bound to discharge the liabilities which attach to the ~~tenants~~ tenants from whom he inherits unless he can prove that he has since made a formal surrender of the holding to the landlord. MOAZAM HASSAIN CHOWDHURI v. BHOUDIN ... 189

INSOLVENCY— Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 345, 346 and 350—Insolvent, examination of. ] The examination of an insolvent under sec. 350, Civ. P. C., is only necessary where the judgment-debtor is declared an insolvent upon his own application, not where he is adjudicated an insolvent at the instance of the judgment-creditor. GOURI KANT BURMAN v. DAMODAR DAS BURMAN ... 90
--	--

Notice of insolvency, irregularity in posting, effect of—Examination of insolvent in application by judgment-creditor—Adjudication order, grounds for setting aside—Fraud—Collusion—Creditor, claim by a—Onus of proving claim when so required under sec. 353, Civ. P. C.—Receiver in insolvency, purchase by.] The provision of sec. 347 with regard to posting up the notice of insolvency in Court is, especially in the case of an application by the decree-holder, merely of the directory character and does not go to the jurisdiction of the Court to deal with the matter. Reid v. Croft, 5 Bing. N. C. 68 (1888) and Wight v. Maunder, Beav. 512 (1842), referred to. Non-compliance with the above provision is a mere irregularity, which, in the absence of any proof of prejudice, is cured by sec. 578, INSOLVENCY—contd.

Civ. P. C. The provisions of secs. 350 and 357, Civ. P. C., relate to an application by the judgment-debtor for relief under Chap. XX and not to an application by the judgment-debtor. An adjudication order can only be set aside on the ground that it has been obtained by a fraudulent representation of indebtedness in favour of the creditor who has obtained the order when there is no debt whatsoever, or for want of jurisdiction. When charges of fraud and collusion are made, they must be put in a sufficiently specific manner to enable the other side to combat them. Wallingford v. The Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 697 (1881) and Ganga Narain Gupta v. Tilukram Chowdhry and ors., I. L. R. 15 Cal. 533 (1888), referred to. Under sec. 353, Civ. P. C., when any creditor requires any other creditor to prove his claim, the onus is upon the creditor who has to prove his claim to establish it. It is a matter to be dealt with by the Judge upon the evidence forthcoming in the case. The purchase by a Receiver in insolvency of property belonging to the insolvent's estate is irregular and the Court ought not to sanction such a purchase. RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB ... 91

INSOLVENCY ACT, 11 and 12 Vic., c. 21—Insolvency Act (11 and 12 Vic., c. 21)—Insolvency proceedings—Vesting order—Prior attachment—Priority of claim—Attaching creditor and Official Assignee—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 244—Official Assignee, whether representative of judgment-debtor—Appeal.] A vesting order made under the Insolvency Act. 11 and 12 Vic., c. 21, has not the effect of giving the Official Assignee priority over the claim of a judgment-creditor in respect of property attached at his instance previous to the passing of such order; the Official Assignee stands in the shoes of the insolvent and takes the property subject to any equities which are good against the latter. Anund Chunder Pal v. Panchoo Lall Soobaloh, 14 W. R. (F. B.) 33 (1870), followed. Shib Kristo Shaha Chowdhry v. A. B. Miller, I. L. R. 10 Cal. (1883), distinguished. Where the objection of the Official Assignee was that the property attached though belonging to the judgment-debtor was not liable to be sold in execution of the decree by reason of a vesting order passed in the insolvency proceedings; Semble—That the Official Assignee

	Page		Page
INSOLVENCY ACT—contd.		JUDGMENT , error of—Jurisdiction.
was a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of sec. 244, C. P. C. Kashi Prasad v. Miller , I. L. R. 7 All. 752 (1885) and Sardarmal Jagannath v. Aranyal , I. L. R. 21 Bom. 205 (1896), referred to. A. B. MILLER v. LAKHMONI DEBI ...	761	See SALE ...	10
INSOLVENT , examination of, when decree-holder applicant. See INSOLVENCY ...	90, 91	..., meaning of. See LETTERS PATENT , CL. 15 ...	781
INTENTION —Meaning of words. See LIFE INTEREST ...	569	DEBTOR , legal representative of—Ijaradar. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 244 ...	654
INTEREST —Damages—Mortgage. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT , s. 73 ...	356	JUDICATURE ACT —Order XI, Rule 1 (c). See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW ...	741
on arrear of rent. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT , s. 179 ...	438	JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER , ADDITIONAL—Appeal. See ACT XIV OF 1891 , s. 8 ...	781
on mortgage decree up to date of realisation. See MORTGAGE ...	137	discretion, appeal from, exercise of. See EXECUTION , STAY OF ...	781 decree-holder not complying with a condition in consent decree, if entitled to. See CONSENT DECREE ...	536	JURISDICTION . See RIGHT OF SUIT ...	559
—, Mortgage decree, construction of—Interest—Date of payment, meaning of.] There is nothing in the law to prevent interest at the rate stipulated on a bond being decreed up to the date of actual payment. Where a mortgage decree provided for interest to be recovered from the date of the decree till the date of payment: Held —That the words “date of payment” meant the date of actual payment and not the last day fixed for payment in the decree. MANOO LAL v. DURGA PRASAD SINGH ...	653	See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 583 ...	287
INTEREST ACT . See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW ...	741	Imprisonment for debt—Term of imprisonment. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 842 ...	145
INTERLOCUTORY ORDER —Civil Procedure Code, ss. 108, 562—Remand order. See APPEAL ...	153	s. 578. See s. 244 ...	627
INTERPRETATION . See CONSTRUCTION .		s. 578. See s. 562 ...	509
IRREGULARITY . See SALE ...	10	transfer of execution of decree. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 223 ...	150
in publishing and conducting sale under Act X of 1859. See SALE ...	126	want of and error of judgment. See SALE ...	10
ISSUE OF PROBATE and discharge of receiver. See LETTERS PATENT , CL. 15 ...	781	of English Courts over British subjects in British India. See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW ...	741
JOINDER OF CAUSES OF ACTION . See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	880	of British Indian Courts to go into merits of the action in the English Court. See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW ...	741
JOINT FAMILY —Separate estate—Possession, discontinuance of. See LIMITATION ACT , s. 7 ...	545	LACHES , refusal to advance money in partnership business, if amounts to. See PARTNERSHIP ...	114
— WRONG-DOERS —Contribution. See CONTRIBUTION , SUIT FOR ...	398	LAND , exchange of, without writing or registration. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT , s. 118 ...	724
JUDGE —Judges who have heard the arguments and who are responsible for the decision can hardly with propriety rest it on the authority of one who has not heard the arguments and is not responsible for the decision though he also may be a Judge of the High Court. JOSEPHINE ROSE HARRISS v. EDWARD BROWN ...	726	LAND ACQUISITION ACT , s. 3 (b). See s. 23 ...	349
		s. 23— Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894) , secs. 3 (b), 23, cl. 4—Fishery—Yearly tenant of a tank, whether entitled to compensation.] A yearly tenant of a tank, is, for the purposes of the Land Acquisition Act, in the same position as a yearly tenant of agricultural land, and equally as much entitled to compensation. NARAIN CHUNDER RORAL v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL ...	349
		LAND REGISTRATION ACT , s. 78— Land Registration Act (VII of 1878) , sec. 78—Actual registration—Order of Civil Court for registration.] The Land Registration Act requires actual registration of name in order to enable a person to recover rent, and a mere order of the Civil Court for registration is not sufficient. UGRA MOHUN THAKUR v. BADESHI ROY ...	360

LANDLORD, dispossession by co-sharer.
See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, SCH. III,
ART. 8 ... 405

LANDLORD AND TENANT—Forfeiture
—Denial of landlord's title before suit—Intention—Written statement —Landlord and Tenant Act (VIII of 1869.) A denial of landlord's title, in order to operate as a forfeiture must be an express denial prior to the institution of the suit; a denial in the written statement does not operate as a forfeiture; and if what transpired before suit is ambiguous in its character it would be irregular and hardly in accordance with the principles of law to refer to the written statement to explain the intention of the Defendant.
SHEIKH NIZAMUDDIN v. MOMTAZUD-
DIN ... 263

and Tenant Act (X of 1859), sec.
161—Rent suit—Second appeal—
Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 584—Practice—Inference from facts in second appeal—Lease, termination of, on death of grantor, voidable or void—Ratification.] A certain Zemindari belonged to three ladies A, G and N; N executed an ijara pottah in respect of her one-third share in favour of A and G for 1289 to 1304, N died in Falgoun
1303 (February 1897) and was succeeded by her daughter M, the intervenor Defendant. In the meantime A and G had sublet their ijara interest in favour of the present Plaintiff, who brought the present suit for recovery of rent in respect of the year 1305 (Uriya style 24 Bhad 1304 to 12 Bhad 1305). The tenants and the intervenor M opposed upon the ground that Plaintiff had no rights to recover it. Shortly after the death of N the revenue payable on account of her share fell due and it was paid by the Plaintiff in April 1897 and not by M; one of the terms of the ijara lease was that out of the rent payable the Plaintiff should pay the revenue. In Kartick 1304 (October 1897) two notices were issued by M, the material portion of which is set out in the judgment. In November 1897 another list of revenue was paid by the Plaintiff and not by M.
The lower Appellate Court held that upon the death of N the ijara came to an end and that the failure on the part of the intervenor to pay the revenue could not and did not indicate that it was her intention to allow the lease to run on until the year 1304, B. S. : Held—That upon the above facts the lower Appellate Court did not draw the legitimate inference which ought to have been

LANDLORD AND TENANT—contd.

drawn. That the lease did not come to an end by itself on the death of N. Madhu Sudan Singh v. M. G.
Rooke, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 1 (1897), relied upon. That the notices did not put an end to the ijara. That the revenue which was payable by M having been paid by the Plaintiff in accordance with the lease and from the other facts the legitimate inference was that the ijara was not brought to a termination but was allowed to run on. SADAI NAIK v.
SERAI NAIK ... 279

—Rent-suit—
Disturbance of quiet possession by landlord—Liability to pay rent—
Eviction, not complete—Landlord and tenant—Admissibility in evidence—Petition of claim on behalf of a person by her attorney—Authority, want of proof of.] The law does not require that there should be a complete eviction of the lessee in order that he may be exempted from liability to pay rent. Dhun- put Singh v. Mahomed Kazim Is- pahain, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 296 (1896), approved. A lessor is not entitled to claim rent from the lessee for the period during which he wilfully disturbs the lessee's quiet possession.
RANI LALITA SUNDARI v. SURNAMAYI
DASI ... 353

—Irrigation canals—Sanction of Government to construct canal through its own land—Right of excavators to the land through which canal is constructed—Landlord's encouragement to another to lay out money on his land under an expectation.] If a man under an expectation created and encouraged by the landlord that he shall have a certain interest, takes possession of such land with the consent of the landlord and upon the faith of such expectation, with the knowledge of the landlord and without objection by him lays out money upon the land, a Court of Equity will compel the landlord to give effect to such expectation.
Ramsden v. Dyson, 1 E. & I. Ap. 129 at p. 170 (1865), referred to. In 1860 Plaintiffs' grandfather obtained from the Government sanction to construct a canal from the river Sutlej for the irrigation of certain lands belonging to Government, the revenues of which were at that time leased to him. He thereupon commenced to construct the canal at his own expense, and the canal was finally completed by his son. It was constructed partly on Government lands and partly on the land of private owners under arrangements

LANDLORD AND TENANT—contd.

between them and the Plaintiffs' father and grandfather: Held—That the Plaintiffs had acquired a proprietary interest in so much of the Government lands taken for the purpose of the canal as was required for its construction and maintenance and also a right to have the waters of the Sutlej admitted into the canal so long as the canal was used for the purpose for which it was originally designed. AHMAD YAR KHAN v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL ... 634

Permanent tenancy—Long possession and instances of transfer and succession—Notice—Homestead land in Municipal town.] The fact of long possession and instances of transfer and succession may raise a presumption in favour of the permanency of a tenancy. Tarak Podo Ghosal v. Shyama Churn Napti, 8 C. L. R. 50 (1881); Prosunno Coomaree v. Sheikh Buton Bepary, I. L. R. 3 Cal. 698 (1877), referred to. DURGA MOHUN DAS v. RAKHAL CHANDRA ROY ... 801

A landlord is bound to put the tenant into possession of the land let to him and unless and until he does this he is not entitled to the rent. Hurish Chunder Koondoo v. Mohinee Mohun Mitter, 9 W. R. 532, referred to. SHAMA PRASAD GHOSE v. TAKI MULLIK ... 816

Landlord and tenant—Ejectment—Origin of tenancy—Permanent tenancy—Presumption as to permanent character of tenancy—Estoppel—Acquiescence—Compensation—Confusion of boundaries.] Where tenancies were created by kabuliyats or pottas which did not contain any words of inheritance and which limited the tenant's right to the term of the landlord's possession who happened to be a mutwalli and there was no recognition of the incidents of old leases in the grant of new leases to new tenants, except payments of rents at unvaried rates for a very long period and the holdings having been the subject of several transfers and the land having been always let out by the mutwali in ijara: Held—That these facts are not sufficient to warrant the inference that the tenancy was, when first created, intended to be permanent, or was subsequently by agreement, converted into a permanent one, and that any presumption arising from long possession is negated where the origin of the tenancy is known. Caspersz v. Kedar Nath Sarbadhi-

Page

LANDLORD AND TENANT—contd.

kari, 5 C. W. N. colxxxix, 858, post (1901); Durga Mohan Das v. Rakhal Chunder Rai, 5 C. W. N. 801 (1901), distinguished. In order to raise an estoppel against the landlord, it must be shown that the landlord had purposely allowed or encouraged the tenant to build knowing that the tenant was building on the mistaken notion that he had rights beyond those of a mere tenant from year to year. Where owing to the negligence of the tenant, the land demised becomes confounded with other lands, the tenant, unless he can ascertain the former, is bound to make good to the landlord the quantity of the land to which the latter is entitled. ISMAIL KHAN MAHOMED v. L. P. D. BROUGHTON ... 846

Ejectment, suit for—Origin and nature of tenancy not known—Evidence of mode of dealing with land demised, of acts and conduct of parties—Permanent tenancy, presumption of—Alternative plea of acquiescence by conduct on failure of proof of substantive defence as to evidence of permanent tenancy, if permissible—Acquiescence, whether a question of fact—Facts justifying inference of permanent tenancy.] The facts of long possession of a tenancy by the tenants and their ancestors, and of the landlord having permitted them to build a pucca house which has existed for a very considerable time and which was added to by successive tenants and of the tenure having been from time to time transferred by succession and purchase in which the landlord acquiesced or of which he could not have been ignorant are sufficient to warrant the Court in presuming that the tenancy is of a permanent nature. Baboo Dhunput Singh v. Gooman Singh, 11 Moo. I. A. 433 (1876); Gungadhar Shikdar v. Ayimuddin Shah Biswas, I. L. R. 8 Cal. 960 (1882); Prosunna Coomar Chatterjee v. Jagunnath Bysack and others, 10 C. L. R. 25 (1881); Ismail Khan Mahomed v. Joygoon Bibee, 4 C. W. N. 210: s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 570 (1900), referred to. Where the question was as to whether a tenancy was permanent and the pottah relied upon by the tenant was found to be false: Held—That it did not prevent the tenant from setting up an alternative case that on the other evidence the tenancy was a permanent one. Ranje Surnomoyee v. Maharajah Suttees Chunder Roy Bahadoor, 10 Moo. I. A. 123 at p. 149 (1864), referred to. The question of acquiescence is not

Page

	Page		Page
LANDLORD AND TENANT—concl'd.		LAW REPORTS ACT—concl'd.
a question of fact but of legal inference from facts and in a second appeal the judgment of the lower Appellate Court is not final. Beni Ram v. Kundan Lal , 3 C. W. N. 502; s. c. I. L. R. 21 All. 496; L. R. 26 I. A. 58 (1899), referred to. A. CASPERSZ v. KEDAR NATH SARBADHIKARI ...	858	ed Law Reports; it does not prevent the Court from looking at an unreported judgment. Makbul Ahmed v. Bakhal Das Hazra , 4 O. W. N. 732 (1900), dissented from. MAROMED ALI HOSSBIN v. MIR NAZAR ALI ...	326
Landlord and tenant—Enhancement of rent, suit for rent and for—Maintainability of suit—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 45—Onus—Raiyat at fixed rate.] A suit for both enhancement and arrears of rent at an enhanced rate is maintainable. The causes of action although separate may be combined under sec. 45, O. P. C. In a suit for enhancement of rent the onus is upon the Defendant to prove that he is a raiyat at fixed rate. GUDAR TEWARY v. BRIJNANDAN BISWAS ...	880	LEASE, permanent—Interest. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT , s. 179 ...	438
Partition of mal raiyati land. See PARTITION ...	185	—, termination of, on death of grantor—Ratification. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	279
Heirs—Partial acceptance or renunciation of inheritance—Liability for rent. See INHERITANCE ...	189	—, Presumption. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	801, 846, 858
Liability of hypothecated property on release of principal by act of landlord. See SALE ...	497	—, building and mining, whether rent claimed upon such lease is cognizable by a Revenue Court. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT , s. 23 ...	840
Act X of 1859—Sale—Irregularity. See SALE ...	126	LEAVE TO DEFEND , extension of time for—Summary suit. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , CHAPTER XXXIX ...	963
See SECOND APPEAL ...	279	— to sue a Receiver. See PARTIES ...	27
s. 23—Landlord and Tenant Act (X of 1859), sec. 23—Suit for rent upon a lease for purposes other than agricultural or horticultural—Building and mining purposes and the like.] A suit for recovery of rent upon a lease for mining purposes and for purposes of building, making roads, and so forth, the land not being demised for agricultural or horticultural purposes, is not a suit for rent under Act X of 1859 and a Revenue Court has no jurisdiction to entertain it. E. J. ROOKE v. BENGAL COAL COMPANY, LIMITED ...	840	— to appeal to Privy Council—Finding of fact. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 596 ...	455
Act VIII of 1869, B. C.—Denial of landlord's title—Forfeiture. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	263	LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT , ss. 13, 14—Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), as amended by (Act XI of 1896), secs. 13, 14—Professional misconduct—Grossly improper conduct—Legal practitioner advising payment of money to witness to speak the truth or to prevent giving false evidence—False statements by legal practitioner in letter to induce speedy remittance for such purpose.] A legal practitioner by paying or offering to pay money to a witness to induce him to speak the truth or to prevent him from giving false evidence may not be guilty of any offence criminally punishable but is guilty of unprofessional conduct. A legal practitioner in pressing his client for the payment of money to a witness to induce him to keep back unfavourable evidence is guilty of grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duties within the meaning of sec. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act. IN THE MATTER OF NRITYA GOPAL SEN, A PLEADER ...	45
LAW REPORTS ACT , s. 3—Indian Law Reports Act (XVIII of 1875), sec. 3—Unreported cases—Reports, authorized.] A High Court judgment is none the less an authority because it has not been reported. Sec. 3 of Act XVIII of 1875 was framed to constitute a monopoly, if the Judges so desired, for the authoriz-		Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), as amended by (Act XI of 1896), secs. 13, sub-sec. (f), 14—Pleader, when he does something as a litigant or member of the public and not as pleader, is to be regarded as professional misconduct—"Any other reasonable cause," construction of.] An allegation, made by a pleader as a Defendant in a suit and not as a pleader that the Plaintiffs had bribed some officer of the record-room to tamper with certain documents produced at the instance of

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT—contd. Page
the Plaintiff did not amount to professional misconduct. That in the words "any other reasonable cause" in sec. 18, sub-sec. (f) of the Legal Practitioners Act, the expression "other" means "other" "ejus dem generis," that is, of the class or description of misconduct which is referred to in the preceding sub-sections, that is to say, professional misconduct. The Legal Practitioners Act is aimed against the misconduct of legal practitioners in relation to their professional duties and not in relation to other matters. IN THE MATTER OF JOGENDRA NARAYAN BOSE ... 48

LESSOR AND LESSEE. See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION, application for, by preceptor's preceptor of a Bairagi or ascetic—Letters of administration, application for, by his preceptor's preceptor—Succession—Custom, ancient and definite—Dyabdhaga, Ch. XI, sec. 6, para. 35—Vyavasta Darpana, Ch. V, sec. 1, para. 144—Indian Evidence Act (1 of 1872), sec. 42.] On the death of a Bairagi or an ascetic his preceptor's preceptor applied for letters of administration claiming that according to the custom prevailing in the sect of which he and the deceased disciple were, respectively, members, he, as the preceptor of the dead man's preceptor was entitled to his property: Held—The custom set up was proved. THE COLLECTOR OF Dacca v. JAGAT CHANDRA GOSWAMI ... 873

LETTERS PATENT, cl. 15—An order made by a Judge of the High Court refusing to stay the issue of probate and the discharge of the Receiver appointed in a probate action is a 'judgment' within the meaning of cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable. The Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Co., 8 B. L. R. 433, 452 (1872), commented on and followed. Hurriah Chunder Chowdhry v. Kali Sundari Debti, I. L. R. 6 Cal. 594 (1881); on appeal, I. L. R. 10 I. A. 4: s. c. I. L. R. 9 Cal. 482 (1882), referred to. Srimanta Raja Yarlagadda Durga Prasada v. Srimanta Raja Yarlagadda Mallikarjuna, I. L. R. 24 Mad. 358 (1901), dissented from. MUSSAMUT BRU COOMAREE v. RAM-RICK DASS ... 781

LIABILITY—Debtor—Surety—Time given to principal debtor. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 135 ... 1
for rent—Heirs—Landlord and Tenant. See INHERITANCE ... 189

LIABILITY—contd.

of hypothecated property on release of principal by acts of landlord. See SALE ... 497

LIBEL—Right of suit—Words spoken in answer to a question put by a police-officer conducting an investigation whether actionable—Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1882 and Act V of 1898).] A person who, in answer to a question put to him by a police-officer conducting an investigation under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code, stated that the Plaintiff was concerned in the commission of the crime then being investigated, cannot be made liable in an action for damages for words so spoken. METHURAM DASS v. JAGGAN NATH DASS ... 804

LIFE INTEREST—Life estate, grant and gift over of moiety thereof to children. See HINDU LAW ... 806

Life interest—Perpetual gift—"Always and for ever," meaning of. The word "always and for ever," in a Will, award, order of Court or other document, do not per se extend the interest given beyond the life of the person who is named. They are not inconsistent with limiting the interest given, but the circumstances under which the instrument is made or the subsequent conduct of the parties may shew the intention with sufficient certainty, to enable the Courts to presume that the grant was perpetual. Moulvi Muhammad Abdul Majid v. Mussamat Fatima Bibi, L. R. 12 I. A. 159 at p. 163 (1885); and Toolshi Pershad Singh v. Rajah Ram Narain Singh, L. R. 12 I. A. 205 at p. 214 (1885), referred to. AZIZ-UN-NISSA v. TASSADUQ HUSAIN KHAN ... 569

LIMITATION—Suit to set aside sale under Act VII, B. C. of 1880, when appeal to Commissioner is rejected. See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, s. 10 ... 86

dispossession by co-sharer landlord. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, SCH. III, ART. 3 ... 405

Rehearing of appeal, application for, returned for amendment. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 560 ... 816 words of "always and for ever." See LIFE INTEREST ... 569

Time from which commences in suit for pre-emption. See FORECLOSURE ... 888

ACT—Construction—That the Limitation Act is an Act limiting or restricting a Plaintiff's rights and should be interpreted liberally so as not to curtail or restrict rights LIMITATION ACT—contd.

Page

unless it is clear that the Legislature intended that this should be done.

JOGESHUR BHAGAT v. GHANSHAM DASS ... 356

PROCEDURE CODE, s. 4. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, CH. XXXIX ... 259

s. 7—Indian Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sec. 7—Joint decree-holders, one of whom is a minor—Applicability of sec. 7 of the Limitation Act—Execution of decree. When one of several joint decree-holders is a minor, sec. 7 of the Limitation Act can save an application for execution by the minor decree-holder from being barred by limitation. That section is not limited to a case where either the sole decree-holder is a minor or all the decree-holders are minors. Seshan v. Raja Gopala, I. L. R. 13 Mad. 236 (1889) and Narayanan v. Damodaran, I. L. R. 17 Mad. 180 (1893), disapproved. Gobind Ram v. Tatia, I. L. R. 20 Bom. 383 (1895), and Zamir Hassan v. Sundar, I. L. R. 22 All. 199 (1899), approved. Ananda Kishore Dass Bakshi v. Anando Kishore Bose, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 50 (1886), referred to. SURJA KUMAR DUTT v. ABUN CHANDRA ROY 767

Under sec. 7 of the Limitation Act a person under disability cannot bring his suit after 3 years after the disability ceases. VASUDEVA PADHI KHADANGA GARU v. MAGUNI DEVAN BAKSHI MAHAPATRULU GARU ... 545

See s. 28 ... 545

s. 14. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 223 ... 150

s. 18. See s. 7 ... 545

s. 28—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), secs. 7, 18 and 28, and Sch. II, Arts. 142, 144—Joint family—Separate estate—Possession, discontinuance of—Property, extinguishment of right to. Under sec. 28 of the Limitation Act the right of a person to property is extinguished at the determination of the period limited for bringing a suit for possession of it. VASUDEVA PADHI KHADANGA GARU v. MAGUNI DEVAN BAKSHI MAHAPATRULU GARU 545

Sch. II, Art. 10. See FORECLOSURE ... 886

Art. 12 ... 10

(a). See SALE ... 10

Art. 13. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 275 ... 649

Art. 35. See HINDU LAW: RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS ... 195

Art. 36. See HINDU LAW ... 273

LIMITATION ACT—contd.		Page
Quære.—Whether Art. 47, Sch. II of the Indian Limitation Act applies to an order under sec. 146, Cr. P. O. DREW NARAIN CHOUDHURY v. C. R. H. WEBB	...	166
...	Art. 91.	585
See AWARD	...	585
...	Art. 118.	10
See SALE	...	10
...	Art. 120.	273
See HINDU LAW	...	273
...	See	888
FORECLOSURE	...	888
...	See	356
TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 73	...	356
...	Art. 132.	356
See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 73	...	356
...	Arts. 142	545
and 144. See LIMITATION ACT, s. 7	...	545
...	Art. 144.	888
See FORECLOSURE	...	888
...	Art. 158	813
— Arbitration—Award, application to set aside—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 158—Time from when limitation begins to run—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 516. An application to set aside an award must be made within ten days from the time the award arrives at the Registrar's office for the purpose of being filed, and not from the time when it is filed. SM. NOBIN KALLY DABEE v. AMBICA CHURN BANERJEE ... 813
...	Art. 159.	259
See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, CH. XXXIX	...	259
...	Art. 178.	265
See SALE	...	265
...	Art. 179	886
— Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 179—Limitation—Application for execution. Where on an attachment in execution of a decree upon notice under sec. 243, C. P. O., the judgment-debtor pleaded limitation, but, after certain adjournments at the instance of the decree-holder neither party appeared at the hearing and orders were made refusing the application for execution and dismissing the judgment-debtor's objection for default: Held —That the aforesaid order does not preclude the judgment-debtor from urging when subsequently another application for execution is made, that the previous application was barred by limitation. Mungul Pershad Dicht v. Gria Kant Lahiri , I. L. R. 8 Cal. 51 (1881), explained and distinguished. Tilashar Rai v. Parbati , I. L. R. 15 All. 198 (1898), relied upon. Ran Bahadur Singh v.

	Page
LIMITATION ACT—contd.
Lucho Koer , I. L. R. 11 Cal. 301 at p. 306 (1884), referred to. BHOLA NATH DAS v. PROFULLA NATH KUNDU CHAUDHURI ...	80
... Art. 179—Decree for rent by a co-sharer landlord for a sum not exceeding Rs. 500 in value—Application for execution—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 179—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Sch. III, Art. 6.] An application for execution of a decree for a sum not exceeding Rs. 500 in value obtained by one of two or more joint-landlords for his share of the rent is not governed by the special rule of limitation laid down in Art. 6 of Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act but by the general law of litigation namely, Art. 179 of the second schedule of Act XV of 1877. Prem Chand Nasikar v. Mokshada Debi , I. L. R. 14 Cal. 201 (1887); Jugobundhu Pattuck v. Jadu Ghose Alkishi , I. L. R. 15 Cal. 47 (1887); Beni Madhub Roy v. Joad Ali Sarkar , I. L. R. 10 Cal. 150 (1883); Narain Mahton v. Manofi Pattuck , I. L. R. 17 Cal. 489 (1890); Parneswara Namasudra v. Kali Mohan Namasudra , 4 C. W. N. 801 : s. c. I. L. R. 28 Cal. 127 (1900); Durga Churn Mundal v. Kali Prosunno Sarkar , 3 C. W. N. 586 : s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 727 (1899), referred to. KEDAR NATH CHATTERJEE v. ARDHA CHANDRA ROY CHOUDEHURY ...	763
... Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 179—Application for execution—Nonpayment of process fees—Penalty of appeal—Stay of execution.] The present application for execution of decree was made on the 16th June 1897. The previous application had been made on the 24th January 1893; on the 29th May next the decree-holder put in the costs of the auction sale and the sale proclamation was ordered to be published fixing the 17th July as the date of sale; on the 19th May one of the judgment-debtors made objection to the execution of the decree; on the 3rd June 1893 the objections were disallowed; on the 20th June the objector preferred an appeal to the High Court and on the 4th July the Court ordered that the records be sent up to the High Court and the proceedings be adjourned sine die ; the appeal to the High Court was dismissed on the 19th of June 1894, and on the 6th September 1894 the Court ordered that the records of the case having been received back the decree-holder do put in cost for service of fresh sale proclamation and

	Page
LIMITATION ACT—contd.
that the case be put up on the 14th September next when the following order was passed "fees not having been paid, the case is disposed of. The attachment shall continue;" Held—That the present application for execution was barred by limitation and cannot be looked upon as a continuation of the old proceedings. DHUKIRAM SRIMANI v. JOGEDRA CHANDRA SEN ...	347
LIS PENDENS. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 583 ...	426
MAHOMEDAN, WILL BY. See WILL OF A MAHOMEDAN ...	506
MAINTAINABILITY of suit. See RIGHT OF SUIT.
MAINTENANCE , arrear of, suit to recover. See HINDU LAW—MAINTENANCE ...	74
... of sonless widowed daughter. See HINDU LAW ...	297
... of widowed daughter-in-law—Mitakshara. See HINDU LAW ...	549
MARRIAGE properly celebrated, absence of consent of guardian. See HINDU LAW ...	196
... presumption as to, from fact of proper celebration of. See HINDU LAW ...	195
... effect of, on status of daughter. See HINDU LAW ...	297
... Husband contracting out of his rights. See HINDU LAW ...	673
MESNE PROFITS—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 2, 211 540—Mesne profits, period during which recoverable—Order determining mesne profits, interlocutory or final, if appealable—Decree.] A decision in execution proceedings determining the period for which mesne profits are recoverable is appealable both under general principles and under secs. 2 and 540 of the Civil Procedure Code. Where a decree for possession with mesne profits was taken to the privy Council in appeal and was affirmed by Her Majesty in Council : Held—That the three years up to which mesne profits may be given under sec. 211, Civ. P. C., must be counted from the date of the Queen's order and not from that of the original decree, where the original Court granted a decree for possession with "future mesne profits" and, on appeal, Her Majesty in Council affirmed that decree without expressly mentioning the mesne profits : Held—That the Queen's order granted mesne profits by reference to the original decree. RAJA BHUP INDAR BAHADUR SINGH v. BIRAJ BAHADUR SINGH ...	52

	Page		Page
MESNE PROFITS—contd.		MORTGAGE—contd.
— Mesne profits, suit for		to the date fixed for payment.
— Onus—Notice of vacating possession. In a suit for mesne profits as in other cases it is incumbent on the Plaintiff to establish not only the existence of his right, but also the extent of it. There is nothing in the circumstances of the present case to take it out of this general rule. ISHAN CHANDRA v. AINUDDIN MIA ... 720	720	Amolak Ram v. Lachmi Narain , I. L. R. 19 All. 174 (1896), overruled. Achalabala Bose v. Surendra Nath Dey , 1 O. W. N. 550 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 766 (1897); Subbaraya v. Ponnusami , I. L. R. 21 Mad. 264 (1897); and Bakar Sajjad Ali v. Udit Narain Singh , I. L. R. 21 All. 361 (1899), approved. Rameswar Kar v. Syed Mohamed Mehdi Hossain Khan and ors. , 2 O. W. N. 633 : s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 43 (1898), referred to. MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. RANI KANNO DEVI ... 187	187
MINOR , guardian of—Non-appearance in suit, whether good and sufficient cause for setting aside ex parte decree. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 108 ... 58	58	— Onus probandi—Mortgage suit—Fraud—Collusion. In a suit on a mortgage, where collusion and fraud is pleaded by a subsequent auction-purchaser of the mortgaged property, the onus is upon the Plaintiff to prove that the transaction was perfectly genuine and free from taint of fraud. Brayeshwara Peshakar v. Budhanuddi , I. L. R. 6 Cal. 268 (1880), referred to and explained. Ishan Chander Sirkar v. Beni Madhub Sirkar , I. L. R. 24 Cal. 62 (1896), distinguished. SHIBU NARAIN PAHARI v. SHANKAR PANIGRAHI ... 408	408
—Joint decree-holders, one of whom is a minor. See LIMITATION ACT , s. 7 ... 767	767	— Mortgage suit—Administration suit—Residuary legatee, mortgage by—Administration, subsequent, of testator's estate—Receiver of testator's estate pending administration—Receiver, sale by, of mortgaged property before completion of administration. Defendant mortgaged certain properties, which he took under the Will of his father to the Plaintiff. Plaintiff brought this suit on the mortgage and obtained a decree and an order for sale by the Registrar. In the meantime a suit for administration of the testator's property had been filed and an order made in that suit appointing a Receiver. Plaintiff now applied that the sale of the mortgaged properties might be held by the Receiver appointed in the administration suit instead of by the Registrar. The administration suit was still pending and administration of the testator's estate had not been completed: Held —That the sale could not be held by the Receiver before the completion of the administration. That till such completion of administration it could not be said that the Defendant was entitled to the mortgaged properties. NETAI CHAND CHUCKERBUTTY v. ANUTOSH CHUCKERBUTTY ... 408	408
MISCONDUCT , professional. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT , ss. 13, 14 ... 45, 48	45, 48	— Mortgage—Transferres from mortgagors—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), sec. 85—
MISJOINDER of Appellants. See APPEAL ... 1	1
MISSTATEMENT in sale by Registrar. See SALE ... 593	593
MISTAKE in calculation. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 244 ... 627	627
MOFUSSEL ACCOUNTS , liability of Receiver for. See RECEIVER ... 223	223
MORTGAGE—Mortgage—Decree on mortgage—Interest up to date of payment—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), secs. 88 and 97—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), Sch. IV, Form No. 109—Construction of decree—Ambiguity. Where there is no ambiguity in a decree the duty of the executing Court is to carry the orders of the decree into effect, as being conclusive between the parties, whether it may or may not be disputable in point of law. It is competent for a Court passing a mortgage decree to give interest beyond the date fixed for payment and up to the date of realization. Having regard to the universality of the long established practice to grant such interest, its continuance for years after the Transfer of Property Act was passed, the manifest justice of it, the lack of any apparent reason for upsetting the practice, the conformity with it of sec. 97 which is pari materia with sec. 88, the presumption that sec. 88 was framed with reference not to the running of interest but to the determination of the time for redemption or sale alternatively, and the form of suit sanctioned by form No. 109 of Schedule IV, Civil Procedure Code, sec. 88 of the Transfer of Property Act should not be so construed as to limit the power of the Court to grant interest only up

MORTGAGE—contd..

Purchase with consent of mortgagee—Parties—Contribution—Frame of suit—Apportionment of debt—Redemption.] The heirs of a mortgagor, against whom a decree on the mortgage had been obtained by the mortgagee, and in execution of which the mortgaged property was sold and a part of which was purchased by the mortgagee himself, and a person who purchased a portion of the mortgaged property with the consent of the mortgagee are not necessary parties in a suit by the mortgagee for contribution or apportionment of the mortgage debt. A suit by the mortgagee framed improperly for a declaration of the rights of the purchasers of portion of the mortgaged property of redemption to the properties purchased by them, who were not made parties in the mortgage suit and for declaration of the mortgagee's absolute right over those properties on the failure of such purchasers to redeem, and for khas possession will not lie. The only relief to which the mortgagee in such a case is entitled to is a decree for apportionment of the mortgage debt on the property purchased by the purchasers account being taken in that apportionment as well of the property transferred by the mortgagor to other parties with the consent of the mortgagee, as of the portion of the mortgaged property purchased by the mortgagee himself. RAMMOY HAZRA v. PREM CHAND NASKAR ... 423

Mortgages, prior and subsequent—Redemption—Right of purchaser at a prior mortgage sale to redeem a purchaser at a subsequent mortgage sale.] Where the Plaintiff purchased certain properties at two mortgage sales, and the Defendant purchased a portion of the same properties at a prior mortgage sale, and the Defendant was not a party to the decrees in execution of which the Plaintiff purchased, and the Plaintiff was not a party to the decree in execution of which the Defendant purchased: Held—That the Plaintiff purchased the mortgagee's rights and the equity of redemption in the remainder of the property which was not covered by the Defendant's decree; and that the Defendant was entitled to redeem the Plaintiff by paying off the proportionate amount of the Plaintiff's mortgages due on the property purchased by him and that if the Defendant failed to pay as aforesaid, the Plaintiff would be entitled to pay off the Defendant by paying into

Page

MORTGAGE—contd..

Court the amount paid by the Defendant for the property. SHRO PERSHAD SINGH v. BABU TILUK SINGH ... 232

On 4th May 1883 certain villages were mortgaged to S. for Rs. 15,000. On 30th June 1883, the same were mortgaged to P. for Rs. 7,000. On the 3rd November 1883 a fresh bond executed in favour of S. for Rs. 20,000 which, by its terms, kept alive the bond of 4th May 1883. S. sued on the bond of November 1883 only and not on the bond of May 1883, and obtained a decree on the bond of November. P. also brought a suit on his bond of June 1883 and obtained a decree. Held—That the mere suing on the bond of November did not amount to a relinquishment by S. of his rights under the bond of 4th May 1883. There was no necessity for S. to sue on the bond of May in order to obtain a sale for the whole of their debt. SHANKAR SARUP v. LATA PHUL CHAND ... 649

Attesting witness—Writer of the deed. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 68 ... 454

Breach of contract—Construction of mortgage decree. See CONSENT DECREE ... 536

by Hindu widow—Right of suit by reversioner. See HINDU LAW 445

by father of a Mitakshara family, whether son necessary party. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 85 640

Conditional sale, if a conveyance is—Extrinsic evidence. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92 ... 351 decree, construction of. See INTEREST ... 653 deed—Explanation to purdanashin. See PURDANASHIN ... 489

raiya, interest of. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 91 ... 83 redemption, suit for—Consequential relief on annulment of sale—Limitation. See SALE ... 10 right of, whether may be set up in defence. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 60 ... 482 right to sue accruing after the death of the mortgagee. See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, s. 4 ... 607 right to set aside sale. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ... 63

sale out and out—Conduct, evidence of, to vary the meaning. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92 ... 326

SIMPLE, whether immovable property. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ... 821 whether a mortgagee is a person whose immovable property has been sold within the meaning of S. 310A. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ... 821

Page

	Page
MORTGAGE—concl'd.
Surplus sale-proceeds—In- terest—Damages. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 73 ...	356
MORTGAGEE , simple or by conditional sale, right of, to set aside a sale un- der sec. 310A. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ...	821
CLOSURE, foreclosure by. See FORE- CLOSURE ...	888
MUTWALI —Amount to be expended in charitable uses at the discretion of. See WAKF ...	177
NEGLIGENCE —Payment of wrong per- son. See HUNDI ...	313
NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENT —Pay- ment to wrong person. See HUNDI ...	313
Sum- mary procedure. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, CH. XXXIX ...	259
Sum- mary procedure—Leave to defend, extension of time to apply for. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, CH. XXXIX ...	259
NOTICE—
(1) ACTION—Notice of action. See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW ...	741
(2) ANNULMENT of incumbency. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 167 ...	310
(3) INSOLVENCY—Posting or service of notice. See INSOLVENCY ...	91
(4) JOINT NOTICE to several persons, if legal. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 167 ...	272
(5) NON-SERVICE OF, effect of. See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, s. 10 ...	86
(6) VACATING POSSESSION. See MESNE PROFITS, SUIT FOR ...	720
OCCUPANCY HOLDING , surrender of. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 86 ...	351
OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE AND DECREE- HOLDER —Priority of claim—Vest- ing order. See INSOLVENCY ACT ...	761
whether repre- sentative of judgment-debtor, Civil Procedure Code, s. 244. See INSOL- VENCY ACT ...	761
ONUS PROBANDI . See BURDEN OF PROOF.
OPINION on the existence of family cus- tom, admissibility of. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 60 ...	33
ORAL EVIDENCE to contradict the recital in a deed. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92 ...	158
ORDER of a Judge of the High Court refusing to stay the issue of probate and discharge of a Receiver. See LETTERS PATENT, CL. 15 ...	781
determining mesne profits, in- terlocutory or final, if appealable. See MESNE PROFITS ...	52 for sale of property, whether a Court can pass under s. 2 of the Partition Act after a preliminary decree for partition has been made. See PARTITION ACT, s. 2 ...	128

	Page
ORDER—cont'd.
of Court—Meaning of words. See LIFE INTEREST ...	569
refusing application for execu- tion and dismissing judgment-debt- or's objection for default in appear- ance, effect of. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179 ...	80
remand. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 562 ...	509
setting aside a sale under s. 310A, effect of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ...	821
ss. 108, 162, Civil Procedure Code—Final order—Interlocutory or- der. See APPEAL ...	153
ORIGIN AND NATURE of tenancy— Presumption of permanent tenancy. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	840, 858
OU DH LAND REVENUE ACT , ss. 161, 166, 172— Oudh Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1876) , secs. 161, 166 and 172—Court of Wards, power of, to alienate Ward's property—Award be- yond the terms of reference— Ultra vires award .] The powers of a Court of Wards are those of a guardian supplemented by certain additional powers given by the statute, and it has no power to make a voluntary alienation of the Ward's real estate in perpetuity. Sec. 172 of Act XVII of 1876 does not justify such an alienation where it is not for the benefit of the Ward's property or to his advantage. An award that goes beyond the terms of reference to the arbitrators is to that extent ultra vires . RAJA MOHAMMED MUMTAZ ALI KHAN v. SAKHAWAT ALI KHAN ...	881
OU DH TALUKDARS' ESTATES ACT , s. 8. See s. 22.
s. 22— Oudh Talukdari Estate—Suc-     cession—Elder son born of younger     wife—Younger son born of first     wife—Oudh Estates Act (I of 1869),     sec. 22, cl. 11—Nature of estate—     Conflict between ambiguous and un-     ambiguous texts of Hindu law—In-     terpretation, rule of—Communis     error facit jus—Oudh Estates Act (I of 1869) , list 2, secs. 8 and 22, Manu , Chap. XI, verses 122 to 125.] An estate taken under cl. 11 of sec. 22 of Act I of 1869 descends as an impartible estate under the provi- sions of Act I of 1869, list 2, secs. 8 and 22. Dewan Ran Bijai Baha- dur Singh v. Rae Jagatpal Singh , L. R. 17 I. A. 173 (1890), followed. The eldest son, though born of a younger wife, is entitled to succeed in preference to the younger son though born of the first wife. The principles, upon which the first-born son has been held to be entitled to succeed, apply equally to a son of a first-married wife and sons of other wives. Ramalakshmi Ammal v. Sivanantha Perumal Sethurayar, 14 Moo. L. A. 570 (1872); and Pedda Ramappa Nayanavaru v. Bangari Seshamma Nayanavaru, L. R. 8 I. A. 1 (1880), referred to and followed. In construing texts of Hindu law where certain verses are inconsistent, and one is reasonably free from ambiguity and the meaning of the others at the best ambiguous and doubtful, the plain language of the one ought not to be overridden or controlled by the obscure utterances of the others. Where it was alleged that the interpolation of the words "but of a lower class" in Manu, Chap. IX, verse 122, was by mistake attributed by Sir William Jones to Kalluka Bhatta whereas it was interpolated by a later and inferior commentator and the interpolation had been accepted by the Indian Courts: Held—That the maxim communis error facit jus is a sound maxim. Manu, Chap. IX, verses 122 and 125 discussed. JAGDISH BAHADUR v. SHEO PERTAB SINGH 602

Page
OUDH TALUKDARS' ESTATES ACT—contd.

PARTIES. See MORTGAGE ... 423

See SALE ... 10

Amendment of plaint. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 53 ... 273

compromise of doubtful rights. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, s. 23, CL. C. ... 886

Mortgage suit—Mortgage by father—Mitakshara family—Whether son necessary party. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 85 ... 640

Receiver—Practice—Receiver—Application for leave to sue a Receiver.] The Receiver is not a necessary party to a suit for possession of immoveable property. KUMAR SUTTYA SUTTYA GHOSAL v. RANI GOLAP MONI DEBI ... 27

PARTITION or exchange. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 118 ... 724 decree for, of portion of family property unconnected with impartible estate whether makes the family a divided one. See HINDU LAW—MAINTENANCE ... 74 suit, preliminary decree. See APPEAL ... 617 right of mother. See HINDU LAW ... 242 of mal raiyati—Regulation III of 1872—Partition of mal raiyati land in Chota Nagpur—Partition of trees and land—Ghatwal.] As between two mal raiyats with whom a settlement has been made under Regulation III of 1872 there may be a partition of the waste and jungle lands, though such partition cannot be binding upon the superior landlord, the ghatwal, and will only sub-

Page
PARTITION—contd.

sist during the currency of the settlement. So far as the trees to which the superior landlord is exclusively entitled, they cannot be the subject of partition, but as to the trees which belong to the mal raiyats there may be a partition. DOMAN PANDEY v. PANCHU KOLE ... 185

ACT IV of 1893, s. 2—Partition Act (IV of 1893), sec. 2—Preliminary decree—Order for sale—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 396.] Where in a suit for partition a Commissioner appointed under sec. 396, C. P. C., to make a partition after the preliminary decree had been passed, submitted a report and the Court on consideration of the report was of opinion that the property could not be conveniently partitioned, and then passed an order for sale of the property under the provisions of sec. 2 of the Partition Act (IV of 1893): Held—That the Court could pass an order under sec. 2 of the Act for sale of the property, and the fact that a preliminary decree had been passed was no bar to his proceeding under that section. HIRAMONI DASSI v. RADHA CHURN KAR ... 128

PARTNERSHIP—Partnership in an undertaking—Abandonment by laches—Refusal to advance money in terms of agreement.] That a mere refusal by a partner in an undertaking to advance further sums for the purposes of the undertaking in terms of the partnership agreement, is not an abandonment by him of the undertaking and does not amount to a dissolution of the partnership. Even assuming that the subject-matter of the partnership was as precarious as a mining speculation, it is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts of each case whether or no there has been abandonment, or loss of interest by laches. Norway v. Rowe, 19 Ves. 144 (1812), referred to. In taking accounts, it is not possible for a Court of Justice to allow expenses to the accountable party, even though honestly incurred for the partnership, where by mixing up his private affairs with those of the partnership, and by his omission to keep clear accounts of any kind, he has made it impossible even to conjecture what those expenses are. MOUNG THA HNYIN v. MAH THIN MYAH ... 114

PASSENGER. carriage of, safely. See RAILWAY COMPANY ... 449

luggage of duty to search. See RAILWAY COMPANY ... 449

PAYMENT to wrong person. See HUND ... 813

	Page
PEDIGREE , admissibility of, to establish or prove relationship. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 32 ...	49
PERMANENT LEASE —Interest. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 179 ...	438
PERMANENT TENANCY —Presumption. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	801, 846, 858
PLAINT , verification on behalf of Corporation. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 485 ...	91
— in a rent suit, whether and when to contain extent and boundaries of lands. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 148, CL. (b) ...	121
PLEA . See PLEADING.
PLEADER —Misconduct. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, ss. 13, 14 ...	45, 48
—, Vakalatnama, acceptance of by, need not be in writing. See VAKALATNAMA ...	816
PLEADING . See ADOPTION ...	20
—, See ADMINISTRATION SUIT ...	162
—, See PURDANASHIN ...	1
—, See SALE ...	10
—, Family arrangement—Contract to transfer. See TRANSFER ...	217
—, Rent suit—Rate of rent—Appeal. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 153 ...	515
POSSESSION —Long possession and instances of transfer and succession. See LANDLORD AND TENANT 801, 846, 858
—, discontinuance of Joint family property—Disability. See LIMITATION ACT, s. 7 ...	545
—, notice to vacate. See MESNE PROFITS ...	720
— of undivided share of zemindari—Meaning of physical possession. See FORECLOSURE ...	888
—, Possession, suit for—Previous suit on the basis of possession without title, dismissal of—Dispossession by Plaintiff in the previous suit—Previous decree, effect of—Title, want of, Plaintiff in subsequent suit.] Defendants brought a suit in 1886 for a declaration of their title and to recover possession of the lands in suit against the Plaintiff. The suit was dismissed, Defendants having failed in that suit to prove their title. Defendants subsequently dispossessed the Plaintiff in 1890; and Plaintiff instituted the present suit in 1896 but could not prove his title: Held —That the effect of the decree in the previous suit was to declare as against the present Defendants, that Plaintiff's possession was lawful, and such being the case and the Defendants being wrong-doers and having no title, the Plaintiff in the present suit, on the basis of the decree in the previous suit and his previous lawful possession, is entitled to recover possession if the lands are the same. Nisa Chand Gaita & ors. v. Konchiram Bagani, 3 O. W. N. 568 (1899); Gobind Chunder Kondoo & ors. v. Taruk Chunder Bose & ors., I. L. R. 3 Cal. 145 (1877); Ismail Ariff v. Mahomed Ghous, I. L. R. 20 Cal. 834; s. c. I. R. 20 I. A. 99 (1893), distinguished. FAYLAR RAHMAN CHOWDHRY v. RAJ CHUNDER SEN ...

POSSESSION—contd.

POWER of arbitrator—Entry by arbitrator after award made. See AWARD 585 — of Governor General to declare principal place of business. See INCOME TAX ACT, s. 47 ...

PRACTICE—

(1) CHANGE OF ATTORNEY by next friend.

See INFANT ...

(2) MOTION OR RULE. See REVOCATION OF PROBATE 377, 683

(3) RECEIVER. See PARTIES ...

—, See RECEIVER ...

(4) SECOND APPEAL—Act X of 1859.

See SECOND APPEAL ...

PRACTICE. See PARTIES ...

—, Practice—Security for costs—Delay in applying for security.]

An application for security for costs already incurred and estimated costs of appeal should be made promptly. Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, L. R. 33 Ch. D. 76. BHOONATH LAHIRI v. RADHAPROSAD LAHIRI ...

—, Practice—Report of Registrar, exceptions to—Exceptions to Report—Vary or discharge a Report, notice of motion to time for giving—

Belchambers' Rules and Orders, Rules 615 (567, 1st Ed.), 617—“Fraud, surprise or mistake or such other special ground,” (meaning of—Appeal.) The mere filing of exceptions to a Report cannot be taken or deemed to be notice under Rule 615 (Belchambers' Rules and Orders). Rule 615 must be strictly followed if it is desired to discharge or vary a Registrar's Report. The words “fraud, mistake or surprise or such other special ground” in Rule 617 (Belchambers' Rules and Orders, 1st Ed.) refer to fraud or mistake or surprise or some other special ground incident to or connected with or which has resulted in the making of the Certificate or Reports itself and not to something which has occurred quite outside or independent of the Certificate or Report. A mistake, though bond fide, in not complying with the procedure laid down in Rule 615 is not a special ground for re-opening the Report under Rule 617. THE ROYAL INSURANCE Co. v. AKHOY COOMAR DUTT ...

	Page
PRECEPTOR'S PRECEPTOR, application by, for letters of administration to the estate of ascetic. See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION ...	873
PRE-EMPTION, right of, reserved in a sale deed. See SALE ...	343
—, suit for, limitation for —period from which runs. See FORECLOSURE ...	888
PRELIMINARY DECREE—Partition suit. See APPEAL ...	617
—, for partition, if a bar to a Court's passing an order under s. 2 of Partition Act. See PARTITION ACT, s. 2 ...	128
PREScription— Right of privacy—Suit to prevent opening of windows—Usage, proof of—Prescription. In a suit for closing the window on the wall of the Defendant and for the issue of a permanent injunction restraining the Defendant from opening any windows in future in that wall, on the ground that the privacy of the Plaintiff had been interfered with, it was proved that it had not been usual for windows to be opened out in any one house in the village so as to overlook the female apartments of another but not that the villagers had been in the habit of preventing their co-villagers from opening windows in such a manner: Held —That the usage as to the right of privacy was not proved. That the fact that the Defendant's wall had been standing there over 50 years and during this period no window had been opened was not sufficient to give the Plaintiff a prescriptive right to prevent the Defendant opening a window in that wall. SRI NARAIN CHOWDHRY v. JADU NATH CHOWDHRY ...	147
PRESUMPTION as to uniform payment of. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 50, CL. 2 ...	60
—, Permanent tenancy. See LANDLORD AND TENANT 801, 846, 858	858
PRINCIPAL PLACE OF BUSINESS, power of Governor General to declare. See INCOME TAX ACT, s. 47	257
PRIORITY OF CLAIM—Decree-holder and official assignee—Effect of vesting. See INSOLVENCY ACT ...	761
—, relinquishment of. See MORTGAGE ...	649
PRIVACY, right of. See PRESCRIPTION	147
PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW— Private international law—Foreign Court—foreign judgment—Suit on a foreign judgment to recover money due for board, lodging and tuition—Contract, breach of, within jurisdiction, if necessary—Jurisdiction of English Court over British subjects residing in British India—Notice of action—Jurisdic-

	Page
PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW— contd. tion of British Indian Court to go into merits of the action in the English Court— Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 2, 13, Expt. 6—Order XI, Rule 1 (e) under the Judicature Act—Residence in England if necessary to fix liability on a foreign judgment—Interest on money decreed, when no provision for such is made in foreign judgment, if recoverable—Order XLII, Rule 16—1 and 2 Vict., c. 110, sec. 17—Indian Interest Act (XXXII of 1839.) As a general rule a Court can exercise jurisdiction over a foreigner only if he is resident within the limits of its territorial jurisdiction. Natives of British India, though foreigners, owe allegiance to the common sovereign of England and British India and are subject to the supreme legislative authority in the British Empire. If therefore the supreme legislature in the British Empire authorises an English Court in any class of cases to exercise jurisdiction over a non-resident foreigner by reason of the cause of action arising within its jurisdiction and that foreigner is a native of British India, he cannot treat the judgment passed as a nullity merely because he did not reside within the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it. Order XI, Rule 1 (e) under the English Judicature Act constitutes a legislative Act of the Sovereign power regulating the jurisdiction in the case of a British subject resident in British India and outside the ordinary territorial jurisdiction of the English Courts and gives the English Courts jurisdiction over such British subjects in a case which falls within the order. But it is open to a Defendant to show that this is not so and that the English Court had in fact no jurisdiction. Gurdial Singh v. Raja of Faridkot, B. R. 21 I. A. 171: s. c. I. L. R. 22 Cal. 222 (1894), followed and explained. In a suit based on a foreign judgment, the Plaintiff cannot recover more than appears on the face of the judgment and when such judgment is silent as to interest, he cannot make the Defendant liable for interest on the amount of the English judgment, the English statutes as to judgments carrying interests ( Order 42, Rule 16, and 1 and 2 Vict., c. 110, sec. 17 ) not applying to India. SYED MOAZIM HOSSEIN KHAN BAHADUR v. RAPHAEL ROBINSON ...	689

PRIVY COUNCIL appeal when fit but certificate defective. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 600 ... 689

	Page
PRIVY COUNCIL—contd.
Certificate of the High Court if sufficient to make an order appealable which does not fulfil the statutory provisions. See APPEAL	153
See APPEAL.
PROBATE , issue of and discharge of receiver. See LETTERS PATENT, CL. 15	781 revocation of—Just cause.
See REVOCATION OF PROBATE	377, 383
PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT , s. 50. See REVOCATION OF PROBATE	377, 383
s. 83. See REVOCATION OF PROBATE	377, 383
s. 87. See REVOCATION OF PROBATE	377, 383
s. 86— Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), secs. 51, 86, 90—Order granting permission to dispose of immoveable property. The word "hereby" in sec. 86 of the Probate and Administration Act means "by the whole Act" and not merely by the chapter in which the section occurs. An order made by a District Judge granting permission to dispose of immoveable property under the Probate and Administration Act is appealable. UMA CHARAN DAS v. MUKTA KESHI DAS	413
s. 90. See s. 86	443
PROCESS FEE —Non-payment of—Execution application. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179	247
PROFESSIONAL MISCONDUCT —Pleader. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, ss. 13, 14	45, 48
PROMISSORY NOTE — Debt—Suit for recovery of—Promissory note, if false or forged, if plaintiff can succeed on proof of loan. Where the Plaintiffs brought a suit for recovery of money on the allegation that the Defendant had taken from the Plaintiffs a loan by executing a note in favour of one of the Plaintiffs: Held —That even if the promissory note be a forgery the Plaintiffs would succeed if they could prove the loan by independent evidence. MOTI LAL SAHA v. MON-MOHAN GOSSAMI	56
PROPERTY of Judges trying a cause consulting another Judge. See JUDGE	729
PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT , sale under— Public Demands Recovery Act (VII, B. C., 1880), sale under—(Act VII of 1888, B. C.), sec. 2—Appeal to Commissioner—Regular suit to set aside sale whether maintainable. Held by the Full Bench ( RAMPINI, J., dissenting )—Sec. 2 of

	Page
PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY—contd.
Act VII (B. C.) of 1868 does not bar a civil suit for setting aside a sale held in enforcement of a certificate issued under the Public Demands Recovery Act VII (B. C.) of 1880 on the ground that the sale was vitiated by a material irregularity leading to substantial injury, the irregularity complained of being that one property was advertised for sale and a different property sold; and an appeal to the Commissioner under sec. 2, Act VII (B. C.) of 1868 is not the only remedy open to the party whose property has been sold. Troyluckho Nath Mozumdar v. Pahar Khan , I. L. R. 23 Cal. 641 (1896); and Sadhu Saran Singh v. Panch Deo Lal , I. L. R. 14 Cal. 1 (1886), overruled. RAM TARACK HAZRA v. DILWAR ALI	521
s. 8. See s. 10	86
s. 10— Public Demands Recovery Act (VII of 1880), secs. 8, 10, 12 and 15 (I of 1895, B. C.)—Sale, setting aside—Notice under sec. 10, non-service, effect of—Limitation. When the notice under sec. 10 of Act VII of 1880 (B. C.) is not served the certificate does not acquire the force of a decree and is not binding upon the judgment-debtor and the sale held in execution of such a certificate is necessarily bad in law and may be set aside by a suit if brought within the statutory period allowed by the Limitation Act. Sec. 15 of Act I of 1895 (B. C.) refers to a suit to have a certificate cancelled or modified, and it has no application to a suit to have a sale held in execution of such a certificate set aside. If a person is entitled under Act VII of 1880 (B. C.) to bring his suit within one year or if otherwise the suit is within time, the mere fact of his presenting an appeal to the Commissioner having rejected his appeal under Act I of 1895 (B. C.) would not deprive him of the full period of limitation, having regard to the provisions of Act VII of 1880 under which the sale was held, he is entitled to. GOPAL DAS n. HARDEO DAS	86
s. 15. See s. 10	86
PUBLIC POLICY —Marriage—Husband contracting out of his rights. See HINDU LAW	673
WAY—Right of suit. See WAY	285
PURCHASE —Benami. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 317	341
money, refund of—when purchaser has no saleable interest. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 315	240

	Page
PURCHASER at an execution sale if bound to enquire into its defect or legality. See SALE ...	10
—, unregistered purchaser, right of suit by to bring action for setting aside sale held in execution of rent decree against registered tenant. See SALE ...	126
PURDANASHIN. See WILL BY MAHOMEDAN ...	505
—, A quasi purdanashin woman, i.e., a woman who, not being of the purdanashin class, is yet close to them in kinship and habits and secluded from ordinary social intercourse, is not entitled to the same amount of protection which the law gives to purdanashins . Outside the latter class it must depend in each case on the character and position of the individual woman whether those who deal with her are or are not bound to take special precautions that her action shall be intelligent and voluntary and to prove that it was so in case of dispute. HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED ...	1
—, Purdanashin lady — Explanation of mortgage deed affecting purdanashin's interest. Case in which it was held on the facts that as there was no explanation of a mortgage deed to a purdanashin lady in so far as it affected her interest, the deed cannot be regarded as having been executed by her with a due understanding of its effects. ANNODA MOHUN ROY CHOWDHURY v. BHUBAN MOHINI DEBI ...	489
RAILWAY COMPANY — Railway Company — Passenger , carriage of, obligation as to— Reasonable care and diligence and safe carriage — Negligence — Explosion in railway carriage — Burden of proof — Passenger's luggage, duty to search — Damages, suit for, against Railway Company — Common carriers — Dangerous goods, carriage of, duty to prevent. There is no obligation upon a Railway Company to carry a passenger safely; they are only bound to carry him with reasonable care and diligence. Collet v. The London and North-Western Railway Company , 16 Q. B. 985 (1851), explained. In a suit for damages for loss of a son who helped his father and whose death was caused by an explosion in a railway carriage, the onus is upon the Plaintiff to prove that the accident was due to a want of reasonable care and diligence on the part of the Railway Company. Where the explosion was caused by certain fireworks taken in some parcels into the carriage by some fellow-passengers, and there was no evidence to show that the parcels exhibited such signs of their

	Page
RAILWAY COMPANY — contd. real nature as ought to have called the attention of the railway servants to them, there was no obligation on the Railway Company to prevent such goods from being carried. Railway Companies are not "common carriers" of passengers and it is not for them to prove beyond doubt that they are not responsible for the accident. Evidence must be given of their want of care and diligence. THE EAST INDIA COMPANY v. KALIDAS MUKERJEE ...	449
RAIYAT , interest of, whether interest or charge. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT ...	83
—, raiyati holding, purchase of, by a landlord in execution of a decree for rent— Annulment of incumbrance. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 167 ...	310
RATIFICATION — Lease, termination of, on death of grantor. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	279
REASONABLE CARE and diligence— Carriage of passenger. See RAILWAY COMPANY ...	449
RECEIVER , if a necessary party to a suit for possession of immoveable property. See PARTIES ...	27
—, discharge of. See ADMINISTRATION SUIT ...	417
—, of testator's estate pending administration. See MORTGAGE ...	408
—, Sale by, of mortgaged property before completion of administration. See MORTGAGE ...	408
—, Receiver's accounts — Exceptions to accounts — Mofussil accounts — Receiver, liability of — Procedure — Practice — Costs — Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 503. A Receiver is responsible for all properties which comes into his custody or management and he is responsible not only for actual sums received by him but for those which might have been received by him but for his wilful neglect and default. Balaji Narayan Patvardhan v. Ram Chandra Gobind , I. L. R. 19 Bom. 660 (1894), referred to. The only question which properly arises on an application by a Receiver to pass his accounts is as to the items of that particular account and involves the inquiry whether all his collections, made on behalf of the property of which he is the Receiver, are duly entered in the accounts and next, whether all his disbursements are payments properly made in respect of that estate. A Receiver's liability is not restricted to matters shewn upon his accounts. If there is any liability attaching to the Receiver other than that which appears on the face of the accounts

RECEIVER—*contd.

the proper course is to sue the Receiver for the purpose of establishing that liability. Questions with regard to the soundness or prudence of the system of management adopted by a Receiver or charges of wilful default or neglect are not matters that can be disposed of in the shape of exceptions to accounts. Even where a prima facie case of the responsibility of the Receiver for malpractices of his servants is made out, an inquiry into such practices is foreign to an application to pass Receiver's accounts. The objection that a Receiver has not included in his accounts collections made in the mofussil, cannot be dealt with upon an application to pass his accounts. If a prima facie ground is made out of the accountability of the Receiver for the mofussil collections, the proper course is to either postpone the passing of the accounts until the question of the Receiver's liability is established by suit or to pass the accounts reserving the right of the parties to establish any claim they may make against the Receiver in a suit properly framed for the purpose. COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL AND ORS. v. RANEE GOLAP-MONKEE DEBER AND ORS. ... 223 —, Receiver, appointment of —[Waste.] The suit relates to a certain mohuntship which became vacant by the death of one J, the former Mohunt, who died on the 8th September 1899. M, who was the Plaintiff and the nephew of the deceased, alleged that he was installed as Mohunt on the 2nd September; S, the Defendant, who was in possession alleged that he was installed as Mohunt on the 12th September by a punchayet. Plaintiff applied for appointment of a Receiver and in support of his allegation as to his installation, he relied upon a considerable number of affidavits of most respectable witnesses. It was admitted that S was installed as Mohunt as alleged. There was great reason to believe that since he took possession of the property he had committed gross waste: Held—In the circumstances that it was a fit case in which a Receiver should be appointed. In an application for the appointment of a Receiver in a suit where the title to certain properties, in the possession of the Defendant, is in dispute, it is not necessary that a strong case should be made out; it is sufficient if a fair prima facie case made out. Sidheswari Debi v. Abhoyeswari Debi. I. L. R. 15 Cal. 818 (1888); Chandidat Jah v. Padmanand Singh, I. L. R.

Page*RECEIVER—*concl.

22 Cal. 459 (1895); Sham Chand Giri v. Bhay Ram Pandey, 5 O. W. N. 365 (1894), referred to. MOHUNT SIARAM DAS v. MOHUNT MOHABIR DAS 362

—, Receiver, appointment of—Title to property—Removal of property. In an application for the appointment of a Receiver it is sufficient if a prima facie title to the property, over which the Receiver is sought to be appointed, is made out. The fact that a large amount of property is removed by the Defendant under circumstances which may fairly give rise to suspicion, during the pendency of a suit in which the question of title to that property is to be determined, is in itself a sufficient ground for the appointment of a Receiver. SHAM CHAND GIRI v. BHAY RAM PANDAY ... 365

RECITAL in a deed, oral evidence to contradict. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92 158

RECOGNITION of tenants title by landlord. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, SEC. III, ART. 3 ... 405

RECORD-of-rights. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 105 ... 798

REDEMPTION. See MORTGAGE 232, 423

— of mortgage, suit for—Consequential on annulment of sale—Limitation. See SALE ... 10

—, right of, of purchaser of portion of the equity of redemption. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 91 ... 83

REFUND by assignee. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 583 ... 426

—, application for—Jurisdiction. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 583 ... 287

— of purchase money when judgment-debtor has no saleable interest. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 315 ... 240

REHEARING of appeal. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 560 ... 816

REGISTERED TRANSFER—Decree on unregistered mortgage—Priority. See REGISTRATION ACT, s. 50 ... 419

REGISTRAR, jurisdiction of, to register a deed. See REGISTRATION ACT, s. 32 177

— report of, exception to. See PRACTICE ... 337

—, sale by—Misstatement. See SALE ... 593

REGISTRATION of deed after death of executant. See REGISTRATION ACT, s. 32 ... 177

— of name, order of, by Civil Court. See LAND REGISTRATION ACT, s. 78 ... 360

— ACT, s. 21. See s. 32 177

—, s. 32—Registration Act (III of 1877), secs. 21, 32, 34 and 87—Registration after death of executant—Registrar, jurisdiction of—Procedure, defect in.] A Registrar has no power or jurisdiction

	Page		Page
REGISTRATION—contd.		RENT—contd.
tion to register—a deed unless he is moved by some person entitled to present it for registration under sec. 32 of Act III of 1877, i.e., by some person having a direct relationship to the deed. The absence of any party legally entitled to present a deed for registration is not merely a defect in procedure falling under sec. 87 of Act III of 1877 but goes to the jurisdiction of the Registrar and renders the deed invalid. Mst. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM ... 177		—, liability for—Partial acceptance or renunciation of inheritance. See INHERITANCE ... 189
—, s. 34. See s. 32	177	—, Eviction by landlord. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ... 353
—, s. 50—Registration Act (III of 1877), sec. 50—Registered transfer—Unregistered mortgage deed—Decree.] When a decree or order is obtained upon an unregistered mortgage deed against the mortgagor alone, subsequent to a registered transfer of the mortgaged property, sec. 50 of the Registration Act gives priority to the registered transferee. When an unregistered mortgage is merged in a decree, a transferee under a registered deed subsequent to the mortgage is precluded from claiming priority under sec. 50 only when the decree can be used as evidence against the registered transferee. ISHAN CHANDRA DEY v. GONESH CHANDRA PARSHI ... 419		—, rate of. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 153 ... 515
—, s. 87. See s. 32	177	— suit—Right of defence. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 60 ... 482
REGULATION III of 1872—Partition of mal raiyati interest. See PARTITION	185	—, issue in—Boundaries—Extent. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 148, cl. (b) ... 121
RELATIONSHIP, evidence as to. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 60	33	— upon lease for purposes other than agricultural or horticultural, whether cognizable under s. 23 of Act X of 1859. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT, s. 23 ... 840
RELIEF, consequential or not prayed for—Limitation. See SALE	10	— under Act X of 1859. See SECOND APPEAL ... 279
— of a nature different from the case made out in the plaint—Pleadings—Reliefs of a nature different from the case made out in the plaint.] No declaration ought to be granted where the case upon which the declaration is sought to be obtained is not only not the case made in the plaint but is one that is wholly inconsistent with it. Eshen Chunder Singh v. Shama Churn Bhutto , 11 M. I. A. 7 (1866), referred to. RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURY v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI ... 20		—, uniform payment of. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 50, CL. 2 ... 60
RELINQUISHMENT of priority—Distribution of sale-proceeds. See MORTGAGE	649	REPORT—Reported decision—Unreported decision—Authority of. See LAW REPORTS ACT, s. 3	226
REMAND order. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 562	509	— of Commissioner. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 394 ... 692
RENT, arrears of—Sale notification. See SALE	497	REPRESENTATION by landlord lending to expectations and to the laying out of money by tenant, effect of. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	634
— decree obtained by co-sharer landlord. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179 ... 763		RESIDENCE in England if necessary to fix liability on a foreign judgment. See PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW	741
—, entry of—Settlement proceeding. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 105 ... 798		—, Husband contracting wife never to leave parental home. See HINDU LAW ... 673
		RESIDUARY legatee, mortgage by. See MORTGAGE	408
		RES JUDICATA. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 13.	*
		—, Settlement proceeding. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 105 ... 798
		RESTITUTION of conjugal rights. See HINDU LAW	595
		— of property. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 583 ... 426
		REVERSIONER. See HINDU LAW	20, 445
		REVIEW, granting of, to bring in necessary parties in suit for redemption, if proper after dismissal. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 91	33
		—, See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 206 ... 192
		REVOCATION OF PROBATE—Probate, and Administration Act (V of 1881), secs. 50 and 87—Revocation of probate—Procedure—Practice—Motion on notice—Rule nisi—Jurisdiction—"High Court," meaning of, in sec. 87.] To revoke a grant of probate on the ground of forgery the proper course is to make an application under sec. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act and not by suit. Komal Lochun Dutt v. Nilratun Munde, I. L. R. 4 Cal. 360 (1878), followed. The "High Court" in sec. 87 of the Probate and Administration Act is not merely confined to

	Page		Page
REVOCAION OF PROBATE—contd.		RIGHT—contd.
the Appellate Jurisdiction of that Court, but includes its Original Jurisdiction, and under that section the High Court exercising its Original Jurisdiction has concurrent jurisdiction with the District Judge for the purpose of exercising all powers provided by the Act. Proceedings of this description should be initiated by motion on notice and not by rule. The procedure by rule nisi should be confined to applications which are urgent and where relief in the shape of an injunction is required. In the goods of MAHENDRA NARAIN ROY ...	377	_____ joint wrong-doers. ...	393
Administration Act (V of 1881), secs. 50 and 83—Revocation of probate—Procedure—Practice—Motion on notice—Suit to set aside probate—Rule nisi—Will, invalidity of—Grant of probate, irregularity in—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), Sch. IV, Part E, Form No. 115.] When it is sought to revoke a grant of probate on the ground of the invalidity of the Will, the proceedings should be initiated by a regular suit, using the form of plaint given in the Civil Procedure Code, Sch. IV, Part E, No. 115, and not by motion on notice. Komol Luchun Dutt v. Nitruttan Mundle , I. L. R. 4 Cal. 360 (1878), distinguished. When it is sought to revoke the grant of probate of a valid Will on the ground of some irregularity in making the grant, the proceedings should be by motion on notice. Proceedings of this description should not be initiated by a rule nisi. In the goods of Mohendra Narain Roy , 5 C. W. N. 377 (1900), referred to. In the goods of HARENDRA KRISHNA MUKERJEE ...	383	See CONTRIBUTION ...
RIGHT of excavators of a canal to the land through which canal is constructed. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	634	_____ by Reversioner. See	445
_____ to sue accruing after the death of the mortgagee. See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, s. 4 ...	607	HINDU LAW ...
_____ OF SUIT by unregistered private purchaser to set aside sale in execution of rent decree against registered tenant. See SALE ...	126	_____ Obstruction of public way. See WAY ...	285
_____ Benami purchase. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 317 ...	341	_____ Joinder of causes of action. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	890
_____ Hundi—Endorsee for realisation. See HUNDI ...	318	_____ See MORTGAGE ...	423
_____ to set aside sale. See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, SALE UNDER ...	521	_____ See POSSESSION ...	234
CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 315 ...	240	_____ See REVOCATION OF PROBATE ...	377, 383
_____ Ijadar of judgment-debtor, whether his legal representative. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 244 ...	654	PROBATE ...	377, 383
		_____ See LIBEL ...	804
		_____ Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 244—Separate suit to set aside decree and sale—Jurisdiction—Fraud—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 44.] A suit to set aside a decree and the sale in execution thereof and to recover the property sold is maintainable, notwithstanding the provisions of sec. 244, C. P. C., and should be brought in the Court in the jurisdiction of which the property is situate, although the decree sought to be set aside was passed by a Court in a different district. It may not be competent to the Court to set aside the decree passed by another Court as fraudulent, but it is competent to the Court to investigate the question as to the character and validity of the decree for the purpose of giving relief to the Plaintiff in respect of the land which he lost by reason of the sale. Mewa Lal Thakoor v. Bhujhun Jha , 22 W. R. 213: s. o. 13 B. L. R. App. 11 (1874), referred to. Abdul Mazundar v. Mohamed Gazi , I. L. R. 21 Cal. 605 (1894); and Pran Nath Roy v. Mohesh Chandra Moitra , I. L. R. 24 Cal. 546 (1897); and Srimati Nistarini Dasi v. Rai Nanda Lal Bose , 3 C. W. N. 670 (1899), followed. KEDAR NATH MUKERJEE v. PRONNA KUMAR CHATTERJEE ...	559
		_____ Suit to set aside ex parte decree and sale thereunder—Fraud—Application to set aside ex parte decree refused—Suit, maintainability of—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13, 108, 244 311.] A suit lies to set aside an ex parte decree and the sale held in execution thereof on the ground of fraud, though an application to set aside the decree under sec. 108, Civ. P. C., had previously been refused. RADHA RAMAN SHAHA v. PRAN NATH ROY ...	757
		ROAD CESS and Public Works Cess Act. See CESS ACT.
		RULES application to the execution of a Will. See WILL OF A MAHOMEDAN	505
		RULE NISI—Motion on notice—Practice. See REVOCATION OF PROBATE	377, 383

	Page
SALE—Auction-sale—Benami purchase. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 317 ...	341
— or mortgage—Extrinsic evidence. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 92 ...	326
— PROCEEDS, distribution of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 295 ...	649
—, mortgage. See TRANS- FER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 73 ...	356
—, setting aside—Right of simple mortgagee to set aside sale. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ...	63
—, See RIGHT OF SUIT ...	757
—, See PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, s. 10 ...	86
SALE UNDER ...	521
— of holding or tenure in execution of decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, applica- tion to set aside. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A ...	821
—, Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 311—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Arts. 12 (a), 118—Execution proceedings against estate of deceased judgment-debtor without notice to legal representa- tive or making him party, irregulari- ty—Sale in such execution if a nullity or only voidable—Sale, set- ting aside of, for irregularity—Pur- chaser at an execution sale, if bound to enquire into its defect or legality —Want of jurisdiction and error of judgment—Suit for redemption of mortgage in which relief is conse- quential on annulment of sale—Limita- tion—Pleadings—Parties—Frame of suit.] Where a decree had been made against the judgment-debtor and after his death application for execution was made against “the estate” of the deceased and against a person as heir, who was in fact not the heir, and without notices to the proper heirs the property was sold: Held —That such a sale can only be set aside in the regular way by proceedings under sec. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure or by a regular suit within a year of the confirmation of the sale as provided under Art. 12 (a), Sch. II of the Limitation Act of 1877. Baswantapa v. Ranu , I. L. R. 9 Bom. 86 (1884), distinguished. The fact that the Court proceeded with the execution upon notice to a person not the legal representative is an error of judg- ment and does not amount to adju- dication without jurisdiction so as to render the sale a nullity. Such sale can only be set aside as above stated. A purchaser at an execution sale, who is a stranger to the suit, is not expected to enquire into its accuracy or to judge of its legality and is justified in believing that the Court has done all that which the law re- quires. At the above-mentioned sale

SALE—contd.

the property of the judgment-debtor was purchased by a previous mortgagee thereof and a suit for redemption and accounts was brought by the real heirs ignoring or treating the sale as a nullity: Held—That they could not succeed in their suit for redemption unless they first brought a suit or renoued the one they had already brought, for setting aside the sale making the original decree-holder a party thereto. A party seeking relief inconsistent with a previous sale must pray to set it aside. One year's limitation prescribed by Art. 12 (a) of the Act of 1877 is not confined only to suits, which seek no relief other than a declaration that a sale ought to be set aside but apply also to suits where other relief is sought which can only be granted on annulment of the sale. The principle in Jagadamba Chowdhuri v. Dakhina Mohun, L. R. 13 I. A. 84 (1886), applies to this case. The doctrine of the Bombay High Court in Bhagwant Gobind v. Kondi, I. L. R. 14 Bom. 279 (1889); that where the necessity for impugning the sale is subservient to a suit for redeeming the mortgage, a different period of limitation is to prevail, is unsupportable. MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMPIA v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA ... 10

—, Landlord and Tenant Act (X of 1859)—Sale, setting aside of, by an unregistered tenant—Maintainability of suit.] A private purchaser of a tenure who has not registered his name in the landlord's sherista (office) and has not been recognized by him, has no locus standi to bring and maintain an action to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against the registered tenant. The non-attachment and non-proof of publication of the sale proclamation is no ground for setting aside a sale under Act X of 1859. PATIL SAHU v. HARI MAHANTI ... 126 —, Execution sale, application to set aside—Fraud—Irregularity—Code of Civil Procedure (XIV of 1882), secs. 244, 294 and 311—Purchase by the decree-holder benami at a price less than that at which the decree-holder was permitted to bid—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 178.] The purchase of a property at an execution sale by the decree-holder, in the name of another person, at a price less than that at which the decree-holder obtained permission to bid for the said property, constitutes fraud which would vitiate the sale. Mahomed Gazee Choudhry v. Ram Lall Sen, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 757 (1894), referred to. Art. 178, Sch. II of the Limitation Act would govern such a case. SRIMATI SARAT KUMARI DEBI v. NIMAI CHARN DEY SIRCAR 265

SALE—contd.

—, Sale—Right of re-purchaser, provided in a conveyance—Pre-emption—Contract running with land.] In a conveyance executed by Plaintiffs in favour of Defendant No. 1's father it was provided that in case he sold the property subsequently he would be bound to give preference to the Plaintiffs, i.e., his vendors, to purchase the same for a certain sum, and on their refusal to accept the offer he would be at liberty to sell the same to others. After his father's death Defendant No. 1 without offering to sell the land to the Plaintiffs, though they were willing to purchase it, sold the same to Defendants Nos. 2, 3 and 4 who had notice of the contract: Held—That the contract was not binding on Defendant No. 1 and therefore the sale to Defendants Nos. 2, 3 and 4 was not liable to be set aside. NOBIN CHANDRA SOOT v. NABAB ALI SARKAR ... 343 —, Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 235, 247, 284, 287—Execution of decree, application for sale of tenure in—Encumbrance, existence of, notification of—Encumbrance—Arrears of rent due in respect of the tenure—Rules made by the High Court—Omission to state existence of arrears of rent, effect of—Costs recoverable by judgment-debtors against decree-holder, inclusion of, in application for execution, effect of—Liability of hypothecated property on release of principal by acts of landlord.] Although there is no express provision in the Code of Civil Procedure casting on the decree-holder the duty of notifying encumbrances on any property sought to be brought to sale, the rules made by the High Court under the provisions of sec. 287 of the Code, cast on him the duty of notifying the existence of arrears of rent due to him in respect of the property he seeks to bring to sale. An arrear of rent due in respect of the property sought to be sold is to be regarded as one of the matters to be notified as being material for the purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property, and the omission of the decree-holder to notify such arrear due to him at the date of the issue of the proclamation for the sale of the property has the effect of destroying the lien he has upon the property. Nursing Narain Singh v.

SALE—contd.

Roghoobur Singh, I. L. R. 10 Cal. 609 (1884); and Kasturi v. Venkatachalupathi, I. L. R. 15 Mad. 412 (1892), referred to and followed. Under sec. 247 of the Code of Civil Procedure all that the decree-holder is entitled to enforce execution of is the difference between the amount found recoverable by him and the amount which the judgment-debtor is entitled to recover against him. When a decree-holder loses his remedy to enforce his decree for arrears of rent by the sale of the property in default by reason of his own negligence, laches and acts, he cannot be allowed to enforce it as against a third party in whose hands the property passes at the sale and to make any property hypothecated for the rents liable for the whole amount due to him when, by the security bond, the hypothecated property is made liable only for so much of the arrears due as may not be realized by the sale of the property in default. SRIMATI GIRIBALA DEBI v. SRIMATI RANI MINA KUMARI ... 497 —, Sale by Registrar—Dwelling-house—Conditions of sale—Title, abstract of, misstatement in—Acceptance of title by purchaser—Payment into Court of balance—Subsequent discovery of misstatement—Sale, rescission of—Compensation.] A purchaser of a dwelling-house at a Registrar's sale accepted the conditions of sale whereby he was required to furnish requisitions and objections, if any, within a fortnight after delivery of the abstract (and in this respect time was of the essence of the contract) and he was not entitled to call for any other documents except those abstracted or for the originals of documents of which the vendor had only copies and was to accept the title as shewn in the abstract of title. By the abstract it was presented to the purchaser that he was purchasing the entire sixteen annas of the house and premises. The purchaser accepted the title as shewn in the abstract and paid the balance of the purchase-money into Court without reserving any right to object to the title. He now applied to be discharged from such purchase and for leave to withdraw the purchase-money from Court, on the ground that he had subsequently discovered that only an eight-twelfth share of the house had been sold to him and that he had been misled in the purchase by misrepresentation contained in the conditions of sale and the abstract of title: Held—That although there was no fraud on the part of the ven-

Page

SALE—concl'd.

dor, he knew or had the means of knowing, that the sixteen-annas share of the property could not be sold, and if the purchaser's allegations are true, the Court would not enforce the contract. Lachlan v. Reynolds, Kay's Rep. 62 (1853); McCulloch v. Gregory, 1 Kay & Johnson 286 (1855); Thomas v. Powell, 2 Cox. 394 (1794); Else v. Else, L. R. 13 Eq. 196 (1872); and In re Banister, Broad v. Munton, Ch. Div. 131 (1879), referred to. That in the case of a purchase of a dwelling-house, it is impossible to compensate a person in respect of such a material misstatement, and the Court must either enforce the contract or rescind the sale. It is different in the case of land occupied for agricultural or such like purposes where there is a deficiency in area. Ordered—That it be referred to the Registrar to enquire and report whether a title can be made to the property by the vendor. Further hearing adjourned until the return of the report. UPENDRA NATH MITTER v. OBHOY KALI DASSI ... 593

SECURITY for costs incurred and costs of appeal, application for. See PRACTICE ... 116

SECOND APPEAL—Inference from facts. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ... 279

... See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 105 ... 798

... See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 206 ... 192

... See APPEAL ...

... See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 244 ... 124

... In a suit for rent under Act X of 1859 a second appeal would lie to the High Court against the judgment of a District Judge passed on an appeal in a suit for a sum below Rs. 5,000. Halloddhar Biswas v. Mohesh Chunder Halder, S. D. A. for 1831, p. 8, followed. Rajah Nilmoni Singh Deo Bahadur v. Tara Nath Mookerjee, L. R. 9 I. A. 174 (1882), referred to. Khedan Mahato v. Budhan Mahato, 4 C. W. N. 333 (1900), distinguished. SADAI NAIK v. SERAI NAIK ... 279

SETTING ASIDE SALE. See SALE.

SETTLEMENT PROCEEDINGS—Res judicata. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 106 ... 421

SHEBAIT, suit by, for recovery of advances made by him—Limitation Act, Sch. II, Art. 120. See HINDU LAW ... 273

SIGNATURE—Forged signature. See HUNDI ... 313

SLANDER—Slander—Defamation—Unchastity, imputation of—Special damage—Common law of England, application of, in Calcutta—Charter of the Supreme Court, 1726.] No

	Page
SLANDER—cont'd.
damages are recoverable for the mental distress caused by an insult. Girish Chandra Mitter v. Jatadhari Sadukhan , 3 C. W. N. 551: s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 653 (1899), followed. Wilkinson v. Downton , L. R. (1892), 2 Q. B. 57; and Lynch v. Knight , 9 H. L. C. 594 (1861), referred to. Defamatory words imputing unchastity to a woman are not actionable within the limits of Calcutta without proof of special damage. The common law of England, as it prevailed in 1726, applies to natives of India within the limits of Calcutta except in so far as it has been modified by the Legislature or where it is shewn to be unsuitable to this country. Advocate-General of Bengal v. Ranee Surnomoye Dossee , 9 Moo. I. A. 387 (1863), referred to. That an action for slander is only maintainable in Calcutta by virtue of the common law of England introduced by the charter of 1726. SM. BHOONI MONEY DASSEE v. NOTOBAR BISWAS ... 659
SOLENAMA , construction of. See CONSENT DECREE ... 536
SON , whether a necessary party in a mortgage suit—Mortgage by father—Mitakshara family. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 85 ... 640 —, eldest, by younger wife. See OUDH TALUKDARS' ESTATES ACT ... 602
SPECIAL DAMAGE —Imputation of unchastity. See SLANDER ... 659
SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE —Construction. See HINDU LAW ... 806
— RELIEF ACT , s. 23, CL. (c) — Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), sec. 23, cl. (c) —Family arrangement—Compromise of doubtful rights—Suit to enforce compromise by a person not party thereto—Person beneficially entitled under the compromise.] A suit to set aside a deed of partition between the members of the same family was compromised. By the deed of compromise it was stipulated that certain of the parties to the compromise should pay to the Plaintiff Rs. 5,000. The Plaintiff was not a party to the suit or compromise: Held —That she being a person beneficially interested under the compromise, was entitled to sue for the recovery of the money, if the compromise was a compromise of doubtful rights. PROTAP NARAIN MUKERJEE v. SARAT KUMARI DEBI ... 386
STAY OF EXECUTION , terms upon which granted. See EXECUTION ... 781
—, pendency of * appeal. See LIMITATION ACT, SCH. II, ART. 179 ... 347
— See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 608 ... 562

	Page		Page
SUBSTITUTION of names by proprietors after discharge of encumbered estate—Appeal. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 372	307	SURRENDER of occupancy holding. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 86	351
SUCCESSION to estate of ascetic or Bairagi, custom as to. See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION	873	TANK, yearly tenant of, whether entitled to compensation. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT, s. 23, CL. (4)	349
ACT, s. 48. See WILL OF A MAHOMEDAN	505	TENANCY, permanent—Presumption. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	801, 846, 858
of will. See HINDU LAW	300	TENDER, calling upon decree-holder to comply with a condition in consent decree, whether amounts to. See CONSENT DECREE	536
Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889), sec. 7—Nature of enquiry—Summary enquiry—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 141.] There must be an enquiry before a certificate is granted under the Succession Certificate Act, but the enquiry is to be a summary one, and when a Judge has legal evidence before him on which he comes to a proper conclusion, his proceedings cannot be set aside because they seem not to have been of a very protracted nature. Such a decision does not in any way bar the rights of the parties nor does it establish the right of the party to the debt to collect which the certificate is granted. Hurri Krishna Panda v. Balabhadra Panda , I. L. R. 23 Cal. 431 (1896); Radha Rani Dassi v. Brindaban Chandra Bosack , I. L. R. 25 Cal. 320 (1897); Sivamma v. Subbamma , I. L. R. 17 Mad. 477 (1894); Dharmaya Sangappa v. Sayana Malapa , I. L. R. 21 Bom. 53 (1895), referred to. MUSS. JIGRI BEGUM v. SYED ALI NAWAB	494	TENURE. See CESS ACT, s. 4	535
Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889), sec. 4—Usufructuary mortgage—Right to sue accruing after the death of the mortgagee.] A executed a usufructuary mortgage in favour of B, under which B was not entitled to sue for the mortgage money so long as the property continued in his possession. After B's death, the heirs of B were deprived of a portion of the security at the instance of a third party who successfully claimed a paramount title to that portion of the property. The heirs of B sued to recover the mortgage debt from the mortgagor personally: Held—That sec. 4 of the Succession Certificate Act had no application to the case and the suit was maintainable without a certificate as the heirs of B were not suing to recover a debt due to the deceased mortgagee. UMESH CHANDRA PRAMANICK v. MATHUR MOHAN HALDAR	607	TITLE, abstract of, misstatement in—Sale by Registrar—Acceptance by purchaser. See SALE	593
SUMMARY PROCEDURE—Negotiable Instruments—Leave to defend, extension of time to apply for. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, CH. XXXIX	259	—, want of—suit for possession—Previous lawful possession. See POSSESSION	234
SURETY—Time given to principal debtor. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 135	1	TORT—Carriage of dangerous goods. See RAILWAY COMPANY	449
		TRANSFER AND SUCCESSION, instances of—Long possession—Presumption of tenancy. See LANDLORD AND TENANT	801, 846, 858
		—, Family arrangement—Contract to transfer—Incomplete transfer—Implement of contract to transfer—Pleadings—Burden of proof.] In 1882 a usufructuary mortgage of the disputed properties was executed by Plaintiff's father, his uncle and his cousin, Thirugnana, the present Defendant. In that mortgage a certain sum was stated to have been borrowed "in order that, after a settlement of the differences existing between the members of the family, the same might be paid as a recompense to . . . Ova'a . . . (the Plaintiff's father), one of us, for his transferring even now the right to" the properties to the Defendant "and his addressing an arzi to the Collector stating the said fact." An arzi was submitted to the Collector in which Ova'a stated that he had transferred the properties to the Defendant. He also made a similar statement to the Tahsildar and there was a mutation of names from Ova'a to Thirugnana. At that time Plaintiff was not born. There was no registered deed of transfer and possession was all along with the mortgagee. Plaintiff brought the present suits to redeem the properties. The Defendant Thirugnana, by his pleadings, claimed that the properties had been transferred to him, but in appeal he contended that the transaction amounted to a contract to transfer and he was entitled to call upon Plaintiff to implement that contract: Held—That though there may have been an intention to transfer the property, it was never so transferred in the mode required by law. That the onus of proving a transfer is upon

TRANSFER—contd.	Page
the party who relies upon it. That the Defendant not having raised the issue in the first Court that there was a valid contract to transfer, he cannot now be allowed to raise it and to ask the Plaintiff to implement that contract. Quare —Whether if the documents in proof contained on their face clear evidence of a valuable consideration passing to Ovala , it was not open to the Defendant to ask for implement of contract on appeal. IMMADIPATTAM THIRUGNANA v. PERIYA DORASAMI ...	217
TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 58.
See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 310A	821
See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 68	454
See s. 85	83
— Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), sec. 73—Mortgage—Surplus sale-proceeds at revenue sales—Suit for enforcement of payment of money under a mortgage deed—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Arts. 120, 132—Interest—Damages. ] Where a property mortgaged to the Plaintiff was sold for arrears of Government revenue and out of the surplus sale-proceeds held in the Collectorate, certain creditors of the mortgagors drew out the amounts of their money-decrees obtained against the mortgagors, and the Plaintiffs sued these creditors for the monies which they had taken out from the Collectorate with interest: Held —That having regard to the provision of sec. 73 of the Transfer of Property Act, a suit, like the present, to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property, is governed by Art. 132 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act. Kamala Kant Sen v. Abdul Bakrul alias Habibullah, I. L. R. 27 Cal. 180 (1899) , referred to. That the Court may, in a proper case, award interest by way of damages. Lala Chhajmal Das v. Brij Bhukan Lall, I. L. R. 22 I. A. 199 (1895) , referred to. That under Art. 120 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act, damages for more than six years previous to the institution of the suit cannot be awarded. JOGESHUR BHAGAT v. GHANSHAM DASS ...	356
See MORTGAGE	423
See s. 91	83
— Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), sec. 85—Parties—Hindu Law—Mitakshara family—Mortgage by father—Suit by mortgagee against

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT—contd.	Page
father alone—Decree whether binding upon son—Son interested in the property. ] In a suit against a Mitakshara father on a mortgage of ancestral property executed by him alone, the son is a necessary party where the mortgagee has notice of his interest. The language of sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act is compulsory and all persons having an interest in the property mortgaged or, in other words, in the equity of redemption ought to be made parties to a suit on the mortgage. In a suit by a Mitakshara son for a declaration that a mortgage decree obtained against the father alone is not binding on him on the ground (1) that he was not made a party to that suit and (2) that the debt was for immoral and illegal purposes, where it is found that the debt was not contracted for immoral and illegal purposes, the only remedy the son is entitled to is right to redeem. LALA SUBRAJ PROSAD v. GOLAB CHAND ....	640
See MORTGAGE	137
— Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), secs. 60, 85, 91, cl. (a)—Redemption, right of, of purchaser of portion of the equity of redemption—“An interest or charge upon property,” in sub-sec. (a), sec. 91, meaning of—Raiyati interest, if sufficient to entitle one to redeem—Review, granting of, to bring in necessary parties in a suit for redemption if proper after dismissal of suit. ] That the words “any person having any interest in or charge upon the property,” in sub-sec. (a) of sec. 91 of the Transfer of Property Act, means any person having an interest in or charge upon the property which is affected by the mortgage and a raiyati interest is not such an interest. That the Plaintiff as a purchaser of a portion of the equity of redemption was not entitled, against the will of the mortgagee, to redeem the whole; he should be restricted to the redemption of that portion only. Nawab Azmutali Khan v. Jovahir Sing, 13 M. I. A. 415 , followed. That having regard to the provisions of sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act as to necessary parties, the review granted after dismissal of suit to bring in the heir of one of the mortgagees as a party Defendant was not improper. GIRISH CHUNDER DEY v. JURAMONI DE ...	83
See MORTGAGE	137

	Page		Page
TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT—concl'd.		WAY—Public way, obstruction of—
—Where Plaintiff and Defendants Nos. 4 to 6 were joint owners of a certain property and Plaintiff alone was owner of another property and by an oral arrangement Plaintiff got the former property in its entirety :	s. 118	Right of suit—Damages peculiar to Plaintiff—Special damage.] An action for obstructing a public way is not maintainable if no damage peculiar to the Plaintiff is proved. Mere inconvenience or a remote danger will not make such an action maintainable. Winterbottom v. Lord Derby, L. R. 2 Ex. 316 (1867), followed. MAHOMED ALAM v. DILBAR KHAN ...	285
• Held —That the transaction was an exchange under sec. 118 of the Transfer of Property Act and not a partition and was invalid in not being in writing and registered. Gyan-nessa v. Mobarakannessa , I. L. R. 25 Cal. 210 (1897), distinguished. RAJNARAIN v. KHOBDARI RAI ...	724	WAZIB-UL-URZ, value of, as evidence. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 60 ...	39
UNBORN at the time of the execution of grant. See HINDU LAW ...	806	—, Pedigree. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 32 ...	49
UNCHASTITY, imputation of. See SLANDER ...	659	WIDOW, alienation by. See HINDU LAW	445
UNDO influence. See WILL OF A MAHOMEDAN ...	505	—, Daughter-in-law. See HINDU LAW—MAINTENANCE ...	549
USAGE, proof of—Right of privacy. See PRESCRIPTION ...	147	WIFE—Husband contracting that wife never to leave parental home. See HINDU LAW ...	673
USUFRUCTUARY mortgage. See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT, s. 4 ...	607	—, junior, eldest son by and younger son by senior wife. See HINDU LAW ...	602
VAKALATNAMA—Per Banerjee, J. —The appointment of a pleader must be in writing and filed in Court, but his acceptance of the vakalatnama need not be in writing. SHAMA PRASAD GHOSE v. TAKI MULLIK ...	816	WILL, bequest by husband—Power of alienation by Hindu widow. See HINDU LAW ...	300
VERIFICATION IN PLAINT on behalf of Company. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 435 ...	91	—, construction of. See ADMINISTRATION SUIT ...	162
—, defective, effect of on appeal. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 435 ...	91	—, invalidity of—Grant of probate. See REVOCATION OF PROBATE ...	377, 389
VESTING OF A BEQUEST, words necessary for. See WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF ...	729	—, Meaning of words “always and for ever.” See LIFE INTEREST ...	569
VESTING ORDER—Priority of claim—Decree-holder and official assignee. See INSOLVENCY ACT ...	761	—, execution of, proof of. See BURDEN OF PROOF ...	895
VYAVASTHA DARPAN, Ch. V, s. 1, para. 144. See LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION ...	873	—, Will, construction of—Bengali Will—Terms of art—Words of direct and simple gift—Vesting of a bequest, words necessary for— Parjyapta haibek, meaning and effect of—Appointment of guardian with direction to make over gift on legatee attaining majority, effect of—Judges trying a cause consulting another Judge, propriety of—Ex parte hearing—Rehearing, application by Respondent for re-hearing.] In construing Bengali Wills it must be remembered that there is no line of precedents attaching to Bengali terms meanings which make them understood as terms of art by Bengali lawyers. The only safe course is to give to the words their plain and ordinary meaning. There are no particular words necessary to the vesting of a bequest or a legacy. The words “Parjyapta haibek” whether it means “descent to” or “devolve or go” or “shall become vested” has the effect of vesting the legacy at once. Where there is a bequest in favour of a person simply it confers a vested interest and the appointment of an executor and
WAKF. •Wakf-namah •Wakf, validity of—Mutawali, amount to be expended in charitable uses at the discretion of the—Endowment, family—[Charitable uses, gift to.] To be a valid deed of wakf, a deed must have the effect of granting the property in substance to charitable uses. Where its effect is to give the property in substance to the family or leaves the amount to be expended in charitable uses in the absolute and uncontrollable discretion of the mutawali and no one has a right to demand an account, the deed is not a valid deed of wakf: Held—On a consideration of the terms of the deed in question that it did not constitute a valid trust. MST. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM ...	177

	Page		Page
WILL — contd.		WILL — consold.
guardian to that person while he is a minor, with a direction to make over the property to him on his attaining majority does not postpone the vesting of bequest. JOSEPHINE ROSE HARRIS v. EDWARD BROWN ...	729	to what constitutes undue influence in this country, a useful guide is afforded by sec. 43 of the Indian Succession Act. It is true that that section does not apply to the Wills of Mahomedans, but for all that it is a useful guide as to what does or does not constitute undue influence. In the goods of MULKA MUKHADARAH OSMAH NAWAB PADSHA • MEHAL SAHEBA (known as KHAS MEHAL) v. THE ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF BENGAL ...	505
—, Will of a Mohomedan—Rules applicable to the execution thereof—Undue influence—Indian Succession Act (X of 1865), sec. 48—Will of a purdanashin lady—Onus probandi. ] When dealing with the case of a Will or a deed executed by a purdanashin lady, a particular and peculiar onus rests upon those who come forward to support the document to show that the executant thoroughly understood what she was doing, and was thoroughly and fully acquainted with the terms of the document she was executing. The presumptions as to the knowledge of the executant of the contents of the document she is executing do not equally apply in the case of a purdanashin lady as in the case of other persons. As		WINDOW, suit to prevent opening of. See PRESCRIPTION ...	147
		WORDS. See CONSTRUCTION.
		—, gift. See WILL ...	729
		WRITER OF A DEED—Attesting witness. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 68 ...	454
		WRITTEN STATEMENT—Denial of landlord's title in. See LANDLORD AND TENANT ...	263
		WRONG-DOER, joint—Contribution. See CONTRIBUTION ...	393

TABLE OF CRIMINAL CASES. (Vol. V).

PRIVY COUNCIL.

	Page
Subramania Iyer v. The King-Emperor (5 C. W. N. cclix, ccxix)	... 866

ORIGINAL CRIMINAL.

Empress v. Dolegobind Dass (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 211)	... 169
---	---------

CRIMINAL REVISIONAL.

[FULL BENCH.]

Dwarka Nath Mondul v. Beni Madhub Banerjee (5 C. W. N. cvi ; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 682)	... 457
--	---------

CRIMINAL APPEAL.

	Page		Page
Abala Das v. The Empress (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 571)	... 708	Kedar Nath Chatterjee v. The King-Emperor (5 C. W. N. cciv)	... 897
Broja Rakhai Mozumdar v. The Empress	... 880	Nazim v. The King-Emperor (5 C. W. N. ccxxxix)	... 670
Ghatg Pramanik v. The King-Emperor	... 865

CRIMINAL REFERENCE.

Gridhari Naik v. Empress	... 727	Queen-Empress v. Surendra Nath Sarkar (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 397)	... 574
Lalji Grope v. Giridhari Chaudhury	... 106
Sundar Dosadh v. Sital Mahto (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 217)	... 291

CRIMINAL REVISIONAL.

Abdul Sikdar v. Mathu Singh	... 447	Gya Singh v. Mohamed Soliman	... 864
Adhar Midday v. The Empress	... 891	Hara Kumari Chowdhurani v. Savi (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 314)	... 174
Akhoy Kumar Chatterjee v. The Queen-Empress	... 249	Isab Mondal v. The Queen-Empress (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 348)	... 65
Amrit Singh v. The King-Emperor	... 503	Ishan Chandra Chakravarti v. Prosanna Kumar Rai	... 178
Anesh Mollah v. Ejahar Uddi Mollah (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 446)	... 428	Iswar Chunder Chowdhury v. Ambica Churn Mazumdar	... 544
Ayen Mahmad Akand v. The King-Emperor	... 488	Jagat Chandra Sarma v. Lal Chand Das	... 332
Baij Nath Ram Marwari v. Burgess	... 255	Jaliram Alon Ganburah v. Rajkumar Umar Singh	... 72
Basanta Baistabi v. The Emperor (5 C. W. N. ccv)	... 566	Jogeshwar Ghose v. The King-Emperor	... 411
Beni Singh v. Umrao Mahto	... 900	Kailash Chunder Pal v. Joyuddin	... 252
Bhagirathi Naik v. Gangadhar Mohanti	... 82	Kali Nath Gupta v. Gobinda Chandra Basu	... 293
Biku Koer v. W. J. Marshman	... 869	Kamala Prasad v. The Empress (5 C. W. N. lxxxix ; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 339)	... 517
Bisambhur Singh v. The Queen-Empress	... 108	Kazi Zeauddin Ahmed v. The King-Emperor (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 504)	... 771
Chinibash Pal, in the matter of	... 167	Kefatulla v. Ferusuddin Miah	... 71
Debendra Chandra Chowdhury v. Mohini Mohan Chowdhury	... 482	Kitabdi v. The Queen-Empress (I. L. R. 27 Cal. 993)	... 29
Debi Singh v. Queen-Empress (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 399)	... 413	Krista Chandra Bhadra v. The King-Emperor	... 630
Denomoni Chowdhurani v. Mazafar Ali Khan	... 105	Lalit Chandra Neogi v. Tarini Perasad Gupta	... 335
Deo Shahai Lal v. The Queen-Empress (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 253)	... 289	Lolit Mohan Maitra v. Surya Kanta Acharya (5 C. W. N. cciv)	... 749
Durga Das Rakshit v. Umesh Chandra Sen	... 181	Mohim Chunder Masumdar v. The King-Emperor	... 615
Fairweather v. Suresh Chunder Dutt	... 361	Nasib Ali Mozumdar v. Rakhmini Mohan Benda	415
Goberghone Pramanick v. Iswar Chunder Pramanick	... 44
Gopi Nath Mahto v. Mansaram Koomar	... 376
Govind Prasad Panday v. The Empress (4 C. W. N. ccxix ; I. L. R. 28 Cal. 63)	... 819

CRIMINAL REVISIONAL—continued.

	Page		Page
Nikunja Behari Roy v. The Queen-Empress ...	294	Rash Mohan Pal v. Mohim Chandra Chakravarty ...	215
Nitya Nanda Patra v Hira Lal Karmakar ...	68	Reily v. The King-Emperor (5 C. W. N. clxxxviii; I. L. R. 28 Cal 484) ...	609
Nowrangi Singh v. The Queen-Empress (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 411) ...	184	Sahiram Agarwalla, In the matter of ...	254
Otaruddi Manjhi v. Kafiluddi Manjhi ...	372	Sardar Ali v. Abdul Karim ...	710
Pasupati Nath Bose v. Nando Lal Bose ...	67	Sewnandan Rai Kayab v. The Vice-Chairman of the Darjeeling Municipality ...	42
Priya Nath Bose v. Roy Basanta Kumar Singh ...	218	Sheikh Reasut v. Courteney (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 428) ...	211
Prokash Chunder Sarkar v. Ramprosad Pattuck (I. L. R. 28 Cal. 802) ...	291	Sheobaran Ojha v. Nunmonia Doshad (5 C. W. N. xxxviii) ...	370
Queen-Empress v. Pooran Agarwalla ...	28	Sims v. Johurry Lal ...	568
Radha Kristo Barat v. Gokula Nut (5 C. W. N. lxiii) ...	210	Srihari Shome v. Lal Khan ...	250
Rahimuddi v. Asgarali ...	31	Suchandi Kolitani v. Dom Kolita ...	214
Rajani Kanto Pal v. The Emperor... ..	843	Surja Narain Singh, In the matter of ...	110
Raj Mohan Roy Chowdhury v. Prosunno Chandra Chatterji ...	686	Tarak Nath Nundy v. Govinda Chandra Mitra... ..	248
Rameswar Marwari v. Biswa Nath Banerjee ...	374	Tekait Kunj Behari Narain Deo v. Bhiko Singh ...	329
Rameswar Singh v. Jogi Sahoo ...	296	Umesh Chandra Chakravarti, In the matter of ...	680

CASES REFERRED TO.

A.	Page	H.	Page
Abdur Rahman v. The Empress, 4 C. W. N. 667; s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 839 (1900), disapproved ...	866	Hari Das Sanyal v. Sariatullah, I. L. R. 15 Cal. 608 (1888), referred to ...	462
Ahmed Hossein, unreported, Cr. Rev. 33 of 1899, decided 12th June 1899, referred to ...	753	Hari Singh v. Danesh Mahomed, 20 W. R. Cr. Rulings 46 (1878), referred to ...	170, 462
Amar Singh, In the matter of, I. L. R. 16 All. 9 (1898), referred to ...	754	I.
Anesh Mollah v. Ejahar Uddi Mollah, 5 C. W. N. 428; s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 892 (1901), referred to ...	751	Imperatrix v. Pitambar Jina, I. L. R. 2 Bom. 61 (1877), referred to ...	871
Angoda Ram Shaha v. Nemai Chand Shaha, I. R. 23 Cal. 867 (1896), followed ...	293	Ishan Chundra Kolla v. Dina Nath Bhadak, 4 C. W. N. 307 (1899), followed ...	251
B.		Iswar Chunder Chowdhry v. Ambica Churn Mazumdar, 5 C. W. N. 544 (1901), relied upon ...	710
Basanta Kumar Ghattak v. Queen-Empress, I. L. R. 26 Cal. 49 (1898), referred to ...	670	J.
Bycuntram Shaha Roy, In re , 10 B. L. R. 434 (1872), followed ...	329	Janoki Nath Roy v. The Queen-Empress, 3 C. W. N. 329 (1899), followed ...	901
C.		Jhoja Singh v. Queen-Empress, J. L. R. 23 Cal. 498 (1896), referred to ...	752
Charoobala Dabee v. Empress, 3 C. W. N. 601 (1899), referred to ...	468	K.
Chunder Cumar Sen v. Empress, 3 C. W. N. 605 (1899), referred to and distinguished ...	184	Karim Buksh v. Queen-Empress, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 574 (1888), followed ...	727
Colville v. Kisto Kishore Bose, 3 C. W. N. 598 (1899), referred to ...	459	Katras Jherriah Coal Company v. Sib Krishta Daw, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 297 (1894), explained and distinguished ...	710
D.		Kistoram Mohora v. Anis, 20 W. R. 47 (1878), referred to ...	462
Damini Dassi v. Hurry Mohun Mukerjee, 4 C. W. N. 46 (1898), referred to ...	472	Komal Chandra Pal, In the matter of, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 286 (1897), referred to ...	469
Dhunum Kazee, In re , I. L. R. 9 Cal. 53 (1882), referred to ...	898	Laldhari Singh v. Sukhdeo Narain Singh, 4 C. W. N. 613; s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 892 (1900), referred to and followed ...	429, 901
Dijabur Dutt, In the matter of, I. L. R. 4 Cal. 647 (1879), referred to ...	462	Lalit Mohan Sarkar v. Queen-Empress, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 813 (1894), referred to ...	898
Doulat Koer v. Ramessuri Koeri, I. L. R. 26 Cal. 625 (1899), followed ...	563	Luhminarain, Re , I. L. R. 14 Cal. 128 (1886), cited ...	871
Dupeyron v. Driver, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 495 (1896), followed ...	750	M.
Empress v. Ashgar Ali, I. L. R. 2 All. 260 (1879), cited ...	870	Macleod v. Attorney-General for New South Wales, L. R. (1891), A. C. 455, referred to ...	871
Empress v. Donnelly, I. L. R. 2 Cal. 405 (1877), referred to ...	170, 461	McNaghten, In re , 10 Cl. and F. 200 (1843), referred to ...	665
Empress v. Durga Charsin, I. L. R. 7 All. 672 (1885), cited ...	460	Makin v. Attorney-General for New South Wales, L. R. (1894), A. C. 57, cited ...	870
Empress v. Fox, I. L. R. 10 Bom. 176 (1885), cited ...	460	Man Gobind Muchi, In re , 3 C. W. N. 627 (1899), cited ...	186
Empress v. Naba Kumar Patnaik, 1 C. W. N. 146 (1897), referred to ...	755	Mohesh Mistree, In re , I. L. R. 1 Cal. 282 (1876), referred to ...	470
Empress v. Nobodip Chunder Shaha, I. L. R. 14 Cal. 395 (1887), referred to ...	871	Mouli Durzi v. Naurangi Lal, 4 C. W. N. 35 (1900), distinguished ...	106
Empress v. Puran, I. L. R. 9 All. 85 (1886), referred to ...	170	Mukti Bewa v. Jhotu Santra, I. L. R. 24 Cal. 53 (1896), referred to ...	728
Empress v. Ram Lal Singh, I. L. R. 6 All. 40 (1883), cited ...	459	Munni Bukah, In the matter of, 3 C. W. N. 81 (1898), referred to ...	411
G.
Gunga Churn Singh v. Queen-Empress, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 337 (1894), distinguished ...	289
Gibbons, In re , I. L. R. 14 Cal. 42 (1886), cited ...	460
Girish Chunder Roy v. Dwarka Nath Agarwalla, 1 C. W. N. 870 (1897), dissented from and referred to ...	169, 471

	Page		Page
N.		Queen-Empress v. Mutasaddi, I. L. R. 21 All.
Narayan Govind v. Visaji, I. L. R. 23 Bom. 494		107 (1898), referred to ...	752
(1898), referred to and explained ...	374	Queen-Empress v. Nobodip Chunder Shaha, I.
Nathji Muleshwar v. Lalbhai Ravidat, I. L. R.		L. R. 14 Cal. 895 (1887), cited ...	871
14 Bom. 97 (1889), dissented from ...	293	Queen-Empress v. O'Hara, I. L. R. 17 Cal. 642
Nemy Chand Kundu v. Nibaran Chunder		(1890), referred to ...	872
Dheria, 4 C. W. N. cliv (1900), referred to ...	459	Queen-Empress v. Payag Singh, I. L. R. 12 All.
Nil Ratan Sen v. Jogesh Chunder Bhattacharjee,		550 (1890), referred to and followed and
I C. W. N. 57: s. c. I. L. R. 23 All. 983		dissented from ...	771, 772
(1896), distinguished and referred to ...	169, 469	Queen-Empress v. Sham Lall, I. L. R. 14
Nobin Chunder Mudduck, Re , 22 W. R. 46		Cal. 707 (1887), followed ...	254
(1874), referred to ...	175	Queen-Empress v. Sheo Doyal, I. L. R. 7 All.
Nakheda Singh v. Ripu Mardan Singh, 4 C. W.		459 (1885), dissented from ...	898
N. 239 (1898), referred to and followed ...	488
O.		R.
Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Probod Kumary Dassai,		Radha Nath Chowdhury, In the matter of , 7
1 C. W. N. 49 (1898), followed and ap-		C. L. R. 289 (1880), referred to and ex-
proved of ...	169, 457	plained ...	772
P.		Rakhal Dass Singh v. Sheo Pershad Singh,
Pandrang Govind Pujari, In re , I. L. R. 25 Bom.		24 W. R. Cr. 73 (1875), referred to ...	710
179 (1900), referred to ...	750	Ram Chandra Boral v. Jityandria, 2 C. W. N.
Pasupati Nath Bose v. Nando Lal Bose, 5 C.		805: s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 484 (1897),
W. N. 67 (1900), followed ...	386	followed ...	251
Protab Naryan Singh v. Rajendro Narayan Singh,		Ram Coomarr v. Ramjee, 4 C. W. N. 26 (1898),
1 C. W. N. 3: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 55		referred to ...	458
(1896), followed ...	901	Ramjeevan v. Durga Charan, I. L. R. 21 Cal.
Q.		979 (1894), followed ...	370
Queen v. Adam Khan, I. L. R. 22 All. 106		Ratnessari Pershad Narayan Singh v. Empress,
(1899), referred to ...	469	2 C. W. N. 498 (1898), referred to ...	110
Queen v. Chunna Pavichi, I. L. R. 23 Mad. 151		Reg. v. Devama, I. L. R. 1 Bom. 64 (1875),
(1899), cited ...	870	referred to ...	462
Queen v. Hurnath Roy, 3 W. R. Cr. R. 54		Reg. v. Hanmanta, I. L. R. 1 Bom. 610 (1877),
(1865), referred to and explained ...	772	cited ...	870
Queen v. Huribole Chunder Ghose, I. L. R. 1		Reg. v. Navroji Dadabhai, 9 Bom. H. C. R. 358
Cal. 207 (1876), referred to ...	871	(1872), referred to ...	871
Queen v. Nomal, 12 W. R. Cr. 69 (1869),		Regina v. Mellor, Bears and B. C. C. 468; 7
referred to ...	630	Cox. C. C. 454; 27 L. J. M. C. 121 (1858),
Queen v. Poran, I. L. R. 9 All. 85 (1886),		referred to ...	871
referred to ...	471	Russick Lal Mullick, In the matter of, 7 C. L.
Queen v. Surroop Chunder Paul, 12 W. R. Cr.		R. 382 (1880), referred to ...	728
R. 75 (1869), referred to and explained ...	772
Queen-Empress v. Abbas Ali, 1 C. W. N. 255:		S.
s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 512 (1897), referred to	898	Satish Chandra Panday v. Rajendra Nath
Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chunder Chakur-		Bagohi, I. L. R. 22 Cal. 898 (1895), refer-
butty, 2 C. W. N. 65: s. c. I. L. R. 25		red to ...	752
Cal. 727 (1897), followed ...	750	Sheikh Kutab Ali v. Empress, 3 C. W. N. 490
Queen-Empress v. Dalip, I. L. R. 18 All. 246		(1899), followed ...	254
(1896), referred to ...	184	Sheikh Reasut v. J. Courteney, 5 C. W. N. 211
Queen-Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass, 5 C. W.		(1900), referred to ...	210
N. 169 (1900), approved of ...	457	Smurthwaite v. Hannay, L. R. (1894), A. C.
Queen-Empress v. Fakirapa, I. L. R. 15 Bom.		494, referred to ...	866
491 (1890), cited ...	871
Queen-Empress v. Kader Nayer Shah, I. L. R.		T.
23 Cal. 604 (1896), referred to ...	665	Tarakant Das v. Queen-Empress, 4 C. W. N.
Queen-Empress v. Krishnabhat, I. L. R. 10		691 (1901), referred to and explained ...	772
Bom. 819 (1885), referred to ...	574
Queen-Empress v. Mona Puna, I. L. R. 16 Bom.		V.
661 (1892), referred to ...	752	Virankutti v. Chiyama, I. L. R. 7 Mad. 557
		(1884), referred to ...	170
		W.
		Wafadar Khan v. Queen-Empress, I. L. R. 21
		Cal. 956 (1894), referred to ...	871

INDEX OF CRIMINAL CASES.

(Vol. V)

	Page
Abetment. See PENAL CODE, s. 114	... 250
Accomplice —Confession. See CONFESSION ... 670
—, Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 114, ill. (b), 133—Admissibility of the evidence of accomplice—Corroboration when and in what way necessary—Principles underlying the law of corroboration—Primary and secondary accomplices, distinction between—Amount of corroboration necessary in each case—Conviction based upon testimony of secondary accomplice when not in expectation of reward or punishment.] Although a conviction is not illegal, merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, the evidence of an accomplice, ordinarily speaking, should be corroborated in material particulars, and such evidence should be accepted with a great deal of caution and scrutiny. The amount of criminality is a matter for consideration, and when a person is only an accomplice by implication or in a secondary sense, his evidence does not require the same amount of corroboration as that of a person who is an actual perpetrator with the principal offender. In dealing with the question what amount of corroboration is required in the case of testimony given by an accomplice, the Court must exercise careful discrimination and look at all the surrounding circumstances in order to arrive at a conclusion, whether the facts deposed to by the person alleged to be an accomplice are borne out by those circumstances or whether the circumstances are of such a nature that the evidence purporting to be given by the alleged accomplice should be supported in essential and material particulars by evidence aliunde as to the facts deposed to by that accomplice. KAMALA PRASAD v. THE EMPRESS ...	... 517
Accused , examination of, by Magistrate preliminary to trial by way of cross-examination. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 164, 342 ...	... 864
—, setting aside conviction of, by High Court when accused does not prefer appeal. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 439 ...	... 330
Acts XLV of 1860. See PENAL CODE.
— V of 1861. See POLICE ACT.
— I of 1871. See CATTLE TRESPASS ACT.
— I of 1872. See EVIDENCE ACT.
— X of 1872. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.

	Page
Acts III of 1877. See REGISTRATION ACT.
— XVIII of 1879. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT.
— X of 1892. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
— I of 1894. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT.
— XI of 1896. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT.
— VIII of 1897. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT.
— V of 1898. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
Acts of the Bengal Council —
— II (B. C.) of 1867. See GAMBLING ACT
— III (B. C.) of 1882. See BENGAL EMBANKMENT ACT.
— III (B. C.) of 1884. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT.
— 24 and 25 Vict., c. 104. See CHARTER ACT.
Adjudication of theft case , if necessary before order for disposal of property taken as stolen property. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 523 ...	... 415
Admissibility of confession of one accused against another on a different charge. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 284 ...	... 294
— against a co-accused—Retracted confession. See CONFESSION ...	... 670
— evidence—General repute. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 110, CL. (f) ...	... 249
— See ACCOMPLICE ...
— PLICE ...	... 517
Appeal , in disposing of, of persons appealing, setting aside of conviction of accused not appealing. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 439 ...	... 330
—, summary disposal of, of one accused, legality of, on admission of appeal of co-accused. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 421 ...	... 333
Appellate Court , power of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 423 ...	... 432
—, to order new trial. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 232, 423 ...	... 819
— or Revisional Court, power of, to cancel illegality in trial by jury and to amend or uphold verdict. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 234, 537 ...	... 864

	Page
Arrest for cognizable offence —Escape from lawful custody. See PENAL CODE, s. 224...	289
— lawful , what is not. See PENAL CODE, ss. 353, 225B ...	848
— made by police-officer on refusal to accompany him to receive authority of appointment as special constable, if legal. See PENAL CODE, ss. 147, 149, 353 ...	184
— of person in execution of Civil Court decree, resistance to. See PENAL CODE, s. 225B...	848
— , resistance to , made on refusal to accompany police-officer to receive authority of appointment as special constable. See PENAL CODE, ss. 147, 149, 353 ...	184
— , Validity of warrant —Endorsement. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 79 ...	447
Assaulting a public officer in execution of duties. See PENAL CODE, s. 353 ...	848
Attachment of property in execution of invalid warrant. See WARRANT, VALIDITY OF	391
Bail , cancellation of and remand to custody on application for time to move for transfer. See BIAS—TRANSFER ...	110
— , order for , before commitment. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ...	615
Bengal Embankment Act — Bengal Embankment Act (II, B. C. of 1892) , sec. 3, "Public embankment," meaning of—"Made or erected"—Sand bank formed naturally between two spurs erected by Government officers, cutting through or destroying—Statute, affecting liberty of subject, construction of.] A bank made or erected is something directly caused by some act of construction and not something which may or may not result from the forces of nature. A bank of sand which has artificially formed, by the action of the water between two spurs erected by Government for the protection of an embankment is not an embankment within the definition of that expression, nor is it a public embankment. The cutting through of such a sand bank for the protection of one's own cultivation by preventing an accumulation of water is not an offence under sec. 77 of the Bengal Embankment Act. In construing a statute which affects the liberty of the subject, the Courts should not only adopt the natural and ordinary construction, but should construe strictly expressions occurring therein. BISSUMBHUR SINGH v. THE QUEEN-EMPERESS ...	108
— , s. 77. See s. 8..	108
Bengal Municipal Act (III, B. C. of 1884) , s. 258. See s. 273 (1) ...	42
— , s. 263 — Keeper of hackney carriage—Licensee. Where it was found that a person had 7 or

	Page
Bengal Municipal Act — contd. 8 ponies and 4 cows and some sheep and let out one carriage and a pair of ponies on a monthly hire and kept the same in her stable, and also kept other ponies for sale and supplied milk to others out of her cows: Held —That the facts found do not render her liable within the terms of sec. 273 of the Bengal Municipal Act. FAIRWEATHER v. SURESH CHUNDER DUTT ...	381
— , s. 273. See s. 263 ...	381
— , s. 273 (1) — Sanction to build when not given within specified period—Right to build without sanction—Period of sanction, computation of—Adoption of suggestion of Municipality, if waiver of right. A person who submitted for the sanction of the municipal commissioners plans and specifications of a building and the commissioners omitted to pass orders within six weeks cannot be convicted under sec. 273 (1) of the Bengal Municipal Act for commencing to build according to his own plan after such period. That he made certain alterations after such period at the suggestion of the Municipality does not make him forfeit his right under sec. 238 of the Act to build on his own plan. The period in such cases is to be computed from the date when complete plans and specifications are submitted in such a form as makes it possible of its being considered by the municipal commissioners. SEWANDAN RAI KAYAB v. THE VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE DARJEELING MUNICIPALITY ...	42
Bias on the part of Magistrate. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ...	110
— , reasonable apprehension of , in the Magistrate trying a case. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145...	749
Bond for enforcement of payment, production of, to deceive Court. See PENAL CODE, ss. 24, 25, 467, 471 ...	897
Breach of peace. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 106 ...	250
— , apprehension and prevention of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ...	428
Build , sanction to, when not given within specified period—Period of sanction—Computation. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 273 (1) ...	42
Burden of proof. See ONUS OF PROOF, AND PENAL CODE, s. 211 ...	106
— , See ONUS OF PROOF, AND PENAL CODE, s. 143 ...	368
Cattle , illegal seizure of. See CATTLE TRESPASS ACT, s. 22 ...	32

	Page
Cattle Trespass Act—Cattle Trespass Act ( I of 1871 ), sec. 22— Illegal seizure of cattle — Fine on conviction, legality of—Imprisonment in default, if proper—Compensation. A Magistrate is not competent under sec. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act to pass a sentence of fine. He can only award compensation for an illegal seizure of cattle. An order of imprisonment in default of payment of such fine is also illegal. BHAGIRATHI NAIK v. GANGADUR MAHANTI 32	32
Certificate Officer , whether a Court of Justice—Public Demands Recovery Act. See PENAL CODE, s. 208 ...	291
Charges , joinder of multitude of, whether legal. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 234, 537 ...	866
Charter Act (24 and 25 Vict., c. 104). See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ...	749
Co-accused , confession of—Corroboration. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 234 ...	294
—, Confession. See CONFESSION ...	670
Cognizable offence , arrest for—Escape from lawful custody. See PENAL CODE, s. 224... 289	289
—, false charge to Police of. See PENAL CODE, s. 211 ...	727
Cognizance of offence against persons accused but not sent up for trial. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 190 ...	468
Coins and covies —Instruments of gambling. See GAMBLING ACT, s. 6 ...	533
Commitment in the absence of accused , whether illegal. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 ...	110
—, quashing of, when may be made. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 ...	411
—, powers of High Court, to quash. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 ...	411
Common gaming house . See GAMBLING ACT, s. 6 ...	503
—, object, when disbelieved, finding by Appellate Court of different one. See PENAL CODE, s. 147 ...	81
Compensation . See CATTLE TRESPASS ACT, s. 22 ...	32
—, for vexatious accusation. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 250 ...	214
—, imprisonment in default of payment of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 250 ...	213, 214
Complaint , meaning of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 4 (h) ...	106, 370
—, disclosing facts constituting offence of a graver nature—Process, issue of, for minor offence. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 530 ...	252
—, false, police report declaring. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 195 ...	254
—, originally made not believed— Conviction for a different offence—Prejudice. Where the original complaint was with regard to an offence, which the Magistrate disbelieved at a later stage of the case and drew fresh charges of wrongful confinement and assault and convicted the accused on those charges, notwithstanding their protest that they had not been given an opportunity of properly defending themselves, and the Sessions Judge on appeal disbelieved the case both as originally made as also the one made out by the Magistrate and yet convicted the accused on a charge of assault: Held—That this was not a proper way of dealing with the case and the accused ought not to have been convicted of an offence which did not form the subject-matter of complaint, specially when all the other matters relating to the event were found to be false or not proved. RAMESWAR SINGH v. JOGI SAHOO ... 296

Complaint—contd.

Computation of period—Sanction to build when not given within specified period. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 273 (1) ... 42

Confession of co-accused pleading guilty—Corroboration. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 234 ... 294

—, Retracted confession, if and when admissible—Admissibility of confession of one person against a co-accused—Corroboration, amount of, necessary—Previous conviction, how proved—Examination of accused to prove such conviction, if proper—Prejudice—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 91—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 310, 342 and 511. A retracted confession should carry practically no weight as against a person other than the maker; and the very fullest corroboration would be necessary in such a case, far more than would be demanded for the sworn testimony of an accomplice on oath. A conviction on an uncorroborated and retracted confession of an accomplice is improper and bad. The accusation made by an accomplice in a confession may be considered against a co-accused if that statement is put in evidence against him, but its evidential value would be of the slightest. Previous convictions should, regard being had to the provisions of sec. 91 of the Evidence Act and sec. 511 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be proved by copies of judgments or extracts from judgments or by any other documentary evidence of the fact of such previous convictions; and an examination of the accused in respect of those convictions is, having regard to sec. 842, Criminal Procedure Code, without legal warrant or justification. Bisanta Kumar Ghattak v. Queen-Empress, I. L. R. 26 Cal. 49, referred to. A Sessions Judge is, however, justified, under sec. 310, Criminal Procedure Code, in passing sentence on the accused on an admission by him of previous convictions, and such sentence should not be interfered with unless such irregularity in the enquiry as to previous convictions has prejudiced the accused. NAZIM v. THE KING-EMPEROR 670

	Page
Constable, information given by. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 250	370
Construction of statute, when affecting liberty of subject. See BENGAL EMBANKMENT ACT, s. 77	108
Words:—Meaning of. "Any other reasonable cause," See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, s. 14	48
"Any such offence." See PENAL CODE, s. 224	289
"Case," "Criminal case." See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526	749
"Criminal force." See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 522	250
"Keeper of hackney carriage," "milkman." See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 268	381
"May commit." See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477	609
"Order him to be committed for trial." See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 436	574
"Physical comfort." See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 138	566
"Subject-matter of dispute." See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	710
"Such thing shall be done, &c." See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 147	67
Contempt of Court, if non-attendance in person in obedience of summons to attend Court amounts to. See PENAL CODE, ss. 174, 177	181
—, if motion to superior Court against proceedings of trying Magistrate amounts to. See PENAL CODE, ss. 174, 177	181
Continuous offence—Receiving illegal gratification partly on one day and partly on another. See PENAL CODE, s. 161	382
Contradictory statements in cross-examination. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215, and PENAL CODE, s. 198	411
Conviction based upon testimony of secondary accomplice when not in expectation of reward or punishment. See ACCOMPLICE	517
— on a charge not called upon to meet. See PENAL CODE, s. 447	567
—, previous 'proof of. See CONFESSION	670
Corroboration. See CONFESSION	670
Costs, assessment of, without notice to party affected by the order. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 148	291
Court of Justice, certificate officer whether a. See PENAL CODE, s. 206	291
— Wards, servants of, prosecution of, by proprietor of estate on assuming management—Criminal breach of trust See PENAL CODE, s. 406	248
Criminal force, meaning of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 522	250
— Procedure Code (Act X of 1872), s. 532. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, (Act V of 1898), s. 147	67

	Page
Oriminal Procedure Code— contd. (Act X of 1882),
s. 147. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (Act V of 1898), s. 147	67 (Act V of 1898),
s. 2. See s. 195	254
s. 195	106
s. 250	370
s. 75. See PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353	413
s. 79—Warrant, validity of—Endorsement by initials if sufficient—Arrest made in execution of such warrant—Resistance or obstruction to arrest—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 224, 353.] An endorsement in a warrant of arrest should be made properly in accordance with law. When an endorsement is made only by initials which are proved or identified to be of the proper person, the warrant does not become invalid by reason merely of the endorsement being by initials. ABDUL SIKDAN v. MATRU SINGH	447
s. 103—Binding down to keep the peace, order for.] Sec. 166 of the Code of Criminal Procedure may apply to a case in which armed men are assembled with the intention of committing a breach of the peace but no breach of the peace occurs because the assembly does not go so far. See PENAL CODE, ss. 144, 114. SRIHARI SHOME v. LAL KHAN	250
s. 109—Security for good behaviour—"Ostensible means of subsistence," proof of—"Doing no work," if sufficient—"Previous conviction" how far relevant—Procedure.] The fact that a man does no work or that he was once before convicted for bad livelihood does not justify a Magistrate, without being satisfied from evidence that since his release the accused has no ostensible means of livelihood, to order him to furnish security for good behaviour. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS v. ROORAN AGARWALLA	28
s. 110—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to require security for good behaviour—Residence outside such jurisdiction.] A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to require security for good behaviour under sec. 110, Cr. P. Code, from persons who do not reside within his local jurisdiction but who, it was alleged, habitually committed theft, robbery and house-breaking within such limits. It is only when a person residing within such limits is of such bad repute that a Magistrate is competent to take action under that section. KITABDI v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS	29
s. 110, cl. (f)—Repute, evidence of, admissibility of.] Evidence of repute is not admissible in cases coming under cl. (f) of sec. 110 of the

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Code of Criminal Procedure. Where the imputations were that the Petitioners had from some time past made themselves very objectionable in the neighbourhood and that they had been annoying the villagers in various ways, by kicking at their doors at night or throwing brickbats on the roof and annoying respectable women: Held—That these imputations, even if proved do not constitute conduct so as to render the Petitioners liable to give security for good behaviour by reason of their being so desperate and dangerous as to render their being at large without security hazardous to the community. AUKHOY KUMAR CHATTERJEE v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS ... 249

Ses s 110, CL. (f) ... s. 117, cl. (3). ... 249

S. 133—Nuisance, removal of—Proceeding, previous, dropping of, effect of—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to take fresh proceedings regarding the same matter.] There is no bar in law to the revival of a proceeding under sec. 133, Cr. P. Code, with regard to the same matter which had been previously dropped, provided there are materials before the Magistrate upon which prima facie he could act. The question whether the matter with regard to which proceeding has been instituted does or does not properly come within the purview of sec. 133, Cr. P. Code, must be raised and decided at the trial. ISHAN CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTI v. PRASANNA KUMAR RAI ... 173

S. 133—Public nuisance—Prostitutes, trade and occupation of—Removal of house from road side, order for—"Physical comfort" of the public—Jury, opinion of.] The mere existence of houses of prostitutes by the road side and the fact that they ply their trade in those houses cannot affect the physical "comfort" of the passers-by. In a proceeding under sec. 133, Cr. P. Code, certain prostitutes were called upon to remove their trade and occupation from the slopes and neighbourhood of a road; they appeared and in shewing cause claimed a jury which was appointed; the jury were of divided opinion and the majority suggested that they should be directed to mend their habits but did not recommend the removal of their houses and the Magistrate made his conditional order of removal of their houses absolute: Held—That the order of the Magistrate based upon the report of the jury, was neither reasonable nor legal, and must be set aside. BASANTA BAISTABI v. THE EMPEROR ... 566

S. 139. See s. 133 ... 566

S. 144. See Penal Code, s. 188 ... 329

S. 145. See s. 147 ... 67

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

S. 145. See Session, Summary Finding of ... 71

S. 145—Dispute as to possession of lands—Joint possession—Attachment of land and crops—Jurisdiction.] Where two rival zemindars claimed to hold certain alluvial lands and where it was admitted that they were joint proprietors of Mouza G, but the question also in dispute was whether those lands belonged to Mouza G or to Mouza N, one of the parties claiming that if they belonged to N, he had absolute rights in it, and the Magistrate in a proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, passed an order under sec. 146, Cr. P. Code, attaching the lands and also the crops grown upon the lands by the tenants of one of the contending parties: Held—That the lands not being in the joint possession of the contending parties the Magistrate had jurisdiction in taking action under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code: Held also—That there being no dispute between the tenants inter se, the order of the Magistrate as to the attachment of the crops on the land, which belonged to the tenants who grew them, was a bad order for want of jurisdiction and must be set aside. DEWOMONI CHOWDHURI v. MOZAFAR ALI KHAN ... 105

S. 145—Jurisdiction of High Court—Parties, non-joinder of necessary—Object of the law—Breach of the peace, apprehension and prevention of—Magistrate, jurisdiction of.] Under sec. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure a special jurisdiction is vested in the subordinate Criminal Courts under special circumstances and for a special purpose; when either the special circumstances do not exist or when the order made under the section does not attain the purpose for which the jurisdiction is created, then the special jurisdiction vested under the section falls to the ground. The circumstances which give jurisdiction to a Magistrate are circumstances which give rise to an apprehension of a breach of the peace and if there is no apprehension of a breach of the peace, there is no jurisdiction to make an order under the section. In enacting sec. 145, the purpose the legislature had in view was the prevention of a breach of the peace and if that object is not attained by an order purporting to be made under the section, it must be taken to have been without jurisdiction. Non-joinder of persons concerned in a dispute whose presence is necessary for the purpose of preventing an apprehended breach of the peace involves a question of jurisdiction, and the High Court has power to set aside an order made in a proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, in which such persons are not made parties. Laldhari Singh v. Sukhdeo Narain Singh, 4 C. W. N. 613; s. c. 1 L. R. 27 Cal. 892 referred to and followed. ANESH MOLLAH v. EJAHAH UDDI MOLLAH ... 428

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

... s. 145—Proceeding in respect of several plots of lands—Separate proceedings, if necessary—Prejudice.] Where a Magistrate drew up one proceeding in respect of several plots of lands claimed to be in the possession of different persons and the parties were not prejudiced by the Magistrate not taking separate proceedings but dealing with the matter in one and the same proceeding; and where the course taken by the Magistrate did not preclude any of the parties from adducing evidence in the case concerning the different plots of land: Held—That the procedure taken by the Magistrate did not vitiate the enquiry and the order made therein. ISWAR CHUNDER CHOWDHURY v. AMBICA CHURN MAZUMDAR 544

... s. 145—Dispute as to land—Specification of land, if and when necessary—Civil Court decree for possession—Decree, effect of—Magistrate, duty of—Procedure.] Although in a proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, the disputed land should be thoroughly ascertained by both parties, yet where the parties were not at issue upon the question as to what the disputed lands were and neither the Court nor any body concerned in the dispute was under any misapprehension as to that point, there is no ground for holding that the Magistrate who tried the case had no jurisdiction to make an order under the section for want of proper specification of the lands in dispute. The duty of a Criminal Court in a case under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, where there is a decree of a Civil Court for possession in respect of the disputed land, is to find which party held such Civil Court decree, and then to maintain that party in possession; it is not necessary that such decree should be a decree for possession as between the parties to the proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. Daulat Koer v. Ramessuri Koeri, I. L. R. 26 Cal. 625, followed. S. GORDON SIMS v. JOHURRY LAL ... 568

... s. 145—Transfer of case under sec. 145 by District Magistrate to another Magistrate to try it himself or make it over to another—Valid or invalid transfer—Jurisdiction, local—Prejudice—Local inquiry by trying Magistrate.] In a proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, the second party moved the District Magistrate for the transfer of the case to his own file, and the Magistrate transferred it accordingly to the file of the senior Deputy Magistrate at Sudder with instruction to "try it himself or make it over to another Magistrate at Sudder" and the senior Deputy Magistrate made over the case to a Subordinate Magistrate, who tried the case and made an order after holding a local enquiry himself: Held —That the fact that the subject-matter of the dispute was not within the local jurisdiction of the Subordinate Magistrate who tried the case would not oust his jurisdiction or render him incompetent to try the case, provided that he was vested with the powers of a proper class; and that the order made by him would not, on that account, be bad. Sec. 530 (j) refers to a case where a Magistrate is not competent, by virtue of the position he holds or powers vested in him, to try a case of the character referred to in sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. Sec. 148, Cr. P. Code, does not necessarily imply that the Magistrate before whom the case is, may not himself hold the local enquiry as is provided for in the section. Any mistake made erroneously and in good faith by one Magistrate in transferring a case under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, to another under sec. 192, is cured by the provisions of sec. 529 (f). RAJ MOHAN ROY CHOWDHURY v. PROSUNNO CHANDRA CHATTERJEE ... 686

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

... s. 145—"Subject-matter of dispute," meaning of—Whether refers to whole subject-matter or to component parts—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to make an order under sec. 145 in regard to some and an order under sec. 146 in regard to the remaining plots—Separate and distinct subject-matter—Divisibility of subject-matter—One proceeding in regard to several plots—Irregularity—Prejudice.] The expression "subject-matter of dispute" used in secs. 145 and 146 of the Code of Criminal Procedure refers to the whole or to any component part or parts thereof. If that component part is distinct and separable from the rest, it cannot rightly be held that because a Magistrate cannot find possession of one of the component parts of the subject-matter in dispute with either party, he is bound to attach the whole, although that component part is distinct and separable from the rest. If the subject-matter in dispute is indivisible and must be dealt with as a whole, it must be dealt with in such a way as to make, in regard to it, one order either under sec. 145 or sec. 146 of the Code, as the circumstances may require. Katras Jherriah Coal Company v. Shib Krista Daw & Co., I. L. R. 22 Cal. 297, explained and distinguished Rukhal Das Singh and another v. Sheo Pershad Singh, 24 W. R. Cr. 73, referred to. (Per TAYLOR, J.)—That in this case each separate plot may be regarded as a separate subject-matter of dispute and in that case, each separate plot might form a separate, independent proceeding; and the joint trial in one proceeding of several such matters of dispute would at most amount to an irregularity, which in the absence of prejudice shewn, would not vitiate the enquiry. Iswar Chunder Chowdhury v. Ambica Churn Majumdar, 5 C. W. N. 544, relied upon. SADAR ALI v. ABDUL KASIM 710

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Page

526 ... .. s. 145. See s. ... 749

... s. 145—Dispute as to possession of land—Parties, adding of—Previous proceeding—New proceeding with new parties added, whether can be treated as continuation of previous proceeding—Jurisdiction—Procedure.] In a proceeding under sec. 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code it is the duty of the Magistrate to find out in the first instance which parties are concerned in the dispute that has arisen, and to serve his order upon such parties and when the matter comes before him for trial, he should determine which of such parties, namely, the parties as mentioned in the first paragraph of sec. 145 of the Code is in actual possession. A Magistrate is entitled to allow a third party to come in in the course of the proceeding only for the purpose of shewing that no dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace really existed or exists. Query—Whether such third party should be made a party to the proceeding. A Magistrate has not the power, after recording the proceeding, as he is required to do under the first paragraph of the section, to add, in the course of the investigation, any new party as concerned in the dispute. Protab Narayan Singh v. Rajendra Narayan Singh, 1 C. W. N. 3 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 55 ; Janoki Nath Roy v. The Queen-Empress, 3 C. W. N. 329 ; Laldhari Singh v. Sukhdeo Narain Singh, 4 C. W. N. 613 : s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 892, followed. A Magistrate cannot treat a subsequent proceeding as a continuation of an earlier one and he cannot refer back to the possession held by one or other of the parties upon the date of the earlier proceeding in determining which of them should be declared to be in possession on the date of the subsequent proceeding. BENI SINGH v. UMRAO MAHTO... 900

145 ... .. s. 146. See s. ... 105, 710

... s. 147—Construction and meaning of the section—Comparison of the language used in sec. 147 (Act V of 1898), sec. 147 (Act X of 1882) and sec. 532 (Act X of 1872)—Previous law bearing on the subject—Meaning of the terms "such thing shall be done, &c."—Form of the order—Order whether affects persons not parties to the proceedings—Magistrate, power of, to order removal of obstruction to the enjoyment of right of easement—Parties, adding of, in proceeding under sec. 147, Cr. P. C., legality of.] Where it was found that the first party had a right to the flow of water for purposes of irrigation from a certain channel passing through the village of the second party who obstructed such flow by erecting certain bunds: Held—That under sec. 147 of the Criminal Procedure Code

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Page

the Magistrate is competent to direct that the obstruction be removed. A Magistrate is not competent to add parties to a proceeding under sec. 147, Cr. P. C., any more than he is in proceedings under sec. 145 of the Code. That the order of the Deputy Magistrate so far as it purports to affect the persons not parties to the proceedings under sec. 147 is null and void, but that does not render the whole order bad and so far as persons who are parties to the proceedings are concerned it is binding on them. That the finding of the Deputy Magistrate "that the first party have proved an uninterrupted user of water of the channel for twenty years which have they enjoyed as an easement and as of right and that the erection of the bunds led to the dispute" is a sufficient finding that the right in dispute had been exercised within either of the periods mentioned in the proviso to sec. 147, Cr. P. C. PASUPATI NATH BOSE v. NANDO LAL BOSE ... 67

... s. 147—Ease-ment, right of, obstruction to—Right of way, likelihood of breach of the peace concerning—Exercise of right within statutory period—"Such thing shall be done, &c.," meaning of—Order, form of.] Where one party has a right of way over the land of another who obstructs such right by erecting certain huts and there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace in consequence of such obstruction: Held—That a Magistrate is competent, under the provisions of sec. 147, Cr. P. Code, to direct that the obstruction be removed. Pasupati Nath Bose and anr. v. Nando Lal Bose and anr., 5 C. W. N. 67, followed. LALIT CHANDRA NEOGI v. TARINI PERSEAD GUPTA 335

... s. 148—Costs, assessment of, without notice to party affected by the order—Jurisdiction—Revision.] A Magistrate is not competent to make an order for payment of costs and to assess the same in the absence of and without notice to a party who is, by that order, made liable for the same. PROKASH CHUNDER SARKAR v. RAMPROSAD PATTUCK ... 291

145 ... .. s. 148. See s. ... 686

... s. 162. See PENAL CODE, s. 193 ... 65

... s. 164. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ... 864

... s. 190—Cognizance of offence against persons accused but not sent up for trial—Refusal by trying Magistrate to issue processes against such accused persons—Transfer by District Magistrate of case—Warrants, issue of, against accused not sent up—Pending case—Jurisdiction.] Where several persons were accused of rioting, and only one of the accused was sent up by the Police and convicted of the offence, and the trying

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Magistrate, on application made for summoning the others, refused to summon them, and the District Magistrate transferred the case to his own file and directed the issue of warrants against the accused persons originally charged but not sent up for trial. Held—That the order of the trying Magistrate refusing to summon the other accused persons did not finally dispose of the case so as to remove it from his file altogether; and the District Magistrate had ample jurisdiction to transfer the case to his own file under sec. 528 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Nukheda Singh v. Ripu Mardan Singh, 4 C. W. N. 239, referred to and followed. That even if the case be treated as not pending in the Court of the trying Magistrate at the date of his order refusing to summon the other accused persons, the District Magistrate had jurisdiction to take cognizance of the case as against the other accused persons under sec. 190 of the Code. AYEN MAHMAD AKAND v. THE KING-EMPEROR ... 488

Sec s. 145 ... s. 192, sub-sec. 2. 686

... s. 195. See PENAL CODE, s. 211 ... 106

... s. 195—Sanction to prosecute for bringing a false complaint—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 211—Police-report declaring complaint false—Application for enquiry into the complaint—Complaint—Judicial determination.] An application for an enquiry into their complaint, made by persons in shewing cause why they should not be prosecuted for bringing a complaint declared by the Police to be false is in effect in the nature of a complaint, and a sanction for prosecution for bringing a false complaint cannot be given until and unless that complaint is judicially determined. "Judicial determination" of a complaint does not necessarily mean the trial of the persons against whom the complaint is made but the final determination of the matter of the complaint by the officer holding the enquiry, upon evidence produced before him. Queen-Empress v. Sham Lal, I. L. R. 15 Cal. 707, Sheikh Kutab Ali v. Empress, 3 C. W. N. 490, followed. SAHIRAM AGARWALLA AND JIBUN KAMAR ... 254

... s. 195. See s. 477 ... 609, 615

... s. 203. See s. 195 ... 254

... s. 205. See PENAL CODE, ss. 174, 177 ... 181

... s. 208. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 216 ... 110

... s. 209. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 436 ... 574

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 215—Commitment in the absence of accused, whether legal—Witness, examination of, in the absence of accused, if proper—Cross-examination of prosecution witnesses—Postponement, application for, refusal of—Transfer—Credible information of order of stay of proceedings by High Court, procedure on receipt of—Bias—Cancellation of bail and remand to custody on application for time to move for transfer.] It is illegal to make a commitment in the absence of the accused. A Magistrate acts injudiciously in proceeding with a case after he has been credibly informed by a telegram from one of the accused to his Mukhtear that a Rule for the transfer of the case from his file and for stay of further proceedings had been granted by the High Court. Ratnessari Pershad Narayan Singh & anr. v. Empress, 2 C. W. N. 498, referred to. It is illegal to examine an additional witness in the absence of the accused; and a Magistrate, by refusing an application for postponement of a case, further proceedings in which have been stayed by an order of the High Court, to enable the accused to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution with a view to obtain before commitment, a cancellation of the charges framed against him, and that the Magistrate might receive the orders of the High Court, and by taking such precipitate action in the matter shows his bias against the accused. It is desirable to transfer a case from the file of a Magistrate who on an application made by the accused under sec. 526, cl. (8), for stay of proceedings pending an application to the High Court for transfer, immediately cancelled their bail and committed them to custody. IN THE MATTER OF SURJYA NARAIN SINGH ... 110

... s. 215—Commitment, quashing of, when may be made—Points of law—Statements made by witnesses—Absence of evidence to go to a jury—Contradictory statements in cross-examination—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 193—False evidence in a judicial Proceeding—High Court, powers of, to quash commitment.] Absence of evidence to warrant a commitment is a point of law and may furnish a good ground for the quashing of a commitment. Under the present Code of Criminal Procedure a Court of Session does not possess the power to withdraw a case from the jury on any ground whatsoever. Where the case is such that the Sessions Judge would, if he possessed the power of withdrawing the case from the jury, exercise that power, the High Court will exercise its powers of revision. JOGESHWAR GHOSH v. THE KING-EMPEROR ... 411

... s. 232—Under sec. 232 of the Criminal Procedure Code the Appellate Court has power to order a new trial of a case in making an order on appeal. Govind Prasad Panday v. The Empress. See PENAL CODE, ss. 499, 500 ... 819

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

234 ... s. 233. See s. 294, 866

234—Joinder of separate and distinct charges—Offences unconnected with one another—Confession of co-accused pleading guilty—Corroboration—Irregularity—Admissibility of confession of one accused against another on a different charge—Prejudice.] A was charged with three separate acts of criminal breach of trust as a public servant, under sec. 409, I. P. Code, and B was charged with abetting these particular acts of criminal breach of trust by A and also upon an alternative charge under secs. 411 and 380, I. P. Code, in respect of a document found in his house and entirely unconnected with the acts in respect of which A was charged; both were tried together and A was convicted and sentenced on his plea of guilt and a confession made by A implicating B was used against B; B was convicted and sentenced separately for abetment of the criminal breach of trust by A as also on the alternative charge under secs. 411 and 380, I. P. Code: Held—That in the absence of any corroboration of the confession of A relating to the specific acts of criminal breach of trust, B cannot be convicted of abetment of those acts by A. That the finding of the document in the house of B cannot by itself form any such corroboration. That the joint trial of B for the abetment of criminal breach of trust and for offences under secs. 411 and 380, I. P. Code, which were quite unconnected with the acts of criminal breach of trust, was improper and B was prejudiced by such joint-trial by reason of the confession of A having been used and treated as a substantial part of the evidence against him in support of the second charge. NIKUNJA BEHARY ROY v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS ... 294

234—Joinder of a multitude of charges—Irregularity—Illegality—Trial, illegality in the mode of, if curable—Power of Appellate or Revisional Court to cancel illegality and to appropriate verdict of jury only to what is legal—Functions of Judge and jury.] Disobedience to the express provision of the law as to the mode of a trial cannot be regarded as a mere irregularity and as such is not curable under sec. 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The joinder, at one trial, of more charges than three for offences of the same kind and extending over a period longer than a year, contravenes sec. 234 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and is an illegality not curable under sec. 537. When the course pursued at the trial was illegal, a Court of Appeal or Revision cannot amend it by arranging afterwards what might or might not have been properly submitted to the jury and thereupon support the conviction or appropriate the finding of guilty to so much of it as was legal. Meaning of the word irregularity discussed. Smurthwaite v. Hannay, L. R. (1894), A. C. 494, referred to Abdur Rahman v. The Empress, 4 C. W. N. 657: s. C. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 489, disapproved. N. A. SUBRAMANIA v. THE KING-EMPEROR ... 866

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 234... s. 235. See ... 294

s. 250—Compensation for vexatious accusation—Imprisonment in default of payment of compensation—Simultaneous order.] It is only after an attempt has been made to realize the compensation awarded that a Magistrate is competent to pass an order of imprisonment for default. A simultaneous order of imprisonment in default of payment of compensation is illegal. PRIYA NATH BOSE v. ROY BASANTA KUMAR SINGH ... 213

s. 250—Compensation for frivolous and vexatious accusation, objection against failure to record and consider—Simultaneous order of imprisonment in default of compensation.] A Magistrate ought to record and consider any objection made and urged by the complainant against the making of an order for compensation for bringing a frivolous and vexatious accusation, and a failure to do so makes the order bad in law. An order of imprisonment in default of payment of compensation cannot, under the terms of sec. 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be made unless and until it is found that the payment of the compensation cannot be enforced by legal process. SUCHANDI KOLATINI v. DOM KOLITA ... 214

s. 250—Compensation for frivolous and vexatious accusation—Information given by a Police constable, whether comes within sec. 250—Complaint.] Sec. 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not apply to a case instituted on information given by police-officer acting as such. Ramjeevan v. Durgu Charan, I. L. R. 21 Cal. 979, followed. SHEOBARAN OJHA v. NUNMONIA DOSHAD ... 376

s. 252. See ... 169

s. 252 ... s. 253. See ... 169

s. 253. See ... 457

s. 260. See ... 252

s. 310. See ... 670

s. 342. See ... 670

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.		Page
s. 526 ...	s. 342. See	864
REVIVAL OF COMPLAINT, ...	s. 403. See	169
s. 421.—The law gives to the Appellate Court the power of dismissing summarily an appeal upon going through the judgment, if the Court is satisfied that there is no sufficient reason shown for the interference of the Appellate Court; and the fact that the Appellate Court admitted one Appellant's appeal does not affect the order summarily dismissing another Appellant's appeal. Jagat Chandra Sarma v. Lal Chand Dass. See PENAL CODE, ss. 161, 265...
s. 439 ...	s. 423. See	380
s. 423.—Right of way, interference with—Order for preserving statu quo ante on conviction, if proper—Appellate Court, power of, to set aside such order—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 341—Wrongful restraint.] Where a person blocked up a private way, along which the complainant had a right to go, by raising a wall and was convicted of the offence of wrongful restraint under sec. 341 of the Penal Code and an order was passed by the trying Magistrate directing the accused to remove the obstruction and not to interfere with the complainant's right of way and, on appeal, the Appellate Court set aside the order directing the removal of the obstruction and preventing the accused from interfering with the complainant's right: Held —That the order of removal of the obstruction was a necessary corollary to the previous conviction of the accused and was a proper order. That though an Appellate Court has, under sec. 423 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the power of making any amendment or any consequential or incidental order that may be just and proper, such Court cannot make an order which would make the entire proceeding infructuous and absurd. That the order of the Appellate Court setting aside the order of removal of obstruction was neither proper nor just. DEBENDRA CHANDRA CHOWDHURY v. MOHINI MOHAN CHOWDHURY ... 432
PENAL CODE, ss. 499, 500 ...	s. 423. See	819
PENAL CODE, ss. 162, 211 ...	s. 432. See	727
REVIVAL OF COMPLAINT ...	s. 435. See	169
s. 526 ...	s. 435. See	749
REVIVAL OF COMPLAINT ...	s. 436. See	169
s. 436.—Discharge of accused of an offence triable exclusively by Court of Session—Murder—

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.		Page
Commitment made by District Magistrate—"Order him to be committed for trial," meaning of—Magistrate, competency of, to himself commit—Magistrate power of—Evidence of witness partly against and partly in favour of accused—Evidence of witness as to what he heard from deceased—Hearsay evidence—Evidence Act (I of 1878), secs. 6, 8, 11, 14.] Under sec. 436 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the Sessions Judge and the District Magistrate have co-ordinate powers either to order a commitment upon the evidence already taken or to direct a fresh enquiry. Queen-Empress v. Krishnabhat , I. L. R. 10 Bom. 319, referred to it. It is improper to accept a portion of the evidence given by a witness which is in support of the case for the prosecution and to discard or discredit the other portions which go against it; and so far as the accused is concerned, he is entitled to ask the Court to consider all the facts deposed to by that witness and to shew to the Court that his evidence, taken as a whole, is in material contradiction of the evidence of the other witnesses. A statement of a witness as to what he heard from the deceased when it does not relate to the cause of his death or the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death is hearsay and is not admissible; they must be proved in the ordinary way, viz., by evidence of a primary character and not by hearsay testimony. THE QUEEN-EMPERESS v. SURENDRA NATH SARKAR ... 574
s. 437.—Further enquiry—Magistrate, power of, to direct further enquiry into offences some of which formed component parts of an offence of which accused was acquitted—Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 147, 323, 342—Rioting, acquittal of—Fresh trial for causing hurt.] Where an accused person was tried on a charge of being a member of an unlawful assembly with the common object of assaulting the complainant but was acquitted of the offence of rioting and subsequent thereto the District Magistrate directed a further enquiry into the offences under secs. 323 and 342, I. P. Code, committed in the same occurrences: Held —That the offence under sec. 323, I. P. Code, being one of the offences which formed the subject of the previous trial, the matter cannot be re-opened until the order of acquittal shall have been set aside. That no order within the terms of sec. 437 Cr. P. Code, having been passed in respect of the offence under sec. 342, I. P. Code, the District Magistrate was not competent to order further enquiry in regard to that offence. JATIRAM ALOM GANBURAH v. RAJ KUMAR UMAR SINGH ... 72
VIVAL OF COMPLAINT ...	s. 437. See	169
s. 145 AND POSSESSION, SUMMARY FINDING OF ...	s. 438. See	71

Criminal Procedure Code— contd.		Page
VIVAL OF COMPLAINT	s. 439. See RE-	169
FORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT	s. 439. See RE-	211
s. 439— High Court, power of to deal with accused person not appealing—Conviction, setting aside of, of accused not appealing while dealing with an appeal on behalf of persons appealing. [The High Court has power under sec. 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in a proper case, to deal with the case of accused persons not appealing against their conviction, while considering and trying the appeal preferred by some other persons; and cl. (5) of the section does not in any way affect the jurisdiction vested in the High Court to deal with their case. Broja Rakhai Mozumdar v. The Empress ... 330
s. 526 ...	s. 439. See	749
PENAL CODE, s. 211	s. 476. See	106
MINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477...	s. 476. See CRI-	615
s. 477 ...	s. 476. See	630

s. 477—"May commit," meaning of—Procedure to be observed under the section—Charge, framing of, if essentially and absolutely necessary—Preliminary enquiry, necessity of—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 193, 466, 471—Wilful perjury—Forger—Using a forged document knowing it to be forged. [Sec. 477 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is an empowering section, and authorises a Court of Session when an offence referred to in sec. 195 of the Code has been committed before it or brought under its notice as mentioned in the section, to charge the offender and to commit or admit to bail and try him upon its own charge. The word "may" in sec. 477 ought not to be read as meaning must; there is no warrant for the view that it should be so read. Having regard to the phraseology of the law, if a Court of Session proceeds to take action under sec. 477 of the Code, it must in the first instance frame a charge so as to enable the accused to know the exact nature of the offence he is alleged to have committed; the Court of Session may then either commit the accused for trial before itself upon the charge so framed or admit him to bail for the same purpose. A charge is a precise formulation of the specific accusation made against a person, who is entitled to know its nature at the earliest stage. A preliminary enquiry is only necessary for the purpose of determining whether there is a prima facie case against the person accused; it is improper and illegal for a Sessions Judge to have a person arrested and committed to jail in view of

Criminal Procedure Code— contd.		Page
an enquiry preliminary to commitment before a charge is actually framed or a commitment made. The elements of fraud or dishonesty, as explained in the Penal Code, must be present in the mind of the person accused to bring his act under secs. 466 and 471 of the Penal Code. In the Matter of W. Y. Reilly v. The King-Empress ... 609		609
s. 477— Bail, order for, before commitment—Preliminary enquiry—Charge, framing of, if absolutely necessary—Jurisdiction—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 193—False evidence, giving of. [Sec. 477 of the Code of Criminal Procedure contemplates that there should be a charge upon which the commitment is based; in other words, the person accused of having committed the offence should know the specific nature of the accusation against him so as to be able to answer it. Where an order was made directing a witness to give bail before a Court of Session, and to appear when called upon before such Court to answer charges under sec. 193, I. P. Code, without any reference to the specific false statements alleged to have been made by the witness in the course of a judicial proceeding, it was held that the order could not be regarded as a commitment under sec. 477, Cr. P. Code. Such an order is not warranted by law and is without jurisdiction. Mohim Chander Mozumdar v. The King-Empress 615		615
s. 477— False evidence, giving of—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 477—Security to appear when called upon to answer charges yet to be framed. [There is no warrant in law for an order by a Sessions Judge directing a witness alleged to have given false evidence in a judicial proceeding before him to give security to appear before him when called upon to answer charges yet to be framed under sec. 193 of the Indian Penal Code. Krista Chandra Bhadra v. The King-Empress ... 630		630
s. 477— Commitment to Court of Session for giving false evidence—Preliminary enquiry, if necessary—Sessions Judge, jurisdiction or power of, as a Court of Appeal to order commitment—Difference in procedure between the provisions of sec. 476 and 477—Applicability of the sections—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 193—False evidence, giving of. [Sec. 477 of the Code of Criminal Procedure deals with cases which transpire before the Court of Session itself, and in which the Sessions Judge is in a position to declare, without any further enquiry, that the person against whom action is necessary under that section has in fact committed an offence mentioned in sec. 195, Cr. P. Code. The Queen v. Nomal , 12 W. R. Cr. 69, referred to. Where evidence was given by a witness before a Deputy Magistrate, which was in conflict with the statements of certain other witnesses, and the Deputy Magistrate did not believe the statements of that witness, and the Sessions Judge, on appeal, was inclined to take the same view, and committed that person to take his trial before the Court of Session on a charge of giving false evidence in a judicial proceeding: Held—That there was no fact before the Sessions Judge upon which he could come to the conclusion that the offence of giving false evidence had been committed either before him or before the Deputy Magistrate. That the only conclusion to which he could come was that the offence of giving false evidence might have been committed before the Deputy Magistrate and that the case could not be ripe for commitment until a further enquiry was made in the matter and an opportunity given to the person to show that his statements were not untrue to his knowledge. That the section applicable to the facts of the present case was sec 476, and that the commitment of the Petitioner under sec. 477 was illegal. IN THE MATTER OF UMESH CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTI ... 630

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

... , s. 511. See CONFESSION ... 670
s. 523 ... 415

... , s. 522—Order for restoration of immoveable property.] The term "criminal force" used in sec 522 of the Code of Criminal Procedure must be understood as defined in sec 350 of the Penal Code and to justify an order for the restoration of possession of immoveable property under sec 522, Cr. P. Code, the dispossession must have been by the actual use of criminal force and not merely by the show of such force. Ram Chandra Boral v. Jityandria, 2 C. W. N 305: s. c. I. L. R. 25. Cal. 434, and Ishan Chandra Kolla v. Dina Nath Bhadak, 4 C. W. N. 307, followed. See PENAL CODE, ss. 114, 144 ... 250

... , s. 522—Possession, restoration of, of immoveable property—Object and scope of the law—Jurisdiction of Criminal Court.] The object of the provisions of sec. 522 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is to enable the Criminal Court, by a summary order, to restore the state of things which existed at the time of the dispossession by the convicted person or persons, and the Criminal Court cannot go behind the state of affairs at the time of the forcible ejection which led to the criminal prosecution. Sub-sec. (2) of sec. 522 provides that any right or interest which a third party may have in the property cannot be affected and such third party, in the case of eviction under an order under sec. 522, must seek his remedy in the Civil Court. Narayan Govind v. Visaji, I. L. R. 23 Bom. 494, referred to and explained. RAMESWAR MARWARI v. BISWA NATH BANERJEE ... 874

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 423 ... , s. 522. See ... 82

... , s. 523—Disposal of property taken by Police as stolen property—Adjudication of theft case if absolutely necessary before order for disposal of property—Stay of proceedings in case—Speedy remedy, whether may justify order made at request of parties—Jurisdiction.] A Magistrate has jurisdiction to make an order under sec. 523 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for disposal of property taken charge of by the Police as stolen property when he considers that an immediate order is necessary to save the property from possible loss or decay before a formal adjudication of the case of theft, specially when the case has broken down by reason of non-prosecution and when both the parties apply to the Magistrate for such an order. NASIB ALI MOZUMDAR v. RUKHMINI MOHAN ENDA ... 415

... , s. 526. See s. 215 ... 110
... , s. 526. See s. 530 (q) ... 252

... , s. 526—Charter Act (24 and 25 Vict., Ch. 104)—Letters Patent, sec. 29—Case under sec. 145, Criminal Procedure Code, transfer of—High Court, power of, to transfer such cases—"Case" and "criminal case," meaning of, as used in the Code, whether co-extensive and interchangeable—Bias, reasonable apprehension of, in an officer trying a case—Absence of real bias—Expediency of transfer—Inconvenience to parties or witnesses—Previous law.] (Per GHOSH, J.)—It is doubtful whether the Legislature meant to confer on the High Court the power by sec. 526 of the Code, of making a transfer of a case other than that in which a person is charged with an offence. The High Court has the power to make an order of transfer of a case under sec. 145 of the Code, which a Magistrate has taken cognizance of, under its general powers of superintendence under sec. 15 of the Charter Act. When by reason of the words or conduct of a Magistrate or Judge before whom a case is pending, any party reasonably apprehends that there is a bias against him in the mind of the officer concerned, it is expedient for the ends of justice to transfer the case from his file to that of some other officer competent to try it, though there may not be any actual bias. Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chandra Chakraborty, 2 C. W. N. 85: s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 727, and Dupeyron v. Driver, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 495, followed. (Per TAYLOR, J.)—It is doubtful whether the High Court has the power under sec. 526 of the Code to transfer cases which do not relate to matters which may strictly be described as criminal as relating to a crime or offence under the law. The High Court has

	Page
Criminal Procedure Code—contd.
such power under sec. 29 of the Letters Patent, where the expression "criminal case" appears without the distinction which apparently exists in the Code of Criminal Procedure in respect of cases tried by a Criminal Court as opposed to civil cases. Meaning of "case" and "criminal case" as used in the Code discussed. LOLIT MOHAN MOITRA v. MAHARAJA SURYA KANTA ACHARYA CHOWDHRY ...	749

..., s. 528—Transfer of pending cases—Magistrate taking part during investigation by Police—Examination of accused by Magistrate preliminary to trial by way of cross-examination. When a Magistrate was present at a search made by the Police during investigation and in all probability he came to know of some facts in connection with the case, it is expedient that the case should be tried by some other Magistrate. During Police investigation the examination of an accused by a Magistrate by way of cross-examination is improper. (TAYLOR, J.)—In the course of Police investigation a Magistrate is entitled to record under sec. 164, C. Cr. P., any voluntary statement made by an accused person, but he is not entitled to examine him in respect of the facts of the case. Sec. 342 of the Code only empowers a Court to examine an accused to explain evidence already recorded. GYA SINGH v. MOHAMED SOLIMAN ...

..., s. 190 ...	...	s. 528. See	...	488
..., s. 145 ...	...	s. 528. See	...	686
..., s. 145 ...	...	s. 529 (f). See	...	686

..., s. 530 (g)—Summary trial—Complaint disclosing facts constituting offence of a graver nature—Process, issue of, for minor offence, if proper—Procedure—Jurisdiction of Magistrate—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 268, 530 (g)—Irregularity or illegality—Transfer of a case upon order for retrial, without issuing a rule. A Magistrate is bound to proceed and regulate his proceedings at the trial as for the offence made up of the facts complained of, if on the examination of the complainant, there is no reason to believe that the complaint is exaggerated or false and process is issued for the attendance of the accused. When a Magistrate deliberately disregards the offence actually complained of, it becomes no question of mere irregularity but his proceedings are absolutely void under the provisions of sec. 530 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The High Court without issuing a rule directed a transfer of the case to some other Magistrate in ordering retrial. KAILASH CHUNDER PAL v. JOYNDIPUR ...

	Page
Criminal Procedure Code—concltd.
..., s. 486 ...	...
..., s. 532. See	...
..., s. 537. See	...
PENAL CODE, s. 206 ...	...
..., s. 537. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ...	...
..., s. 537. See	...
s. 234 ...	...
..., Ch. XXI. See	...
DISCHARGE OF ACCUSED PERSON ...	...
responsibility. See INSANITY ...	...

Cross-examination of prosecution witnesses—Refusal of application for postponement. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 ...

..., question by way of, by Magistrate in taking down statements of accused persons, preliminary to trial. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 164, 342 ...

Culpable homicide not amounting to murder. See PENAL CODE, s. 304 ...

Dacoity. See PENAL CODE, s. 390 ...

Dreadly weapon, possession of—Unlawful assembly. See PENAL CODE, s. 144 ...

Decree of Civil Court, effect of See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ...

Defamation—Statement made in a plaint. See PENAL CODE, s. 500 ...

..., conviction for, when no charge framed for such an offence. See PENAL CODE, s. 500 ...

Defraud—Intention. See PENAL CODE, s. 417 ...

Delusion, mental. See INSANITY ...

Discharge of accused person—Rehearing of case by Presidency Magistrate—Presidency Magistrate—Warrant case—Discharge—Rehearing of warrant case after discharge of accused person—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), Ch. XXI—Judgment (Held by the Full Bench, GHOSH, J., dissenting)—That a Presidency Magistrate is competent to re-hear a warrant case triable under Ch. XXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in which he has discharged the accused person. Queen-Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass, 5 C. W. N. 169; Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Probodh Kumary Dassi, 1 C. W. N. 49, approved of. DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI ...

Discharge of accused of an offence exclusively triable by Court of Session. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 486 ...

"Dishonestly," meaning of. See PENAL CODE, s. 24 ...

Dishonestly or fraudulently preventing debt being available for creditors—Application to withdraw money paid into Court. See PENAL CODE, s. 422 ...

	Page
Disobedience of order of public servant lawfully promulgated. See PENAL CODE, s. 188 ...	329
— to express provision of law as to mode of trial, if irregular or illegal. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 234, 537 ...	866
Dispute as to possession of land. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ...	900
District Magistrate, commitment made by. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 436 ...	574
—, competency of, to himself commit. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 436 ...	574
Easement, right of, obstruction to—Right of way. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 147 ...	835
Embankment, public—Cutting through or destroying such—Made or erected—Sandbank, natural. See BENGAL EMBANKMENT ACT, s. 77 ...	108
Endorsement—Warrant. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 79 ...	447
Escape from lawful custody. See PENAL CODE, s. 224 ...	289
Evidence, absence of, to go to a jury—Commitment. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 ...	411
Evidence Act (I of 1872). See EVIDENCE OF WITNESS ...	574
—, s. 35. See PENAL CODE, s. 193 ...	65
—, s. 91. See CONFES- SION ...	670
—, s. 114 (1/2). See ACCOMPLICE ...	517
—, s. 133. See ACCOMPLICE ...	517
Evidence—General repute. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 110, CL. (f) ...	249
— of accomplice—Corroborator. See ACCOMPLICE ...	517
— witness partly against and partly in favour of accused—Hearsay evidence. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 436 ...	574
Examination of accused to prove previous conviction. See CONFES- SION ...	670
— by Magistrate preliminary to trial by way of cross-examination. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 342 ...	864
False evidence, intentionally giving, in a judicial proceeding. See PENAL CODE, s. 193 ...	65
— See PENAL CODE, s. 193 AND CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 ...	411
— See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ...	615

	Page
False evidence—contd.
— given before a Sessions Judge. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ...	630
— a Magistrate, commitment for, to a Court of Session. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 476 ...	630
— information to Police, of an offence, order for prosecution for. See PENAL CODE, s. 211 ...	106
— public servant, whether non-furnishing of correct statements in response to a call under sec. 9 of the Land Acquisition Act, amounts to. See PENAL CODE, ss. 174, 177 ...	181
— with intent to use his lawful power to the injury of another. See PENAL CODE, s. 211 ...	727
Fine for cattle trespass, legality of. See CATTLE TRESPASS ACT, s. 22 ...	82
First offence. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT, ss. 8, 16 ...	211
Forgery, charge for. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ...	609
— See PENAL CODE, s. 467 ...	897
Fraudulent or dishonest intention. See PENAL CODE, s. 422 ...	174
— removal of property to prevent seizure in execution of decree. See PENAL CODE, s. 206 ...	291
"Fraudulently," meaning of. See PENAL CODE, ss. 24, 25 ...	897
—, distinction in meaning between dishonestly and. See PENAL CODE, ss. 24, 25 ...	897
Fresh trial for causing hurt, on acquittal of charge of rioting, whether proper. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 437; ...	72
Full Bench, reference to, upon a point raised before prisoner called upon to plead—Reference whether may be made by a Judge presiding at the Sessions.] A Judge presiding at the Sessions has no power to refer to a Full Bench a point of law raised before the accused is called upon to plead. See REVIVAL OF COMPLAINT BY PRESIDENCY MAGISTRATES. EMPRESS v. DOLE GOBIND DASS ...	169
Further enquiry into offences that are component parts of offences of which accused was acquitted See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 437 ...	72
Gambling Act (II, B. C. of 1867), ss. 1, 8—Gambling in a common gaming house—Common gaming house—Private house—Coins and cowries, if and when instruments of gambling—Presumption—Inference.] Coins and cowries are not necessarily implements of gambling but they become "instruments of gaming" within the meaning of the Gambling Act (II, B. C. of 1867) if they are found to be used for that purpose. A

	Page		Page
Gambling Act — contd.		Insanity — contd. house cannot be considered as exclusively private in its character which is used for the purposes of gaming by a large party of people of different social position and standing who would not ordinarily be friends or guests of the owner. Sec. 6 of the Gambling Act raises a presumption that a house in which such articles or instruments are found is a common gaming house within the meaning of the Act.		variation, if necessary—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 84, 302—Murder. Where the plea of insanity is taken on behalf of an accused person, the question that arises is not whether at the time of the trial the man was of unsound mind but whether he was so at the time of the commission of the deed, and whether by reason of that unsoundness of mind he was incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong. The criminal responsibility of a person suffering from an insane delusion and committing an offence in consequence thereof, depends upon the nature of the delusion; if the man was labouring under a partial delusion only and was not in other respects insane, he must be considered to be in the same situation as to responsibility as if the facts with respect to which the delusion existed were real. Queen-Empress v. Kedar Nasyer Shah , I. L. R. 23 Cal. 604, and In re M'Naghten , 10 Cl. & F. 200 (5 C. W. N. cxiv), referred to. The estimate of the guilt of a person suffering from and acting under the influence of a delusion must be made upon the basis of the actual existence of the facts in regard to which the delusion existed; and whether the person was under a misapprehension in regard to the delusion or not, his culpability would be the same. Ghatu Pramanik v. The King-Empress ...
AMRIT SINGH v. THE KING-EMPEROR ...	508		665
— in a common gaming house. See		Intention to defraud —Cheating—Including in a bill, an article not supplied—Payment of the bill in part. See PENAL CODE , s. 417	255
GAMBLING ACT , ss. 1, 6 ...	508	— deceive and to cause wrongful loss. See PENAL CODE , ss. 24, 25, 471...	897
Gaming house. See GAMBLING ACT , ss. 1, 6...	503	Investigation , Magistrate taking part during Police—Transfer. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 526 ...	864
Good behaviour , security for. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 109 ...	28	Irregularity or illegality , issue of process for minor offence when complaint discloses graver offence. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 530 ...	252
Hackney carriage , keeper of—Meaning. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT , s. 263 ...	331	— not material and curable. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 145 ...	710
High Court , jurisdiction of, to consider legality of conviction, if affected by sec. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT , ss. 8, 16 ...	210, 211	— meaning of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , ss. 234, 537 ...	866
—, power of, to alter sentence passed on a youthful offender. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT , ss. 8, 16 ...	211	Joinder of separate and distinct charges —Offences unconnected with one another. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 234 ...	294
—, to deal with accused person not appealing. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 439 ...	380	— charges. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , ss. 234, 537...	866
—, to quash commitment. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 215 ...	411	Joint trial of offences of giving false information to a Collector against lessor and lessee, if proper. See PENAL CODE , ss. 174, 177 ...	131
—, to transfer cases under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 526 ...	749	Judgment —Re-hearing of warrant-case after discharge of accused—Presidency Magistrate. See DISCHARGE OF ACCUSED ...	457
Hurt caused to persons not for the purpose of committing theft. See PENAL CODE , s. 390 ...	372
Identification of land. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 145 ...	563
Illegality in the mode of trial , whether curable under sec. 537, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , ss. 234, 537 ...	866
— and irregularity distinguished and explained. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , ss. 234, 537 ...	866
Imprisonment in default of fine. See CATTLE TRESPASS ACT , s. 22 ...	32
—, Simultaneous order of, in default of payment of compensation, if and when may be awarded. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 250 ...	213, 214
Inference —Presumption. See GAMBLING ACT , s. 6 ...	508
Information given by a Police constable , if a complaint. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE , s. 250 ...	370
Insanity , plea of—Criminal responsibility— Unsoundness of mind—Sullen disposition—Insanity of other members of the family of the accused—Right and wrong, knowledge of—Delusion, mental—Demeanour and conduct of accused at the trial—Medical obser-

	Page		Page
Judicial determination —False complaint— Police report. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 195 ... .. 254		Jury , opinion of—Nuisance. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 133 ... .. 566
—notice of Rule issued by High Court. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ... 110		—functions of, assumption by Judge of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 234, 537 ... 866
—proceeding, whether includes en- quiry made by a Magistrate. See PENAL CODE, s. 193 ... .. 66		—verdict of, power of Appellate Court to maintain, by sifting illegalities. See CRIMI- NAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 234, 537 ... 866
Jurisdiction —Assessment of costs in case under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, without notice to partly affected thereby. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 148 ... .. 291		Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894) , ss. 9, 10. See PENAL CODE, ss. 174, 177 ... .. 126
—Cognizance of offence against persons not sent up for trial. See CRIMI- NAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 190... .. 488		Landlord , absentee, whether liable when not committed by his agent. See PENAL CODE, s. 154 ... .. 771
—Framing of charge—Commit- ment. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ... .. 609, 615		Legal Practitioners Act, ss. 13, 14 — Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879) , as amended by (Act XI of 1896), secs. 13, 14— Professional misconduct—Grossly improper conduct—Legal practitioner advising pay- ment of money to witness to speak the truth or to prevent giving false evidence—False statements by legal practitioner in letter to induce speedy remittance for such purpose.) A legal practitioner by paying or offering to pay money to a witness to induce him to speak the truth or to prevent him from giving false evidence may not be guilty of any offence criminally punishable but is guilty of unprofessional conduct. A legal practitioner in pressing his client for the payment of money to a witness to in- duce him to keep back unfavourable evi- dence is guilty of grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duties within the meaning of sec. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act . IN THE MATTER OF NRI- TYA GOPAL SEN ... .. 45
—Prosecution for false complaint. See PENAL CODE, s. 211 ... .. 106		ss. 13, 14— Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879) , as amended by (Act XI of 1896), secs. 13, sub- sec. (f), 14— Pleader, when he does something as a litigant or member of the public and not as pleader, is to be regarded as profes- sional misconduct—“Any other reasonable cause,” construction of.] An allegation, made by a pleader as a Defendant in a suit and not as a pleader, that the Plaintiffs had bribed some officer of the record-room to tamper with certain documents produced at the instance of the Plaintiff did not amount to professional misconduct. That in the words “any other reasonable cause” in sec. 13, sub-sec. (f), of the Legal Prac- titioners Act , the expression “other” means “other” “ ejus dem generis ,” that is, of the class or description of misconduct which is referred to in the preceding sub-sections, that is to say, professional misconduct. The Legal Practitioners Act is aimed against the misconduct of legal practitioners in relation to their professional duties and not in relation to other matters. IN THE MATTER OF JOGENDRA NARAYAN BOSE ... 48
—Order under sec. 146, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ... .. 105		Letters Patent , s. 29—Transfer of case under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code—Power of High Court —Jurisdiction. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ... .. 749
—of Criminal Court—Order for res- toration of possession of immoveable prop- erty. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 522 ... .. 374		License —Milkman—Keeper of hackney car- riage. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 263 381
—of High Court to revise or con- sider legality or propriety of conviction sen- tence or order, if affected by sec. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act. See REFORMA- TORY SCHOOLS ACT, ss. 8, 16 ... 210 211
— See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ... .. 428
—to transfer cases under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ... .. 749
—of Magistrate to require security for good behaviour—Residence outside local jurisdiction. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 110 ... .. 29
—to issue process for minor offence when complaint discloses graver offence. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 530 ... .. 252 —to take fresh pro- ceeding for removal of nuisance. See CRIM- INAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 133 ... 113
—to make order as to disposal of property. See CRIMINAL PRO- CEDURE CODE, ss. 517, 523 ... .. 415
—Apprehension of breach of the peace. See CRIMINAL PROCE- DURE CODE, s. 145 ... .. 428
—to transfer cases under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 145, 528 ... 686
— See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ... .. 710
—to add parties, to allow third parties to come in and to treat subsequent proceeding as continuation of previous one. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE s. 145 ... .. 900

	Page
Local enquiry by trying Magistrate. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	686
Magistrate, duty of, with regard to decrees of Civil Court. See PENAL CODE, s. 341	215
—, See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	566, 900
—, jurisdiction of, to assess costs in cases under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, without notice to party affected thereby. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 148	291
—, to take cognizance of offence against persons not sent up for trial. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 190	488
—, to take fresh proceedings for removal of nuisance. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 133	173
—, to prosecute for false complaint. See PENAL CODE, s. 211	106
—, to make order under secs. 145, 146, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	105
—, to order restoration of immoveable property. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 522	374
—, to require security for good behaviour—Residence outside local jurisdiction. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 110	29
—, to issue process for minor offence when complaint discloses a graver one. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 530	252
—, to make order as to disposal of property. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 517, 523	415
—, See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	428, 710
—, to transfer cases under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 145, 528, 529 (q)	686
—, to add parties to allow third parties to come in, and to treat subsequent proceeding as continuation of previous one. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	900
—, Presidency, jurisdiction of, to receive complaint. See REVIVAL OF COMPLAINT	169
—, to re-hear warrant-case after discharge of accused person. See DISCHARGE OF ACCUSED	457
"May commit," whether means "must" commit—Meaning of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477	609
Medical observation, if necessary. See INSANITY, PLEA OF	665
"Milkman," meaning of. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 263	381
Minor offence, issue of process for, when complaint discloses graver one. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 530	252

	Page
Miscconduct, professional. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, ss. 18, 14	45
Misjoinder of charges. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 234, 537	866
Murder, not amounting to homicide. See PENAL CODE, s. 304	708
Non-attendance in person in obedience of summons to attend Court, if amounts to contempt of Court. See PENAL CODE, ss. 174, 177	181
Non-furnishing of correct statements in response to a call under sec. 9 of Land Acquisition Act, if amounts to false information to public servant. See PENAL CODE, ss. 174, 177	181
Notification of contents of warrants if necessary. See PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353	848
Nuisance, removal of—Proceeding previously dropped, revival of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 133	173
—, public. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 138	566
Obstructing and assaulting public servant in execution of duty, resistance to unlawful arrest if amounts to. See PENAL CODE, ss. 147, 149, 353	134
— or resisting public servant in discharge of duties. See PENAL CODE, s. 225B	843
Obstruction to public pathway—Decree of Civil Court. See PENAL CODE, s. 341	215
— to public servant in execution of duty. See PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353	413
Onus of proof—Possession of land. See PENAL CODE, s. 143	868
—, Validity of warrant. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 75 AND PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353	413
—, See PENAL CODE, s. 211	106
Order, form of, in proceeding under sec. 147, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 147	67
Owner of land, liability of, when riot is apprehended or committed on his land. See PENAL CODE, s. 154	771
Parties, adding, power of, in proceedings under sec. 147. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 147	67
— of, in course of proceeding under sec. 145, if legal. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	900
— and witnesses, distinction between statements made by. See PENAL CODE, s. 500	29
—, non-joinder of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	428
—, order against, not proper parties, effect of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 147	67

	Page
Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 19.
Sec. s. 208 ...	291
, s. 20. See s. 206 ...	291
, s. 24. See ss. 467, 471 ...	897
, s. 25. See ss. 467, 471 ...	897
, s. 84. See INSANITY, PLEA OF ...	665
, s. 114. See PENAL CODE, s. 144 ...	250
, s. 141. See s. 147 ...	31
, s. 143. See s. 341 ...	215
, s. 143—Unlawful assembly—Pos-
session of land, question of—Onus of proof
—Prosecution, duty of, to prove facts—Pre-
sumption.] Where some persons were ac-
cused and charged with having come upon
a piece of land with a large number of
people and committed mischief in respect
of some indigo crops said to have been
raised upon it by the complainant's tenants,
and the accused pleaded that they held
the land from some time before, and in
proof put in road-cess return filed by the
complainant shewing that the accused were,
at the date the return was filed, in posses-
sion of a larger plot of the land of which
they claimed the land in dispute to be a
part: Held—That the presumption as to
the possession of the disputed land was in
favour of the accused and that it was for
the prosecution to prove that the accused
gave up possession of the land of which
they had held previous possession or that
they held some other lands in the same
village which were mentioned in the road-
cess return before any conviction could be
had of the accused. BIKU KOER v. W. J.
MARSHMAN ...	368
, ss. 114, 144—Possession of dead-
ly weapon, if necessary to render each
member of unlawful assembly liable for
offence under sec. 144—Criminal Procedure
Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 106, 522—
Binding down to keep the peace, order for—
"Criminal force," meaning of—Order for
restoration of immoveable property.] When one person instigates another to join an
unlawful assembly armed with a deadly
weapon and afterwards joins the unlawful
assembly himself, he may be punishable
under sec. 144, I. P. Code, read with sec.
114, even though he was not himself armed
with a deadly weapon. Sec. 106 of the
Code of Criminal Procedure may apply to
a case in which armed men are assembled
with the intention of committing a breach
of the peace but no breach of the peace
occurs because the assembly does not go so
far. The term "criminal force" used in
sec. 522 of the Code of Criminal Procedure
must be understood as defined in sec. 350
of the Penal Code and to justify an order
for the restoration of possession of im-
moveable property under sec. 522, Cr. P.
Code, the dispossession must have been by
the actual use of criminal force and not
merely by the shew of such force. Ram
Chandra Boral v. Jityandria, 2 C. W. N.

	Page
Penal Code—contd.
805: s. C. I. L. R. 25 Cal 484; Ishan
Chandra Kolla v. Dina Nath Bhadak, 4 C.
W. N. 307, followed. SRIHARI SHOME v.
LAL KHAN ...	250
, s. 147—Theft—Rioting—Com-
mon object charged, when disbelieved, finding
by Appellate Court of a different, if proper
—Unlawful assembly.] If the common
object fails and the substantive charge is
disbelieved the accused should be acquitted.
It is not proper for an Appellate Court,
while disbelieving the alleged common
object of an unlawful assembly to find out
a different common object regarding which
the accused were never called upon to
plead nor tried and to affirm the convic-
tion. RAHIMUDDI v. ASGARALI ...	81
, s. 147. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE
CODE, s. 437 ...	72
, s. 147—Rioting—Obstructing and
assaulting a public servant in the execution
of his duty—Police Act (V of 1861), secs. 17,
19—Refusal to accompany a police-officer to
police-station to receive appointment and
badges of special constables, if refusal to
serve as such—Arrest made on such refusal,
if lawful.] Refusal to accompany a police-
officer to the police-office situated at some
distance not for any purpose of Police duty
but simply to obtain the authority of ap-
pointment to serve as special constables
and the necessary badges and arms does
not amount to a refusal to serve as special
constables and it does not constitute an
offence under sec. 19 of the Police Act. An
arrest made by a police-officer on such a re-
fusal is not lawful and any resistance offered
to such an arrest does not amount to an offence
under sec. 353, I. P. Code. When a large
number of men assemble with the common
object of assaulting or using criminal force
to police-officers and of resisting any action
on the part of the Police and an unjustifi-
able assault takes place in the attempt
of the Police to make an arrest which may
not be lawful, the persons assembled may
all be properly found guilty of rioting.
Queen-Empress v. Dalip, I. L. R. 18 All.
246, referred to. Chunder Kumar Sen v.
Empress, 3 C. W. N. 605, explained and
distinguished. NOWRANGI SINGH v. THE
QUEEN-EMPRESS ...	13
, s. 147. See s. 224 ...	289
, s. 149. See s. 147 ...	134
, s. 154—Owner of land, liability
of, when riot is apprehended or committed
on his land—Absentee landlord, whether
liable for the acts both of commission and
omission of his agents—Scope of the section.]
Knowledge on the part of the owner or
occupier of the land of the acts or inten-
tions of the agent is not an essential
element of an offence under sec. 154 of the
Penal Code, and he may be convicted under
the section though he may be in entire

Penal Code—contd.

ignorance of the acts of his agent or manager. (Per RAMPINI and PRATT, JJ.) —An owner of occupier of land is liable for the acts of omission and acts of commission, not only of himself but of his agent or manager; and sec. 154 of the Penal Code makes no distinction between acts of omission and acts of commission on the part of the landlord's agent. The provisions of sec. 154 of the Penal Code are intended to impose on non-resident landholders and their agents the duty of maintaining the public peace and preventing unlawful assemblies and riots on their estates and to render the former liable for any dereliction in the discharge of his duty. Queen-Empress v. Payag Singh, I. L. R. 12 All. 550, referred to and followed. Queen v. Hurnath Roy, 3 W. R. Cr. 54, In the matter of Radha Nath Chowdhry, 7 C. L. R. 289, Queen v. Surroop Chunder Paul, 12 W. R. Cr. 75, and Tarakant Das v. Queen-Empress, 4 C. W. N. 691, referred to and explained. (Per AMEER ALI, J.)—Sec. 154 of the Penal Code contemplates three different breaches of duty, viz., (a) omission to give notice of, (b) abstention from preventing and (c) negligence to suppress an unlawful assembly or a riot. Penal provisions are to be strictly construed, and liability to punishment for the neglect of a statutory obligation cannot be extended by inferential reasoning. The Penal Code makes a distinction between the commission of a criminal act and the neglect of a duty. There is nothing in the law which makes owners of properties liable for the criminal acts of their agents and servants except on the ground of abetment. It would be straining the law to make an absentee owner of land, who has himself no knowledge of the occurrence, liable for not giving information of the riot that has taken place if his agent takes part in it, and as a rioter, actually taking part in it, does not give notice of it to the Police. It is the agent on the spot who is primarily responsible for the duty of giving notice to the Police, and his failure makes the owner liable for his neglect; but a charge of neglect assumes that the agent is not directly concerned in the commission of the offence; if he is so concerned it ceases to be neglect; it then becomes a substantive crime. Queen-Empress v. Payag Singh, I. L. R. 12 All. 550, dissented from. KAZI ZEANUDDIN AHMED v. THE KING-EMPEROR ... 771

—, s. 161—Receiving illegal gratification as a public servant—Gratification received partly on one day and partly on another—Continuous offence—Conviction for separate offences, if proper—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 421—Summary dismissal of appeal of accused, legality of, on admission of appeal of co-accused.] Where a certain sum of money is paid to a public servant as illegal gratification on one day and a certain sum on another day for the same purpose, the offence of receiving illegal gratification becomes a continuous offence and there ought not to be separate convictions for offences under secs. 161 and 165 of the Penal Code for the same offence. The law gives to the Appellate Court the power of dismissing summarily an appeal upon going through the judgment, if the Court is satisfied that there is no sufficient reason shown for the interference of the Appellate Court; and the fact that the Appellate Court admitted one Appellant's appeal does not affect the order summarily dismissing another Appellant's appeal. JAGAT CHANDRA SARMA v. LAL CHAND DAS ... 332

Page

Penal Code—contd.

—, s. 165. See s. 161 ... 332

—, s. 174—Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), secs. 9, 10—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 205—Giving false information to a public servant, whether non-furnishing of correct statements as to names and interests of persons, amounts to—Contempt of Court, whether non-attendance in Court in obedience of summons to attend Court, amounts to—Notice to persons interested in lands of intention of Government to take lands for public purposes—Joint trial.] A Deputy Collector made a complaint against the lessor and the lessee of some lands taken up under the Land Acquisition Act that they had given false information in certain written statements that they made to the Collector in response to a call from him under sec. 9 of the Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), but did not put in either with his written complaint or at the time of his examination by the Magistrate before whom he made the complaint, the written statements upon which he desired to proceed, and the Magistrate issued processes for the attendance of the accused to answer a charge under sec. 177, I. P. Code, and sec. 10 of the Land Acquisition Act; on the day fixed for trial the lessee appeared, and appearance was made on behalf of the lessor by his mukhtear who asked the Magistrate under sec. 205 of the Code of Criminal Procedure to dispense with the personal attendance of that accused, which the Magistrate refused to accede to, and called upon him to show cause why he should not be prosecuted for contempt of Court under sec. 174, I. P. Code: Held—That in the absence of the written statements on which the proceedings were founded and in the absence of any reference as to the particular statement or statements on which the accusation was made, the Magistrate should not have issued processes against the accused, and that his action in the matter was without proper discretion, and that the complaint is bad and should not be allowed to proceed in its present form. That the lessor accused having made an appearance, though not a personal appearance on service of summons, and his having moved the Superior Courts against the proceedings of the Magistrate should not have been regarded as an offence under sec. 174 of the Penal Code, and that the Magistrate's proceedings were misconceived and that they should cease. That the proceedings in the civil case being still before the High Court in respect of the lessee, no prosecution should be taken before the Magistrate until at least the final orders of the High Court shall have been obtained. That the offence, if any, committed by each of the accused distinct and separate offence and tried separately. DURGADA F UMESH CHANDRA SEN ...

Page

Penal Code—contd.

—, s. 177. See s. 174 ... 131

—, s. 182. See s. 211 ... 727

—, s. 183. See WARRANT, VALIDITY
OF ... 391

—, s. 184. See WARRANT, VALIDITY
OF ... 391

—, s. 188—Disobedience of an order of a public servant lawfully promulgated—Order under sec. 144, Cr. P. Code, interfering with the exercise of private rights of individuals, if lawful—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to pass such orders.] If a Magistrate apprehends a breach of the peace he can restrain temporarily the exercise by any private person of his lawful rights to prevent such breach of the peace, by making an order under sec. 144, Cr. P. Code; and disobedience to such an order amounts to an offence under sec. 184, I. P. Code. Byamtram Shaha Roy, 10 B. L. R. 448, followed. TEKAIT KUNJ BEHARI NARAIN DEO v. BHIKO SINGH ... 829

—, s. 193—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 35—Intentionally giving false evidence in a judicial proceeding—Statement of a witness made to a police-officer in the course of an investigation, admissibility of—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 162—Statement made to a Magistrate making an enquiry—Judicial proceeding.] Statement of a witness to a police-officer under the provisions of sec. 162, Cr. P. Code, though reduced into writing is not a public or official document and the writing in question cannot be used as evidence in any proceeding to prove that the statements contained therein were in fact made, there being nothing in sec. 162, Cr. P. Code, which limits the prohibition of the use of such a document as evidence only in the matter of the charge which is actually under investigation. Such a document is not a "record" within the meaning of sec. 35 of the Indian Evidence Act and the document in question is not therefore admissible in evidence under the provisions of that section. It is irregular in a charge of intentionally giving false evidence to put the whole of a long statement bodily to a witness at once, and in such a case no conviction can properly be had except on proof that the accused person had made to the police-officer each and every one of the statements contained in the document. ISAB MANDAL v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS ... 65

Page

Penal Code—contd.

—, s. 193 See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215... 411

—, s. 193. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 477 ... 609, 615, 680

—, s. 206—Fraudulent removal of property to prevent its seizure in execution of a decree—Removal of crops under attachment in execution of a certificate under Public Demands Recovery Act—Certificate officer, whether a Court of Justice—Sanction, want of—Failure of justice—Irregularity—Public Demands Recovery Act (I of 1895, B. C.)—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 537.] A certificate issued under the Public Demands Recovery Act (I of 1895, B. C.) has the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court, as regards the remedies for enforcing the same, and money due under such certificate must be regarded as money due under a decree of a Civil Court; and a removal of crops under attachment in execution of such a certificate amounts to an offence punishable under sec. 206 of the Penal Code. Sanction for a prosecution should be given before a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence under sec. 206, I. P. Code; but unless the want of such sanction, in fact, occasions a failure of justice, a conviction cannot be regarded as bad only on that account. SUNDAR DOSADH v. SITAL MAHTO... 291

—, s. 211—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 4 (b), 195, 476—Giving false information to Police of an offence, order for prosecution for—"Complaint," meaning of—Judicial proceeding—Jurisdiction of Magistrate—Procedure.] Where upon a police-report that a complaint is false, the complainant is called upon to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under sec. 211, I. P. Code, he appears, and the Magistrate examines him and his witnesses, and upon that evidence come to the conclusion that the charge is false, he can then proceed under sec. 476 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and direct a prosecution. Mouli Durzi v. Naurangi Lall, 4 C. W. N. 55, distinguished. The Magistrate does not exercise a proper discretion, who on receipt of a police-report that the complaint is false forthwith orders the complainant to be prosecuted under sec. 211, I. P. Code. The complainant should be given a reasonable time and full opportunity to prove his case before sanction is given for his prosecution. The presentation of a petition by the complainant that his complaint should be enquired into is in effect a complaint within the meaning of sec. 4, cl. (A), and the Magistrate is bound to hold a full judicial enquiry into the matter before proceeding further. LALI GOPE v. GIRIDHARI CHAUDHURI ... 106

Page

Penal Code—contd.

... s. 211. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 195...	254
... s. 211—False charge to Police of cognizable offence—False information to public servant with intent to use his lawful power to the injury of another—Charge partly true and partly false—Charge if maintainable—Reference by Presidency Magistrate—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 432.] When a false charge is made to the Police of a cognizable offence, the offence committed by the person making the false charge falls within the meaning of sec. 211 of the Penal Code and not sec. 182. Karim Buksh v. Queen-Empress , I. L. R. 17 Cal. 574, followed. Sec. 211 of the Penal Code contemplates a charge which is indivisible in its nature; to judge whether a complaint, part of which is true and part of which is false, falls under the section, the nature of the complaint or charge made by the accused has to be considered; in other words, whether the complaint is substantially true or whether it is substantially false; no precise rule or principle can be laid down in respect of the question and each case must depend upon its own circumstances. GIRJIDHARI NAIK v. THE EMPRESS ...	727
... s. 224—Arrest for cognizable offences—Escape from lawful custody—"Any such offence," meaning of.] The words "for any such offence," in sec. 224 of the Penal Code, mean for any such offence with which a person is charged or of which he has been convicted. It is an offence for a person to escape from custody after he had been lawfully arrested on a charge of having committed an offence, although he may not be convicted of such latter offence. If a person is lawfully arrested the subsequent detention of that person is also lawful, even if he may not be convicted of the offence for which he was arrested. Ganga Churn Singh v. Queen-Empress , I. L. R. 21 Cal. 387, distinguished. DRO SHAHAI LAL v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS ...	289
... s. 224. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 79 ...	447
... s. 225B—Resistance to execution of warrant—Obstruction to public servant in execution of duty—Warrant, validity of—Warrant with incorrect description—Onus of proof—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 75.] In order to have a conviction for illegal disobedience of a warrant, it is for the prosecution to shew that the accused is the person against whom the warrant was issued or in other words, that he satisfied the description of the person against whom it was issued and not on the accused to shew that he was not the person. It is illegal to convict a person under secs. 225B and 353 of the Penal Code when the warrant attempted to be executed was addressed to the person with a wrong description to which the accused did not answer. DEBI SINGH v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS ...	413

Page

Penal Code—contd.

... s. 225B—Assaulting a public officer in execution of his duties—Resisting or obstructing public officer in discharge of his duties as such—Warrant, execution of, by person not authorised—Warrant of arrest, issue of, in execution of a Civil Court decree—Notification of contents of warrant, if necessary—Lawful arrest.] To make an arrest under a warrant issued in execution of a Civil Court decree valid it may not be necessary to shew the warrant to the person to be arrested, but it is the duty of the bailiff to acquaint the person with the contents of the warrant at the time he arrests him and that he was authorised to arrest him, and if the accused then wants to see the warrant it would be the duty of the bailiff to shew it to him. When a warrant is not shewn to the person arrested nor are the contents of the warrant notified to him, before or at the time of the arrest, there is no lawful arrest. IN THE MATTER OF RAJANI KANTO PAL v. THE EMPEROR ...	843
... s. 290. See s. 447 ...	567
... s. 300, Excp. (i). See s. 304 ...	708
... s. 302. See INSANITY, PLA OF ...	665
... s. 302. See PENAL CODE, s. 304 ...	708
... s. 304—Murder—Culpable homicide not amounting to murder—Provocation, grave and sudden—Provocation, continuing to influence feelings.] Where the accused found a man entering his house at night at the invitation of his wife with whom that man had criminal intimacy and being enraged, caught hold of him and took him outside the house to some distance and there assaulted him so severely that he subsequently died of the injuries received; Held —That the circumstances under which the deceased was found in the house of the accused on the night of the crime were sufficient to cause grave and sudden provocation to the accused and his relations. That the provocation was of a nature that would continue to influence the feelings of the accused for a considerable period after the deceased was caught in the house in the company of the wife of the accused. ABALU DAS v. THE EMPRESS ...	708
... s. 333. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 437 ...	72
... s. 335. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 79 ...	447
... s. 336—Rash and negligent act likely to endanger human life or personal safety of others—Swinging by hooks inserted in the flesh—License to conduct swinging on a Hindu festive occasion—Swinging by means of cloth attached to the swinging apparatus.] A person, having a license to conduct the swinging during charak puja , a Hindu festival, does not, by allowing persons, in his absence, to swing by hooks inserted in the flesh, instead of by being attached to the poles, by cloth, tender him-

Page

Page

Penal Code—contd.

- self liable for an offence under sec. 386, I. P. Code, unless it is shewn that he knew of it. GOPINATH MATHO v. MANSARAM KOOMAR ... 876
- , s. 341—Erecting a fence over a way—Obstruction to public pathway—Decree of Civil Court—Maps and plans depicting way—Unlawful assembly—Wrongful restraint—Magistrate, duty of, to maintain decrees of Civil Court—Rule, enlargement of, at the hearing.] In deciding whether a person, accused of wrongful restraint by erecting a fence over a way had, as he alleged, obtained a decree of the Civil Court with regard to that particular way, a Magistrate should, instead of obtaining evidence to modify or question a decree passed by the Civil Court declaring rights of parties, confine his attention to observing or enforcing the terms of the decree of the Civil Court. RASH MOHAN PAL v. MOHIM CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTY ... 215
- , s. 341. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 423 ... 482
- , s. 342. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 437 ... 72
- , s. 350. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 522 ... 250
- , s. 353. See PENAL CODE, ss. 147, 149 ... 134
- , s. 353. See s. 225B ... 413
- , s. 353. See s. 225B ... 843
- , s. 379. See s. 147 ... 31
- , s. 379—Theft—Sentence. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT, ss. 8, 16 210, 211
- , s. 390—Dacoity—Hurt caused to persons not for the purpose of committing theft—Robbery—"For that end," meaning of—Splitting up of graver offence into smaller offences, in order to give himself jurisdiction.] It is not open to a Magistrate to split up a graver offence into a number of smaller offences which, when combined, constitute that offence, in order to give himself jurisdiction. When hurt or fear of instant hurt is caused by five or more persons for the purpose of dispossessing persons already in possession of some premises and has no relation to the commission of theft, although theft may have been committed at the same time as a perfectly independent act, it does not amount to robbery as defined in sec. 390, I. P. Code. OTARUDDI MANJHI v. KAFIL-UDDI MANJHI ... 372
- , s. 391. See s. 390 ... 372
- , s. 406—Court of Wards, servants of, prosecution of, by proprietor of estate on assuming management—Criminal breach of trust.] The owner of an estate on assuming management thereof is competent to prosecute a servant of the Court of

Page

Penal Code—contd.

- Wards for criminal breach of trust committed during the management of the estate by the Court. TARAK NATH NUNDY v. GOBINDA CHANDRA MITRA ... 248
- , s. 417—Cheating—Including an article in a bill not supplied—Payment of the bill in part—Intention to defraud.] The fact that a trader in a statement of his account included amongst other articles delivered, an article, which the complainant alleged she had returned, does not amount to cheating unless it is proved that he had intentionally done so with an intention to defraud and had obtained a payment of the whole bill or of the bill in part including the price of that article. BAIJ NATH RAM MARWARI v. BURGESS ... 255
- , s. 422—Dishonestly or fraudulently preventing debt being available for creditors—Application to withdraw money paid into Court—Breach of civil contract—Security for payment of debt not endangered—Fraudulent or dishonest intention.] Petitioners' estate was under mortgage and in the management of certain persons under certain conditions as to payment of moneys realised by them. In execution of a decree obtained by the managers in a suit brought by them in the name of the Petitioners, a certain under-tenure was sold for Rs. Rs. 3,000. The judgment-debtor arranged with the Pretiousers that on payment of Rs. 1,000, the sale should be set aside and he accordingly paid that sum into Court, and an application was made by the Petitioners to draw out the money upon which no order was made. They were thereupon convicted, at the instance of the managers, of an attempt to commit an offence under sec. 422, I. P. C.: Held—That the application to obtain the money paid into Court might have been a breach of their contract with the mortgagors but such conduct cannot necessarily be regarded as dishonest or fraudulent so as to render the Petitioners liable to punishment, their attempt to get the money being "more to put an end to the management than to prevent the money from being available to the payment of their debt under the mortgage. Nob'n Chunder Mudduck, 22 W. R. Cr. 46, referred to. HARA KUMARI CHAUDHURANI v. MR. SAVI ... 174
- , s. 447—Public nuisance—Criminal trespass—Conviction on a charge not called upon to meet.] When the accused was called upon to answer a charge under sec. 447, I. P. C., and convicted under that section as also under sec. 290, I. P. C., and on appeal the Sessions Judge was of opinion that the conviction could not be maintained under sec. 447, but that sec. 290 was wide enough to cover the act: Held—That as the accused was not called upon to meet the charge under sec. 290, I. P. C., and had no opportunity to give evidence in rebuttal thereof, the conviction could not stand. IN THE MATTER OF CHINIBAR PAL ... 567

	Page		Page
Penal Code—concl.		Penal Code—concl.
—, s. 486. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477	609, 615	or knowing or having reason to believe that such imputation will harm the reputation of such person Under sec. 282 of the Criminal Procedure Code the Appellate Court has power to order a new trial of a case in making an order on appeal. Quare —Whether an Appellate Court has power under sec. 423 (b) to order a new trial. GOVIND PRASAD PANDAY v. THE EMPRESS	819
—, s. 487. See PENAL CODE, s. 471	897	—, s. 511. See s. 422	174
—, s. 471. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477	609, 615	Perjury. See PENAL CODE, s. 193 AND CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477	609
—, s. 41. See PENAL CODE, s. 800	819	Plaint, statement made in—Defamation. See PENAL CODE, s. 500	293
—, s. 471— Forgery —Using a forged document knowing it to be forged—"Fraudulently" and "dishonestly," meaning of—"False document"—Suit upon a bond for enforcement of payment—Absence of intention to cause wrongful loss if any defence—Intention to deceive.] Intention to cause wrongful loss to another and a deception, actual or intended, are not the necessary ingredients of the intent to defraud. There is a real distinction between the meaning of the terms "fraudulently" and "dishonestly" as used in the Penal Code; the former denotes an intention to deceive. The production of a forged bond by a person in a suit with the intent to make the Court believe that he was entitled to recover money upon the basis of the particular document produced, though may not be dishonest within the meaning of sec. 24 of the Penal Code, may yet be fraudulent within the meaning of sec. 471 of the Code. Queen-Empress v. Abbas Ali , 1 C. W. N. 255; s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 512, Lalit Mohan Sarkar v. Queen-Empress , I. L. R. 22 Cal. 313, In re Dhunoo Kazei , I. L. R. 9 Cal. 53, referred to. Queen-Empress v. Sheo Doyal , I. L. R. 7 All. 459, dissented from. KEDAR NATH CHATTERJEE v. THE KING-EMPEROR	897	Pleader, misconduct of, See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, ss. 13, 14	45, 48
—, s. 499. See s. 500	819	Pleadings, statements of parties in, if privileged. See PENAL CODE, s. 500	293
—, s. 500— Defamation —Statement made in a plaint—Pleadings, statement of parties in, if privileged—Parties and witnesses, distinction between statements made by.] Statements made by parties to the suit in the pleadings are not privileged and a charge for defamation is maintainable in respect of them. Angoda Ram Shaha v. Nemai Chand Shaha , I. L. R. 23 Cal. 867, followed. Nathji Muleshwar v. Lalbhai Ravidut , I. L. R. 14 Bom. 97, dissented from. KALI NATH GUPTA v. GOBINDA CHANDRA BASU	293	Police Act (V of 1861), secs. 17, 19. See PENAL CODE, ss. 147, 149, 353	134
—, s. 500— Defamation —Dishonestly using a forged document, charge for—Conviction for defamation when no charge framed for such an offence—Irregularity—Prejudice—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 232, 423 (b), 423 (2)—New trial, power of Appellate Court to order—Stay of further proceedings.] To constitute an offence of defamation it is not necessary that there should be evidence to show that the complainant has been injuriously affected by such alleged defamation; it is sufficient that there should be an intent that the person who makes or publishes any imputation should do so intending to harm		Possession, joint—Dispute about land. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	105
		—, Summary finding of, by Magistrate in proceeding under sec. 145, if legal—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 145, 438—Summary finding of possession by Magistrate in proceeding under sec. 145—Written statement in such proceeding, proof of—Warrant, issue of, for attendance of parties, legality of—Sessions Judge, power of, on application for redress of irregularity under sec. 145, to report to High Court under sec. 438, C. Cr. P., for orders.] In a case under sec. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure a Magistrate cannot on the failure of one party to file a written statement, summarily pass an order declaring possession with the party who has filed a written statement without taking evidence in proof of such statement. He has no jurisdiction to issue a warrant to compel the attendance of a party in such proceeding. On application to the Sessions Judge for redress against such illegality he should report the matter under sec. 438 of the Code for orders of the High Court, if he is of opinion that the order is illegal and without jurisdiction. KEFATULLAH v. FERUZUDDIN MIAH	71
		— of land—Onus of proof. See PENAL CODE, s. 143	368
		—, restoration of, of immoveable property. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 522	374
		— of parties at date of previous proceeding, if proper. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	900
		Prejudice, if not shewn, whether proceeding vitiated. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	544
		— See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	563, 710

	Page
Prejudice—contd.
Joinder of charges. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 234	294
See PENAL CODE, s. 447	567
Complaint originally made—Conviction for different offence. See COMPLAINT	296
See CONFESSION	670
Transfer of case. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	686
Preliminary enquiry. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477	609, 615
Presidency Magistrate , power of, to commit accused previously discharged by another Presidency Magistrate. See REVIVAL OF COMPLAINT	169
Rehearing of warrant case after discharge of accused person. See DISCHARGE OF ACCUSED	457
reference by. See PENAL CODE, s. 211	727
Presumption —Possession of land—Onus of proof. See PENAL CODE, s. 148	368
See GAMBLING ACT, s. 6	503
Proceeding , one, in respect of several plots of lands, when does not vitiate. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	544
Irregularity. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	710
new, if may be taken as continuation of previous one. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	900
Procedure —Security to be of good behaviour. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 109	28
Complaint of one offence—Conviction for other offences. See COMPLAINT ORIGINALLY MADE	296
in cases of charge of false complaint in police-report. See PENAL CODE, s. 211	106
in criminal trial—Joinder of charges—Prejudice. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 234	294
See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	563
See PENAL CODE, s. 447	567
See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477	609
in proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145	900
Process , issue of, for minor offence—Complaint disclosing facts constituting offence of graver nature. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 580	252
Professional misconduct —Grossly improper conduct—Legal Practitioner advising payment of money to witness to speak the truth or to prevent giving false evidence. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, ss. 13, 14	45
Act done as litigant and not as pleader. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT, ss. 13, 14	48

	Page
Property taken by Police as stolen , disposal of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 517, 523	415
Prostitutes —Public nuisance. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 133	566
Provocation , grave and sudden. See PENAL CODE, s. 304	708
Continuance of, to influence feelings of accused. See PENAL CODE, s. 304	708
Public Demands Recovery Act (I. B. O. of 1895) , removal of crops under attachment in execution of a certificate under. See PENAL CODE, s. 206	291
servant, disobedience of order of. See PENAL CODE, s. 188	329
receiving illegal gratification as such servant. See PENAL CODE, s. 161	332
Rash and negligent act likely to endanger human life or personal safety of others—Swinging in Charak Pujah. See PENAL CODE, s. 336	896
Reference by Presidency Magistrate. See PENAL CODE, s. 211	727
Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897) , s. 8. See s. 16	210
s. 8. See s. 16	211
s. 9. See s. 16	210
s. 16— Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) , sec. 379— Theft—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1893) , sec. 439— High Court , power of revision of— Order for detention of youthful offender in Reformatory School without passing sentence, legality of—Jurisdiction of High Court to consider legality or propriety of conviction, sentence or order, if affected by sec. 16, Reformatory Schools Act—Limitation of power. ] Sec. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897) does not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court, as a Court of revision, to consider the legality or propriety of the conviction or sentence or of any order passed by a Subordinate Court other than that mentioned in that section. Sheikh Reasut v. J. Courtney , 5 O. W. N. 211, referred to. The law requires that a Magistrate trying a case or one to whom the proceedings of the case are submitted under sec. 9 of the Reformatory Schools Act, should, in the first instance, sentence the accused to a term of imprisonment or transportation, which he may then commute into one of detention in a Reformatory School for such period as the law prescribes. An order for the detention of a youthful offender in a Reformatory School, when no sentence of imprisonment or of transportation has been passed, is bad in law. RADHA KRISTO BARAT v. GOKULA NUT	210
s. 16— Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860) , sec. 379— Theft—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1893) , sec. 439— High Court , revisional jurisdiction

	Page
Reformatory Schools Act—contd. of, as to legality or propriety of conviction, sentence or order—Youthful offender—First offence—Sentence, alteration of. Sec. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897) does not in any way take away the jurisdiction of the High Court, as a Court of revision, to alter or set aside the sentence in substitution of which an order for detention in a Reformatory School is made. A young lad was found abstracting a piece of coal from a waggon and was on a charge for theft sentenced to a month's rigorous imprisonment and ordered, in lieu thereof, to be detained in a Reformatory School for 4 years. The High Court, on the ground of its being the first offence and a trivial one, set aside the sentence and passed one of whipping by way of school discipline. SHRIKH REASUT v. J. COURTNEY ... 211
Refusal to accompany police-officer to receive authority of appointment of special constable, if a refusal to serve as such. See POLICE ACT, ss. 17, 19 ... 134
— to register deed, denying execution, prosecution for. See REGISTRATION ACT, s. 82 ... 44
Registration Act (III of 1877), s. 82— Refusal to register deed denying execution, prosecution for—Stay of proceeding pending civil suit to declare deed a forgery. Petitioner denied execution and refused to register a mortgage deed. On appeal the special Sub-Registrar found the deed to be genuine and ordered registration and sanctioned prosecution of the Petitioner under sec. 82 of the Registration Act, subject to the approval of the District Registrar; the sanction was given but the Petitioner applied for stay of proceedings pending decision in a suit he had filed in the Civil Court for having the deed declared a forgery and on the refusal of the Magistrate to stay proceedings: Held —That the Magistrate should have stayed proceedings pending the decision in the civil suit. GOBERDHONE PRAMANICK v. ISHAB CHUNDER PRAMANICK ... 44
Re-hearing of warrant case after discharge of accused, by Presidency Magistrate. See DISCHARGE OF ACCUSED PERSON ... 457
Repute, evidence of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 110, CL. (f) ... 249
Residence outside jurisdiction of Magistrate. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 110 ... 29
Resistance or obstruction to execution of valid warrant. See WARRANT, VALIDITY OF ... 391
— See PENAL CODE, s. 225B ... 418
Restoration of immoveable property. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 522 ... 250
Retrial and commitment—Retrial after discharge. See REVIVAL OF COMPLAINT ... 169
Revision, power of, of High Court, if affected by sec. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT, s. 16 ... 210, 211

	Page
Revision—contd. — Assessment of costs in cases under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 148 ... 291
Revival of complaint by Presidency Magistrate after previous discharge — Commitment of accused previously discharged by another Presidency Magistrate—Order of discharge not set aside—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 252, 253, 403, 435, 436, 437, 439—Reference to Full Bench upon a point raised before prisoner called to plead—Charter Act. There is nothing in the Code to the effect that the dismissal of a complaint shall be a bar to a fresh complaint being entertained so long as the order of dismissal remains unreversed. Hence a commitment by a Presidency Magistrate on fresh evidence is legal although the accused may have been previously discharged by another Presidency Magistrate and the order of discharge was not set aside. Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Srimutty Probod Kumary Dassi , 1 O. W. N. 49, referred to and followed. Girish Chunder Roy v. Dwarka Nath Agarwallah , 1 O. W. N. 370, referred to and dissented from. Nil Ratan Sen v. Jogesh Chunder Bhattacharjee , 1 L. R. 33 Cal. 333, distinguished. Held also —That the Judge presiding at the Sessions has no power to refer to a Full Bench a point of law raised before the accused was called upon to plead. EMPRESS v. DOLE GOBIND DAS ... 169
Right of way, likelihood of breach of the peace concerning. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 147 ... 335 —, interference with. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 423 ... 432
Rioting. See PENAL CODE, s. 147 ... 31
—, acquittal of, whether justifies fresh charge for causing hurt. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 437 ... 72 —, Conviction for, if proper when common object of assembly is to assault public officers in execution of duty, on failure of object. See PENAL CODE, s. 147 ... 184
Robbery. See PENAL CODE, s. 390 ... 372
Rule issued by High Court—Judicial notice. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ... 110
—, enlargement of, at hearing of. See PENAL CODE, s. 341 ... 215
Sanction to build when not given within specified period—Right to build without sanction. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 275 (1) ... 42 — prosecute for bringing a false complaint. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 195 ... 254 —, want of—Removal of property to prevent seizure in execution of certificate under Public Demands Recovery Act. See PENAL CODE, s. 208 ... 291

	Page		Page
Security for good behaviour —Ostensible means of subsistence—Doing no work—Previous conviction. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 109 ...	28	Summary finding of possession by Magistrate in proceedings under sec. 145 of Criminal Procedure Code. See POSSESSION, SUMMARY FINDING OF ...	71
—, from habitual offenders—Repute. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 110 ...	29	— trial. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 530 ...	252
Security for payment of debt not endangered. See PENAL CODE, s. 422 ...	174	— disposal of appeal of accused, legality of, on admission of appeal of co-accused. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 421 ...	333
— to appear when called upon to answer charge of giving false evidence. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ...	630	Theft. See PENAL CODE, s. 147 ...	31
Sentence , alteration of, by High Court, when proper case made out, for youthful offenders. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT, ss. 8, 16 ...	211	—, First offence by youthful offender. See PENAL CODE, s. 379 ...	210
—, setting aside of, by High Court, when order for detention in Reformatory School made. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT, ss. 8, 9, 16 ...	210	Transfer for bias shewn See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ...	108
Sessions Judge , procedure on application for redress of irregularity under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 145, 438, AND POSSESSION, SUMMARY FINDING OF ...	71	— of case without issuing a Rule Nisi . See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ...	250
—, when false evidence given before. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ...	630	— by District Magistrate of case. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 190 ...	488
—, when hearing appeal against conviction for giving false evidence before Magistrate. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 477 ...	630	— of case under sec. 145. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ...	686
Specification of land. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145 ...	563	— See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ...	749
Speedy remedy , whether justifies order for disposal of property. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 517, 528 ...	415	— of pending case. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ...	864
Splitting of offences into smaller ones to give jurisdiction. See PENAL CODE, s. 390 ...	872	Unlawful assembly —Common object charged when disbelieved, finding by Appellate Court of different. See PENAL CODE, s. 147 ...	31
Statement of witness made to police-officer in course of investigation, admissibility of. See PENAL CODE, s. 193 ...	65	— See PENAL CODE, s. 144 ...	252
— made to a Magistrate making enquiry, whether made in judicial proceeding. See PENAL CODE, s. 193 ...	65	— See PENAL CODE, s. 143 ...	368
— false, proof of, if necessary to establish offence under sec. 177 of the Penal Code. See PENAL CODE, s. 177 ...	131	Unsoundness of mind —Sullen disposition. See INSANITY, PLEA OF ...	665
— of witnesses, contradictory. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 AND PENAL CODE, s. 193 ...	411	Using a forged document as genuine. See PENAL CODE, s. 471 ...	897
Statute , construction of, when affecting liberty of subjects. See BENGAL EMBANKMENT ACT, s. 77 ...	108	Waiver of right, adopting suggestions after period of sanction over, if amounts to. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, s. 273 (1) ...	42
Stay of criminal proceedings pending civil suit to declare deed a forgery. See REGISTRATION ACT, s. 82 ...	44	Warrant , issue of, for attendance of parties in proceedings under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, legality of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 145, AND POSSESSION, SUMMARY FINDING OF ...	71
— proceedings by High Court brought to the notice of Magistrate; duty of the latter. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 526 ...	110	—, validity of—Attachment of property in execution of an invalid warrant—Resistance or obstruction to such execution—Re-issue of warrant after expired date, legality of—Penal Code (Act XIV of 1860), secs. 183, 186] A warrant for realization of money due under a certificate from a Revenue officer having the force of a decree, dated the 15th February, was issued on the 24th February 1900 and made returnable on the 5th March following. A return was made on the 3rd March that no property of the debtor could be found. On the 30th March the same warrant was re-issued by the Nazir and made returnable on the following day. In execution of this warrant certain cattle belonging to the judgment-debtor were attached, and these were taken away by the debtor's men who pushed one of the peons. The debtor's men were thereupon prosecuted for and
— in theft case—Order for disposal of property. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 517, 528 ...	415

	Page
Warrant—contd.
convicted of offences under secs. 183 and 186 of the Penal Code: Held —That after the return of the 3rd March was made, the warrant ceased to be a valid warrant and it could not be re-issued in that form. That the warrant being illegal, no offence relating to the execution of such warrant was committed by the persons resisting such execution. ADHAR MIDDAY v. THE EMPRESS ... ..	391
—, incorrect description in, whether invalidates. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 75, AND PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353 ... ..	418
—, validity of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 75, AND PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353 ... ..	418
—, See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 79 ... ..	447
—, issue of, against accused not sent up—Jurisdiction. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 190 ... ..	488
—, execution of, by person not authorized, if valid. See PENAL CODE, ss. 353, 225B ... ..	843
—, in execution of a Civil Court decree, notifications of contents of, if necessary. See PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353 ... ..	843
—, of arrest, issue of, in execution of Civil Court decree See PENAL CODE, ss. 225B, 353 ... ..	843

	Page
Warrant—contd.
—, case, rehearing of, after previous discharge of accused person. See DISCHARGE OF ACCUSED ... ..	457
Way, right of—Likelihood of breach of the peace. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE s. 146 ... ..	335
—, See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 423 ... ..	432
Witnesses and parties, distinction between statements made by—Defamation. See PENAL CODE, s. 500 ... ..	293
—, statements made by—False evidence—Commitment. See PENAL CODE, s. 193, AND CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 215 ... ..	411
Written statement in proceeding under sec. 145, proof of, if necessary. See POSSESSION, SUMMARY FINDING OF ... ..	71
Wrongful restraint—Obstruction of pathway—Civil Court decree. See PENAL CODE, s. 341 ... ..	215
—, conviction for—Right of way, interference with—Power of Appellate Court. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 423 ... ..	462
—, loss, absence of intention to cause, if sufficient in a charge under sec. 471 of the Penal Code. See PENAL CODE, ss. 24, 25, 471 ... ..	897
Youthful offender, detention of, in a Reformatory. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT, ss. 8, 16 ... ..	210, 211

THE CALCUTTA WEEKLY NOTES.

REPORTS.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM OUDH.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.

LORD MACNAGHTEN.

LORD LINDLEY.

SIR RICHARD COUCH.

SIR HENRY DE VILLIERS,
1900.

. 21, July.

HODGES & ANR.,
v.

THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK,
LIMITED.

Surety—Time given to principal debtor—
Quasi purdanashin, position of—Purdanashin —Plea by executant of a document that he did not read or understand its contents—
Contract Act (IX of 1872), sec. 135—Mis- joinder of Appellants.

It is irregular for persons with different defences to a suit and with different reasons for appeal to join in a single appeal.

A surety can contract himself out of the rule which exonerates him from liability if time be given by the creditor to the principal debtor.

Where a surety alleged that he signed the bond without reading it and that he was not given to understand that he was contracting himself out of the ordinary rule :

Held—That people who induce others to advance money on the faith of their under- takings cannot escape from their plain effect on such plea. It requires a clear case of misleading to succeed on such a plea.

A quasi purdanashin woman, i.e., a woman who, not being of the purdanashin class, is yet close to them in kinship and habits and secluded from ordinary social intercourse, is not entitled to the same amount of protection which the law gives to purdanashins. Outside the latter class it must depend in each case on the charac- ter and position of the individual woman whether those who deal with her are or are not bound to take special precautions that her action shall be intelligent and volun- tary and to prove that it was so in case of dispute.

The facts of the case were as follows :—

The suit was brought on a loan transaction by the Respondent Bank against five Defendants of whom two, Colonel and Mrs. Oldham, made no defence, and E. W. Hodges was discharged from the suit at an early stage of the proceedings on a preliminary ground.

The remaining Defendants were the Appellants, one of their main objections to the suit being that they were released as sureties by the fact that the Bank had given time to the principal debtor. The first Court, the Civil Judge of Lucknow (Mr. Mahomed Rafique) considered that they were released, the Court of the Judicial Commissioner which decided in Respondents' favour held that the sureties had not been released.

Robert Hodges was tutor to the Raja of Kapurthala and afterwards magistrate of that place. On 5th December 1838 he married a native lady of Kashmir, named Piyari Phande Khanum, by whom he had five children, among them being the Appellant Hodges and the Defendant E. W. Hodges who had been discharged from the suit and Matilda Helen Oldham, wife of Major Arthur Oldham. The said Kashmiri lady after her marriage took the name of Katherine Hodges. She remained in dress and religion a Mussalmani. Robert Hodges was killed in the Mutiny at Delhi. He left a Will made in 1845. On his death there were five children of whom the eldest son died in 1865. The eldest daughter Henrietta married in 1859 Raja Randhir Singh of Kapurthala and has no concern in the present suit. The second daughter married the 2nd Defendant Col. Arthur Oldham in 1865 and her mother resided with her from then (October 1865) until her death.

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

Col. Oldham was in 1865 in debt to the extent of some Rs. 10,000. In January 1886 he was much pressed for money and saw Mr. Langdon, the Delhi Bank manager of the Bank's branch at Lucknow, proposing that an advance should be made to him of Rs. 14,000. Correspondence followed and Major Oldham offered as securities his wife's mother and Captain Craster of his regiment (the 2nd Appellant). In answer the Bank wrote to say that "if Mrs. Hodges would give the Bank a lien on her property to cover the amount there would be no difficulty."

On 29th January 1886 three documents were executed for securing a loan by the Bank to Col. Oldham. The first was an indenture between Col. Oldham of the first part, Mrs. Katherine Hodges and Captain Craster, who was in the same regiment (the 12th Native Infantry) as Col. Oldham of the second part, and the Bank of the third part, by which, after reciting that the Bank had advanced Rs. 4,500 to Oldham, it was witnessed that the three parties jointly and severally covenanted with the Bank that Oldham should pay the principal and interest and the premiums on a life policy by monthly instalments of Rs. 300 beginning on 10th March next, the whole amount to be recoverable on failure to pay any instalment. The last clause of the deed on which principally the question in this litigation arose is as follows:—

"And it is hereby also agreed and declared that although as between the said Arthur Oldham and the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster are to be considered as sureties only for the said Arthur Oldham, yet as between the said K. Hodges, J. C. B. Craster and the said Bank, the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster, are to be considered as principal debtors to the said Bank so that the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster, their heirs, executors, administrators, or either of them shall not be discharged or exonerated by any dealings between the said Arthur Oldham, his heirs, executors or administrators and the said Bank, whereby the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster as sureties only for the said Arthur Oldham would have been so discharged or exonerated."

The second of the three documents was a letter written by Mrs. Hodges to the Bank. It stated that she handed to the Bank certain certificates for shares in other banks with a power-of-attorney to enable the Bank to sell them. The third document was the power-of-attorney mentioned in the letter.

Mrs. Hodges died on 8th June 1886.

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

The Appellant, Robert Hodges, was her administrator. In September 1886 Col. Oldham failed to pay the instalment due to the Bank. He applied for delay but was informed that the consent of the sureties must be obtained. Craster consented but as there was then no representative to Mrs. Hodges' estate no consent could be given on her part. On the 26th July Mrs. Oldham, wife of Col. Oldham, executed a bond charging her interest under her father's Will in consideration of the forbearance of the Bank from suing Oldham Hodges and Craster until 1st May 1898.

In the present suit instituted by the Bank in 2nd May 1898 to obtain payment from the parties personally liable and from the estate of Mrs. Hodges the important issues raised on the pleadings of the parties were :—

(1) That Mrs. Hodges, a quasi purdahshin lady, was quite unable to understand the three documents in question about which she had not independent advice and which were not explained to her and that the Bank had given time to the principal creditor whereby the sureties were discharged.

Sir W. Rattigan, Q. C., and Mr. Degruyther for the Appellant R. N. Hodges.

Mr. A. J. Ashton for Captain Craster.

Mr. Arthur Cohen, Q. C., and Mr. Mayne for the Bank.

THEIR LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD HOEHOUSE.—The Appellants in this case were Defendants in the suit brought by the Respondent Bank. They had different defences and their reasons in support of the appeal are different. For Defendants so situated to join in a single appeal is an irregular proceeding and might easily result in inconvenient consequences. But they have been allowed to lodge separate cases and their Lordships have heard them by separate counsel; and as matters turn out the misjoinder in appeal will not cause any embarrassment.

On 29th January 1886 three documents were executed for the purpose of securing a loan made by the Bank to Colonel, then Major, Oldham of the 12th Native Infantry, then quartered at Lucknow. The first is an indenture made between Colonel Oldham of the 1st part, Katherine Hodges, widow, of Loodhiana and the Defendant Captain Craster then a Lieutenant in the same regiment of infantry of the 2nd part, and the Bank of the 3rd part. After reciting that Rs. 4,500 had at the request of the other three parties been advanced by the Bank to Oldham upon an agreement for repayment as thereafter provided, it is witnessed that the three parties jointly and severally covenant with the Bank that Oldham shall pay the principal and interest and the premiums on a life policy by monthly instalments of Rs. 300 beginning on the 10th March next; the whole amount to be recoverable on failure to pay any instalment. The last clause of the deed runs as follows :—

"And it is hereby also agreed and declared, that although as between the said Arthur Oldham and the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster, the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster are to be considered as sureties only for the said Arthur Oldham, yet as between the said K. Hodges, J. C. B. Craster, and the said Bank, the said K. Hodges, and J. C. B. Craster are to be considered as principal debtors to the said Bank, so that the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster, their heirs, executors or administrators, or either of them shall not be discharged or exonerated by any dealings between the said Arthur Oldham, his heirs, executors or administrators and the said Bank, whereby the said K. Hodges and J. C. B. Craster as sureties only for the said Arthur Oldham would have been so discharged or exonerated."

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

The second of the three documents is a letter written by Mrs. Hodges to the Bank. It states that she hands to the Bank certain certificates for shares in other banks with a power-of-attorney to enable the Bank to sell them. In the event of her loan account with the Bank (joint and several with Oldham and Craster) becoming out of order by infringement of any of the conditions of the bond securing it, the Bank may sell for the credit of the Loan Account. The third document is the power-of-attorney mentioned in the letter.

On 8th June 1886 Mrs. Hodges died, and the Appellant Robert Hodges is her administrator. In September 1886 Colonel Oldham failed to pay the instalment due to the Bank. He applied for delay, but was informed by the Bank that it could not be granted without the consent of his sureties. Craster consented to a delay of four months, but no consent could be given on the part of Mrs. Hodges' estate to which no representative had then been appointed.

After this much time was consumed in applications by the Bank for payment and proposals on the part of Oldham for delay. On the 26th July 1888 Mrs. Oldham, wife of the Colonel, executed a bond whereby she charged her interest under her father's Will in consideration of the forbearance of the Bank from suing Oldham, Hodges, and Craster till the 1st May 1889. This suit was brought on 2nd May 1889 to obtain payment from the parties personally liable and from the estate of Mrs. Hodges.

The defences raised by Robert Hodges which are now material are these: First he says that Mrs. Hodges was a quasi purdanashin lady, of no education, unable to read or write English, and quite incapable of understanding the terms of the three instruments in question; which were not explained to her, and on which she had no independent advice. Secondly he says that her execution of the instruments was obtained by undue influence and misrepresentation on the part of Colonel and Mrs. Oldham. Thirdly that the Bank had given time to the principal debtor and had thereby discharged the surety.

The fourth and fifth issues stated by the first Court were as follows:—

"4. Was Katherine Hodges a quasi purdanashin lady and uneducated?"

"5. Did Katherine Hodges execute and understand the documents alleged to have been executed by her?"

The first Court answered the fourth issue in the negative (Rec. p. 267). On the fifth issue the learned Judge thought that Mrs. Oldham explained the deeds to Mrs. Hodges, and he says it is apparent that Mrs. Hodges was not a person to sign deeds without first knowing what they contained. He therefore answered the fifth issue in the affirmative. But this latter finding must be taken as qualified by a subsequent part of his judgment.

It will be convenient here to state the position and character of Mrs. Hodges. The main features are summed up shortly in the judgment delivered by one of the learned Judges in the Judicial Commissioner's Court :—

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED

"Mrs. Hodges was by birth a Kashmiri, sister of a well-known Kashmiri gentleman, a political pensioner. Mr. Hodges was employed in the Kapurthala estate and died during the Mutiny. Mrs. Hodges continued to live in Ludhiana till October 1885, staying during the hot weather with the Reverend J. Woodside at Landour. In October 1885 she began to live with her son-in-law Major Oldham at Lucknow. She was a woman of superior mental capacity. She could not understand English, but could read and write Urdu in the Roman character. Her habits were those of a native in this country. She did not appear before strangers, but had a limited circle of friends either natives of the country, or Europeans connected with natives of the country before whom she appeared. According to Mr. Woodside, though Mrs. Hodges had great ability she was incapable of doing business such as getting interest on her Government Promissory Notes. According to Colonel and Mrs. Oldham she managed all her affairs. The Respondent Hodges has admitted that with the exception of certain remittances to England, Mrs. Hodges transacted all other business herself (Exhibit 25). There can be no doubt that for 27 years she managed her affairs with prudence and success, possibly with some assistance from friends."

A few particulars may usefully be added. Her marriage with Mr. Hodges is said to have taken place in the year 1838 when she must have been hardly fifteen years old. It was solemnised by the Reverend Mr. Rogers according to the rites of the Presbyterian Church. She then took the Christian name of Katherine and retained it during her life instead of her birthname of Piyari Phundo Khanum. Her children, five in number, were all baptised into the Christian Church. Her husband was killed at Delhi in 1857. It does not appear that she ever ceased to be Mahomedan in religion, and she clearly was of that religion both before her marriage and during her widowhood. But the statement that her habits were those of a native Indian must be taken subject to the qualifications necessarily resulting from the events of her life, and to the fact that during widowhood she resided much with Mr. Woodside, a Christian missionary, and appeared uncovered before his male servants as well as her own.

In this part of the case there is no discrepancy in the evidence except on some small immaterial details, and none at all in the findings of the two Courts. It is abundantly clear that Mrs. Hodges was not a pardanashin. The term quasi-pardanashin seems to have been invented for this occasion. Their Lordships take it to mean a woman who, not being of the pardanashin class, is yet so close to them in kinship and habits and so secluded from ordinary social intercourse, that a like amount of incapacity for business must be ascribed to her, and the same amount of protection which the law gives to pardanashins must be extended to her. The contention is a novel one and their Lordships are not favourably impressed by it. As to a certain well known and easily ascertained class of women, well known rules of law are established, with the wisdom of which we are not now concerned. Outside that class it must depend in each case on the character and position of the individual woman whether those who deal with her are or are not bound to take special precautions that her action shall be intelligent and voluntary, and to prove that it was so in case of dispute. Mrs. Hodges was an independent woman of more than ordinary capacity for, and experience in, dealing with property. It would be very unjust to hold that the Bank was bound to treat her on any other footing.

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

As regards the allegation that the security given by Mrs. Hodges was procured by undue influence and misrepresentation on the part of the Oldhams there is absolutely no evidence beyond the facts that she was residing with them, that Mrs. Oldham was her favourite daughter, and was in the habit of explaining English expressions to her as she did on the occasion in question. No formal issue was stated on this point, but it has been much pressed, though not so much at this Bar as in the Courts below. The Judicial Commissioner examines the matter very carefully and is at pains to show not only that Mrs. Hodges was freely consenting to the transaction, but that having regard to the family circumstances it was not at all an unreasonable thing for her to assist Colonel Oldham as she did.

On this important part of the case their Lordships have no difficulty in expressing agreement with both the lower Courts. In what comes afterwards it is difficult to follow them. The District Judge goes on to try the eighth issue. Did Katherine Hodges execute the bond as a principal or as a surety? Now when it had once been found that she was a competent woman of business and understood the deed and executed it willingly, nothing remained for the purpose of ascertaining her position except to construe the deed unless there had been some special case set up making a distinction between one part of the deed and another, of which there is no trace in the pleadings the issues or the judgments. The deed is not open to any serious doubt. Mrs. Hodges covenants that Oldham shall pay. That makes her a surety, liable to pay the whole immediately on Oldham's default. She is a surety with all the rights of a surety to be indemnified by him and to have contribution from her co-surety. But as regards the Bank she was to be considered as a principal debtor, not so as to be liable while Oldham was meeting the instalments, but so as not to be discharged by dealings between the Bank and Oldham which were otherwise calculated to discharge a surety. The District Judge however goes to the extrinsic evidence, and he decides that Mrs. Hodges was a surety pure and simple. His only grounds are, partly some loose general statements, made most of them subsequent to the deed, by Colonel Oldham and Mr. Langdon, the Bank manager, that she was surety, which is quite true; and partly because from the evidence of Mr. Woodside it is apparent that she never would have agreed to stand as a principal (Rec. p. 272).

The learned Judge can hardly have been serious in treating Mr. Woodside's opinion as evidence. But great stress has been laid at this Bar and was evidently laid in the Courts below, on the hardship which the last clause of the deed inflicts upon the sureties, and on the consequent probability that they would not have borne their part in the transaction if its exact effect had been explained to them. That its exact legal effect was not explained is probable enough, seeing that counsel at this Bar found it difficult to say what effect it would have except the effect of avoiding the rule by which the sureties are now seeking to protect themselves. That rule, though established in English law, and imported into the Indian

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

Contract Act, sec. 135, without express mention of all the qualifications which attach to it in England, has often operated as a surprise and hardship on creditors. It has long since become a common thing, at least in England, for prudent lenders of money to prevent its application by provisions like that which is found in the document under consideration. Whether that practice has been so common in India is not apparent. But it has been the practice of the Plaintiff Bank, and this deed was copied from a printed form. Neither of the Courts below intimates that there is anything unusual in the provision, nor that in this particular case its insertion was in any way improper or calculated to deceive.

It seems to their Lordships not only not probable but highly improbable that a lady who was knowingly and willingly making herself liable for the whole debt in the, only too likely, event of Colonel Oldham's default, should draw back from that engagement on being informed that if it so chanced that the Bank gave indulgence to Colonel Oldham of a kind which is usually calculated to benefit all the debtors alike, her liability to the Bank would still continue. The addition to her responsibility was a minute one. Having swallowed the camel she would hardly strain at this gnat.

Nevertheless the District Judge having found that Mrs. Hodges executed the deed as surety, as she undoubtedly did, proceeds to treat it as if there were nothing else in it and holds that she was discharged when time was given to Colonel Oldham. He does not bestow any examination on the question, or even put the question, whether as regards explanations given to Mrs. Hodges, or as regards her understanding, there is any different evidence applicable to the final clause of the deed from that which applies to the deed as a whole and which convinced him that she understood it.

On this question of suretyship the Judicial Commissioner's Court arrives at the same conclusion in a different and more legitimate way, i.e., on the construction of the deed. The judgment lays it down that inasmuch as the prior part of the deed created Mrs. Hodges and Captain Craster sureties, the latter part cannot make them principal debtors. Their Lordships cannot understand this argument nor was it supported at this Bar. They have above given their view of the meaning of the deed.

The Judicial Commissioners however did not support the District Judge, because they thought that the Bank did not contract with Colonel Oldham to give him time. It seems however to their Lordships that having taken Mrs. Oldham's security, as the result of a correspondence with her husband, in consideration of forbearance from suing the three debtors, the Bank effectually precluded itself from suing between July 1888 and May 1889. If they could agree with either Court on the effect of the deed they would hold that Mrs. Hodges was discharged; but as they think that the construction of the High Court is wrong and that the District Judge is wrong in disregarding the final clause of the deed, they must affirm the liability of her estate to the Bank.

Captain Craster's case is different and much more simple. His personal position is in no way peculiar. He was a man living in the world, 32 years of age, and had been working with his regiment for about three years. He does not allege any improper influence on the part of his superior officer Colonel Oldham who procured his execution of the deed. His case is that Langdon, the Bank manager, misled him as to the nature of the deed. This is his account of what happened with Langdon.

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

"I saw Mr. Langdon in his office and said 'Colonel Oldham tells me that he is desirous of obtaining a loan from your Bank and I have come down to see you regarding the matter.' I said, 'do you consider that if I stand security to your Bank for so large a sum I shall be incurring any unnecessary risk?' Mr. Langdon replied 'No.' He said Mrs. Katherine Hodges will be security with you. She is lodging Bank shares as extra security. Colonel Oldham's life will be insured for a sum of Rs. 14,000, and Colonel Oldham will repay the loan at the rate of Rs. 300 per mensem. I said, well, you must recollect I have no other means besides my pay and should anything happen to prevent Colonel Oldham paying up I can't do so. Mr. Langdon said in the face of the security of Mrs. Hodges, and the shares that she has lodged and also Colonel Oldham's life being insured, I do not see how you can run any great risk since Colonel Oldham is paying Rs. 300 a month, and in the event of his death we get the Rs. 14,000 Life Insurance. I said, very well, you accept me as a co-surety for the amount. He said, yes, a deed will be drawn up by which you will become surety to the Bank."

Langdon says that this account is correct in the main, but he will not speak to every detail (p. 257); afterwards adding that he is convinced that he told Captain Craster that he would be a principal debtor; only that the Bank would not call upon him unless Oldham failed (p. 258).

The deed was brought to Craster for his signature by Oldham on the Rifle Range at Lucknow. He executed it without making any attempt to read it, relying, as he says, on Oldham, who told him that it was the Bond drawn up in accordance with his agreement made with Langdon. As to the tenor of the deed he says :—

"I understood the liability of a principal to be greater than that of surety. I object to being called a principal debtor. Had I read the passage in Exhibit A 1, 'are to be considered as principal debtors to the said Bank,' I would never have signed Exhibit A 1. The said passage is quite plain to me. I have borrowed money once of the Bank. I had to sign and get a surety also. I can't remember if that transaction was prior to the one in suit. The look of the paper I signed for that transaction was something like Exhibit A 1. Had a stamp above and writing below. I did not read the paper for that transaction. I repaid the money."

Colonel Oldham says that he told Craster what Langdon had told him; that all would be jointly and severally liable. "The Bank may come down on you directly without reference to me" (p. 254). And again (p. 255) "I took the Bond to him myself. I did not read it to him. I explained it to him fully that he was responsible irrespective of me. It was fully explained to him that he would jointly and severally be liable."

In fact both Langdon and Oldham, if they correctly remember what they said, appear to have represented the liability of the sureties not as something less but as something greater than it "actually was; viz., as an immediate liability to the Bank instead of one dependent on Oldham's default.

Captain Craster also relies on Langdon's refusal to give time upon Oldham's first application without consent of the sureties. That however cannot affect the legal rights of the parties; and indeed at this Bar it is only used in a legitimate way, as showing Langdon's real belief that Craster was a surety pure and simple, and so lending probability to Craster's statement that Langdon had misled him into believing the same thing. But this reference to sureties may have been merely a point of courtesy or of unnecessary caution, or perhaps only a civil excuse to Colonel Oldham for not giving the indulgence he asked. It is no more evidence that Langdon really misrepresented the effect of the deed to Captain Craster, than his acting at a later time without reference to the sureties would be evidence the other way. It ought to be treated as wholly insignificant.

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

Their Lordships have already mentioned their reasons for thinking it highly improbable that those who incurred the substantial liability of the whole debt would have scrupled at this particular clause. It has become important now, and Captain Craster may think that he would have treated it as of vital importance then, if all the consequences had been explained to him. But it has been before stated that he was a man who ought to have been, and probably was, able to look after his own affairs. He admits that the effect of the deed is plain to his understanding; only he did not take the trouble to read it. It would be a very dangerous thing to allow people who have induced others to advance money on the faith of their undertakings, to escape from the plain effect of those undertakings on the plea that they did not understand them. It requires a clear case of misleading to succeed on such a plea. The District Judge seems to have acted on Captain Craster's statement alone. He does not mention the counter statements of Oldham and Langdon.

Taking Craster's statement it hardly amounts to more than that Langdon underrated the risk he was running, and said that he was to be surety (which was the fact) without any particular mention of the last clause in the deed; which very likely was not mentioned. That would not suffice to show that Langdon misled Craster. But putting all the evidence together their Lordships are satisfied that Craster was given to understand, perhaps even too broadly, that in his liability to the Bank he stood upon an equal footing with Colonel Oldham and Mrs. Hodges.

The District Judge granted a decree against the Oldhams and dismissed the suit as against Hodges and Craster with costs. The Court of the Judicial Commissioner gave a decree against all the Defendants. This their Lordships hold to be right though they differ as regards the grounds on which it should rest. The decree, however, is against all the Defendants personally to pay the whole sum found due or accruing due. That does not recognise the representative position of Robert Hodges, who is only brought here as administrator of his mother's estate. In delivering judgment the learned Judicial Commissioner states that Mrs. Hodges was in the possession of her husband's estate and remained the ostensible owner of the balance with consent of her sons, and that she was treated as the owner of the entire property by the Defendant Hodges in his application for probate. He states a formal finding on the sixth issue thus: "I find that the Defendant Hodges is liable to the extent of the entire estate in the possession of Mrs. Hodges." It does not appear that this Record contains the requisite materials for trying such a question, which is more appropriate for a separate inquiry; and it is not disputed by the Plaintiff's counsel that, as Hodges has not admitted assets, it would be more regular to ascertain the measure of his liability by inquiries in the execution of the decree. Their Lordships think that it would be right to add to the decree as follows:—"But as regards the Defendant Robert Nathaniel Hodges this decree is, except as regards the costs hereby ordered to be paid, made against him in his representative capacity. Let all proper inquiries be made and accounts taken for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of the estate of Katherine Hodges and the liability of the Bank shares pledged by her and of her administrator Robert Nathaniel Hodges to make good the debt due to the Plaintiff Bank." Their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty to dismiss the appeal and with the qualification just mentioned to affirm the decree. As regards the costs of the appeal, the case of Captain Craster has wholly failed, and the case of Robert Hodges has failed on the most material points. Their Lordships think that the modification now made ought not to affect the costs; especially considering that no attempt was made in the Court below to review the judgment on this point. The Appellants must pay the costs.

HODGES v. THE DELHI AND LONDON BANK, LIMITED.

Solicitors: Messrs. Young, Jackson, Beard & King for the Appellant.

Solicitors: Messrs. Lyne & Holman for the Bank.

Appeal dismissed.

C. W. A.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE BOMBAY
HIGH COURT.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.

LORD MACNAGHTEN.

LORD LINDLEY.

SIR RICHARD COUCH.

SIR HENRY DE VILLIERS.

1900.

21, July.

MALKARJUN BIN

SHIDRAMAPPA

PASARE

v.

NARHARI BIN

SHIVAPPA and

another.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 311—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Arts. 12 (a), 118—Execution proceedings against estate of deceased judgment-debtor without notice to legal representative or making him party, irregularity—Sale in such execution if a nullity or only voidable—Sale, setting aside of, for irregularity—Purchaser at an execution sale, if bound to enquire into its defect, or legality—Want of jurisdiction and error of judgment—Suit for redemption of mortgage in which relief is consequential on annulment of sale—Limitation—Pleadings—Parties—Frame of suit.

Where a decree had been made against the judgment-debtor and after his death application for execution was made against "the estate" of the deceased and against a person as heir, who was in fact not the heir, and without notices to the proper heirs the property was sold:

Held—That such a sale can "only" be set aside in the regular way by proceedings under sec. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure or by a regular suit within a year of the confirmation of the sale as provided under Art. 12 (a), Sch. II of the Limitation Act of 1877.

BASWANTAPA v. RANU (1) distinguished.

The fact that the Court proceeded with the execution upon notice to a person not

(1) I. L. R. 8 Bom. 88 (1884).

MALABARJI BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PAKARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

the legal representative is an error of judgment and does not amount to adjudication without jurisdiction so as to render the sale a nullity. Such sale can only be set aside as above stated.

A purchaser at an execution sale, who is a stranger to the suit, is not expected to enquire into its accuracy or to judge of its legality and is justified in believing that the Court has done all that which the law requires.

At the above-mentioned sale the property of the judgment-debtor was purchased by a previous mortgagee thereof and a suit for redemption and accounts was brought by the real heirs ignoring or treating the sale as a nullity

Held—That they could not succeed in their suit for redemption unless they first brought a suit or remodelled the one they had already brought, for setting aside the sale making the original decree-holder a party thereto.

A party seeking relief inconsistent with a previous sale must pray to set it aside.

One year's limitation prescribed by Art. 12 (a) of the Act of 1877 is not confined only to suits, which seek no relief other than a declaration that a sale ought to be set aside but apply also to suits where other relief is sought which can only be granted on annulment of the sale.

The principle in JAGADAMBA CHOWDRANI v. DAKHINA MOHUN (2) applies to this case.

The doctrine of the Bombay High Court in BHAGVANT GOVIND v. KONDI (3) that where the necessity for impugning the sale is subservient to a suit for redeeming the mortgage, a different period of limitation is to prevail, is unsupportable.

Appeal from a decision of the Full Bench of the Bombay High Court composed of Jardine, Candy and Ranade, JJ., on reference by Farran, C. J., and Parsons, J.*

Suit for redemption. The Plaintiffs (represented by the Respondents in the present appeal) merely stated that they were the daughters and heirs, under the Will, of one Nagappa who had on the 28th March 1877 mortgaged the property in question to the Defendant (the present Appellant) and they prayed for accounts and redemption of the mortgage.

The Defendant by his written statement stated that, subsequent to his mortgage, on the 27th June 1877, one Hanmant Vithal had obtained a decree against Nagappa, in execution of which Nagappa's interest in the property was put up for sale, that it was purchased by the Defendant on the 9th June 1880; and that on the 11th October 1880 possession was given to him and had continued with him ever since. He went on to contend that the claim for redemption cannot be maintained unless a suit is brought to set aside the sale, that the legality of the sale could not be impeached in the present suit, one reason being that Vithal, the decree-holder, was no party to the suit, but that if the sale be impugned he had a good answer to it. No mention of this sale was made in the plaint, Plaintiffs persisted in their suit according to its original frame, and eleven issues were framed none of which was adapted to examine the propriety of the execution proceedings.

The facts with regard to the sale were

(2) L. R. 13 I. A. 54 (1886).

(3) L. R. 14 Bom. 279 (1889).

* Reported as Brava v. Sidramappa, L. L. R. 21 Bom. 424 (1895).—Ed.

MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PASARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

as follows:—Vithal's decree was against Nagappa as principal debtor and Wyankappa as surety, the latter being the son-in-law of Nagappa and the husband of one of the Plaintiffs. On Nagappa's death, after decree, Vithal applied for execution of the decree against "the estate of the deceased Nagappa" and the names of the parties against whom execution was sought were given as "Defendant Nagappa, deceased, by his heir and nephew Ramlinga" and Wyankappa. A year having elapsed since the decree, notice was issued under sec. 284, C. P. C., and served upon Ramlinga and Wyankappa and not upon the Plaintiffs. Ramlinga appeared and informed the Court, as the fact was, that he was separated from his deceased uncle Nagappa and was not his heir; that the Plaintiffs in the present suit were Nagappa's heirs and that he was not in possession of the estate. He was informed by the Court that the application was not against his property but against the estate of the deceased Nagappa and that if his property should be attached, he would have his remedy after attachment.

The property was then attached and was followed by a sale proclamation in which the Defendant was described as "Nagappa, deceased, after decree—heir Ramlinga" and the interest to be sold as that of "Nagappa, deceased, his heir Ramlinga." At the execution sale on the 9th June 1880, the mortgagee Sidramappa (the Defendant) purchased the property and a certificate of sale was granted to him when the sale was confirmed. He had given notice of his mortgage and the sale was made subject to it. The certificate of sale described the interest sold as that of "the deceased Nagappa." On the 11th October 1880, the Defendant was put into formal possession, he being already in possession as a mortgagee.

Mr. Phillips for the Appellant.

The Respondents were not represented.

'Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD HOBHOUSE.—The Respondents to this appeal represent the Plaintiffs below who instituted their suit on the 24th January 1889. The Defendant below is now represented by the Appellant. The Plaintiffs stated that on 28th March 1877 one Nagappa whose heirs they are, mortgaged land to the Defendant to secure the sum of Rs. 3,000; and they prayed for accounts and redemption of the mortgage.

The only defence which need now be considered was that in a suit instituted against Nagappa by a creditor of his named Vithal, a decree was obtained in execution of which Nagappa's interest in the property was put up for sale; that it was purchased by the Defendant on 9th June 1880; and that on 11th October 1880 possession was given to the Defendant and had continued with him ever since. The plaint was wholly silent about this sale. The written statement went on to suggest that the Plaintiffs might possibly contend that the sale was illegal because it took place without the Plaintiffs being joined in the certificate as heirs. The Defendant said that he waited to hear whether the Plaintiffs would make any such case, but that if they did he had an answer to it; and he pleaded by anticipation that the legality of the sale could not be impeached in the present suit, one reason being that Vithal the decree-holder was no party to the suit. Finally the Defendant put in a distinct plea that the claim for redemption cannot be maintained unless a suit is brought to set aside the sale.

MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PASARE v. NABHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

The Plaintiffs persisted in their suit according to its original frame. Eleven issues were settled by the first Court. The first issue was whether the mortgage debt merged in the subsequent purchase. In point of form that issue was not adapted to the facts of the case; nor, as it was treated by the first Court, was it adapted in point of substance. There was no issue adapted to examine the propriety of the execution proceedings.

The first Court dismissed the suit on the ground, as the learned Judge expressed it, that the mortgage merged in the purchase. The Plaintiffs appealed. They complained that proper issues had not been stated, and that they had been prevented from tendering evidence on points connected with the regularity of the execution proceedings. The Defendant made objections to the same effect. But no further issues were stated, and no further evidence was given.

The Judge of the second Court, the first appeal Court, who is styled the joint first class Subordinate Judge, A. P. at Sholapur, affirmed the decree below. As there has been no remand of the case on account of defects in the issues or evidence, his findings of fact are in this stage conclusive; and from them and the documents referred to in them the case appears to stand as follows. Vithal's decree was against Nagappa as principal debtor and Wyankappa as surety. The latter was Nagappa's son-in-law being the husband of Tukava one of the original Plaintiffs in this suit. The date of the decree was 27th June 1877. It is an important document but there is no copy of it in the record. It is spoken of as a simple decree for payment of money; but from terms of the application for execution, which was made on 22nd November 1878 (Rec. p. 21) it appears that the decree also related to some property which was mortgaged, and that on a previous application made in the year 1878 a trifling sum, Rs. 3, As. 4, had been realised by sale of that property. The application is in a tabular form as required by the then Code of Procedure, the terms of which are those of sec. 235 of the existing Code of 1882. The name of the person against whom the execution is sought is given as "the estate of the deceased Nagappa." The names of the parties are given as, first Nagappa deceased by his heir Ramlingappa, and secondly Wyankappa. The relief sought is sale of the immoveable property of the deceased Defendant for the realisation of Rs. 65 and a fraction, being the balance remaining due under the decree.

Notices were served upon Ramlingappa and Wyankappa. The former was the nephew of Nagappa but was not his heir, the family having been divided as the Court has now found. On the 23rd December 1878 Ramlingappa appeared to show cause. What then took place appears from an entry of that date. Ramlingappa stated "As Nagappa separated from my father even during [my father's] lifetime I am not Nagappa's heir. His heirs are his daughters" (and he named them, meaning to name the Plaintiffs). "I have not with me any 'estate' of the deceased nor did I receive it. Therefore this decree should not be executed against me."

MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PASARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

The Court's judgment was as follows: "The Plaintiffs' application for execution is not against other property: it is against the 'estate' of the deceased. If [any] property belonging to you is included in that [estate], you should take legal steps after the attachment is levied." (See Rec. pp. 25, 26).

After that the execution proceedings went on; with the result that the mortgaged property was put up on the 9th June 1880 to be sold subject to the charge then stated to be Rs. 3,680, and was bought by the Defendant. It would appear that the property was considered to be worth nothing substantial beyond the mortgage debt; the highest biddings for all the lots only amounting to Rs. 9-12.

The second Court dismissed the Plaintiffs' appeal. The learned Judge proceeded on the ground that Ramlingappa was a legal representative of Nagappa within the meaning of the Code because he was a relative of the deceased and was possessed of some of his property. He also relied on the presence of Wyankappa as a party to the execution proceedings, arguing that knowledge of them was thus brought home to the Plaintiffs, and that they could not be allowed to lie by for years and then after the property had increased in value to treat the sale as invalid. If, he said, they objected to the proceedings as irregular they ought to have sued within the year allowed by the law of limitation.

The Plaintiffs appealed to the High Court, when there appeared a great variety of judicial opinion. The appeal was first heard before Sir Charles Farran, C. J., and Parsons, J. The former of those learned Judges pointed out the insufficiency of the reasons assigned by the Courts below for their decrees. He held that notice should have been served on Nagappa's heirs, and that in default of such notice the sale was informal and irregular, and might be set aside on an application made in good time (Rec. p. 172). Then he addressed himself to the question whether the sale however irregular was a nullity; and he held that it was not, that it must be set aside before the Plaintiffs could recover the property, and that they had never sued to set it aside (pp. 172, 174). Parsons, J., on the other hand held that the sale was an entire nullity and that the Plaintiffs were entitled to proceed as if it had never taken place (p. 176).

Upon this conflict of opinion the cause was referred to three other Judges of the High Court. Ranade, J., agreed with Parsons, J., that the Court had no jurisdiction at all to make the sale which was consequently a nullity (p. 184). Candy, J., without deciding the point, assumed for the purpose of his judgment that the sale passed the property subject to challenge in a regular suit, but he held the present suit to be a suit for that purpose. He further held that the suit was brought in good time; apparently on the ground that the right to set aside the sale is subservient to the right to redeem, and that the necessity of impugning the sale arises from the Defendant resisting the suit to redeem (p. 180). Jardine, J., gives his reasons at length for holding that the

MALEKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PANARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

Court had jurisdiction to order the sale and that the sale was not a nullity. * But then he expresses agreement with Candy, J., as to the nature of the present suit and its competency (p. 182).

The decree of the High Court does nothing but direct accounts to determine what amount the Plaintiffs must pay for redemption. It does not set aside the sale. It must therefore rest on the principle that the sale is an absolute nullity, though in fact only one of the Judges on the first hearing and one on the second hearing was of that opinion.

This is indeed the cardinal point of the case, and it is one of great importance to all those who take property under the apparent security afforded by a judicial sale, which in India is conducted not by the creditor who seeks payment, but by the Court itself. It is very unfortunate that the views which have prevailed in the High Court have not been supported by any argument at this Bar. Their Lordships have done what they can to understand and appreciate the views of the two learned Judges who think that the sale was a nullity, and to examine the authorities cited for that opinion, but they feel the disadvantage of being without a Respondent.

It is not disputed that if the Court took proceedings wholly without jurisdiction the Plaintiffs would remain unaffected by them, and two of the learned Judges below go the whole length of affirming that the execution Court had no jurisdiction. But a decree had been made, and partially, though to a minute extent, executed against Nagappa; and his estate was liable to make good the balance. To enforce this liability was within the jurisdiction of the Court. If a judgment-debtor dies before full execution of a decree the creditor may apply for execution against his legal representative. To receive that application is part of the Court's jurisdiction. In point of fact the application made was against "the estate of Nagappa," and in another column Ramlingappa is named as his heir. The Court had jurisdiction to receive such an application and either to reject it as defective or to order some further proceeding. If Ramlingappa had actually been successor in title nobody could have objected to the regularity of the proceedings. If there had been a dispute who was heir or whether the property had or had not devolved upon the heir, it was for the Court to determine such matters for the purpose of the execution. If it had been found impossible to discover whether any representative of the deceased was in existence, it was for the Court to say what steps should be taken. All these matters, which might involve questions of nicety, were for the Court to decide. It is clear that the jurisdiction was not lost for the reason that the form of application might be open to exception. How was it lost afterwards?

The Code goes on to say that the Court shall issue a notice to the party against whom execution is applied for. It did issue notice to Ramlingappa. He contended that he was not the right person, but the Court having received his protest decided that he was the right person, and so proceeded with the execution. In so doing the Court was exercising its jurisdiction. It made a bad mistake it is true; but a Court has jurisdiction to decide wrong as well as right. If it decides wrong, the wronged party can only take the course prescribed by law for setting matters right; and if that course is not taken the decision, however wrong, cannot be disturbed. The real complaint here is that the execution Court construed the Code erroneously. Acting in its duty to make the estate of Nagappa available for payment of his debt, it served with notice a person who did not legally represent the estate, and on objection decided that he did represent it. But to treat such an error as destroying the jurisdiction of the Court is calculated to introduce great confusion into the administration of the law. Their Lordships agree with the view of the learned Chief Justice that a purchaser cannot possibly judge of such matters, even if he knows the facts and that if he is to be held bound to inquire into the accuracy of the Court's conduct of its own business no purchaser at a Court sale would be safe. Strangers to a suit are justified in believing that the Court has done that which by the directions of the Code it ought to do.

MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMATPA PASARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

As for authority, many cases are cited, but their Lordships cannot find any decision which supports the one now under discussion. That which is relied on by Candy, J., is Basvantapa v. Ranu (1). In that case the creditor of a man who was dead sued his mother in the character of heir, whereas the real heir of the debtor was his widow. In August 1878 the creditor obtained a decree ex parte upon which execution took place and the debtor's property was transferred to the Defendant in November 1880. In 1881 a son adopted by the widow of the debtor sued by her as his guardian to recover the land. The plea of bar by time under Art. 12 of the Limitation Act was set up; and it was held that the article did not apply because the sale was a nullity and there was no need to set it aside. In that case neither the debtor nor his estate were ever made subject to the decree of the Court, the liability never was established, and the process of execution had nothing to rest upon. The Court actually had not the jurisdiction which it purported to exercise. It is a different matter when the Court has by its decree established the debtor's liability and is in the process of working it out against his estate.

Other decisions are cited in which proper notices have not been served after decree; but on examining them they all appear to be cases in which proceedings have been taken, either under sec. 311 of the Code or by independent suit, within the year allowed for setting aside a sale. In such cases the necessity for distinguishing between irregularity and nullity does not arise; and general assertions of the invalidity of such sales, quite appropriate to the case in which and the purpose for which they are used, are only misleading when separated from their context and applied to a case in which the distinction between irregularity and nullity is the cardinal point.

It is then necessary for the Plaintiffs to set aside the sale in order to clear the ground for redemption of the mortgage. There can be no question that omission to serve notice on the legal representative is a serious irregularity, sufficient by itself to entitle the Plaintiff to vacate the sale. But there may be defences to such a proceeding, and justice cannot be done unless those defences are examined by legal methods. It may be that the Plaintiffs could unite a suit to set aside with one to redeem, and that the Defendant's anticipatory plea of misjoinder would if tried have been overruled. But that need not be discussed, because their Lordships think it to be beyond reasonable dispute that this is not a suit to set aside the sale.

(1) I. L. R. 9 Bom. 86 (1884).

MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PASARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

The Plaintiffs have deliberately refused to make it such a suit in the face of the Defendant's challenge. It can only be called a suit to set aside a sale in the sense in which any other suit might be so called if it prayed relief inconsistent with the validity of the sale. Candy, J., considers that the only thing wanting is a formal prayer to set the sale aside, and he says that if the plea had been raised that there was no such prayer leave would have been given to amend. (Rec. p. 179). In fact the plea was raised at a time when the Plaintiffs could amend at their option, but they did not do it. To give leave to amend at the hearing may have been in the discretion of the Court, but it would be very far from a matter of course to do so. It would be giving leave to institute a new suit with the date of an earlier one. The decree-holder would be affected by it. He would be a proper party and (unless there is some recognised practice in India to the contrary as to which Mr. Phillips could not inform the Board) a necessary one. The issues would be different. It cannot be denied that the conduct of interested parties at the time of sale may be a bar to them when they come to set it aside. The Defendant said openly that if the Plaintiffs made a case for setting aside the sale he had got an answer to it. If the Plaintiffs then made such a case he must have been allowed to make his answer, and the issues raised by him or by the judgment-creditor must have been tried. When defeated in the first Court the Plaintiffs complained (Rec. p. 153) that proper issues had not been framed for trying points connected with the sale: which was true though it was their own fault: but they did not ask to remodel their suit. When defeated in the second Court they complained (Rec. p. 165) that the Court had drawn presumptions as to their knowledge of the sale without issues or evidence; which was true; but they did not ask to remodel their suit. In fact their case has been conducted throughout on the principle that the question of nullity was the sole question, and that they could not succeed on any other ground. To allow them now to shift their ground and to make a new case, and that too without allowing the Defendant an opportunity of making the defence which he says he has in reserve, is wrong in principle and is calculated to work practical injustice.

In the case of Jagadamba Chowdrani v. Dakhina Mohun (2) the Plaintiffs were reversionary heirs of a deceased Hindu, subject to the interest of his widows. They brought suits not long after the surviving widow's death to recover the estate. But adoptions had been made in 1853 and 1856, either of which, if valid, would displace the Plaintiffs. The law of limitation applicable to the case (the Act of 1871) provided that a suit to set aside an adoption must be brought within 12 (sic. 6) years after the date of the adoption. The Plaintiffs sued, not to set aside the adoptions, but to recover the estate; and they argued that their title was good until an adoption was set up; that those who set it up must prove its validity; which accordingly might be controverted by the Plaintiffs. There was difficulty in the case because the expression "set aside an adoption" is inaccurate; an adoption cannot be set aside, though its validity may be impeached; and in fact the language was altered in 1877 before the appeal was heard. This Board found however that the expression had been frequently used in legal documents and was known to Indian lawyers as a short way of denoting any process in which the fact or the validity of an adoption was disputed. On that ground they held that the Legislature must have intended to place the specified limit on suits for these purposes. Then the suit, being rightly described as one to set aside an adoption, attracted the consequence that the time for suing ran from the date of the adoption, and that the suits of 1873 and 1874 were barred. It is obvious that the expression "set aside a sale" is not attended by any such difficulty, because a sale, valid until set aside, can be legally and literally set aside; and anybody who desires relief inconsistent with it may and should pray to set it aside. That brings us to the last point in this rather tangled controversy: viz., what is the period allowed for setting a sale aside?

MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PASARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

Their Lordships have discussed the nature of this suit in detail because the two learned Judges who affirm or assume the reality of the sale make the case turn upon it. But if the conclusion could be reached that the suit is one to set aside the sale, the result would be equally fatal to the Plaintiffs. Art. 12 (a) of the Limitation Act of 1877 provides that a suit to set aside a sale in execution of a decree must be brought within one year after the sale is confirmed. That seems precisely applicable to the present case. It is said by Candy, J. (with whom Jardine, J., agrees) that it has not been contended that the Plaintiffs were bound to sue within the year: and he refers to a text-book for cases to show that the article does not apply to a suit for a declaration that the sale is inoperative as against the Plaintiff. Here the sale is, as their Lordships hold, and as the learned Judge himself assumes, operative as against the Plaintiffs though liable to be set aside for due cause.

The only case cited by the learned Judge himself is Bhagvant Govind v. Kundi (3). In that case there was no judicial sale. Property was mortgaged by a Hindu, and after his death his widows, who seem also to have been guardians of his infant heir, sold the property to a trustee for the mortgagee. The heir sued to redeem, but not till after the expiry of the three years after his majority which by Art. 44 of the Limitation Act are the limit of time for setting aside a sale by a guardian. In overruling the plea of limitation the Court made the following observations: "The necessity of impugning the sale of 1863, to the second Defendant arises from the second Defendant's resisting the Plaintiffs' suit to redeem the mortgage and is therefore subservient to that suit." That is the only reason assigned for overruling the plea.

MALKARJUN BIN SHIDRAMAPPA PASARE v. NARHARI BIN SHIVAPPA.

Candy, J., says that these observations apply exactly to the facts of the present case. Possibly they do, but their Lordships find it impossible to grasp the reasoning behind them. If it means that the right to set aside the sale is kept alive as long as the right to redeem would subsist by virtue of the mortgage, the result is that the validity of the sale might be held in suspense for 60 years. The two learned Judges intimate that there is a limit of 12 years, but how that limit is arrived at does not appear. They treat the sale as valid until vacated, but apparently they allow it just so much validity as suffices to turn the possession of the mortgagee into the adverse possession of an absolute owner, and no more. But if the sale is a reality at all, it is a reality defeasible only in the way pointed out by law; and it seems to their Lordships that the case must fall either within sec. 311 of the Code or within Art. 12 (a) of the Limitation Act of 1877, or within both; any way there exists a bar by one year's delay.

The Limitation Act protects bona fide purchasers at judicial sales by providing a short limit of time within which suits may be brought to set them aside. If the protection is to be confined to suits which seek no other relief than a declaration that the sale ought to be set aside, and is to vanish directly some other relief consequential on the annulment of the sale is sought, the protection is exceedingly small. Such however seems to be the effect of the doctrine of subservience laid down by the Bombay High Court.

In the adoption case just cited from 13 Ind. App. this Board remarked that there was no principle on which simple declarations of invalidity should be barred by the lapse of 12 years after the adoption, while the very same issue, if only mixed up with a suit for the possession of the same property, is left open for 12 years after the death of the widow. Their Lordships make the same remark now. What is the justification for refusing to construe Art. 12 (a) according to its obvious meaning whenever a suitor goes on to pray for that relief which is the object, perhaps the only object, of setting aside the sale? Their Lordships hold that both the letter and the spirit of the Limitation Act require that this suit, when looked on as a suit to set aside the sale, should fall within the prohibition of the article.

The High Court ought to have dismissed the Plaintiffs' appeal with costs, in accordance with the opinion of the learned Chief Justice. Their Lordships will now humbly advise Her Majesty to make that order, reversing the decree appealed from. The Respondents must pay the costs of this appeal.

Solicitors: Messrs. Edwards, Heron & Co. for the Appellants.

Appeal allowed with costs.

C. W. A.

---

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE

No. 115 of 1898.

	}	RAI JATINDRA NATH
		CHAUDHURI and others,
BANERJEE, J.		Defendants Nos. 1 & 2,
STEVENS, J.		Appellants,
1900.		v.
8, March.		AMRITA LAL BAGCHI and others, Plaintiffs, Respondents.

Hindu Law—Adoption—Hindu widow—Successive adoption—Adoption of a second son after death of first, whether divests the mother's estate—Right of reversionary heir—Pleadings—Reliefs of a nature different from the case made out in the plaint.

A Hindu widow adopting a son under the authority of her deceased husband upon the death of a son begotten or adopted whose estate she inherited as mother, divests herself of that estate by the act of adoption in favour of the son last adopted by her and such son takes the estate immediately on his adoption.

MUSSETT. BHOORUN MOYEE DEBIA v. RAM KISHOREACHARY CHOWDHURY (1), VELLANKI VENKATA KRISHNA RAO v. VENKATA RAMA LAKSHMI (2), RAMASAMI AIYAN v. VENKATA RAMAIYAN (3), BYKANT MONEE ROY v. KISTO SOONDEREE ROY (4), GOBINDO NATH ROY v. RAM KANAY CHOWDHURY (5), PUDDO KUMARI DEBI v. JUGGUT KISHORE ACHARJEE (6), PADMA KUMARI DEBI v. THE COURT OF WARDS (7), TAGORE v. TAGORE (8), JAMNABAI v. RAY CHAND NAHAL

(1) 10 M. I. A. 279 (1865).

(2) I. L. R. 1 Mad. 174 (1876).

(3) I. L. R. 2 Mad. 91 (1879).

(4) 7 W. R. 392 (1867).

(5) 24 W. R. 183 (1875).

(6) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 615 (1879).

(7) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 302 (1881).

(8) 18 W. R. 359 (1872).

CHAND (9) and RAVJI VINAYAKROA JAGANNATH SHANKARSETT v. LAKSHMIBAI (10) considered.

No declaration ought to be granted where the case upon which the declaration is sought to be obtained is not only not the case made in the plaint but is one that is wholly inconsistent with it.

ESHEN CHUNDER SINGH v. SHAMA CHURN BHUTTO (11) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 6th of April 1898, against the decree of the Second Subordinate Judge of Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 11th January 1898.

This appeal arose out of a suit brought by Amrita Lal Bagchi and others, Plaintiffs-Respondents, to recover possession of certain immoveable property known as Nune Bheri, which consisted of 915 bighas and odd land comprised in taluk Dhapa Manpur, on the allegation that it belonged to one Pran Kissen Bagchi, who died in 1852, leaving his widow, Lobongomoni Debi, as his sole heiress; that upon the death of Lobongomoni on the 21st Magh 1302 (corresponding to February 1896) the Plaintiffs, as the nearest agnates and heirs of Pran Kissen Bagchi, became entitled to the property as reversionary heirs; that Jatindra Nath Chaudhuri and Harendra Nath Chaudhuri, Defendants Nos. 1 and 2, have been holding possession of the same by setting up a lease purporting to have been granted by Lobongomoni Debi on the 30th Sraban 1264; and that the said lease was inoperative after the death of Lobongomoni Debi, there having been no legal necessity for the granting of

(9) I. L. R. 7 Bom. 225 (1883).

(10) I. L. R. 11 Bom. 381 (1887).

(11) 11 M. I. A. 7 (1866).

RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI.

the same, and the Plaintiffs were consequently entitled to possession. A lady, named Sukhodamoni Debi, was made one of the Defendants in the suit on the ground that she had been setting up a right to the property as the widow of one Kali Nath Roy upon the false allegation that Kali Nath had been adopted by Lobongomoni under an authority from her husband.

The defence of the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 was that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to recover possession as the reversionary heirs of Pran Kissen Bagchi, as Lobongomoni Debi, with the authority of her husband, adopted Kali Nath Bagchi as her son and the estate of Pran Kissen Bagchi vested in Kali Nath, and upon Kali Nath's death, was inherited by his heir Sukhodamoni, that the mourasi lease under which the Defendants held was a valid lease and binding on the reversionary heirs of Pran Kissen Bagchi and of Kali Nath as having been granted under legal necessity; and that the claim of the Plaintiffs was barred by limitation.

The Defendant No. 3, Sukhodamoni Debi, filed two contradictory statements, in the earlier of which she supported the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2, but in the later one she supported the Plaintiffs. The Subordinate Judge found that Pran Kissen Bagchi gave permission to his widow to adopt two sons in succession; that the widow Lobongomoni first adopted a boy, named Baikanto, and on Baikanto's dying unmarried, she adopted Kali Nath and had him married to Sukhoda and that Kali Nath died at the age of sixteen leaving his adoptive mother and his widow him surviving. The Subordinate Judge further found that the lease of the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 was not shewn to have been granted under legal necessity and upon these findings the Subordinate Judge dismissed the Plaintiffs' suit for possession but gave them a declaratory decree, declaring that the lease to the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 was granted without legal necessity and was not binding upon the reversionary heirs of Pran Kissen Bagchi and Kali Nath Bagchi.

Against that decree the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 preferred this appeal and it was contended on their behalf that the Court below was wrong in granting the Plaintiffs a declaratory decree upon a case not made in the plaint and in fact inconsistent with the case made in it and that the Plaintiffs' claim for a declaratory decree was barred by limitation under Art. 125 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act.

The Plaintiffs preferred a cross-appeal which was abandoned at the hearing. It was contended, however, on their behalf that upon the facts found by the Court below, the estate left by Pran Kissen Bagchi having passed to the first adopted son and on his death to his adoptive mother Lobongomoni Debi by inheritance, the second adoption could not divest Lobongomoni of her rights, and as Kali Nath, the second adopted son, died in the lifetime of Lobongomoni, the estate remained in Lobongomoni and the Plaintiffs as reversionary heirs after the death of Lobongomoni were rightly entitled to the declaration that was granted in their favour.

Sir Griffith Evans, Dr. Rash Behari

RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI.

Ghose, Babus Jagat Chunder Banerjee, Sarat Chunder Roy Chaudhuri, Charu Chunder Ghose and Indoo Bhusun Mozumdar for the Appellants.

Dr. Asutosh Mukerjee, Babus Ashutosh Dhur, Saroda Churn Mitter, Boido Nath Dutt, Mohendra Nath Roy and Jogenra Nath Chatterjee for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :

This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the Plaintiffs-Respondents to recover possession of certain immoveable property, on the allegation, that it belonged to one Pran Krishna Bagchi who died in 1852 leaving his widow Lobongomoni Debi as his sole heiress ; that upon the death of Lobongomoni on the 21st Magh 1302, corresponding to some day in February 1896, the Plaintiffs as the nearest agnates of Pran Krishna Bagchi became entitled to the property as reversionary heirs ; that the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 have been holding possession of the same by setting up a lease purporting to have been granted by Lobongomoni Debi on the 30th Sraban 1264, and that the said lease is inoperative after the death of Lobongomoni Debi, there having been no legal necessity for the granting of the same, and the Plaintiffs are consequently entitled to possession. A lady, named Sukhodamoni Debi, is made one of the Defendants in the suit on the ground that she had been setting up a right to the property as the widow of one Kali Nath Roy upon the false allegation that Kali Nath had been adopted by Lobongomoni under an authority from her husband.

The defence of the Defendants Nos.

1 and 2 was that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to recover possession as the reversionary heirs of Pran Krishna Bagchi, as Lobongomoni Debi under the authority of her husband adopted Kali Nath Bagchi as her son, and the estate of Pran Krishna Bagchi vested in Kali Nath, and upon Kali Nath's death has been inherited by his heir Sukhodamoni ; that the mourasi lease under which the Defendants held was a valid lease and binding on the reversionary heirs of Pran Krishna Bagchi and of Kali Nath as having been granted under legal necessity ; and that the claim of the Plaintiffs was barred by limitation.

The Defendant No. 5, Sukhodamoni Debi, filed two contradictory statements, in the earlier of which she supported the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2, but in the later one she supported the Plaintiffs.

The Court below has found that Pran Krishna Bagchi gave permission to his widow to adopt two sons in succession, that the widow Lobongomoni first adopted a boy named Baikanto, and on Baikanto's dying unmarried, she adopted Kali Nath and had him married to Sukhoda ; and that Kali Nath died at the age of sixteen leaving his adoptive mother and his widow him surviving. The Court below has further found that the lease to the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 was not shown to have been granted under legal necessity. And upon these findings the Subordinate Judge has dismissed the Plaintiffs' suit for possession, but has given them a declaratory decree, declaring that the lease to the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 was granted without legal necessity and is not binding upon the reversionary heirs of Pran Krishna Bagchi and Kali Nath Bagchi.

RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI.

Against this decree the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 have preferred this appeal; and it is contended on their behalf that the Court below is wrong in granting the Plaintiffs a declaratory decree upon a case not made in the plaint and in fact inconsistent with the case made in it.

The Plaintiffs have preferred a cross-appeal, but it was abandoned at the hearing. It was contended however on their behalf that upon the facts found by the Court below, the estate left by Pran Krishna Bagchi having passed to the first adopted son and on his death to his adoptive mother Lobongomoni by inheritance, the second adoption could not divest Lobongomoni of her rights; and as Kali Nath, the second adopted son, died in the lifetime of Lobongomoni the estate remained in Lobongomoni, and the Plaintiffs as reversionary heirs after the death of Lobongomoni were rightly entitled to the declaration that has been granted in their favour, I should add that a further contention was raised on behalf of the Appellants, that the Plaintiffs' claim for a declaratory decree was barred by limitation under Art. 125 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act.

The questions then that arise for determination in this appeal are, first, whether upon the adoption of Kali Nath by Lobongomoni the estate which she had inherited from her first adopted son passed to Kali Nath; second, whether, if Kali Nath was the last full owner, the Plaintiffs, having denied Kali Nath's right and sued as the reversionary heirs of Pran Krishna Bagchi, could in this suit obtain the declaration that has been granted in their favour as reversionary heirs of Kali Nath; and, third, whether the suit if it can be regarded as a suit for such a declaration, is not barred by limitation.

Upon the first question, this is how the authorities stand. There is no text of Hindu law bearing directly upon the point, nor is there any decision of the Privy Council or of this Court directly in point. There is however a dictum of the Privy Council in the case of Mussett. Bhoobun Moyee Debia v. Ram Kishore Achary Chowdhury (1), in which their Lordships say: "If Bhowanee Kishore had died unmarried his mother Chandrabullee Debia would have been his heir, and the question of adoption would have stood on quite different grounds. By exercising the power of adoption, she would have divested no estate but her own, and this would have brought the case within the ordinary rule." That shows that in the opinion of their Lordships where a widow authorised to adopt a son to her deceased husband upon the death of a son begotten or adopted, makes the adoption when the first son dies unmarried, she, by making the adoption divests her own estate in favour of the son taken in adoption. This dictum was reaffirmed by their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in the case of Vellanki Venkata Krishna Rao v. Venkata Rama Lakshmi (2), in which the following observation occurs: "If then there had been a written authority to the widow to adopt, the fact of the descent being thus cast would have made no difference unless the case fell within the authority of that of Bhoobun Moyee Debia v. Ram Kishore Acharj Chowdhury (1), in which it was decided that, the son having died leaving a widow in whom the inheritance had vested, the mother could not defeat the estate which had so become vested by making an adoption, though in pursuance of a written authority from her husband. That authority does not govern the present case, in which the adoption is made in derogation of the adoptive mother's estate, and indeed expressly recognizes the distinction." It is true that in a still later case, that of Ramasami Aiyar v. Venkata Ramaiyan (3) their Lordships observed: "Some of the circumstances of the case are peculiar. The first adopted son became his father's heir; on the death of that son after that of his father, the widow became the heir, not of her late husband but of the adopted son. Whether by the act of adopting another son she in point of law divested herself of that estate in favour of the second son may be a question of some nicety on which their Lordships give no opinion." But this refraining on the part of their Lordships from giving any opinion upon the question cannot materially weaken the weight that attaches to the dictum laid down by their Lordships in the two earlier cases. Then there are three cases in this Court in which the point was considered, namely, Bykant Monee Roy v. Kisto Soonderee Roy (4), Gobindo Nath Roy v. Ram Kanay Chowdhury (5), and Puddo Kumari Debi v. Juggut Kishore Acharjee (6), and the opinion expressed in all those three cases in favour of the view that in a case like the present the second adopted son does not divest the adoptive mother of the estate inherited by her from her first adopted son, but that he succeeds to the estate as the brother of the first adopted son upon the death of the adoptive mother. But in the first two cases the question did not directly arise. The adoptive mother being dead when the suit in the first-mentioned case was brought, it was immaterial to consider whether the second adopted son took the estate immediately upon his adoption, or on the death of the adoptive mother, and in the second case, namely, that of Gobindo Nath Roy (5), the question that arose was whether the adopted son could, during the lifetime of the adoptive mother, set aside an alienation by her made in favour of a third party and as for the third case, that of Puddo Kumari Debi v. Juggut Kishore Acharjee (6), the decision of this Court was set aside by the Privy Council upon another ground, see Padma Kumari Debi v. The Court of Wards (7).

(1) 10 M. I. A. 279 (1865).

(2) I. L. R. 1 Mad. 174 (1876).

RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI.

The question has been considered by recent writers on Hindu law, of whom West and Buhler in their Digest of Hindu Law, 3rd Edition, p. 983-85, seem to take the view that if the first adopted son dies unmarried and before certain initiatory ceremonies are performed the second adopted son may take the estate immediately on his adoption. Mr. Mayne in his Hindu law and usage, paragraph 174, takes the opposite view, observing: "Now a mother ranks before a brother as heir

(1) 10 M. I. A. 279 (1865).

(3) I. L. R. 2 Mad. 91 (1879).

(4) 7 W. R. 392 (1867).

(5) 24 W. R. 188 (1875).

(6) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 615 (1879).

(5) 24 W. R. 188 (1875).

(6) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 615 (1879).

(7) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 303 (1881).

RAS JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. ANRITA LAL BAGCHI.

to her own son. Why then should he destroy her estate? If the adoption could be treated as relating back to the life of the deceased, then it would have given him an undivided brother, who would take by survivorship in preference to the mother. But it would seem that no such 'fiction' is now admitted." And Babu Golap Chandra Sarkar in his Tagore Law lectures on the Hindu Law of Adoption (p. 411), after quoting the passage from the judgment of the Privy Council in the case of Ramasami Aiyar v. Venkata Ramaiah (3), which we have referred to above, remarks: "This observation therefore cancels the effect of what was observed in the previous cases with respect to the divesting of the adoptive mother's estate. According to the principles of the Bengal School the adopted son cannot lay any claim to the estate which the adoptive mother inherited from her deceased son during her life, because the adopted son as brother by adoption is not entitled under any circumstances to take the same in preference to the mother. Accordingly the Calcutta High Court appear to have expressed the opinion that the adopted son is entitled to take the estate after the death of the adoptive mother." This is how the authorities stand: and, attaching, as we must do, greater weight to the dictum of the Privy Council than to any dictum of our own Court, and greater weight to the opinion twice positively expressed by the Privy Council than to the last observations of the same tribunal in which their Lordships only refrain from expressing any opinion on the point, we think that the weight of authority is in favour of the view that a Hindu widow adopting a son under the authority of her deceased husband upon the death of a son begotten or adopted whose estate she inherited as mother, divests herself of that estate by the act of adoption in favour of the son last adopted by her.

Let us next consider how the question stands upon principle. It is no doubt difficult to work out the divesting of the adoptive mother and the vesting of the estate in the second adopted son according to the ordinary rules of inheritance; but the rights created by adoption, as has been observed by the Privy Council in the case of Tagore v. Tagore (8), operate in some respects by way of exception to the general rule. Moreover, in a case like this, in addition to the rules of inheritance, another principle may well be taken to come into operation, the principle, namely, that when a person, who is a free agent voluntarily does any act that person must be taken to intend the natural consequence of the act. Now a Hindu widow authorised by her husband to adopt a son is free to exercise the authority or not as she chooses. There is no one who can compel her to exercise the power. But if she does exercise it and adopts a son to her deceased husband, it is only in accordance with the ordinary Hindu notion of adoption that the son so adopted should take the estate that the adoptive father left. And the widow, by adopting a son to her husband, must be taken to intend the vesting of the estate that originally belonged to her deceased husband, in such adopted son. Of course, if, by reason of a previously adopted son having left

(3) 1 L. R. 2 Mad. 91 (1879).

(8) 18 W. R. 352 (1872).

RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI.

some other heir than herself, the estate is vested in such other heir, no act of hers can divest that heir and vest the estate in the adopted son. But where, by reason of the first adopted son having died unmarried, the estate has come back to her, it is only a natural consequence of the subsequent adoption by her that the estate should pass to the second adopted son; and this is what their Lordships meant by the dictum laid down by them in the case of Bhoobun Moyee Debia v. Ram Kishore Acharj Chowdhury (1) above referred to. If we view the matter in this light, no difficulty can arise. The question raised by Mr. Mayne, "why then should he destroy her estate?" will not then arise; for upon this view it is not the second adopted son who destroys the estate of the adoptive mother, but it is the mother herself who, by exercising the power of adoption, of her own free will and accord, divests herself of her estate and allows it to pass to the adopted son. This view will also answer the argument of the learned Hindu lawyer, Babu Golap Chandra Sarkar, who too seems to think that relative rights of the mother and the adopted son are to be determined only by the application of the ordinary rules of inheritance. We may here observe, however, that though maintaining the opposite view the last named writer feels the hardship of it; for he observes (see his Tagore Law lectures on the Law of Adoption, page 411):—

"Whatever may be the principle, it has been held by the Bombay High Court that a Hindu widow who adopts a son after the death of her natural son, divests herself of her estate. This view appears to be the most equitable one, for otherwise the adopted son would not be entitled even to maintenance, as of right, out of the estate of the adoptive mother, and if he dies during her life leaving a widow and a daughter they would be unprovided for. As regards the adoptive mother she may reserve any interest she likes by an ante-adoption arrangement with the consent of the natural father." We may add that the Bombay High Court in the cases of Jamnabai v. Ray Chand Nahal Chand (9) and Ravji Vinayakraw Jaggannath Shankarsett v. Lakshmi Bai (10) have taken the view that we now take upon reason as well as upon authority. Therefore we think that the correct view would be to hold that when a Hindu widow adopts a second son upon the first son dying unmarried, the second adopted son takes the estate immediately on his adoption.

Coming now to the second question, we think it clear that the declaration granted in favour of the Plaintiffs is one that ought not to have been granted. The case upon which that declaration has been granted is not only not the case made in the plaint, but is one that is wholly inconsistent with it; and to allow the Plaintiffs to succeed in this suit in obtaining the declaration embodied in the decree of the Court below would be to contravene the rule of law laid down by the Privy Council in the case of Eshen Chunder Singh v. Shama Churn Bhutto (11). We may add that the objection to the Plaintiffs being allowed to succeed in obtaining the declaration in question in this case is not merely a technical objec-

(9) I. L. R. 7 Bom. 225 (1883).

(10) I. L. R. 11 Bom. 881 (1887).

(11) 11 M. L. A. 7 (1866).

(1) 10 M. L. A. 279 (1865).

RAI JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURI v. AMRITA LAL BAGCHI.

tion but is one of substance ; for, if the Plaintiffs had made an alternative case in their plaint that they were entitled to the declaration that has been granted to them as the reversionary heirs of Kali Nath, in that case it would have been open to the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 to plead ratification of the lease by Kali Nath, a plea which the framers of the suit might well be taken to have precluded them from urging. The second point, also, must, therefore, be decided in favour of the Appellants.

In this view of the case it does not become necessary for us to pronounce any opinion upon the third point, namely, the question of limitation. If it were necessary to determine that point we should have felt considerable difficulty in holding that the case was governed by Art. 125 of the Limitation Act, the language of which does not cover a case like the present.

The result then is that the decree of the Court below so far as it grants the Plaintiffs a declaration that Lobongomoni Debi had no legal necessity for granting a permanent lease in respect of the property in suit, and that the patta granted by Lobongomoni Debi is not binding upon the heirs of Pran Krishna Bagchi and Kali Nath Bagchi, must be set aside and the Plaintiffs' suit must be dismissed altogether.

The Appellants are entitled to their costs in this appeal, which will include the costs of the preparation of the Appellants' supplemental paper-book. We assess the hearing fee at fifteen gold mohurs.

The cross-appeal having been abandoned, it is dismissed without costs.

S. C. S.

Decree modified.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 568 OF 1871.

KUMAR SUTTYA SUTTYA

SALE, J.

CHONAL.*

1897.

v.

21, April.

RANI GOLAP MONI

DEBI.

Practice—Receiver—Application for leave to sue a Receiver.

The Receiver is not a necessary party to a suit for possession of immoveable property.

This was an application by one Srinath Biswas and others for leave to sue the Receiver. The petition stated that the Petitioners were the absolute owners and had been in possession as howladars of a piece of land known as kismut Samantogati in the District of Khulna; that some time ago that land had diluviated and formed as accretion to a piece of chur land known as Churdakatia belonging to the Government, that under a settlement from the Government the Receiver appointed in the above suit had been holding the said reformed land and was in possession of the same. The Petitioners then stated that they were desirous of bringing a suit in the Court of the Sub-Judge at Khulna against the parties who were in possession of the said land as also against the Receiver for recovery

* This was followed in the case of Sm. Sarala Dassi v. Bhuban Mohan Neogi (Suits Nos. 175 and 206 of 1899) before SALE, J., on the 18th August 1897, when his Lordship in dismissing an application for leave to sue the Receiver, observed—"If there is any question between the parties entitled to property in the hands of a Receiver, a decree in a suit between the parties can always be carried out against such property or any share therein without making the Receiver a party to the suit.—REPORTER."

KUMAR SUTTYA SUTTYA GHOSAL v. RANI GOLAP MONI DEBI.

of possession of the land as reformation on its own original site and they prayed for leave to bring a suit against the Receiver appointed in the above suit.

THE COURT was of opinion that the Receiver appointed in this suit was not a necessary party to the suit to be instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Khulna.

Mr. S. R. Das for the Petitioners asked that the expression of the Court's opinion any be embodied in the order dismissing the application so that the plaint might not be rejected by the lower Court.

THE COURT.—Very well.

Babu Raj Mohan, Das, Attorney for the Applicants.

S. R. D.                      Application refused.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 431 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.                      THE QUEEN-EMPRESS
HANDLEY, J.

1900.                      POORAN AGARWALLA, 13, June.                      Accused.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 109—Security for good behaviour—"Ostensible means of subsistence," proof of—"Doing no work," if sufficient—"Previous conviction" how far relevant—Procedure.

The fact that a man does no work or that he was once before convicted for bad livelihood does not justify a Magistrate, without being satisfied from evidence that since his release the accused has no ostensible means of livelihood, to order him to furnish security for good behaviour.

This was a rule issued on the 25th of May 1900, against the order of the Presidency Magistrate of Calcutta, Northern Division, dated 25th of April 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report were as follows :—

A police inspector charged the Defendant with bad livelihood as he did no work. He had been sent up the year previous on a similar charge and was sent to jail for 6 months.

The Magistrate of the Northern Division of the town of Calcutta ordered the accused to furnish security for good behaviour under sec. 109, Cr. P. Code, on the ground of his admitting one previous conviction for bad livelihood and that he did no work.

No one appeared to show cause against the rule.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

Pooran Agarwalla was placed before the Presidency Magistrate by the police being stated to be "a reputed thief, having no ostensible means of subsistence, found on 21st April to be concealing his presence at Chitpur." A police-officer was examined who stated that "the accused did no work," adding that "he was sent up last year for a similar offence." The record also shows that "the Defendant admits that he does no work, admits one previous conviction for bad livelihood." On this the Presidency Magistrate passed the following order: "I direct him to give security for good behaviour in the sum of Rs. 100 for six months or to undergo six months' rigorous imprisonment under sec. 109, C. P. C."

In our opinion the evidence before the Magistrate did not justify the order. The charge stated many facts which if established would form substantial grounds for requiring the accused to give security for good behaviour but beyond a statement of the police-officer that the accused "does not work" and his admission of this there was nothing before the Magistrate except that some time ago the accused had been required to furnish security. But that a man "does no work" does not necessarily mean what the law requires that he has "no ostensible means of subsistence." No enquiry was directed to this, and unless this is proved the order is bad. If the charge was as stated, there should have been other evidence forthcoming. Whether this was so or not does not appear but if it was not tendered we think that the fact should have been noted by the Magistrate. The order seems to us to have been too readily passed because the accused "has already once been convicted of bad livelihood. But that was not sufficient unless it were shown that since his release the accused had no honest means of subsistence.

THE QUEEN-EMPRESS v. POORAN AGARWALLA.

The order under sec. 109 must be set aside.

*Rule made absolute.[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 321 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	KITABDI and others,
HANDLEY, J.	Petitioners,
1900.	. v.
6, June.	THE QUEEN-EMPRESS, .
	Opposite Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 110.—Magistrate, jurisdiction of to require security for good behaviour—Residence outside such jurisdiction.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to require security for good behaviour under sec. 110, Cr. P. Code, from persons who do not reside within his local jurisdiction but who it was alleged, habitually committed theft, robbery and house-breaking within such limits. It is only when a person residing within such limits is of such bad repute that a Magistrate is competent to take action under that section.

This was a rule issued on the 25th of April 1900, against the order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Naraingunge, dated the 9th of January 1900, which order was, on reference under sec. 123, C. Cr. P., affirmed by the Sessions Judge of Dacca, on the 26th of February 1900.

The facts of the case material to the report were as follows:—The accused were residents of the district of Tipperah and were suspected of being in the habit of committing theft and robbery within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of Naraingunge and were on that account put under arrest and were in confinement in the under-trial ward of the lock-up at Naraingunge when proceedings were taken against them under sec. 110, C. Cr. P. The accused, inter alia, objected before the Magistrate that he, as Magistrate of Naraingunge, within the district of Dacca, had no jurisdiction to try this matter as they were residents of another district. The Magistrate overruled this objection which was affirmed by the District Judge of Dacca on reference under sec. 123, C. Cr. P.

The Magistrate gave the following as his reasons:—

One further question remains for me to consider and that is raised in the jawab of the Defendants. It is said that I have no jurisdiction.

The words of the section are:—

"Whenever a Sub-Divisional Magistrate receives information that any person within the local limits of his jurisdiction is by habit a robber, house-breaker or thief such magistrate may, etc.

KITABDI v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

"These words may of course be read to include only persons residing within the magistrate's jurisdiction, but I can find nothing in the code to show that the words should be restricted to this use. The words can equally well be interpreted to mean habitually commits thefts and robbery and house-breaking within his jurisdiction and it appears to me that the section is carefully worded in such a way as to embrace both these meanings. If this is not so it is impossible to have any hold over a gang of this kind which residing just over the border commits offences in a different jurisdiction where the police of the district in which the offenders reside make no active attempt to prevent the persons from committing crime except by removing the means of its commission within their jurisdiction, I therefore find that I have jurisdiction."

Mr. K. N. Sen Gupta and Babu Pramatha Nath Sen for the Petitioner.

Mr. Leith (Deputy Legal Remembrancer) for the Crown.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows :—

PRINSEP, J.—The Petitioners who are residents of the district of Tipperah were under arrest and in confinement in the under-trial ward of the lock-up at Naraingunge when proceedings were taken against them under sec. 110, C. Cr. P., with the object of requiring them to give security for good behaviour.

It was objected before the Magistrate that he, as a Magistrate of Naraingunge within the district of Dacca, had no jurisdiction to try this matter concerning persons who were residents of another district.

The Magistrate has overruled this objection, and, on reference to the Sessions Judge under sec. 123 for confirming the order passed by the Magistrate, the Sessions Judge has adopted the same view. The law runs thus :—"Whenever a Magistrate receives information that any person within the local limits of his jurisdiction (a) is by habit a robber, house-breaker or thief or (b)" and so forth.

The Magistrate has found that the terms of the section enable him to try such a case because the law may be read thus :—"Whenever a Magistrate receives information that any person is by habit a robber, house-breaker or thief within the local limits of his jurisdiction." But the law is not so expressed and, under the ordinary rules of construction, it would not bear that interpretation. In my opinion it is when a person within the limits of a Magistrate's jurisdiction, that is, who is residing within the limits of such jurisdiction, is found to be a person of the description given above, that the Magistrate can take action and it is not contemplated that the Magistrate in such a case should issue a warrant so as to pursue the person concerned into another jurisdiction. It also seems to me that, under the terms of this section, the reputation which the person is found to have must necessarily mean the reputation of that person in the neighbourhood. And the persons residing in that locality could be best able to speak to his character. Moreover that if he were called upon for his defence, he would naturally produce witnesses of that neighbourhood. Thus a trial held in another district and at some distance from his residence would probably result in his being unable to obtain the attendance of his witnesses or to obtain them at an expense which it would be unreasonable to call upon him to bear. In my own experience I would add that I have never come across a case of this description in which jurisdiction has been assumed by a Magistrate of another district and from this I take it that the practice has been universal in regard to restricting the jurisdiction of a Magistrate to cases of persons reputed to be of bad character, and residing in his own district. The proceedings, therefore, are without jurisdiction and the order must accordingly be set aside. If the Petitioners are in jail in consequence of their failure to give the security required, they must be released.

KITABDI v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

HANDLEY, J.—I am of the same opinion and I entirely concur in the observations made by Mr. Justice Prinsep.

Rule made absolute.

S. C. S.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 299 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	} RAHIMUDDI and others, Petitioners, v. ASGARALI, Opposite Party.
HANDLEY, J.
1900.
6, June.

Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 379, 147—Theft—Rioting—Common object charged, when disbelieved, finding by Appellate Court of a different, if proper—Unlawful assembly.

If the common object fails and the substantive charge is disbelieved the accused should be acquitted. It is not proper for an Appellate Court, while disbelieving the alleged common object of an unlawful assembly to find out a different common object regarding which the accused were never called upon to plead nor tried and to affirm the conviction.

This was a rule issued on the 20th of April 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Dacca, dated the 7th of February 1900, which order was on appeal affirmed by the Sessions Judge of Dacca on the 31st of March 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Harendra Narayan Mitter for Mr. P. L. Roy at the hearing of the rule.

No one appeared to show cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Magistrate has convicted the Petitioners of theft of mangoes, and also of riot, the common object of the unlawful assembly being the forcible taking away of mangoes belonging to the complainant.

In appeal, the Sessions Judge has entirely disbelieved the evidence relating to the taking of the mangoes or that that was the common object of the unlawful assembly. He, however, finds—and about this there is apparently no doubt—that a fight took place between the two parties and on this he has endeavoured to ascertain from the evidence what the common object of the assembly which caused this fight and, so far as we understand his judgment, he has not only found that the cause was not the taking of the mangoes but that it was something else. The Sessions Judge has accordingly dismissed the appeal confirming the conviction and sentence but on a different finding of fact from that to which the Petitioners were called upon to plead and to defend themselves at the trial. The Petitioners have accordingly been convicted by the Appellate Court of an offence for which they have never been tried. They are consequently entitled to an acquittal. The result may be unfortunate if the Petitioners have broken the peace and caused bodily injuries to persons in a fight but, on the findings of the lower Court, they cannot possibly be convicted. The sentences are accordingly set aside and the fine, if paid, must be refunded.

RAHIMUDDI v. ASGARALI.

Rule made absolute.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL AND VISIOINAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 313 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.

HANDLEY, J.

1900.

6, June.

BHAGIRATHI NAIK,

Petitioner,

v.

GANGADHUR MAHANTI,

Opposite Party.

Cattle Trespass Act (I of 1871), sec. 22—Illegal seizure of cattle—Fine on conviction, legality of—Imprisonment in default if proper—Compensation.

A magistrate is not competent under sec. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act to pass a sentence of fine. He can only award compensation for an illegal seizure of cattle.

An order of imprisonment in default of payment of such fine is also illegal.

This was a rule issued on the 21st of April 1900, against the order of Syed Abdul Malik, Deputy Magistrate of Balasore, dated the 2nd of March 1900.

The facts of the case were briefly these:—

The complainant charged the accused Bhagirathi Naik, a village tutor and pound-keeper, with taking four cows of the complainant and putting them in the pound. On trial the accused was convicted under sec. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act by the Deputy Magistrate of Balasore on the 2nd of March 1900, and was directed to pay a fine of Rs. 10 and the costs of the case and in default of payment of fine to undergo simple imprisonment for a week. Rs. 5 was directed to be paid to the complainant out of the fine, if realised.

Against that order the Petitioner moved the High Court and obtained the present rule.

Babu Provash Chandra Mitter for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause against the rule.

The following judgment was delivered by the Court:—

The Magistrate, in a case under sec. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, has fined the petitioner Rs. 10 and the costs of the case and has directed that, out of this sum, Rs. 5 be paid to the complainant. He has also ordered that, in default of payment of the fine, the Petitioner do suffer one week's simple imprisonment.

The order throughout is bad and not in accordance with the terms of sec. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act. The Magistrate is not competent under that law to pass any sentence of fine. He can only award compensation for an illegal seizure of cattle. In this view, we must set aside the order of fine and direct that, in substitution thereof, the accused do pay the sum of rupees five as compensation to the complainant and do also pay the costs of the case. The order of imprisonment in default of payment of this fine is also illegal and must be set aside.

Rule made absolute.

H. P. C.

REPORTER'S NOTE. See Kistaki v. Munderji, (2 C. L. R. 507 1875) per Markby & Prinsep, JJ.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE ALLAHABAD
HIGH COURT.]

LORD DAVEY.

LORD ROBERTSON.

SIR RICHARD COUCH.

SIR HENRY DE VILLIERS.

SIR FORD NORTH.

1900.

Heard, 8, May.

Judgment, 27, June.

GARURUDHWAJA
PERSHAD

v.

SAPARANDHWAJA
PERSHAD SINGH.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), secs. 48, 49 and 60 —Relationship—Opinion—Grounds of such opinion based on information, admissibility of —Wajib-ul-urz, value of, as evidence.

A statement by a witness of his opinion on the existence of a family custom and as the grounds of that opinion, of information derived from deceased persons is admissible in evidence, but it must be the expression of independent opinion based on hearsay and not mere repetition of hearsay.

The weight of such evidence would depend on the position and character of the witness and of the persons on whose statements he has formed his opinion.

A special family custom involving a departure from the ordinary Hindu law should be properly proved.

Certain Wajib-ul-urz put in were evidence in favour of the Respondents but they were not sufficient to outweigh the evidence afforded by the actings of the parties and actual descent of the estate.

This was an appeal from the Allahabad High Court (Justices Blair and Tyrrell) reversing the decision of the Sub-Judge of Aligarh.

The parties were brothers, and the litigation was concerned with the right of succession to their father's estate. The Appellant was the elder of the two uterine brothers; they were the only two surviving sons. The suit was brought by the Respondent.

The family to which the parties belong is known as the Beswan family sprung from one Makhan Singh from whom also sprung the important families of Mursan and Hathras.

Mr. Branson for the Appellant contended that the High Court was wrong in holding that the Appellant had not proved that the custom of primogeniture obtains in the Beswan family, and regulates the descent of the property of that family. He relied on the case of Thakur Nitpal Singh v. Thakur Jai Singh Pal (1).

With reference to the Wajib-ul-urz and entries in public records, Mr. Branson pointed to sec. 35, Indian Evidence Act, and Uman Pershad v. Gandharp Singh (2).

SIR RICHARD COUCH.—There is a case regarding the admissibility of Wajib-ul-urz in which Sir Montague Smith gave judgment.

Mr. Branson.—Yes, that is the case of Rani Lakraj Kuar v. Wahpal Singh (3).

LORD DAVEY.—Wajib-ul-urz are admissible as official documents made in accordance with law.

Mr. Branson then commented on the evidence and referred to secs. 48 and 49 of the Evidence Act in support of the admissibility of the evidence of witnesses having special means of knowledge of the fact in issue in this case.

LORD DAVEY.—After looking into those sections, I see it goes considerably beyond the English law.

No one appeared for the Respondent.

(1) 28 I. A. 147 (1896).

(2) 14 I. A. 127 (1887).

(3) L. R. 7 I. A. 43 (1879).

GARUBUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD DAVEY.—The question on this appeal relates to the devolution of the ancestral estate of Thakur Girpershad Singh who died in the year 1880. The Defendant in the suit and present Appellant is the eldest son of Girpershad and contends that there is a custom of primogeniture in the family and that consequently he is alone entitled to succeed to the estate. The Plaintiff in the suit is his younger brother. He denies the existence of the alleged custom and claims to share in the estate in accordance with the ordinary Hindu law of inheritance. The Subordinate Judge decided in favour of the alleged custom and dismissed the suit with costs, but his decision was reversed by the High Court of Allahabad and the appeal is from the judgment and decree of the latter Court. It is unfortunate that the Plaintiff and present Respondent has not appeared on this appeal. There are questions of the admissibility as well as the effect of evidence on which their Lordships would have been glad of the assistance of Counsel for the Respondent.

The parties belong to a family known as the Beswan family. This family and two other families in the same district called the Mursan and Hathras families are Jat families of the Tenwa clan and are descended from a common ancestor, named Nandram Faujdar, who is said to have died in the year 1695. The Mursan family is said to have been founded by Khushal, son of Zulkaran, one of the fourteen sons of Nandram. The Beswan and Hathras families alike have their descent from Jai Singh, another son of Nandram. The Hathras branch was divided from the Beswan branch in the person of Dyaram Singh in the fourth generation from Nandram who died in the year 1823. The circumstances under which this separation took place are in controversy and will be more fully considered hereafter. In the year 1817 Dyaram was deprived of the greater part of his possessions in consequence of his resistance to the British military forces and his family do not now reside at Hathras.

It appears from the evidence and was accepted as a fact by both Courts that the custom of primogeniture prevails in both the Mursan and the Hathras families. Their Lordships attach importance to this admitted fact. It points to a custom derived from a common ancestor and lends strong antecedent probability to the Appellant's case. The present Raja of Mursan was called as a witness by the Appellant but he was supporting the Respondent with a loan of money to be used for the purpose of the litigation. He could not therefore be expected to be very friendly to the Appellant. But he does not venture to deny the existence of the custom in the Beswan family and singularly enough had made no inquiry on the subject. He says: "In my family the custom of guddinashini prevails. When a guddinashini dies leaving several sons one of them becomes guddinashini and inherits all the property and the others only get maintenance. I have heard that that custom of guddinashini prevails in the Hathras Raj family. I do not know whether the custom of guddinashini prevails in the Beswan family or not. I have no about it and I did not make any inquiry on the point." Raja Harnarain Singh, the present representative of the Hathras family, is a son adopted by the widow of the preceding Raja and was only 22 years of age at the time of the trial. He also is said to be unfriendly to the Appellant on account of some previous litigation with Girpershad in which the latter claimed his estates. Raja Harnarain does not profess to know anything about the question in issue.

GARURUDEHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDEHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

There are no records of any kind prior to the British conquest in 1803. The most important documentary evidence since that date is the record of a proceeding of the Court of the Collector of Aligarh District, dated 22nd November 1809. From the pedigree which is set out in the judgment of the Subordinate Judge and was accepted in the High Court it appears that Bhuri Singh, the third in descent from Nandran, died in the year 1775, leaving two sons, Nawal and Dyaram, who as already mentioned was the founder of the Hathras family. Nawal Singh is stated to have died before 1800 leaving two legitimate sons, Harkishan (the eldest) and Jiwaram, and three illegitimate sons. Harkishan succeeded to Beswan in exclusion of Jiwaram his younger brother and died in 1808. He had two legitimate sons (who are stated to have been uterine brothers), Jey Kishore and Jogul Kishore. It is disputed whether Jogul Kishore survived his father but for reasons to be presently stated their Lordships think with the Subordinate Judge that the weight of evidence is in favour of his having done so and of his having died without issue shortly afterwards. Harkishan also left three illegitimate sons. By his order of the 22nd November 1809 Mr. Elliot, the Collector of Aligarh directed, that a parwana be issued to Dyaram and Raja Bhagwant Singh (the then representative of the Mursan family) asking them to give information whether there is any son of Harkishan other than Jey Kishore and whether according to the custom of Hindus the property of Harkishan devolves upon Jey Kishore and whether the sanads of jagir and istimrar should be granted to Jey Kishore.

The reply of Dyaram to this request was in the following terms:—

"After paying my compliments and expressing my wish to pay my respects to you, I beg to state that I received your kind note enquiring whether Jey Kishore was the rightful person owing to the death of Thakur Harkishen, and granting the sanad of jagir and istimrar to Barkhurdar* Jey Kishore on condition of its being ascertained that he was entitled to it under the custom of the Hindus. It is known to you that Thakur Harkishen and others, and now Jey Kishore are among my farzand† (sons). Formerly Thakur Harkishen, who was senior in age to his other four brothers, was distinguished from, and surpassed them all, by his qualities as a sirdar and head, and also during his lifetime his four other brothers were of one mind with him and obedient to his orders and carried on the affairs zealously. In the time of Thakur Harkishen Barkhurdar, Jey Kishore, who is also senior in age to his other four brothers and is distinguished from, and surpasses them all, used to be called the heir-apparent and successor. At present after the death of the said Thakur he has the control of all the affairs, small and great, of his father and it is Jey Kishore who is entitled to the favours of the British Company. In accordance with their usual practice the turban of sirdari was tied round the head of Jey Kishore. It is hoped that the sanads of jagir and istimrar will be kindly granted to the said Barkhurdar.

"Submitted for information. Further respects.

"(Sd.) THAKUR DAYARAM SINGH, of Hathras, son of Shipuri (?)."

* Literally may you eat the fruit of life.

† Literally means children.

GARURUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

The reply of the Raja of Mursan was in almost the same words and they were evidently written in concert.

Upon these reports a further order, dated the 18th December 1809, was made by the Collector in the following terms:—

“On the 14th petition was made by Thakur Dyaram stating that after the death of Thakur Harkishen his estate devolves upon Thakur Jey Kishore his eldest son and to-day a petition was made by Raja Bhagwant Singh stating that Thakur Jey Kishore was the eldest son of Thakur Jey Harkishen deceased and that the estate of the deceased Thakur devolved upon him and consequently all the brethren deeming Thakur Jey to be the rightful person and eldest son tied the turban of the Sirdari.” The petitions were then ordered to be forwarded to the Board.

The terms of this order clearly show the sense in which the Collector understood the reports of Dyaram and the Raja of Mursan. Accordingly two sanads, dated the 19th January 1810, were granted by the Government to Jey Kishore. By the first of these documents after noticing that under the orders of the Governor-General Taluka Beswan had been settled with and granted to Harkishan for his lifetime and his death before the issue of the perpetual sanad of the taluka, it was stated that his Excellency therefore thought it advisable and proper that instead of the said deceased the taluka should be maintained in the name of his eldest son, Thakur Jey Kishore, for his lifetime at the jama therein mentioned. The second sanad contained the grant of a village called Jhanga by way of jagir in similar terms.

From the two letters of Dyaram and the Raja of Mursan it appears that Jey Kishore had then four brothers living. The inference is that Jogul Kishore his uterine brother was then living. It is true that in two documents, dated the 16th March 1845, it is stated by Tikam then Raja of Mursan and by a tehsildar, named Sayed Hardar Ali, that Harkishan had four sons only, Jey Kishore and three illegitimate sons. It is more probable that (Jogul Kishore having died young and childless) his existence was forgotten or overlooked after a lapse of nearly forty years than that Dyaram and the Raja Bhagwant were mistaken and their Lordships agree with the Subordinate Judge that the balance of evidence is in favour of Jogul Kishore having survived his father. The witness Dharag Singh, whose evidence is vouched by Mr. Justice Blair, says indeed that Jogul Kishore died in his father's lifetime but in an earlier part of his examination he had said that he “did not know whether Jogul Kishore died in his father's lifetime or after his death.” This witness was born some years after Jogul Kishore's death and was speaking from hearsay only and there are many witnesses of the same kind some of whom say that Jogul Kishore died in his father's lifetime and others of whom say he survived him. The oral evidence (even if admissible) is quite inconclusive.

Jiwaram might have claimed to share the taluka with his brother Harkishan and he as well as Jogul Kishore (if living) might have claimed to share it with Jey Kishore if the succession was regulated by the ordinary Hindu law. From the record of a proceeding before the Deputy

GARUBUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

Collector and Settlement Officer of the District of Aligarh on the 30th April 1846 it appears that on the death of Jey Kishore which took place in 1844 or 1845 Ram Pershad and others, sons of Jiwaram who was also then dead, claimed to be entitled to one half of the estate of Beswan and to have a settlement thereof made in their names. This claim was dismissed by the Collector. The document contains a history of the case gathered from a perusal of "the papers in the records of the Collectorate and those received from the Commissioner's Office as well as those filed in the Settlement Department together with the records of the Khazi's office, civil side, relating to Jiwaram and Jey Kishore deceased minor and fixing a monthly allowance for Jiwaram." Shortly told the story is that Jiwaram was appointed manager of the estate during Jey Kishore's minority, but in consequence of some irregular proceedings on his part, which were thought to manifest an intention to dispossess his nephew, litigation ensued with the result that Jiwaram was deprived of the management of the estate and subsequently an allowance of Rs. 400 a month was made to him which he continued to receive during his lifetime. On his death Jey Kishore stopped the payment but the Commissioner by a rubkar of the 12th August 1836 directed that until an order should be made to the contrary or till the institution of a civil suit to establish right by the heirs of Jiwaram it should be continued as theretofore and the heirs of Jiwaram received the monthly allowance during the life of Jey Kishore. There is other evidence that Jiwaram enjoyed an allowance of

Rs. 400 per mensem for maintenance and there is no evidence whatever that he brought any suit in the Civil Court to dispute his brothers' or his nephew's possession of the family estate. Nor did the sons of Jiwaram ever bring any suit to contest the possession of Girdhar, the eldest son and successor of Jey Kishore. The Collector by a subsequent proceeding held the allowance of Rs. 400 per mensem to be a pension only and he reduced the allowance to Rs. 120 per mensem divisible between the sons of Jiwaram. They thereupon commenced a suit to establish their right to the Rs. 400 as a malikana allowance and applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis but the claim was rejected by the judgment of the District Judge of the 25th June 1856.

It thus appears that Harkishan succeeded his father Nawal in exclusion of his younger brother Jiwaram and on his death in 1808 Jey Kishore succeeded in exclusion not only of his younger brother Jogul Kishore but also of his uncle Jiwaram, and on Jey Kishore's death in 1844 or 1845 Girdhar his eldest son succeeded to his estate. Jiwaram and his sons though challenged to assert their claim to share in the estate by a civil suit abstained from doing so and contented themselves with an allowance for maintenance. Girdhar died about eighteen months after his father and was succeeded by his only brother Gir Parshad. But as the latter was a minor throughout his elder brother's tenure of the estate no strong inference can be drawn from his not claiming to share in the estate. Gir Parshad died early in 1880. It results that for a period of nearly 80 years from the time of the British occupation the enjoyment has been consistent with the alleged custom and for the earlier and greater part of that term has been inconsistent with any other legal basis.

GARURUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

The High Court minimise the inference to be drawn from these successive descents of the estate to an eldest son in three generations and the circumstances accompanying them. (1) They say that the inquiry made by order of the Collector of Dyaram and Rajah Bhagwant Singh in 1809 was directed to the custom of Hindus and not to the custom peculiar to this family and they suggest that the reports made in pursuance of that inquiry related only to management and control of the estate not to property. (2) It is suggested that Jiwaram was awarded his allowance of Rs. 400 a month as compensation for being dispossessed of the zemindari and being content with his position did not care to claim a share in the estate.

Their Lordships observe on the first point that the customs of Hindus would include any custom regulating the succession in a particular family and that the inquiry was whether the property "devolves on Thakur Jey Kishore." They have already observed that the Collector evidently understood the replies of Dyaram and the Raja of Mursan as directed to the question who was entitled to the property. The sanads were grants of the property to Jey Kishore described as eldest son and in short the transaction was not merely a settlement of the estate in his name for the purpose of revenue as suggested in the High Court. On the second point it is extremely unlikely that Jiwaram would have rested content with an allowance if he had a claim to one half the estate which he could prosecute with any prospect of success. Jiwaram (apparently) and his sons certainly asserted a claim to be sharers in the estate though they never ventured to bring their claims to the test of a legal decision. The records of the Collectorate so far as concerns the relations between Jiwaram and his sons on the one hand and Jey Kishore and afterwards Girdhar on the other do not disclose a picture of a perfectly united and contented family.

But the learned Judges in the High Court thought that the acquiescence of the descendants of Nawal Singh in the usurpation of Dyaram was far more impressive than the acquiescence of Jiwaram and his descendants. Their Lordships must therefore examine what is known of the relations between Nawal Singh and Dyaram and their respective descendants. Nawal Singh and Dyaram were sons and so far as appears the only sons of Bhuri Singh who is said to have died in the year 1775. The Subordinate Judge says that Dyaram forcibly wrested the bulk of his father's property including taluka Hathras from his elder brother on their father's death and being a man of great energy he managed to dispossess the other descendants of Nandram from their estates and annex their estates to his extensive possessions. His authorities for this statement are apparently the settlement reports of Aligarh made by Mr. Thornton in 1834 and by Mr. Smith in 1874 and Atkinson's Gazetteer published in 1875. These works are not before their Lordships and they cannot say whether they bear out the learned Judge's statement which however seems to go further than the oral evidence of tradition.

GARURUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

warrants. It may be that the reports and gazeteer in question are not strictly evidence of the truth of all the statements contained in them. And it may be that if examined they would not bear out the conclusions drawn from them by the Subordinate Judge. They were however used apparently without objection and probably no objection would be taken to their being read for what they are worth in a similar case in this country. But if you exclude evidence of tradition what evidence is there that Hathras ever was part of the ancestral property of Bhuri Singh? In the last century when the Mogul Empire was breaking up and when (to quote Mr. Justice Blair) "law was in abeyance" it was not uncommon for an able and energetic man to carve out a large property for himself by the sword at the expense either of his own relatives or of strangers. If you look to tradition as disclosed by the oral evidence the statements as to Hathras are conflicting. Indeed Keheri Singh says that Dyaram acquired the Hathras estate from the Poreh Thakurs. In the opinion of their Lordships it is impossible to presume a partition between the brothers or to say with any approach to certainty whether any or what portion of Dyaram's possessions was or was not ancestral property or from whom or by what means they were acquired. All that can be said is that tradition points to his having acquired them by force and not by right. Dyaram was at first confirmed in possession of his estates by the British Government but in 1817 was deprived of the bulk of them for rebellion. It appears from documents in evidence that 20 of Dyaram's villages under the appellation of taluka Shahzadpur were conferred on Jey Kishore and 31 were conferred on Jiwarani. It is probable that these villages were only a comparatively small part of the estates confiscated by the Government. The learned Judges in the High Court ask why the heirs of Nawal Singh did not then ask for reinstatement in the fiefs which had been seized by Dyaram as had been alleged in violation of Nawal Singh's right of primogeniture. And it is this acquiescence to which they attach so much importance. Their Lordships cannot agree for the simple reason that they do not know enough of the facts or circumstances or of the motives or policy of the British Government to form any reliable opinion on the subject.

Their Lordships now turn to the oral evidence in the case. No less than fifty-six witnesses were called and examined on behalf of the Appellants. Their evidence mainly divides itself into two branches. (1) Evidence of the existence of the custom of guddinashini in the Beswan taluka and of the successive holders of the taluka within living memory having sat on the guddi and received the customary offerings. (2) Evidence of tradition relating to the family learnt by the witnesses from their deceased relatives and others.

In commenting on the evidence of the custom of guddinashini the High Court says: "In order to constitute that a valid argument it ought to have been shown not only that guddinashini and the presentation of nazars was the ordinary concomitant of the possession of an impartible Raj but also that it was an exclusive attribute of families in whom the custom of primogeniture prevails." The judgment of the High Court was delivered on the 7th February 1893. Subsequently to that date a case of Thakur Nitpal Singh v. Thakur Jai Singh Pal (1) (which in many of its circumstances is strikingly like the present one) was before this Board. The case related to the succession to the ancestral property of a Rajpoot family long settled in the Agra District. In delivering the judgment of their Lordships, Lord Hobhouse observes :—

GARURUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

“The other remark is a suggestion that there is no necessary connection between guddinashini and primogeniture. That may be so : but it is impossible to read the evidence without seeing that the witnesses on both sides treat the two as identical or the former as proving the latter. Not a single question is put to any witness who has affirmed or denied guddinashini for the purpose of disconnecting it from primogeniture. . . . It is clear that the Subordinate Judge had had no suspicion that the evidence applying to guddinashini could be taken as not applying to primogeniture. The first suggestion of such a distinction comes from the High Court. Their Lordships think that when the witnesses affirm or deny guddinashini they mean to affirm or deny primogeniture : and their constant identification of the two things shows how closely they are connected in the minds of the families of that part of the country. The custom of guddinashini has clearly an important bearing on that of primogeniture though the connection between them may not be a necessary one.”

Their Lordships think that these observations are directly applicable to the case before them. The language in which the Raja of Mursan spoke of the custom of guddinashini has already been referred to. The Respondent himself in denying that the custom prevailed in his family says “By guddinashini or masnadnashini I mean the practice of one person or the eldest son succeeding to the whole estate and the other sons only getting maintenance.” Kharag (a son of Jiwarām) says “By guddinashini I mean that he (guddinashin) used to sit on a guddi and receive nazar and one son inherited the property while the other sons received maintenance.” Kasi Ram the jaga (bard or genealogist) of the Beswan family (whose father and grandfather were jagas before him) after deposing to the custom says “I call that guddinashini that is that the eldest son sits on the guddi and younger sons receive maintenance.” And expressions of this kind showing the identification in the minds of the witnesses of the right of sitting on the guddi with succession to the estate constantly occur in the course of the evidence. There are five witnesses who say they saw Jey Kishore sit on the guddi and receive nazar. There are seven witnesses who say they saw Girdhar do so and there are numerous witnesses who saw Gir Parshad. Their Lordships agree with the High Court that a good deal of the evidence of statements made by deceased persons is of doubtful admissibility. By the 32nd sec. (5) of the Evidence Act such statements are relevant when they relate to the existence of any relationship between persons as to whose relationship the person making the statement had special means of knowledge and when the statement was made before the question in dispute was raised. For this purpose and to this extent statements of deceased relatives and servants and dependents of the family are admissible. By sec. 49 when the Court has to form an opinion on (inter alia) the usages of any family the opinions of persons having special means of knowledge thereon are also relevant. But by sec. 60 if oral evidence refers to an opinion or the grounds on which that opinion is held it must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds. Their Lordships think it is admissible evidence for a living witness to state his opinion on the existence of a family custom and to state as the grounds of that opinion information derived from deceased persons and the weight of the evidence would depend on the position and character of the witness and of the persons on whose statements he has formed his opinion. But it must be the expression of independent opinion based on hearsay and not mere repetition of hearsay. In this way some of the evidence of such witnesses as Kharag, a son of Jiwarman Pershad, a nephew of Lala Lachminarain, who was dewan at Beswan for about 25 years, of Keheri Singh, a descendant of Sakat, who made out a genealogical tree of Nandram's family from the information of his grandfather, of Ganga Ballabh and others of the same class would perhaps be admissible evidence of the custom and when corroborated by the proved facts as to the descent of the estate during the last eighty years is not without value. But their Lordships would not be disposed to place much reliance upon it standing alone.

GANGUBUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

Another class of evidence consists of the Wajib-ul-urzes of various villages comprised in the taluka. The Plaintiff put in evidence ten of these documents compiled in the years 1862 and 1863. They do not support the Appellant's case and they afford negative evidence against it because they contain a provision for the appointment of lambardar in certain events according to the will of the co-sharers, and in one of them relating to the village Bhawan it is said that if there be no son then one of the heirs shall be the lambardar with the consent of the other heirs. On the other hand the Appellant also put in evidence the Wajib-ul-urzes of ten villages compiled in the year 1873. They contain a declaration by Gir Parshad himself of the custom. "After my death my eldest son if he is fit and well-behaved shall according to the custom and usage of my family succeed me to the guddi and the other sons if they are fit shall receive Rs. 200 a month and if they are unfit Rs. 50 a month." Their Lordships do not place much reliance on these later documents which are only an expression of the opinion or aspiration of Gir Parshad himself. The documents of 1862 and 1863 are no doubt evidence in favour of the Respondent but their Lordships do not think that they are sufficient to outweigh the evidence afforded by the actings of the parties and actual descent of the estate and other evidence in favour of the Appellant to which they have already adverted.

Their Lordships are fully sensible of the importance of requiring that a special family custom involving a departure from the ordinary Hindu Law should be properly proved but they think that in this case the Appellant has satisfied the burden of proof. They will therefore humbly advise Her Majesty that the decree of the High Court be reversed and instead thereof the Respondent's appeal to that Court be dismissed with costs. The Respondent will also pay the costs of this appeal.

GARURUDHWAJA PERSHAD v. SAPARANDHWAJA PERSHAD SINGH.

Solicitors: Messrs. Barrow, Rogers & Nevill for the Appellant.

Appeal allowed with costs.

C. W. A.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

No. 435 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	SEWNANDAN RAI KAYAB,
HANDLEY, J.		Petitioner,
1900.		v.
13, July.		THE VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE DARJEELING MUNICIPALITY, Opposite Party.

Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884), secs. 273 (1), 238—Sanction to build when not given within specified period—Right to build without sanction—Period of sanction, computation of—Adoption of suggestion of Municipality, if waiver of right.

A person who submitted for the sanction of the municipal commissioners plans and specifications of a building and the commissioners omitted to pass orders within six weeks cannot be convicted under sec. 273 (1) of the Bengal Municipal Act for commencing to build according to his own plan after such period.

That he made certain alterations after such period at the suggestion of the Municipality does not make him forfeit his right under sec. 238 of the Act to build on his own plan.

The period in such cases is to be computed from the date when complete plans and specifications are submitted in such a form as makes it possible of its being considered by the municipal commissioners.

This was a rule issued on the 4th of June 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Darjeeling, dated the 7th of May 1900.

The accused was charged in this case with having built a house contrary to the sanctioned plans and building regulations of the Municipality and was sentenced by the Magistrate to pay a fine of Rs. 50 and was further ordered to pay a daily fine of Rs. 10 if he did not within ten days effect the alterations in the building as indicated in the order of sanction given by the Municipality. Whereupon the Petitioner moved the High Court on grounds which appear sufficiently from the judgment.

Mr. E. P. Ghose and Mr. J. R. Percival for the Petitioner.

No one appeared for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Petitioner has been convicted under sec. 273 (1) of the Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884) for building a house contrary to the provisions of sec. 238, that is to say, contrary to the plan sanctioned by the Municipality.

It is objected before us that, inasmuch as no orders had been passed within six weeks of the plans or specifications having been submitted by him for the sanction of the Municipality, the Petitioner was at liberty to proceed with the erection of the house and that therefore the conviction is bad.

The Magistrate in his explanation submitted to us, states that "as the whole chain of correspondence shows that the Petitioner was in active communication on the subject with the Municipality up to the time he received the municipal sanction to build," there is no force in the objection.

SEWNAIDAN RAI KAYAB v. THE VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE DARJEELING MUNICIPALITY.

We can find on the record no correspondence which took place after 6th June, the date on which the complete plans and specifications were furnished to the commissioners, up to the expiration of the period of six weeks calculated therefrom. We understand the law to be that such period should be calculated from the date of a complete and proper notice, with a general description of the building to be erected with its plans and specifications, being submitted in such a form as to be capable of consideration by the municipal commissioners. The period should not be calculated from March, when the first notice was given but from the 6th of June when it was submitted in a complete form and, calculated from this date, there was ample time such as is contemplated by the law, that is, a period of six weeks, within which the municipal commissioners could or should have passed orders thereupon and the law declares that, on neglect or omission within such time to pass orders on the application, the person desirous of building shall be entitled to commence work on the ground that the Municipality, by their silence, shall be deemed to have given their sanction. But the Magistrate proceeds to state in addition that not only did the Petitioner learn from the correspondence that there was hesitation on the part of the municipal commissioners to give sanction, but that he did not avail himself of the privilege given to him by sec. 238, that is, he did not commence the work after the expiry of six weeks without waiting for the sanction, because he did wait for the sanction and he did not begin building until after the receipt of the sanction, so that he is bound to act in compliance with the terms of the sanction given. If this were so, we think the Petitioner could have no reasonable ground for objection. But there is no evidence of this on the record and such evidence as there is goes to show that the Petitioner did commence the building before the end of July, whereas the orders of the municipal commissioners were not passed until the 10th of September and were not communicated to him until the 16th idem. No doubt we have the fact that when it was found that, the Petitioner was not conforming to the plan as sanctioned by the Municipality, he endeavoured to satisfy the objections raised and he did not claim the privilege to build on the plan submitted by him without the modifications subsequently made by the municipal commissioners on the ground that the municipal commissioners had neglected to pass orders thereon within the period of six weeks. But the fact that he did not at once make this objection and claim this privilege does not, in our opinion, preclude him from raising it now at the trial. It was clearly his interest to endeavour, without any opposition on his part, to obtain the withdrawal of any objection on the part of the Municipality to his proceeding with his work. But he was not bound to defy the Municipality and there may be good reason why he should not wish to do so.

SEWNANDAN RAI KAYAR v. THE VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE DARJEELING MUNICIPALITY.

We think that the Magistrate has sufficiently met the objection taken that he has tried this case without a formal order of transfer to his own Court, for he has reported and this has not been disputed before us that he did give notice of this verbally to the pleaders in the case and he proceeded with the trial after such notice and without any objection whatsoever.

It is, however, to be regretted that the Magistrate did not conform to the terms of the law and did not formally record an order in writing for transfer to his own Court together with reasons for the same.

The conviction under sec. 273 (1) of the Bengal Municipal Act of 1884 is, for these reasons, bad. We accordingly set aside the conviction and sentence and we direct that the fine, if paid, be refunded. Any monies realized from the accused on this account will also be repaid.

H. P. C. Rule made absolute.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 387 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	GOBERDHONE PRAMANICK,
HANDLEY, J.	Petitioner,
1900.	v.
28, June.	ISWAR CHUNDER PRAMANICK,
	Opposite Party.

Registration Act (III of 1877), sec. 82—Refusal to register deed denying execution, prosecution for—Stay of proceeding pending civil suit to declare deed a forgery.

Petitioner denied execution and refused to register a mortgage deed. On appeal the special Sub-Registrar found the deed to be genuine and ordered registration and sanctioned prosecution of the Petitioner under sec. 82 of the Registration Act, subject to the approval of the District Registrar; the sanction was given but the Petitioner applied for stay of proceedings pending decision in a suit he had filed in the civil Court for having the deed declared a forgery and on the refusal of the Magistrate to stay proceedings:

Held—That the Magistrate should have stayed proceedings pending the decision in the civil suit.

This was a rule issued on the 19th of May 1900, against the order of the Registrar and District Magistrate of Midnapur, dated the 5th of February 1900.

The facts appear sufficiently from the judgment.

Babu Bidhu Bhusan Ganguli for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT WAS AS FOLLOWS:—

In this case the Petitioner denied the execution of a mortgage bond which had been brought to the Sub-Registrar for registration, registration being refused.

On appeal the special Sub-Registrar held that the mortgage bond was a genuine document. He ordered registration and, subject to the approval of the District Registrar, he gave sanction to prosecute the Petitioner under sec. 82 of the Indian Registration Act. This sanction has been granted. The Petitioner then brought a declaratory suit for the purpose of proving that the mortgage bond was forgery and not binding on him and he asked the District Magistrate to defer the criminal proceedings until the decision of that suit. The Magistrate has refused to do so and that is the matter which is now before us.

GOBERDHONE PRAMANICK v. ISWAR CHUNDER PRAMANICK.

Now, if it should so happen that the declaratory suit in the civil Court is decided in favour of the Petitioner, there will be a decision that the mortgage bond is a forgery and consequently the order to prosecute the Petitioner under sec. 82 of the Registration Act will be a bad and an unjust order. Under such circumstances we think that it was incumbent on the Magistrate to stay his hand until the decision of the civil suit and we may observe that the proceedings in the civil suit are much more likely to result in a proper conclusion in respect to the conduct of the Petitioner than the summary proceedings taken before the registration officers.

The rule is, therefore, made absolute and the District Magistrate is directed to stay further proceedings until the decision of the declaratory suit now pending in the civil Court regarding the mortgage deed.

H. P. C. Rule made absolute.

[CIVIL REFERENCE.]

No. 6 of 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.

BANERJEE, J. In the matter of NRITYA
1900. GOPAL SEN, a Pleader.

31, July.

*Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), as amended by (Act XI of 1896), secs. 13, 14
—Professional misconduct—Grossly improper conduct—Legal practitioner advising payment* of money to witness to speak the truth or to prevent giving false evidence—False statements by legal practitioner in letter to induce speedy remittance for such purpose.

A legal practitioner by paying or offering to pay money to a witness to induce him to speak the truth or to prevent him from giving false evidence may not be guilty of any offence criminally punishable but is guilty of unprofessional conduct.

A legal practitioner in pressing his client for the payment of money to a witness to induce him to keep back unfavourable evidence is guilty of grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duties within the meaning of sec. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act.

This was a reference under sec. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), made by the District Judge of Birbhum, dated the 11th of April 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment and are also fully stated in 4 C. W. N. cccxxii (or p. 232, short note).

Mr. Garth and Babu Saroda Churn Mitter for the Pleader.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This case has been reported to us under sec. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act by the Munsif of Bolepur in the District of Birbhum through the Judge of that district. The Munsif and the District Judge agree in finding that the legal practitioner reported against, namely, Babu Nriya Gopal Sen, a pleader, practising in the Munsif's Court, is guilty of grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duty. The District Judge recommends the dismissal of the pleader, while the Munsif, without making any definite recommendation asks us to take into consideration the past good conduct of the pleader upon the question of punishment.

IN THE MATTER OF NRITYA GOPAL SEN.

The misconduct imputed to the pleader consists in his having, on the 10th of September 1898, written to Babu Aghore Nath Barat (since deceased) who was interested in upholding an alleged Will of one Tincowrie Roy of Supur, propounded in a Letter of Administration case then pending, pressing for the payment of a sum of Rs. 900 to two witnesses, Moti Lal Chaudhuri and Ram Das, to prevent their going over to the opposite side, and stating that he (the pleader) had executed in favour of the two witnesses promissory notes for that amount.

The pleader in the written explanation submitted by him admits writing the letter, but denies having done any thing wrong, and he also denies having executed any promissory notes. His account of the matter is shortly this, that he acted as a pleader for Tincowrie Roy, and after Tincowrie Roy's death he acted as a pleader for his daughter Manjanali by whom the Will in question was propounded; that he was told by Manjanali's son-in-law, Aghore Nath Barat, whom he had every reason to believe, that the witness Moti Lal Chaudhuri was threatening to produce certain papers which might go against the Will, unless the witness was paid a large sum of money; that he was subsequently requested by Aghore Nath Barat by a letter which has been lost, to accommodate him (Aghore Nath Barat) by paying the witnesses Moti Lal Chaudhuri and Ram Dass the sum of Rs. 900 out of his own pocket; and that as he had no money in hand, it was on the suggestion of Moti Lal Chaudhuri that he wrote the letter of 10th September stating that he had executed the promissory notes though he had not really done so, merely with a view to secure speedy remittance of the money by Aghore Nath Barat. The Munsif finds that the pleader executed the hand-notes, and that his conduct in the matter, assuming that the Will propounded was genuine, was still grossly improper. The District Judge goes further and is of opinion that the Will was a forgery and the pleader was not unaware of that fact.

I agree with the Munsif in thinking that having regard to all the circumstances of the case it should be dealt with upon the assumption that the Will was a genuine document. Assuming that to be so, let us see whether the conduct of the pleader was such as would make him liable to dismissal or suspension.

Mr. Garth, who appeared for the pleader, contended that a legal practitioner does nothing wrong if he advises his client to pay money to a witness to induce him to give true evidence in his favour or to prevent him from giving false evidence against him.

I do not consider this contention correct. By giving such advice a legal practitioner may not become guilty of any criminally punishable offence; but the question before us is not whether the pleader has committed any criminally punishable offence but whether he has done anything for which he is liable to dismissal or suspension; and I feel very little hesitation in answering this question in the affirmative. A witness is no doubt entitled to be paid his travelling expenses; the law expressly allows that. He may also under certain circumstances be entitled to compensation for loss of time. But to pay him money to induce him to speak the truth or to prevent him from giving false evidence would be bargaining for truth; and if it were allowed, it would be fraught with consequences dangerous to the administration of justice. But it is unnecessary to pursue this discussion further, because in this case on the pleader's own showing (see paragraphs VI and VII of his explanation) the money in question was paid not simply with a view to induce the witnesses to tell the truth or dissuade them from telling an untruth, but really for the purpose of preventing one of them (Moti Lal Chaudhuri) from producing certain papers which are not alleged to be false, but which were apprehended to be capable of throwing suspicion upon the Will which is said to be genuine. The pleader here, therefore, not only advised but pressed and actively helped his client to pay money to a witness for the purpose of inducing him to keep back from the Court evidence which is not shown to be false, so that it might not raise any doubt as to the genuineness of the Will which was believed to be true. Such a course was absolutely indefensible and reprehensible in the highest degree. It was for the Court to decide whether the Will was genuine or not; and for the purpose of determining that question, it was entitled to have all the relevant evidence on the point placed before it. And the pleader, in pressing for the payment of money to a witness to induce him to keep back unfavourable evidence, clearly sought to obstruct the investigation of truth and the administration of justice. His conduct, therefore, was grossly improper conduct in the discharge of his professional duties within the meaning of the law. I may add that the pleader on his own shewing is further guilty of professional misconduct in falsely writing to his client or her son-in-law who was looking after her case that he had executed the promissory notes when he says he had not done so, merely for the purpose of expediting the remittance of money.

IN THE MATTER OF NRITYA GOPAL SEN.

It remains only to consider the question of punishment. The misconduct of the pleader was of a very grave character and it merits a severe penalty. The only thing that weighs in his favour is his past good conduct. Having regard to all these circumstances, I think suspension from practice for two years from this date will meet the requirements of justice.

MACLEAN, C. J.—I have had the advantage of reading the judgment of Mr. Justice Banerjee which he is about to deliver, and, concurring as I do both in his reasoning and in his conclusion, I propose to add only one short word. That the vakil in this case has been guilty of grossly improper professional conduct, there cannot be a shadow of a doubt. His conduct, to my mind, was most unprofessional and very wrong, conduct calculated in a marked degree to prevent the ends of justice and to interfere most seriously with the due administration of justice. I do not think it is necessary that I should say anything further.

S. C. S.

Suspension ordered.

[CIVIL REFERENCE.]

No. 5 of 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.
BANERJEE, J.
1900.
30, July.

In the matter of
JOGENDRA NARAYAN
BOSE.*

Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), as amended by (Act XI of 1896), secs. 13, sub-sec. (f), 14—Pleader, when he does something as a litigant or member of the public and not as pleader, if to be regarded as professional misconduct—“Any other reasonable cause,” construction of.

An allegation, made by a pleader as a Defendant in a suit and not as a pleader, that the Plaintiffs had bribed some officer of the record-room to tamper with certain documents produced at the instance of the Plaintiff did not amount to professional misconduct.

That in the words “any other reasonable cause” in sec. 13, sub-sec. (f) of the Legal Practitioners Act, the expression “other” means “other” “ejus dem generis,” that is, of the class or description of misconduct which is referred to in the preceding sub-sections, that is to say, professional misconduct.

The Legal Practitioners Act is aimed against the misconduct of legal practitioners in relation to their professional duties and not in relation to other matters.

This was a reference under sec. 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act, by the District Judge of Hughly, dated the 2nd of March 1900.

The facts appear from the judgment.

Babu Sib Chandra Palit for the Pleader.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—I do not think that this is a case for our interference under the Legal Practitioners Act, nor has any case within that Act been satisfactorily established against the pleader. The Act is aimed against the misconduct of pleaders in connection with, and in relation to, their professional duties, and not in relation to other matters. The facts of this case are very short. A suit was instituted with reference to some property and in that suit the pleader in question was a Defendant in his personal capacity, and as a Defendant, he engaged a pleader to act for him and to defend the suit. In the course of that suit it was proposed on behalf of the Plaintiffs, that certain documents should be produced from a certain record-room, and, when they were produced, the pleader, whose conduct is now impugned, said openly in Court that these documents had been tampered with, and that the Plaintiffs had bribed some official of the record-room to tamper with those documents. But he did not say that as a vakil of the Court, or as a vakil engaged in the case, he uttered the words in question as a litigant, and as a member of the public. It may have been, and possibly was, a very improper thing, and a very intemperate thing, for him to have said, and it may be—I don't say it will be, for I certainly do not propose to say anything about the truth or otherwise of his statement—that he may have slandered some one and may be responsible for that slander. We have nothing to do with that to-day, all we have to determine to-day is whether or not this gentleman has been guilty of professional misconduct, within the meaning of the * See in the matter of Purna Chunder Pal, 4 C. W. N., p. 389 (decided by Ghose, Rampini and Hill, JJ.).—REPORTER.

IN THE MATTER OF JOGENDRA NARAYAN BOSE.

Act. It is quite clear that the case does not fall within any of the first five sub-sections of sec. 13 of the Legal Practitioners Act of 1896, and the only question is, whether it falls within the general words of sub-sec. (f), "any other reasonable cause." To my mind the expression "other" means "other" "ejusdem generis," that is, of the class or description of misconduct which is referred to in the preceding sub-sections, that is to say, professional misconduct. However intemperate and however ill-advised his action may have been, I do not see how we can properly say that the pleader has been guilty of professional misconduct. In my opinion we ought not to interfere.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion.

S. C. S. Reference discharged.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER OF OUDH.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.	SURJAN SINGH and
LORD MACNAGHTEN.	ors., Plaintiffs,
LORD LINDLEY.	Appellants,
SIR RICHARD COUGH.	v.
SIR H. DE VILLIERS.	SARDAR SINGH and
1900.	ors., Defendants,
21 st July.	Respondents.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 32—Pedigree, admissibility of, to prove relationship—Wajib-ul-urz.

Where a pedigree was tendered in evidence but neither any of the bards who were said to have prepared it nor the Raja who assembled the bards of the family and with their assistance had the pedigree drawn up was called as a witness, and no proof was adduced that they were within any of the descriptions given in sec. 32 of the Indian Evidence Act which made it unnecessary to call them :

Held—That the Court below was right in not admitting the pedigree in evidence.

The Wajib-ul-urz was too vague to be of any value in support of Appellants' claim.

Munnu Singh was the last male proprietor of village Piparya Andu, the property in dispute. He died before the confiscation of the soil of Oudh. The summary settlement after the re-occupation was made with his widow Gulab Kuar, he having left no male heirs, and in 1869 the regular settlement was made with her and co-sharer. She died in July 1881, and upon a dispute between the Appellants who claimed to be his reversionary heirs and the Defendants who were two sons of his daughter and the husband of that daughter, mutation of names in 1881 was made in the latter's favour and they got into possession.

Nearly 12 years after the widow Gulab Kuar had died, the present suit was instituted by the Appellants, claiming to be reversioners of Munnu Singh. The Defendants denied their relationship and also denied that the custom of Chanban Thakurs under which daughters and their sons did not succeed while there were male collaterals alive, alleged by Plaintiffs, existed. Defendants also set up that the regular settlement was made with Gulab Kuar as full proprietor.

Mr. C. W. Arathoon for the Appellants contended that the oral evidence of relatives of the family and the several Wajib-ul-urz had made out the custom and the relationship. He referred to secs. 49 and 50 of the Evidence Act and sec. 36; also to Bijai Bahadur Singh v.

SURJAN SINGH v. SARDAR SINGH.

Bhupindar Bahadur Singh (1), regarding the Kanungoe's statement during the regular settlement and the fact that the pedigree table was produced during the mutation proceedings. As regards the Wajib-ul-urs he cited Rani Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh (2).

Mr. Mayne for the Respondents argued that neither the custom nor the relationship had been proved, that on several matters witnesses who could have thrown considerable light on the subject had not been called, such as Raja Balbhadar Singh, the bards, who are said to have made the genealogical table, and the present talukdar of Oel. He referred to Uman Parshad v. Gundharp Singh (3). He also contended that the grant by Government after confiscation was an absolute grant to Gulab Kuar, and referred to letter No. 1, to Act I of 1869, para. 5, and to Nawab Maitka Jahan Sahiba v. Dy. Commissioner of Lucknow (4).

THE COURT.—Surely the settlement was made with Gulab Kuar as a Hindu widow.

LORD HOBHOUSE—It was for you to make out that it was made with her as absolute proprietor.

SIR R. COUCH.—Do you say that the Government intended to change the course of succession by the settlement?

Mr. Arathoon replied, and as regards Mr. Mayne's last contention referred to Jehan Kadr v. Afsar Bahu Begum (5).

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

SIR RICHARD COUCH.—The Appellants in this case sued for possession of the village of Piparya Andu on the ground that on the death of Mussammat Gulab Kuar the property devolved on them as the reversionary heirs of her deceased husband Munnu Singh. He was the proprietor of the village and the first summary settlement was made with him on the annexation of the Province of Oudh. After that he died and the second summary settlement of the village after the Mutiny was made with Gulab Kuar. The judgment of the Assistant Commissioner given on the 3rd August 1869 on a claim by her against the Government stated that Munnu Singh being hereditary proprietor held up to annexation, the summary settlement of 1857 was made with him, he died without leaving male issue and the settlement was therefore made with his widow. And the Court decreed the proprietary right in the entire village in favour of Gulab Kuar and also in favour of co-sharer. On the 7th January 1881 Gulab Kuar made a Will by which she devised the village to her deceased daughter's three sons, Sardar Singh and Baldeo Singh, the Respondents, and Bahadur Singh, who died before her. On the 8th July 1881 she made a gift of some land in the village to Durga Singh, the other Respondent, their father. Gulab Kuar died on the 12th July 1881 whereupon on the 10th August 1881 an order for mutation of names of Munnu Singh was made in favour of Sardar Singh and Baldeo Singh and the other claimants, the Appellants, being referred to the Civil Court. Their

(1) L. R. 22 I. A. 139, see p. 151 (1895).

(2) L. R. 7 I. A. 63 (1879).

(3) L. R. 14 I. A. 127 (1887).

(4) L. R. 6 I. A. 63 at p. 75 (1879).

(5) I. L. R. 12 Cal. 1 (1885).

SURJAN SINGH v. SARDAR SINGH.

sult was not instituted till the 30th November 1892, more than eleven years after the dismissal of their claim.

The case stated in their plaint is that they and Munnu Singh are the descendants of Raja Jugraj Sah by his second wife, that they are entitled to inherit the estate of Munnu Singh as his next heirs, that Gulab Kuar was in possession of the village only with the rights of a Hindu widow and as such was not competent to alienate the property beyond her lifetime, that the Will and deed of gift are consequently invalid and that according to a well-established family custom daughters and their issue are excluded from inheritance. The Respondents denied the alleged relationship of the Plaintiffs with Munnu Singh and their reversionary title and the existence of any custom by which daughters and their issue are excluded from inheritance. They alleged that the Will and deed of gift were valid as Gulab Kuar was in possession of the village and had the rights of an absolute proprietor and that, apart from the Will, Sardar Singh and Baldeo Singh being sons of Munnu Singh's daughters were entitled under the Hindu law to inherit his property on the death of his widow in preference to collateral heirs.

The Subordinate Judge who tried the suit found that the Appellants' relationship to Munnu Singh and their reversionary title were proved, that Gulab Kuar's possession was only that of a Hindu widow, and that the Will and deed of gift were invalid and made a decree in the Plaintiffs' favour. The Defendants appealed to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh which has decided only one of the questions that were raised, viz., whether the Appellants are the reversionary heirs of Munnu Singh.

To prove this the Appellants produced a pedigree of the family of Raja Pertab Singh which shows that the Plaintiffs are the collateral heirs of Munnu Singh. This pedigree was objected to as not being admissible in evidence. It was admitted by the Appellants' counsel that it was prepared under the following circumstances as deposed to by one of their witnesses. He was examined in 1894 and his evidence is that the pedigree was prepared in his family 13 years ago. The bards were called to dictate it. It was prepared from the history given by them. It was copied from certain papers in the possession of the bards. In the year when the Raja's marriage was settled in Surajpur a dispute about it arose. Then they sent for the bards and got the pedigree prepared. The dispute was said to have been about the class of Thakurs to which the Raja referred to belonged and arose about the time of the death of Gulab Kuar. In their Lordships' opinion the Appellate Court has rightly held that the pedigree was not admissible, or as the Indian Evidence Act says, relevant. Sec. 32 of the Act which would make the statements in the pedigree relevant only applies when the statements are made by a person who is dead or cannot be found or has become incapable of giving evidence or whose attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which under the circumstances of the case appears to the Court unreasonable. Neither any of the bards nor Raja Balbhadar Singh who assembled the bards of the family and with their assistance had the pedigree drawn up was called as a witness and no proof was given that they were within any of those descriptions which made it unnecessary to call them. A Wajib-ul-urz of the village Aurungabad, dated 26th October 1894, was relied upon for the Appellants. It contained a statement purporting to have been made by Pitam Singh, deceased, but it is too vague to be of any value in proof of the Appellants' claim. The oral evidence produced by the Plaintiffs was that of six witnesses, three of whom appear to have derived their information from family pedigrees which were not produced, and the others did not state the source of their information. The Appellate Court was of opinion that this evidence was not sufficient to prove the relationship with Munnu in which view their Lordships agree. Apparently the Subordinate Judge who decided in the Plaintiffs' favour was of this opinion as in his judgment he says it was "shown by the genealogical table" and did not rely upon other evidence. The pedigree not being admissible the Appellants failed to prove that they were the collateral heirs of Munnu Singh and the Appellate Court without giving any finding on the alleged custom to exclude daughters and their issue set aside the decree of the lower Court and dismissed the suit. Their Lordships being of opinion that it was rightly dismissed they will humbly advise Her Majesty to affirm that decree and to dismiss this appeal. The Appellants will pay the costs.

SURJAN SINGH v. SARDAR SINGH.

Solicitors: Messrs. Barrow, Rogers & Nevill for the Appellants.

Solicitors: Messrs. T. L. Wilson & Co. for the Respondents.

C. W. A. Appeal dismissed with costs.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE ALLAHABAD
HIGH COURT.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.	RAJA BHUP INDAR
LORD MACNAGHTEN.	BAHADUR SINGH,
LORD LINDLEY.	Defendant,
SIR RICHARD COUGH.	Appellant,
SIR HENRY STRONG.	v.
1900.	BIJAI BAHADUR
21, July.	SINGH, Plaintiff
	Respondent.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 2, 211 and 540—Mesne profits, period during which recoverable—Order determining mesne profits, interlocutory or final, if appealable—Decree.

A decision in execution proceedings determining the period for which mesne profits are recoverable is appealable both under general principles and under secs. 2 and 540 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Where a decree for possession with mesne profits was taken to the Privy Council in appeal and was affirmed by Her Majesty in Council:

Held—That the three years up to which mesne profits may be given under sec. 211, Civ. P. C., must be counted from the date of the Queen's order and not from that of the original decree.

Where the original Court granted a decree for possession with "future mesne profits" and, on appeal, Her Majesty in Council affirmed that decree without expressly mentioning the mesne profits:

Held—That the Queen's order granted mesne profits by reference to the original decree.

Mr. Rose for the Appellant.

Mr. Rankes for the Respondent.

RAJA BHUP INDR BAHADUR SINGH v. BIJAI BAHADUR SINGH.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD HOBHOUSE.—This appeal is presented against an order made in the course of execution proceedings. The Plaintiff in the suit who was the original Respondent in the appeal claimed possession of land. On the 12th November 1887 the District Judge passed a decree in his favour, ordering possession, and adding "the Plaintiff is also entitled to future mesne profits." The Defendant, now Appellant, appealed to the High Court, who on 19th July 1889 reversed the decree and dismissed the suit. The Plaintiff then appealed to the Queen in Council who on 11th May 1895 ordered that the decree of the High Court should be reversed and the District Judge's decree of the 12th November be affirmed.

After that the Plaintiff prosecuted his claims in execution of the decree so affirmed by the Queen in Council. He recovered possession on 30th November 1895. Then he proceeded to recover mesne profits. He claimed them from 23rd September 1886, on which day his suit was brought down to the recovery of possession by him. The Defendant objected that no decree remained to be executed except that of the Queen in Council which made no mention of mesne profits; but the District Judge held that the Queen's order had come down for execution and "its effect causes reference to be made to the original decree of this Court as a final decree in all applications for execution."

Having thus settled that the Queen's order gave mesne profits by reference to the original decree the District Judge went on to frame issues. The second of such issues was, "For what period are mesne profits recoverable?" It was arranged that this issue should be treated as preliminary to taking accounts, and should be argued separately. That was done, and the District Judge decided that mesne profits were due for the three years next after the date of the original decree, i.e., from 12th November 1887 to 12th November 1890.

From this decree the Plaintiff appealed to the High Court, who in the first instance addressed themselves to a preliminary objection made by the Defendant that no appeal is given by the Procedure Code in such a matter. The High Court overruled that objection. As it has been renewed here, and earnestly pressed upon their Lordships by Mr. Ross it may be convenient to dispose of it in the first instance.

The High Court felt considerable difficulty on the point. They allowed the appeal on the ground that the District Judge had tried the question separately, and had embodied his finding in a formal order. They remark that it practically dismisses the claim of the decree-holder for some five or six years' profits; and that in a way which in the Court of the District Judge is final. Therefore they hold it to be an appealable order.

Treating the question as if it were whether the order under consideration is final or interlocutory in its nature, and testing it by the ordinary principles applicable to such questions their Lordships think not only that the High Court are right in the particular circumstances of the case, but that there is not any need to rely upon the accident that the District

RAJA BHUP INDR BHADUR SINGH v. BIJAI BHADUR SINGH.

Judge took the convenient course of trying the liability to account in a separate issue and deciding it in a separate judgment. His decision is a final one in its essence and would be so equally whether it stood alone or was combined with decisions on other points. It resembles in principle a decree for account made at the hearing of a cause, which is final against the party denying liability to account, and is appealable; though it is also in another way interlocutory and may result in the exoneration of the accounting party or even in the award of a balance in his favour. And it can make no difference in point of principle whether the decision be in favour of or against the liability to account. It is equally final in its effect and as such equally open to appeal.

But then Mr. Ross urges that we are not testing the question by general principles, but by the expressions of the Code which relate to appeals. That is true and their Lordships turn to the Code to see what it says.

Sec. 540 gives a right to appeal to the proper Court from the decrees or from any part of the decrees of Courts exercising original jurisdiction. By sec. 2 a decree is thus defined, "The formal expression of an adjudication upon any right claimed or defence set up in a civil Court, when such adjudication so far as regards the Court expressing it decides the suit . . . An order . . . determining any question mentioned or referred to in sec. 244, but not specified in sec. 588, is within this definition." Sec. 244 is that which gives to the Court engaged in executing a decree jurisdiction to determine questions arising between the parties relating to the execution of the decree. Sec. 588 specifies a large number of orders from which appeals lie, including many made in execution proceedings but not including such an order as the one under discussion. It appears to their Lordships that the plain meaning of sec. 2 is to make this order a decree appealable under sec. 540. Mr. Ross has not shown any reason why the words of the Code should not be construed in their plain and obvious sense. On the contrary the obvious sense is that which best accords with ordinary convenience and ordinary rules of practice.

Turning from this purely technical question to the substance of the appeal, the High Court found the issue before them to be very simple. The District Judge held that it turned on the construction of secs. 211 and 244 of the Code. Sec. 244 prescribes that questions arising in execution including this question should be decided in the execution and not by separate suit. Sec. 211 enacts that in suits for possession of immoveable property "the Court may provide in the decree for the payment of rent or mesne profits in respect of such property from the institution of the suit until the delivery of possession to the party in whose favour the decree is made, or until the expiration of three years from the date of the decree (whichever event first occurs)."

The effect of the District Judge's application of these sections is somewhat startling; because though executing the Queen's order he holds himself to be limited in point of time as though he was executing his predecessor's decree made in his own Court, and he counts the three years for which alone he thinks he has the jurisdiction to estimate mesne profits not from the date of the Queen's order, but from the date of the decree of his own Court.

RAJA BRUP INDIR BAHADUR SINGH v. BIJAI BAHADUR SINGH

Now the Plaintiff, it must be held, was entitled to possession throughout. In 1887 he got a decree for it, and had that been executed he would have had the profits. But there was an appeal, and in 1889 the High Court took a view adverse to him and passed a decree in the face of which he could claim nothing. Five years afterwards he succeeded in displacing that decree and in re-establishing his original right to possession. Then he is told that from the 12th November 1890 down to the 30th November 1895 the law debars him from recovering the income of his property, and allows his opponent to keep it.

The District Judge expresses an opinion that the Plaintiff might have brought a separate suit for this income and that if he has lost some years' profits it is by his own laches. How he could be charged with laches for not instituting a suit which with the decree of the High Court standing against him must have come to naught, is not easy to say. And if he were now to bring a fresh suit or if he had done so in 1895 after reversal of the adverse decree a substantial part of his just claim would be barred by Art. 109 of the Limitation Act. But their Lordships will not further discuss the exact bearings of the two cited sections of the Code, because the High Court has given the simple and obvious solution of the difficulty which puzzled the District Judge.

The Court is now executing not the District Judge's decree of 1887, but the Queen's order of 1895, which by affirming the District Judge's decree has adopted its terms and has carried on their effect down to a later date. All that the Courts below had to do, and all that this Board has now to do, is to construe the order of May 1895 and to carry it into execution. Its meaning is hardly open to doubt. It affirms the District Judge's decree which awarded "future mesne profits." That signifies profits future to the 12th November 1887. The order of 1895 speaking with the language of the decree of 1887 clearly carries all profits up to its own date. If there had been delay for three years after 11th May 1895 sec. 211 would be called into operation with reference to the order of that date. But to call it into operation with reference to the decree of 12th November 1887 is to deprive the later order of its obvious meaning. It is true that one of the arguments used for the Defendant was that the later order has no meaning as regards mesne profits because they are not expressly mentioned; but that is clearly wrong and was hardly pressed at this Bar.

Agreeing with the High Court their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty to dismiss this appeal and the Appellant must pay the costs.

Solicitors: Messrs. Barrow, Rogers & Nevill for the Appellant.

Solicitors: Mr. Summerhays for the Respondent.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

C. W. A.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE
No. 1437 of 1898.

RAMPINI, J.	}	MOTI LAL SHAHA and
PRATT, J.		another, Plaintiffs,
1900.		Appellants,
30, May.		v.
		MONMOHAN GOSSAMI,
		Defendant, Respondent.

Debt, suit for recovery of—Promissory note, if false or forged, if Plaintiff can succeed on proof of loan.

Where the Plaintiffs brought a suit for recovery of money on the allegation that the Defendant had taken from the Plaintiffs a loan by executing a note in favour of one of the Plaintiffs :

Held—That even if the promissory note be a forgery the Plaintiffs would succeed if they could prove the loan by independent evidence.

This was an appeal preferred on the 22nd of July 1898, against the decree of Babu Monmotha Nath Chatterji, Subordinate Judge, 1st Court of Zillah Dacca, dated the 29th of March 1898, modifying the decree of Babu Nobin Chunder Nag, Sudder Munsif, 4th Court of that district, dated the 30th of September 1896.

The suit out of which the present appeal arose, was brought by the Plaintiffs for recovery of two sums of money, which, they said, the Defendant had borrowed from them, and for which sums he executed promissory notes. The first paragraph of the plaint ran thus :—

From the ijmali tahabli of the two Plaintiffs the Defendant took from the Plaintiffs' house a loan of Rs. 200 by executing a hand-note in favour of the Plaintiff No. 1 on 29th Assin 1299, and by executing a second hand-note on 17th

Kartick of the same year the Defendant took Rs. 350 as loan or howlat on a promise of repaying on demand the amounts with interest at Rs. 1½ per cent. per month.

The Defendant denied the receipt of the money and the execution of the promissory notes. The first Court found that the promissory notes were not genuine, but finding from a book of account filed on Defendant's behalf that a sum had been lent on the 29th Assin 1299, B. S., by the Plaintiffs to the Defendant, decreed the Plaintiffs' claim on the promissory note of that date and dismissed the Plaintiffs' claim on the promissory note of the 17th Kartick 1299, B. S. The lower Appellate Court held that the suit having been based upon the promissory notes and the same not having been proved the Plaintiffs were not entitled to any relief. The Plaintiffs preferred this second appeal which related only to the sum of Rs. 200 which the Plaintiffs alleged they lent to the Defendant and which the Munsif held to have been proved by the account book filed by the Defendant.

Babu Basanta Kumar Bose for the Appellants.

Babu Shiba Prasanno Bhattacharji for the Respondent.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This is an appeal against a decision of the Subordinate Judge of Dacca dated the 29th of March 1898.

The suit is one brought by the Plaintiffs for two sums of money, which, they say, the Defendant borrowed from them, and for which it seems he executed promissory notes.

MOTI LAL SAHA, v. MONMOHAN GOSSAMI.

The Defendant denies the receipt of the money and the execution of the notes.

The Court of first instance held that the promissory notes were not genuine; but it found from the account books filed by the Defendant that the Defendant had borrowed from the Plaintiffs a sum of Rs. 200, as alleged by the Plaintiffs, on the 27th of Assin 1299, which was the very date upon which the Plaintiffs say that the Defendant took the first loan from them. The Munsiff, therefore, gave the Plaintiffs a decree for Rs. 200 and dismissed the rest of the suit.

On appeal the Subordinate Judge reversed the decision of the Munsiff and dismissed the Plaintiffs' whole suit, holding that the suit, having been based upon the promissory notes, and upon them only, and the Plaintiffs not having proved the promissory notes, they were not entitled to any relief at all in this case.

The learned pleader for the Plaintiffs-Appellants in this Court urges that the Subordinate Judge has misread the plaint. He says that the suit is not based upon the promissory notes, but is a suit for money and that the promissory notes are evidence of the loan made by them. Therefore it is said that the promissory notes may be false; but if it is proved by the evidence in this case that the Plaintiffs made the loans, or, at least one of them, then they are entitled to a decree for the amount so borrowed.

We think that this contention must prevail, and that the Subordinate Judge has taken a wrong view of the case. From paragraph 1 of the plaint (page 2 of the paper-book) it is clear that the Plaintiff sues for two sums of Rs. 200 and Rs. 350 and that the promissory notes which he puts forward in this case are only evidence of the loans. We think, therefore, that although the promissory notes are forgeries, it does not follow that the Plaintiffs are not entitled to a decree for the money lent by them if they can prove the loan in any other way. And in support of this view we need only cite the case of Promotha Nath Senial v. Dwarka Nath Dey (1), the facts of which case are somewhat similar to those of the present case. This appeal relates only to the first sum of Rs. 200 which the Plaintiffs allege that they lent to the Defendant, and which the Munsiff held to have been proved by the account book filed by the Defendant. The Subordinate Judge has come to no definite finding with regard to this sum. He says:—"It may be that Defendant borrowed Rs. 200 from the Plaintiff on the 29th Assin 1299, as he admittedly borrowed money from the Plaintiff on the previous occasion." But he nowhere finds whether, as a matter of fact, the Defendant had borrowed Rs. 200.

We must therefore remand the case to the lower Appellate Court for a definite finding as to this amount. We accordingly modify the decree of the Subordinate Judge, that is to say, we set it aside so far as it relates to the sum of Rs. 200 alleged to have been lent to the Defendant on the 29th Assin 1299; and we direct that the case be sent back to that officer to be disposed of in accordance with the above remarks.

The costs of this appeal will abide the result.

S. C. S.

Case remanded.

(1) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 851 (1896).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

RULE No. 1095 OF 1900.

GHOSE, J. STEVENS, J. 1900. 17, July.	}	AJODHYA PERSHAD SINGH, Applicant, v. SHEO PERSHAD SAHU, and ors., Opposite Party.
--	---	--

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 108—Sufficient cause—Non-appearance of guardian of a minor, in a suit, whether a good and sufficient cause—Ex parte decree, setting aside of, against one of several Defendants, effect of, as to the decree against other Defendants.

The simple fact that a guardian did not appear in a suit is not a good and sufficient cause within the meaning of sec. 108, C. P. C., for setting aside an ex parte decree passed against a minor. There are different considerations which bear upon the matter, the question always being whether, in what the guardian did, he acted in the best interest of his ward.

KESHO PERSHAD v. HIRDAY NARAIN (1) explained.

In a case where an ex parte decree was set aside against one of the Defendants, and the Subordinate Judge set aside the decree against others who did not appear and one of whom made an application to set aside the ex parte decree :

Held—That this was rightly done.

MAHOMED HAMIDULLA v. TOHUREN-NISSA (2) approved of.

This was a rule issued on the 30th of April 1900, against the orders of the Subordinate Judge, 1st Court, Tirhoot, at Mezufferpore, dated the 24th of February 1900.

(1) 6 C. L. R. 69 (1880).

(2) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 155 (1897).

The Petitioner brought a suit to enforce a mortgage against three persons one of whom was a minor and represented by his father-in-law, Ram Sahay, as guardian. None of the Defendants appeared and the suit was decreed ex parte. An order was subsequently made making the decree absolute and in execution of the decree the property was sold. The minor represented by one Futeh Bahadur, as next friend, made an application to have the ex parte decree set aside under sec. 108, C. P. C.; similar application was made by one of the other Defendants. The lower Court without taking any evidence, was of opinion that, so far as the minor was concerned, the non-appearance in the suit of the guardian was a sufficient cause within the meaning of sec. 108, C. P. C., and that the ex parte decree ought to be set aside. The decree being set aside against the minor Defendant, the Subordinate Judge was of opinion that the decree against the other Defendants ought to be set aside. Against this order the Petitioner made an application and obtained the present rule.

Babus Umakali Mukherjee and Surendra Krishna Dutt for the Petitioner.

Babu Makhon Lall (for Babu Buldeo Narain Singh) for the Opposite Party.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The facts out of which this rule arises are shortly these :—

The Petitioner before us sued to enforce a mortgage security, said to have been executed by three brothers, Bishen Deo, Burun Deo and Mutuk Deo. At the time when this suit was brought, Mutuk Deo had died, leaving a minor son Ajudhya, and this minor was represented in the suit by his father-in-law, Ram

AJODHYA PERSHAD SINGH v. SHEO PERSHAD SAHU.

Sahay, as his guardian, appointed as such by the Court. None of the Defendants appeared at the trial, and an ex parte preliminary decree was passed in favour of the Petitioner on the 8th September 1898. Subsequently, an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property was passed and the property was sold in November 1899. In December following, two applications were made for setting aside the ex parte decree of the 8th September 1898, under sec. 108 of Code of Civil Procedure—one by the minor, through one Futeh Bahadoor, describing himself as the next friend and the other by Bishen Deo—upon the ground that no summons in the suit was served upon them, and that they had been prevented by sufficient cause from appearing at the trial.

The Subordinate Judge, however, without recording any evidence in support of the allegations of the applicants, was of opinion, relying upon the case of, Kesho Pershad v. Hirday Narain (1) that so far as the minor was concerned, the non-appearance in the suit of the guardian was a sufficient cause within the meaning of sec. 108 of the Code, and that the ex parte decree should be set aside upon this single ground. And as regards the other applicants, he thought that the decree being set aside upon the application of the minor Defendant, their application must also be granted. Accordingly, the said ex parte decree was set aside.

Dissatisfied with these orders, the Petitioner moved this Court, and upon his application, a rule was granted calling upon the opposite side, to shew cause why the said orders should not be set aside.

We have heard the learned vakils on both sides ; and it appears to us that the orders of the Subordinate Judge, as they now stand, cannot be supported.

We are of opinion that it could not be laid down so broadly as the Sub-Judge seems to think that the case of Kesho Pershad v. Hirday Narain (1) quoted by him did lay it down, that the guardian of a minor Defendant is bound in every case to appear at the trial, and that the simple fact of his non-appearance is a good and sufficient cause within the meaning of sec. 108 for setting aside the ex parte decree.

On referring to the judgment of this Court in that case, we do not understand the learned Judges to have meant to hold that in any given case, where the guardian fails to appear at the trial, it is necessarily a sufficient cause, without anything else, entitling the minor to have the ex parte decree made against him set aside ; rather it would appear that they proceeded upon the fact that the guardian in that particular case had, by neglect of duty, failed to protect the interest of the minor, though no doubt there are certain words in their judgment which might possibly lend support to the view adopted by the Subordinate Judge. It is quite possible to conceive that the guardian of the minor in this case had just and proper reason not to enter appearance on behalf of the minor : he might have been satisfied, after proper enquiry, that the claim against the minor was true, and hence he thought it would be entailing upon the minor unnecessary cost if he were to appear. On the other hand, it is no doubt possible that the guardian wantonly, and without any enquiry or consideration of the interest of the minor, failed to enter appearance. There are indeed different considerations which bear upon this matter, the question always being whether, in what the guardian did, he acted in the best interest of his ward. But it is unnecessary to discuss them at this stage. All that we now desire to say is that the Sub-Judge was not in a position to determine whether there was sufficient cause for the non-appearance of the guardian, without recording any evidence which the parties might have desired to adduce. In this view of the matter we set aside his order and send back the case to him for reconsideration.

AJODHYA PERSHAD SINGH v. SHEO PERSHAD SAHU.

In the other case the Sub-Judge, as already noticed, made the order in favour of the applicants, because he had already set aside the ex parte decree upon the application of the minor Defendant. This seems to have been a correct view to take. And in this connection, we need only refer to the case of Mahomet Hamidulla v. Tohurennissa (2) in the decision of which case, we concur. But as the other order of the Sub-Judge upon which this order was made to depend is now set aside, this matter should also be remitted back for reconsideration.

Case remanded.

S. C. S.

(2) 1. L. 1 25 Cal. 155 (1897).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE .

No. 1762 of 1898.*

SHEIKH MONGOLA, Defendant No. 1, Appellant,
v.
AMEER ALI, J.
BRETT, J.
1900.
25, May.
MAHARAJAH KUMUDCHUN-DER SINGH BAHADUR,
and ors., Plaintiffs,
Respondents.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec 50, cl. (2)—Presumption as to uniform payment of rent.

When a tenant has paid rent for over twenty years prior to the date of suit at a uniform rate which has not changed, the presumption of law under sec. 50, cl. (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act would arise if there is no allegation or proof that a tenancy commenced in a particular year after the Permanent Settlement.

The mere fact that the tenant shows by documentary evidence that the rate of rent has not changed from a particular year would not preclude him from the benefit of the presumption given by cl. (2) of sec. 50.

This was an appeal preferred on the 29th of August 1898, against the decree of Babu Mohendra Nath Roy, Sub-Judge, first Court of Zillah Mymensingh, dated the 26th of April 1898, modifying the decree of Babu Tej Chandra Mukerjee, Munsif, second Court of Netrokona, dated the 5th of April 1897.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Jnanendra Nath Bose (for Dr. Asutosh Mukerjee) for the Appellant.

* This appeal is analogous to appeal from Appellate Decrees Nos. 1907 to 1909 of 1898,— REPORTER.

SHEIKH MONGOLA v. MAHARAJAH KUMUD CHUNDER SINGH BAHADUR

The Advocate General (Mr. J. T. Woodroffe), Babus Dwarka Nath Chuckerbarty, Mohendra Nath Bhattacharjee and Taruk Chunder Chuckerbarty for the Respondents in 1762 of 1898.

Babus D. N. Chuckerbarty and Taruk Chunder Chuckerbarty for the Respondents in 1907 of 1900.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

These appeals arise out of certain proceedings taken by the Respondents under sec. 158 of the Bengal Tenancy Act for determining (to use the language of the lower Appellate Court) the incidents of the holdings in the occupation of the Defendants, the Appellants in this Court.

The Munsif before whom the applications were originally made referred the cases to a revenue officer under the provisions of the 2nd clause of sec. 158 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and upon his report the first Court held that the Defendants were occupancy raiyats, and that the pattas put forward by them were fabricated.

The Defendants appealed, and the Subordinate Judge states that the question which he had to determine was whether the Defendants were occupancy raiyats or tenure-holders, and upon a consideration of the evidence before him he came to the conclusion that the pattas propounded by the Defendants were genuine documents, and that the predecessors of the Defendants and the Defendants themselves had held the jotes for a long time, and all the jamas mentioned in the pattas. That finding respecting the genuineness of the pattas has not been and could not be questioned in second appeal. He further found that the Defendants were tenure-holders, but that there was nothing to show they had been holding the jotes at unchanged rates from the time of the Permanent Settlement, and that consequently their jamas were liable to enhancement.

From that finding regarding the enhanceability of their jamas the Defendants* have preferred this second appeal.

The learned Advocate General who appeared for the Respondents took the objection, on the basis of the cross-appeal, that the Subordinate Judge had not found that the lands held by the Defendants were the lands covered by the pattas. He did not however wish to take this as a substantive objection, but contended that if the case is remanded on the appeal of the Appellants that question might also be tried. We do not know whether the requisite Court-fee has been paid for the hearing of the cross-objection; but as the objection has been raised we may say at once that in our opinion the Subordinate Judge has distinctly found in his judgment that the lands covered by the pattas have been held by the Defendants as their jotes.

The cross objection must therefore fail.

As regards the contention put forward on behalf of the Defendants, the Appellants in this Court, it is to be observed that they produced dakhilas showing the payment of a uniform rate of rent for many years past, in some cases from 1221, B. S., in others from 1224, B. S. Sec. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act provides that "Where a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the

SHEIKH MONGOLA v. MAHARAJAH KUMUD CHUNDER SINGH BAHADUR.

Permanent Settlement the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of an alteration in the area of the tenure or holding ;" and then it goes on to say :—"If it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under this Act that either a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement." With regard to this presumption the Subordinate Judge says as follows :—"Neither can any presumption be made in favour of the Defendants, for they themselves say that they have been paying rent at unchanged rates from 1221, B. S., at the earliest." In their written statement the Defendants make the following allegation :—"That of the lands comprised in the mokurari chok pattas granted by the former proprietor Krishna Das Surma in the name of our ancestors Sheikh Meherulla and Poran Mundle, and of the lands now in dispute, we have been in the enjoyment and possession by paying rent at a uniform rate of Rs. 23 odd from 1221 up to the present time ;" and we assume that the allegation of the Defendants in the other cases was similar to that of the Defendants in appeals from Appellate Decree No. 1762 of 1898 which we have just quoted.

There is nothing upon that allegation to suggest that the tenancy began from the year 1221, B. S. Of course if the Defendants admit that the tenancy commenced in the year 1221, B. S., there can be no question of any presumption. The presumption must be carried back to the time of the Permanent Settlement in order to make the rent or rate of rent not enhanchible. But if the allegation is not to that effect or if there is no evidence establishing the fact that the tenancy began in 1221, B. S., and if the Defendants have paid rent for over twenty years prior to the date of suit at a uniform rate which has not changed, the presumption of law would be, unless rebutted, that that has been the rate from the time of the Permanent Settlement. The mere fact that the Defendants have only been able to show by documentary evidence that their rate of rent has not changed from 1221, B. S., would not preclude them from having the benefit of the presumption given in cl. (2) of sec. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

We are not in a position on second appeal to say how the matter stands with reference to that question. It will be for the Subordinate Judge to say upon the evidence taken in connection with the allegation of the Defendants whether the tenancy commenced after the Permanent Settlement so as to defeat any question of presumption. If the tenancy did not commence at the period whence the Defendants have been able to show uniform payment of rent or if it commenced at some anterior time and if the Defendants have shown that the rate of rent has remained unchanged for a number of years extending over twenty years from date of suit, they ought to have the benefit of the presumption. We set aside the decrees of the Subordinate

SHEIKH MONGOLA v. MAHARAJAH KUMUD CHUNDER SINGH BAHADUR.

Judge in so far as the question of enhanceability is concerned and send back the cases for him to come to a conclusion in view of the observations we have made.

The costs will abide the result.

S. C. S.

Case remanded.

[CIVIL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

CIVIL RULE NO. 67 OF 1900.

NITYA NANDA PATRA,

Petitioner,

v.

RAMPINI, J.

WILKINS, J.

1900.

22, March.

{HIRA LAL KARMAKAR and another, Opposite
Party.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 310A—"Whose immovable property is sold," meaning of, in sec. 310A—Sale in execution of rent decree—Simple mortgagee, right of, to apply to set aside sale.

A simple mortgagee is not a person entitled to have a sale set aside under sec 310A, C. P. C.

HAMIDAL HUQ v. MATANGINI DAS (3), RAKHAL CHUNDER BOSE v. DWARKA NATH MISSEER (4) distinguished.

This was a rule issued on the 11th of January 1900, against the order of the Munsif of Kotalpure, District Bankura, dated the 8th of November 1899.

The Petitioner in this case had obtained a decree for rent and in execution of that decree had caused the sale of the Defendant's tenure. Thereupon the opposite party, who was a simple mortgagee of the tenure, applied under sec. 310A, Civ. P. C., and had the sale set aside. The Petitioner obtained the present Rule against the opposite party to show cause why the order setting aside the sale should not be set aside.

(3) 2 C. W. N. cclviii (1898).

(4) I. R. R. 13 Cal. 346 (1886).

Dr. Ashutosh Mookerjee and Babu Joy Gopal Ghosh for the Petitioner.

Babu Shoshi Sekhar Bose for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This is a Rule calling upon the opposite party to show cause why the order complained of by the Petitioner should not be set aside.

The order complained of is one passed by the Munsif of Kotalpure, on the 8th of November 1899, setting aside a sale of a tenure sold in execution of a rent decree under the provisions of sec. 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The learned pleader who appears in support of the Rule points out that the sale in this case was held at the instance of the landlord under the provisions of Chapter XIV of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and that, that being so, the opposite party had no right to apply to have the sale set aside. The opposite party in this case is not the judgment-debtor but a person who alleges that he is the holder of a simple mortgage on the tenure which has been sold. The learned pleader for the applicant further contends that even if the provisions of sec. 310A be held applicable to the sale, then the opposite party, being only a simple mortgagee, is not a person whose immovable property has been sold within the terms of sec. 310A.

We think that this latter contention must prevail. The sale is prima facie one which would appear to come under the provisions of sec. 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. But in the case of Janardhan Ganguli v. Kali Kristo Thakur (1), it has been held that sec. 310A,

(1) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 393 (1895).

NITYA NANDA PATRA v. HIRA LAL KARMAKAR.

C. P. C., applies to sale of a tenure in execution of a decree for its own arrears ; and this case has been followed in another case, Bungshidhar Haldar v. Kedar Nath Mundal (2).

But we are certainly of opinion that the opposite party, being a simple mortgagee, is not a person who can come under the provisions of sec. 310A and apply to have a sale set aside on the ground that he is the person whose immoveable property has been sold. He may have an interest in the property ; but he is certainly not the owner of the property. He is only a mortgagee ; and it is impossible to see how he can contend that he is the person whose immoveable property has been sold.

The learned pleader for the opposite party has called our attention to the ruling in the case of Hamidul Huq v. Mutangini Dasi (3) in which, according to the short notes, it has been held that a mortgagee is a person whose immoveable property has been sold within the meaning of sec. 310A. But, in referring to the facts of that case we find that they are very different from those of the present case. The mortgagee in that case was a mortgagee by conditional sale, and no doubt, the legal title in the property had vested in him, and for those reasons it must have been held by the Judges who decided that case that he was a person whose immoveable property had been sold within the meaning of sec. 310A. The case of Rukhal Chunder Bose v. Dwarka Nath Misser (4) has also been cited by the learned pleader for the opposite party. In that case it has been held that a mortgagee, who has obtained a decree for foreclosure, is a person whose immoveable property has been sold within the meaning of sec. 311, C. P. C. But the facts of that case also are different from those of the present : for the mortgagee in the present case has obtained no decree for foreclosure, but is simply a mortgagee and nothing more. And for these reasons we cannot but think that he is not entitled to apply to have the sale set aside under sec. 310A.

A further objection has been raised to the sale by the pleader for the applicant in this case, namely, that he was an auction purchaser as well as a decree-holder, and that he got no notice of the application under sec. 310A before the order under that section was passed. Now, it is clear that under the ruling in Janardhan Ganguli v. Kuli Kristo Thokur (1) already cited, and also under the ruling in Bungshidhar Haldar v. Kedar Nath Mundal (2) an auction-purchaser is entitled to notice before an order under sec. 310A for the setting aside of a sale is made and that therefore the proceedings in this case would seem to be bad for want of the notice in question.

But we need say nothing more on this point, as the first of the grounds of the learned pleader for the applicant is sufficient for the disposal of this Rule.

For these reasons we make the Rule absolute and set aside the order complained of, with costs, which we assess at two gold mohurs.

S. C. S.

Rule made absolute.

(2) 1 C. W. N. 114 (1896).

(3) 2 C. W. N. cclviii (1898).

(4) I. L. R. 13 Cal. 346 (1886).

(1) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 393 (1895).

(2) 1 C. W. N. 114 (1896).

[CRIMINAL-REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 501 OF 1900.

STEVENS, J.	}	ISAB MANDAL, Petitioner,
HANDLEY, J.		v.
1900.		THE QUEEN-EMPRESS,
13, August.		Opposite Party.

Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 193—Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 35—Intentionally giving false evidence in a judicial proceeding—Statement of a witness made to a police-officer in the course of an investigation, admissibility of—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1858), sec. 162—Statement made to a Magistrate making an enquiry—Judicial proceeding.

Statement of a witness to a police-officer under the provisions of sec. 162, Cr. P. Code, though reduced into writing is not a public or official document and the writing in question cannot be used as evidence in any proceeding to prove that the statements contained therein were in fact made, there being nothing in sec. 162, Cr. P. Code, which limits the prohibition of the use of such a document as evidence only in the matter of the charge which is actually under investigation.

Such a document is not a "record" within the meaning of sec. 35 of the Indian Evidence Act and the document in question is not therefore admissible in evidence under the provisions of that section.

It is irregular in a charge of intentionally giving false evidence to put the whole of a long statement bodily to a witness at once, and in such a case no conviction can properly be had except on proof that the accused person had made to the police-officer each and every one of the statements contained in the document.

This was a rule issued on the 27th of June 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Bogra, dated the 5th of May 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the Sessions Judge of Pubna and Bogra on the 15th of May 1900.

The facts of the case appear fully from the judgment of the Court.

Mr. P. L. Roy and M. Abdul Jawad for the Petitioner.

Mr. Leith for the Crown.

The following JUDGMENT was delivered by the Court:—

This rule was issued in the following circumstances:—The police began an investigation into a case of murder but, while that investigation was pending, on a representation made by the District Superintendent to the District Magistrate, the Deputy Magistrate, Babu Bhowany Persad Neogi, was sent to make an inquiry into that case and into a counter-charge which had been made, as we understand, against the informant in that case. The Deputy Magistrate accordingly went to the spot and instituted an inquiry. In the course of that inquiry, he examined the present Petitioner as a witness and, in consequence of the statements which he made on that occasion, he confronted him with a written statement which had been taken down by the Sub-Inspector of Police under the provisions of sec. 162, C. Cr. P. The Deputy Magistrate, after asking the Petitioner whether he had made a certain statement to the Sub-Inspector, recorded a note that the witness was evidently speaking falsehood and that he should show cause why he should not be prosecuted under sec. 193, I. P. C. A proceeding was instituted against him, the Sub-Inspector was examined and, after stating specifically that the Petitioner had made certain statements to him, he attested the statement taken down under sec. 162, which statement was put upon the record and marked as Exhibit (B). Another witness gave evidence as to certain statements, which, he alleged, had been made by the Petitioner to the Sub-Inspector. On these materials, the Petitioner was sent up to the District Magistrate for prosecution under sec. 193, I. P. C. The case was made over to another Deputy Magistrate, who proceeded to try the Petitioner and finally convicted him of intentionally giving false evidence in a stage of judicial proceeding and sentenced him to rigorous imprisonment for a year and a half under sec. 193, I. P. C. The Sub-Inspector, who had been examined as a witness in the former proceeding, again gave evidence. He again attested the statement taken down in writing under sec. 162, and said:—"This" (Ex. B shown) "is a record of his statement prepared by me." In addition to that he orally gave evidence as to certain statements which had been, as he alleged, made to him by the Petitioner. Another Sub-Inspector was similarly examined with reference to a further statement in writing which he had taken down under sec. 162. The rest of the evidence, so far as it relates to the statements made to the police-officer by the Petitioner, is concerned only with isolated statements and not with the whole of the statement as committed to writing by the Sub-Inspector in the document marked Exhibit (B).

ISAB MANDAL v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

In the charge, the act charged against the Petitioner was that he had said on solemn affirmation that he had not made before the Sub-Inspector, Golam Hossein, the statement recorded by him in the document marked Exhibit (B) by the Deputy Magistrate.

The conviction was upheld by the Sessions Judge on appeal.

A rule was granted to show cause why the conviction should not be set aside on two grounds; first, that the written statement recorded by the police had been improperly used as evidence contrary to sec. 162, C. Cr. P., and, next, that the Deputy Magistrate, Babu Bhowany Persad Neogi, not being competent to hold a judicial inquiry in this matter, any statement made by the Petitioner could not be properly regarded as a statement made in the course of a judicial proceeding.

We are clearly of opinion that the rule must be made absolute on the first ground. The Deputy Magistrate who tried the case has sent in an explanation, in which he submits, first, that as the document was not used in the course of the murder case, the provisions of sec. 162 did not apply to it and it was admissible under the general provisions of sec. 35 of the Indian Evidence Act; and, secondly, that, as a matter of fact, it was not used as evidence either by him or by the Deputy Magistrate who held the inquiry.

On the first point, there is nothing in sec. 162 which limits the prohibition of the use of such a document as evidence to a matter of the charge which is actually under investigation by the police-officer when the statement is made and, to our mind, it extends also to the use of such a document against the person who is alleged to have made the statement. We think that it was intended to recognize the danger of placing implicit confidence in a record more or less imperfectly made by a police-officer who would not necessarily be competent to make an exactly correct record of the statement of a witness with due regard to the provisions of the law of evidence and who might possibly in some cases not be entirely free from an inclination (perhaps unconscious) to take the statement as being somewhat more definite and precise in a particular direction than the witness had intended it to be. We are unable to see that sec. 35 of the Evidence Act has any application in the matter, for, we do not consider that a document of this nature, which, moreover, it is not necessarily a part of the official duty of a police-officer to prepare at all, comes within the description of a "record" within the meaning of that section, nor, even if it did, are the provisions of the section capable of being applied so as to enable the document to be used in evidence in the manner in which the Deputy Magistrate has used it.

ISAB MANDAL v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

With regard to the second submission of the Deputy Magistrate, we can only express our surprise at it, for, it is, as we have shown, at variance with the actual facts, as they appear on the face of the record. The statement taken down in writing under sec. 162 was, as a matter of fact, admitted as an exhibit and marked as such by both the Deputy Magistrates and the Sub-Inspector was allowed to attest it as a "record" of the statement which the Petitioner had made to him. We may say that we regard it as very irregular, in a charge of intentionally giving false evidence, to put the whole of a long statement bodily to a witness at once, but as the Deputy Magistrate did so in this case, the conviction could be properly had only on proof that the accused person, now the Petitioner, had made to the police-officer each and every one of the statements contained in the document. That has not been proved by oral evidence. It is unnecessary, in the view that we take of the question arising under sec. 162, C. Cr. P., to express any opinion on the other point with reference to which the rule was granted. The conviction and sentence are set aside and the Petitioner will be discharged from bail.

H. P. C. Rule made absolute.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 347 of 1900.

In the matter of
PASUPATI NATH BOSE and DHANUKDHARY SARAN
PRINSEP, J. HANDLEY, J. 1900. 27, July.	}	LAL or SING, 2nd party, Petitioners,  v. NANDO LAL BOSE and GOURI SINGH, 1st party, Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 147—Construction and meaning of the section—Comparison of the language used in sec. 147 (Act V of 1898), sec. 147 (Act X of 1882) and sec. 532 (Act X of 1872)—Previous law bearing on the subject—Meaning of the terms "such thing shall be done, &c."—Form of the order—Order whether affects persons not parties to the proceedings—Magistrate, power of, to order removal of obstruction to the enjoyment of right of easement—Parties, adding of, in proceeding under sec. 147, C. P. C., legality of.

PASUPATI NATH BOSE v. NANDO LAL BOSE.

Where it was found that the first party had a right to the flow of water for purposes of irrigation from a certain channel passing through the village of the second party who obstructed such flow by erecting certain bunds :

Held—That under sec. 147 of the Criminal Procedure Code the Magistrate is competent to direct that the obstruction be removed.

A Magistrate is not competent to add parties to a proceeding under sec. 147, Cr. P. C., any more than he is in proceedings under sec. 145 of the Code.

That the order of the Deputy Magistrate so far as it purports to affect the persons not parties to the proceedings under sec. 147 is null and void, but that does not render the whole order bad and so far as persons who are parties to the proceedings are concerned it is binding on them.

That the finding of the Deputy Magistrate "that the first party have proved an uninterrupted user of water of the channel for twenty years which they have enjoyed as an easement and as of right and that the erection of the bunds led to the dispute" is a sufficient finding that the right in dispute had been exercised within either of the periods mentioned in the proviso to sec. 147, Cr. P. C.

This was a rule issued on the 30th of April 1900, against the order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Nowada, dated the 2nd of March 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the Judgment.

Mr. Jackson and Babu Mahendra Coomar Mitter for the Petitioners.

Mr. Dunne and Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Atulya Charan Bose for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This rule is to consider an order passed under sec. 147, Code of Criminal Procedure, as bad on three grounds ; first, because it has been directed to persons who were not parties to the proceedings ; second, that in its form, the order is not in accordance with sec. 147 ; third, that the Magistrate has not found that the right claimed had been exercised within either of the periods specified in the proviso to that section.

Sir G. Evans in obtaining the rule, drew our attention to the terms of sec. 147 which, he contended, were so expressed as to make it impossible for any Magistrate to pass an order within that section.

We propose to consider this matter. First, sec. 147 of the Code of 1898 is in modification of the terms of sec. 147 of the previous Code of 1882 which again appears to us to reproduce the corresponding sec. (532) of the Code of 1872, though it is expressed in somewhat different language and requires that a Magistrate shall be satisfied that the dispute is likely to cause a breach of the peace. It does not appear that the legislature has ever intended to alter the law in regard to the subject-matter of the dispute. The intention seems rather to have been to express it in the Code of 1882 in what was considered to be more appropriate technical language, and next, when the Code of 1898 came under consideration, to return to the language of the former Code of 1872, inasmuch as reported cases had amply shown that there had been confusion and uncertainty, in applying sec. 147 of the Code of 1882, in consequence of the novel expressions made use of. The expression "tangible immoveable property" which for the first time, appeared in secs. 145 and 147 of the Code of 1882, had been imperfectly understood, and so the more familiar language of the former Code was adopted. This is especially clear if reference be made to sec. 145 and in abstaining from the use of that expression also in sec. 147 we have no doubt that the legislature was influenced by the same considerations. Sec. 147 of the Code of 1882 runs thus :—

PASUPATI NATH BOSE v. NANDO LAL BOSE.

"Whenever any such Magistrate is satisfied as aforesaid.....as the case may be," And sec. 147 of the Code of 1898 re enacted the law on this subject in the following terms :—

"Whenever any such Magistrate is satisfied.....as the case may be." It is obvious that sec. 147 of the Code of 1898 has not been happily expressed and that, if strictly construed, it is meaningless. A Magistrate is empowered to enquire into a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace concerning the right of use of land or water including any right of way or other easement over the same, and it is clearly the object of the law that by his order, he shall settle that dispute; and that his order is to be in force until the party against whom the order is passed shall have obtained the decision of a competent Court in his favour. But what are to be the terms of the Magistrate's order? If he finds that the right in dispute exists, he is to "make an order permitting such thing, to be done or directing that such thing shall not be done as the case may be" which is to have effect until the decision of a competent Court shall have been obtained to the contrary. If in such Court an order be passed affirming the Magistrate's finding, that order would, it is presumed, be the final order in the matter and take the place of the ad interim order of the Magistrate, but as the law is expressed, the Magistrate's order would be made absolute. No provision is made for a case in which the Magistrate's order may be modified, though from the nature of the matter in issue, this may constantly happen. But what does sec. 147 mean by stating that the Magistrate's order is to permit "such thing to be done" or to direct that "such thing shall not be done?" The word "such" must refer to something in the context, but the section is silent in this respect.

An explanation is suggested by learned counsel that "such thing" means the matter in dispute connected with the right of use of land or water. This may be what was intended. It is to be regretted that the law should have been so imperfectly and inartistically expressed. A comparison between the corresponding sections of the Code of 1872 and 1882 sufficiently shows that this was probably intended, and that the confusion has arisen from the draftsman substituting for the first portion of sec. 147 of the Code of 1882 the terms of the first portion (with verbal corrections in language) of sec. 532 of the Code of 1872 without noticing that the latter portion of that section would also need amendment to express the law correctly and intelligibly.

The matter in dispute between the parties which has led to proceedings under sec. 147 was the right to use certain water for purposes of irrigation and after declaring the existence of that right in favour of the first party, who are respectively the malik and thikadar of Charaul, the Magistrate has coupled with them "the men of Charaul" who are no parties to these proceedings, and he has also forbidden the second party, the malik and thikadar of Bhikrampur, as well as the men of Bhikrampur, who also are no parties to the proceedings, from erecting a bund in this nala or obstructing in any way the flow of water proceeding by this nala from Bhikrampur Pahar by the Gadna chur to Charaul. In its form the order is not bad because to use the words of sec. 147 it professes to "direct that such thing shall not be done."

PASUPATI NATH BOSE v. NANDO LAL BOSE.

The erection of this bund so as to prevent the exercise of the right to the flow of this water by the first party has caused the proceedings under sec. 147 and the right being found in favour of the first party, the Magistrate is competent to direct that the obstruction of that right by the erection of the bund shall be removed. Such an order is, we think, what the legislature contemplated if any meaning can be derived from the words of sec. 147. This disposes of the second objection taken.

The first objection is substantial. The Magistrate was not competent to add parties to the proceeding under sec. 147 any more than he could to proceedings under sec. 145 and in regard to proceedings under sec. 145 the law has been thus settled in many reported cases decided by this Court. The result may be unfortunate in its consequences, for in such a dispute the landlords, the malik and thikadar, are not so directly concerned as their tenants. It would be impossible to make all the tenants of the two villages parties to a proceeding under sec. 147 and there is no provisions in the Code of Criminal Procedure as in the Code of Civil Procedure for dealing with such a matter so as to bind the community through some one representing it. The result may thus be that although the malik and thikadar may be prevented from erecting this bund, a difficulty may arise if the bund is erected by some villagers of Bhikrampur. Possibly a remedy will be found if such a case arises. At all events the order under sec. 147 is bad so far as it professes to affect the men of Charaul or of Bhikrampur because they are no parties to the proceedings under sec. 147.

The next matter for consideration in connection with this order is whether it is altogether bad by the inclusion of these persons. We think not. There is no reason why it should not be binding on those to whom it is properly directed. In the present case moreover the improper inclusion of the tenants of the parties to the proceedings cannot affect the order in respect of the landlords. Consequently it will be sufficient if we declare that the order under sec. 147 is null and void in respect of the tenants of Charaul or the tenants of Bhikrampur. The last objection is that the order is bad because the Magistrate has not found that the right in dispute had been exercised within either of the periods mentioned in sec. 147. This is not so. The Magistrate has thus expressed himself on this point:—"To summarize the evidence—The Court is of opinion that the first party, the thikadar and zemindar of Charaul, have proved an uninterrupted use of the water of this nala for twenty years which they have enjoyed as an easement and as of right."

PASUPATI NATH BOSE v. NANDO LAL BOSE.

This in our opinion, is a sufficient finding for the purposes of this case, for we understand from it that the erection of the bund which had led to the dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace has caused an interruption in the exercise of the right claimed and proved to exist.

The order under sec. 147 will therefore stand with the modification which has been ordered by us.

Order modified

N. N. M.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 333 OF 1900.

KEFATULLAH, 1st party,
Petitioner,

PRINSEP, J.
HANDLEY, J.

v.

1900. FERUZUDDIN MIAH and 29, June. KHABIRUDDI, 2nd party,
Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal procedure (Act V of 1898) secs. 145, 438—Summary finding of possession by Magistrate in proceeding under sec. 145—Written statement in such proceeding, proof of—Warrant, issue of, for attendance of parties, legality of—Sessions Judge, power of, on application for redress of irregularity under sec. 145, to report to High Court under sec. 148, C. Cr. P., for order s.

In a case under sec. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure a Magistrate cannot on the failure of one party to file a written statement, summarily pass an order declaring possession with the party who has filed a written statement without taking evidence in proof of such statement.

He has no jurisdiction to issue a warrant to compel the attendance of a party in such proceeding.

On application to the Sessions Judge for relief against such illegality he should report the matter under sec. 438 of the Code for orders of the High Court, if he is of opinion that the order is illegal and without jurisdiction.

This was a rule granted on the 24th of April 1900, against the order of the Joint-Magistrate of Mymensingh, dated the 21st of February 1900, an application for the revision of which order was rejected by the Additional Sessions Judge of Mymensingh on the 19th of March 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Sarat Chandra Basak for the Petitioner.

Babu Taruk Chunder Chuckerbarty for the Opposite Party.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The order passed by the Magistrate in this case is clearly without jurisdiction. He has taken proceedings under sec. 145 and, on the day fixed for receiving written statements from the disputing parties, the second party alone put in a written statement, and the first party asked for a postponement. The Magistrate declined to grant any postponement and he has summarily passed an order declaring the second party to be in possession and maintaining his possession. There was no evidence upon which the Magistrate could have passed such an order. The written statement would not be a sufficient ground, for the law requires that, on perusing the written statements so put in, the Magistrate shall hear the parties, receive the evidence produced by them respectively, consider the effect of such evidence, take such further evidence as he may think necessary and then decide which of the parties was in possession at the date of the order made under sub-sec. (1) The statements made by a party in a written statement require to be proved in the same way as any other statements and, therefore, the Magistrate was not competent to pass an order in favour of the second party merely on the written statement filed by that party. The order, therefore, is without jurisdiction and must be set aside and the case must be tried in accordance with law.

KEFATULLAH v. FERUZUDDIN MIAH.

We also observe that, on the date originally fixed for the written statement, one of the second party in whose favour this order has been passed was absent and the Magistrate thereupon thought proper to issue a warrant for his attendance. There was no authority for such proceeding. In this particular instance, the matter in issue was not the commission of an offence but the settlement of a dispute between the parties as to the possession of land and, therefore, it was entirely optional with the parties or any one of them to attend or not. In his absence, the case should have been decided as in default. The rule is made absolute. We observe that on application made the Additional Sessions Judge has considered the matter now before us on this rule and he has expressed himself very properly on the illegal order of the Magistrate but having done this the Additional Sessions Judge has added "I am afraid I have no power to take any step in the matter." The Additional Sessions Judge should have known that the object of the application to him was to obtain a reference by him to this Court under sec. 438, Criminal Procedure Code, and thus to avoid the expense of coming to this Court directly and as the Additional Sessions Judge found that the order of the Magistrate was illegal he should have reported the case for the orders of this Court on revision.

Rule made absolute :

Order set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION]

* REV. NO. 68 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	JALIRAM ALOM GANBURAH,
STANLEY, J.		Petitioner,
1900.		v.
4, April.		RAJKUMAR UMAR SINGH, Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 437—Further enquiry—Magistrate, power of, to direct further enquiry into offences, some of which formed component parts of an offence of which accused was acquitted—Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 147, 323, 342—Rioting, acquittal of—Fresh trial for causing hurt.

Where an accused person was tried on a charge of being a member of an unlawful assembly with the common object of assaulting the complainant but was acquitted of the offence of rioting and subsequent thereto the District Magistrate directed a further enquiry into the offences under secs. 323 and 342, I. P. Code, committed in the same occurrence :

JALIRAM ALOM GANBURAH v. RAJKUMAR UMAR SINGH.

Held—That the offence under sec. 323, I. P. Code, being one of the offences which formed the subject of the previous trial, the matter cannot be re-opened until the order of acquittal shall have been set aside.

That no order within the terms of sec. 437, Cr. P. Code, having been passed in respect of the offence under sec. 342, I. P. Code, the District Magistrate was not competent to order further enquiry in regard to that offence.

This was a rule issued on the 25th of January 1900, against the order of the Deputy Commissioner of Sibsagor, dated the 8th of November 1899.

The facts of the case, so far as they are material to this report, appear from the judgment.

Babu Surendra Nath Roy for the Petitioner.

No one appeared for the Opposite Party.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This rule has been granted to consider an order for further enquiry passed by the Deputy Commissioner of Sibsagor. It appears that the Petitioner has already been tried by a Magistrate for the occurrence, which forms also the subject of the proceedings which the District Magistrate now proposes to take. The charges in that case, as set out in the Magistrate's judgment, were that the Petitioner was a member of an unlawful assembly with the common object of assaulting the complainant and that he assaulted the complainant in prosecution of the common object of such unlawful assembly and, after a trial professedly under sec. 147, I. P. C., the Magistrate has acquitted the Petitioner.

The District Magistrate has, on motion made to him, ordered a further enquiry into the offences under secs. 323 and 342, I. P. C., notwithstanding this order of acquittal. Now, in regard to the offence under sec. 323, it has been sufficiently shown that that really was one of the offences which formed the subject of the trial already held and this matter cannot be re-opened until the order of acquittal shall have been set aside.

In regard to the proceedings which it is now proposed to take under sec. 342 by way of further enquiry, we would remark that the Magistrate was not competent to pass such an order because no order within the terms of sec. 437, C. Cr. P., so as to give the Magistrate jurisdiction has been passed in respect of this offence and we may observe that, having regard to what has already taken place, we think that no prosecution should be instituted in regard to the offence under sec. 342, inasmuch as the whole occurrence has already formed the subject of a trial which has resulted in an acquittal. The rule will accordingly be made absolute.

Rule made absolute.

H. P. C.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE MADRAS HIGH COURT.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.	}	RAJA YARLAGADDA
LORD MACNAGHTEN.		MALLIKARJUNA
LORD LINDLEY.		PRASADA, Defendant,
SIR RICHARD COUCH.		Appellant,
SIR H. DE VILLIERS.		v.
1900.	}	RAJA YARLAGADDA
11, July.		DURGA PRASADA,
		Plaintiff, Respondent, and Same
	}	v.
		RAJA YARLAGADDA
		VENKATA RAMA-
		LINGAMMA, Plaintiff,
		Respondent.

Hindu Law—Maintenance, suit for, after dismissal of previous suit for partition—Arrears of maintenance—Maintenance, wrongful withholding of.

A suit for partition of a zemindary, in which the zemindary was found to be impartible and a decree was made for partition of a portion of the family property unconnected with the impartible zemindary, does not make the family a divided one, and a subsequent claim for maintenance is not inconsistent with the previous claim for partition.

The right to arrears of maintenance for any period not excluded by the law of limitation, is not forfeited by the claim for partition made in the previous suit.

In order to recover arrears of maintenance it is not necessary to prove a demand for each year's maintenance as it became payable, and although the non-payment of maintenance to a person entitled thereto does not necessarily give him a right of action for arrears, it constitutes a prima facie proof of wrongful withholding.

Whether such prima facie proof has been rebutted or not must depend on the circumstances of each particular case.

SARTAJ KUARI v. DEORAJ KUARI (1) referred to.

JIVI v. RAMJI (2), SRI MANITAM MAHA-
IAKSHIMAMMA v. SRI MANIYAM VENKATA-
RATNAMMA (3) and NARAYAN RAO RAM
CHANDRA PANT v. RAMA BAI (4) discussed.

MOTILAL PRANNATH v. BAI KASHI (5) discussed and a portion doubted.

Quære—Whether, if the Defendant had been misled by the previous suit for partition into the belief that the claim for maintenance was abandoned and had not in consequence set aside any portion of his annual income to meet such a claim, he would have a good defence to a subsequent suit for arrears of maintenance.

These were two appeals and two cross-appeals, consolidated respectively, from decisions of the Madras High Court, which had reversed the decisions of the Subordinate Judge granting arrears of maintenance to the two Plaintiffs-Respondents. The facts of the case are shortly these:—

Raja Akinidu, zemindar of Devarkota, died on the 6th April 1875 leaving three sons, of whom the Appellant was the eldest and the Respondent, cross-Appellant, the youngest. The second son was one Durga Pershad. After an unsuccessful attempt for an amicable division of the inheritance in a suit which was instituted in 1880 by Durga Pershad, it was finally decided by the Privy Council in 1890 that that zemindari was an impartible estate descendible to the

(1) I. L. R. 10 All. 272 (1887).

(2) I. L. R. 3 Bom. 207 (1879).

(3) I. L. R. 6 Mad. 83 (1882).

(4) I. L. R. 3 Bom. 415 at p. 421 (1879).

(5) I. L. R. 17 Bom. 45 (1892).

RAJA YARLAGADDA MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. RAJA YARLAGADDA DURGA PRASADA.

eldest son only, but partition of certain property other than the zemindari estate was allowed.

While that suit was proceeding the present cross-Appellant commenced a similar suit in 1887 against the zemindar and his minor son and against Durga Pershad seeking like relief as was sought in the suit of Durga Pershad. Such suit was dismissed on 23rd March 1891.

Pending the said appeal to Her Majesty in Council the cross-Appellant, the Respondent in the second appeal, was not allowed by the High Court to execute the decree of that Court, but he was allowed a sum of Rs. 500 a month for his maintenance pending the appeal.

After the decision of the Privy Council the cross-Appellant on 30th March 1891 wrote to the zemindar calling upon him to pay his maintenance at and after the rate of Rs. 2,000 a month and arrears thereof. Receiving no reply he commenced the present suit claiming maintenance and arrears.

The Sub-Judge granted the claim for maintenance and arrears for 12 years.

Upon the Appellant's appeal to the High Court a Division Bench of that Court reversed that order as follows :—

“The District Judge has granted arrears at the rate of Rs. 500 per mensem for twelve years prior to the institution of the suit. In this we think he was wrong. The right to maintenance is primarily a right to be maintained out of the current income of the property in the enjoyment of the party chargeable. The circumstance, however, that a person entitled to maintenance has not in fact been maintained by the person chargeable does not necessarily give him a right of action for arrears. On proof of failure to maintain, without more, he cannot be said to become a creditor of the person in default. It is incumbent on him to prove that there has been a wrongful withholding of the maintenance to which he is entitled [Jivi v. Ranji (2) and Sri Maniyam Mahalakshamma v. Sri Maniyam Venkataratnamma (3)]. If it were not so, it would mean that the manager of the family could, at the choice of any member preferring to reserve his claim for maintenance out of current income, be compelled to pay him from time to time sums of accumulated arrears which could only be paid out of capital. In this case it is admitted that the Plaintiff has since the 1st May 1875 been living apart from the Defendant and has neither asked for nor received maintenance except what he received under the order of the High Court pending the appeal to the Privy Council, that is, between December 1887 and July 1890.

In our opinion it is clearly the Plaintiff's own fault that he has not received maintenance for the whole period of twelve years for which he claims it. In his suit brought in 1880, he made another and inconsistent claim and therefore he has no right, now that he has failed in that litigation, to complain that a claim not made by him though conceded by the Defendant was not satisfied. There has been no wrongful withholding on the part of the Defendant. We must, therefore, reverse the decision of the District Judge with regard to the arrears except as regards the period abovementioned.

(2) I. L. R. 3 Bom. 207 (1879).

(3) I. L. R. 6 Mad. 83 (1882).

RAJA YARLAGADDA MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. RAJA YARLAGADDA DURGA PRASADA.

tioned, during which payment was actually made."

Mr. Branson for the cross-Appellant.

Mr. Mayne for the Respondent in the cross-appeal.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

SIR HENRY DE VILLIERS.—These are Appeals and cross Appeals against a decision of the High Court of Madras which modified a decision of the District Court of Kistna. Two separate suits for maintenance had been brought in the lower Court against the Zemindar of Challapalli by his two younger brothers respectively but all the proceedings in the two cases were identical and the observations of their Lordships upon the one case will be equally applicable to the other.

The Appellant, the Defendant in the lower Court, is the eldest son of Ankinidhu, late Zemindar of Challapalli, who died on the 6th of April 1875 leaving three sons, viz., the Defendant and the two Plaintiffs. Not long after their father's death quarrels arose between the brothers and in April 1880 one of the younger brothers brought an action for partition against the present Appellant in the District Court of Kistna. That Court decided that the zemindary estate was impartible but awarded to the then Plaintiff one-third of certain property not forming part of the zemindary estate. That judgment was reversed by the High Court of Madras but, on appeal to Her Majesty in Council, the judgment of the High Court was reversed on the 1st of May 1890 and that of the District Court was restored. In April 1891 the two younger brothers instituted the present suits for maintenance. The plaintiffs claimed (1) maintenance at the rate of Rs. 2,000 per month (2) Rs. 5,31,938 for arrears of maintenance (3) Rs. 12,000 towards the marriage expenses of the Plaintiffs' children (4) the provision of suitable houses, lands, utensils and furniture for the Plaintiffs and (5) an order declaring that the arrears and future maintenance constitute a charge upon the Challipalli estate or such portion thereof as may seem proper to the Court. The District Court by its judgment decreed future maintenance at the rate of Rs. 750 per month and arrears of maintenance for twelve years at the rate of Rs. 500 per month, the whole to be a charge upon the zemindary estate. The District Judge found that the claim for maintenance was not affected by the decree in the partition suit and was not barred by limitation. In regard to the claim for arrears of maintenance, he held that although no demand had been made, maintenance had been practically withheld and could be recovered for a period of twelve years immediately preceding the institution of the suit. Against this judgment the Zemindar appealed while the Plaintiffs filed objections. The Judges of the High Court agreed with the lower Court upon all points except as to arrears of maintenance and as to the maintenance being a charge upon the whole of the zemindary estate. They held that the arrears were not claimable except a certain sum actually received by the Plaintiffs under a previous order of the High Court and they reduced the amount of arrears from Rs. 56,000 to Rs. 23,000. As to the question whether the maintenance decreed should be a charge upon the whole of the zemindary they say : " We think that the Zemindar is justified in objecting to the decree as framed by the District Judge inasmuch as it fetters him unnecessarily in the disposition of his property. It is sufficient that the decree should make the maintenance chargeable on certain villages." The Defendant now appeals against the judgment of the High Court in so far as it allows any maintenance at all, while on the other hand the Plaintiffs respectively cross appeal against that part of the judgment which refuses further specific relief and reduces the amount of the arrears of maintenance.

RAJA YARLAGADDA MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. RAJA YARLAGADDA DURGA PRASADA.

Their Lordships fully agree with the High Court that the family of the parties to the present action has not become a divided one in consequence of the proceedings in the previous suit to which reference has already been made. It is true that, in that suit, a decree was made for the partition of a portion of the family property, but it was a very inconsiderable portion and had no relation whatever to the zemindary estate. As to the zemindary estate this Board held that it was impartible and the consequence is that the Plaintiffs, as the younger brothers of the Zemindar, retain such right and interest in respect of maintenance as belong to the junior members of a raj or other impartible estate descendible to a single heir [Sartaj Kuari v. Deoraj Kuari (1)]. In regard to the amount of maintenance the Judges of the High Court very properly refused to disturb the finding of the District Judge whose experience in the district they fully recognise.

The only question upon which there has been any serious argument before their Lordships is whether the arrears of maintenance awarded by the lower Court ought to have been reduced by the High Court. The Plaintiffs no longer object to the arrears being limited to the period of twelve years but they claim that for that period at all events they should receive the amount awarded to them. Among their reasons for the view that arrears of maintenance are not claimable the learned Judges of the High Court state the following : " The District Judge has granted arrears at the rate of Rs. 500 per mensem for twelve years prior to the institution of the suit. In this we think he was wrong. The right to maintenance is primarily a right to be maintained out of the current income of the property in the enjoyment of the party chargeable. The circumstance, however, that a person entitled to maintenance has not in fact been maintained by the person chargeable does not necessarily give him a right of action for arrears. On proof of failure to maintain, without more, he cannot be said to become a creditor of the person in default. It is incumbent on him to prove that there has been a wrongful withholding of the maintenance to which he is entitled." In support of these views the learned Judges refer to two cases of Jivi v. Ramji (2) and Sri Maniyam Mahalakshamma v. Sri Maniyam Venkataratnamma (3), but these cases by no means support the conclusions at which

(1) I. L. R. 10 All. 272 at p. 285 (1887).

(2) I. L. R. 3 Bom. 207 (1879).

(3) I. L. R. 6 Mad. 83 (1879).

RAJA YARLAGADDA MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. RAJA YARLAGADDA DURGA PRASADA.

the High Court has arrived. The first of them, decided by the High Court of Bombay in 1879, was a case in which a Hindu widow sued her late husband's undivided brother for four years' arrears of maintenance. The High Court, reversing the judgment of the District Court, held that the widow had a legal right, irrespective of demand and refusal, to maintenance and may recover arrears for any period not excluded by the law of limitation. The question raised in the second case, which was decided by the High Court of Madras in 1882, was whether a Hindu widow entitled to maintenance can have the payment thereof secured by a charge on part of the inheritance in the hands of the heir. The question was decided in the affirmative and the learned Judges in the course of their judgment made the following remarks at p. 84: "It is argued that the claim to past maintenance ought to have been disallowed, but we are unable to assent to this view. . . . Although no previous express demand is necessary to sustain a claim to past maintenance, and it is only evidence of a wrongful withholding of maintenance which, as observed by the Privy Council in Narayan Rao Ram Chandra Pant v. Rama Bai (4) is the ground of liability—the Subordinate Judge has also found in this case that demands were made but not complied with since 1876." The case before this Board to which reference was made in the case last cited was decided in 1879. Three questions were raised before their Lordships, namely, whether the suit of the Plaintiff, a Hindu widow, for maintenance and arrears under a will is barred by limitation on the expiration of twelve years from the testator's death, whether she had disentitled herself to maintenance by living apart from the son, and whether the suit could be maintained notwithstanding that there had been no demand and refusal of the maintenance. Their Lordships answered the two first questions in the negative and as to the third question they made the following observations:—"It was said that no action could be maintained because a demand and refusal had not been proved. There is no evidence that a specific demand was made for the maintenance, but the Subordinate Judge has found, and the High Court have not disagreed with him, that the maintenance was refused; and taking all the circumstances of this family into consideration, their Lordships do not doubt that there was a withholding of this maintenance by the son under circumstances which would amount to a refusal of it." Among the circumstances thus taken into consideration was the antecedent litigation which showed the state of hostility between the members of the family and accounted for the withholding of the maintenance. The case is no authority for the proposition that in order to recover arrears of maintenance it is necessary to prove a demand for each year's maintenance as it became payable. On the contrary the fair deduction from this and other cases cited is that, while the learned Judges of the High Court were right in holding that non-payment of maintenance to a person entitled thereto does not necessarily give him a right of action for arrears, it constitutes prima facie proof of wrongful withholding. It is only upon a full consideration of all the circumstances of each particular case that it is possible to decide whether such prima facie proof has been rebutted. The only case which might appear to conflict with this view is that of Matilal Prannath v. Bai Kashi (5). In that case the learned Judges of the High Court of Bombay admitted that a withholding of maintenance might be proved otherwise than by a demand or refusal, and if they intended moreover to decide that non-payment of maintenance when due does not constitute prima facie proof of such withholding, their Lordships are unable to agree with the decision. In the present case it is said that the claim for maintenance is inconsistent with the claim for partition in the previous action, and in one sense this may be true, but it by no means follows that the right to arrears of maintenance was forfeited in consequence. It is not alleged that the Plaintiff did not act in perfectly good faith in instituting his suit for partition and the fact that there was considerable diversity of opinion in the different Courts which had successively to decide the case shows that the Plaintiff's claim for partition was not wholly baseless. So long as that action was pending the Plaintiff could not well claim maintenance except as a provisional means of support pending the appeal to Her Majesty in Council. The Defendant, on the other hand, if he had been willing to allow full maintenance in lieu of a partition, might have made an unconditional offer of a reasonable amount of maintenance or he might have set aside a certain sum for the purpose. It is true that, in an affidavit, he made a vague admission of his liability but he never went any further. It is reasonably clear from the proceedings in the present suit that he would not have been willing to provide maintenance at the rate of Rs. 750 per month, if that sum had been demanded in the previous suit instead of a decree for partition. One of the express grounds stated by him for his appeal in the present suit to the High Court was that "even granting that the Plaintiff is entitled to maintenance, the rate of maintenance awarded to him is excessive." And among his grounds of appeal to Her Majesty in Council are the following: "(4) The High Court failed to notice that it is for the Plaintiff to set up and prove any custom entitling him to maintenance and that he has not done so. (5) The High Court erred in thinking that there was any admission by the Defendant of his liability for maintenance. (10) The amount of maintenance awarded is excessive." After these objections, and in view of the strained relations between the brothers ever since their father's death, it is impossible to believe that the Defendant would have paid maintenance at the rate of Rs. 750 per month or at any other rate if it had been demanded from him in the first instance. He does not allege, in his defence, nor is there any evidence, that he was in any way prejudiced by the form of the previous action. It may well be that, if he had been misled into the belief that the claim for maintenance was abandoned and had in consequence not set aside any portion of his annual income to meet such a claim, he would have had a good defence to the present action. But, without some such ground of defence, it is impossible to hold that the younger brothers of the Defendant have forfeited an undoubted right merely because they were in the first instance advised to institute a wrong suit and did not claim their maintenance as it fell due. The District Court, therefore, properly held that the younger brothers were entitled to recover arrears for any period not excluded by the law of limitation.

RAJA YARLAGADDA MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. RAJA YARLAGADDA DURGA PRASADA.

RAJA YARLAGADDA MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. RAJA YARLAGADDA DURGA PRASADA.

The result is, that, in the opinion of their Lordships, the Defendant's Appeals should be dismissed and the Plaintiff's cross Appeals allowed to this extent that the judgment of the District Court for arrears be restored and the Defendant ordered to pay the Plaintiff's costs of appeal to the High Court and their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty accordingly. The costs of these Appeals will also be paid by the Defendant, but the Registrar will be directed not to include in such costs any expenses occasioned by the printing of irrelevant or unnecessary matter in the bulky record presented to their Lordships.

Solicitor: Mr. R. T. Tasker for the Appellant.

Solicitors: Messrs. Frank, Richardson & Sadler for the Respondent.

*Appeal dismissed ;
Cross-appeal allowed.*

C. W. A.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 92 of 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J. BHOLA NATH DAS and BANERJEE, J. another, Appellants,
1900. v.

Heard, 6, July. PROFULLA NATH
Judgment, KUNDU CHAUDHURI,
29, August.] Respondent.

*Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II,
Art. 179—Limitation—Application for execution.*

Where on an attachment in execution of a decree upon notice under sec. 248, C. P. C., the judgment-debtor pleaded limitation, but, after certain adjournments at the instance of the decree-holder neither party appeared at the hearing and orders were made refusing the application for execution and dismissing the judgment-debtor's objection for default :

Held—That the aforesaid order does not preclude the judgment-debtor from urging when subsequently another application for execution is made, that the previous application was barred by limitation.

MUNGUL PERSHAD DICHIT v. GRIJA KANT LAHIRI (1) explained and distinguished.

TILSHAR RAI v. PARBATI (2) relied upon.

RUN BAHADUR SINGH v. LUCHO KOER (3) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 12th of March 1900, against the order of H. R. H. Coxe, Esq., District Judge of Zillah Hooghly, dated the 8th of December 1899, reversing the order of

(1) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 51 (1881).

(2) I. L. R. 15 All. 198 (1898).

(3) I. L. R. 11 Cal. 301 at p. 306 (1884).

BEOLA NATH DAS v. PROFULLA NATH KUNDU CHAUDHURI.

Babu Gopal Krishna Ghose, Munsif of Howrah, dated the 31st of August 1899.

The facts of the case are shortly as follows :—

The present appeal arose out of an application for execution of a decree obtained by the decree-holder, Respondent, against the judgment-debtors. An application, preceding the present application, for execution of the decree was made in November 1896. Thereupon notice was issued to the judgment-debtors. The decree was then transferred to another Court in consequence of change of jurisdiction. An order of attachment was issued by this second Court. The judgment-debtors then came and urged that the application for execution was barred by limitation : and after several adjournments granted principally at the instance of the decree-holder, when the case came on for hearing, neither party having appeared, the Court by its order refused the application for execution and disallowed the objection of the judgment-debtors.

On appeal, the District Judge reversed that order and allowed the present application for execution to go on. Against this order the judgment-debtors Nos. 2 and 3 preferred this appeal.

Babu Mohendra Nath Roy for the Appellants.

Mr. U. P. Roy and Babu Shashi Sekhar Bose for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows :—

BANERJEE, J.—The question for determination in this case is whether the present application for execution of the decree obtained by the Respondent is barred by limitation.

The first Court held that the application was barred by limitation ; on appeal the lower Appellate Court has reversed that decision ; and hence this appeal by the judgment-debtors.

The contention on behalf of the Appellants is, that the present application is barred, because the application preceding it was barred, and when once an application for execution is barred by limitation, no subsequent application, though made within three years after it, can be held to be in time. In answer to this contention the learned counsel for the Respondent says, as the Court of Appeal below has said in its judgment, that though the last preceding application for execution might have been barred by limitation, yet the Appellants are precluded by an order of the Court from urging that it was so barred.

Now this is how the facts as found by the lower Appellate Court stand. The last preceding application for execution was made in November 1896. Thereupon notice was issued to the judgment-debtors. The decree was then transferred to another Court in consequence of change of jurisdiction. An order of attachment was issued by this second Court. The judgment-debtors then came and urged that the application for execution was barred by limitation, and after several adjournments granted principally at the instance of the decree-holders, when the case came on for hearing, neither party having appeared, the Court by its order refused the application for execution and disallowed the objection of the judgment-debtors.

The last-mentioned order disallowing the judgment-debtors' objection, it is contended for the Respondents, precludes the Appellants from urging now that the previous application was barred; and in support of this contention the case of Mungul Pershad Dichit v. Grija Kant Lahiri (1) is relied upon; while on the other hand, the learned vakil for the Appellants argues that the case cited is distinguishable from the present, that the order relied upon merely disallowed the judgment-debtors' objections for default without deciding on the merits that they were invalid, and that such an order, it has been held by the Allahabad High Court in Tilashar Rai v. Parbati (2), cannot debar the Appellants from raising the same objections again.

BHOLA NATH DAS v. PROFULLA NATH KUNDU CHAUDHURI.

The case of Mungul Pershad Dichit v. Grija Kant Lahiri (1) differs from the present in this, that whereas in that case the judgment-debtors acknowledged the validity of the order for attachment made upon the previous application; in the case before us the judgment-debtors impugned the attachment and the execution proceedings instituted by the previous application; and this is certainly a point of difference in favour of the Appellants. But then it is argued that there is another point of difference between the two cases which has the opposite effect, and makes the present case a stronger one against the Appellants than the case cited and that point is this, that whereas in the case cited there was only an order for attachment of property acquiesced in by the judgment-debtors, which was held to preclude them from objecting to the validity of the application on which that order was made, here there was an express order disallowing the very objection that the judgment-debtors are now raising, namely, that the previous application was barred by limitation; and that order remaining unreversed must, upon the authority of the case cited, operate as a bar to the present contention of the Appellants. But I am unable to accept this view as correct. There is nothing to show that the Court disallowed the objection of the judgment-debtors on the merits. On the contrary the fact appearing upon the ordersheet that the case was adjourned at the instance of the decree-holder to enable his pleader to produce authority in support of his contention, would rather go to show that the merits were on the other side. The dismissal of the objection was evidently on account of the objectors' default in appearing; and as simultaneously with such dismissal, the application for execution was itself refused and not simply struck off, the dismissal of the objection cannot rightly be held to operate as a bar to its being urged when the decree-holder applies for execution again. This view is in accordance with the case cited for the Appellants.

Again, as the order refusing the application for execution which was the order disposing of the execution proceeding instituted was not based upon the order disallowing the judgment-debtors' objection, but was made in spite of it, the order disallowing the judgment-debtors' objection cannot be held to be conclusive against them. This view is supported by the observations of the Privy Council in the case of Run Bahadur Singh v. Lucho Koer (3). I may add that as the application for execution was refused and not simply struck off, the order for

(1) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 51 (1881).

(2) I. L. R. 15 All. 198 (1893).

(3) I. L. R. 11 Cal. 301 at p. 306 (1884).

BHOLA NATH DAS v. PROFULLA NATH KUNDU CHAUDHURI.

attachment and any attachment made in pursuance thereof must be taken to have become inoperative upon the refusal of the application for execution.

For the foregoing reasons I am of opinion that the contention of the Appellants should prevail, the order of the Court of Appeal below should be set aside, and that of the first Court refusing the present application for execution restored with costs in this Court and in the Court below.

MACLEAN, C. J.—I concur.

S. C. S. Appeal allowed.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]*APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1016 OF 1898.

RAMPINI, J.	}	GIRISH CHUNDER DEY and
SALE, J.		others, Defendants,
1900.		Appellants,
23, November.		v.
		JURAMONI DE, Plaintiff,
		Respondent.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), secs. 60, 85, 91, cl. (a)—Redemption, right of, of purchaser of portion of the equity of redemption—"An interest or charge upon property," in sub-sec. (a), sec. 91, meaning of—Raiyati interest, if sufficient to entitle one to redeem—Review, granting of, to bring in necessary parties in a suit for redemption if proper after dismissal of suit.

"That the words "any person having any interest in or charge upon the property," in sub-sec. (a) of sec. 91 of the Transfer of Property Act, means any person having an interest in or charge upon the property which is affected by the mortgage and a raiyati interest is not such an interest.

That the Plaintiff as a purchaser of a portion of the equity of redemption was not entitled, against the will of the mortgagee, to redeem the whole; he should be restricted to the redemption of that portion only.

NAWAB AZMUTALI KHAN v. JOWAHIR SING (1) followed.

That having regard to the provisions of sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act as to necessary parties, the review granted after dismissal of suit to bring in the heir of one of the mortgagees as a party Defendant was not improper.

This was an appeal preferred on the 18th of May 1898, against the decree of G. Gordon, Esq., Judge of Chittagong, dated the 25th of February 1898, preferred on appeal from the decision of Babu Charu Chunder Mukerjee, Munsif of Hat Hazari, dated the 20th of July 1897.

The facts of the case were as follows :—

The property in suit was owned by Isafali, Defendant No. 7, and his two nephews, Latif Ali and Pataa Mia, Defendants Nos. 5 and 6, the former having 8 annas and the latter 4 annas each. On the 7th of Kartic 1247, they mortgaged the land to Girish Chunder Dey and his two brothers, Defendants Nos. 1 to 3, Appellants in the present appeal. On the 2nd of Asar 1249 Defendants Nos. 6 and 7 sold their rights in the property in Sch. II to one Abdul Ali, Defendant No. 4, and on the 19th of Chaitra 1253 Abdul Ali granted a raiyati lease to the Plaintiff-Respondent, Juramoni Dey. On the 30th of Chaitra 1254 Defendants Nos. 5 and 6 sold their rights in the property in Sch. I to the Respondent, and the Respondent became entitled to 8 annas of the property in Sch. I and 12 annas of that in Sch. II.

GIRISH CHUNDER DEY v. JURAMONI DE.

In 1893 the Defendant No. 1, Girish Chunder Dey, instituted a suit for foreclosure against Defendants Nos. 5, 6 and 7 and obtained a decree. The Respondent attempted to save his property by deposit of the money due on the mortgage but as his title was denied, his application was rejected. He then instituted a suit which was dismissed by the Munsif in May 1894, but he obtained permission from the Appellate Court in January 1895 to withdraw the suit with leave to bring a fresh suit upon the same cause of action. He then instituted the present suit on the 16th of September 1895, chiefly for declaration of his rights to the properties as also for redemption of the properties mortgaged.

The Munsif found all the issues in favour of the Plaintiff except a new issue framed by the Court and upon the finding of that issue, i.e., that the suit was bad for non-joinder of necessary parties the Munsif dismissed the suit on the 17th of March 1897. Subsequently the Plaintiff applied for a review which was granted on the 19th April 1897, and the widow of Defendant No. 2 being made a party, the suit was tried in her presence and was decreed. On appeal by the Defendants, Girish Chunder Dey and others, the District Judge dismissed the appeal and affirmed the decree of the first Court and declared Plaintiff's right to redeem the whole of the mortgaged properties.

Against that decree the Defendants preferred this appeal and on their behalf it was contended, first, that the Plaintiff having merely a raiyati interest in the 12 annas of the property mentioned in Sch. II was not entitled to redeem that portion of the mortgaged property; secondly that his right of redemption must be restricted to the 8 annas share of the property specified in Sch. I; and, thirdly, that the Court of first instance improperly granted a review in this case, and that the suit, having been dismissed for non-joinder of parties, should not have been allowed to be reviewed.

Babu Harendra Narayan Mitter (for Babu Jatra Mohan Sen) for the Appellants.

Babu Dharendra Lal Kastagir for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal against a decision of the District Judge of Chittagong, dated the 25th of February 1898.

The facts of the case are set out in the judgments of the lower Courts. It is sufficient to say here that the suit is one brought to redeem a mortgage of certain properties. The Plaintiff is the purchaser of the rights of the mortgagors to the extent of 8 annas of the property specified in schedule No. 1, and he has further a raiyati interest to the extent of 12 annas in the property mentioned in schedule No. 2.

The District Judge has held that the interests which the Plaintiff has acquired in these properties are sufficient to give him a right to redeem the whole of the mortgaged properties.

The Defendants in the suit, who are the mortgagees, now appeal on three grounds, first, that the Plaintiff having merely a raiyati interest in the 12 annas of the property mentioned in schedule

GIRISH CHUNDER DEY v. JURAMONI DE.

No. 2, is not entitled to redeem this portion of the mortgaged property; secondly, that his right of redemption must be restricted to the 8 annas share of the property specified in schedule No. 1; and, thirdly, that the Court of first instance improperly granted a review in this case, and that the suit, having been dismissed for non-joinder of parties should not have been allowed to be reviewed.

With regard to the first of these grounds we think that the plea of the Appellants must prevail. We do not think that the Plaintiff as a raiyat has such an interest in the property named in schedule No. 2 as would entitle him to redeem it. The learned pleader for the Respondent cites sub-sec. (a) of sec. 91 of the Transfer of Property Act, in which it is said that "any person (other than the mortgagee of the interest sought to be redeemed) having any interest in or charge upon the property, can redeem." But we think that this must mean any person having an interest in or charge upon the property which is affected by the mortgage. A raiyat has no such interest. Therefore, we think that the decision of the District Judge is incorrect to this extent.

The second plea of the Appellants that the Plaintiff's right to redeem is restricted to the 8 annas share of the property in schedule No. 1, seems to be also correct. The learned pleader for the Respondent contends, that being the purchaser of the equity of redemption of a portion of the property, his client is entitled to redeem the whole. We think, however, that this is not so. No doubt, under the last clause of sec. 60 of the Transfer of Property Act a person interested in a share only of the mortgaged property can be compelled to redeem the whole of the mortgage. But this would seem to depend on the wish of the mortgagee. If the mortgagee is not willing to have the whole redeemed, he can redeem only to the extent of his share in the property. We think that the law as laid down in the case of Nawab Azmutali Khan v. Jowahir Sing (1) is to the effect that the purchaser of a portion of the equity of redemption must be restricted to the redemption of that share.

With regard to the third ground of appeal it is sufficient to say that we see no reason to suppose that the review has been wrongly granted. Under sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act it is clear that the Plaintiff was bound to bring on the record all persons interested in the mortgage; and we think that the Court of first instance was wrong in allowing the suit to proceed in the absence of the heirs of the Defendant No. 1. That being so, we consider that the Munsif was perfectly justified in granting a review of his order and in allowing the Plaintiff to bring in the heirs of the Defendant No. 1. The suit has now been disposed of in the presence of all the persons interested: and there is no defect of parties.

With these observations we decree the appeal to this extent, namely, that the Plaintiff must not be allowed to redeem the 12 annas of the property specified in schedule No. 2, but must be restricted to the redemption of the 8 annas share of the property mentioned in schedule

(1) 13 Moo. I. A. 404 at p. 415 (1870).

GIRISH CHUNDER DEY v. JURAMONI DE.

No. 1. The case is, therefore, remanded to the lower Appellate Court to have the rights of the parties determined in accordance with the above instructions. This order carries costs—the Appellant being entitled to his costs in proportion to the extent to which his appeal has been allowed.

Appeal allowed :

Case remanded.

H. P. C.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 748 OF 1898.

GHOSE, J.	}	GOPAL DAS, Plaintiff,
HARINGTON, J.		Appellant,
1900.		v.
27, April.	}	HARDEO DAS, Defendant,
		Respondent.

Public Demands Recovery Act (VII of 1880), secs. 8, 10, 12 and 15 (I of 1895, B. C.)—Sale, setting aside—Notice under sec. 10, non-service, effect of—Limitation.

When the notice under sec. 10 of Act VII of 1880 (B. C.) is not served the certificate does not acquire the force of a decree and is not binding upon the judgment debtor and the sale held in execution of such a certificate is necessarily bad in law and may be set aside by a suit if brought within the statutory period allowed by the Limitation Act.

Sec. 15 of Act I of 1895 (B. C.) refers to a suit to have a certificate cancelled or modified, and it has no application to a suit to have a sale held in execution of such a certificate set aside.

If a person is entitled under Act VII of 1880 (B. C.) to bring his suit within one year or if otherwise the suit is within time, the mere fact of his presenting an appeal to the Commissioner, and the Commissioner having rejected his appeal under Act I of 1895 (B. C.) would not deprive him of the full period of limitation, which, having regard to the provisions of Act VII of 1880 under which the sale was held, he is entitled to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 15th of April 1898, against the decree of A. Mackie, Esq., District Judge of Zillah Tirhoot, dated the 12th of January 1898, affirming the decree of Babu Bhagwan Chandra Chatterjee, Additional Subordinate Judge of that district, dated the 26th of August 1897.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Karuna Sindhu Mukherjee for the Appellant.

Mr. C. Gregory (for Babu Baldeo Narain Singh) for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This appeal arises out of a suit instituted by the Plaintiff for setting aside a sale held in execution of a certificate issued by the Collector under the provisions of Act VII (B. C.) of 1880. The sale in question took place on the 4th March 1895 at a time when the said Act VII of 1880 was in full force.

The District Judge, in affirming the judgment of the Subordinate Judge, has held that the suit is barred under sec. 15 of Act I (B. C.) of 1895, because the Plaintiff did not bring the suit within six months from the date when his appeal was decided by the Commissioner, which was on the 18th July 1895; and with reference to the question that was raised before him that no notice under sec. 10 of Act VII of 1880 was served upon the Plaintiff, he held that this was of no importance upon the view that he had adopted. He was further of opinion that the case was not governed by Art. 12, cl. (c) of Sch. II of the Limitation Act, as it did not apply to suits to set aside a certificate.

GOPAL DAS v. HARDEO DAS.

In order to see how the law upon the subject really stands, it will be necessary, in the first place, to refer to some of the provisions of Act VII (B. C.) of 1880, under which the certificate in question is said to have been made and served, and the sale took place.

Sec. 6 of that Act provides that "subject to the provisions of this Act, every certificate made under the provisions of sec. 5 shall, as regards the remedies for enforcing the same, and so far only, have the force and effect of a decree of a civil Court, and the Secretary of State for India in Council shall be deemed to be the decree-holder, and the person therein named as debtor shall be deemed to be the judgment-debtor." Sec. 8 cl. (a) provides that "subject to the provisions of this Act, every certificate made under the provisions of sec. 7 shall, as regards the remedies for enforcing the same, and so far only, have the force and effect of a decree of a civil Court." And then in cl. (b) of the same section it is provided—"such judgment-debtor may at any time within one year after the service upon him of such notice as is mentioned in sec. 10 bring a suit in the civil Court to contest his liability to pay the amount stated in the said certificate and to have such certificate cancelled: but no such suit shall be entertained unless such judgment-debtor has stated in a petition presented to the Collector under sec. 12 the ground upon which he claims to have such certificate cancelled, or unless, having omitted to state such ground in such petition as aforesaid, he can satisfy the civil Court that there was good reason for such omission. If no such suit is instituted within the said period of one year, or if any such suit having been instituted is decided against such judgment-debtor, such certificate shall become absolute, and shall have, to all intents and purposes, the same force and effect as a final decree of a civil Court." Sec. 10 provides that, "when a certificate has been filed in the office of a Collector under the provisions of sec. 5, or sec. 7, or sec. 9, such Collector shall issue to the judgment-debtor a copy of such certificate and a notice in form No. 4 in the second schedule annexed to this Act. From and after the service of such notice, such certificate shall bind all immoveable property of such judgment-debtor situate within the jurisdiction of such Collector in the same manner and with like effect as if such immoveable property had been attached under the provisions of sec. 274 of the Code of Civil Procedure."

Now it will be observed on a reference to the sections to which we have just referred that it is only in the event of a certificate being made in accordance with the provisions of the law, and also in the event of a notice of the certificate being served upon the judgment-debtor, that it shall have the force and effect of a decree, and shall bind all the immoveable property of such judgment-debtor situate within the jurisdiction of the

GOPAL DAS v. HARDEO DAS.

Collector in the same manner and with like effect as if such immoveable property had been attached under the Code of Civil Procedure. [See Mahomed Abdul Hai v. Gujraj Sahai (1), Baijnath Sahai v. Ramgout Singh (2)].

Then we have sec. 12 which lays down : "If any person, who has been served with a notice under sec. 10, denies his liability to pay the whole or any part of the amount for which such certificate has been made and filed against him, he may at any time within thirty days after service of such notice or, where no such notice has been duly served, within thirty days after the execution of any process for enforcing such certificate, file a petition, denying his liability as aforesaid, before the Collector by whom such certificate has been made. Such petition shall be in, or as nearly as possible in, the form No. 5 in the second schedule annexed to this Act."

This section contemplates, among other matters, the case of a notice under sec. 10 being served as also where it is not duly served, but process for enforcing the certificate has been executed; and leaves it, in those events, open to the judgment-debtor to apply to the Collector by whom the certificate had been made, denying his liability under such certificate. And referring back for a moment to sec. 8, cl. (b), we find that a suit may be brought by the judgment-debtor within a year to contest his liability to pay the amount stated in the certificate, but that no such suit should be entertained unless the judgment-debtor had stated in his petition presented to the Collector under sec. 12 the ground upon which he claims to have such certificate cancelled. Now in the present case, the sale having been held on the 4th March 1895, while Act VII of 1880 was in force, prima facie the Plaintiff would be entitled to bring a suit within one year from the service of notice under sec. 10, if there was such service, and it will be observed that the Act does not prescribe any period of limitation for a suit of the kind, where the judgment-debtor was not served with any notice under sec. 10. In such a case, the certificate, not having acquired the force of a decree, is not binding upon the judgment-debtor and the sale held in execution of such a certificate is necessarily bad in law, and may be set aside by a suit, if brought within the statutory period allowed by the Indian Limitation Act.

The Plaintiff in the present case contends in the first instance, that the certificate was not made out according to law. In the second place he says that notice of the certificate was not served upon him, and in the third place he states that the proceedings in connection with the sale that took place were all fraudulent and that the sale was therefore bad in law; and he accordingly sues to have it set aside.

Neither the Subordinate judge nor the District Judge in appeal has found any of the facts in this case, indeed no facts were gone into, the suit having been dismissed, as we understand it, upon a preliminary point, that point being that the suit is barred by the provisions of sec. 15 of Act. I (B. C.) of 1895.

That section provides—"The person deemed to be the judgment-debtor under

(1) I. L. R. 20 Cal. 826 (1893).

(2) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 775 (1896).

GOPAL DAS v. HARDEO DAS.

the provisions of sec. 8 may, at any time within six months from the service upon him of notice under sec. 10, or, if he files a petition of objection under sec. 12, from the date of the determination thereof, or, if he appeals under sec. 19, from the date of the decision of such appeal, bring a suit in the civil Court to have the said certificate cancelled or modified."

Now, this section refers to a suit to have a certificate cancelled or modified, and it has no application to a suit to have a sale held in execution of such a certificate cancelled or modified. The section, however, so far as the matter of limitation is concerned, cuts down the period from 12 months, as was provided by Act VII of 1880, to six months from the date of service upon the judgment-debtor of the notice under sec. 10; and there is the further provision, that if a petition of objection under sec. 12 has been presented, the suit must be brought within six months from the date of the determination of such petition of objection, or, in the event of an appeal to the Commissioner, within six months from the date of the decision of such appeal, a provision which was not to be found in Act VII of 1880. But in any case, unless notice of the certificate has been served upon the judgment-debtor, the limitation of six months, as is provided in the section, is not applicable, unless the judgment-debtor applies to the Collector under sec. 12, or unless he appeals to the Commissioner. In the present case, however, the judgment-debtor did appeal to the Commissioner, and the suit has not been instituted within six months from the date of the Commissioner's order. But it seems to us that if the Plaintiff is entitled under Act VII of 1880 to bring his suit within one year, or if otherwise the suit is within time, the mere fact of his presenting an appeal to the Commissioner, and the Commissioner having rejected his appeal under Act I of 1895 would not deprive him of the full period of limitation which, having regard to the provisions of Act VII of 1880, under which the sale was held, he is entitled to.

We have already stated that the Courts below have not gone into the facts of this case in order to see whether the suit, so far as it seeks to set aside the certificate, is barred by limitation. We may further observe that the plaint in this case alleges that the proceedings in connection with the sale were altogether fraudulent; and the Plaintiff is therefore entitled to have a decision at the hands of the Court (even if the certificate is binding upon him by reason of limitation or otherwise) upon the question whether the sale is a good sale. The learned Judge, we think, is not right in holding that the sale cannot be set aside unless the certificate is set aside.

With these observations we set aside the judgments of both the Courts below, and send the case back to the Court of first instance for retrial according to law.

Costs will abide the result.

Case remanded.

S. C. S.

CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]*APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL ORDER

No. 175 OF 1900.

GOURI KANT BURMAN,

MACLEAN, C. J.

Judgment-debtor,

BANERJEE, J.

Appellant,

1900.

v.

5, September.

| DAMODAR DAS BURMAN,

Decree-holder,

Respondent.

Insolvency—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 345, 346 and 350—Insolvent, examination of.

The examination of an insolvent under sec. 350, Civ. P. C., is only necessary where the judgment-debtor is declared an insolvent upon his own application, not where he is adjudicated an insolvent at the instance of the judgment-creditor.

There was an appeal from the order of H. R. H. Coxe, Esq., District Judge of Hooghly, dated the 21st day of April 1900, adjudicating the Appellant to be an insolvent. That order was made upon the application of the Respondent who was a decree-holder against the Appellant to the amount of Rs. 1,100. After certain proceedings, a date was fixed for the examination of the Appellant and on his failure to attend on that day, he was adjudicated to be an insolvent. He now appealed from that order, both upon the merits and on the ground that the Judge did not comply with the provisions of sec. 350, Civ. P.C., which requires a personal examination of the debtor.

Babus Boidya Nath Dutt and Bepin Behari Ghose for the Appellant.

The Advocate-General (Mr J. T. Woodroffe) and Babu Lal Mohan Das for the Respondent referred to Ram Komal Saha v. Bank of Bengal (1).

(1) See 5 C. W. N. 91 (1900).

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT WAS AS follows :—

This is an appeal from an order of the District Judge of Hooghly, dated the 21st of April of this year, adjudicating the Appellant to be an insolvent. The insolvency order was made upon the application of the Respondent who was a decree-holder against the Appellant to the amount of about 1,100 rupees; and on the 16th of September 1899, as such holder of a decree for money, he applied to have the Appellant declared an insolvent, and his application was in accordance with secs. 345 and 346 of the Code of Civil Procedure. On the 29th of November the Appellant put in objections and in those objections stated that he was a man of means, that he was the owner of many zemindaries, that he had a very large sum in this Court due to him, a sum considerably over a lac of rupees, and that he had other properties of considerable value. He forgot, however, to mention that his zemindaries were very heavily incumbered, if not up to the hilt; he forgot to mention that the money in Court was more than covered by attachments against it, and he also made the singular mistake of stating in Court, that he was the owner of sixty bighas of land in Alipore, which turned out to be sixteen and not sixty bighas. That was at least an unfortunate slip. He put in an affidavit verifying the statement I have made as to his property, forgetting to say anything about the incumbrances; and although on the 13th of December 1899, an affidavit was filed by the present Respondent, stating in precise terms that all this property was heavily incumbered and attached, and although he was examined on the 6th of January 1900, al

GOURI KANT BURMAN v. DAMODAR DAS BURMAN.

he said on that occasion was, that he had the sixty bighas, which turned out to be sixteen. He never said a word in answer to the affidavit made against him by the Respondent. The matter was postponed from time to time at his instance, and ultimately came on on the 17th April. I ought to have said that it also came on on the 29th of March, when the Judge evidently thought that the Appellant was doing his best to delay and keep back the matter and put off the payment of his debt, and on that date the 19th of March, he was directed to attend for examination on the 17th of April. He did not attend on the 17th of April, he said he was ill, he said he had been ill for a considerable time, but no application was made for postponement until the last moment. The Judge did not comply with that application; and the Appellant did not ask for a commission to issue for his examination. The case then came on on the 21st of April, and he was declared to be an insolvent. I think the best evidence that he was not in a state of insolvency would have been, if he had all this valuable property, to have paid the Respondent's decretal debt, a small debt of 1,100 rupees. It is odd that he should not have done so if really solvent. Upon the evidence there cannot, I think, be a shadow of a doubt that he was an insolvent when the order complained of was made.

Then it is said that apart from the merits, the Judge in the Court below has erred in practice in that he did not comply with the requirements of sec. 350 of the Code which requires a personal examination of the debtor on the hearing of the application to be declared an insolvent. But I think it is pretty clear that sec. 350 only applies to the case where the judgment-debtor himself makes the application and it appears to me that the Judge in the Court below has not infringed any provision of the Code. There does not seem to be any precise procedure laid down as to how the Court should hear cases where the decree-holder is the applicant; but the Judge heard it partly on oral evidence and partly on affidavit evidence; and at any rate the Appellant did not think fit either to go himself into the box or to put in any oral evidence on his behalf. There is nothing in the point that the procedure adopted by the Court below is not in accordance with the Code. Upon that point also the appeal fails. The appeal therefore must be dismissed with costs, 5 gold mohurs.

BANERJEE J.—I concur.

Appeal dismissed.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL ORDER

No. 248 OF 1898.

AMEER ALI, J.	Nos. 10 to 14, Appellants,
BRETT, J.
1900.	v.
30, May.	BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB, Petitioners, Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 435—Verification on behalf of a Corporation—Verification of plaint, defective, effect of, on appeal—Insolvency—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 347, 350, 351, 353 and 578—Notice of insolvency,

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

irregularity in posting, effect of—Examination of insolvent in application by judgment-creditor—Adjudication order, grounds for setting aside—Fraud—Collusion—Creditor, claim by a—Onus of proving claim when so required under sec. 353, Civ. P. C.—Receiver in insolvency, purchase by.

Where a petition by the Bank of Bengal was verified by a person described as the Officiating Inspector of Branches, Bank of Bengal, and there was nothing to show that he was not the officer authorised to sue or verify the petition on behalf of the Bank at Chittagong or that he was not able to depose to the facts of the case :

Held—That the petition was properly verified under sec. 435, Civ. P. C.

Defective verification, if there is no reason to suppose that any one is prejudiced thereby, is no ground, at an appellate stage, either for returning the plaint for amendment or for refusing relief on the basis of the alleged defect in the plaint.

RAJIT RAM v. KATESAR NATH (1) and BASDEO v. JOHN SMIDT & ORS. (2) followed.

The provision of sec. 347 with regard to posting up the notice of insolvency in Court is, especially in the case of an application by the decree-holder, merely of a directory character and does not go to the jurisdiction of the Court to deal with the matter.

REID v. CROFT (3) and WIGHT v. MAUNDER (4) referred to.

Non-compliance with the above provision is a mere irregularity, which, in the absence of any proof of prejudice, is cured by sec. 578, Civ. P. C.

The provisions of secs. 350 and 357, Civ. P. C., relate to an application by the judgment-debtor for relief under Chap. XX and not to an application by the judgment-creditor.

An adjudication order can only be set aside on the ground that it has been obtained by a fraudulent representation of indebtedness in favour of the creditor who has obtained the order when there is no debt whatsoever, or for want of jurisdiction.

When charges of fraud and collusion are made, they must be put in a sufficiently specific manner to enable the other side to combat them.

WALLINGFORD v. THE MUTUAL SOCIETY (5) and GANGA NARAIN GUPTA v. TILUKRAM CHOWDHRY & ORS. (6) referred to.

Under sec. 353, Civ. P. C., when any creditor requires any other creditor to prove his claim, the onus is upon the creditor who has to prove his claim to establish it. It is a matter to be dealt with by the Judge upon the evidence forthcoming in the case.

The purchase by a Receiver in insolvency of property belonging to the insolvent's estate is irregular and the Court ought not to sanction such a purchase.

This was an appeal preferred on the 12th of July 1898, against the order of G. Gordon, Esq., Officiating District Judge of Zillah Chittagong, dated the 7th, 19th and 26th of April and the 21st of May 1898.

This appeal arose out of certain insolvency proceedings taken by the Bank of

(1) I. L. R. 18 All. 396 (1896).

(2) I. L. R. 22 All. 55 (1890).

(3) 5 Bing. N. C. 68 (1888).

(4) Beav. 512 (1842).

(5) 5 App. Cas. 697 (1881).

(6) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 583 (1888).

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

Bengal against a firm of Mahomedan merchants carrying on business in co-partnership under the name and style of Haji Nasu Malum & Co. at Chittagong and Akyab. On the 14th March 1898, the Bank of Bengal obtained a decree for Rs. 55,280 and odd with interest and costs, making together Rs. 58,000 odd, against Abdool Ali, Rohim Buksb, Abdool Rauf and Mahomed Yakub, the members of the above firm. The business at Akyab was managed by one Anu Meab, who, according to the judgment-debtors, had an eight annas share in the Akyab business; the decree, however, was obtained only against the four persons named and not against Anu Meab.

On the 4th April 1898, the Bank, on the strength of that decree, applied before the District Judge of Chittagong for an order under sec. 344, Civ. P. C., declaring the judgment-debtors to be insolvents. That petition was verified by one Henry Gray, described as the Officiating Inspector of Branches, Bank of Bengal. On the 5th April, the Court ordered the petition to be registered and notice to be issued upon the pleaders of the judgment-debtors. The 7th April was fixed as the date of hearing. On that day, the judgment-debtor, Rahim Buksb, put in a petition declaring his readiness and willingness to be declared an insolvent and asking for time to file his list of creditors. Three of the judgment-debtors were examined on that day. The fourth judgment-debtor did not appear in person and the Court being of opinion that there was no necessity to insist upon his attendance, declared the judgment-debtors to be insolvents. A Receiver was appointed and notices were ordered to be published as directed by sec. 354, Civ. P. C. The 21st of May was fixed for "the filing of schedules by the other creditors" and notices were ordered to be published in the local papers and at the Court-house.

It should here be mentioned that the Receiver appointed on this occasion subsequently declined to act and another gentleman was appointed at the instance of the Bank of Bengal.

On the 19th April, the Bank, through one Joseph Coutts, Agent for the Bank at Akyab, applied to be scheduled as secured creditors to the extent of Rs. 1,16,005. In support of their application he put in an affidavit stating that besides the sum of Rs. 58,000 odd due on the decree of the 14th March, the insolvents were indebted to the Bank in further sums on three Bills of Exchange and on another decree which the Bank had obtained against the insolvents and Anu Meab, amounting in all (including the decree for Rs. 58,000) to Rs. 1,16,005, and that in order to secure the repayment of certain advances made by the Bank, amounting to Rs. 1,58,000 (including the said Rs. 1,16,005) the insolvents had on the 18th February 1898 and at Akyab given an equitable mortgage to the Bank, accompanied by the deposit of certain title-deeds. Upon that application the Court passed an order declaring the debts stated in the above application to be scheduled debts secured by mortgage of insolvent's properties.

On the 20th of April, however, the Court modified that order and declared that, subject to future objection, the scheduled debts of the Bank were not secured by any mortgage.

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

On the 25th April the Bank applied to have this order set aside on further consideration and on the 26th, having heard Mr. McNair for the Bank, the Court ordered that, subject to future objection, "the Bank of Bengal be declared to have been proved creditors of the insolvents to the extent of the amount stated in their application and that their debt be declared to be secured by mortgage. This order is liable to be modified upon the application of any scheduled creditor applying under sec. 353."

On the 11th and 14th May some of the creditors came in and their debts were entered in the schedule.

On the 21st May the present Appellants, who are some of the creditors of the insolvents, applied to the Court to have the order of the 7th April declaring the judgment-debtors insolvents set aside. In their petitions they submitted that the order of the 7th April was not passed according to law, "that the preliminary proceedings, etc., in that respect had not been taken according to law, and that on that account the said order cannot remain in force;" they alleged that the debts were not contracted in good faith; "that the judgment-debtors have given undue preference to their other creditors; that the judgment-debtors in order to defraud the Petitioners and their other creditors, have alienated and concealed and transferred in benami some of the properties; that the application for declaration of insolvency has been made in collusion between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtors;" and that no notice having been issued to the Petitioners, they could not raise any objection before.

Upon those petitions the Court passed the following order on the 21st May:—

"I cannot re-open the insolvency case on the technical objection that notice was not published in Court. The objections of Ram Kamal Saha, Sahanund Chunder Dey, Krishna Kumar Ghosal and Amar Chunder Kundu are therefore rejected."

On the 20th of May 1898, the Receiver issued a notice of sale of a part of the immoveable properties belonging to the insolvents, the date of sale being fixed for the 30th May. On the 29th May the Appellant, Ram Kamal Saha, applied for a postponement of the sale on the ground that the notice of sale not having been published a month before the date of sale and the Court having been closed for the Mohurram holidays, bidders will not attend in sufficient numbers and that the properties to be sold were not fully or sufficiently described in the notice. No order, however, seems to have been passed on this application.

The Receiver subsequently issued another notice for the sale of some other immoveable properties and fixed the 9th and 11th of June as the dates of the sale. Thereupon the Appellants, Ram Kamal Saha and Amar Chunder Kundu, applied to the District Judge for an order staying the sale and for fixing another date after a month's notice with the boundaries and the other necessary particulars correctly described therein. They alleged that the description, boundaries, nature and kind of properties advertised were so indefinite, erroneous and insufficient that intending purchasers will not be in a position to identify them and ascertain their proper price; that notice of sale should have been given at least a month beforehand; that the 9th June, the date fixed for the sale, was just a day before the revenue sale under Act XI of 1859 to be held by the Collector and the 11th was the day after and that in consequence the properties would not be sold at their proper value. Upon that the Court passed the following order:—

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

“This may be sent to the Receiver for report. If in his opinion there is a possibility of getting a more complete description of the property and it is likely that if the sale be held to-morrow there will be no adequate prices bid, it would perhaps be advisable to have a postponement. On the other hand, if this application be merely made for the purpose of harassment and delay, it would be better to hold the sale as advertised.”

On the 13th June the Bank applied for an order that in the schedule of debts, interest should be inserted as part of the debt due from the judgment-debtors, that the Bank's debt should be entered as a debt secured by equitable mortgage and that the properties, the subject of the mortgage, should be described in the schedule. The Court passed an order in accordance with the petition.

It appears that on the 30th May and on the 9th and 11th June the Receiver duly put up to sale the properties advertised for sale on those dates, but the properties not having fetched a proper price, that sale was stayed but not closed.

On the 20th and 22nd June the Appellants, Ram Kamal Saha and Krishna Kumar Ghosal respectively, put in a petition stating the above facts and alleging that they had been informed that proposals were being made for private sale of those properties, that the properties would not fetch a proper price if they were not sold by public auction after due notice and at the Court house that the notice of a sale on the 28th June did not contain a full description and praying that the Receiver might be ordered to sell by public auction, to select the Court premises as the place for holding the sale, instead of his private residence and that a fresh date be fixed after due notice with full descriptions. The Court passed the following order on the 23rd June:—

“I do not see any reason to pass any order regarding the place at which, or the manner in which the Receiver is to sell the property.”

On the 25th June the Bank applied for and obtained leave under sec. 294, Civ. P. C., to bid at the Receiver's sale, and to set off the purchase money against their equitable mortgage.

On the 29th June the Court made an order permitting the Receiver to purchase Lot No. 6 for Rs. 500 as requested by him.

On the 13th July another order was made permitting the Bank and the Receiver to bid at the sale.

At the sale held on the 28th June the Receiver purchased some of the properties by private sale. The Bank also purchased some of the properties at the sales held on the 28th June and 15th July.

The Appellants had in the meantime filed this appeal. The High Court at the instance of the Appellants issued a rule to stay the sale and all proceedings, and ordered the Receiver to stay the sale and all other proceedings till the hearing of the rule. That rule was communicated to the Receiver and the lower Court, and the Appellants at a late hour on the 14th July put in a petition asking for a stay of the sale fixed for the 15th July in accordance therewith. The lower Court however refused to pass any orders on that day, as the petition had been presented late. The sale was duly held early on the 15th and at that sale the Bank purchased one of the properties at a price which the Appellants alleged was inadequate. On the 15th after the sales had taken place, the lower Court stayed all proceedings and directed the Receiver to stay further sales.

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

On the 13th August the Appellants applied to the Court below to set aside the sales effected on the 15th under the circumstances above stated; the application was ordered to be kept in the file pending orders from the High Court.

The appeal now came on to be heard.

The Advocate-General (Mr. J. T. Woodroffe), Mr. Hill and Babus Jatra Mohan Sen and Sushil Sekhar Bose for the Appellants.

Sir Griffith Evans, Mr. O'Kinealy, and Mr. G. B. McNair, Babus Amarendra Nath Chatterji, Sarada Churn Mitter and Dhirendra Lal Khastgir for the Respondents.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This appeal arises out of certain insolvency proceedings taken by the Bank of Bengal against a firm of Mahomedan merchants carrying on business at Chittagong. This firm was composed of four persons whose names are set out in the petition of the 4th April 1898 filed on behalf of the Bank of Bengal. It appears that these people were indebted for a considerable amount to the Bank, and that some time in the month of January or February 1898 a suit was brought against them by the Bank for the recovery of a sum of Rs. 55,280, which with costs and interest, came up to Rs. 58,000 odd. On the 14th of March 1898 there was a decree in favour of the Bank, but previous to that date, namely, on the 18th February 1898, the Bank obtained an equitable mortgage in respect of the aggregate debts due from this firm, which came up to Rs. 1,58,000 odd. Having obtained that decree on the 14th of March 1898 the Bank proceeded under the provisions of Ch. XX of the Civil Procedure Code and applied on the 4th of April 1898 to have the members of the firm declared insolvents. The application, though it bears date the 4th of April, seems to have been actually presented on the next day, for the order upon it is of the 5th of April. By that order the Bank's petition was directed to be registered and notices were ordered to be issued to the pleaders of the judgment-debtors fixing the 7th of April for the hearing of the case. On the 7th some of the judgment-debtors were examined, and the learned Judge thereupon made the following order:—"The judgment-debtors are declared insolvents. A Receiver will be appointed. Notices to be published as directed by sec. 354. The 21st May is fixed for the filing of schedules" (meaning thereby a list of claims) "by other creditors. Notices to be published at the Court-house and in the local papers. The decree-holder to pay the costs of these notices within three days." It is unnecessary to refer to the order of the 14th of April 1898, as no question arises upon it. On the 19th of April, upon an application of the same date by the Bank of Bengal, supported by an affidavit of Mr. Coutts asking that the debts of the Bank of Bengal may be taken as secured by the mortgage of the insolvent's property, the learned Judge declared that the debts be treated as secured. There seems to be some misapprehension regarding the amount respecting which that application was made, for the sum mentioned in the petition is Rs. 1,16,005 and not the entire amount for which the equitable mortgage was obtained on the 18th February 1898. On the 20th of April, however, the learned Judge cancelled the order of the 19th and declared that, subject to future objections, the scheduled debts of the Bank of Bengal were to be treated as not secured by any mortgage. There was a further application by the Bank, on the 25th of April 1898, and upon hearing Mr. McNair on its behalf, the District Judge, on the 26th of April 1898, revoked his order of the 20th April, and directed that, subject to future objections, the Bank's debt be declared to be secured by the mortgage. On the same day notices were directed to be issued to the creditors directing them to prove their claims by the 21st of May. On this date a number of petitions were filed by various persons alleging themselves to be the creditors of the insolvents. To the objections urged in those petitions we shall refer presently. On the 21st of May the learned Judge ordered that a schedule be prepared of the claims proved, and rejected the present Appellant's prayer for re-opening the insolvency on the technical ground that notice was not published in Court. The present appeal is from the orders of the 7th, 19th and 26th April and 21st May 1898 respectively.

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

The learned counsel for the Appellant has raised in this Court questions of a somewhat multifarious character which are not really covered by the appeal. The objections other than those directed against the orders from which the appeal is preferred relate to certain proceedings taken subsequent to the 21st May regarding the sale of the judgment-debtor's properties and the set off by the Bank of Bengal of its claim against the purchase-money. These will be dealt with later on.

As regards the orders appealed against it is contended in the first place that the petition of the 4th of April 1898 was not properly verified, and, secondly, that no notice was directed to be posted up in Court as provided for in sec. 347 of the Code of Civil Procedure, or was in fact so posted up, and that therefore on these two preliminary grounds alone the adjudication made on the 7th of May was void ab initio. It was also urged that the learned Judge was wrong in not examining on the 7th of April, when he made the adjudication of insolvency, all the debtors, and in not keeping in view the requirements of sec. 351 of the Civil Procedure Code, which alone, if found to be existing, would justify an order of insolvency. It was further contended that inasmuch as it appeared, that the insolvents had incurred debts after their business had come to a stand-still, there was reason to suppose it was not a proper case in which the debtor should be declared an insolvent, and consequently the adjudication ought to be set aside. A further argument was raised upon the basis that one Anu Meah, who was the manager of the branch business of the insolvents at Akyab, was not made a party to these proceedings. There were other minor objections to which we shall refer cursorily in the course of our judgment.

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

We propose to dispose in the first place of the objections as to the verification and the notice not being posted up as provided for in sec. 347 of the Code of Civil Procedure. It is quite clear that the Bank of Bengal is a Corporation, and consequently the procedure laid down in sec. 435 regulating actions instituted by corporations is to be applied to suits or proceedings instituted by or on its behalf. Sec. 435 provides that "in suits by a corporation, or by a company authorised to sue and be sued in the name of an officer the plaint may be subscribed and verified on behalf of the corporation or company by any director, secretary, or other principal officer of the corporation or company, who is able to depose to the facts of the case." In the present case the petition was verified by a gentleman of the name of Henry Gray, Officiating Inspector of Branches, Bank of Bengal, and there is nothing to show that he was not the officer of the Bank authorised to sue or verify the petition on behalf of the Bank at Chittagong, or that he was not able to depose to the facts of the case. Beyond that we are not aware of any authority in which insufficiency of verification has been regarded in the appellate stage as a ground for dismissing altogether the proceedings had in the first Court. On the contrary the two cases, Rajit Ram v. Katesar Nath and others (1) and Basdeo v. John Smidt and others (2), lay down in express terms that although, if objection is taken to defective verification at an early stage when the case is on trial in the first Court, the plaint may be returned to the Plaintiff for the purpose of remedying the defect, yet in the appellate stage, if there is no reason to suppose that any body is prejudiced by the defective verification, it will not be taken as a ground either for returning the plaint for amendment or for refusing relief on the basis of the alleged defect in the plaint. In the present case there is nothing to show that any person has been prejudiced by any defect, if defect there is, in the verification of the petition. We accordingly overrule this objection.

We now come to the objection as regards the notice required by sec. 347 of the Civil Procedure Code. That section (leaving out the portions which are not material to the present case) runs as follows:—"The Court shall fix a day for hearing the application, and shall cause a copy thereof, with a notice in writing of the time and place at which it will be heard, to be stuck up in Court and served at the applicant's expense" . . . . . where the applicant is the decree-holder, on the judgment-debtor or his pleader." There is no question that the notice was served upon the judgment-debtors as required under the Act. Admittedly, however, it was not "stuck up" in the Court-house, and Mr. Hill's contention is that that provision is of a mandatory character, and that therefore all subsequent proceedings based upon it are void. We cannot agree in that view. In our opinion that provision, intended for the purpose of giving notice at an initial stage to persons who may possibly be interested in the adjudication, is merely of a directory character, and its non-compliance does not go to the jurisdiction of the Court to deal with the matter. There is certainly no reason, so far as the application of the decree-holder is concerned, for supposing that it is mandatory, whatever reasons there may be for regarding it to be so in the case of an application by a judgment-debtor. It is unnecessary to refer to authorities in support of the proposition we have just stated. We may refer, however, to the two cases cited at the bar, Reid v. Croft (3), Wright v. Maunder (4), as abundantly bearing out our view. Besides, having regard to the object with which the notice is required to be posted up, it seems to us that non-compliance with the provision relating to it must be taken as a mere irregularity, which, in the absence of any proof of prejudice, must be considered as cured by the provisions of sec. 578, of the Civil Procedure Code.

(1) I. L. R. 18 All. 396 (1896).

(2) I. L. R. 22 All. 55 (1899).

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

Before dealing with the questions which have been raised under secs. 350 and 351 of the C. P. C., and the allegations of fraud and collusion put forward on rather an extensive scale against the Bank, we will address ourselves to the minor objections which relate to Anu Meah not being made a party and other matters of a similar kind.

The decree upon which the Bank of Bengal applied for an order under sec. 344 was a decree, so far as we can gather from these records, against the four insolvents and against the four insolvents only. Anu was not a party to the suit in which the decree was made, and the Bank of Bengal was therefore not in a position to include him in the petition for insolvency. If Anu Meah is in any way interested in the insolvency, or has any part of the assets of the insolvents in his hand the procedure is quite plain. It is not for us to indicate what course should be taken to bring those assets within the provision of these proceedings.

It was urged that it has not been shown what portion of the Bank's debt was secured and further that the bills of exchange did not carry interest. These are matters, which, in the view we take, will be dealt with when the case goes back to the Judge. It was also objected that the Bank was not entitled to claim the benefit of the equitable mortgage executed in its favour at Akyab, inasmuch as equitable mortgages are not valid in any place in which the Transfer of Property Act was in force. There appears to be no doubt that the section in question has been extended by a Government notification to the local limits of the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the Recorder of Rangoon in other words to the town of Rangoon and has not been extended to Akyab. The Bank's contention (as embodied in its petition of the 26th of April), is that "in accordance with the practice of the Burmah Courts, equitable mortgages have uniformly been held to be valid in all parts of British Burmah,"

• (3) 5 Bing. N. C. 68 (1838).
(4) 4 Beav. 512 (1842)

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

and that the extension of the Act referred to above does not affect Akyab. This is a question of fact which will be dealt with by the learned Judge upon evidence.

We now come to the objections relating to the procedure adopted by the District Judge. It has been contended that under sec. 350 of the C. P. C. the Court was bound to examine the judgment-debtor in the presence of the persons on whom notices had been served or their pleaders, and that this was only partially done by the District Judge on the 7th of April. Further that under sec. 351 before the adjudication order could be made the Court must be satisfied that the judgment-debtor had not, with intent to defraud his creditors, concealed, transferred or removed any part of his property since the institution of the suit in which the decree was passed, in execution of which he was arrested or imprisoned, or the order of attachment was made, or at any subsequent time: that he had not, knowing himself to be unable to pay his debts in full, recklessly contracted debts or given an unfair preference to any of his creditors by any payment or disposition of his property: and that he had not committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application. In connection with these grounds set forth in sec. 351 it was alleged that upon the evidence of the insolvents who had been examined it appeared that they had contracted debts after the business had come to a close. Reference was made to Mahomed Yakoob's statement that Rahim Baksh had concealed a considerable portion of the assets; and it was accordingly contended in a two-fold way that the learned Judge was wrong in adjudicating the Appellants as insolvents, because he did not decide whether there was an absence of the circumstances which are set out in sec. 351, and, secondly, that he did not consider the evidence of Mahomed Yakoob as to the suppression of property by Rahim Baksh. In considering how far these two objections are applicable to an application by a judgment-creditor one has to go back to the provisions of the previous Act (X of 1877) in order to discover the intention of the Legislature regarding the purport and scope of Chapter XX of the Civil P. Code. The Act of 1877 contained no provision for an application by a judgment-creditor. It merely enabled a person arrested or imprisoned in execution of a decree to apply to the District Court to be declared an insolvent, and the subsequent provisions kept in view that object alone. Sec. 350 of Act X of 1877 ran as follows:—"On the day so fixed or on any subsequent day to which the Court may adjourn the hearing, the Court shall examine the applicant in the presence of the persons on whom such notice has been served or their pleaders as to his then circumstances," and so forth. And sec. 351 was in these terms. "If the Court is satisfied that the statements in the application are absolutely true; that the applicant has not, with intent to defraud his creditors, concealed, transferred or removed any part of his property since the institution of the suit in which was passed the decree in execution of which he was arrested or imprisoned or at any subsequent time that he has not, knowing himself to be unable to pay his debts in full, recklessly contracted debts or given an unfair preference to any of his creditors by any payment or disposition of his property, that he has not committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application, the Court may declare him to be an insolvent, &c." By Act XII of 1879, however, an alteration was made in the scope of Chapter XX, and by it a judgment-creditor was enabled to come in and get his judgment-debtor declared an insolvent. That alteration was subsequently embodied in the amended Statute, Act XIV of 1882, and is the law now in force. Sec. 350 of the present Code instead of using the term "applicant" uses the expression "judgment-debtor;" and similarly in sec. 351 instead of "applicant" the term "judgment-debtor" is used. It is obvious from the alterations and from the frame of the statute that the provisions of these two sections relate to an application by the judgment-debtor for relief under Ch. XX of the Civil Procedure Code, and that they cannot be interpreted so as to apply to an application by a judgment-creditor. It is not necessary to refer here to the Debtors' Act of 1869 in England, or to the provision of the Insolvency Act in Presidency-towns. We may mention, however, that under the Debtors' Act of 1869 the judgment-creditor may take out summons either for the commitment of the debtor or for his adjudication in insolvency, and discretion is vested in the Court, if the application is made for the commitment of the debtor, to proceed under the Bankruptcy Act instead of commitment. Nor under the Insolvency Act, which is in force in the Presidency-towns, is the creditor required to show all those various matters which are set forth in sec. 351, before he can get his debtor adjudicated an insolvent. The reason for the provisions in sec. 351 is obvious. The judgment-debtor comes into Court with the object of showing that he is not in a position to pay his debts and to obtain a discharge from his liabilities, and in the meantime to get protection from the Court regarding any process which may be taken out against him by the creditor and for that reason the Legislature requires him to show that he comes into Court with clean hands, that he has not, with intent to defraud his creditors, concealed, transferred or removed any portion of his properties, that he has not, knowing himself unable to pay his debts, recklessly contracted debts, or given an unfair preference to any of his creditors by any payment or disposition of his property, and that he has not committed any other act of bad faith. If the insolvent is found to have committed any of these acts, he is precluded from obtaining the benefit of Ch. XX of the Code. But these reasons do not, in our opinion, affect in the smallest degree the right of the judgment-creditor to come into Court and ask for the adjudication of the judgment-debtor as an insolvent. On the contrary under the English Bankruptcy law as also under the law in force in the Presidency-towns, among other matters, a fraudulent conveyance of property by a debtor is declared to be an act of bankruptcy. Probably it would have facilitated the working of Ch. XX by the mofussil Courts if the Legislature had proceeded on the lines of the English law and prescribed certain acts on the part of the debtor as indicia of insolvency. But it has not chosen to do so. And under sec. 344 the judgment-creditor has merely to show that there is a judgment-debt due from the debtor which he has not paid or has not been able to pay and that alone entitles him to obtain the order of insolvency provided for by the subsequent sections. Of course the mere fact that a judgment-debtor has not paid his debt does not show that he is in insolvent circumstances and if on the application of the creditor, such a question was raised by the debtor it would no doubt have to be considered in the light of the principles deducible from cases under the English Bankruptcy law. But it would be absurd to say that the very grounds upon which the judgment-creditor might insist upon the adjudication of the insolvent, if proved, should be taken as disentitling him to get the order of adjudication. The adjudication order is for the benefit of all the creditors of the judgment-debtor, and supposing it appears that the judgment-debtor is trying to dishonestly dispose of his property or otherwise to deal with it for the purpose of defeating his creditors, surely any one of the creditors might come in and ask that the judgment-debtor should be declared an insolvent, and the property placed in the hands of a Receiver for the benefit of the general body of creditors. If that were not so, it would reduce the provisions of Ch. XX of the Code to an absurdity. We hold, therefore, that secs. 350 and 351 do not apply to the case of an application by a judgment-creditor. Unfortunately, however, the Legislature seems by some peculiar oversight not to have made any provisions regarding the procedure for dealing with the matter when once the application has been made by the judgment-creditor and the notices have been stuck up as provided for in sec. 347 of the Code. There is no doubt a hiatus in the Act; and it is difficult to conceive how the omission occurred but the intention of the Legislature must be taken as perfectly clear both from the preceding section and the general scope of the chapter. We must take it that it was intended that effect should be given to the decree-holder's application in the way in which it is carried out both in England and in Presidency-towns; and we must therefore read in sec. 351 or after it, that in case an application is made under sec. 344 by the judgment-creditor and the requisites of that section and sec. 347 are complied with, the Court will make an order of adjudication in respect of the insolvent or insolvents; and then proceed with the matter as provided for by the subsequent sections. Besides, in the present case no difficulty, in our opinion, arises from the omission of the Legislature referred to above or from the fact that no indicia of insolvency are prescribed in the Act, for the persons complaining are not the judgment-debtors. On the 7th of April when the debtors were examined and the receiving order made, they expressed their willingness to be declared insolvents. In England the Court has the power when making a receiving order on the application of the judgment-debtor to adjudge the debtor bankrupt if he appears and applies to that effect. Such an application may be made orally and without notice. We see no reason why the principle of that rule should not apply in this country. That being our view with reference to the principal argument, it remains for us to consider the contention that the allegations of fraud and collusion put forward by the Appellants on the 21st May were never taken into consideration by the District Judge.

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF ACRYAB.

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

On that date it appears a number of petitions were presented before the Judge on behalf of various persons who alleged themselves to be the creditors of the insolvents in this case. The petition of Krishna Kumar Ghosal is on page 12, of another creditor on page 13, of Amar Chand Mitter on page 14, and of Ram Kamal Shaha and another on page 15 of the paper-book. None of these petitions are verified, and the allegations of unfair preference, collusion and concealment and transfer of property contained in them are of the vaguest and most general character. Nor does it appear that the District Judge was asked with reference to those allegations to take any evidence or to try those matters. The only question which seems to have been discussed before him on those petitions was the one which related to the non-posting of the notice, under the order of the 5th April; the learned Judge was quite right, in our opinion, in overruling that objection as technical and in refusing to re-open the insolvency, inasmuch as the adjudication order was in favour of all the creditors. It has been held both here and in England that an adjudication order can only be set aside on the ground that it has been obtained by a fraudulent representation of indebtedness in favour of the creditor who has obtained the order when there is no debt whatsoever, or for want of jurisdiction. But in this case, though vague allegations of collusion and undue preference are made, nothing of a tangible character is suggested in the petition of the 21st May. On both these grounds, firstly, that these allegations were not made in any specific form, and, secondly, that if they were made in a form which could be entertained, they were not pressed before the District Judge, we think the objections cannot be allowed to be taken at this stage. It has been held repeatedly that when charges of fraud and collusion are made, they must not be launched in a vague or general manner, but must be put in a sufficiently specific shape to enable the other side to combat them. We need only refer to the case of Wallingford v. The Mutual Society (5), and the decision of the Judicial Committee in Gunga Narain Gupta v. Tilukram Chowdhry and others (6).

Various suggestions have been made by the learned counsel for the Appellants that the Bank acted fraudulently in pushing through the sale and bidding for the property put up for sale and then purchasing it itself and also that it was improper on the part of the Judge to allow the Receiver to buy himself a piece of land belonging to the insolvents. As we have already mentioned, the matters relating to the sale are subsequent to the orders appealed against and we do not think it would be right for us to enter upon a discussion of those subsequent proceedings which do not form the subject-matter of the present appeal. If the other creditors insist upon the Bank proving its debt it will have to do so in the proceedings under sec. 353 of the Civil Procedure Code which are still pending before the District Judge; and it will then be for the Judge to decide upon the evidence before him how much of the Bank's debt is secured and how much is unsecured. It is difficult as well as inexpedient for us here at this stage to express any opinion upon that part of the case.

(5) 5 App. Cas. 697 (1881).

(6) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 533 (1888).

RAM KOMAL SAHA v. BANK OF BENGAL OF AKYAB.

It will be open also to the Judge to consider whether the allegations contained in the subsequent petition, of the 23rd August 1898, which apparently is the first petition put in under sec. 353 insisting upon proof of the Bank's claim, are of a sufficiently definite and specific character, or whether they require to be much more precise in order to enable the Bank to meet them.

It was suggested by Mr. Hill for the Appellants that sec. 353 puts his clients in some difficulty as regards the onus of proof. We are afraid that argument proceeds upon some misapprehension. Under sec. 353 when any creditor requires any other creditor to prove his claim, the onus is upon the creditor who has to prove his claim to establish it in the way the Judge may consider advisable and expedient under the circumstances. No question of onus whatsoever arises. It is a matter to be dealt with by the Judge upon the evidence forthcoming in the case. The insolvents have not yet obtained their discharge, and, as we have already said, the District Judge has by an order of the 23rd of August stayed the proceedings "until the High Court have passed definite orders." The insolvents will not obtain their discharge until after the Receiver has certified that they have placed him in possession of all their property, or done every thing in their power for that purpose. The interests therefore of any creditor in this case are perfectly secure. In our opinion this is a misconceived appeal which has only resulted in delaying the final settlement of the matters in dispute for a considerable length of time. If the matter had not been hung up by the appeal preferred in July 1898 probably the case would have been decided long ago, and the creditors would have received, if there was anything to be distributed, their dividends long ago.

With reference to the question of purchase by the Bank and the set off, we desire to express no opinion at this stage. It will be open to the learned Judge to consider it in connection with the question what portion of the Bank's debt is secured and what is not secured and other cognate matters.

If it is still alleged that the insolvents have concealed any portion of their property, the procedure is perfectly clear; the creditors making the allegation can apply for the examination of the insolvents, or place the Receiver in a position, to discover and realise the alleged concealed property. These are subjects for discussion before the Judge in the Court below.

As regards the purchase by the Receiver it was undoubtedly irregular, and we feel sure that if it had been brought to the notice of the District Judge, he would have cancelled his order permitting the Receiver to purchase the property. That purchase must be set aside.

The appeal is dismissed with costs, and the rule is discharged. We allow as pleader's fee to the Bank of Bengal, Respondent, twenty gold mohurs and to the Respondent, Rajani Kant Pal, 2 g. m.

S. R. D.

Appeal dismissed.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 5 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	{	DENOMONI CHOWDHURANI,
HANDLEY, J.		1st Party, Petitioner,
1900.		v.
7, May.		MOZAFAR ALI KHAN and others, 2nd Party, Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 145, 146—Dispute as to possession of lands—Joint possession—Attachment of land and crops—Jurisdiction

Where two rival zemindars claimed to hold certain alluvial lands and where it was admitted that they were joint-proprietors of Mouza G, but the question also in dispute was whether those lands belonged to Mouza G or to Mouza N, one of the parties claiming that if they belonged to N, he had absolute rights in it, and the Magistrate in a proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, passed an order under sec. 146, Cr. P. Code, attaching the lands and also the crops grown upon the lands by the tenants of one of the contending parties:

Held—That the lands not being in the joint possession of the contending parties the Magistrate had jurisdiction in taking action under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code:

Held also—That there being no dispute between the tenants inter se, the order of the Magistrate as to the attachment of the crops on the land, which belonged to the tenants who grew them, was a bad order for want of jurisdiction and must be set aside.

This was a rule issued on the 28th of March 1900, against the order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Tangail, dated the 30th of November 1899.

The facts of the case material to this report were as follows:—

Four persons filed an application on the 25th February 1900 praying that certain persons named in the application might be bound down to keep the peace as they were preparing to take forcible possession of Nursingpur chur in which they alleged they were living as raiyats of Srimati Janhovi Chaudhuranl of Santose. The Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Tangail, on receipt of a police-report, dated the 1st of March, drew up proceedings under sec. 107, Cr. P. C., which were afterwards cancelled and in their stead proceedings under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, were drawn up as the dispute related to the possession of lands. The parties filed written statements of their respective claims. The second party, Ayesha Khanum of Karotea, claimed the chur as accretion to Mouza Gopalkanti in Pergunnah Bura Buzu, while the 1st party claimed the land as accretion to Mouza Nursingpur in Pergunnah Kagmari and partly as accretion to Mouza Dhakuabari, in Pergunnah Isapsahi. She also alleged that even if the chur be held to be an accretion to Mouza Gopalkanti, she was an ijmali owner of the Mouza with the 2nd party and hence the chur also was in her ijmali

The Magistrate, being unable to determine which party was in actual possession of the land in dispute, made an order under sec. 146, Cr. P. Code, attaching the lands as well as the crops standing on them.

The 1st party then moved the High Court and obtained the present rule.

The Advocate-General (Mr. J. T. Woodroffe) and Babu Dwarka Nath Chuckerbarty for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause.

DENOMONI CHOWDHURANI v. MOZAFAR ALI KHAN.

The following JUDGMENT was delivered by the Court :—

The Magistrate, in a matter under sec. 145, C. Cr. P., between two persons claiming to hold certain alluvial lands, has passed an order under sec. 146 attaching the lands and also attaching the crops growing therein. It is admitted by both the contending parties that they are joint-proprietors of Gopalkanti but the question also in dispute between them was whether these lands belonged to Gopalkanti or to Nursingpur, one of the parties claiming that if they belonged to Nursingpur, he had absolute rights in it.

Now, if it had been found that the land was in the joint possession of the contending parties, it would not be a matter with which the Magistrate could properly deal under sec. 145 and we may state that we do not find that the Magistrate has determined to which of these mouzas the lands belong. However, as the matter is now before us, no question of jurisdiction arises which would enable us to act as a Court of revision under the terms of the new Code of Criminal Procedure as between these persons.

But in so far as the Magistrate has attached the crops on the land we think that his order is not maintainable. The crops on the land undoubtedly belonged to the tenants who grew them and the effect of such an order in respect of the landlords would be to deprive the tenants of the crops that they raised. If the tenants had been disputing inter se, the matter might be otherwise. The order as to the attachment of the crops on the land was, we think, a bad order for want of jurisdiction and must be set aside.

H. P. C. Rule made absolute in part.

[CRIMINAL REFERENCE.]

No. 116 of 1900.

PRINSEP, J.
HANDLEY, J.
1900.
25, June.

LALJI GOPE, Petitioner,
Complainant,
v.
GIRIDHARI CHAUDHURY,
Accused, Opposite
Party.

Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 211—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 4 (h), 195, 476—Giving false information to Police of an offence, order for prosecution for—"Complaint," meaning of—Judicial proceeding—Jurisdiction of Magistrate—Procedure.

Where upon a police-report that a complaint is false, the complainant is called upon to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under sec. 211, I. P. Code, he appears, and the Magistrate examines him and his witnesses, and upon that evidence comes to the conclusion that the charge is false, he can then proceed under sec. 476 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and direct a prosecution.

MOULI DURZI v. NAURANGI LALL (1) distinguished.

The Magistrate does not exercise a proper discretion, who on receipt of a police-report that the complaint is false forthwith orders the complainant to be prosecuted under sec. 211, I. P. Code. The complainant should be given a reasonable time and full opportunity to prove his case before sanction is given for his prosecution.

The presentation of a petition by the complainant that his complaint should be enquired into is in effect a complaint within the meaning of sec. 4, cl. (h), and the

(1) 4 C. W. N. 35 (1900).

LALJI GOPE v. GIRIDHARI CHAUDHURY.

Magistrate is bound to hold a full judicial enquiry into the matter before proceeding further.

This was a reference under sec. 438, C. Cr. P., made by the Officiating Sessions Judge of Bhagulpore, dated the 14th of June 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Madhepura, dated the 8th of May 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report were as follows :—

On the 10th of March last one Lalji Gope complained at the Madhepura Police Station that Giridhari Sahu and others had in consequence of a debt due to Giridhari from the complainant looted away 4 herds of cattle forcibly from his house. The case was enquired into by the Police and a report in C form submitted and a prosecution under sec. 211, I. P. C., against Lalji was asked for. The Deputy Magistrate of Madhepura ordered notice to be issued on Lalji to show cause why he should not be prosecuted and after a preliminary enquiry ordered the prosecution of Lalji under sec. 211, I. P. C., and sec. 476, C. Cr. P., and forwarded the record to the Sub-divisional officer of Supul for trial.

No one appeared on this reference.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

On a police-report that Lalji had laid false information of theft the Sub-divisional Magistrate called upon Lalji to show cause why he should not be prosecuted for an offence under sec. 211, Penal Code. Lalji and his witnesses were examined on oath and the Magistrate then passed an order under sec. 476, C. Cr. P., directing him to be prosecuted under sec. 211, Penal Code. The Sessions Judge has referred the case to this Court in revision recommending that this order be set aside as not one properly under sec. 476.

There have been many reported cases pointing out the course which should be taken by a Magistrate on receiving a police-report as that now before us and it has been repeatedly held that a Magistrate did not exercise a proper discretion who forthwith on receipt of a police-report that the complaint made to the Police was false, ordered the person who made that complaint to be prosecuted. It has been held that a full opportunity should be given to such person to complain to the Magistrate so as to have a proper judicial enquiry into the truth of his complaint. Ordinarily appearance is made by the presentation of a petition constituting a complaint as defined by sec. 4 (h), C. Cr. P. If after a sufficient time no complaint is made there is no reason why the Magistrate should not prosecute such person under sec. 211, Penal Code. The prosecution would be as provided by sec. 195, C. Cr. P., that is by sanction to some person desirous of making a complaint of that offence or by the Court, that is, by the Magistrate who has received the police-report. If the false complaint has been made in the course of judicial proceedings, a Magistrate can proceed under sec. 476, C. Cr. P., and the sending by him of the case for inquiry or trial to another Magistrate has been held to be a complaint by him within the terms of sec. 195.

In this case the Magistrate on receipt of the police-report no doubt called upon Lalji to show cause why he should not be prosecuted. But when Lalji did appear the Magistrate proceeded as on a complaint made to him and he examined Lalji and his witnesses on oath and in consideration of that evidence the Magistrate has found the complaint to be false. He has consequently had a full opportunity to prove that his complaint is true and he has failed. The Magistrate has, accordingly, under sec. 476, passed the order now before us. The proceedings seem to us to be unobjectionable in point of law. The case of Mouli Duzi v. Naurangi Lall (1) is not in point.

LALJI GOPE v. GIRIDHARI CHAUDHURY.

We see no sufficient reason to interfere on revision.

Reference discharged.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 371 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	BISSUMBHUR SINGH,
HANDLEY, J.	Petitioner,
1900.	v.
5, July.	THE QUEEN-EMPRESS,
	Opposite Party.

Bengal Embankment Act (II, B. C. of 1882), secs. 3, 77—"Public embankment," meaning of—"Made or erected"—Sand bank formed naturally between two spurs erected by Government officers, cutting through or destroying—Statute, affecting liberty of subject, construction of.

A bank made or erected is something directly caused by some act of construction and not something which may or may not result from the forces of nature.

A bank of sand which has artificially formed, by the action of the water between two spurs erected by Government for the protection of an embankment is not an embankment within the definition of that expression, nor is it a public embankment.

The cutting through of such a sand bank for the protection of one's own cul- tivation by preventing an accumulation of water is not an offence under sec. 77 of the Bengal Embankment Act.

In construing a statute which affects the liberty of the subject, the Courts should not only adopt the natural and ordinary construction, but should construe strictly expressions occurring therein.

This was a rule issued on the 18th of May 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Contal, dated the 20th of December 1899, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the Officiating District Judge of Midnapur on the 10th of March 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Kali Kissen Sen for the Petitioner.
Mr. Leith for the Crown.

The following JUDGMENT was delivered by the Court:—

The Petitioner has been convicted under sec. 77 of the Bengal Embankment Act (II of 1882) of having without authority cut through a public embankment. There is a good deal of confusion in the proceedings in respect to the pleadings of the Petitioner and we think that he should not be strictly regarded as having pleaded guilty, except in so far as he may have admitted that he committed the acts which formed the substance of the offence but we think that he is entitled, nevertheless, to a consideration of the law applicable to those facts and to ask for a finding whether he has been properly convicted of an offence within the terms of sec. 77 of the Bengal Embankment Act.

The question turns upon the definition of the words "embankment" and "public

(1) 4 C. W. N. 351 (1900);

BISSUMBHUR SINGH v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

embankment." The officers of Government erected two spurs outside the sea-dyke for the protection of the public embankment on the Midnapur coast and, in the course of time, from the action of the water, a bank of sand has formed connecting these two spurs. The offence of which the Petitioner has been convicted is the cutting of this bank of sand so as to relieve his lands which lie within that bank from excessive accumulation of water injuring his cultivation.

The matter for determination, therefore, is whether the bank of sand which has artificially formed between the two spurs erected by Government is an "embankment" within the definition of that expression and whether it is also a "public embankment" as defined by the Act.

The portion of the definition of an embankment which, it is contended by Mr. Leith who appears for the Government, is applicable to the present case runs thus—"Embankment includes every bank, dam, dyke, wall, groyen, or spur, made or erected for the protection of any such embankment or of any land from erosion or overflow by or of rivers, tides, waves, or waters."

Now, is the sand bank which has naturally formed in consequence of the erection by the officers of Government of the two spurs "made or erected"? It is contended that inasmuch as the formation of this bank was contemplated when the spurs were set up, the bank was made within the terms of the definition. This is, in our opinion, straining the ordinary meaning of that word which in its ordinary acceptation means something directly caused by some act of construction not something which may or may not result from the forces of nature. The sand bank was not made by any work of the officers of Government like the spurs but it was caused by the making of the spurs and, therefore, it seems to us that the construction contended for is rather a forced construction and it is certainly not what would be understood by the public in the exercise of their rights as restricted by the Embankment Act. We think, therefore, that in such a matter which effects the liberty of the subject, the construction that we should adopt should not only be the natural and ordinary construction but that the expression should be strictly construed.

In this view, the sand bank would not be an embankment as defined by the Act. We are further led to hold that the act of the Petitioner is not an offence within the terms of sec. 77 because even supposing for purposes of argument, that this sand bank, naturally formed, would be an embankment within the terms of that definition, it would not be a public embankment, that is, an embankment maintained by the officers of Government. It has not been suggested that the officers of Government have expended any labour in the maintenance of this embankment. The case, as we understand it, is that the sand bank is a natural formation and that it is maintained and strengthened by the forces of nature. In this view we think that the conviction and sentence should be set aside and the fine, if paid, should be refunded.

We regret to find that the District Magistrate as a Court of Appeal did not think it necessary to determine whether the acts committed by the accused amounted to an offence under the Embankment Act. In his judgment he says:—"Under these circumstances it is needless to enter in detail into discussing whether the sand hill falls under the definition of an embankment. I merely state that I have considered the point carefully and find that it does." It was, we think, necessary for a proper determination of the appeal to consider this point and to express an opinion in regard to the proper interpretation of the law.

BISSUMBHUR SINGH v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

Rule made absolute :

Conviction set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NOS. 710 AND 764 OF 1900.

PRATT, J.

BRETT, J.

1900.

5, November.

In the matter of SURJYA NARAIN SINGH
and others, Petitioners.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 208, 215, 526—Commitment in the absence of accused, whether legal—Witness, examination of, in the absence of accused, if proper—Cross-examination of prosecution witnesses—Postponement, application for, refusal of—Transfer—Credible information of order of stay of proceedings by High Court, procedure on receipt of—Bias—Cancellation of bail and remand to custody on application for time to move for transfer.

It is illegal to make a commitment in the absence of the accused.

A Magistrate acts injudiciously in proceeding with a case he has been credibly informed by a telegram from one of the accused to his mukhtear that a Rule for the transfer of the case from his file and for stay of further proceedings had been granted by the High Court.

RATNESSARI PERSHAD NARAYAN SINGH & ANR. v. EMPRESS (1) referred to.

It is illegal to examine an additional witness in the absence of the accused; and a Magistrate, by refusing an application for postponement of a case, further proceedings in which have been stayed by an order of the High Court, to enable the accused to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution with a view to obtain before commitment, a cancellation of the charges framed against him, and that the Magistrate might receive the orders of the High Court, and by taking such precipitate action in the matter shows his bias against the accused.

It is desirable to transfer a case from the file of a Magistrate who on an application made by the accused under sec. 526, cl. (8), for stay of proceedings pending an application to the High Court for transfer immediately cancelled their bail and committed them to custody.

These were two rules issued on the 21st of August and the 6th of September 1900, respectively, against the orders of the Deputy Magistrate of Madhepura, dated the 8th and 30th of August 1900, respectively.

Their Lordships (PRINSEP and HANDLEY JJ), in issuing the rule in No. 710 of 1900, made the following order:—

This is an application made for transfer of a trial from the Court of the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Madhepura to some other Court on the ground that the Magistrate has shown prejudice in the course of the proceedings which renders it undesirable that he should proceed further with them.

There are several grounds made in

(1) 2 C. W. N. 498 (1898).

IN THE MATTER OF SURJYA NARAIN SINGH.

asking us for a rule to show cause why the transfer should not be made and, in our opinion, they are generally untenable.

It appears that, on a Police investigation, a report was made in what is known as the "C" form. The Magistrate apparently was not satisfied with this report and he accordingly directed that the complainant and his witnesses should be sent for examination by him. On completion of this examination, the Magistrate was satisfied that prima facie a case was made out against the accused and that the view taken by the Police was erroneous. He accordingly took steps to have judicial proceedings properly conducted before him, and he ordered warrants to be issued for the attendance of the accused and at the same time he bound over those whom he had already examined as witnesses to attend this Court at the hearing of the case. That is made the first ground, which, in our opinion, it is necessary to notice, for imputing prejudice to the Magistrate. It seems to us that this was the natural course which the Magistrate would properly take under the circumstances in which he was placed. It was his object, when the judicial proceedings should have been instituted, that all those whose examination was necessary should be present in order that those proceedings might be prompt.

The next ground taken is that the Sub-divisional Magistrate requested the District Magistrate to instruct some pleader to appear to prosecute the case. It seems to us that, by so proceeding, the Sub-divisional Magistrate has not shown any bias in the case. He has shown rather a desire that the prosecution should be properly conducted and that he should be relieved from all responsibility for the course already taken by him in holding that the police-report in "C" form was erroneous.

But when the case came on for trial, the Magistrate's procedure was certainly not regular. Some of the offences were what are known as warrant cases, while one and that is an offence under sec. 436, I. P. C., was triable only by the Court of Session. If the Magistrate desired to proceed against the accused in respect of all these offences, he was involved in some difficulty in consequence of the altered state of the law as now expressed in secs. 254 and 256 of the Code of 1898, in regard to the discretion given to him to draw up a charge at any stage of the proceedings in order to enable the cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution to take place on their first attendance. In all the previous Codes the procedure in inquiries held in cases triable by the Court of Session (Chap. XVIII) and in trials of warrant cases (Chap. XXI) up to the time of drawing up the charge, was the same and, therefore, there was no difficulty when the accusation was of offences some of which were triable exclusively by the Court of Session while others were triable by a Magistrate.

The Magistrate in the present case has acted under sec. 254 as now enacted and he has at an early stage of the proceedings and before the cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution had taken place, drawn up charges, one of which was for an offence under sec. 436, I. P. C., an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, the others being other offences triable by a Magistrate.

IN THE MATTER OF SURJYA NARAIN SINGH.

Now, the Magistrate's proceedings would have been perfectly regular in respect of these minor offences but, in respect of the charge under sec. 436, Penal Code, there was an irregularity because such proceedings would be of the nature of an inquiry under Chap. XVIII, and sec. 208 requires that an opportunity should be given to the accused for cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution before the stage of the proceedings is reached at which it might be found necessary to draw up a charge. It is contended that, in so proceeding, the Magistrate has acted irregularly so as to prejudice the accused and make it undesirable that these proceedings should be conducted by him. There was no intention on the part of the Magistrate in any way to prejudice the accused in this respect. The error was one which would occur through inadvertence. It was due to the alteration of the law the effect of which, in a case like this, was overlooked. We are not inclined to think that, by this proceeding, the accused have been unduly prejudiced. It is still open to the accused to cross-examine the witnesses, if they so desire it and the Magistrate has not in any way interfered with their right by refusing any application made for this purpose.

It is, however, contended that having drawn up a charge, the Magistrate is bound to commit and that he cannot discharge the accused. We think that he is not bound to commit if after cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution he finds that no case is made out. No Court would, we think, so rigidly interpret the law so as to hold that this would be imperative. We may refer to

sec. 213 (2) as showing that the Magistrate can cancel a charge if on taking evidence after the charge he finds that no case for commitment has been made out.

The next objection taken for asking for an order to transfer this case to another Magistrate is that when an application was made to this Magistrate for an adjournment in order to enable the Petitioners to move this Court for the transfer of the case, the Magistrate refused the application and forthwith ordered the accused to be kept in confinement whereas up to that time they had been on bail.

The Magistrate no doubt refused the application for adjournment because he thought that there were no valid grounds for it, but at the same time, he refused to allow the accused to remain on bail and there is some reason to believe that he did so on account of this application. He thus led the accused to believe that he was prejudiced against them and on this ground we think that there is good ground for considering whether the proceedings should not be transferred to some other Magistrate.

A rule will accordingly issue to the District Magistrate to show cause and the record will be sent for. Pending further orders the proceedings will be stayed.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy (with him Babu Dasarathi Sanyal) for the Petitioners.

No one appeared to show cause.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

Two rules come on for disposal together under the following circumstances

IN THE MATTER OF SURJYA NARAIN SINGH.

The Sub-divisional Magistrate of Madhepura when petitioned by the accused, after the framing of charges against them, for an adjournment to enable them to move this Court for the transfer of the case, refused the application and forthwith ordered the accused to be kept in confinement. Whereas up to that time they had been on bail. The accused being thus led to believe that the Magistrate was prejudiced against them, a rule was issued to the District Magistrate of Bhagalpore to show cause why the case should not be transferred to some other Court, and an order was made to stay further proceedings. That was on the 21st August.

The same day one of the accused sent a telegram to his mukhtear at Mudhepura informing him that a rule had been granted. When the case was called on on the 30th the mukhtear showed the Magistrate the telegram and prayed for a postponement. The Magistrate refused the application, and although the accused Surjya Narain Singh was absent, he proceeded to examine another witness and then he committed the case to the sessions for trial.

This action of the Magistrate necessitated a further application to this Court, and a rule was issued to show cause why the commitment should not be quashed.

We have no hesitation in saying that both rules should be made absolute. There is practically no cause shown as regards the first rule. With respect to the second rule, the Deputy Magistrate was clearly wrong to commit Surjya Narain Singh in his absence, and he is deserving of a complete misapprehension in saying that the Sessions Judge had ordered a commitment.

It was illegal to examine an additional witness in the absence of the accused. A postponement should certainly have been granted on the 30th August in order (1) that the accused might have an opportunity of cross-examining the prosecution witnesses with a view to obtaining, if possible, a cancellation of the charges, and (2) that the Magistrate might receive the orders of this Court respecting the application for transfer. It was most injudicious of the Magistrate to proceed with the case after he had been credibly informed that a rule had been issued by this court. His precipitate action indicates still further his bias against the accused. We would refer him to the observations of the learned Chief Justice in the case of Ratnessari Pershad Narayan Sing and another v. Empress (1).

We direct that the commitment of the accused to the Court of Session be quashed, and that the case be transferred to the Court of the District Magistrate that he may either deal with it himself, or transfer it to the Magistrate of Supul or to some other Subordinate Magistrate of competent jurisdiction.

The witnesses for the prosecution need not be again examined-in-chief, but the enquiry will be resumed from the point where that examination closed.

H. P. C. Rules made absolute.

(1) 2 C. W. N. 498 (1898).

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE SPECIAL COURT OF LOWER BURMA.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.	}	MOUNG THA
LORD MACNAGHTEN.		HNYIN, Defend-
LORD LINDLEY.		ant, Appellant,
SIR RICHARD COUCH.		v.
SIR HENRY DE VILLIERS.		MAH THEIN
1900.		MYAH and
21, July.		another,
		Plaintiffs,
		Respondents.

Partnership in an undertaking—Abandonment by laches—Refusal to advance money in terms of agreement.

That a mere refusal by a partner in an undertaking to advance further sums for the purposes of the undertaking in terms of the partnership agreement, is not an abandonment by him of the undertaking and does not amount to a dissolution of the partnership.

Even assuming that the subject-matter of the partnership was as precarious as a mining speculation, it is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts of each case whether or no there has been abandonment, or loss of interest by laches.

NORWAY v. ROWE (1) referred to.

In taking accounts, it is not possible for a Court of Justice to allow expenses to the accountable party, even though honestly incurred for the partnership, where, by mixing up his private affairs with those of the partnership, and by his omission to keep clear accounts of any kind, he has made it impossible even to conjecture what those expenses are.

This was an appeal by the Defendant from a decree and judgment of the Special Court of Lower Burma. The Respondents were the representatives of the Plaintiff who died in the course of the suit.

On the 20th October 1885 the Plaintiff and Defendant who were residents of Moulmein, made a written agreement to advance Rs. 1,10,000 for obtaining a certain quantity of timber which was lying in the Mhineloongyee forests and which was hypothecated and delivered by the owner MOUNG SHOAY HPAW to the Defendant as security for advances made by him. The parties were to advance the amount and to bear further expenses in the proportion of three shares to the Plaintiff and two to the Defendant and the proceeds were to be shared in the same proportion. The timber said to be delivered to the Defendant was in Siamese territory at a great distance from Moulmein, and it had to be dragged to and launched upon the River Salween, down which it must travel some hundreds of miles before reaching Kado, where the loose logs could be captured for their consignees.

In August 1886 the mortgagor of the timber died and the Defendant was declared his administrator in October 1886.

On two subsequent occasions the partners advanced further sums of Rs. 30,000 and Rs. 20,000 respectively in the stated proportions. In March 1887 the Defendant required Rs. 10,000 more to meet expenses, but the Plaintiff declined to pay the two-fifths demanded of him.

In 1896 the Plaintiff brought this suit to take the accounts and to wind up the partnership.

Mr. Haldane, Q. C., and Mr. McCarthy for the Appellant.

Mr. Cowell for the Respondents.

MOUNG THA HNYIN v. MAH THEIN MYAH.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD HOBHOUSE.—The Appellant in this case is the Defendant below. The Respondents are the representatives of the original Plaintiff, who has died in the course of the suit. His death has not in any way varied the matters of dispute between the parties, who may for present purposes be conveniently styled Plaintiff and Defendant throughout.

On the 20th October 1885 the Plaintiff and Defendant who resided at Moulmein made a written agreement to advance Rs. 1,10,000 for obtaining 4,445 logs of teak timber which was therein stated to be lying in the Mhineloongyee forests and to have been hypothecated and delivered by the owner Moungh Shoay Hpaw to the Defendant as security for advances made by him. The parties were to advance the amount and to bear further expenses in the proportion of 3 shares to the Plaintiff and 2 to the Defendant and the proceeds were to be shared in the same proportion. In the next year the partners advanced Rs. 30,000 more to the mortgagor in the same proportion. In point of fact the timber said to be delivered was in Siamese territory at a great distance from Moulmein, and it had to be dragged to and launched upon the River Salween, down which it must travel some hundreds of miles before reaching Kado where the loose logs could be captured for their consignees.

In August 1886 the mortgagor of the timber died, and the Defendant was declared his administrator in the following October. After that it was found that more money was wanted to recover the timber, and the partners provided

Rs. 20,000 in the stated proportions. In March 1887 the Defendant required Rs. 10,000 more to meet expenses, and the Plaintiff declined to pay the two-fifths demanded of him. The Defendant alleged in his written statement that the partnership was then dissolved by mutual consent.

In 1896 the Plaintiff brought this suit to take the accounts and to wind up the partnership. The preliminary question was whether it had been dissolved in March 1887; and a separate issue was framed by the Judge of Moulmein to try that question. The Plaintiff denied that there was any dissolution, or any abandonment by him of his interest in the concern, and said that he did not advance the money demanded because the Defendant would not render any account of his dealings with the last advance. The Defendant said that on the Plaintiff's refusal he considered the partnership to be at an end; that the Plaintiff gave no reason for refusal; that he the Defendant made no further demand, and gave no notice to the Plaintiff that the partnership was dissolved. Upon this evidence the Judge of Moulmein found that there had been no dissolution by consent; and on 1st June 1896 he passed an order which declared that the partnership was dissolved as from that date, and ordered the Defendant as managing partner to file accounts.

The Defendant raised the same question again after the accounts were taken, both in the first Court and on appeal in the Special Court of Lower Burma. But he raised it in a different shape; not alleging mutual consent, but relying on the laches of the Plaintiff, and his abandonment of the undertaking. There was however no more evidence of express abandonment than of consent, and there was some evidence of the Plaintiff's subsequent intervention in the partnership affairs. "So the Defendant had nothing to support his plea except the fact that the Plaintiff had declined to advance money in March 1887, and had left the management of the business to the Defendant, who filled three characters. He was mortgagee prior to the partnership, he was legal representative of the mortgagor, and he was managing partner.

MOUNG THA HNYIN v. MAH THEIN MYAH.

The special Court held that they could not infer abandonment, and they maintained the judgment of the first Court on what they call this much-laboured and unsubstantial point. It has been laboured again with all the resources of able advocacy at this Bar; but their Lordships have not been induced to doubt the soundness of the view taken by the Courts below. It is not necessary to enter again on an examination of the well-known class of cases exemplified by Norway v. Rowe (1). Even assuming in the Defendant's favour that the subject-matter of this partnership is as precarious as a mining speculation, it is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts of each case, whether or no there has been abandonment, or loss of interest by laches. And there is no case, or at least none cited, in which the Court has held a partner to have lost his position on grounds so slender as those which exist here.

On coming to take the accounts great difficulties were found. Besides the various characters filled by the Defendant another element of confusion appeared.

He had dealings in timber peculiar to himself in the same quarter as the partnership dealings, and on a larger scale. His agent in the timber district was his brother MOUNG GALAY who had indubitably expended large sums of money, but on what account it was impossible to say. The Defendant says:—

"I instructed my clerk to make an abstract of all my payments to MOUNG GALAY, no matter on what account. I cannot distinguish the account on which the money was spent without MOUNG GALAY's accounts. He never specified in his demands the purpose for which he wanted the money nor rendered accounts of his expenditure although I asked for them. I did not discharge him because he was my brother and I knew he would not cheat me. I carried on the partnership as though it were my own business and kept no separate account for it." (Rec. p. 101).

MOUNG GALAY is dead and no accounts are produced as coming direct from him. Perhaps if there were any they would not make matters any clearer, for the Defendant tells us again:

"I made payments to MOUNG GALAY for my own business besides those for the partnership. MOUNG GALAY never rendered accounts since Wahzo 1252. The account I have filed (Abstract 4) was made up from an account furnished by MOUNG GALAY and returned to him. In his account the expenditure on each business was not shown separately, but MOUNG HPO TSIN and he went through the accounts and ascertained what had been spent on each business." (Rec. p. 100).

The Burmese year 1252 may be

(1) 19 Ves. 144 (1812).

MOUNG THA HNYIN v. MAH THEIN MYAH.

gathered from the documents to cover parts of the Christian years 1890-91. (See Exhibit 9, Rec. p. 7).

The clerk MOUNG HPO TSIN was examined, and tells us: "I wrote accounts marked 'copy of MOUNG GALAY's accounts A and B.' Some of the entries were taken from MOUNG GALAY's accounts, and some from Defendant's cash books." Further he relates in cross-examination how MOUNG GALAY brought an account book; how he and the clerk picked out items which the clerk copied into a book; how the account so prepared was taken to Mr. Thompson who was advising the Plaintiff with reference to settlement of the partnership affairs; and how Mr. Thompson rejected the account as confused. "The accounts now produced as copies of MOUNG GALAY's accounts were written to make matters clear for the purposes of the dispute between Plaintiff and Defendant." Further, he says that MOUNG GALAY "did some timber business for Defendant at Maihan. He also looked after Defendant's business with PAH TAW and PAN NYO, and others. About two lakhs were sent up altogether to MOUNG GALAY. In his demands he never specified the account for which the money was required. From 1252 when MOUNG GALAY went up the second time it is impossible to distinguish the expenditure on the partnership business from the expenditure on other accounts." (Rec. p. 100).

From these statements it results that the accounts now put in are not those kept by the Defendant nor those kept by MOUNG GALAY. They are a hash of some books or papers belonging to MOUNG GALAY and of others belonging to the Defendant, and of verbal statements by MOUNG GALAY, put together for submission to Mr. Thompson and rejected by him as confused, and a re-hash of the same with some subsequent items for the purposes of the suit. They are doubtless tendered in good faith, for no attempt is made by the Defendant to conceal their deficiencies or to claim for them more authenticity than they possess.

The accounts were referred to a Commissioner, Mr. Bayly, whose report made in November 1897 shows that he went into the matter with much care. There was little difficulty on the receipt side. On the other side, owing to the lack of accounts, and to the confusion between the Defendant's private business and his executorship business and the partnership business, the Commissioner found himself compelled to disallow nearly all of the claims disputed by the Plaintiff. He expressed an opinion that the Defendant was entitled to some reasonable allowance for the services of his agents and for the expenses of getting the timber and of litigation connected with it, and for interest on money advanced by him; but he thought he had no authority to decide such matters, and so he referred them to the Court. Subject to the Court's decision he found the Plaintiff entitled to Rs. 50,835 1a. 5p. as his two-fifths share of the money received by the Defendant for which he has not accounted.

On receipt of this report the Judge of Moulmein overruled some objections taken by the Defendant, among which were objections founded on the Plaintiff's laches; but as to the Commissioner's recommendations the learned Judge could not discover any more materials for guidance than were in the hands of the Commissioner. He found the Plaintiff entitled to Rs. 50,835 1a. 5p., and then sent the case back to the Commissioner for the purpose of ascertaining the value of the assets in items 9 and 10 of "Statement 3. Assets of the partnership;" and also to ascertain from the parties what allowance they agree (as there is no evidence and it is only by mutual agreement any allowance can be made) should be made for the services of the agents employed for the partnership business and for the expenses they (the agents) defrayed in "ounging" out the timber belonging to the estate of the deceased debtor, and in connection with litigation in which the estate was involved; also the value of a set-off claimed by Plaintiff. (Rec. p. 118).

MOUNG THA HNYIN v. MAH THEIN MYAH.

This further reference came to nothing because the parties could not agree. In reporting that result to the Court the Commissioner added "It is possible, I consider, for Defendant to give if he chooses full details of his own private work that was carried on by the partnership agents so as to enable me to allow a proper proportion of remuneration for the services of the agents in the partnership business; but he has not done this although he has had ample opportunity both before me and the Court to do so, nor has he furnished such particulars of the ounging work including the employment of the partnership elephants as would also enable me to ascertain the cost of ounging the partnership timber." (Rec. p. 122).

After some further discussions and evidence, and after making an arrangement about the lawsuit in Siam, the case was brought again before the Judge of Moulmein who delivered a detailed judgment explaining why he could not vary the prior conclusions. He made a final decree in favour of the Plaintiff for Rs. 50,835 4a. 5p. with interest and costs.

On appeal the Special Court took the same view, confirming the judgment on the same grounds as were indicated by the Commissioner and by the two successive Judges of Moulmein. Their Lordships have nothing to do now except to say that the Appellant's counsel have wholly failed to persuade them that a Court of Justice can properly arrive at any conclusion more favourable to the Appellant. If it be true, as is earnestly alleged on his behalf, that expenses honestly incurred for the partnership have been disallowed to him, the answer is that by his own acts in mixing up his private affairs with those of the partnership, and his omission to keep clear accounts of any kind he has made it impossible even to conjecture what those expenses are. Their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty to dismiss this appeal, and the Appellant must pay the costs.

Solicitors: Messrs. A. H. Arnould & Son for the Appellant.

Solicitors: Messrs. Richardson & Co. for the Respondents.

Appeal dismissed.

C. W. A.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
No. 12 OF 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	BHOBONATH LAHIRI,
PRINSEP, J.		Plaintiff, Appellant,
HILL, J.		v.
1900.		RADHAPROSAD LAHIRI,
29, November,		Defendant, Respondent.

Practice—Security for costs—Delay in applying for security.

An application for security for costs already incurred and estimated costs of appeal should be made promptly.

POOLEY'S TRUSTEE v. WHETHAM (1) referred to.

This was an application on behalf of the Respondent for an order that the Plaintiff-Appellant do furnish security for the costs incurred in the original Court and the probable costs of the appeal. The appeal in respect of which this application was made was on the Board ready for hearing.

Mr. Garth for the Respondent.—The Appellant is a person of little or no means. According to his own counsel, when he applied for extension of time to file his paper-book, he had found difficulty in paying for the requisite stamps for depositions. The Judge in the original Court had found that the suit was vexatious and frivolous. He relied upon Hankin v. Turner (2) and Harlock v. Ashberry (3). The reason why he could not make the application earlier was that his bill of costs had not been taxed until the 26th of November.

The Advocate-General (Mr. J. T. Woodroffe, with him Mr. A. Chaudhuri) for the Plaintiff-Appellant.—Poverty has not been considered as sufficient ground for taking security. He relied upon Maneckji Limji Manchherji v. Goolbai (4), Lakhmi Chand v. Gatto Bai (5) and Jiwan Ali Beg v. Basa Mal (6), in which the cases cited by Mr. Garth were considered. He also relied on Khajah Assenoo Majoo v. Solomon (7) and Hewetson v. Deas (8). Moreover there has been considerable delay in bringing forward the application and it should not now be granted. The application for extension of time was made as early as the 13th July 1900 and apparently the poverty of the Appellant was urged as one of the grounds why some extension should be allowed. The paper-books were filed in August and the Appellant has undergone all the cost of preparing for the appeal. The appeal was not frivolous, grounds having been certified by counsel who conducted the case in the Court below. Much weight should not be attached to the finding of the Judge, his judgment being under appeal.

Mr. Garth in reply.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—This is an application by the Respondent for security for costs already incurred in the lower Court and the estimated costs of the appeal.

Judgment was given against the present Appellant on the 6th April last and on the 14th of May the Appellant filed his memorandum of appeal. On the 13th of July he obtained from this Court one

(4) I. L. R. 3 Bom. 241 (1878).

(5) I. L. R. 7 All. 542 (1885).

(6) I. L. R. 8 All. 203 (1886).

(7) I. L. R. 14 Cal. 533 (1887).

(8) I. L. R. 21 Cal. 526 (1894).

(1) L. R. 33 Ch. Div. 76 (1886).

(2) L. R. 10 Ch. Div. 372 (1878).

(3) L. R. 19 Ch. Div. 84 (1881).

BHOONATH LAHIRI v. RADHAPROSAD LAHIRI.

month's further time to file his paper-book and he filed it on the 13th of August last. It was not until the 19th of this month that the present application was made.

The Appellant urged that the applicant has not been sufficiently prompt in making his application and that under the circumstances it should not be granted.

The grounds for the application are based upon the poverty of the Appellant and the fact that the Judge in the Court below has stigmatised the suit as one of a vexatious character and one which ought not to have been brought.

In the view I take of the matter it is unnecessary to express any opinion upon the question whether if the application had been made with more promptitude it would have been granted.

It is clear, upon the authorities in the English Courts, that the application should be made promptly and in this respect the Courts in India may fairly follow those in England.

In the case of Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham (1), Lord Justice Cotton laid down the rule in these terms:—"The rule has always been that applications for security for costs must be made promptly, not only on the ground that the Respondent should apply for security for costs before he incurs them, but on the ground that it is unreasonable that security should not be applied for till the applicant has incurred the costs of the appeal, whether they have been paid by himself or by his solicitor." This view has been accepted in many other cases.

In the present case the Appellant had already incurred all the costs of preparing the paper-book, and it is only at the last moment when the appeal is actually on the Board that the present application is made.

The learned counsel for the applicant says that he could not properly make his application until the costs had been taxed, which was not until the 26th of September. That argument is fallacious, because the application is not based upon the mere non-payment of these costs,—to recover which no attempt has apparently been made,—but upon the alleged general poverty of the Appellant and the vexatious nature of the suit, and both these facts were within the knowledge of the applicant long ago.

In my opinion the application should have been made with much more promptness, and following the rule which obtains in England I do not think that it would be right at this late stage to grant it.

Under these circumstances the application is dismissed with costs, which will be set off against the costs which the Appellant has been ordered to pay by the Court below.

PRINSEP, J.—I am of the same opinion.

HILL, J.—I also am of the same opinion.

Babu Manik Lal Seal, Attorney for the Appellant.

Messrs. Orr, Robertson & Burton, Attorneys for the Respondent.

Application refused.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 698 of 1898.

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	PIJRADDI NASKAR,
BANERJEE, J.		Defendant, Appellant,
1900.		v.
4, April.		AMBIKA CHURN MITTER, Plaintiff, Respondent.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 148, cl. (b)—Rent suit, issue in—Plaint, whether to contain extent and boundaries of the lands.

In a suit for recovery of rent where the allegation was that the Defendant held a tenure consisting of 61 odd bighas of land within certain boundaries as specified in the plaint and the defence was that the area was only 36 bighas within certain boundaries as mentioned in the written statement at a certain rate of rent per bigha, and the lower Appellate Court decreed the suit without deciding the question as to the area of the lands and keeping the question open :

Held—That the decision of the Subordinate Judge was correct and did not contravene the provisions of sec. 148, cl. (b) of the Tenancy Act.

Per BANERJEE, J.—That in a rent suit it is not absolutely necessary for the Plaintiff to give the extent and boundaries of the lands in respect of which rent is claimed where there is any difficulty in giving those particulars and that in such cases it is enough if a description sufficient for identification is given.

That the Court is not bound in every suit for arrears of rent to determine the extent and boundaries of the Defendant's ding or tenure.

BHAI CHAL NASYA v. SHAIK SHAM-NUYASI MAHOMED (1) and RASH DHARY GOPE v. KHAKON SINGH (2) distinguished and explained.

This was an appeal preferred on the 6th of April 1898, against the decree of Babu Rajendra Kumar Bose, Sub-Judge 2nd Court of Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 22nd December 1897, reversing the decree of Babu Bepin Chandra Chatterji, Munsif, 4th Court, at Diamond Harbour, dated the 30th of June 1897.

The suit out of which the present appeal arose was brought by the Plaintiff for recovery of rent on the allegation that the Defendant held under the Plaintiff in one plot, 61 bighas 16 cottas 15 chittaks of land as per boundaries given at foot of the plaint, standing in the name of Sadan Naskar, at a yearly rent of Rs 129-8 ans. 6 gds. as gor-mourashi and gor-mokurari tenant. Amongst other matters the following objection was taken in the written statement which will appear from the 5th para. which was as follows :—

“The Plaintiff has not given the actual boundaries of the land in suit. I beg to state herein, in schedule (ka), the boundaries of the land and jama, held by me, standing in the name of my father, Sadan Naskar, so that the same may be treated as a part and parcel of this written statement. Save and except the lands comprised in those boundaries, there is no other land standing in the name of Sadan Naskar. The area of the said lands is 35 or 36 bighas. It is not 61 bighas 16 cottas 15 chittaks as alleged by the Plaintiff.”

The Defendant gave boundaries of 5

(1) 1 C. W. N. 152 (1894).

(2) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 438 (1897).

PIJRADDI NASKAR v. AMBIKA CHURN MITTER.

plots of land comprised of 36 bighas which he said he held under the Plaintiff at a yearly rental of Rs. 2-1 an. 10 gds.

The following was the sixth issue in the case.

Whether the Defendant holds under the Plaintiff the land specified in the plaint at the rate of rent per annum claimed.

The Munsif held that the issue ought to be as was framed above, whether the Defendant held under the Plaintiff the land specified in the plaint at the rate of rent per annum included and that the onus was upon the Plaintiff to prove that the Defendant held such land. Upon discussing the evidence he was of opinion that the Plaintiff had failed to shew that the Defendant held the jama for the land specified in the plaint. The Plaintiff preferred an appeal and the Subordinate Judge decreed the suit and appeal and was of opinion that the question as to the quantity of land held by the Defendant ought to be left open. On this point he made the following remarks :—

"Now at the outset, it is to be remarked that there is no satisfactory and reliable proof on either side as to the quantity of land and the number of plots actually comprised in the holding, standing in the name of Sadanand Naskar which is now held occupation of by the Defendant, or what the boundaries of those lands are. For the purposes of the decision of this case, it is not necessary to decide that question which is left open between the parties. That the Defendant is possessed of the holding standing in the name of his father in succession to his father, is admitted on both sides. The main dispute is as regards the amount of rental which the Defendant is liable to pay in respect of that holding. But it is to be observed that it was fixed in the two prior suits for rent brought in respect of this holding, of which the first, No. 318 of 1885, was against the Defendant's father and the second against the Defendant himself, that the rental payable was Rs. 129-8 ans. 16 gds. per annum."

Babu Boidya Nath Dutt (for Babu Ram Kissen Banerjee) for the Appellant.

Babu Satoda Churn Mitter for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—I do not think there is any ground for this appeal. All that the Court below has done is to give the Plaintiff a decree for the rent of the holding which formerly stood in the name of the Defendant's father, and in respect of which the rent has been found in two previous suits; one, between the Plaintiff and the Defendant's father, and the other, between the Plaintiff and the Defendant himself. It has also been found by the learned Subordinate Judge that nothing has been shown on the part of the Defendant which would warrant him in holding that a less amount of rent than that decreed to the Plaintiff is payable in respect of the holding in suit.

The question of the number of bighas included in the holding has been left open.

With respect to the argument under sec. 148 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, I do not think there is anything in the judgment of the learned Subordinate Judge which in any degree contravenes

PIRADDI NASKAR v. AMBIKA CHURN MITTER.

the provisions of that section. The judgment to my mind is quite right, and this appeal must be dismissed with costs.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion. The contention of the learned vakil for the Appellant, who was the Defendant in the suit, is, that the lower Appellate Court is wrong in giving the Plaintiff a decree without determining what the area of the Defendant's holding is, when cl. (b) of sec. 148 of the Bengal Tenancy Act requires that the plaint shall contain a statement of the extent and boundary of the land held by the Defendant; and in support of this contention, two cases were relied upon, Bhai Chal Nasya v. Shaik Shamnuyasi Mahomed (1) and Rash Dhury Gope v. Khakon Singh (2).

No doubt it is true that cl. (b) of sec. 148 of the Bengal Tenancy Act requires that the plaint should ordinarily give a statement of the extent and boundaries of the land held by the Defendant, but cl. (b) further provides, "or where the Plaintiff is unable to give the extent or boundaries, in lieu thereof a description sufficient for identification." That indicates that it is not absolutely necessary for the Plaintiff to give the extent and boundaries of the lands in respect of which rent is claimed where there is any difficulty in giving those particulars; and that in such cases, it would be enough if in lieu of giving the extent or boundaries of the land, a description sufficient for identification is given. It cannot, therefore, be said that the Court is bound in every suit for arrears of rent to determine the extent and boundaries of the Defendant's holding or tenure.

In the present case, there is a sufficient description given for the identification of the Defendant's holding, the description being that it is the holding that stood in the name of the Defendant's father, Sadan Naskar. The Defendant does not say that he does not hold the land which formed the holding of his father, Sadan Naskar. Nor does he say that, in the present suit, the Plaintiff has included any other holding of his; he merely disputes the correctness of the area given. In that state of things, when the amount of rent was determined in a previous litigation, the Court of Appeal below was quite right in giving the Plaintiff a decree according to the amount previously determined, leaving the question of area open.

As for the two cases cited, the facts of those two cases were very different, and there was a real necessity in those cases for the determination of the extent and boundaries of the Defendant's holding. Thus, in the case of Bhai Chal Nasya v. Shaik Shamnuyasi Mahomed (1) this is what is said in the judgment. "Having regard to the pleadings, the Plaintiffs claiming a certain rent as payable in respect of certain lands mentioned in the plaint and the Defendants denying the occupation of these lands at the rents alleged by Plaintiffs and admitting that they held other lands at different rents, the Court of first instance was, we think, quite right in holding that the point for decision was whether the Defendants held the lands set forth in the plaints under the Plaintiffs' vendor at the rent

(1) 1 C. W. N. 152 (1894).

(2) 1 L. R. 24 Cal. 433 (1897).

(1) 1 C. W. N. 152 (1894).

PIJRADDI NASKAR v. AMBIKA CHURN MITTER.

specified and the lower Appellate Court was wrong in holding that the issue set down by the first Court was not the proper issue to be tried."

So also in the other case it was not merely the extent, but the situation of the Defendants' holding that formed one of the questions raised in the case, and the Court thought that that matter ought to be settled before any decree was made.

S. C. S. Appeal dismissed.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

NOS. 22 AND 23 OF 1900.

UMAKANT ROY, Decree-

RAMPINI, J. holder, Appellant,
PRATT, J. v.

1900. DENO NATH SANYAL,
26, June. Judgment-debtor,
Respondent.

Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 311, 312, 538, 244 (c)—Allegation of fraud against decree-holder, without any attempt to prove the same—Irregularity in the publishing or conducting of the sale, question of—Second appeal.

A mere allegation of fraud in an application under sec. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure without any attempt in any way to substantiate it cannot give a right of second appeal in a case which would not otherwise have arisen.

NAVA KUMAR ROY v. GOLAM CHUNDER DEY (1), ABHOYA DASSI v. PUDMO LUCHUN MONDOL (2), DAIVANAYAGAM PILLAI v. RANGASAMI AYAR (3) followed.

ROJONI KANT BAGCHI v. HOSSAIN UDDIN AHMED (6) explained and distinguished.

- (1) I. L. R. 18 Cal. 422 (1891).
- (2) I. L. R. 22 Cal. 802 (1895).
- (3) I. L. R. 19 Mad. 29 (1894).
- (6) 4 C. W. N. 538 (1899)

This was an appeal preferred on the 18th of January 1900, against the order of W. H. Vincent, Esq., District Judge of Burdwan, dated the 5th June of 1899, affirming the order of Babu Basanta Kumar Ghose, Munsif of Katwa, dated the 2nd December 1898.

This appeal arose out of some proceedings in execution in which a sale was held at the instance of the Decree-holder-Appellant at which the decree-holder himself was the purchaser. The judgment-debtor applied under sec. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure to have the sale set aside on the ground of irregularity in the publishing of the sale proclamation and the conducting of the sale and in that application he also alleged fraud on the part of the decree-holder. No attempt was, however, made to substantiate the allegation of fraud. The sale was set aside by the Munsif on the ground of irregularity in the conducting and publishing of the sale under sec. 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure. On appeal the District Judge upheld the order of the Munsif.

Against these orders the present appeal was preferred.

The arguments addressed to the Court and the cases cited appear from the judgment.

Babu Hara Kumar Mitter for the Appellant.

Dr. Asutosh Mukherjee and Babu Mohendra Nath Roy for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This is a second appeal against an order under sec. 312, C. P. C., setting aside a sale,

UMAKANT ROY v. DENO NATH SANYAL.

A preliminary objection has been taken that no second appeal lies. From the final clause of sec. 588 this would appear to be correct and the cases of Nava Kumar Roy v. Golam Chunder Dey (1), Abhoya Dassi v. Pudmo Luchun Mondol (2), Daivanayagam Pillai v. Rangasami Ayar (3) support this view.

On the other hand, on behalf of the Appellant it has been contended with the view of bringing this case within the rulings of this Court in the cases of Bhubun Mohun Pal v. Nonda Lal Dey (4), Nemai Chand Kanji v. Denonath Kanji (5) and Rojoni Kant Bagchi v. Hossain Uddin Ahmed (6) that the Respondent judgment-debtor made an allegation of fraud against the decree-holder in his petition for the setting aside of the sale, and therefore that the order passed was one under sec. 244, and a decree, and accordingly a second appeal does lie.

It appears that an allegation of fraud was made in the judgment-debtor's application for the setting aside of the sale; but, as the Munsif says, no attempt was made to prove it. The application was therefore dealt with both before the Munsif and the Judge as one under sec. 311. In these circumstances we consider that no second appeal lies. The order of neither of the lower Courts disposes of any other question than questions of irregularity in the publishing or conducting of the sale. Hence it cannot be an order under sec. 244 (c), or a decree, and so there can be no second

(1) I. L. R. 18 Cal. 422 (1891).

(2) I. L. R. 22 Cal. 802 (1895).

(3) I. L. R. 19 Mad. 29 (1894).

(4) I. L. R. 26 Cal. 324 : s. c. 3 C. W. N. 399 (1899).

(5) 2 C. W. N. 691 (1898).

(6) 4 C. W. N. 538 (1899).

appeal. It cannot be, we think, that an applicant under sec. 311 by making a mere allegation of fraud in his petition without attempting in any way to substantiate his allegation can give a right of second appeal in the case which would not otherwise have arisen.

The learned pleader for the Appellant however relies on a passage in the judgment in Rojoni Kant Bagchi v. Hossain Uddin (6) in which it is said :—" We think it may be gathered from these decisions that when a judgment-debtor applies to have an execution sale set aside, alleging circumstances which, if found in his favour, would amount to fraud on the part of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, the case comes under sec. 244." As to this we would say, firstly, that we do not think the learned Judges who decided this case meant to lay down that a mere allegation of fraud without an attempt to prove it would be sufficient to bring the case under sec. 244. They must have meant that allegations of fraud supported by evidence of some sort would do so. Secondly, if this be what they meant, then it is not supported by the cases referred to by them, in all of which an endeavour was made to prove the acts of fraud alleged. Thirdly, the observation is at the best but an obiter dictum, for in the case in which it occurs it was held that the act alleged to be fraudulent did not amount to fraud and that consequently no second appeal lay.

This appeal is accordingly dismissed with costs—2 gold mohurs. The order in this case also governs appeal from order No. 23 of 1900.

H. P. C.

Appeal dismissed.

(6) 4 C. W. N. 538 (1899).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2321 OF 1898.

PATIT SAHU, Defendant

RAMPINI, J. No. 1, Appellant,

PRATT, J. v.

1900: HARI MAHANTI and

3, July. others, Plaintiffs,

Respondents.

*Landlord and Tenant Act (X of 1859)—
Sale, setting aside of, by an unregistered tenant —Maintainability of suit.*

A private purchaser of a tenure who has not registered his name in the landlord's sherista (office) and has not been recognized by him, has no locus standi to bring and maintain an action to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against the registered tenant.

The non-attachment and non-proof of publication of the sale proclamation is no ground for setting aside a sale under Act X of 1859.

This was an appeal preferred on the 29th of November 1898, against the decree of W. B. Brown, Esq., District Judge of Zillah Cuttack, dated the 29th of August 1898, confirming the decree of Babu Kissori Lal Sen, Munsif of Puri, dated the 29th of March 1898.

The facts of the case are as follows :—

It was alleged that the property in suit originally belonged to Defendant No. 2; he transferred portions of the same to Defendant No. 3 and the father of Defendant No. 4. Defendant No. 2 and his vendees afterwards wanted to sell their interests in the said property; Defendant No. 1 offered to purchase the same but at an insufficient price. It was sold, however, to the Plaintiffs under different deeds of transfer for an agree-gate price of Rs. 475. The property was situated within Satis Hazari, of which Defendant No. 5 was entitled to receive rent, Defendant No. 6 was the tehsil amin of Defendant No. 5, and Defendant No. 7 was his am-mukhtear; Defendant No. 1 brought the Defendant No. 6 under his influence, caused a suit for rent for Rs. 19-13-3 to be instituted against Defendant No. 2 under Act X of 1859, and obtained an ex parte decree; and in execution of that decree the said property was brought to sale without actually publishing any sale proclamation, etc., and was purchased by Defendant No. 1 for Rs. 75 on the 21st of December 1896; that the said rent decree and all subsequent proceedings thereon were the result of collusion amongst Defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 6, and that the sale was null and void as against the Plaintiffs, and that the Plaintiffs were entitled to get the sale set aside on payment, to Defendant No. 5 the arrears of rent due.

Upon these allegations the Plaintiffs brought this suit for (1) declaration of their title by purchase to the said property; (2) for setting aside the sale aforesaid; (3) for confirmation of their possession thereto or for recovery of possession in case Defendant No. 1 obtained possession thereof in the meantime; (4) to get the decree for rent obtained by Defendant No. 5 paid by Plaintiffs; (5) for costs; and (6) for recovery of the purchase-money in case Plaintiffs failed to get the property.

Defendant No. 1 alone contested the suit.

The first Court found (1) that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to a declaration of their right by purchase as they had not registered their names in the landlord's sherista; (2) that the sale at which the Defendant No. 1 purchased was invalid; (3) that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to a decree for confirmation of possession, and (4) that the Plaintiffs could not be declared entitled to pay the decree for rent which the Defendant No. 5 had obtained against the Defendant No. 2.

PATIT SAHU v. HARI MAHANTI.

The Defendant No 1 appealed to the District Judge and before him it was argued that the sale under Act X of 1859 was a good sale, but the Judge considered it to be null and void (1) because the sale proclamation had not been duly published; (2) and because the decree was not obtained by a co-sharer and should, therefore, have been executed in the mode prescribed by the Civil Procedure Code, and as there was no attachment in this case the sale was invalid on that ground also.

Thereupon this second appeal was preferred by the Defendant No. 1.

Babu Umakali Mukherjee for the Appellant.

Babu Monmohan Dutt for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this suit the Plaintiffs sue to have it declared (1) that a sale under Act X of 1859 of a certain under-tenure at which the Defendant No. 1 purchased it, be declared null and void; (2) that the Plaintiffs have a good title to the tenure, and (3) that their possession of the same be confirmed.

The tenure originally belonged to the Defendant No. 2 who sold portions of it to Defendant No. 3 and the father of Defendant No. 4. The Plaintiffs subsequently purchased it for Rs. 475 but they never got their names registered in the landlord's sherista.

The landlord who is the Raja of Puri then sued the original tenant, Defendant No. 2, got a decree and in execution put the tenure up to sale, at which it was bought by Defendant No. 1. Hence this suit.

The first Court found (1) that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to a declaration of their right by purchase, for they had not registered their names in the landlord's sherista; (2) that the sale at which the Defendant No. 1 purchased was invalid; (3) that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to a decree for confirmation of possession, and (4) that the Plaintiffs could not be declared entitled to pay the decree for rent which the Defendant No. 5 had obtained against the Defendant No. 2.

The Defendant No. 1 appealed to the District Judge. Before him it seems to have been argued that the sale under Act X of 1859 was a good sale but the Judge considered it to be null and void (1) because the sale proclamation had not been duly published, (2) because the decree was not obtained by a co-sharer and should therefore have been executed in the mode prescribed by the Civil Procedure Code and as there was no attachment in this case, the sale would seem to be invalid on that ground also.

The Defendant No. 1 appeals and on his behalf it has been contended that the want of attachment and sale proclamation are mere irregularities which do not vitiate the sale. We are inclined to take this view of the matter. The non-attachment and the non-proof of publication of the sale proclamation might be very serious matters, if this were an application under sec. 311, C. P. C. But this is not such an application and we do not think that the Plaintiffs can have the sale set aside on the ground of such irregularities. There is no provision in Act X of 1859 which entitled them to have the sale set aside on such grounds.

PATIT SAHU v. HARI MAHANTI.

But there is a more serious objection to the suit and that is that on the Munsif's findings, the Plaintiffs are nobody. The Munsif has refused them the declaration sought for by them as to their title by purchase. The Plaintiffs have been held not to be tenants of the land, for they have not registered their names in the landlord's sherista, and have not been recognised by him. They have therefore no locus standi and no right to impugn the Defendants' purchase of the jote; see Sham Chand Koondoo v. Brojo Nath Pal Choudhry (1).

Their suit should therefore be dismissed.

For these reasons we decree this appeal and dismiss the Plaintiffs' suit.

This order carries costs in all Courts.

H. P. C.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 21 W. R. 94 (1873).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1419 of 1898.

MACPHERSON, J.

STEVENS, J.

1899.

8, December.

HIRAMONI DASSI, wife of Promotha Nath Gupta, and Khettarmoni Dassi, minor, by her husband
Kunja Behari Das,
Defendants, Appellants,
v.
RADHA CHURN KAR,
Plaintiff, Respondent.

Partition Act (IV of 1893), sec. 2—Preliminary decree—Order for sale—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 396.

Where in a suit for partition a Commissioner appointed under sec. 396, C. P. C., to make a partition after the preliminary decree had been passed, submitted a report and the Court on consideration of the report was of opinion that the property could not be conveniently partitioned, and then passed an order for sale of the property under the provisions of sec. 2 of the Partition Act. (IV of 1893):

Held—That the Court could pass an order under sec. 2 of the Act for sale of the property, and the fact that a preliminary decree had been passed was no bar to his proceeding under that section.

This was an appeal preferred on the 21st of July 1898, against the decree of B. B. Newbould, Esq., Officiating District Judge of Zillah Sylhet, dated the 22nd of April 1898, affirming the decree of Babu Hari Prosad Das, Munsif, 1st Court, at Sylhet, dated the 5th of March 1898.

The suit out of which the present appeal arose was one for partition. After the preliminary decree had been passed the first Court appointed a Commissioner under sec. 396, C. P. C., to make a partition. Upon reading the Commissioner's report and after hearing the parties the first Court held that the partition proposed by the Commissioner was not equitable, as the land which was the subject-matter of the suit was very small, and could not be conveniently partitioned; and as neither of the parties lived within the premises, the first Court held that the best course to follow was to sell the property to the highest bidder and divide the proceeds between the parties under sec. 2 of Act IV of 1893; the Court therefore ordered that the property be sold. Upon appeal the lower Appellate Court upheld this order and passed the following judgment:—

HIRAMONI DASSI v. RADHA CHURN KAR.

The lower Court in a partition suit granted a decree for partition and under sec. 396, C. P. C., appointed an Amin as Commissioner to make a partition. On the Commissioner's report being reviewed the lower Court did not consider it equitable and as it appeared that the land could not conveniently be partitioned it passed an order under sec. 2, Act IV of 1893, ordering the sale of the property. The Appellants' pleader contends that in passing such an order the lower Court exceeded its powers on the ground that sec. 396 only provides two alternatives to the Court issuing the commission, namely, either to quash the report and issue a new commission, or to pass a decree in accordance therewith. With regard to the order under sec. 2, Act IV of 1893, the Plaintiff's pleader contends that that section only provides for an order for the sale of the property as an alternative to a decree for partition and that as a decree for partition has actually been passed the lower Court cannot now cancel that decree and order a sale of the property. In my opinion neither of these objections can be allowed. If Act IV of 1893 does give the lower Court power to do what it has done it is of course immaterial that there should be no mention of such power in the Civil Procedure Code which was passed long previously. I cannot agree with the Appellants' pleader that the fact that the preliminary decree for partition has been passed is any bar to the lower Court having power to order the property to be sold. The word "whenever" at the commencement of the section seems to me to cover any stage of the proceedings. I cannot agree that the order for sale is an alternative to a decree for partition. It seems to me rather a method by which the decree for partition may be carried into effect. Until the Commissioner's report was received the lower Court was not in a position to know how the partition could best be effected and Act IV of 1893 would lose a great part of its value if the Court could not act on it after obtaining this fuller information. With regard to the merits of the order it seems to me a perfectly reasonable one.

I therefore uphold the order of the lower Court and dismiss the appeal with costs—pleader's fee Rs. 4 only.

From this decision the Defendants appealed to the High Court.

Babu Harendra Narain Mitter for the Appellant.—The term "beneficial" in sec. 2, means beneficial in a pecuniary sense—vide Drinkwater v. Ratcliffe (1), under sec. 3 of the English Partition Act, 1868 (31 and 32 Vict., c. 40). Per Sir G. Jessel, M. R.—The findings are not sufficient to justify an order under the section. The Court was not competent to proceed under sec. 2 at that stage of the case.

Babu Tara Kishore Chaudhuri for the Respondent.—The facts as disclosed in the report are sufficient to justify such an order. The fact of a preliminary decree having been passed is no bar to the Court passing an order under sec. 2.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal from a decree in which the first Court, under sec. 2 of the Partition Act (IV of 1893), made an order for the sale of the property to be partitioned.

HIRAMONI DASSI v. RADHA CHURN KAR.

That decree has been affirmed on appeal by the District Judge; and this second appeal is now preferred.

It is said that sec. 2 of the Act referred to does not apply to this case in which a preliminary decree for partition has been made and that it can only come into operation in those cases in which there has been no such decree. We see no reason, having regard either to the language of the section or to the scope of the Act, to put this limited construction upon it. There is a great difference between a decree directing a partition to be made and a decree confirming a partition which has been made and approved of by the Court. The Court in making a decree for partition merely deals with the rights of the parties and their interests in the properties to be partitioned. It is not then in a position to consider in any way the nature of the partition which could or should be made. That is a matter with which it deals in a later stage of the case when effect is being given to the order for partition.

Then it is said that the Courts below have not strictly complied with the provisions of sec. 2; and that no facts or circumstances have been found which would justify the order for sale. It appears that the Amin who was deputed to make a plan of the land to be partitioned submitted a scheme for the approval of the Court. The Munsif disapproved of the scheme as one which would be very unfair to at least one of the two persons interested. Then he says, referring to the map, and report of the Amin, and having before him the statements of the parties, that the land which is the subject of partition is very small, that it cannot conveniently be partitioned; and that the best course is, as one proposed by one of the parties, a person who holds a  $\frac{5}{8}$ th share of the land, to sell it to the highest bidder. The size of the land and the nature of it, as disclosed in the Amin's map, might very reasonably have led the Munsif to the conclusion that the land could not be conveniently partitioned. The Munsif certainly did not in terms say that a sale would be more beneficial for all the shareholders; but (assuming that "beneficial" means beneficial in the pecuniary sense), he does say that that is the best course, and we must take this to mean the best course, for all the parties, that could be followed having regard to their pecuniary interests and all the circumstances of the case. We cannot, therefore, say that there was anything defective in the finding of the Munsif. It is not clear to what, if any, extent the Munsif's decision on this part of the case was challenged before the District Judge. The latter sets out the particular grounds that were urged before him, but says nothing as to any exception being taken to the order on its merits. He does, however, say that on the merits the order seemed to him a perfectly reasonable one. There is, therefore, no reason to suppose that any injustice has been done, and we also think that this is not a case in which we are in a position to interfere on second appeal.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

S. C. S.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 331 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.
HANDLEY, J.
1900.
15, June.

DURGA DAS RAKHIT and another, Petitioners,
v.
UMESH CHANDRA SEN,
Opposite Party.

Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 174, 177—Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), secs. 9, 10—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 205—Giving false information to a public servant, whether non-furnishing of correct statements as to names and interests of persons, amounts to—Contempt of Court, whether non-attendance in Court in obedience of summons to attend Court, amounts to—Notice to persons interested in lands of intention of Government to take lands for public purposes—Joint trial.

A Deputy Collector made a complaint against the lessor and the lessee of some lands taken up under the Land Acquisition Act that they had given false information in certain written statements that they made to the Collector in response to a call from him under sec. 9 of the Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), but did not put in either with his written complaint or at the time of his examination by the Magistrate before whom he made the complaint, the written statements upon which he desired to proceed, and the Magistrate issued processes for the attendance of the accused to answer a charge under sec. 177, I. P. Code, and sec. 10 of the Land Acquisition Act; on the day fixed for trial the lessee appeared, and appearance was made on behalf of the lessor by his mukhtear who asked the Magistrate under sec. 205 of the Code of Criminal Procedure to dispense with the personal attendance of that accused, which the Magistrate refused to accede to, and called upon him to show cause why he should not be prosecuted for contempt of Court under sec. 174, I. P. Code :

Held -- That in the absence of the written statements on which the proceedings were founded and in the absence of any reference as to the particular statement or statements on which the accusation was made, the Magistrate should not have issued processes against the accused, and that his action in the matter was without proper discretion, and that the complaint is bad and should not be allowed to proceed in its present form.

That the lessor accused having made an appearance, though not a personal appearance on service of summons, and his having moved the Superior Courts against the proceedings of the Magistrate should not have been regarded as an offence under sec. 174 of the Penal Code, and that the Magistrate's proceedings were misconceived and that they should cease.

That the proceedings in the civil case being still before the High Court in respect of the lessee, no prosecution should be taken before the Magistrate until at least the final orders of the High Court shall have been obtained.

That the offence, if any, committed by each of the accused is a distinct and separate offence and should be tried separately.

This was a rule issued on the 27th of April 1900, against the proceedings taken against the Petitioners by the Deputy Magistrate of Midnapore, dated the 19th April 1900.

The facts of the case, so far as they are material to this report, appear from the judgment.

Mr. W. Jackson and Babu Atulya Charan Bose for the Petitioners.

Babu Sris Chandra Chaudhuri (Assistant Government Pleader) for the Crown.

DURGA DAS RAKHIT v. UMESH CHANDRA SEN.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This matter has* already once been before this Court under circumstances somewhat similar to those now before us. The Petitioners were then being prosecuted for perjury and forgery alleged to have been committed in proceedings taken before the Deputy Collector under the Land Acquisition Act and, for reasons stated by the Judges of the Criminal Bench of the Court, on a rule granted, the proceedings were quashed as premature and without jurisdiction. The Collector, finding that the bar has been removed because the Civil Court has, in his opinion, finally decided the matter under the Land Acquisition Act, has renewed his complaint before the Magistrate and he has put the offence under sec. 177, I. P. C., which is declared to be applicable to such proceedings by sec. 10 of the Land Acquisition Act.

The complaint was made against two persons, Durga Das Rakhit, the lessor, and Abhoy Charan Dey, the lessee, claiming to hold a portion of the land taken up under the Act and they have been accused of having given false information within the terms of sec. 177, I. P. C., and sec. 10, Land Acquisition Act, in certain written statements that they made to the Collector in response to a call from him under sec. 9. We may first of all observe that neither in the complaint made by the Deputy Collector nor in his examination by the Magistrate has any reference been made to any particular statement made by either of the accused as being a false statement. The complaint is that the written statements put in were false. It is clear that those documents contained more than one statement of fact. We also find that the Deputy Collector did not put in the written statements upon which he desired to proceed either with his written complaint or at the time of his examination by the Magistrate.

The Magistrate, therefore, had not before him the facts constituting the offence regarding which he was called upon to act and, notwithstanding this, he issued processes for the attendance of the accused.

Now, in this respect we think that the Magistrate has acted without proper discretion. He was bound to require from the complainant the written statements on which the proceedings were founded and also to ascertain from the complainant the particular statement or statements on which the accusation was made.

On the day fixed for trial, the case being a summons case, Abhoy Charan Dey appeared and appearance was made on behalf of Durga Das Rakhit by his mukhtear who asked the Magistrate under sec. 205 to dispense with the personal attendance of that accused. At the same time Abhoy Charan Dey, who did not personally attend, asked for and obtained an order from the Magistrate to excuse his further personal attendance and to be allowed to appear by a mukhtear. The Magistrate, however, refused to allow the application made on behalf of Durga Das Rakhit and he regarded his non-attendance as a contempt of Court, misapplying that term as it is generally used. He accordingly called upon Durga Das Rakhit to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under sec. 174, I. P. C., for non-attendance on service of summons and the Magistrate has, in his explanation, expressed himself strongly regarding the conduct of Durga Das Rakhit in this respect.

DURGA DAS RAKHIT v. UMESH CHANDRA SEN.

We think that the Magistrate has taken an entirely mistaken view of this part of the case. He seems to have been animated by some feeling that Durga Das Rakhit was acting contemptuously towards the Court. There was no reason for this supposition. The Magistrate should rather have told the mukhtear that he required the personal attendance of Durga Das Rakhit on some fixed day or that, if he did not choose to appear, he would issue a warrant of arrest. That, in our opinion, would have answered sufficiently. The Magistrate, however, appears to have regarded as an aggravation of the offence that Durga Das Rakhit should have proceeded to Calcutta, instead of attending his Court, in order to apply to the High Court and that he also applied to the District Magistrate for bail as well as for an order directing the Subordinate Magistrate to dispense with the personal attendance of the accused. He considers that by making this application Durga Das Rakhit was doubly guilty of contempt of Court.

Throughout the Magistrate has failed to appreciate what he was entitled to expect from Durga Das Rakhit. There was no possible reason why he should not proceed to the High Court to make an application regarding this case and he was also within his rights in making his application to the District Magistrate. He did make an appearance though not a personal appearance on service of summons but that he did not personally attend should not under the circumstances have been regarded as an offence under sec. 174.

We think, therefore, that the proceedings under sec. 174, I. P. C., against Durga Das Rakhit were misconceived and that they should cease.

In regard to the prosecution under sec. 177, we are of opinion that, as now taken, the complaint is bad and that the case should not be allowed to proceed in its present form. We are further of opinion that inasmuch as the proceedings are still before the High Court in respect of Abhoy Charan Dey, no prosecution should be taken in the Magistrate's Court until at least the final orders of the High Court shall have been obtained. No doubt there was a reference made by the Deputy Collector to the District Judge in respect of the objection to the award made by Durga Das Rakhit and we understand that, in consequence of his absence, that reference has been summarily dismissed. But the matter still remains in regard to Abhoy Charan Dey whose case the Deputy Collector refused to refer. It is difficult to understand how the cases of these two persons claiming to be lessor and lessee can be distinguished and on this ground and because there are proceedings now before the High Court we think that there should be no proceedings at all against either Abhoy Charan Dey or Durga Das Rakhit until orders of the High Court shall have been obtained. We would again point out that in the Magistrate's Court the complaint was made against these two jointly. But any offence committed by each is a distinct and separate offence and should be tried separately. The rule is, therefore, made absolute.

Rule made absolute.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NOS. 381 AND 382 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.
HANDLEY, J.
1900.
6, July.

NOWRANGI SINGH and two ors., Petitioners,
and
RAMAN SINGH and ors., Petitioners,
v.
THE QUEEN-EMPRESS,
Opposite Party.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 147, 149, 353—Rioting—Obstructing and assaulting a public servant in the execution of his duty—Police Act (V of 1861), secs. 17, 19—Refusal to accompany a police-officer to police-station to receive appointment and badges of special constables, if refusal to serve as such—Arrest made on such refusal, if lawful.

Refusal to accompany a police-officer to the police office situated at some distance not for any purpose of Police duty but simply to obtain the authority of appointment to serve as special constables and the necessary badges and arms does not amount to a refusal to serve as special constables and it does not constitute an offence under sec. 19 of the Police Act.

An arrest made by a police-officer on such a refusal is not lawful and any resistance offered to such an arrest does not amount to an offence under sec. 353, I. P. Code. When a large number of men assemble with the common object of assaulting or using criminal force to police-officers and of resisting any action on the part of the Police and an unjustifiable assault takes place in the attempt of the Police to make an arrest which may not be lawful, the persons assembled may all be properly found guilty of rioting.

QUEEN-EMPRESS v. DALIP (1) referred to.

(1) I. L. R. 18 All. 246 (1896).

CHUNDER COOMAR SEN v. EMPRESS (2) explained and distinguished.

This was a rule issued on the 19th of May 1900, against the order of the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Barh, dated the 26th of March 1900, affirmed on appeal by the Sessions Judge of Patna on the 5th of May 1900.

The facts of the case appear fully from the judgment.

Mr. Abdur Rahim (In No. 382), Mr. C. Gregory (In No. 381), with Babus Atulya Charan Bose and Mahabir Sahay, for the Petitioners.

Mr. Leith for the Crown.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

These are two rules relating to the same trial and it will be more convenient that they should be disposed of simultaneously.

It appears that, in consequence of some combination amongst about 30 villagers in the district of Patna to resist all measures for the prevention or suppression of the plague and an apprehension that a riot was likely to take place, the District Magistrate appointed a considerable number of the principal inhabitants of the village to serve as special constables. To carry out this order, Mr. Baker, Inspector of Police, accompanied by the Sub-Inspector and two constables, went to the village of the Petitioners for the purpose of informing the 3 Petitioners, Nowrangi, Sewbaran and Gangabissen Singh, that they had been appointed special constables under sec. 17 of the Police Act of 1861. On arriving at their village, the police-officers found a large number of people

(2) 3 C. W. N. 605 (1899).

NOWRANGI SINGH v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

assembled. Mr. Baker, the Inspector of Police, gave notice that Nowrangi, Sewbaran and Gangabissen had been appointed special constables. Two of these men were known to the Sub-Inspector and it is said that they were pointed out to the Inspector but there is reason to believe that the Inspector did not understand this. It is in evidence that Nowrangi, when asked his name, gave a false name. Mr. Baker then announced that these men were to go with him to the police-station at Baktearpur, which they refused to do. On this, he ordered a Police constable to arrest Nowrangi and, on making the arrest, Nowrangi shook himself free and the villagers, who were assembled and amongst whom were the other Petitioners before us, tumultuously threatened and used criminal force to the police-officers so as to cause them to leave the place. For these acts, the Petitioners have all been convicted under sec. 353 read with sec. 149, I. P. C., that is, of being members of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of which some member assaulted, or used criminal force to, a police-officer, a public servant, in execution of his duty as such public servant, with intent to prevent or deter such person from discharging his duty as a public servant. Nowrangi, Sewbaran and Gangabissen have also been convicted under sec. 19 of the Police Act of 1861 in that, being appointed special police-officers, they, without sufficient excuse, refused to serve as such or to obey the lawful order of the Inspector. The Petitioners have all been sentenced to 6 months' rigorous imprisonment for the first offence and the three Petitioners just named have also been sentenced to a fine under the Police Act.

Now, there can be no doubt that Mr. Baker, Inspector of Police, had no authority to arrest Nowrangi Singh and as the Police when obstructed were not acting in lawful discharge of their duty, therefore the Petitioners can, none of them, be properly convicted of an offence under sec. 353, I. P. C. The refusal of Nowrangi to accompany the Police Inspector to Baktearpur was not an offence for which the arrest could have been made. Nor do we think that any refusal of Nowrangi, Sewbaran and Gangabissen to accompany the Police Inspector to Baktearpur constituted an offence under sec. 19 of the Police Act for which they could be punished. It appears that the order was intended, not for any purpose of Police duty but, simply that they might obtain the authority of their appointment and the necessary arms. It seems to us that to require any one who has been appointed a special constable to leave his own occupation and to proceed to some distance for such a purpose is not a reasonable order or one which can be properly called an order connected with the purposes of his duty. Nor do we regard the conduct of these men as a refusal to serve. We think rather that it was simply a refusal to go to Baktearpur, and that there was an opposition to the arrest of Nowrangi in consequence of such refusal. Under such circumstances we think that the conviction and sentence under sec. 19 of the Police Act is bad. It is accordingly set aside.

It remains, however, to consider the other part of the case against the Petitioners. By reason of the terms of their conviction, we understand that they are all found to have been members of an unlawful assembly by which the riot was committed. The question then arises whether the facts found constitute the offence of rioting. Mr. Leith, who appears against the rule, has brought to our notice the case of Empress v. Dalip (1) and we think that the facts of that case are, in nearly every respect, similar to those of the present case and we concur generally with the rule laid down in that case. Mr. Abdur Rahim who appears on the other side cites as authority to the contrary the cases of Chunder Coomar Sen (2) and Man Gobind Muchi (3). The last case clearly has no application. In reference to the case of Chunder Coomar Sen (2), we would observe that it was there held, as in the case in the Allahabad Court, that the accused could not be properly convicted under sec. 353 when the resistance was to the action of an officer of the civil Court who was not acting under any legal authority. One of the accused in that case was, however, convicted of rioting, but his acquittal was on other grounds. The question was not considered in that case whether any of these persons could properly be convicted of any other offence. That case is, therefore, not opposed to the case in the Allahabad Court.

NOWRANGI SINGH v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

(1) I. L. R. 18 All. 246 (1896).

(2) 3 C. W. N. 605 (1899).

(3) 3 C. W. N. 627 (1899).

On the facts found, therefore, we are of opinion that the Petitioners should all be convicted of rioting under sec. 147, I. P. C. Their common object was to commit an offence, that offence being to assault or use criminal force to the police-officers and there was no real justification for such proceeding. It was a very dangerous assembly consisting of a very large number of persons whose object, as was shown by their acts, was clearly to resist any action whatsoever on the part of the Police and it was entirely owing to the forbearance of the Police and their withdrawal that no serious consequences took place.

We think, however, that the sentences of six months' rigorous imprisonment passed are too severe, having regard to the cause of the commission of this offence. Although the accused were in our opinion not justified in what they did, we also think that the action of the Police was injudicious and without legal authority and that there was some provocation for the resistance to the arrest of Nowrangi Singh. Under such circumstances, we think that the sentence should be reduced to a sentence of rigorous imprisonment for two months in respect of each of the Petitioners. The fines, if paid by Nowrangi Lall, Sewbaran and Gangabissen, must be refunded.

Rule made absolute in part.

H. P. C.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE ALLAHABAD
HIGH COURT.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.	MAHARAJAH OF
LORD MACNAGHTEN.	BHARATPUR,
LORD LINDLEY,	Plaintiff, Appellant,
SIR R. COUCH.	v.
*SIR HENRY STRONG.	RANI KANNO DEI,
1900.	Defendant, Re-
10, November.	spondent.

Mortgage—Decree on mortgage—Interest up to date of payment—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), secs. 88 and 97—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), Sch. IV, Form 109—Construction of decree—Ambiguity.

Where there is no ambiguity in a decree the duty of the executing Court is to carry the orders of the decree into effect, as being conclusive between the parties, whether it may or may not be disputable in point of law.

It is competent for a Court passing a mortgage decree to give interest beyond the date fixed for payment and up to the date of realization.

Having regard to the universality of the long established practice to grant such interest, its continuance for years after the Transfer of Property Act was passed, the manifest justice of it, the lack of any apparent reason for upsetting the practice, the conformity with it of sec. 97 which is pari materia with sec. 88, the presumption that sec. 88 was framed with reference not to the running of interest but to the determination of the time for redemption or sale alternatively, and the form of suit sanctioned by form No. 109 of Schedule IV, Civil Procedure Code, sec. 88 of the Transfer of Property Act should not be so construed as to limit the power of the Court to grant interest only up to the date fixed for payment.

AMOLAK RAM v. LACHMI NARAIN (1) over-ruled. ACHALABALA BOSE v. SURENDRA NATH DEY (2), SUBBARAYA v. PONNUSAMI (3), and BAKAR SAJJAD ALI v. UDIT NARAIN SINGH (4) approved. RAMESWAR KOER v. SYED MAHOMED MEHDI HOSSEIN KHAN AND ORS. (5) referred to.

This was an appeal from a decree of the Allahabad High Court, dated 28th July 1898, confirming that of the Sub-Judge of Agra.

The appeal arose out of an application, dated 17th February 1896, for execution of a decree, obtained by the decree-holder, the Appellant, on 7th January 1886. That decree was made in a suit brought by the present Appellant's predecessor in title against the husband of the present Respondent, to enforce a deed of mortgage, dated the 11th of December 1882, executed by him to secure a loan of Rs. 3,00,000. At the date of the suit, the sum claimed as principal and interest amounted to Rs. 3,47,654-9-4, and the Plaintiff prayed that the Defendant should be directed to pay this sum, together with additional interest which might fall due from the date of suit up to the date of payment, on a date to be fixed by the Court, and that in default of payment, the property hypothecated in the deed should be sold by enforcement of the hypothecation lien.

In the present dispute the judgment-debtor, the Respondent, objected to the

(1) I. L. R. 19 All. 174 (1896).

(2) 1 C. W. N. 550: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 766 (1897).

(3) I. L. R. 21 Mad. 364 (1897).

(4) I. L. R. 21 All. 361 (1899).

(5) 2 C. W. N. 633: s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 43 (1898).

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEL.

application for execution of that decree on the ground that interest claimed by the decree-holder after the 20th July 1886, the date fixed by the Court passing the decree for payment of the amount decreed, was not recoverable under the decree.

The decree-holder, on the other hand, contended that he was entitled to interest up to date of realization of the entire amount decreed, that interest up to that date was awarded by the decree and that the judgment-debtor never objected to the payment of the interest claimed on the occasion of two previous applications made after 20th July 1886 for execution of decree wherein interest up to date of payment had been claimed.

The decree of the 7th January 1886 was as follows :—

“It is ordered and decreed that the Plaintiff's entire claim be decreed with interest pendente lite on the principal at the rate claimed and costs of the suit. The Plaintiff will get future interest at 8 annas per cent. on the amount of decree and costs. Defendant No. 1 do pay within six months the sum of Rs. 3,00,000 on account of principal, and Rs. 47,657-9-4 on account of interest included in the claim, Rs. 9,487-4-0 on account of interest pendente lite at 12 annas, Rs. 781-14-6 on account of future interest at 8 annas up to 20th January 1886, and Rs. 10,826-6-0 on account of interest for six months up to 20th January 1886 at 8 annas, together with the costs of the suit. In the event of default in payment of the entire decretal amount, the hypothecated property be sold by auction in satisfaction of the decretal amount by enforcement of the lien, and in the event of any portion of the decretal amount remaining unpaid, the balance of the decretal amount be recovered from the other property of the debtor, deceased. The amount of decree and costs shall not be a charge on the person and own property of Defendant No. 1. Defendant No. 2 be exempted from liability for the amount of decree and costs, and do bear his own cost. The Plaintiff's debt be considered to have preference and priority over the debt of Defendant No. 2 if found due.

It is further ordered that the said Plaintiff do recover from the hypothecated property Rs. 3,734-15 on account of costs incurred by him in this Court.”

The Sub-Judge of Agra allowed the Respondent's objections with costs.

That decision was supported by the Allahabad High Court on the judgment-creditor's appeal. Chief Justice Kershaw and Mr. Justice Knox deciding as follows :—

“Thus we have before us a decree upon which the decree-holder places one interpretation and the judgment-debtor another and a totally different interpretation. Each claims that the interpretation for which he or she contends is authorised by the operative words of the decree. We have tried to see if those words are capable of being so read as to leave no room for doubt in the mind of the Court executing it what the intention of the Court was which passed the decree. The words by themselves are not a sufficient guide. In one part they seem to point to an intention of the Court to grant all that the decree-holder asked for in his plaint. In another part

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEI.

details are given which cover each portion of the relief asked for with the exception of interest to date of payment, and thus the two parts are at conflict. The decree-holder urges that at the time of passing the decree the Court could not have possibly entered any detailed sum as representing what might eventually be due under this head. True, but we should expect that a Court which went into such details as the Court passing the decree did, would not, if it had intended to grant interest subsequent to the date (20th July 1886) have omitted to say, 'together with future interest at 6 per cent. to date of payment,' or words to similar effect. In the face of this conflict we are in the same position as the learned Judges who had to put an interpretation on the decree in Lachmi Narain v. Amolak Ram and another, see Amolak Ram v. Lachmi Narain (1). In that case the learned Judges held, first, that where it is possible to do so, the construction to be placed upon a decree is that construction which would make the decree one in accordance with the law; and, secondly, that if a decree goes beyond what the law allows and leaves no room for doubt as to the construction to be placed upon it, then the Court executing the decree has no option but to execute it for the sum decreed, even though it be a sum beyond what the law allows. Strenuous efforts were made to get us to reconsider the principles of construction laid down in Amolak v. Lachmi Narain (1), and we were referred to the case of Achalabala Bose v. Surendra Nath Dey (2). We have considered the report of that case, and we must say that we do not find ourselves oppressed with the difficulty which the learned Judge, who decided Achalabala Bose v. Surendra Nath Dey (2) found when he attempted to reconcile the provisions of sec. 90 with secs. 86 and 88 of the Transfer of Property Act. The words 'amount due for the time being on the mortgage' may well have been introduced into sec. 90 to meet the contingency of certain sums having been paid by or on behalf of the mortgagor anterior to the sale mentioned in the section, and those sums not sufficient to satisfy the sum which had been found due under sec. 86. In our opinion all the provisions of secs. 89, 90, 94 and 97 are in harmony with the interpretation which has been placed by this Court on secs. 86 and 88 of the Transfer of Property Act. It is true the form 109 in the 4th schedule to the C. P. C. does contemplate that in an action for sale the Defendant may be made personally liable to pay interest until realisation. That form was first introduced by Act No. X of 1877, and has been reproduced in Act No. XIV of 1882 totidem verbis. It may be, that the forms in the fourth schedule were not as carefully scrutinized as they might have been. We know not. Whatever the cause, we should need some stronger authority than is to be derived from a form which may be varied to suit the circumstances of each case, to overrule what appears to us to be the clear meaning of secs. 86 and 88 of the Transfer of Property Act. Sec. 209 of the Civil Procedure Code applies only to decrees for the payment of money, and is in our opinion inapplicable to decrees for sale of property. The decree then which would have been a legal decree in this case, would have been one, which contained no provisions for interest after 21st July 1886, and we hold that the word "entire" which alone renders the meaning doubtful, must be read in the light of the details which follow and be governed in its meaning by them."

(1) L. L. R. 19 All. 174 (1896).

(2) 1 C. W. N. 550: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 766 (1897).

(2) 1 C. W. N. 550: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 766 (1897).

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEL.

Mr. Arthur Cohen, Q. C., and Mr. Ross for the Appellant.

Mr. Mayne for the Respondent.

Mr. Cohen contended that the decree of the 7th July 1886 should be construed as awarding interest not merely until 20th July 1886, but until realization, and that construction would make the decree according to law. He referred to secs. 58, 86, 88, 89 and 90 of the Transfer of Property Act. He mentioned that the case of Amolak Ram v. Lachmi Narain (1) referred to in the High Court's judgment was dissented from in another and a later case, Bakar Sajjad Ali v. Udit Narain Singh (4). See also Subbaraya v. Ponnusami (3).

Mr. Mayne said the only matter he was going to argue was as to the true construction of the decree; he was not going to support the decision in Amolak Ram in the 19th Allahabad Series. *

LORD HOBHOUSE to Mr. Cohen.—It seems to me a clear case; a date is fixed for the payment of the money with interest; it is not paid on that day; the interest surely runs on it. Is there any section to show that it ceases?

Mr. Cohen.—No, my Lord.

Mr. Mayne contended that the C. P. C.

gives a special form for a plaint in such a claim. See form 109. The Plaintiff did not choose to adopt that form; he did not claim any interest beyond date fixed for payment. In the decree no mention is made of interest after that date. The Court followed the plaint giving all that Plaintiff asked for. If Court was wrong, the decree should have been rectified; the Court has no power to do so in execution. Whether the Plaintiff intentionally abandoned any further claim in reliance with the Allahabad decision or for other reason did not matter; he did not ask for more and got only what he sought to secure.

LORD HOBHOUSE.—He asked up to date of payment and desired the Court to fix the date of payment. Can you say such a prayer is one abandoning all claim to interest after date of payment fixed?

Mr. Mayne.—The Plaintiff has taken the same view the Allahabad High Court has twice taken.

LORD HOBHOUSE.—Is there any creditor in India who would consider that the date of payment is the same as the date for order of payment? The High Court in this case has followed a previous decision of that Court which you don't support.

Mr. Mayne.—I say you cannot give in execution more than what Plaintiff sought to recover and was awarded.

Their Lordships did not call upon Mr. Cohen for a reply, but reserved judgment.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD HOBHOUSE.—This is an appeal from an order made in execution proceed-

(1) I. L. R. 19 All. 174 (1896).

(3) I. L. R. 21 Mad. 364 (1897).

(4) I. L. R. 21 All. 361 (1899).

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEL.

ings. The Plaintiff, now Appellant, is a mortgagee; and the Respondent represents the mortgagor who was Defendant and is dead. The mortgage was made on the 11th December 1882 to secure three lacs of rupees. The mortgagor failed to pay, and the mortgagee filed a plaint which is not in the Record, but which from the Subordinate Judge's recital in his judgment appears to have been of an ordinary nature, praying for payment of principal and interest on a day to be fixed by the Court, and for sale in default of payment. The frame of the suit however, so far as it explains the decree, is most properly taken from the decree itself on the construction of which the whole case turns.

The decree bears date the 7th January 1886. It will make the discussions on it clearer if the material expressions in it are arranged under separate heads. (See Rec. pp. 58, 59).

"(a) The Plaintiff seeks the following reliefs: That the principal and interest due up to this time, together with such further interest as may accrue due from the date of the filing of the plaint up to the date of payment, and also the costs of this suit with interest thereon up to the date which may be fixed by the Court may be ordered to be paid;

"(b) It is ordered and decreed that the Plaintiff's entire claim be decreed;

"(c) With interest pendente lite on the principal at the rate claimed and costs of the suit;

"(d) The Plaintiff will get future interest at 8 annas per cent. on the amount of decree and costs;

"(e) Defendant do pay within six months the sum of Rs. 3,00,000 on account of principal;"

Then follow directions for payment within the six months of specified sums of money under different heads: I. Interest included in the claim, i.e., up to date of suit; II. Interest pendente lite at the rate of 9 per cent.; III. Future interest to 20th January 1886 at 6 per cent.; IV. Future interest to 20th July 1886 at 6 per cent.; V. Costs of suit.

"(f) In the event of default in payment of the entire decretal amount, the hypothecated property be sold by auction in satisfaction of the decretal amount by enforcement of the lien, and in the event of any portion of the decretal amount remaining unpaid, the balance of the decretal amount be recovered from the other property of the debtor deceased."

The Plaintiff has made applications for execution from time to time under which he has realised large sums. The last application was made on the 14th April 1896, and on that occasion the Defendant for the first time raised the objection that according to the decree no interest is payable subsequently to the day fixed for payment of the specified sums, viz., the 20th July 1886.

On the 25th September 1897 the Subordinate Judge, who was not the Judge who made the decree of 1886, allowed the objection. His reason is given thus:

"It is an admitted fact that the Plaintiff claims to recover interest even after the 20th of July 1886, which was the date fixed by the Court for the payment of the mortgage money under Sec. 88 of Act 4 of 1862. I have read the judgment and the decree of the original suit and they are as clear and specific in awarding interest to the Plaintiff up to the 20th of July 1886 as could be desired. Neither of these documents admit of any doubt, and I hold that according to those documents the decree-holder is entitled to interest up to the 20th of July 1886, but not after that."

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEI.

The learned Judge does not further examine the language of the decree, but his decision that it excludes interest after the 20th July 1886 can only be supported by holding that the enumeration of sums specified under head (e) to be paid on that day in order to avoid a sale under head (f) has the effect of cutting down the general terms of heads (a) (b) (c) (d) which if not so cut down would give interest to the day of payment.

On appeal the High Court affirmed the decision of the Subordinate Judge. The learned Judges take a different line of reasoning. They do not find the decree so clear against the Plaintiff as it appeared to the Subordinate Judge. Their difficulties, and with them the precise ground of their decision will be best stated in their own words:—

"Thus we have before us a decree upon which the decree-holder places one interpretation and the judgment-debtor another and a totally different interpretation. Each claims that the interpretation for which he or she contends is authorised by the operative words of the decree. We have tried to see if those words are capable of being so read as to leave no room for doubt in the mind of the Court executing it, what the intention of the Court was which passed the decree. The words by themselves are not a sufficient guide. In one part they seem to point to an intention of the Court to grant all that the decree-holder asked for in his plaint. In another part details are given which cover each portion of the relief asked for with the exception of interest to date of payment, and thus the two parts are at conflict. The decree-holder urges that at the time of passing the decree the Court could not have possibly entered any detailed sum as representing what might eventually be due under this head. True, but we should expect that a Court which went into such details as the Court passing the decree did, would not if it had intended to grant interest subsequent to the date (20th July 1886) have omitted to say, 'together with future interest at 6 per cent. to date of payment,' or words to similar effect. In the face of this conflict we are in the same position as the learned Judges who had to put an interpretation on the decree in Lachmi Narain v. Amolak Ram and another [see Amolak Ram v. Lachmi Narain (1)]. In that case the learned Judges held, 1st, that where it is possible to do so the construction to be placed upon a decree is that construction which would make the decree one in accordance with the law; and, 2ndly, that if a decree goes beyond what the law allows and leaves no room for doubt as to the construction to be placed upon it, then the Court executing the decree has no option but to execute it for the sum decreed, even though it be a sum beyond what the law allows."

In the case referred to it was laid down that under sec. 88 of the Transfer of Property Act, which prescribes the nature of the decree to be made in a suit by a mortgagee for sale, it is not competent for the Court to give interest beyond the day fixed for payment into Court of the amount declared necessary to effect redemption and to avoid sale. The view of the High Court then is quite clear in its application to the decree in this suit. They think that the specifications under head (e) are inconsistent with the results which would otherwise follow upon heads (a) (b) (c) and (d); there is therefore a serious ambiguity in the decree: and they are bound to incline to that construction which would make it in accordance with law, rather than to the opposite one.

Their Lordships agree that all ambiguous documents should be construed rather to make them accord with law

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEL.

than to make them conflict with it. But they are unable to see any such ambiguity in this decree as to call for the application of that principle. In their view the foundation of the decree is contained in head (b). That head decrees the entire claim of the Plaintiff. The claim so decreed is set forth in head (a). It is principal and interest due to the date of the plaint, plus interest to accrue due between the date of the plaint and the date of payment, plus the costs of suit with interest thereon up to the date which may be fixed by the Court. The Plaintiff seeks that all this shall be ordered to be paid. The sentence is not happily constructed, but such is the reasonably clear outcome of it. Then heads (c) and (d) mention "interest subsequent to date of suit. There is a reason for that, because the sums of interest allowed, first, up to date of suit; secondly, between that date and the decree (pendente lite as it is called), and, thirdly, after decree, differ in point of rate. All the same these two heads are included in the Plaintiff's entire claim. Then comes head (e). In it the Court calculates beforehand, instead of leaving for subsequent account, the amounts which the mortgagor must pay on 20th July in order to redeem his property and avoid a sale. If he does not pay, the further part of the decree head (f) is to be executed. But there is nothing to say that if the mortgagee is kept out of his money beyond 20th July he is not to have interest upon it; nor any intimation that the Court considered the relief given by the first four heads to be restricted by head (e). As then there is no inconsistency, the duty of the executing Court is, as the High Court rightly points out, to carry the orders of the decree into effect, as being conclusive between the parties whether it may or may not be disputable in point of law.

Apart from the question whether the Court could lawfully give interest to the day of payment, the only difficulty of construction suggested by the learned Judges is the omission of words equivalent to "with future interest to the day of payment." But it is not clear what difficulty this omission creates, nor at what point those words should be expected to come in. They could not come into head (e) because that relates only to the period terminated by the 20th July. Head (f) does not specify any particulars but uses the term "decretal amount." It is true that the term is used rather loosely, and has to be applied to subsequent changes of event. On its first appearance it does mean the sums specified under head (e) because it is then referring to the 20th July, the critical moment which is to determine whether there shall be redemption or sale. On its subsequent appearances the Court might with propriety have used the words the omission of which has struck the High Court as strange. But there is no inconsistency or indeed difficulty in supposing that the term "decretal amount" means the amount due whenever the decree is speaking or being called into action under heads (a) (b) (d). It is far more difficult to suppose that the Court though contemplating a sale, and more than one sale, with the inevitable delays, before the debt could be got in, should at each successive time have considered the "decretal amount" to be the amount required on 20th July in order to avoid any sale at all.

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEI.

This view of the decree is sufficient to decide the present appeal. But a question of such great and general importance has been raised by the judgment of the High Court that their Lordships cannot with due regard to public convenience avoid passing an opinion on it. If the effect of the Transfer Act be as alleged, it works a startling abridgment of the remedies of mortgagees as previously understood. So far as appears from reported cases, or from anything known to the counsel who argued this appeal, it was a new discovery in the year 1896 when the case of Amolak Ram (1) was decided, and when the execution now under discussion was applied for. It is, therefore, not surprising that other Courts should have felt difficulty in following the Allahabad decision.

Mr. Mayne rather flatly refused to argue his case on the ground that the decree of 1886 would be illegal if construed in favour of the Plaintiff's view. But the authorities cited by Mr. Ross show strong judicial reasons against taking such a ground. To the report of Achalabala Bose v. Surendra Nath Dey (2) there is appended a note by the Registrar of the High Court of Calcutta setting forth the rules of that Court and the practice under them, and the effect which the principle of the Allahabad decision would produce on the prevailing views of mortgagee's rights. When the last-named case came to be decided, which was in July 1897, the Calcutta High Court pointed out not only a departure from received practice in the Allahabad view of sec. 88 of the Transfer Act, but its inconsistency with sec. 97 of that Act and with the form of suit sanctioned by No. 109 in the 4th schedule of the Procedure Code of 1882. And on this more extended view of the law they decided that the prevailing practice is a lawful practice, and that sec. 88 should be construed so as not to interfere with it. The same question came before the High Court of Madras in the case of Subbaraya v. Ponnusami (3) when that Court expressed dissent from the Allahabad decision.

In the recent case of Bakar Sajjad Ali v. Udit Narain Singh (4) the High Court of Allahabad itself overruled the decision in Amolak Ram's case. Perhaps they rested undue weight on a decision of this Board. It is true that in the case of Rameswar Koer v. Syed Mahomed Mehdi Hossein Khan and others (5), decided in July 1898, this Board upheld the High Court of Calcutta in awarding interest subsequent to the date fixed for payment by the mortgagor, which would have been wrong if the decision in Amolak Ram had been right. But that point was not raised, and probably never was thought of by anybody until Amolak Ram's case came to be known, so that the decision of this Board is rather a proof of the prevalence of doctrines contrary to the principle of Amolak Ram than a conscious pronouncement against it. Nevertheless the Allahabad Judges in giving their decision add a reason of their own for overruling

(3) I. L. R. 21 Mad. 864 (1897).

(4) I. L. R. 21 All. 361 (1899).

(5) 2 C. W. N. 683: a. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 43 (1898).

(1) I. L. R. 19 All. 174 (1896).

(2) 1 C. W. N. 550: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 766 (1897).

MAHARAJAH OF BHARATPUR v. KANNO DEI.

Amolak Ram, which seems to their Lordships of importance, to the effect that the object of fixing a day for payment by the mortgagor is for the purpose of assigning a definite time at which the mortgagor's right of redemption is to cease, and the mortgagee's right to foreclose or sell is to attach, and not for the purpose of staying the payment of interest.

It must be admitted that the language of sec. 88 is calculated to cause difficulty, and a sort of difficulty which is a common cause of conflict in judicial interpretations of new statutes. It looks as if the draftsman of the Transfer of Property Act had overlooked the difference between a foreclosure and a sale, and had forgotten that in the former case interest stops because the mortgagee gets the property in lieu of his debt, whereas a sale must be subject to some substantial delay, and in many cases is subject to long delays. However that may be, there is the difficulty, and if sec. 88 could be looked at as an isolated enactment quite detached from other legal considerations, it would be hard to construe it otherwise than was done by the Allahabad Court in the case of Amolak Ram. But considering the universality of the long established practice, its continuance for years after the Transfer of Property Act was passed, the manifest justice of it, the lack of any apparent reason for upsetting it, the conformity with it of sec. 97 which is in pari materia with sec. 88, the presumption that sec. 88 was framed with reference not to the running of interest but to the determination of the time for redemption or sale alternatively, and the form of suit sanctioned by the Procedure Code, their Lordships have no hesitation in expressing their concurrence with the Courts of Calcutta and Madras, and with the ultimate decision of the Court of Allahabad.

Their Lordships are of opinion that the order appealed from and that of the Subordinate Judge should be discharged, and that the case should be remitted to the Subordinate Judge for execution of the original decree with a declaration that, according to the proper construction of that decree, the Plaintiff is entitled to interest at 8 annas per cent. up to the date of payment. The Plaintiff should have his costs in both Courts. Their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty to pass an order accordingly, and the Respondent must pay the costs of this appeal.

Messrs. Barrow Rogers & Nevill, Solicitors for the Appellant.

Messrs. Ranken Ford & Co., Solicitors for the Respondent.

Appeal allowed with costs.

C. W. A.

[CIVIL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

RULE No. 750 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.	}	SUJAN BIBI, Decree-
BRETT, J.		holder, Petitioner,
1900.		v.
18, April.		SAGAR MANDAL.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 342—Imprisonment for debt—Period of imprisonment—Jurisdiction.

The Court cannot fix any term of imprisonment for a debt under sec. 342, Civil Procedure Code, when committing a debtor to jail.

SUBUDHI v. SINGI (1) followed.

(1) I. L. R. 13 Mad. 141 (1889).

SUJAN BIBI v. SAGAR MANDAL.

This was a rule issued on the 26th of March 1900, against the orders of the Munsif, 2nd Court, Maldah, dated respectively the 17th and 19th March 1900

The facts of the case are as follows:—

The decree-holder on the 29th of January 1900 obtained a decree for the sum of Rs. 800-7-3 against the judgment-debtor and applied for execution of the decree in the Court of the 2nd Munsif at Maldah by the arrest and imprisonment of the judgment-debtor. On the 17th March 1900 the judgment-debtor was brought before the Court under arrest and on his not notifying an intention to apply to be declared an insolvent, he was ordered on the said day to be placed in the Civil jail for one month only.

On the 19th March 1900 the decree-holder applied to the Court to enhance the term of imprisonment to six months but the learned Munsif rejected the said application. Thereupon the present rule was obtained.

Babu Joy Gopal Ghosh for the Applicant.

No one for the Opposite Party.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This rule was issued calling upon the judgment-debtor to show cause why the orders of the Munsif, dated respectively the 17th and 19th March 1900, should not be set aside or such other order passed as to this Court may seem fit.

The circumstances under which the rule was obtained are as follows:—The decree-holder who is the Petitioner before us applied for execution of his decree against the judgment-debtor, and upon his being brought up, the Court directed that he be committed to jail for one month only. On the 19th the decree-holder applied to the Munsif to enhance the term of imprisonment to six months; and the Munsif recorded this order:—

“Decree-holder's application to enhance the term of imprisonment to six months is rejected. I think under the law the Court has discretion to fix the term of imprisonment so as not to exceed “six months which is only the maximum fixed by law.”

The application of the decree holder was undoubtedly wrong, namely, to enhance the term of imprisonment to six months. But it is also clear that the Munsif was wrong, when committing the judgment-debtor to prison, in fixing any period during which he should remain in jail. No cause has been shown by the judgment-debtor upon whom service of the rule has been proved. We find that the same question came before the Madras High Court in the case of Subudhi v. Singi (1), and we agree with the view taken there, that the Court has no authority to fix any term of imprisonment when committing a debtor to jail.

We accordingly direct that the words “for one month only” in the order of commitment be struck out, and that the record be returned to the lower Court.

Order amended.

S. C. S.

(1) I. L. R. 13 Mad. 141 (1889).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1284 of 1898.

RAMPINI, J.	}	SRI NARAIN CHOWDHRY,
PRATF, J.		Plaintiff, Appellant,
1900.		v.
3, April.		JODOO NATH CHOWDHRY,
		Defendant, Respondent.

Right of privacy—Suit to prevent opening of windows—Usage, proof of.

In a suit for closing the window on the wall of the Defendant and for the issue of a permanent injunction restraining the Defendant from opening any windows in future in that wall, on the ground that the privacy of the Plaintiff had been interfered with, it was proved that it had not been usual for windows to be opened out in any one house in the village so as to overlook the female apartments of another but not that the villagers had been in the habit of preventing their co-villagers from opening windows in such a manner :

Held—That the usage as to the right of privacy was not proved.

That the fact that the Defendant's wall had been standing there over 50 years and during this period no window had been opened was not sufficient to give the Plaintiff a prescriptive right to prevent the Defendant opening a window in that wall.

This was an appeal preferred on the 29th of June 1898, against the decree of J. Windsor, Esq., Officiating Judge of Zillah Burdwan, dated the 4th of April 1898, reversing the decree of Babu Promotho Nath Chatterji, Munsif, 3rd Court of Burdwan, dated the 11th of March 1897.

Plaintiff and Defendant are distant cousins and owner of adjoining houses.

Defendant opened a window in a wall of his baitakhana overlooking the female apartment of the Plaintiff and it was alleged that the Defendant intended to open several other similar windows in the same wall. Plaintiff sued for having the window already opened to be closed and preventing the Defendant from opening any other window. It was admitted that one Gauri Charan Chowdhury was the common ancestor of both parties and that the site of the dwelling-houses of both parties belonged to Gauri Charan and after his death it was divided, one portion falling to the share of Plaintiff's immediate ancestor and another to that of Defendant's ancestor. It was also an admitted fact that no window or any other opening of any sort existed in the wall in question. The first Court was of opinion that on the opening of windows in that wall the privacy of the female members of Plaintiff's family, who were purdanashin ladies, would be seriously interfered with. The learned Munsif found that a local usage existed under which one could not open a window in any part of his male apartment so as to interfere with the privacy of the female apartment of the owner of the adjoining house. From the fact that the original house was partitioned into two shares in such a manner that the male apartment of one co-sharer holder adjoined the female apartment of another, the Munsif made a presumption to the effect that there was an undertaking on the part of the former not to open any windows overlooking the female apartment of the other. It was also found that the Plaintiff had enjoyed non-interference with the privacy of his female apartment for over 50 years ; the first Court therefore held that the Plaintiff acquired the right of easement he claimed and that a previous grant might be presumed. The Plaintiff's suit was accordingly decreed. Defendant preferred an appeal to the lower Appellate Court. In the opinion of the District Judge the Plaintiff had not proved any grant or special permission. He, after reviewing certain cases, decreed the appeal in the following words:—

SRI NARAIN CHOWDHRY v. JODOO NATH CHOWDHRY.

I cannot hold that the fact that the building has stood for many years without windows in this wall can give Plaintiff any cause of action, such as would arise, were the right to privacy an inherent right like the right to ancient lights and air. Express local usage then is the sole ground on which this suit can rest. Now there is some evidence that in the village in which the parties reside and in a few neighbouring villages certain persons were prevented from opening doors and windows which would have interfered with the privacy of others; and that it is the custom in these villages for privacy not to be interfered with in the way in which the Defendant has interfered with the Plaintiff's privacy. But having regard to the fact that there is not a single reported case in Bengal of such a local usage being proved since 1865; and having regard to the provisional manner in which the learned Judges Markby and Glover [Abdur Rahim v. Birju Sahu (2) and Sheikh Gulum Ali v. Kazi Mahomed Zuhur Alum (3)] expressed themselves respecting the supposed right of privacy even were express local usage proved, I cannot hold that the Plaintiff in this case has discharged the burden of proof placed upon him. The mere fact that it is not the custom of the village for windows to be opened overlooking another's zenana, cannot in my opinion give Plaintiff a right to prevent the Defendant from opening windows in his wall as he may think fit. The obvious remedy was noticed by the learned Judges of the Calcutta High Court in the cases referred to by me. The Plaintiff may put up any screen or wall on his property to protect himself from annoyance. Following therefore the rulings of the Honourable Calcutta High Court, I am bound to come to the conclusion that the lower Court was wrong in finding that the Plaintiff had any right of privacy acquired by express local usage or otherwise. I decree the appeal with costs of both Courts.

Plaintiff preferred this second appeal.

Babu Umakali Mukherjee for the Appellant.

Babu Nalini Ranjan Chatterjee for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal against a decision of the Officiating District Judge of Burdwan, dated the 4th April 1898.

The suit is one in which the Plaintiff seeks to prevent the Defendant from opening a window in his house, which would overlook the Plaintiff's female apartments and so disturb his right of privacy. The Plaintiff maintains that he has acquired this right by prescription, by local custom and by express grant. The Defendant traversed these allegations; and the suit was decreed by the Munsif, who held that the Plaintiff had established the right set up by him by local custom as well as by prescription relying, it would seem to us, very much on the case of Gopal Prasad v. Rudho (1).

The Defendant then appealed to the District Judge; and the District Judge reversed the Munsif's decision.

The Plaintiff now appeals to this Court. The learned District Judge has held that the Plaintiff has not proved any grant or special permission in his favour, entitling him to prevent the Defendant from opening a window in the wall of his house. He does not deal with the Plaintiff's claim to this right by prescription; but he finds that the Plaintiff has not established such a right by local usage.

(2) 5 B. L. R. 376 (1870).

(3) 6 B. L. R. App. 76 (1871).

(1) I. L. R. 10 All. 353 (1883).

SRI NARAIN CHOWDERY v. JODOO NATH CHOWDERY.

The learned pleader for the Appellant in this Court urges, first, that the learned Judge, in coming to this finding that the Plaintiff has not established the right claimed by him by local usage, has done so on wrong grounds; and, secondly, he has urged (although, perhaps not very strongly) that the Judge should have held that the Plaintiff has acquired the right to the privacy of his female apartments by prescription.

We think, however, that the decision of the learned Judge is right. He begins by reviewing the cases on the subject, both in the Allahabad High Court and in this Court, and he points out that there is a great difference between the law on the subject of privacy, as prevailing in the North-Western Provinces and as prevailing in this province. According to the rulings of this Court, there is in Bengal no inherent right to privacy and it has been laid down in several cases that such a right can arise in this province, if it can arise at all, only by express local usage, by grant, or by special permission. Now, as has been said before, the Judge has clearly and expressly found that the Plaintiff has not proved any grant or special permission, and the pleader for the Appellant does not attempt to impugn this finding. He, however, attacks the finding of the Judge that the Plaintiff has not been able to establish the local usage which he sets up so as to entitle him to prevent the Defendant from opening a window in his wall. And he does so on two grounds, first, the Judge states that he cannot believe the evidence adduced by the Plaintiff on this point, having regard to the fact that there is not a single reported case in Bengal since 1865 of such a local usage being proved; and, secondly, because the Judge says:—"The mere fact that it is not the custom of the village for windows to be opened overlooking another's zenana cannot, in my opinion, give the Plaintiff the right to prevent the Defendant from opening windows in his wall as he may think fit."

We are of opinion, that when the learned Judge adverted to the fact that there is not a single reported case in Bengal since 1865 of such a local usage being proved he merely meant to say that in consideration of this circumstance it would require strong proof of such custom to satisfy him that such local usage could exist, or did exist in the village in question. And with regard to the passage from his judgment which has been cited above, we think what he means to say is, that the mere fact that it is not the custom in the village for windows to be opened overlooking another's zenana cannot, in his opinion, vest in the Plaintiff the right of preventing the Defendant from opening a window in his wall. From this we understand, that the evidence adduced by the Plaintiff is merely that it has not been usual for windows to be opened out in the village so as to overlook the female apartments of any hut but that the evidence does not go so far as to show that the villagers have been in the habit of preventing their co-villagers from opening windows in such a manner. Such in our opinion being the views of the District Judge, we are unable to see that there is any thing incorrect in them or that he has come to the conclusion at which he has arrived by a wrong method.

SRI NARAIN CHOWDHRY v. JODOO NATH CHOWDHRY.

We may deal very shortly with the Plaintiff's claim to the right by prescription, which he certainly set up in the Court of first instance, but which does not seem to have been pressed before the District Judge. In the first place, such a right admittedly cannot be claimed under sec. 26 of the Limitation Act. It further appears to us to be clear that in the circumstances of the case it could not be established by the Plaintiff. What the Plaintiff says is that the Defendant's wall has been standing there over 50 years and during this period no window has been opened in it. But that would not be sufficient to give the Plaintiff a prescriptive right to prevent the Defendant opening a window in that wall. Had the Plaintiff been able to establish (which he does not pretend to be able to do) that for a long period, sufficient to establish a right by prescription, he has been exercising the right of preventing the Defendant from opening such a window, that might establish a prescriptive right, such as he claims. But that is not the case here. He does not set up such a right or pretend to be able to establish it by evidence.

Under these circumstances, we see no grounds for interfering with the decision of the lower Appellate Court and we dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 119 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.

HILL, J.

1900.

5, December.

SHEIK JAFAR, Judgment-debtor, Appellant,

v.

KAMALINI DEBI, Decree-holder, Respondent.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 223, 649—Bengal, N.-W. P. and Assam Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), secs. 18, 17—Execution of decree—Jurisdiction, transfer of, of Court—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sec. 14.

An execution of a decree of the Court of the Munsif of Nawabgunge having been taken out in the Court of the Munsif of Maldah by reason of transfer of the local jurisdiction of the former by the Local Government under Act XII of 1887, a sum of money was paid in part satisfaction. A second application was objected to on the ground that the Maldah Court had no jurisdiction. A fresh application with a certificate transferring the decree from the Nawabgunge Court was resisted on the ground of limitation :

Held—That the Nawabgunge Court did not cease to have jurisdiction but that the decree could also be executed by the Maldah Court.

LUTCHMAN PANDEH v. MADDAN MOHUN SHYE (2) referred to.

KALIPADO MUKERJEE v. DENO NATH MUKERJEE (1) distinguished.

Held further—That proceedings to enforce a decree taken bonâ fide before a Court which the party bonâ fide believes to have jurisdiction is a proceeding within

(1) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 315 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 6 Cal. 513 (1880).

SHEIK JAFAR v. KAMALINI DEBI.

the meaning of sec. 14 of the Limitation Act.

HIRA LAL v. RADRI DAS (3) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 6th of April 1900, against an order of Alfred F. Steinberg, Esq., District Judge of Rajshahye, dated the 15th of December 1899, affirming an order of Babu Jadab Chunder Bhattacharjee, Munsif, 2nd Court, at Maldah, dated the 3rd of July 1899.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Kali Kishen Sen for the Appellant.

Babus Karuna Sindhu Mukerjee and Surendra Nath Ghoshal for the Respondent.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The decree sought to be executed in this case was made by the Court of the Munsif of Nawabgunge, but the local jurisdiction in respect of the subject-matter of the suit appears to have been subsequently transferred, by order of the Local Government, to the Court of the Munsif of Maldah. Nevertheless the decree-holder took out execution of his decree, within the time fixed by the law of limitation, in the Maldah Court, and in the course of execution, a sum of money was paid towards liquidation of that decree. A second application for execution was made in February 1899 in the same Court, but the decree-holder was referred to the Nawabgunge Court, as being the Court which had passed the decree and which was alone competent to execute it in order that an application might be made for the transfer of the decree for execution by the Munsif of Maldah. When an application for execution was made to the Munsif of Maldah, on a certificate transferring the decree to him, the judgment-debtor pleaded limitation. The Munsif overruled that plea and gave the decree-holder the benefit of cl. 3 of sec. 14 of the Limitation Act, holding that he was entitled to a deduction of the time during which the application erroneously made to the Munsif of Maldah had been pending as he held that such proceedings had been taken in good faith. The District Judge, on appeal, expressed a contrary opinion, holding that ignorance of the law on the part of the decree-holder would not constitute good faith. The District Judge, however, on other grounds affirmed the order of the Munsif, holding that the proceedings erroneously taken in the Maldah Court were not absolutely void, but voidable, and that the judgment-debtor having condoned the error committed by the decree-holder and having accepted the jurisdiction by making part payment of the decree, the proceedings were saved under sec. 14 of the Limitation Act.

The first question raised before us in this appeal is, what Court was competent to execute this decree and it is contended that the Court of the Munsif of Nawabgunge was alone competent to execute it being the Court which passed it within the terms of sec. 223 of the Code of Civil Procedure; and it was also contended that although the Munsif of Maldah might now alone have jurisdiction to try the suit by reason of the transfer to his jurisdiction of the locality in which the subject-matter of the suit is situated, he would not be the Court to have jurisdiction to execute the decree passed by the Munsif of Nawabgunge. As authority for this we have been referred to the case of Kalipado Mukerjee v. Deno Nath Mukerjee (1). That case, however, is distinguishable from the present for it was held there that the District Judge's order under cl. 2 of sec. 13 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act did not amount to a transfer of jurisdiction but was merely an order for the distribution of business amongst two Courts each having jurisdiction. In the present case, however, the order of transfer was of a different character. It was an order by the Local Government which adjusted the boundaries of two adjoining monzahs, so as to place the lands, the subject-matter of the suit within the jurisdiction of the Munsif of Maldah. There was therefore no mere redistribution of business, as in the case of Kalipado Mukerjee v. Deno Nath Mukerjee (1), but a removal of jurisdiction over this locality. The case of Lutchman Pandeh v. Maddan Mohun Shye (2) seems to us more appropriate in dealing with the terms of sec. 649 of the Code of Civil Procedure. It was there held that the terms of that law were permissive, and that, applying that judgment to the facts of the present case, the Munsif of Nawabgunge did not cease to have jurisdiction in the matter of the execution of the decree, but that the decree might also be executed by the Munsif of Maldah. This interpretation seems to us to be in accordance with sec. 17 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act, we think, therefore, that the proceedings in the Court of the Munsif of Maldah were not without jurisdiction so as to have the effect of barring the present application as not made within the period of limitation.

(3) I. L. R. 2 All. 792 : s. c. L. R. 7 I. A. 167 (1880).

SHEIK JAFAR v. KAMALINI DEBI.

We are also of opinion that the grounds upon which the District Judge has held that the time occupied in the proceedings taken by the decree-holder in the Maldah Court should not be excluded are unsound. He has held that ignorance of law, that is to say, ignorance on the part of the decree-holder to know that his application for execution could only be made in the Court of Nawabgunge in which the decree was passed, and that the Maldah Court had no jurisdiction to execute that decree, prevented his pleading good faith within the terms of sec. 14 of the Limitation Act. The case of Hira Lal v. Badri Das (3) is an authority to the contrary. It was there held that proceedings taken erroneously in a Court which had no jurisdiction but which was believed by the decree-holder to have jurisdiction were bona fide. Their Lordships of the Privy Council pointed out in that case that the Judge himself believed he had jurisdiction and acted accordingly, so also in the present case.

The appeal is therefore dismissed with costs, two gold mohurs.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

C. C. G.

(3) I. L. R. 2 All. 792: s. c. L. R. 7 I. A. 167 (1880).

(1) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 315 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 513 (1880).

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE ALLAHABAD
HIGH COURT.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.

LORD DAVEY.

LORD ROBERTSON.

SIR R. COUCH.

1900.

8, December.

RAJ. RADHA KISSEN,

Plaintiff, Appellant,

v.

THE COLLECTOR OF

JAUNPORE, Defendant, Respondent.

*Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882),
sec. 108, 562, 594, 595 (a)—Ex parte decree —Appeal from order refusing application under sec. 108, Civ. P. C.—Remand under sec. 562, Civ. P. C., appeal from order of—Sec. 562, Civ. P. C., what can be remanded under—Final order—Interlocutory order.*

*In an appeal from an order refusing to set aside a decree under sec. 108, Civ.
P. C., on the ground that that section did not apply, the only case which can be remanded by the appeal Court, to be tried on its merits, is the application under sec. 108, and not the original case, the decree in which is sought to be set aside.*

Such order of remand is merely an interlocutory order relating to procedure and no appeal lies therefrom.

The mere fact that the High Court have certified the sufficiency of the amount and the value of the suit for an appeal to the Privy Council, cannot make appeal-able an order which does not fulfil the statutory conditions.

This was an appeal from a judgment of the Allahabad High Court, dated the 23rd December 1897.

The questions raised in this appeal were whether the decree complained of was an ex parte decree or not and whether an appeal to Her Majesty in Council lay in this case.

The High Court of Allahabad had reversed the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Benares and the appeal came on under the usual certificate granted by the High Court that the case was a fit one for appeal under sec. 596, C. P. C.

The suit was brought for the recovery of a sum of Rs. 65,426 principal and interest due on two hypothecation bonds, dated 17th and 30th June 1890, executed by Raja Harihur Dut Dube of whom the Defendant in this suit Shankar Dut Dube was the legal representative. On the death of the latter, the Collector of Jaunpore was substituted as a Defendant in his place.

The first Court decreed the claim on the 19th March 1896. Subsequently on the 9th April 1896 Shankar Dut Dube applied to the same Court to set aside the decree as having been passed ex parte under the provisions of sec. 108, C. P. C.
On the 8th October 1896 the Sub-Judge disallowed the application, but on the Defendant's appeal the High Court (Chief Justice Edge and Mr. Justice Blair) set aside the order of the Sub-Judge and remanded the case to that Court under sec.
562, C. P. C.

The amended plaint had been filed on the 8th January 1895, written statements of the various Defendants, including Shankar Dut Dube, were placed on the record on the 17th May 1895, and with regard to what had followed the Sub-Judge stated as under:—

"The 19th March 1896, on which the decree in question was passed, was fixed to the knowledge of the pleaders for both parties, for the purpose of the production of evidence on the issues framed.
These issues had been framed with reference to the plaint and the written statement filed on Defendant's behalf on the 17th May 1895 and 19th March 1896; but the case was postponed before

RAI RADHA KISSEN v. THE COLLECTOR OF JAUNPORE.

19th March from time to time, either by reason of the application of Defendant's pleader praying for the postponement on account of his being busy elsewhere, or by reason of the record of the suit not having come back from Jaunpore, where it had been sent on requisition. The postponement took place on the 31st January 1896, on which an order was passed that the case should come on for decision on the 19th March 1896, and that the parties with their witnesses should appear on that date; due notice thereof was admittedly given to pleaders. That day having arrived the pleader for the applicant stated that he could not conduct the case and he had received no instructions from his client. Thereupon the Court proceeded to try the case, and tried and decided the issues on the evidence adduced on Plaintiff's behalf and decreed the suit against the applicant. Now, taking these circumstances into consideration, and also the fact that applicant's pleader as well as that of the Plaintiff had in the beginning applied for time to enable him to produce precedents, I hold that the Defendant's pleader, who refused to conduct the case on the 19th March 1896, was not without instructions; and that his appearance in Court, therefore, was an appearance of his client (the applicant). . . . I may also remark that notice to a pleader of the date fixed is as good as a notice to his client in person. Hence the decree was not ex parte, and no application lies under sec. 108, Civil Procedure Code."

The judgment of the High Court reversing the decision of the Sub-Judge and remanding the case is as follows:—

"It appears to us that the decision of this Court in Bhagwan Dai v. Hira (1) and of the High Court at Calcutta in Jonar-dan Dubey v. Ramdhone Singh (2) are authorities in favour of the contention of the Appellant that an application lay in this case under sec. 108 of Act No. XIV of 1882. On the other hand, we have been pressed by the learned counsel for the Plaintiff decree-holder with the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Sahibzada Zain-ul-abdin Khan v. Sahibzada Ahmad Raza Khan (3). The procedure which the Subordinate Judge must in our opinion have adopted was that under sec. 157 of Act XIV of 1882. That section makes applicable, so far as may be, to cases coming within the section, the procedure of Chapter VII of the Code. Sec. 157 apparently relates to a later period in the litigation than the sections which are to be found in Chapter VII, but there is no difficulty in ascertaining the rule to be followed in cases under sec. 157 by reference to Chapter VII. It has been contended for the Plaintiff decree-holder that the effect of the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Sahibzada Zain-ul-abdin Khan v. Sahibzada Ahmad Raza Khan (3) is, that there can be no decree which can be called a decree ex parte against a Defendant who has, at any time and on any occasion before the decree is made, put in an appearance in the suit, although at the hearing he may have been absent and unrepresented, or may have been present merely by a pleader who had no instructions. In our opinion the

(1) I. L. R. 19 All. 855 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 738 (1896).

(3) L. R. 5 I. A. 228; s. c. I. L. R. 2 All. 67 (1875).

RAI BODHA KISSEN v. THE COLLECTOR OF JAUNPORE.

decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council merely referred to the opening paragraph of sec. 119 of Act No. VIII of 1859. That section itself shows quite clearly that there can be ex parte decrees against Defendants, whether or not they have put in appearances in the suit. The prohibition of an appeal in the earlier part of sec. 119 is limited, to apply the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council, to a case in which the Defendant had not put in any appearance at all. In our opinion the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council has no bearing on the case before us here."

Mr. Uppjohn, Q. C., and Mr. Ross for the Appellant.

Mr. Phillips for the Respondent.

LORD HOBHOUSE.—Is there nothing in the record to show whether Defendant's pleader informed him?

Mr. Uppjohn.—No.

LORD DAVEY.—It all depends on that fact.

SIR R. GOUCH.—It may be he was present without proper authority.

Mr. Uppjohn contended that the decree of the 19th March 1896 was not an ex parte decree within the meaning of sec. 108, C. P. C. Moreover if it was, the High Court was wrong in remanding the case. The Defendant had not complied with the terms of that section, he had to satisfy the Sub Judge that he was prevented from sufficient cause from appearing, &c.

LORD HOBHOUSE.—That appears to be so, the application should have been remanded for the Sub-Judge to find on evidence whether Defendant had satisfied the terms of that section.

After hearing Mr. Phillips for the Respondent their Lordships called on Mr. Ross to show the appealable nature of the order, and whether the decree of the High Court under appeal was a final one.

Mr. Ross referred to among others secs. 594, 588, 566 of the Civil Procedure Code and to Syed Muzhar Husein v. Bodha Bibi (4).

THEIR LORDSHIPS JUDGMENT was Delivered by

LORD ROBERTSON.—To this appeal from the High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces, Allahabad, it is objected by the Respondent that no appeal to Her Majesty in Council lies against the order complained of. For the due understanding of the question thus raised it is necessary briefly to trace the procedure in the suit.

The suit was brought on 10th March 1892, before the Subordinate Judge of Benares, for the recovery of money alleged to be due under two bonds, executed by a person of whom the Defendant Shankar Dat Dube was the legal representative. That Defendant is now deceased and is represented by the Respondent. He appeared in the suit and on 17th May 1895 filed a written statement with a list of documents. Into the nature of the questions raised by the plaint and the written statement it is unnecessary to enter, as the questions before their Lordships arise solely out of the part taken by the Defendant at a certain stage of the procedure. It is sufficient to note that the issues settled between the Appellant and Shankar Dat Dube were:—1. Has the plaint been amended according to law? 2. Is Defendant No. 1 (Shankar Dat Dube) the heir of Raja Harihar Dat? 3. Is the deed of mortgage legally valid? Could Harihar Dat duly legally hypothecate the property? 4. Is the deed of mortgage genuine? A fifth issue was settled, but it did not affect Shankar Dat Dube but only certain other Defendants.

RAI RADHA KISSEN v. THE COLLECTOR OF JAUNPORE.

Prior to 19th March 1896 the case had repeatedly been before the Court but had from time to time been postponed; and on 31st January 1896 an order was passed that the case should come on for decision on 19th March 1896. On each of these occasions the Defendant Shankar Dat Dube was represented by a pleader. * On 19th March 1896 it is recorded by the presiding Judge that "Defendant No. 1 is to-day absent. No one appears for him. His pleader informs the Court that he has no instructions to proceed with the case." The Court proceeded, as in absence, heard evidence for the Plaintiff and decided the issues, giving decree for the claim with costs.

On the 9th April 1896, Shankar Dat Dube applied to the Court under sec. 108 of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside this decree on the ground that neither the Defendant-Applicant nor his general attorney had notice of the date fixed and that for this reason he could not conduct the suit. The Appellant filed a reply denying that the 108th section applied and asserting that the Defendant had notice. The application came before a different Judge from Nil Madhab Roy, who had presided on 19th March 1896. The new Judge, notwithstanding that his predecessor had recorded that the Defendant in question was absent, that no one appeared for him and that his pleader informed the Court that he had no instruction to proceed with the case, forthwith disallowed the application with costs. No opportunity was given to the applicant to satisfy the Court in terms of sec. 108, that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the theory of the decision being that the applicant had in fact appeared and that the decree was therefore not ex parte.

Against this order an appeal was taken to the High Court at Allahabad, who allowed the appeal and pronounced the order now appealed against. The terms of the order are as follows:—"It is ordered that this appeal be allowed; that the order of the Subordinate Judge of Benares be set aside; and that the case be and it hereby is remanded under sec. 562 of the Code of Civil Procedure to the Court of the said Subordinate Judge to be disposed of on the merits."

The Appellant represents that by this order the High Court have set aside the decree of 19th March 1896 and have remanded the original suit to be disposed of on the merits. The Respondent disclaims for the order any such sweeping effect and hold that what is remanded is merely the application immediately before the Court, to wit the application to set aside the decree, and that it is this application which the Subordinate Judge will, under the remand proceed to dispose of, by allowing the Respondent to endeavour to satisfy him of the conditions specified in sec. 108 and then if this be done by setting aside the decree.

Their Lordships are clearly of opinion

RAI RADHA KISHEN v. THE COLLECTOR OF JAUNPORE.

that the Respondent's is the just construction of the order of the High Court. The application by the Respondent to set aside the decree might be described as "the case," with at least as much accuracy as the original suit in which there was a standing decree; and unless and until that decree had been set aside, there was no means of remanding that suit. The form of the Records is inconsistent with the Appellant's view. The judgment of the High Court (p. 20) is headed "Case 2 of 1897. First appeal from the order of the Subordinate Judge of Benares, dated 8th October 1896," which is the dismissal of the petition under sec. 108 (p. 18). And the decree (p. 22) is headed in similar fashion. That then was the "Case" with which the High Court was dealing. But further, if there be any ambiguity, it is to be presumed that that was done which the law required; and it is allowed by both parties and is clear to their Lordships that, assuming the 108th section to apply at all, the proper course was to remand the application to the Subordinate Judge to dispose of that application with due regard to the conditions of the section. There is, however, a further consideration which is conclusive as to the true intendment of the order, for the learned Judges in their written judgment point out as the error of the Subordinate Judge that he had disposed of the case without considering whether the Defendant was prevented by sufficient cause from appearing and maintaining his defence at the hearing on the 19th of March 1896. Their Lordships would require very clear language in the order which was intended to effectuate this opinion to induce them to construe it in a sense which would stultify the Court pronouncing it.

Their Lordships having thus ascertained the true meaning of the order appealed against, the question is whether an appeal lies to Her Majesty in Council, and this depends on whether the order is a final order in the sense of sec. 595 (a) as modified by sec. 594 of the Civil Procedure Code. The mere fact that the High Court, apparently on the assumption that it was such an order, have certified the sufficiency of the amount and value of the suit cannot make appealable an order which does not fulfil the statutory conditions. Now it does not in their Lordships' judgment admit of doubt that assuming the order to have the meaning which they ascribe to it, it is in no sense of the term a final order. It is a purely interlocutory order, directing procedure. Accordingly their duty is to advise Her Majesty to dismiss the appeal. Precluded as they would therefore be from proceeding to examine the merits of the order, their Lordships do not regret that in the course of ascertaining its true construction they have necessarily had to consider the law applicable to the case and to pronounce that no other order would have been appropriate save that which they find to have been made. The Appellant must pay the costs of the appeal.

Solicitors: Messrs. Barrow, Rogers & Nevill for the Appellant.

Solicitors: Solicitor India Office for the Respondent.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

C. W. A.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1999 of 1898.

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	KAILASH CHANDRA NEOGI,
BANERJEE, J.		Plaintiff, Appellant,
1900.		v.
25, April.		HARISH CHANDRA BISWAS
		and others,
		Defendants, Respondents.

Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 92—Oral evidence to contradict the recital in a deed.

When one of the parties to a deed is, under any of the provisions of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act, permitted to go into oral evidence, it is open to the other party also to rebut that evidence by oral evidence.

Where a deed recited the payment of a certain consideration and the Plaintiff denied the passing of any consideration and adduced evidence in support of his contention under the provisions of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act, it is open to the Defendants to go into oral evidence to show that there was some consideration for the deed though not the same as recited in the deed.

LALA HIMMAT SAHAI SINGH v. LEWHELLEN (1), HUKUM CHAND v. HIRALAL (2) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 4th of October 1898, against the decree of Babu Mohim Chandra Ghosh, Subordinate Judge, 3rd Court of Zillah Hughly, dated the 2nd of September 1898, reversing the decree of Babu Khagendra Nath Bose, Munsif, 2nd Court at Serampore, in that district, dated the 23rd of March.

This was a suit to set aside a deed on the ground that it was an illegal sale, that no consideration passed, and that the deed was executed without the grantor being told "what was going about" and that in fact the sale was not genuine. The third issue raised was, "whether the deed of sale executed by Madhub Chunder Neogi is void as fraudulent and for want of consideration, or that the same was a bona fide transaction for valuable consideration." The deed recited that Rs. 500 had been paid as purchase money and at the trial the Plaintiff adduced oral evidence to show that that was not the case. Thereupon the Defendants went into oral evidence to show that there was some consideration for the deed. The District Judge found on the evidence that Rs. 500 had not been paid as cash as recited in the deed, but that there was ample consideration for it. The Plaintiff appealed and contended that the lower Court should not have admitted oral evidence to show that there was consideration for the deed and that such admission of evidence contravened the provisions of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act.

Dr. Rash Behary Ghose and Babu Sib Chandra Palit for the Appellant.

Dr. Asutosh Mukherjee (for Babu Sarada Churn Mitter) for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—This is a suit to set aside a kobala, dated the 30th Kartic 1302, on the ground that it was an illegal sale, that no consideration passed, and that the deed was executed without the grantor being told "what was going about," that in the kobala false words were artfully and fraudulently inserted, that at the time of the transaction, Madhub Chandra Neogi, the executant was "quite unable to consider all the

(1) I L. R. 11 Cal. 486 (1885).

(2) I L. R. 3 Bom. 159 (1876).

KAILASH CHANDRA NEOGI v. HARISH CHANDRA BISWAS.

circumstances," that in fact the sale was not genuine, and that it was under these circumstances that the kobala was got registered.

The Defendants generally denied that case; and the third issue was, "whether the deed of sale executed by Madhub Chunder Neogi is void as fraudulent and for want of consideration," or that the same was a bona fide transaction for valuable consideration." It is quite clear, therefore, that what the parties went to trial on was as to whether or not the deed was void as being fraudulent, and whether there was any consideration for the deed. The first Court decided against the deed; the lower Appellate Court upheld the deed and found that it was not fraudulent, and that there was ample consideration for it. This is clear from the terms of the judgment. The point of law sought to be raised on second appeal is that, inasmuch as the Court of Appeal below found that nothing was paid in cash at the time of the execution of the deed, it was wrong in admitting oral evidence to show that there was consideration for the deed and that the admission of that evidence contravened the provisions of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act. I do not think it did. What occurred was this; the Plaintiff challenged the kobala. The Defendants put it in evidence, and when it was put in, the Plaintiff raised the issue that the Defendants who were supporting the deed, did not pay the Rs. 500 which was stated in the deed to be the purchase money, and that consequently, the deed was a voluntary one. The Defendants who were supporting the deed and relying upon it, did not seek to put in any evidence of any oral agreement or statement either to contradict, vary, add to or subtract from the terms of the deed, it was the Plaintiff who wished to show that there was, in point of fact, no consideration for the deed. That, under the first proviso to sec. 92, he was entitled to do; he was entitled to prove the deed was invalidated for want of consideration. But if it were open to him to take this course, it was equally open to the parties relying upon the deed to show, by evidence, seeing what the issue was, that there was valuable consideration for the deed, even if that consideration was not identical with that stated in the deed itself.

This view seems to me to be consistent with the principle laid down in the cases of Lala Himmat Sahai Singh v. Llewellyn (1), and Hukum Chand v. Hiralal (2). The principle of those cases seems to apply though the circumstances no doubt were different.

The second point is of an extremely shadowy nature. It is said that the lower Appellate Court did not try the issue of undue influence. In point of fact, the case of undue influence was never raised as a separate and distinct issue. I have stated what the issues were and I think those issues were fairly tried out. There is no reasonable ground for supposing that the issue of undue influence, as opposed to, and separate from, the other issues was ever intended to be tried by the Court.

The case to my mind, is really one of fact rather than of law; and in my opinion, upon the findings of the Court

(1) I. L. R. 11 Cal. 486 (1885).

(2) I. L. R. 8 Bom. 159 (1876).

KAILASH CHANDRA NEOGI v. HARISH CHANDRA BISWAS.

below, the appeal fails and must be dismissed with costs.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion. I only wish to add one word with reference to the first contention urged on behalf of the Appellant, namely, that the Court of Appeal below was wrong in allowing the Defendants to go into oral evidence relating to the consideration for the deed in contravention of the provisions of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act. I think that when one of the parties to a deed, or his representative in interest, is, under any of the provisos to sec. 92, permitted to go into oral evidence, it must be open to the other party to rebut that evidence by oral evidence; and that is all that the Defendants in this case have been allowed to do. The deed recites the payment of a certain consideration; the Plaintiff denied the passing of any consideration, and adduced evidence in support of his contention under the proviso of sec. 92; and that being the case, it was also open to the Defendants to go into oral evidence to show that there was some consideration for the deed. The view I take is in accordance with that taken in the case of Lala Himmat v. Llerhellen, (1).

Appeal dismissed.

S. C. S.

(1) I. L. R. 11 Cal. 486 (1885).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1881 of 1898.

GHOSH, J.
HARRINGTON, J.
• 1900.
19, June.

DEW NARAIN CHOW-
DHURY and ORS.,
Plaintiffs, Appellants,
v.
C. R. H. WEBB and anr, Defendants,
Respondents.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Sch. III, Art. 3—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 4—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 146.

The limitation as prescribed by Art. 3, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act begins to run from the date of the actual ouster, and if subsequent to the ouster some dispute arises between the parties and an order is passed under sec. 146, Cr. P. C., attaching the land, the limitation which has already begun to run does not cease, and the Plaintiff does not get a fresh start of limitation from the date when the order under sec. 146, Cr. P. C., is made.

Quere.—Whether Art. 47, Sch. II of the Indian Limitation Act applies to an order under sec. 146, Cr. P. C.

This was an appeal preferred on the 8th of September 1898, against the decree of Babu Bhagwan Chandra Chatterjee, Additional Subordinate Judge of Zillah Tirhoot, dated the 11th of August 1898, reversing the decree of Babu Jaya Prosad Pande, Munsif of Samastipore, dated the 17th of December 1897.

This was a suit for declaration of title to and possession of certain land. It appeared upon the evidence that the Plaintiffs had been ousted from the land on the 9th February 1895. Subsequently, there having been some dispute between the Plaintiffs and the Defendants, the Magistrate, on the 31st May 1895, passed an order under sec. 146, Cr. P. C., attaching the land. The Subordinate Judge held that the Plaintiffs were barred by limitation under Art. 3, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

DEW NARAIN CHAUDHURY v. C. R. H. WEBB.

Moulvie Mustafa Khan and Babu Buldeo Narain Singh for the Appellants.

Babu Umakali Mukerjee for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

Two points have been raised before us in this appeal on behalf of the Plaintiff-Appellant, one being that, so far as the plots Nos. 1 and 2, covering an area of 5 cottas of land, are concerned, the Plaintiff is not barred by the limitation prescribed by Art. 3, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act, because there was an order by the Magistrate under the provisions of sec. 146 of the Code of Criminal Procedure attaching the lands in question, and the limitation prescribed by Art. 47 of the Indian Limitation Act for setting aside such an order is three years from the date when the order is made; and the other point raised is that, the Defendant not having raised the plea of limitation, and the Munsif not having raised an issue as to limitation, the Subordinate Judge in appeal ought not to have dismissed the case upon the ground of limitation, without, at any rate, allowing the Plaintiff an opportunity of adducing evidence upon the matter.

As to the first point raised before us, it seems to us that the ouster of the Plaintiff, as found by the Subordinate

Judge—and that finding is based mainly upon the evidence coming from the side of the Plaintiff himself—having taken place on the 9th of February 1895, antecedent to the date on which the Magistrate made his order under sec. 146 (which was on the 31st May 1895) the limitation as prescribed by Art. 3, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act, began to run against the Plaintiff from the date of the actual ouster; and it would not be reasonable to hold that, because subsequent to this ouster some dispute arose between the parties and the interference of the Magistrate was invoked, and because that officer attached the land, being unable to find which party was in possession, the limitation which had already begun to run against the Plaintiff ceased to run on, and that the Plaintiff would have a fresh start of limitation from the date when the Magistrate made his order under sec. 146 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Moreover, as pointed out by the learned vakil for the Respondent, it is not altogether free from doubt whether Art. 47, Sch. III of the Indian Limitation Act which relates to a “person bound by an order respecting the possession of property, made under the Code of Criminal Procedure,” is applicable to a case of an order made under sec. 146, which does not maintain the possession of any party. We accordingly overrule the point raised before us.

As regards the other question raised, all that we need do is to refer to sec. 4 of the Indian Limitation Act, and sec. 184 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which empowered the Subordinate Judge to take cognizance of the question of limitation, though it might not have been raised by the Defendant in the Court of first instance, if upon the proceedings in the case it appeared to him to be clear that the suit of the Plaintiff was barred by limitation. He has come to a definite conclusion upon this matter. He has held that the allegation of the Plaintiff as to dispossession, and to his previous possession within two years before the institution of the suit is not true; but rather, the evidence on the other side tends to show that the Defendants were in possession for more than two years. All that the Plaintiff in view of these facts could do was to ask the Subordinate Judge to allow him an opportunity of adducing other evidence upon the matter of possession, if he thought such other evidence was available and forthcoming. He apparently did not do so, nor does it appear that in his petition of appeal to this Court, he makes any complaint, that by reason of the omission of the Munsif to raise any issue as to limitation, he did not adduce such evidence which he might have adduced if the Munsif had raised the issue.

DEW NARAIN CHOUDHURY v. C. R. H. WEBB.

Upon these grounds we think that the contention raised as to limitation fails.

There is one other matter involved in this suit, and that is with regard to the plot No. 4. As to this plot, the Plaintiff has been found to have no cause of action against the present Defendants; and it is therefore obvious that he is not entitled to any relief as to that plot in this case.

For all these grounds the appeal is dismissed with costs.

S. C. S.

Appeal dismissed.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 759 of 1897.

SM. KUSUM KUMARI RAY,

Plaintiff,

SALE, J.

1900.

v.

13, June.

SATYA RANJAN DAS and others, Defendants.

Practice—Pleadings—Adoption—Administration, suit for—Will, construction of—Administration, prayer for, without asking for declaration with regard to an alleged adoption—Amendment—Adoption, preliminary trial of the question of.

Suit for administration and construction of a Will, under which Plaintiff's interest was restricted in case a son was adopted to the testator. Plaintiff, inter alia, stated that Plaintiff was informed that in Jaisto 1297 the widow of the testator purported to take an adoption a son, whose natural father was at the time and is now a Brahmo and had renounced the Hindu religion. She submitted that such adoption was absolutely invalid and did not operate to pass any title to the adopted son. There was, however, no prayer asking for any declaration with regard thereto:

Held—That upon the suit as at present constituted, the question of adoption was not in issue, and upon the pleadings the fact and validity of the adoption must be taken to be admitted.

That if a declaration with regard to the adoption is sought, the plaintiff must dispute the fact or validity of the adoption and should contain a prayer for a declaration as to the fact or validity thereof.

The whole substance in the claim for administration being dependent on the adoption being out of the way, the questions raised in the suit cannot be gone into till the question of adoption is determined once for all.

SM. KUSUM KUMARI RAY v. SATYA RANJAN DAS.

Ordered—That on the plaint being amended, the issue as to the adoption to be tried as a preliminary issue between the Plaintiff and the adopted son.

This was a suit for the construction of the Will of Kally Mohun Das, for declaration of the rights of the parties, for administration, for the appointment of fresh trustees, for a Receiver and other reliefs.

In her plaint, as originally filed, the Plaintiff set out, inter alia, that Kally Mohun Das died on the 16th February 1887, leaving a widow, Chandramoni Debi, the Defendant Durga Sundari Debi who is the widow of a predeceased son Mono Ranjan Das, and the Plaintiff, his only grandchild, the daughter of his son Mono Ranjan Das, and having on the 8th August 1884 executed a Will, whereby he appointed his widow Chandramoni Debi and his two brothers Durga Mohun Das and Bhuban Mohun Das his executrix and Executors and trustees; that the executrix and executors duly took out Probate of the said Will; that Chandramoni Debi died on the 5th May 1891 and Bhuban Mohun Das obtained Letters of Administration to her estate. Under the said Will she claimed certain Government Promissory Notes of the nominal value of Rs. 30,000, certain Municipal Debentures, and large interests in the immoveable properties left by the testator.

Subsequently, on an application being made by the Plaintiff before Jenkins, J., for the appointment of a Receiver pendente lite, it was brought to the notice of the Court that Chandramoni Debi, under a power given to her by the Will, had adopted a son to her deceased husband Kally Mohun Das. It was thereupon pointed out to the Plaintiff that a great difficulty stood in her way and no Receiver could be appointed unless the adopted son was made a party. She then elected to amend her plaint and in accordance therewith made the adopted son a party Defendant and stated by para. 13A:—

“That the Plaintiff is informed that in or about the month of Jaisto in the Bengali year 1297 corresponding with parts of the months of May and June 1890 the said Chandramoni Debi purported to take in adoption the Defendant Basanta Kumar Das, a natural son of the Defendant Bhuban Mohun Das, but the Plaintiff is advised and believes and submits that inasmuch as the said Bhuban Mohun Das was at the date of the said alleged adoption and also at the date of the birth of the said Defendant Basanta Kumar Das and is now a member of the Sadharan Brahmo Samaj and inasmuch as he had many years prior to the dates abovementioned renounced the Hindu religion the said alleged adoption of the said Basanta Kumar Das by the said Srimutty Chandramoni Debi was absolutely invalid under the Hindu law and did not operate to pass any title whatever to the said Defendant Basanta Kumar Das under the provisions of the said Will in and to the estate of the said testator.”

By the next paragraph 13B the Plaintiff stated:—

“That on the hearing of an application

SM. KUSUM KUMARI RAY v. SATYA RANJAN DAS.

made by the Plaintiff herein for the appointment of a Receiver of the estate of the said testator, it having been intimated by the Court that the said Defendant Basanta Kumar Das was a necessary and proper party to this suit and should be joined as a Defendant hereto before any such order could be made, the Plaintiff through his counsel undertook, though without in any way waiving his contention as to the invalidity of the said adoption, to have the said Defendant added as such Defendant."

The Plaintiff, however, did not amend her prayers in the plaint and did not ask for any declaration as to the factum or validity of the said adoption.

On an application being made before Sale, J., on behalf of the guardian ad litem of Basanta Kumar Das for a commission to examine witnesses on his behalf as to the factum and validity of the adoption, the Court was of opinion that the issues sought to be raised in this suit presented some difficulty and embarrassment and he accordingly directed the suit to be set down for settlement of issues in order to ascertain what issues were raised by the pleadings.

This matter now came on for settlement of issues as aforesaid.

Messrs. Pugh and Hyde for the Plaintiff.

Messrs. W. C. Bonnerjee, O'Kinealy, A. Chaudhuri and S. K. Mullick for the Defendants Satya Ranjan Das and Jyotis Ranjan Das.

The Hon'ble Advocate-General (Mr. J. T. Woodroffe) and Messrs. Dunne, J. G. Woodroffe and P. Chaudhuri for the Defendant Basanta Kumar Das.

Messrs. Sinha and H. D. Bose for the Defendant Bhuvan Mohun Das.

Messrs. Chakravarti and S. C. Mookerjee for the Defendant Durga Sundari Debi.

Mr. Pugh.—There is an issue of fact as to whether the adoption is valid. Our contention is that in either case, whether the adoption is valid or not, the Plaintiff has ample present interest to maintain the present suit. We dispute the adoption of a son to Kally Mohun. I submit the 8th clause of the Will, which devises the moveable properties to us subject to the life estate of Chandramoni Debi and Durga Sundari includes all his moveable properties excepting the Government Promissory Notes. The main question is with regard to the Municipal Debentures whether they pass or do not pass under this clause.

The Rs. 30,000 mentioned in cl. 9 of the Will has now been deposited in Court. What she takes under this clause is independently of the question whether the adoption is valid or not.

Cl. 13 is the only para. which deals with the Municipal Debentures. I submit they pass by the 8th clause. [SALE, J.—Is there no gift of the residue?] Yes, but I don't raise the point if there is adoption. If the adoption is valid it would go to the adopted son. If not it would go to me as the heiress of Kally Mohun.

It is not necessary for me for the settlement of issues to go into the acts of misfeasance alleged against the executrix and executors.

Cls. 10, 11 and 12 of the Will mention the gifts made to me subject to the life interest of my mother, Durga Sundari.

Fresh trustees have been appointed in place of Bhuvan Mohun Das. Durga Mohun Das, the other original trustee, died soon after the institution of this suit.

SM. KUŞUM KUMARI RAY v. SATYA RANJAN DAS.

With regard to the statements in the written statement that some of the properties mentioned by us did not belong to the estate of the testator, but was the stridhan property of Chandramoni Debī, that would properly arise on your Lordship's making a decree for administration.

I contest the adoption and have brought a suit for administration. [SALE, J.—Unless you ask for a declaration that the adoption is invalid how can I declare anything with regard to it. I think you have to recognise that there is an adopted son.] I shew that Chandramoni purported to adopt him, but she could not adopt him. [SALE, J.—I take it that would be his status unless there be a decree of Court depriving him of his status. I could not declare in this suit that he was not the adopted son.] The Court ordered Basanta Kumar to be added as a party and to make such amendment in the body of the plaint as might be necessary in consequence of so adding him. The body of the plaint is different from the title and the prayers of the plaint.

Mr. O'Kinealy.—The question of adoption ought to be tried first. It is impossible to construe the Will without deciding one way or the other about the adoption. (He then read from the minute-book as to what took place on the application for a Receiver). It was admitted that the application must fail in the absence of the adopted son. What did they do? They treated the order almost as a nullity. By paragraph 13(A) of the plaint they seem to admit the ceremony of adoption and seem to contend that it is invalid on account of the religious persuasion of the father. If the Will cannot be construed without trying the question of adoption, then the suit as framed should be dismissed. If the adoption is taken as admitted then the Court has to see what interest she has in the estate of the testator; whether she is entitled to an administration. (He then commented on the different clauses of the Will). I submit, if the adoption is valid, she has not sufficient interest to entitle her to an administration. See Smith v. Armitage (1). I adopt the successive issues raised by Mr. Pugh.

Mr. Sinha.—I support Mr. O'Kinealy in his contention that the question of adoption has to be gone into first. Until then your Lordship does not know who are the proper parties entitled under the Will. Then in construing the Will and in declaring the interests of the parties, the Court will have to judge whether the Plaintiff's interest is such as to entitle her to an administration. I contend that the adoption was valid and the Plaintiff is not entitled to have the estate administered.

Mr. Chakravarti.—On the pleadings the Plaintiff is not entitled to an administration. The books and furniture mentioned in the Will she has already got. It is doubtful whether there can be successive life estates in moveable properties such as cows and horses. The Rs. 30,000 has already been paid into Court and her marriage cost Rs. 7,000. The sale of Chetla haut, in which she has an interest subject to her mother's life estate, is valid under the power given in the Will. If the adoption is valid, she has no interest sufficient to entitle her to an administration. The question of adoption must be decided first.

SM. KUSUM KUMARI RAY v. SATYA RANJAN DAS.

Mr. Dunne.—The suit could not be decided without the presence of the infant Defendant. On the plaint as it stands the adoption must be taken to be admitted. It is now before the Court for settlement of issues. We have been brought before the Court. The Court refused to grant a Receiver and thereupon we are joined as Defendant. They say this (reads paragraph 13(A) of the plaint). They do not say that no such adoption ever took place. They say that owing to circumstances the adoption is invalid. The factum of adoption is not disputed. The adopted son is now before the Court and the Court has to consider whether the allegations in paragraph 13(A) does not amount to an admission of the adoption. The suit as framed (assuming that I am right in saying that the adoption is admitted) is good. If not then the question of adoption would have to be tried first. We are at any rate entitled to get an admission from the Plaintiff as to whether she disputes the factum of adoption or whether she challenges only the legality of it. So long as the Plaintiff was a minor, her next friend made statements for her. After coming of age, she has not committed herself either way. If we do not get such an admission it would be difficult for us to prepare ourselves.

If the Court holds the view that there is no dispute as to the adoption, then the suit is properly framed. Otherwise the Plaintiff must pray for a declaration with regard to the adoption and that issue would have to be tried separately.

Mr. Pugh in reply.—I dispute both the factum and the validity. Bhuban Mohun says he was not present at the ceremony. I challenge the factum and the legality. I don't know how far the fact of Bhuban giving away the child vicariously is correct. The smallest substantial interest would entitle one to an administration. If a creditor comes in with a strong case of malversation, etc., the Court would not allow him to go out, if he wanted to, after getting his money. If a Court is satisfied that there has been malversation, etc., and a Plaintiff comes with a strong case, the Court will administer the estate. Here it is something more than that because the trustees have been removed.

Mr. O'Kinealy.—By consent.

Mr. Pugh.—Durga Sundari who was the certificated guardian has not been allowed to represent the Plaintiff in this suit. [SALE, J.—Because under the Will her interest and the Plaintiff's are conflicting to a certain extent.] There is no substance in the issue of misjoinder. With regard to jurisdiction, money, i.e., Rs. 30,000, has been paid into Court.

Mr. Sinha.—It was paid under protest.

Mr. Pugh.—The questions raised are (1) whether the Plaintiff is entitled to administration, (2) whether the account ought to be taken on the footing of wilful neglect and default, (3) adoption.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

SALE, J.—It seems to me that the issues sought to be raised in this suit present some difficulties and embarrassment, and accordingly I thought it desirable that the case should be set down for settlement of issues for the purpose of ascertaining the right course of procedure.

SM. KUSUM KUMARI RAY v. SATYA RANJAN DAS.

It is clear that the Plaintiff's rights which are sought to be ascertained and declared in this suit, must depend largely on, whether or not, there is now in fact in existence a validly adopted son of Kally Mohun Das, and having now heard counsel for the various parties, I think it is reasonably clear what the proper course to be pursued is.

The Plaintiff sues for administration of the estate of Kally Mohun Das and for construction of his Will and she also incidentally asks for the appointment of a Receiver.

An application was made for the interim appointment of a Receiver, and thereupon it was pointed out to the Plaintiff that a great difficulty stood in her way by reason of the allegation of one of the Defendants that there was in existence an adopted son of Kally Mohun Das and that by reason of this fact it was doubtful whether she had any right to obtain administration of the estate of Kally Mohun Das or the construction of his Will.

The Plaintiff then elected to amend her plaint with the object of making the alleged adopted son a party to this suit. I cannot but suppose that what the learned Judge thought, and intended by the order made on that occasion, was that the Plaintiff in making the alleged adopted son a party, would proceed either on the basis of admitting the adoption, or alleging that it was invalid, and asking that it should be set aside.

But the Plaintiff does not take that course. A paragraph is inserted, in which the Plaintiff submits that the alleged adoption is invalid, but she omits to ask for any declaration in regard thereto.

Now I think it is clear that if the adoption is to be accepted there is very little of substance in her claim for administration or construction of the Will.

I do not say that technically there might not be some sort of right on the Plaintiff's part for construction of the Will or for administration, but, if so, it must necessarily be of a very shadowy and unsubstantial character.

The whole substance in the claim for administration depends on the adoption of this son being out of the way, and it seems to me it would be pure waste of time and money to proceed with the suit without in the first instance dealing one way or the other with the question of adoption which is raised.

That being the situation what course ought to be adopted? I am not disposed to consider the question of adoption as an issue in this suit so long as there is no proceeding instituted for the express purpose of enquiring into and determining its validity, and I am of opinion that it is impossible to regard the suit as at present constituted a proceeding of that character. As the pleadings now stand, I should take it that the fact of adoption was admitted and that it was outside the scope of the suit to enquire into its validity or to make any declaration in respect thereof.

It is said on behalf of the Plaintiff that there is no admission as to the fact of the adoption and that it was not intended that there should be any such admission by the terms of paragraph 13(A) of the plaint. If that be so, all I can say is that it is a most unfortunately worded paragraph.

SM. KUSUM KUMARI RAY v. SATTA RANJAN DAS.

I have hesitated as to whether under the circumstances I should not decline to go into the question of the fact or validity of the adoption, and whether I ought not for the purposes of this suit to take it as an admitted fact that there was and is an adopted son of Kally Mohun Das in existence, such as Kally Mohun Das by his Will intended there should be.

But as there have been considerable costs already incurred in the suit, and bearing in mind that if I took the course proposed, it would not, in all probability, put an end to the litigation on the subject of the adoption, I think I ought perhaps to give the Plaintiff another opportunity of raising the issue as to the adoption.

In my opinion before any of the questions raised in the suit, can be gone into, the question of the adoption must be determined once for all, and for that purpose I give the Plaintiff three weeks for the purpose of putting in such further statement on the subject of the adoption as she may be advised, and for making such amendment in the prayer of the plaint as may be necessary for the purpose of obtaining a declaration as to the fact or validity of the adoption, with liberty to the adopted son to put in such further written statement on the subject of the adoption as he may be advised, and I direct that the issue as to the adoption, such as the Plaintiff may desire to raise, be regarded as a preliminary issue in the case to be tried between the Plaintiff on the one side and the adopted son on the other.

As regards the question of jurisdiction and non-joinder of parties there has been but little argument,—and the question do not seem to be pressed.

As at present advised, I think that the Court has jurisdiction, and I do not see any reason for making any order with the object of altering the parties on the record.

Mr. Sinha.—We are all agreed not to press those issues.

THE COURT.—All costs incurred by reason of this amendment to be paid by the Plaintiff, and as regards the other costs, that is the costs of to-day, it is not by an act of the parties that the case was set down, so I think that the best course will be to reserve those costs.

Babu Hirendra Nath Dutt, Attorney for the Plaintiff.

Messrs. Rutter & Co., Attorneys for the Defendants S. R. Das and J. R. Das.

Babu Ukhoy Chunder Dutt, Attorney for the Defendant Bhuban Mohun Das.

Babu Bhupendra Nath Bose, Attorney for the infant Defendant.

Messrs. Ghose & Kar, Attorneys for the Defendant Durga Sundari.

J. C.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CRIMINAL
JURISDICTION.]

(FIFTH CRIMINAL SESSIONS).

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	EMPRESS
1900.		v.
14, December.		DOLEGOBIND DASS.

Power of a Presidency Magistrate to commit accused previously discharged by another Presidency Magistrate—Order of discharge not set aside—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V 1898), secs. 252, 253, 403, 435, 436, 437, 439—Reference to Full Bench upon a point raised before prisoner called to plead—Charter Act.

There is nothing in the Code to the effect that the dismissal of a complaint shall be a bar to a fresh complaint being entertained so long as the order of dismissal remains unreversed. Hence a commitment by a Presidency Magistrate on fresh evidence is legal although the accused may have been previously discharged by another Presidency Magistrate and the order of discharge was not set aside.

OPOORBA. KUMAR SETT v. SRIMUTTY PROBOD KUMARY DASSI (6) referred to and followed. GIRISH CHUNDER ROY v. DWARKA NATH AGARWALLA (7) referred to and dissented from. NILRATAN SEN v. JOGESH CHUNDER BHUTTACHARJEE (1) distinguished.

Held also—That the Judge presiding at the Sessions has no power to refer to a Full Bench a point of law raised before the accused was called upon to plead.

The accused was arrested on the 23rd July on the charge of having stolen a registered letter from the Post Office, and on the 25th July was brought up before a Bench of Presidency Magistrates, charged with offences under sec. 381 of the Indian Penal Code and sec. 52 of the Indian Post Office Act. He was discharged on the same day. On the 6th September the accused was re-arrested on substantially the same charge and on the 17th October he was committed for trial upon further and fresh evidence by the Chief Presidency Magistrate.

Mr. M. R. Mehta, instructed by Babu A. K. Mitter for the prisoner, raised a preliminary objection to the trial proceeding and contended that the Chief Presidency Magistrate had no jurisdiction whatever to try this case without the order of discharge being set aside, and that the order of discharge of a Presidency Magistrate could only be set aside by the High Court. The case of Girish Chunder Roy v. Dwarka Nath Agarwalla (7) is entirely in my favour. Assuming for the sake of argument, that the Chief Presidency Magistrate has the power to set aside an order of discharge made by another Presidency Magistrate, even then the commitment is bad because the Chief Presidency Magistrate did not set aside the order of discharge, nor did he give the accused any notice to show cause why the order of discharge should not be set aside. That an order of discharge should be first set aside before fresh proceedings can be taken, is clearly laid down by Banerjee, J., at p. 988 in the case of Nilratan Sen v. Jogesh Chunder Bhattacharjee (1).

The Standing Counsel (Mr. P. O'Kinealy), instructed by the Government solicitor, for the prosecution.—Under the circumstances of the case, the rulings quoted by Mr. Mehta do not apply. This is a warrant case and was retried upon further additional evidence, which satisfied the Magistrate that the accused should be

(1) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 983 (1896).

(6) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

(7) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

(1) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 983 (1896).

(7) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

EMPRESS v. DOLEGOBIND DASS.

committed. There was nothing wrong in this commitment as is shown from several cases, viz., Hari Singh v. Danesh Mahomed and others (2), Empress v. Donnelly (3), Empress v. Puran (4), Virankutti v. Chiyamu (5), Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Srimutty Probod Kumary Dassi (6).

Mr. M. R. Mehta in reply.—The cases cited by Mr. O'Kinealy, with the exception of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Sreemutty Probod Kumary Dassi (6) are not in point, they relate to District Magistrates who are expressly empowered under the Code to institute fresh proceedings.

The CHIEF JUSTICE.—Do you, Mr. Mehta, lay down the broad proposition as a proposition of law that, if a Presidency Magistrate discharged an accused person, and then upon fresh evidence an application was made for a retrial the accused person could not be retried unless the previous order of discharge were set aside?

Mr. Mehta.—Whether there is fresh evidence or not is I submit immaterial because, the question is whether a Presidency Magistrate has jurisdiction to retry a person, already discharged by another Presidency Magistrate unless that order of discharge is first set aside. My submission is that no Presidency Magistrate, not even the Chief Presidency Magistrate, has such jurisdiction.

The CHIEF JUSTICE.—What is there in the Code to warrant that view?

Mr. Mehta.—There is nothing in the Code, expressly prohibiting the Magistrate from so acting, but at the same time I submit there is nothing in the Code

(2) 20 W. R. Cr. Rulings 46 (1873).

(3) I. L. R. 2 Cal. 405 (1877).

(4) I. L. R. 9 All. 85 (1886).

(5) I. L. R. 7 Mad. 557 (1884).

(6) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

authorising Presidency Magistrates and my submission is that if the Legislature intended to give Presidency Magistrates such a jurisdiction there would have been express provisions in the Code; secs. 435 to 439 of the Code will show that such a jurisdiction is expressly given to the High Court and District Magistrates and if the Legislature intended to give a similar power to Presidency Magistrates the words "Presidency Magistrate" would have been inserted. The case of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Srimutty Probod Kumary Dassi (6) was distinguished in the case of Girish Chunder Roy v. Duarka Nath Agarwalla (7) and is distinguishable from the present case. This point is of considerable importance and if your Lordship entertains any doubt I respectfully ask your Lordship to refer it to a Full Bench.

The Standing Counsel.—Under the Charter, your Lordship has no power to refer the point to a Full Bench, as the point was raised before the prisoner was called upon to plead and could not be said to have arisen in the trial.

The CHIEF JUSTICE.—If this objection had been taken during the course of the trial I might have referred the matter to a Full Bench, but as the objection has been taken before the trial commenced I apparently have no power to do so, even if I so desired.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The CHIEF JUSTICE.—This is an application by the accused to have the order of commitment of the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Mr. Pearson, discharged, on

(6) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

(7) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

EMPRESS v. DOLEGOBIND DASS.

the ground that he had no jurisdiction to make the commitment, as a previous order of discharge has not been set aside by any authority. The facts are as follows:—On the 23rd of July last, the accused was arrested on the charge of having stolen a registered letter from the Post Office, and, on the 25th July, was brought up before a Bench of Presidency Magistrates, charged with offences under sec. 381 of the Indian Penal Code and sec. 52 of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898. He was discharged on the same day, the Bench considering that the evidence was insufficient to warrant “a conviction,” by which I presume they meant a commitment. On the 6th September the accused was re-arrested on substantially the same charge, and on the 17th October he was committed for trial upon further and fresh evidence—a very salient feature in the case—to the present sessions. The point for determination is, whether the commitment is valid, and I shall confine my remark to the case immediately before me, viz., the case of commitment by a Presidency Magistrate. It is clear that the discharge of the 25th July could in no sense operate as an acquittal of the accused, the case being a warrant-case. This has not been disputed, consequently, when the case was brought before Mr. Pearson, he was bound to hear it under sec. 252 of the Code, unless it can be shown that he has no jurisdiction to hear it, until, as is contended, the order of the 25th July had been set aside by the High Court. “There is no express provision in the Code to the effect that the dismissal of a complaint shall be a bar to a fresh complaint being entertained so long as the order of dismissal remains unreversed” [see per Banerjee, J., Nilratan Sen v. Jogesh Chundra Bhattacharjee (1)]. I agree in that. If then there be no express provision in the Code, what is there to warrant us in implying or in effect introducing into the Code, a provision of such serious import, a provision which, in certain cases, would render sec. 252 of the Code almost nugatory. In the absence of any other provision in the Code to justify such an implication—and my attention has not been directed to any such provision except secs. 436 and 437 which do not apply to Presidency Magistrates—I can appreciate no sound ground for the Court so acting; were it to do so it would go perilously near to legislating instead of confining itself to construing the acts of the Legislature. Moreover, it seems contradictory to say that whilst the order of discharge in a case such as the present does not amount to an acquittal, it is yet necessary to have it discharged by the High Court before either the same or another Magistrate of co-ordinate jurisdiction can hear the complaint under sec. 252. Neither necessity nor convenience warrants such a conclusion: there is nothing in the Code which compels it: and the balance of the decided cases appears to be against it. The cases of Hari Singh v. Danesh Mahomed (2) [decided so far back as 1873], the clear dictum of Markby, J., concurred in by Prinsep, J., in Empress v. Donnelly (3); Queen-Empress v. Pura (4);

- (1) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 983 at p. 988 (1896).
- (2) 20 W. R. Cr. Rulings 46 (1878).
- (3) I. L. R. 2 Cal. 495 at p. 411 (1877).
- (4) I. L. R. 9 All. 85 (1886).

EMPRESS v. DOLEGOBIND DASS.

Virankutti v. Chiyamu (5) support the view of the Crown. These were not cases relating to Presidency Magistrates but in the case of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Srimutty Probod Kumary Dassi (6) the precise point now under discussion was decided by Prinsep and Trevelyan, JJ., against the contention of the present accused.

On the other side reliance is placed upon the cases of Nilratan Sen v. Jogesh Chundra Bhuttacharjee (1) and Girish Chunder Roy v. Dwarka Nath Agarwalla (7). The former was not concerned with the case of a fresh commitment by a Presidency Magistrate, and the argument therefore based upon secs. 436 and 437 of the Criminal Procedure Code, which do not apply to Presidency Magistrates and which argument as I read the case was the foundation of that judgment (see Nilratan Sen v. Jogesh Chundra Bhuttacharjee (1) per Banerjee, J.) can have no application to the case now before the Court. I notice that O'Kinealy, J., in that case rests his decision upon "the constant practice of this Court," as to which one might feel some doubt, having regard to the cases I have referred to. The case, however, in Girish Chunder Roy v. Dwarka Nath Agarwalla (7) is distinctly in point, and I respectfully dissent both from its reasoning and its conclusion. It is fallacious to treat the second hearing as an appeal from the decision on the first hearing, and to say there is no provision in the Code for such an appeal. This argument overlooks the fact that the Magistrate is bound to hear the case under sec. 252, unless the Code precludes him from ~~so~~ doing until the previous order of discharge has been set aside. But, as I have already pointed out, the Code does not do that either expressly or by necessary implication. Again, the learned Judges distinguish the case in Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Srimutty Probod Kumary Dassi (6) on the ground that there the order for the issue of fresh process was made by the same Magistrate, who had discharged the accused. But what difference can that make if the real principle be that no fresh process can be issued unless, and until the previous order of discharge has been set aside by the High Court. If the principle be that the previous order of discharge must be set aside by the High Court—and that is the principle contended for—before fresh process can issue, it would amount to an absurdity to say that the same Magistrate can issue such process, though the order has not been set aside, but that another Magistrate of co-ordinate jurisdiction cannot do so, but must wait till the order has been set aside. There is one feature in the last two cases I have mentioned which, qua the facts, but not the principle distinguishes them from the present: in both these cases the order for issue of fresh process was made on the same evidence. That is not the case here: and, upon this point, I only desire to add that no Presidency Magistrate ought, in my opinion, to rehear a case previously dealt with by a Magistrate of co-ordinate jurisdiction upon the same evidence only, unless he is plainly satisfied that there has been

(1) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 983 at p. 988 (1896).

(5) I. L. R. 7 Mad. 557 (1884).

(6) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

(7) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

(6) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

EMPRESS v. DOLEGOBIND DASS.

some manifest error or manifest miscarriage of justice. Whilst fully recognising that we must follow the law and practice as laid down in the Indian Codes, it is perhaps not wholly immaterial to mention, looking to the source from which these Codes have in a great measure originated, that the view I have laid down above is consistent with that which holds in criminal Courts in England.

For these reasons I refuse the application to quash the commitment.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 354 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	ISHAN CHANDRA CHAKRA-
HANDLEY, J.		VARTI and others, Petitioners,
1900.		v.
15, June.		PRASANNA KUMAR RAI,
		Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure. (Act V of 1898), sec. 133—Nuisance, removal of—Proceeding, previous, dropping of, effect of—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to take fresh proceedings regarding the same matter.

There is no bar in law to the revival of a proceeding under sec. 133, Cr. P. Code, with regard to the same matter which had been previously dropped, provided there are materials before the Magistrate upon which prima facie he could act.

The question whether the matter with regard to which proceeding has been instituted does or does not properly come within the purview of sec. 133, Cr. P. Code, must be raised and decided at the trial.

This was a rule issued on the 4th May 1900, against the orders of J. T. Rankin, Esq., District Magistrate of Dacca, dated the 1st February 1900, and the 23rd March 1900.

The facts of the case are shortly as follows:—

Prasanua Kumar Rai, the opposite party in the proceeding, applied to S. F. Hosan, Esq., Sub-divisional Magistrate of Munshigunge, for the removal of a nuisance caused by Ishan Chandra Chakravarti and others by the flow of the discharges of a privy into a tank. The Sub-divisional Magistrate took proceedings under sec. 133 of the Code of Criminal Procedure; in the course of that proceeding the muktair of the complainant having admitted that the tank was not a public tank, the proceedings were allowed to drop. Prasanua Kumar Rai some time after applied to the District Magistrate of Dacca for the removal of the said nuisance and the District Magistrate on the 1st of February 1900 made an order directing proceedings to be taken under sec. 133, Cr. P. Code, and transferred the proceedings to the Sub-divisional officer of Munshigunge for disposal. Ishan Chandra Chakravarti and others, the Petitioners, then applied to the District Magistrate for cancellation of the order and the proceedings under sec. 133, Cr. P. Code.

Against these two orders of the District Magistrate the Petitioners moved the High Court and obtained the present rule.

Babus Atulya Charan Bose and Sarat Chandra Bysack for the Petitioners, Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Dasarathi Sanyal for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an order under sec 133, Cr. P. Code, directing the Petitioner to remove a ISHAN CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTI v. PRASANNA KUMAR RAI.

privy which discharges into a tank, thus causing nuisance to the neighbourhood. It appears that the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Munshigunge, some months ago took similar proceedings on the application of the same person who has originated the case now before us and, in the course of that proceeding, we find that as the muktear of the complainant admitted that the tank was not a public tank, the proceedings were allowed to drop. The same person has now obtained from the District Magistrate an order under sec. 133 regarding the very same matter. It is objected that this matter, having been once disposed of by the Sub-divisional Magistrate, cannot be reconsidered by the District Magistrate or by any other Magistrate. We can find no bar in law to any such proceeding. It seems to us that the only question involved is one of fact depending upon the circumstances of each case. In this case the muktear's representation stopped the former proceeding. Whether he acted upon the instructions of his clients or not does not appear but we think that, with the case before him, the Sub-divisional Magistrate was bound to proceed with it unless, upon the evidence before him, he found that the matter was not one falling within sec. 133. In the present case the District Magistrate had before him materials upon which prima facie he could act. If this is a matter which cannot properly come within sec. 133, the Petitioner will have an opportunity of showing this when he appears before the Magistrate and shows cause against the order under sec. 133 or he can obtain a jury to have the matter properly considered by such jury. We see no sufficient reason to interfere at the present stage of the proceedings. The rule is discharged.

Rule discharged.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 367 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	HARA KUMARI CHAUDHURY
HANDLEY, J.		RANI and others,
1900.		Petitioners,
5, July.		v.
		MR. SAVI,
		Opposite Party.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 422, 511—Dishonestly or fraudulently preventing debt being available for creditors—Application to withdraw money paid into Court—Breach of civil contract—Security for payment of debt not endamaged—Fraudulent or dishonest intention.

Petitioners' estate was under mortgage and in the management of certain persons under certain conditions as to payment of moneys realised by them. In execution of a decree obtained by the managers in a suit brought by them in the name of the Petitioners, a certain under-tenure was sold for Rs. 3,000. The judgment-debtor arranged with the Petitioners that on payment of Rs. 1,000, the sale should be set aside and he accordingly paid that sum into Court, and an application was made by the Petitioners to draw out the money upon which no order was made. They were thereupon convicted, at the instance of the managers, of an attempt to commit an offence under sec. 422, I. P. C.

Held—That the application to obtain the money paid into Court might have been a breach of their contract with the mortgagors but such conduct cannot neces- sarily be regarded as dishonest or fraudulent so as to render the Petitioners liable to punishment, their attempt to get the money being more to put an end to the management than to prevent the money from being available to the payment of their debt under the mortgage.

HARA KUMARI CHAUDEHURANI v. MR. SAVI.

NOBIN CHUNDER MUDDUCK (1) referred to.

This was a rule issued on the 17th of May 1900, against the order of the District Magistrate of Backergunge, dated the 26th of March 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the Sessions Judge of Backergunge on the 8th of May 1900.

The facts appear from the judgment.

Mr. Jackson, Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Dwarka Nath Mitter for the Petitioners.

Mr. Hill, Babus Basunta Kumar Bose and Jnanendra Mohan Dass for Messrs. Garth and Weatherall.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The three Petitioners have been convicted of an attempt to commit an offence under sec. 422, I. P. C. It appears that their property is now under mortgage to the Land Mortgage Bank and that under the terms of the agreement Messrs. Garth and Weatherall are managers of that estate under certain conditions in regard to payment of the moneys realised by them. The Petitioners have shown a disposition to be dissatisfied with that management and are endeavouring to get rid of it, if possible. In execution of a decree obtained by Messrs. Garth and Weatherall as managers of their estate in a suit brought in the names of the mortgagors a certain taluk was sold for Rs. 3,000 and arrangements were made to enable the debtor to release his property from the sale on payment of certain money within a certain time. He was unable to fulfil the terms of that agreement, so he appears to have gone to the Petitioners and it was settled with them that on payment of Rs. 1,000, the sale was to be set aside. The money was paid into Court and, on the 15th September, a petition was presented on behalf of the mortgagors who are the persons now before us to obtain this money. The Court made no order on this petition and on the 22nd of the same month, the present proceedings were taken before the Magistrate. The Petitioners have been convicted and their appeals to the Sessions Judge have been dismissed.

We have now to consider whether, on these facts, the Petitioners have been properly convicted of an attempt to commit an offence under sec. 422, I. P. C. We think that, having regard to the relation between the Petitioners and Messrs. Garth and Weatherall at whose instance the proceedings were taken before the Magistrate, it cannot properly be said that an attempt to commit an offence under sec. 422 has been made. The application to obtain payment of this money was publicly made. If the money had been paid to them it would no doubt have been a breach of the terms on which their mortgage had been renewed for they then agreed that Messrs. Garth and Weatherall as managers were to have entire control of all moneys due from the mortgaged properties and this money represented the rent of an under-tenure. But still there was ample security for repayment of the debt and a breach of this agreement would probably have enabled the mortgagor to take steps to realise at once the full amount of the debt. The action of the Petitioners seems to have been prompted by their desire to put an end to the management rather than to act dishonestly or fraudulently so as to be liable to punishment under sec. 422, Penal Code. Any breach of their contract would not in our opinion render them liable to penal consequence. This is not a case in which the creditors would really suffer, though no doubt the means of obtaining this money and applying it towards liquidation of the debt or the expenses of the management might be postponed or hindered. The conduct of the Petitioners was in our opinion neither dishonest nor fraudulent within the meaning of these terms in the Penal Code. We also think that the agreement that they made with the under-tenure holder did not endamage the estate, for, as represented on their behalf, as matters then stood, it was a bargain that was likely to be beneficial. The superior tenure belonging to the estate had been sold for arrears of rent and if that sale was a valid sale the under-tenure would become void and it would therefore be without value so as to realize anything by its sale. The validity of the sale of the superior tenure had been given against the Petitioners and it was doubtful whether the High Court before which this matter was on appeal would set aside this order. Consequently to obtain one thousand rupees for what might turn out to be of no value and to leave the under-tenure holder to run the risk of the decision of the High Court being in his favour would certainly be a good bargain. The interference of the Petitioners and their application to obtain the money paid into Court by the under-tenure holder might have been breaches of their contract with the mortgagors but such conduct cannot necessarily be regarded as dishonest or fraudulent so as to render them liable to punishment. Their attempt to get this money was more to put an end to the management than to prevent the money from being available to the payment of their debt under the mortgagor. In this respect the case does not seem dissimilar to that of Nobin Chunder Mudduck (1). For these reasons we think that the Petitioners have not been properly convicted. We accordingly set aside the conviction and sentence and direct that the Petitioners be released. The fines, if paid, will be refunded.

HARA KUMARI CHAUDHURANI v. MR. SAVI.

Rule made absolute :

Conviction set aside.

H. P. C.

(1) 22 W. R. 46 (1874).

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM THE ALLAHABAD
HIGH COURT.]

LORD HORHOUSE.	}	MSR MUJIB UN-NISA
LORD DAVEY.		& ors, Plaintiffs,
LORD ROBERTSON.		Appellants,
LORD LINDLEY.		v
SIR R. COUCH.		ABDUL RAHIM & anr.,
SIR FORD NORTH.		Defendants,
1900.		Respondents.
8, December.

Registration Act (III of 1877), secs 21, 32, 34 and 87—Registration after death of executant—Registrar, jurisdiction of—Procedure, defect in—Wakf-namah—Wakf, validity of—Mutawali, amount to be expended in charitable uses at the discretion of the—Endowment, family—Charitable uses, gift to

A Registrar has no power or jurisdiction to register a deed unless he is moved by some person entitled to present it for registration under sec. 32 of Act III of 1877, i.e., "by some person having a direct relationship to the deed."

The absence of any party legally entitled to present a deed for registration is not merely a defect in procedure falling under sec. 87 of Act III of 1877 but goes to the jurisdiction of the Registrar and renders the deed invalid.

To be a valid deed of wakf, a deed must have the effect of granting the property in substance to charitable uses.

Where its effect is to give the property in substance to the family or leaves the amount to be expended in charitable uses in the absolute and uncontrollable discretion of the mutawali and no one has a right to demand an account, the deed is not a valid deed of wakf:

Held—On a consideration of the terms of the deed in question that it did not constitute a valid trust.

This was an appeal from a decision of the N.-W. P. High Court, reversing the decree of the Sub-Judge of Meerut.

The question in dispute is as to the validity of a wakf-namah, dated 16th October 1889, executed by Munshi Sayed Mehrban Ali a few days previous to his death.

The said Munshi, a wealthy Mahomedan gentleman of Bulandshar, left him surviving three widows and two daughters who are the Appellants, and two sisters who would all be entitled to share in the property of the said Munshi under the Mahomedan law. Upon the death of the Munshi the Appellants set up the wakf by virtue of which one of them Murad-un-nisa claimed to be the mutawali.

The plaint contained the following among other statements:—

That the Munshi being the owner of property valued at Rs. 4,00,000, did on the 16th October 1889, execute "a deed of wakf," dedicating all his said property to charitable and religious uses, and sent the same to the Registrar's office for registration, where registration was refused on the ground that the said document did not contain a description of the property it purported to deal with sufficient to identify the same, and was, therefore, under the provisions of sec. 21 of Act III of 1877 (the Indian Registration Act 1877), not admissible to registration.

That on the 26th October 1889, before the deficiency could be supplied the said Munshi died.

That on the 4th November 1889, after the death of the said Munshi the said document was registered by one Syed Habibullah, described as "the general attorney and trustee of the said Munshi."

MST. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM. *

The sisters resisted this claim and their main objections were that there was no intention to constitute a valid dedication, but that it was only a settlement of the property for the aggrandisement of the family of the Munshi, and that the deed was not legally registered so as to affect the property therein dealt with.

The deed first sets out the said Munshi's parentage and his possession of property, and then proceeds: "As I have no male issue up to this time, and it is incumbent on every one not to neglect to secure benefit of his soul in the next world, I wish to establish a perpetual, lasting and continuing charity, so that the charitable expenses may in future be defrayed without any difficulty or obstacle in my lifetime, and also after my death. Hence in order to seek nearness to God and to secure benefit and honour in the next world, I have, while in a sound state of body and mind, and of my free will and accord, without coercion or compulsion, made a family endowment (wakf khandaani) of my property detailed below."

And again, "Having withdrawn my proprietary possession from the property, the subject of the endowment, I have brought it in my possession as superintendent (mutawali) which I can hold during my life under the terms of this document. Its income and profit shall, after defraying its necessary expenses according to the provisions hereafter made in this document, be applied to charitable purposes. No one shall by reason of his getting any stipend or maintenance allowance from the income of the property, have a right to exercise proprietary acts or power to make a transfer, &c., nor shall this endowed property be liable to be attached or sold in satisfaction of the personal debt of any superintendent or recipient of allowance; because it being an endowed property, all the rights of the superintendent and those for whom maintenance allowances have been fixed, shall exist only for their personal maintenance."

Then follows a list of the property, and then certain clauses of which cl. 1 appointed the Munshi himself "mutawali" or superintendent of the endowed property for his life, with power to use the income as he should think proper according to the provisions of the Mahomedan law and the conditions set forth in the document itself.

Cl. 2 provided for his successors as "mutawalis," who were to be chosen, as he then had no son, first from his wives, then from his daughters, and then from their descendants.

Cls. 3 and 4 fixed the allowances for himself, his successors, his wives and daughters.

Cl. 5 was as follows:—"Whatever are the necessary expenses such as the salaries of the servants for the endowed property, the expenses of visitors, marriages, deaths, presents, offerings and other charitable purposes, like those of schools, etc., at this time, they shall during the term of my superintendence be defrayed by me during the term of my superintendence and afterwards by every mutawali, subject to the provisions of this deed, of his own authority and according to his own wishes.

Cl. 6:—"The surplus income of the endowed property remaining after the payment of Government Revenue, the village expenses, the expenses of the mutawali,

MST. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM.

the salaries of the servants and stipend-holders and others, etc., shall accumulate and the money accumulated shall be invested in the purchase of other properties which shall also appertain to the endowed property and shall themselves be wakf property. The income of that also shall in conformity to the 5th paragraph be spent along with the income of the endowed property.

Cl. 7 stipulated that no one should have the right call upon any "mutawali" for an account.

Cl. 8 prohibited the alienation of the endowed property, except for the purposes of exchange or for the purchase of other property in place of that sold, and gave a power to raise money, but only with the consent of the Collector of the district.

Cl. 9 provided for the event of a son being born to him, in which case such son was virtually to take his place, and was not to be accountable to any one; its effect will be found more fully given in the judgment; the said deed concluded as follows:—

"10. If, God forbid! none of my male or female heirs be in existence at any time, the authority for the time being shall have power to take the endowed property into and under his own possession and superintendence, use its income remaining after the payment of its necessary expenses, for my spiritual benefit in such matters as may, according to the Mahomedan faith and the Hanafi sect to which I belong, be valid and be for the benefit of the Mahomedans.

I have therefore executed this deed of family endowment that it may serve as evidence and be of use."

The Subordinate Judge decided in favour of the validity of the wakf.

On the sisters' appeal to the High Court that Court following a previous decision of that Court in Hardei v. Ram Lal (1) admitted the document in evidence and held that the idea of the Munshi was simply to make a permanent provision for his descendants and provide for the increase of the estate. They pointed out that a very similar dedication had been held by the Lords of the Judicial Committee to be illusory on account of its remoteness in Abdul Fata Mahomed Ishak v. Russomoy Dhur Chowdhry (2). They therefore decided against its validity and decreed the appeal.

Mr. Mayne and Mr. Raikes for the Appellants.

Mr. Branson for the Respondents.

By desire of their Lordships the first day's argument was confined to the question of whether the document was properly registered.

Mr. Mayne referred to secs. 32, 17, 49 and 60 of Act III of 1877. He also referred to Sah Makhun Lall Panday v. Sah Koondun Lall (3) where Act XX of 1860, sec. 36 is dealt with; Mohammed Ewar v. Birj Lall (4) where the decision in the last case is noticed and where sec. 35, Act VIII of 1871, was under consideration.

LORD DAVEY.—There it was found that there was a defect in procedure.

Mr. Mayne also referred to Hardei v. Ram Lal (1).

Mr. Branson referred to sec. 21 and said that in this case when the document

(1) I. L. R. 11 All. 319 (1889).

(2) L. R. 22 I. A. 75 (1894).

(3) L. R. 2 I. A. 210 (1875).

(4) L. R. 4 I. A. 366 at p. 175 (1877).

MET. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM.

was presented it was in such a condition that the Registrar could not have accepted it; that differentiates it from the cases relied on by the other side.*

LORD HOBHOUSE.—The deed was defective in a most material part.

Mr. Branson.—And therefore it could not be registered.

On the 23rd the case was argued on the merits.

Mr. Mayne referred to the following authorities :—Sheik Mahomed Ahsanulla Chowdhry v. Amarchand Kundu (5) and Abdul Gafur v. Nizamudin (6).

LORD HOBHOUSE.—The use of the word wakf will not make a settlement good if there is merely an illusory trust for the poor.

Mr. Mayne referred to Runchordas Vandrawandas v. Parvatibhai (7), as to the use of the word Dharm; Hamilton's Hedaya, Vol. II, p. 334, Book XV, p. 345.

Mr. Raikes referred to Baillies' Digest, Book 9, Chapter 1, p. 549, and note 3. In re Sutton, Stone v. Attorney-General (8) and Lewis v. Allenby (9).

LORD HOBHOUSE—There is no statute of Elizabeth in India.

Mr. Branson was not called on.

Their LORDSHIPS' RESERVED JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD ROBERTSON.—The Appellants were the Plaintiffs in a suit before the Subordinate Judge of Meerut, and by their plaint they prayed that it should be declared that a deed executed in October 1889 by Munshi Syed Mehrban

Ali, deceased, is a valid deed of wakf. The property affected by this instrument is said to be worth Rs. 400,000. The Plaintiffs are, respectively, wives and daughters of the deceased, for whom certain provisions are made in the deed. The Defendants were two of his sisters, for whom no provision was made in the deed. Both sisters are now dead, and only one of them, Ulfat-un-nisa, is now represented on the Record in pursuance of an Order in Council of the 7th August 1900 which struck off the representatives of the other sister, Sharif-un-nisa, under circumstances set out in that Order.

Of the several issues settled by the Subordinate Judge two only have been argued in this appeal. The first question is raised by the Defendants' plea that the deed founded on not having been legally registered cannot be admitted in evidence and cannot affect the property. The second question is raised by the Defendants' contention that having regard to the terms of the deed itself, the property did not become a wakf property. Both questions have been considered by their Lordships.

The question about registration turns on the Act III of 1877. The deed in dispute being an instrument of gift of immoveable property, it came under sec. 17 of the Act, and registration under the Act was accordingly, by sec. 49, indispensable in order to render it receivable as evidence of the transaction which it purported to record, and to enable it to affect the immoveable property comprised therein. The question is, was it lawfully registered? It was de facto registered, but the history of that registration requires to be examined.

(5) L. R. 17 I. A. 28 at p. 38 (1889).

(6) L. R. 19 I. A. 170 (1892).

(7) L. R. 26 I. A. 71 (1899).

(8) L. R. 28 Ch. D. 464 (1885).

(9) L. R. 10 Eq. Cas. 668 (1870).

MST. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM.

The deed as ultimately presented for registration and registered consists of two parts, of which the former part is dated 16th October 1889 and contains the deed of endowment and conditions, while the latter part is headed "Supplement or Detail of the Endowed Property," and consists of these particulars. It appears that at first the Munshi who executed the deed, or his advisers, had not adverted to the requirements of sec. 21 of the Registration Act: and as the deed as at first presented for registration did not contain "a description of" the "property sufficient to identify the same," the Registrar, on 16th October 1889, declined to register, but returned the deed "for correction and compliance with" those statutory provisions. The deed had been presented on behalf of the Munshi by Syed Habib-ul-lah, who held his power-of-attorney. On 24th October 1889 the supplement or detail of the endowed property was added, so as to render the deed registrable, and on that day the deed so completed was executed by the Munshi. On 4th November 1889, that deed of endowment (i.e., the completed deed) was presented for registration by the same Syed Habib-ul-lah. In the interval between the execution of the completed deed and its presentation to the Registrar the Munshi died. The legal question now to be considered turns on this last fact. The narrative however may be completed by mentioning that the Registrar accepted the deed and registered it, recording in writing that the man who had executed it and whose attorney presented it for registration was dead. The minute of this proceeding is on p. 142 of the Record.

It was not attempted on the part of the Appellant to justify the registration of the deed, as regularly done in accordance with the Act. The departure from the Act is indeed palpable, and the only question is whether it invalidates the registration. The Act by sec. 32 enacts that every document to be registered under it, whether such registration be compulsory (as in the present case) or optional (as in the case of other classes of instruments), shall be presented by some person executing or claiming under the same, or by the representative or assign of such person, or by the agent of such person, representative or assign, duly authorised by power-of-attorney. Now the case in hand is that of a person who when he presented the deed for registration (as he says he did) on 4th November 1889 stood in no other relation to the deed than that, before the death of the person executing it, he had held his power-of-attorney. It is perfectly plain not merely from the general law but from the terms of this sec. 32 itself that, after the man's death, the only attorney who would have had any locus standi would have been the attorney of the representative or assign of the deceased. It has been suggested however, that the error of the Registrar was a defect in his procedure only and accordingly under sec. 87 does not invalidate the act of registration. To their Lordships the error appears to be of a more radical nature. When the terms of sec. 32 are considered with due regard to the nature of registration of deeds it is clear that the power and jurisdiction of the Registrar only come into play when he is invoked by some person having a direct relation to the deed. It is for those persons to consider whether they will or will not give to the deed the efficacy conferred by registration. The Registrar could not be held to exercise the jurisdiction conferred on him, if, hearing of the execution of a deed, he got possession of it and registered it; and the same objection applies to his proceeding at the instigation of a third party, who might be a busybody. Now it seems to their Lordships that when the deed was presented on 4th November 1889 it was presented by a volunteer, and the Registrar's minute shows that he proceeded to register at the request of one whom he knew to derive his power-of-attorney from a dead man. Nor is it possible to treat this action of the Registrar as compliance with the request made on 16th October 1889, when the principal was alive. Not only had the deed in fact been executed afresh on 24th October but it was presented afresh on 4th November, as the minute itself bears; and even assuming the continuity of the proceeding, the death of the applicant brought it to an end. The Registrar indeed did not merely disregard sec. 32, for he proceeded to accept the admission of the alleged attorney as a good admission of the execution of the deed, although sec. 34 requires in the case of a decease the admission of the representative or assign.

Mst. MUJIB UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM.

Their Lordships were referred to two decisions of this Committee in support of the Appellants' contention. Neither case gives any countenance to the view that the absence of any party legally entitled to present a deed for registration is a defect in procedure falling under sec.

87. In both those cases the Registrar was throughout moved by a person having title and was exercising his jurisdiction. The difference is in their Lordships' judgment vital. They therefore hold the registration of this deed to have been illegal.

Their Lordships have, however, considered the question, whether, even assuming it to have been registered, the deed is, according to its terms, a valid deed of wakf. It will be so, if the effect of the deed is to give the property in substance to charitable uses. It will not be so if the effect is to give the property in substance to the testator's family.

The deed begins with a statement that the grantor has always devoted a portion of his income to religious and charitable purposes as seemed proper and expedient to him at the time. He goes on to say that, as he has no male issue and it is incumbent on every one not to neglect to secure benefit of his soul in the next world, he wishes to establish a perpetual, lasting and continuing charity, so that the charitable expenses may in future be defrayed without any difficulty or obstacle in his lifetime and also after his death. Hence "in order to secure benefit and honour in the next world I have of my free will and accord, without coercion or compulsion and while in a sound state of body and mind, made a family endowment (wakf khandani) to seek nearness to God." He goes on to say that he has withdrawn his proprietary possession from the property the subject of endowment and has brought it into his possession as mutawali, "which I can hold during my life under the terms of this document. Its income and profit shall after defraying its necessary expenses according to the provisions hereafter made in this document be applied to charitable purposes." No one was by reason of his getting any maintenance to have right to exercise proprietary acts nor should the endowed property be liable to be attached or sold in satisfaction of personal debts of any mutawali or recipient of allowance, because it being an endowed property all the rights of the mutawali and those for whom maintenance allowances have been fixed are to exist only for their personal maintenance. A detail of the property (wakf khandani) which was "the subject of the family endowment under this deed and the conditions attached thereto" was then given.

MST. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM.

The conditions follow the detail of the property and are ten in number.

The 1st appoints the donor himself to act as mutawali and he is to use the income of the endowed property "in the way I shall think proper, according to the provisions of the Mahomedan law and the conditions of this document."

No. 2 provides for one of his wives and thereafter one of his daughters, and after their deaths some direct descendant, being successively mutawali.

No. 3 fixes Rs. 300 a month as the allowance of the mutawali for his or her own expenses and those of his or her children.

No. 4 gives maintenance allowances to the wives and daughters of the donor.

The 5th and 6th purposes are as follows:—"Whatever are the necessary expenses such as the salaries of the servants for the endowed property the expenses of visitors, marriages, deaths, presents, offerings and other charitable purposes, like those of schools, &c., at this time, they shall during the time of my superintendence be defrayed by me during the term of my superintendence and afterwards by every mutawali, subject to the provisions of this deed, of his own authority and according to his own wishes."

6. "The surplus income of the endowed property remaining after the payment of the Government revenue, the village expenses, the expenses of the mutawali, the salaries of the servants and stipend holders and others, &c., shall accumulate and the money accumulated shall be invested in the purchase of other properties which shall also appertain to the endowed property and shall themselves be wakf property. The income of that also shall in conformity with the 5th paragraph be spent along with the income of the endowed property."

By the 7th condition the mutawali is to have a discretionary power, with reference to the increase or decrease in the income of the endowed property, to increase or decrease the fixed allowances or fix a new allowance. No one was to have a right on the ground of relationship, &c., to prefer a claim for increase or decrease or for a new allowance, or a claim against the mutawali for the time being for rendition of accounts.

The 8th condition forbids sale and mortgage except in certain specified cases.

The 9th condition relates to the contingency of a son being born to the donor after the execution of the deed. He is to be the mutawali, with the aid of a munsarim during minority. He is to have Rs. 300 a month for his expenses, "and shall be authorized to spend all the net profits of the endowed property according to his discretion in purchasing property and making addition to the endowed property, in the erection of houses, in performing shadioghammi, joyous and mourning ceremonies and in other necessary and charitable matters." It was to be optional to him to create new allowances, to reduce, enhance or put a stop to the allowances of the persons receiving allowances. No other recipient of allowances or relatives was to have power to take account from the mutawali.

Mst MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM.

The 10th (and last) condition declares that "if (which God forbid!)" none of the donor's male or female heirs be in existence at any time, the authority for the time being shall have power to take the endowed property into and under his own possession and superintendence, use its income remaining after the payment of its cost of maintenance for the donor's spiritual benefit in such matters as might according to Muhammadan faith and Hanafi sect, to which the donor belonged, be valid and for the benefit of the Mahomedans. "I have therefore executed this deed of family endowment in order that the same may serve as evidence and be of use."

The deed thus closes, as it began, by describing itself as a deed of family endowment. The donor contemplates, it is true, that his own liberality to religious and charitable purposes shall continue in future generations, but this is only (as it turns out) to an uncertain and discretionary amount, and as an incident of the family endowment. When the deed is examined and collated, and its professions tested by its effective provisions, it proves to be what it calls itself, a "family endowment," pure and simple. Indeed the theory of the deed seems to be that the creation of a family endowment is of itself a religious and meritorious act, and that the perpetual application of the surplus income in the acquisition of new properties to be added to the family estate is a charitable purpose. It is superfluous in the present day to say that this is not the law.

The part of the deed which was most relied on by the Appellants is the general statement or declaration with which it opens. The words particularly founded on are those in which the testator declares that "the income and profit of the endowment shall, after defraying its necessary expenses according to the provisions hereafter made in this document, be applied to charitable purposes." The reference to the subsequent part of the document carries us forward to the conditions where those general intentions are put into concrete and effective shape. Now the 5th and 6th conditions express in clear and definite language the manner in which the testator works out the ideas adumbrated in the words which have been quoted, and they place beyond dispute the relative positions of charity and family endowment in the testator's scheme. The 5th condition provides for the payment of what it calls necessary expenses and among those it expressly enumerates "offerings and other charitable purposes, like those of schools, &c., at this time." The 6th condition deals with the surplus income after these "expenses" are paid, and dedicates that income to the purchase of other properties; and the income of the new properties is to follow the same course as the income of the original estate. The amount to be applied under the 5th head is in the absolute and uncontrolled discretion of the mutawali and no one has a right to demand an account.

MET. MUJIB-UN-NISA v. ABDUL RAHIM.

On the terms of the deed itself, therefore, their Lordships hold that the property is not in substance dedicated to charitable purposes but on the contrary is dedicated substantially to the maintenance and aggrandisement of the family estates for family purposes. The deed therefore could not be supported as constituting a wakf.

Their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty that the appeal should be dismissed and the Appellants must pay the costs of the appeal.

Solicitors: Mr. T. C. Summerhays for the Appellants.

Solicitors: Messrs. Barrow, Rogers & Nevill for the Respondents.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

C. W. A.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 345 OF 1898.

GRACE, J. FRATT, J. 1900. 28 November.	}	DOMAN PANDEY, Plaintiff, " Appellant, v. PANCHU KOLE and ORS, Defendants, Respondents.
---	---	---

Regulation III of 1872—Partition of mal raiyat land in Chota Nagpur—Partition of open and land—Ghatwal.

Between two mal raiyats with whom a settlement has been made under Regulation III of 1872 there may be a partition of the waste and jungle lands, though such partition cannot be binding upon the superior landlord, the ghatwal, and will only subsist during the currency of the settlement.

So far as the trees to which the superior landlord is exclusively entitled, they cannot be the subject of partition, but as to the trees which belong to the mal raiyats there may be a partition.

This was an appeal preferred on the 22nd of February 1898, against the decision of R. Carstairs, Esq., Deputy Commissioner of Dumka, District Sonthal Pergunnahs, preferred on appeal from a decision of H. H. Heard, Esq., Sub Judge of Deoghur, dated the 1st of September 1897.

The suit out of which the present appeal arose was brought by the Plaintiff for partition of 'mal raiyati' interest in a village in the Sub-division of Deoghur. The Plaintiff sued to have his interest separated from that of Defendant as between themselves, and to have the whole area of the village accordingly divided into their respective shares—the Plaintiff having 14 annas and the Defendant 2 annas share. The suit was dismissed by both the lower Courts on the ground that there could be no partition of the mal raiyati interest. On appeal the High Court held that there could be such partition and in remanding the case, their Lordships observed as follows:—

We are unable to find what authority the Courts below had in coming to this conclusion. If they meant to hold that under Regulation III of 1872 (the Sonthal Pergunnahs Regulation) a suit like this would not lie in a civil Court, that would clearly be wrong, for the Plaintiff in this case does not seek to set aside, or question the propriety of any entry in the Record of Rights; but accepting the Record of Rights as correct, they seek to have a partition between themselves and their co-sharers and such a suit is in no way forbidden by that Regulation.

DOMAN PANDEY v. PANCHU KOLE. *

The lower Courts again dismissed the suit on the ground that there could be no partition of the jungle and waste lands in which the villagers had an interest. The material portion of the judgment of the lower Appellate Court was as follows:—

This is a suit for partition of "mal raiyati" interest in a village in the Sub-division of Deoghur.

The village has been settled under Regulation III of 1872, and there is no issue in this case as to the amount of the interest of each or as to its nature. It is agreed by the parties that they hold, the Appellant 14 annas and the Respondent 2 annas interest as "mal raiyats" of the village.

The Plaintiff sues to have his interest separated from that of Defendant as between themselves, and to have the whole area of the village accordingly divided into one and seven eighth shares.

The case was originally dismissed summarily but was returned for trial on the merits by the Honourable High Court. It has again been dismissed on the merits and this appeal has been filed. The question is one of considerable importance from an administrative point of view and I think it right to note here one or two leading facts as regards the "mal raiyati" interest that being a question not likely to be done by the parties. It appears to me that one of the main objects in vesting the Deputy Commissioner and his subordinates with powers of civil Courts was to enable cognizance to be taken of important facts connected with the settlement. At the same time, the questions touched on not being in issue I cannot claim for my remarks here the finality of an exhaustive enquiry.

The question of status of village settlement-holders in the Deoghur Sub-division of this district was raised during the carrying out of the first settlement under Regulation III of 1872, and certain persons claimed as settlement-holders of certain village to be *raiya*ts of those villages, the original intention of making this claim being to enable them to deprive all persons holding under them of the benefits of the settlement in the shape of fixed rates of rent and other benefits which the settlement gives to *raiya*ts. They made no attempt to have themselves called tenure-holders, because no "ghatwal" under Regulation 29 of 1814 (by which title nearly the whole property in land in the Deoghur Sub-division is held) can create a tenure binding on his successor. It was tenant right only that they claimed with a right of transfer.

The title of mal raiyat was invented for the purpose of this settlement, the original clearer and his descendants being admitted to hold the title and as being supposed to have invested their property in improvements were permitted to recoup themselves in case they wanted to give up the mal raiyati by sale of their interest. This right does not extend to the sale of a part. It is held by Government as the highest settlement authority that they cannot split up the interest by selling a part.

The "mal raiyat" in occupancy is not proprietor. The ghatwal is. The mal raiyat is entitled as such to occupy and till land in the same way as other *raiya*ts in the village but other *raiya*ts have the same right to do so as he has. He cannot sublet his land, any land sublet to a village *raiya*t becoming thereby part of that *raiya*t's jote.

Coming now to the case before me, I find four issues of which the important ones connected with this appeal being issues 2 and 3.

Issue No. 2 relates to the division of waste lands and jungle and issue No. 3 to that of fruit trees. On both these issues the Subordinate Judge has decided that a partition cannot be made of waste lands and jungle or of fruit trees.

It will be convenient to take the two issues separately. *

I wish to remark before going further, that the land in this suit is described as jungle and waste, and the trees on that land are also described as those standing on that land. The history of the settlement of the Sonthal Pergunnahs is shortly as follows:—

Political disturbance was feared by Government owing to the difficulty of adjusting by ordinary means (civil suits and the like) the rights of landlords and tenants, and Regulation III of 1872 was passed to enable this to be effected by the method of settlement. The rights to be adjusted were those of clor land and tenant and the unit of settlement was the village. Each village had a record of right belonging to itself, in which were recorded all the customary rights of those connected with it, both landlords and tenants, and a lease was given to the person, in this case the mal raiyat, who was to produce to the landlord the village rents, and generally to guard the rights recorded in the village record and perform the duties described in the lease. The lease is an official document granted by the Settlement Officer, and is not a contract with either landlords or tenants but is with the record binding on both.

DOMAN PANDEY v. PANCHU KOLE

Now the property in all village land is vested in the *raiya*s and the landlord. Whatever rights the *raiya*s have not, belong to the landlord. The *raiya*s are entitled to occupy for cultivation the village land, and to hold what they occupy at rates fixed at the settlement. The mal raiyat's benefit is that he may collect rent at half rates on all new land occupied from one settlement to the next, and may also reclaim waste land for his own occupancy while the landlord can claim no rent for this land till there is a revision of settlement. Beyond this, the *raiya*s have an exclusive right to reclaim waste land within the village, outsiders not being entitled to come in and take it.

They have also certain easements, as grazing, taking wood for fuel and the like. But all the tenant's rights are vested in him by virtue of his position as cultivating tenant.

In this case no partition of land under cultivation has been asked for. The Plaintiff is applying for a partition of the land for which the landlord is being paid nothing, and which is the landlord's. It is unoccupied, because it is reserve land for the benefit of the village *raiya*s, but it is not yet the property of the *raiya*s, and cannot become so until it is occupied by them. A raiya's right is essentially an occupancy right and neither the raiya nor the mal raiyat can claim any part of it as his until he has occupied the land for cultivation. When he does so, he becomes liable for rent. Till he does so, the land is the landlord's, not any one else's. The Plaintiff claims to occupy exclusively seven eighths of the existing village waste, because the right to partition is an incident to property. It seems to me that he can only claim the right over his own property and not over that of another man's. His right is limited to the land he occupies as tenant, to collecting the landlord's rent from the village and drawing commission for doing so; and to the easements and right of reclamation which he in common with other *raiya*s of the village is entitled to and that is all. He has not such property in waste and jungle land as would entitle him to enjoy it separately.

Taking another point I note that, if the object of the Plaintiff is a separate enjoyment by reclamation of the waste, that cannot be conveniently done.

In the first place the partition is not asked for of the occupied land. This new partition would therefore create two new classes of raiya jote land, viz., undivided, and that belonging to the 14 annas and that belonging to the two annas share.

If there is no partition, then all occupied land will be of one class.

Another objection is that the parties are not proprietors of the village, and cannot divide their liabilities. They are liable for the whole rent, and for the whole duties. If there is a default of rent or a failure of duty, the person whose it is may be dismissed, and his successor is not bound by any partition now made.

Again the rents due from the parties are the village rents as a whole—should the present waste land not be cleared pari passu in both shares, the rental of one share must increase faster than that of the other, and the whole arrangement (which is a private one only) must be upset at the next revision of settlement to enable the parties to occupy their proper interests. No private agreement to transfer a share of the interest of a mal raiyat can be considered valid and any such agreement would have to be set aside.

* * * * *

I think the Plaintiff is not entitled to a partition of the jungle and waste lands of the village.

As regards the third issue—a partition of fruit trees.

I find that in the Village Record of Rights which is an exhibit in this case, paragraph 9 gives the rights over trees.

The trees are not included in what is held under the village rents. The two provisions are as follows :—

"The *raiya*s will enjoy without rent trees planted by them or their ancestors."

The Khas mango and jack fruit bearing trees not included in the village rent are to be paid rent for by those who enjoy them.

It seems clear from this that the *raiya*s are to enjoy trees planted by them and their ancestors, and that the other trees belong to the ghatwal and are to be paid rent for by those who enjoy them. The inference is that the right to let such trees, belongs to the ghatwal. The issue in this case may possibly be somewhat different from that of the land, for, as the fruit trees are in bearing, and there is a necessity for some arrangement who is to occupy which trees, if a breach of the peace is to be avoided.

DOMAN PANDEY v. PANCHU-KOLE.

Nevertheless the difficulty of ordering a partition is great. The trees are on the ghatwal's ground, and are his property. He is entitled to let them to the tenants, and the proposal of the Plaintiff is that the Court should practically exclude the ghatwal from the management of his trees, and hand them over to the parties.

I have asked the parties whether either of them pays the ghatwal any rent for the trees, and they say no. There is no mention of mahwa trees in the Record of Right. In the pottu or lease filed by Doman Pandey, the Plaintiff-Appellant, the relevant passages about fruit trees are (paragraph 5) as follows:—

Except trees planted by the mal raiyat or raiya or their ancestors all trees are the property of the ghatwal.

Such trees, when enjoyed will be paid rent for to the ghatwal.

Mahwa trees long enjoyed by the mal raiyat or *raiya*s will continue to be enjoyed by them without payment of rent. There are thus three classes of trees.

First.—Those to which the raiya's title is created by the fact that he or his ancestors planted them. *

Second.—Those belonging to the ghatwal and rented from him.

Third.—Mahwa trees which *raiya*s have acquired the right to occupy by long possession free of rent, but they are the ghatwal's. I do not quite agree with the Subordinate Judge that the mere fact of a raiya reclaiming a little land round a tree would give him the right to occupy it, and to oust from its occupation another who had previously done so.

I do not, however, see that there is any class of fruit trees in the village which can be fairly made subject to partition.

I consider though not for precisely the same reasons as the Subordinate Judge that the claim for partition of these has not been established. The appeal is dismissed.

* * * * *

The Plaintiff preferred this second appeal.

Babu Karuna Sindhu Mukerjee for the Appellant.

Babu Sib Chandra Palit for the Respondents. *

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This appeal arises out of a suit for partition of a certain village in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, the said village having been settled with two persons under Regulation III of 1872, the Plaintiff being entitled under such settlement to a 14 annas share, and the Defendant to the remaining 2 annas share of the village. The parties are described as mal raiyats; and the Plaintiff asks that his share in the village may be divided from the share of his co-sharer.

The suit had been dismissed by the Courts below upon the ground that no partition could be effected of the jungle and waste lands, as also of the fruit trees; but this Court, in second appeal, was of opinion that the view adopted by the lower Courts was erroneous; and upon that ground the case was remanded to the Court of first instance for trial upon the merits. The suit has again been dismissed by the Courts below, and apparently upon two grounds, first, that so far as the jungle and waste lands are concerned, they being lands reserved for the benefit of the village *raiya*s, they cannot become the property of the *mal raiya*s until they have been cleared or occupied by them; and, secondly, that there being two classes of trees upon this property, one class belonging to the superior landlord, the ghatwal, and the other class belonging to the mal raiyats, no partition of the trees generally could be made.

DOMAN PANDEY v. PANCHU KOLE.

Now, so far as the first-mentioned ground is concerned, the settlement record with reference to the purti and jungle lands, provides as follows:—"The raiayats (meaning, the under-raiayats) will pay rent to the mal raiyats for all new lands cultivated by them at half the rate fixed for the mouzah at the time of settlement, and the lands that will be cultivated by the mal raiyats themselves will be enjoyed by them during the currency of their lease without payment of rent." So that taking this provision with the fact that the entire village was settled (including, as we take it, the purti and jungle lands) with the mal raiyats, prima facie the right to occupy the said lands is in the mal raiyats themselves, though, if any portion of the lands be cleared by the under-raiyats, such raiayats would be entitled to remain in possession thereof upon payment of rent to the mal raiyats. And there is the provision that if the mal raiyats cleared any portion of the lands they would be entitled to occupy the same without payment of rent to the superior landlord, the ghatwal. It follows from this that as between the two mal raiyats, themselves, there can be no difficulty as to partition of such lands, though no doubt, such partition cannot be binding upon the superior landlord, the ghatwal, and will only subsist during the currency of the settlement.

Then as regards the fruit trees, if, as the learned Deputy Commissioner says, there are two classes of fruit trees, one belonging to the superior landlord, the ghatwal, and the other to the mal raiyats, it is obvious that so far as the trees to which the superior landlord is exclusively entitled, they cannot be the subject of partition, but as to the trees which belong to the mal raiyats, there is no reason why they should not be partitioned.

Some discussion was raised before us as to whether the suit was a suit claiming partition of the entire village, or only of the jungle and waste lands and fruit trees. Looking, however, at the plaint itself, it appears that the suit was for partition of the entire village. However that may be, as the suit has been dismissed upon the two grounds already indicated, and as neither of these two grounds is in our judgment valid, we think it right and proper to set aside the decree of the Court below and remand the case to that Court for the purpose of effecting such partition as the Plaintiff may be entitled to, and as he has asked for.

Costs will abide the result.

Appeal allowed :

S. C. S.

Case remanded.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2351 of 1898.

MOAZAM HASSAIN

AMEER ALI, J.

CHOWDHURI, Plaintiff,

BRETT, J.

Appellant,

1900.

v.

13, July.

BHOUDIN and another,
Defendants, Respondents.

Inheritance, partial acceptance or renunciation of—Liability of heirs for rent.

There cannot be a partial acceptance or renunciation of an inheritance, nor can one of several heirs accept a part only of an inheritance to the prejudice of the other heirs and of the creditors of the deceased. An acceptance in part has the effect of an acceptance of the whole and carries with it the same liability.

MOAZAM HASSAIN CHOWDHURI v. BROUDDIN.

If a person accepts the inheritance in whole or in part he is bound to discharge the liabilities which attach to the late tenants from whom he inherits unless he can prove that he has since made a formal surrender of the holding to the landlord.

This was an appeal against the decree of Syed Nurul Huda, Esq., Officiating District Judge of Zillah Noakhaly, dated the 17th December 1897, reversing the decree of Babu Ashu Tosh Mitter, Munsif, dated the 22nd March 1898.

The suit out of which the present appeal arose was brought by the Plaintiff for recovery of rent of a howla.

One Fuzal Rahman Chowdry was the tenant of the howla. He was murdered in Sraban 1300. Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 are his brothers, Defendant No. 3 is his widow. Plaintiff's case was that the Defendants were in possession of this howla as heirs of the deceased tenant. Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 contested the suit. The defence was that they never obtained possession of the holding; that they were not liable for its arrears of rent; that the relation of landlord and tenant did not exist between them and Plaintiff, and that they had no objection, if the decree was passed against the tenure only. The points for determination were; first, does the relation of landlord and tenant exist between Plaintiff and the Defendants? Second, are the arrears due and unpaid? The first Court decreed the suit and decided the above points in favour of the Plaintiff. He found that the Defendants had accepted the inheritance of their brother, though there was no sufficient evidence to shew that they were in possession of this particular howla.

Upon appeal by Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 the District Judge held that the Appellants could not be made liable for the payment of the rent as they were not in possession of the howla in arrears.

The Plaintiff preferred this second appeal.

Babus Dwarka Nath Chuckerbarti and Joy Gopal Ghosha for the Appellants.

Babu Sarat Chandra Dutt for the Respondents.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the Plaintiff to recover from the principal Defendants certain arrears of rent in respect of a howla which he alleged in his plaint they owned and held within his property. It appears that the howla in respect of which the suit was brought belonged to one Fuzal Rahman who was murdered in Sraban 1300 or July 1897. The Defendant No. 3 is the widow of Fuzal Rahman and the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 are his brothers. The three Defendants are the heirs of the deceased Fuzal Rahman and the Plaintiff sued to recover from them the rent due from the howla up to and since the death of Fuzal Rahman on the ground that as his heirs they succeeded him as tenants of the holding and were in possession, and they had not since surrendered the holding. The Defendants

MOAZAM HASSAIN CHOWDHURI v. BROUDDIN.

Nos. 1 and 2 denied that they had ever entered into possession of the holding or that the relationship of landlord and tenant existed between them and Plaintiff, and disclaimed all liability for the rent claimed.

The Defendants as heirs of their deceased brother would ordinarily have inherited with his widow the property left by him including the holding and if they accepted the inheritance they would be liable to the Plaintiff for the rent which accrued up to the death of their brother and subsequently of the holding unless they surrendered the same to him. The question then on which the decision of the suit chiefly turned was whether or not the Defendants accepted the inheritance from their brother.

The Munsif appears to have found that the Defendants accepted the inheritance at least in part and holding that a renunciation pleaded in defence to an action of this sort could not be less than a complete renunciation of the inheritance he has found that the Defendants accepted the inheritance subject to all the liabilities. And one of these is the liability to pay rent for the holding in suit unless the holding be surrendered. There is no suggestion that there was any formal surrender of the holding to the landlord and therefore the Munsif has held that the two Defendants equally with the widow are liable to the Plaintiff for the rent of the holding.

The District Judge in reversing the judgment of the Munsif on appeal has only considered the question of Defendants' possession of the holding in suit and has disregarded entirely the question whether they accepted or renounced the inheritance. As we are aware of no authority for the proposition that there can be a partial acceptance or renunciation or that one of several heirs can accept a part only of an inheritance to the prejudice possibly of the other heirs and of the creditors of the deceased, an acceptance in part would have the effect of an acceptance of the whole, and would carry with it the same liabilities. There can be no doubt that if the Defendants accepted the inheritance in whole or in part they are bound to discharge the liabilities which attached to the late tenant from whom they inherited unless they can prove that they have since made a formal surrender of the holding to the landlord. As already noticed there is no suggestion in this case that there was such a surrender. The question of possession on which the District Judge has decided the case does not cover the whole points in issue in the suit, but is of importance only as indicative of acceptance or renunciation of the inheritance.

The appeal is accordingly remanded to the District Judge to decide on the evidence the question whether the Defendants accepted or renounced the inheritance devolving on them on the death of their brother so as to render them liable to the landlord for the rent of the holding in suit accruing before and after the death of their brother.

The District Judge will re-submit the appeal with his finding on this issue within a month after the arrival of the records in his Court.*

Appeal allowed :

Case remanded,

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2549 of 1898.

RAGHU NATH GHOSHAL,
 Plaintiff, Appellant,
 v.
 1900. MAFAKBEAR HOSSAIN CHOW-
 DHURY, and others,
 8, August. Defendants, Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 206, 622, 623—Order amending decree—Appeal—Second appeal—Review.

An order under sec. 206, C. P. C., amending a decree is not a decree and no appeal lies against such an order and the proper remedy is by an application under sec. 622, Civ. P. C.

SURTA v. GANGA (3) referred to and followed; JOY KISHEN MOOKERJEE v. ATAOR
 ROHMAN (2) referred to; KALI PROSUNNO
 BASU v. LAL MOHUN GUHA (1) distinguished;
 ABDUL HAYAT KHAN v. CHUIA KUAR
 (4); MUHAMMAD SULAIMAN KHAN v.
 FATIMA (5) explained.

This was an appeal preferred on the 15th of December 1898, against the decree of Babu Kedar Nath Mozumdar, Subordinate Judge of Burdwan, dated the 7th of September 1898, preferred on appeal from the decision of Babu Basanta Kumar Ghosh, Munsif of Kalna, dated 7th of February 1898.

The question for determination in this appeal was whether an order under sec.
 206, C. P. C., for the amendment of decree is appealable or not and whether a second appeal lay in this case against the decree of the lower Appellate Court passed on appeal against such an order. The facts will appear from the judgment.

Babu Jogesh Chandra Roy for the Appellant.

Moulvie Mahomed Yusuf and Mahomed Mahomed Tahir for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal against the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Burdwan dated the 7th September 1898. This decision disallows an appeal to him against an order of the Munsif of Kalna dated 7th February 1898, under sec. 206 amending a decree of the Additional Munsif of Kalna, dated the 17th September 1891, which, in his opinion, was not in conformity with the judgment. The Subordinate Judge dismissed the appeal preferred to him on the ground that the Munsif's order amending the decree was right.

Against this dismissal of his appeal the Plaintiff now prefers this second appeal.

We are of opinion that no second appeal lies to us against an order under sec. 206. An order under sec. 206 is not a decree. No provision for an appeal from such an order is made in sec. 588.
 Hence, it would seem that no appeal lay to the Subordinate Judge and no second appeal lies to us. The Plaintiff's remedy, if any, would seem to be by an application under sec. 622.

The learned pleader for the Appellant,
 however, cites the case of Kali Prosunno Basu v. Lal Mohun Guha (1), and contends that it is therein decided that an order amending a decree is the same thing as a review of judgment. This does not appear to us to have been laid down in that judgment. The learned Judges who

(1) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 258 (1897).

(1) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 258 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 6 Cal. 22 (1880).

(3) I. L. R. 7 All. 875 (1885).

(4) I. L. R. 8 All. 377 (1886).

(5) I. L. R. 11 All. 314 (1889).

RAGHU NATH GHOSHAL v. MATAKSHAR HOSSAIN CHOWDHURY.

decided that case held that a certain order might be treated as a review of judgment within the meaning of Art. 179 of the Limitation Act, so that a decree-holder might execute his decree within 3 years of the date of its amendment. That appears to be all that was decided in that case.

On the other hand, in Joy Kishen Mookerjee v. Atanor Rohoman (2), a clear distinction appears to be drawn between an order under sec. 206 and a review of judgment. In Surta v. Ganga (3), it was expressly held that no appeal lies from an order under sec. 206. In Abdul Hayai Khan v. Chua Kuar (4) and Muhammad Sulaiman Khan v. Fatima (5), appeals were allowed, because the orders appealed against were orders passed in execution and were therefore orders passed under sec. 214 and appealable. In both these cases it appears to be implied that there is no appeal against an order under sec. 206.

In this case there is this further reason for holding that the order of the Munsif was not a review of judgment, that the Munsif who amended the decree was not the Munsif who passed the original decree which was subsequently amended, and there does not seem to have been any clerical error apparent on the face of the decree so as to make the second Munsif competent to review his predecessor's decree under sec. 624, C. P. C.

We must therefore dismiss this appeal with costs, and this order will govern Special Appeal No. 2550 of 1898 which is of a similar character.

S. C. S.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) I. L. R. 6 Cal. 22 (1880).

(3) I. L. R. 7 All. 875 (1885).

(4) I. L. R. 8 All. 877 (1886).

(5) I. L. R. 11 All. 314 (1889).

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[APPEAL FROM ALLAHABAD.]

LORD HOBHOUSE.

LORD DAVEY.

BANARASI PARSHAD

LORD ROBERTSON.

v.

SIR R. COUCH.

KASHI KRISHN

1900.

NARAIN and Heard, 21, Nov.

another.

Judgment, 8, Dec.,

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of secs. 595, 596 and 600—Appeal to Privy Council—Substantial point of law—Certificate of High Court—Assent of Respondent to the appeal.

Under sec. 596, Civ. P. C., there is no right of appeal to the Privy Council simply on the ground that a substantial point of law is involved. The presence of such a question does not give a right of appeal when the value is below the mark; the requirement of it restricts the right when the higher Court affirms the lower and the dispute either directly or indirectly relates to an amount of Rs. 10,000.

Under secs. 595 and 600, Civ. P. C. there is a right of appeal if the High Court certifies that the case is "otherwise" a fit one for appeal. The word "otherwise" refers to special cases, such as, where the point in dispute is not measurable by money, though it may be of great public or private importance. But in all such cases a special certificate to that effect must be granted by the High Court.

The mere assent of the Respondent to an appeal, does not give the Appellant a right of appeal, which the Code does not allow, or sustain a certificate which is obviously erroneous.

* This was an appeal from a decision of the Allahabad High Court reversing that of the Sub-Judge of Bareilly.

BANARASI PERSHAD v. KASHI KRISHEN NARAIN.

The suit was brought to recover from the Respondents the sum of Rs. 14,332 as due on account of mesne profits and interest thereon. The Sub-Judge gave the Plaintiff a decree for Rs. 13,975-1-9. On appeal by the Respondents to the High Court the decree was varied reducing the amount of mesne profits awarded to Plaintiff from Rs. 13,975-1-9 to Rs. 10,066-15-2. So that the matter involved in the appeal to Her Majesty in Council was entirely limited to a sum under Rs. 4,000.

The questions raised involved the interpretation of secs. 43 and 44 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Mr. Ross for the Appellant contended that those sections had been erroneously construed by the High Court. That the cause of action for the suit decided on 1st December 1890, was not the same as the cause of action for the present suit. That the cause of action for mesne profits was different from the cause of action for recovery of the land. A separate suit for the recovery of mesne profits lies. Mr. Ross referred to secs. 43 and 44, C. P. C., relying on Lalessor Babui v. Junki Bibi (1); he also referred to Ven Koba v. Subbanna (2) those being the cases mentioned in the judgment of the High Court, also to secs. 8, 9 and 10 of Act VIII of 1859.

SIR RICHARD COUCH.—If you sue for mesne profits must you not sue for the whole amount due.

Mr. Ross.—I did not sue for Wasilat but for 2 years rent.

SIR RICHARD COUCH referred to secs. 211 and 219, C. P. C.

THE COURT.—The appeal is for a sum much under the appealable amount, what power had the High Court to grant leave to appeal.

Mr. Ross.—It involves a substantial question of law and it has come up in the usual way. It was not objected to.

No one appeared for the Respondents.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD HOBHOUSE.—It will be remembered that the argument on the merits of the case was broken off because the property at stake is not such as to give a right of appeal. The amount in question is little more than Rs. 4,000. When this was called to Mr. Ross's attention, he relied on the allegation that a substantial point of law is involved. Their Lordships have found on previous occasions that the existence of a point of law has been supposed to give a right of appeal in the ordinary course of procedure under the Code. That is a mistake. Sec. 596 of the Code requires that in order to give such a right there must be in dispute either directly or indirectly an amount of Rs. 10,000. If the decree affirms the Court below, another condition is affixed, viz., that the appeal must involve some substantial question of law. The presence of such a question does not give a right when the value is below the mark; the requirement of it restricts the right when the higher decree affirms the lower.

It is true that by secs. 595 and 600 an appeal may be granted if the High Court certifies that the case is fit for appeal "otherwise," i.e., when not meeting the conditions of sec. 596. That is clearly intended to meet special cases; such, for example, as those in which the point in dispute is not measurable by money, though it may be of great public or private importance. To certify that a case is of that kind, though it is left entirely in the discretion of the Court, is a judicial process which could not be performed without special exercise of that discretion, evinced by the fitting certificate.

(1) 1. L. R. 19 Cal. 615 (1891).

1. L. R. 11 Mad. 151 (1887).

BANARASI PERSHAD v. KASHI KRISHEN NARAIN.

No such certificate has been given in this case. The certificate runs, "That as regards the nature of the case, it fulfils the requirements of sec. 596 of Act No. XIV of 1882." But it does not fulfil them on account of its small value.

Mr. Ross says that the Defendant was served with notice, and, not appearing, must be taken to have assented. It is quite possible that owing to the Defendant's non-appearance the defect in value was overlooked; but even if non-appearance could be taken to signify assent, it cannot give to the Plaintiff a right of appeal which the Code does not allow, or sustain a certificate which from some oversight or other is obviously erroneous. Whether, if the learned Judges had been asked to say that notwithstanding its small value the case was a fit one for appeal to the Queen in Council, they would have said so, may well be doubted, seeing that Mr. Ross, whose argument had advanced to some length before the point of value was observed, had not in impressing their Lordships with the importance of his legal objection to the decree. What is certain is that the learned Judges were not asked by the Plaintiff to do, and have not done, anything of the kind. And as it is of great importance not to allow litigants who have succeeded in the High Courts to be harassed by further appeals, when there is nothing at stake but amounts of money which the Indian Legislature has decided to be too small to give a right of appeal, their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty to dismiss this appeal.

Solicitors: Messrs. Barrow, Rogers & Nevill for the Appellant.

Appeal dismissed.

C. W. A.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2527 of 1899,

AND

RULE No. 287 of 1899.

AMEER ALI, J.	SURJAMONI DASSEE
BRETT, J.	and others,
1900.	v.
25, June.	KALI KANTA DAS
	and others.

Hindu Law—Marriage—Restitution of conjugal rights—Minor wife—Decree—Restoration to caste and position as wife—Adjournment—Practice—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 35.

A suit for restitution of conjugal rights between Hindus is maintainable.

BAZLOOR RUHEEM v. SHUMSOONNISSA BEGUM (1), CHOTUN BIBEE v. AMEER CHAND (2), KOOBUR KHANSAMA v. JAN KHANSAMA (3), MELARAM NUDIAL v. THANOORAM BAMUN (4), KOROONAMOYEE DABEE v. GANGADHUR SURMAH (5), LALL

(1) 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867).

(2) 6 W. R. 105 (1866).

(3) 8 W. R. 467 (1867).

(4) 9 W. R. 552 (1868).

* (5) 20 W. R. 50 (1873).

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

NATH MISSEER v. SHEOBURN PANDEY (6), GATHA RAM v. MOOHITA KOCHIN (7), JOGENDRANANDINI DOSSEE v. HURRY DOSS GHOSE (8), XAMUNABAI v. NARAYAN MORESHVAR (9), DADAJI BHIKAJI v. RUKMA-BAI (10), BAI SARI v. SANKLA HIRA CHAND (12), FAKIRGAUDA v. GANGI (13), PAIGI v. SHEONARAIN (14) and BINDA v. KAUNSLIA (15) referred to.

Such a suit would lie against a minor wife, if she is of sufficient age to perform her conjugal duties.

SUNTOSH RAM DOSS v. GERA PATTUCK (16), KALEERAM DOKANEE v. MUSST. GENDHANEE (17), BINDA v. KAUNSLIA (15), FAKIRGAUDA v. GANGI (13) and BOZLOOR RUHEEM v. SHUMSOONNISSA BEGUM (1) referred to.

Art. 35, Sch. II of the Limitation Act does not apply to suits for restitution of conjugal rights between Hindus.

Where the minor wife, under the influence of her relatives, has lost caste by living with another person as his wife, a decree for restitution of conjugal rights should not be passed, except upon the condition, that the husband should make all the arrangements necessary for the restoration of the wife to caste and to her position as his wife in his household.

BUZLOOR RUHEEM v. SHUMSOONNISSA

(1) 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867).

(6) 20 W. R. 92 (1873).

(7) 23 W. R. 179 (1875).

(8) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 500 (1879).

(9) I. L. R. 1 Bom. 164 (1876).

(10) I. L. R. 10 Bom. 301 (1886).

(12) I. L. R. 16 Bom. 714 (1892).

(13) I. L. R. 23 Bom. 307 (1893).

(14) I. L. R. 8 All. 78 (1885).

(15) I. L. R. 13 All. 126 (1890).

(16) 23 W. R. 22 (1874).

(17) 23 W. R. 178 (1875).

BEGUM (1), PAIGI v. SHEONARAIN (14) and JOGENDRANANDINI DOSSEE v. HURRY DOSS GHOSE (8) referred to.

In a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, where the validity and legality of the marriage is one of the most essential points in issue, no presumption arises from the mere fact that the marriage was celebrated, that all the rites and ceremonies necessary to constitute a legal and valid marriage were performed.

INDERUN v. RAMA SWAMY (20), BRINDABUN CHANDRA v. CHANDRA KURMOKAR (21) and ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL OF MADRAS v. ANANDACHARI (22) referred to.

If such a marriage was actually and properly celebrated the absence of the consent of the person whose consent ought to have been obtained would not make it illegal or invalid.

BAEE RULYUT v. JEYCHAND (19) referred to.

Where the Defendants' failure to have all their witnesses in attendance was due to a belief, induced in them by the previous procedure of the Court in the case, that there was no chance of all their witnesses who were present being examined on that day, and such belief was not unreasonable, the Court would exercise a sound and wise discretion in granting an adjournment.

AKIKUNNISSA BIBI v. RUP LAL DAS (23) distinguished.

(1) 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867).

(8) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 500 (1879).

(14) I. L. R. 8 All. 78 (1885).

(19) Bellais 43 : s. c. 1 Mor. N. S. 181 (1843).

(20) 12 W. R. 41 P. C. (1869).

(21) I. L. R. 12 Cal. 140 (1885).

(22) I. L. R. 9 Mad. 466 (1886).

(23) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 807 (1898).

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

This was an appeal preferred on the 14th of December 1899, against the decree of Babu Upendra Narain Ghosh, Subordinate Judge of Jalpaiguri, in Zillah Rungpore, dated the 20th November 1899, affirming the decree of Babu Kanti Chander Mukerji, Munsif of Jalpaiguri, dated the 11th October 1898.

The facts of the case and the arguments addressed to the Court appear very fully from the judgment.

Babu Pramatha Nath Sen for the Appellants.

Babu Nalini Ranjan Chatterji for the Respondents.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The Plaintiff in this case is a Hindu of the Rajbungsi caste. He has brought this suit for restitution of conjugal rights against Defendant No. 1 (who is described in the plaint as a minor) through her next friend and guardian, her paternal grandmother. He has joined as Defendants in the suit the paternal grandmother as Defendant No. 2, Bishumbhur Das as Defendant No. 3, who is alleged by the defence to have contracted a marriage with Defendant No. 1, and Amir Chand Das and Gobind Das as Defendants Nos. 4 and 5 who are described as uncles of Defendant No. 1 and her nearest male agnates.

The allegations in the plaint are that Defendant No. 1 was given in marriage to the Plaintiff in Joista 1303 by Defendant No. 2 her paternal grandmother and next of kin and guardian : that the marriage was performed with all the customary rites, as required by the Shastras and the caste to which the parties belong, and that from the time of the marriage to Joista 1304 Plaintiff lived in the house of Defendant No. 2 with Defendant No. 1 and cohabited with her as his wife. It is stated that in Joista 1304 the Defendant No. 2 at the instigation of Defendants Nos. 4 and 5 drove Plaintiff out of her house, denied the marriage of Defendant No. 1 with him, and refused to let Defendant No. 1 go and live with him. Defendant No. 1 also refused to go and live with the Plaintiff. The motive of the Defendants Nos. 4 and 5 is suggested to be to appropriate some jote jama land belonging to Defendant No. 1 and in order to carry out their object they are said to have caused Defendant No. 3 to be introduced into the house of Defendant No. 2 with the object of marrying him to Defendant No. 1. Plaintiff therefore alleged that Defendant No. 1 being his legal wife was legally liable to come under his protection and to live in cohabitation with him and the other Defendants have no right or power to dissuade the Defendant No. 1 or keep her back therefrom. He accordingly prayed for a decree declaring his marriage to be valid and directing Defendant No. 1 to go and live with him.

A written statement was put in by Defendants Nos. 1, 2, and 3 alleging :—

1. That Defendant No. 1 was not the legally married wife of Plaintiff ; 2. That the suit was not legally maintainable against the Defendant No. 1 ; 3. That Defendant No. 1 had been married to Bishumbhur Das, Defendant No. 3 ; and 4. That the suit was brought in order to get possession of the property of Defendant No. 1.

Issues were fixed by the Munsif and

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

the suit came on for hearing on the 27th September. Witnesses for the Plaintiff were examined from the 27th to the 30th September. On the 1st October it was adjourned to the 3rd October. The examination of Plaintiff's last witness was completed on that day and the Defendant applied for one day's adjournment to produce their witnesses. One day's time was allowed. On the 4th October, however, the case was not taken up as the Court was engaged in other work and on the 5th October to which date it was adjourned one witness for the Defendant was examined. On the 6th October four witnesses for the Defendant were examined and the Defendants then put in a petition praying for a day's adjournment on the ground that owing to the delay in the trial their witnesses had gone away and had not returned as it was not expected that the examination of the witnesses who were present would be concluded that day. The prayer was refused and the case disposed of. The Munsif after discussing the evidence in his judgment states his finding in the following terms:—"From the evidence and circumstances of the case I am inclined to hold that the Plaintiff was lawfully married to Defendant No. 1. *Previously in his judgment he remarks "A cursory perusal of the evidence on the Defendant's side would convince any one that the marriage of Defendant No. 1 was not celebrated with Defendant No. 3." He finds that Plaintiff is entitled to the relief prayed for and in decreeing the suit with costs and interest he orders "that the Plaintiff was lawfully married to Defendant No. 1 and he is entitled to restitution of conjugal rights and the Defendant No. 1 shall present herself to the Plaintiff within a fortnight for that purpose."

The Defendant appealed. The grounds of appeal appear to have been 1. That there was no legal marriage between the Plaintiff and Defendant No. 1 and therefore he was not entitled to any decree for restitution of conjugal rights.

2. That the suit was not maintainable against Defendant No. 1, as she was a minor.

3. That the lower Court was wrong in not granting an adjournment to Defendants so as to enable them to produce the rest of his witnesses.

4. That there was no demand by Plaintiff to Defendant No. 1 and refusal by Defendant No. 1; and 5. That having regard to the provisions of Art 35, Sch. II of the Limitation Act the suit was not maintainable.

The findings of the Sub-Judge were against the Defendant on all the points and he dismissed the appeal with costs. Defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3 have appealed and in this Court the contentions have been,

1. That the suit is not maintainable against Defendant No. 1, who is admittedly a minor, regard being had to the provisions of Art. 35 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act.

2. That the Courts below have both failed to find what rites and ceremonies were necessary to constitute a legal marriage in the Rajbungsai caste, to which the parties belong and that those rites and ceremonies were performed in the case of the alleged marriage between Plaintiff and Defendant No. 1 so as to constitute a valid marriage.

*
SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

3. That the Munsif in refusing to grant the adjournment prayed for by the Defendant for the examination of her witnesses failed to exercise a sound and wise discretion and that the Defendants have been prejudiced thereby and

4. That a suit for restitution of conjugal rights does not lie in the case of Hindus.

It will be convenient to consider, first, the 1st and 4th points. The learned pleader for the Appellant admits that so far as Bombay and the N.-W. P. are concerned the High Courts of Bombay and Allahabad have held that a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights will lie in the case of Hindus. His suggestion is that in this Court the question has never been in contest and that it has been assumed rather than directly held that such a suit would lie. We are unable to accept his contention. The learned pleaders on both sides have referred us to the various cases in the different High Courts in which restitution of conjugal rights has been sought by a husband. On going through them we find as follows:—

In Bengal there does not appear to have ever been any doubt that under the Hindu law a husband had a right to have brought under his protection a wife who had either run away from his house or who was being kept from coming to his house by other persons. The only matters about which there appears to have been doubt were, what form of suit the husband could bring for relief and by what Courts such a suit would be heard. In the case of Bazloor Ruheem v. Shamsunnissa Begum (1) the Privy Council set at rest the latter question and decided that a suit for restitution of conjugal rights whether brought under the Mahomedan or Hindu law could be entertained by the civil Courts in India.

As regards the form of suit which a husband should bring for the recovery of his wife it was decided by this Court in the case of Chotun Bibee v. Ameer Chand (2) that a suit will not lie by a husband to recover possession of the person of his wife, but a suit will lie in the nature of a suit for restitution of conjugal rights. Some doubt having arisen as to the form in which a decree in a suit of this nature should be framed it was held by this Court, (Loch, J. and Dwarka Nath Mitter, J.), following the principle laid down in the case referred to above, that the form of the decree in such a suit should be that the Plaintiff is entitled to his conjugal rights and that his lawful wife be directed to return to his protection, Koobur Khansama v. Jan Khansama (3), and the same two Judges arrived at a similar decision in the case of Melaram Nudial v. Thanooram Bamun (4). Subsequently it was held in the case of Karoonamoyee Dabee v. Gungadhur Surmah (5) that a decree requiring a wife to return to her husband is not illegal and is in conformity with what is asked for in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights and in another case reported at page 92 of the same volume [Lall Nath Misser v. Sheoburn Pandey (6)] it was held that an order to third parties to send back the Plaintiff's wife

(2) 6 W. R. 105 (1866).

(3) 8 W. R. 467 (1867).

(4) 9 W. R. 552 (1868).

(5) 20 W. R. 50 (1873).

(6) 20 W. R. 92 (1873).

(1) 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867).

SURJAMONI DASSER v. KALI KANTA DAS.

with her jewels could hardly issue without an order to the wife to return to her husband. These cases all support the view that a suit for restitution of conjugal rights among Hindus is maintainable and in the case of Gatha Ram Mistree v. Moolita Kochin (7) the Judges (Markby, J., and Romesh Chandra Mitter, J.) held that there was neither doubt nor difficulty in saying that such a suit would lie. A similar view was held by the Judges (Garth, C. J., and Pontifex, J.), who decided the case of Jogendrananlini v. Hurry Doss Ghose (8), though in that case they thought fit to impose a condition on the husband that he should provide a house for the reception of his wife such as would be in every respect fit for the reception of a virtuous and respectable wife.

The cases heard in the Bombay High Court show that it has all along been held that a suit would lie against a wife by a Hindu husband for restitution of conjugal rights and for damages and injunction against those harbouring her, Yamunabai v. Narayan Moreskhar Pendse (9). In the well known case of Dadaji Bhikaji v. Rukmabai (10) it was held that a suit for restitution of conjugal rights was maintainable and that Courts cannot with due regard to consistency and uniformity of practice (except perhaps under the most special circumstances) recognise any plea of justification other than a marital offence by the complaining party, as was held to be the only grounds on which the divorce Court in England would refuse relief in Scott v. Scott (11). It is to be observed that in that case it was held that the suit would lie equally for institution as for restitution of conjugal rights. The same view was entertained in the case of Bai Sari v. Sankla Hira Chand (12) and Fakirgauda v. Gangi (13).

In the Allahabad High Court it was held in the case of Paigi v. Sheonarain (14) that a suit for restitution of conjugal rights among Hindus was maintainable though the Honorable Judges expressed the opinion that whereas in that case there were special circumstances requiring such a course, a civil Court was entitled, while recognizing the civil right of the husband to his wife, to put such conditions on the enforcement of his rights by legal process as the circumstances of the case might fairly demand. And again in the later case of Binda v. Kaunsilia (15) in which the law and authorities on the subject are reviewed by Mr. Justice Mahmood in a careful and elaborate judgment, it was definitely laid down that the civil Court of British India can properly entertain a suit between Hindus for the restitution of conjugal rights and that it was not necessary as a condition precedent to such suits, the parties being Hindus, that there should be any demand by the Plaintiff and refusal by the Defendant.

All these cases leave in our minds no doubt that a suit for restitution of conjugal rights between Hindus is maintainable and we are therefore unable to accept

(7) 23 W. R. 179 (1875).

(8) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 500 (1879).

(9) I. L. R. 1 Bom. 164 (1876).

(10) I. L. R. 10 Bom. 301 (1886).

(11) Amb. 383 (1859).

(12) I. L. R. 16 Bom. 714 (1892).

(13) I. L. R. 23 Bom. 307 (1898).

(14) I. L. R. 8 All. 78 (1885).

(15) I. L. R. 13 All. 126 (1900).

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

the contention of the learned pleader for the Appellant that such a suit would not lie.

The authorities to which we have been referred, namely, Mr. Banerjee's lectures on the Hindu Law of Marriage, 2nd Edition, p. 141, and Mayne on Hindu Law and Usage, sec. 91, fully support this view.

The next question raised is whether such a suit is maintainable by a Hindu husband against his minor wife, having regard to Art. 33, Sch. II of the Limitation Act. On this point the view taken by Mr. Banerjee in his lectures on Hindu Law and Marriage is that, where the wife is qualified by her age to perform her conjugal duties, the proper remedy for a husband in a case where the wife refuses to live under his protection is a suit for restitution of conjugal rights. And in the case of Suntosh Ram Doss v. Gera Pattuck (16) it appears to have been assumed that such a suit would lie, as it was held that where there is a custom that a child wife should not go to live with her husband till a certain event happened the Court was right in refusing a decree for restitution of conjugal rights until such an event had happened.

That a Hindu husband has the right of guardianship over his minor wife cannot be doubted and in the case of Kaleoram Dokanee v. Musatt. Gendhanee (17) the Judges of this Court (Markby, J., and Romesh Chandra Mitter, J.) held that according to Hindu law, after marriage a husband is the legal guardian of his wife's person and property whether she is a minor or not. The marriage of an infant being under the Hindu law a legal and complete marriage the husband has the same right as in other cases to demand that the wife shall reside in the same house with him, except upon tangible and definite grounds which show that under the special circumstances of the case the wife is absolved from this duty, and the Judges remarked that they could not say without contravening the Hindu law that the infancy of the wife constituted such a ground, though they thought it might be right in the case of a very young girl to require the husband to show that she would be placed by him under the immediate care of some female member of his family. If as legal guardian of the person and property of his minor wife a Hindu husband is entitled under the law to insist that she shall live with him, it seems useless to argue that he is not entitled to similar relief in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, if the wife has attained an age at which she is considered fit to discharge her conjugal duties, though in the eye of the law she may still be a minor.

In the case of Binda v. Kaunsilia (15) it was held that Art. 35 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act could not be held to apply to such suits, but that the limitation applicable was Art. 120, Sch. II read with sec. 23 of that Act. In the Bombay High Court a contrary view was expressed in the case of Fakirgauda v. Gangi (13), but in that case it was held that the demand and refusal contemplated by Art. 35 of Sch. II of the Limitation

(16) 23 W. R. 22 (1874).

(17) 23 W. R. 178 (1875).

(13) I. L. R. 23 Bom. 307 (1898).

(15) I. L. R. 13 All. 126 (1890).

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

Act must be a demand to and a refusal by a wife being of full age and sound mind, and that it would not run in the case of a minor.

There seems to be little doubt that the Legislature in framing Art. 35 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act had not in contemplation the fact that a suit for restitution of conjugal rights would under the Hindu law lie against a minor wife, but at the same time there can be no doubt that Limitation Act is not intended to define or create causes of action but simply to prescribe the period within which existing rights may be enforced in the Courts of law [Jivi v. Ramji (18)] and the Privy Council have laid down with sufficient emphasis in the case of Bazloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum (1) that in suits regarding marriage and caste and all religious usages the Hindu law with regard to Hindus is to be considered as the general rules by which Judges are to form their decisions.

In this case the lower Courts have both found that the Defendant No. 1 is of a sufficient age to be fit to live with her husband as his wife and if all the facts as alleged on behalf of the Plaintiff in this case are proved, we are of opinion that we are bound, by the balance of the authorities to which we have referred, to hold that the present suit for the restitution of conjugal rights against the Defendant No. 1 brought by the Plaintiff is maintainable, in spite of the fact that she is still in the eye of the law a minor. We must therefore decide this point against the Appellant.

There is, however, one point with regard to suits of this nature which we think we ought to notice as it appears to arise out of the facts in this case and not to have received direct attention in cases previously tried. We think that there can be no doubt that the law contemplated, when a decree in a suit of this nature is passed directing a wife to return to her husband, that the wife should return to her position as a wife in the household. We mention this because there are undoubtedly certain acts which if committed by a wife during her absence from her husband would have the effect of at least placing her out of caste. Amongst these would certainly be cohabitation with another man as his wife. In this case the Defendant No. 1, who is almost hardly more than a girl and seems to be quite under the influence of her relatives, is alleged to have been living for some time with Defendant No. 3 as his wife. If this be a fact there seems little doubt that a mere decree of a civil Court directing her to return to her husband could not of itself restore her to her position as wife of the Plaintiff in his household as she would be out of caste. The learned pleader for the Respondent has assured us that the restoration to caste would be a simple matter and would be arranged by the Plaintiff as a matter of course. This may be the case, but there can be no doubt that if the Defendant No. 1 were not restored to caste she would be placed in a position of serfdom in the house of the Plaintiff. We do not believe that it is contemplated by the law that such should be the result of a decree issued by a civil Court in a case of this nature.

Their Lordships of the Privy Council

(1) 11 M. I. A. 551 (1867).

(18) I. L. R. 3 Bom. 209 (1879).

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

in the case of Buzloor Ryheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum (1) laid down that there may be cases in which the Court would qualify its interference by imposing terms on the husband. In the case of Paigi v. Sheonarain (14), the Hon'ble Judges of the Allahabad High Court followed that view and imposed conditions on the husband; and, similarly also, the Hon'ble Judges of this Court imposed certain conditions on the husband in the case of Jogendranandini v. Hurry Doss Ghose (8).

In this case the Defendant No. 1 appears to have some landed property; whether that fact has or has not had any influence on the institution of this suit we do not pretend to say. But in a case like the present where the Defendant is a mere girl and where, if she has been put out of caste, the act involving the loss of caste has been done under the influence of others, a Court passing a decree directing her return to her husband should be careful to see that the decree is not made use of simply for the purpose of obtaining her property and reducing her to a state of serfdom in the house of her husband. It would seem in such a case to be a necessary condition to impose on the Plaintiff, when granting the decree, that he should make all the arrangements necessary for the restoration of the Defendant to caste and to her position as his wife in his household—supposing it to be a fact that she has become out of caste.

As regards the second point taken by the learned pleader for the Appellant it is necessary to notice the findings of the two lower Courts as regards the question whether there was a legal marriage between the Plaintiff and the Defendant No. 1. If such a marriage was actually and properly celebrated it would be legal and binding although it had been performed without the consent of the uncles, supposing that their consent ought to have been previously obtained, (see Mayne, para. 9, and the case of Bae Rulgut v. Jeychand (19), on which the dictum is based). The question whether the uncles consented to the marriage, if there was a legal marriage, or not, which was raised by the pleader for the Appellant, would not appear therefore to be of importance under the circumstances of this case. The Munsif in his judgment says "From the evidence on both sides it appears that the most essential ingredients in the marriage of the Rajbungsî caste to which the parties belong are that a barber and two bairatis should officiate in the ceremony. In the case of well-to-do persons priests are engaged to perform the religious parts of the ceremony. A man is employed to throw water and he is called the mistar but his presence is not indispensably necessary. The Plaintiff examined the priest, the barber, one of the two bairatis, the mistar, the marriage broker and others to prove his marriage with Defendant No. 1. If their evidence be believed then it is to be held that the Plaintiff married Defendant No. 1."

Having thus stated what he considered to be the essentials of the marriage he subsequently came to the following conclusion:—"From the evidence and circumstances of the case I am inclined to

(1) 11 M. L. A. 551, 615 (1867).

(8) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 500 (1879).

(14) I. L. R. 8 All. 78 (1885).

(19) Bellais 43: s. c. 1 Mor. N. S. 181 (1843).

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

hold that the Plaintiff was legally married to Defendant No. 1."

In this judgment there is no statement of the rites and ceremonies necessary to constitute a legal marriage in the Rajbungsi caste. The persons whose attendance was necessary, presumably to perform these ceremonies, are mentioned, but there is no finding how or whether the ceremonies were performed. The Sub-Judge in appeal records the following finding:—"As to the fact of marriage between Defendant No. 1 and Plaintiff, I hold after careful perusal and weighing of all proofs and probabilities on both sides that the lower Court has rightly held that such marriage had taken place in due form of Hindu Rajbungsi caste to which they belong. That being so it should be seen if there be any legal bar against Plaintiff getting a decree in the suit." Subsequently holding that there was no such bar he dismissed the appeal.

The Sub-Judge does not definitely find what rites and ceremonies were necessary to constitute a legal marriage between the parties or whether they had been performed.

Three rulings are relied on by the Respondent to support the view that no special finding, on those points were necessary and that the fact of the celebration of the marriage having been proved it should be presumed that the necessary rites were performed.

The first is one, Inderun v. Rama Swamy (20), in which their Lordships of the Privy Council held that when once you get to this that there was a marriage in fact, there would be a presumption in favour of there being a marriage in law. The question in that case however was whether there could be any legal marriage between the parties, the Pundits having held that there could not. The opinion of the Pundits was not accepted by the Privy Council. This was apparently a case of inheritance. The second case is that of Brindabun Chandra v. Chandra Kurmohar (21) in which the Hon'ble Judges of this Court (Norris and Ghose, JJ.) held in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights that the fact of the celebration of the marriage having been established the presumption in the absence of anything to the contrary is that all the necessary ceremonies have been complied with. In that case, however, there appears to have been findings by both the lower Courts with regard to the rites and ceremonies performed at the alleged marriage and on those materials the Judges of this Court who heard the case were able to arrive at an independent opinion and at a finding, reversing the findings of both the lower Courts. In this case there are absolutely no materials to enable us to come to any finding on this point.

In the third case, Administrator-General of Madras v. Anandachari (22), the Judges followed the ruling in the last-mentioned case and held that the fact of the celebration of marriage being admitted the presumption would be that all necessary ceremonies were performed in the absence of evidence to the contrary. That case was also one in which a question of inheritance was involved.

However much, such a presumption may be taken as rightly arising in cases involving questions of inheritance, so as to avoid illegitimacy, we cannot agree that in a case like the present it could have the effect to which the learned pleader for the Respondent would wish us to give it. In this case the validity and legality of the marriage is one of the most essential points in issue and we cannot hold that we are entitled to presume from the mere finding that the marriage was celebrated, that all the rites and ceremonies necessary to constitute a legal and valid marriage were performed. On this point the lower Courts should have come to a distinct finding.

(21) I. L. R. 12 Cal. 140 (1885).

(22) I. L. R. 9 Mad. 468 (1886).

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

It remains to consider lastly the third point raised in the appeal, viz., whether the Munsif in refusing to grant the adjournment prayed for by the Defendants for the examination of their witnesses failed to exercise a sound and wise discretion and whether the Defendants have been prejudiced thereby. From the ordersheet of the case in the Munsif's Court it would appear that when the case came on for hearing the Munsif commenced by following a practice, which is not uncommon in the mofussil Courts when a number of witnesses are offered for examination in a contested suit, of taking up the case late in the day on several successive days and of examining one or two witnesses only on each day. This may occasionally suit the convenience of the presiding officer of the Court or may seem to him to be necessary having regard to the other current and possibly urgent work of the Court. But it is a course which this Court has always discouraged, and amongst its other and many disadvantages, it has the effect of leading the parties to believe that not more than one witness or possibly two witnesses, if their evidence is likely to be short, will be examined in a day and so to lead them, in order to save expense, not to keep all their witnesses in attendance but to bring them up day after day as it seems likely that they will be examined. This is what we are informed happened in this case. The Defendants were led to believe from the course adopted by the learned Munsif in examining the witnesses for the Plaintiff that their witnesses would be similarly examined in dribblets and in consequence they were not careful to have all their witnesses present on the 5th October. Four witnesses were present and it was thought that their examination would at least extend over one day if not over more. However on the 5th October the Munsif appears to have abandoned the dilatory procedure which he followed in the early stages of the trial and to have had all the 4 witnesses for the Defendants examined in succession on the same day. This is said to have taken the Defendants completely by surprise and when on the completion of the examination of the 4th witness they found that their other witnesses, who had gone away on account of the previous delay, had not returned, they put in an application praying for a day's adjournment only in order to secure their attendance. The Munsif rejected the application without recording any reason for his order and the Sub-Judge has held that he was right in not granting the indulgence asked for which the Defendants did not deserve. The Sub-Judge's reason for holding that the Defendants did not deserve the indulgence apparently was that they did not move the Court for an adjournment on the last dates of hearing until all the witnesses on their side were examined. He does not appear to have taken into consideration the explanation of the Defendants that they were taken by surprise by the sudden change of procedure adopted by the Munsif in the trial.

SURJAMONI DASSEE v. KALI KANTA DAS.

In our opinion, especially in a case like the present, where the decisions of the points in issue in the suit are of the greatest possible importance to Defendant No. 1 as in fact affecting possibly the whole of her future life, the Court of 1st instance should take the greatest care consistent with reason that a full opportunity is given to the Defendants to lay before the Court all the evidence they may be able to produce to support their defence. And, certainly, when a Court by its own procedure has lulled a party into a sense of false security, if afterwards, by a sudden change in procedure, it takes that party by surprise it ought not to refuse to that party a reasonable opportunity to recover from the false position in which he has been placed. The case of Akikunnissa Bibi v. Rup Lal Das (23) to which we have been referred does not appear to be on all fours with the present case. In this case Defendants' failure to have all their witnesses in attendance on the 5th October is said to have been due to a belief, induced in them by the previous procedure of the Munsif in the case, that there was no chance of all their witnesses who were present being examined on that day and as we are unable to hold that the belief of the Defendants in that respect was not reasonable, we differ from the Sub-Judge and are of opinion that the Munsif failed to exercise a wise and sound discretion when he refused to grant the application for an adjournment for one day only in order to secure the attendance of the absent witnesses. It is impossible for us with the facts before us to say that the evidence of the witnesses who were not examined could not have affected the merits of the case and we are unable therefore to hold that the error or irregularity of the Munsif is covered by the provisions of sec. 578, C. P. C.

Until the Defendants had had an opportunity of examining all their witnesses the questions of the legality and due performance of the alleged marriage also could not be satisfactorily determined.

We consider, therefore, that the judgments and decrees of the lower Courts cannot be maintained. We accordingly set them aside and direct that the suit be remanded to the Munsif with directions to give the Defendants reasonable opportunity and assistance to secure the attendance of their witnesses and after examining the witnesses who may be produced to dispose of the case on the whole evidence in view of the remarks contained in this judgment.

Costs to abide the result.

Having regard to the view we have taken of the appeal, no order is necessary in the Rule.

Appeal allowed : Case remanded.

S. C. S.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

RULE No. 1259 OF 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.	NABU BEPARI,
BANERJEE, J.	Petitioner,
	v.
HARINGTON, J.	SHEIKH MAHOMED
1900.	and another,
6, August.	Opposite Parties.

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), secs. 34, 41, 38-42—Guardianship, termination of—Guardian, liability of, after attainment of majority by ward—Power of District Judge—Jurisdiction.

The summary powers created by sec. 34 of the Guardians and Wards Act cease as soon as the minority of the ward ceases. The object of that section is to give the Court, as representing the interest of the minor, certain summary powers for the protection of his property during minority.

Sec. 41 cannot be construed into giving the Court, by summary procedure, a power to order accounts to be rendered after the termination of guardianship.

This was a rule issued on the 18th of May 1900, against the order of the District Judge of Dacca, dated the 28th of April 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. Hill and Babu Sarat Chandra Basack for the Petitioner.

Babus Ashutosh Dhur and Rajendra Nath Bose for the Opposite Party.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this case a rule was granted at the instance of one Nabu Bepari calling upon one Sheikh Mahomed to show cause why an order made by the District Judge of Dacca, on 28th April 1899, should not be set aside on the ground that it was made without jurisdiction.

It appears that the Petitioner, Nabu Bepari, was appointed sole guardian to the Respondent, Sheikh Mahomed, who was then a minor, on 13th September 1881. Seventeen years later namely on 13th September 1898, a petition was presented praying that Nabu Bepari might be removed from his guardianship. On 25th November in the same year the District Judge of Dacca passed an order under sec. 34 of the Guardians and Wards Act, VIII of 1890, directing the guardian to file accounts up to the year 1895 and on 14th January 1899 another order was passed directing the filing of further accounts.

On 1st February 1899 the minor Sheikh Mahomed attained his majority; whereupon the guardian returned his certificate of guardianship to the Court, and prayed for his discharge.

On 3rd March Sheikh Mahomed prayed that a Commissioner should be appointed to examine the accounts and on 15th April he presented a further petition praying that the guardian should be directed to hand over to him all his property, and that a Commissioner should be appointed to examine the accounts and to ascertain and report what was due to the ward. The learned District Judge holding that he was empowered so to do under sec. 34, sub-secs. (c) and (d) and under sec. 41 of the Guardians and Wards Act made an order in the terms of the petition. The guardian appealed to the High Court against so much of the order as directed the appointment of a Commissioner to examine the accounts and to report but as the order was only for an examination and report the appeal was withdrawn. Subsequently the Commissioner reported that Rs. 10,647 odd was due to the ward and on 28th April the learned District Judge made an order directing the guardian to pay that sum to the minor within one month. This order it is now sought to set aside.

NABU BEPARI v. SHEIKH MAHOMED.

In support of the order of the learned Judge it is contended that sec. 34 of the Guardians and Wards Act renders the guardian liable to exhibit his accounts if and when the Court shall require him, and that that liability exists until the guardian is discharged by the Court and it is argued that although sec. 41 provides that the powers of a guardian are to cease when the minor attains his majority there is nothing in the section to take away his liabilities until he has received his discharge. It was also contended that when the powers of the guardian ceased under sec. 41 of the Act, the Court still had jurisdiction under sub-secs. (3) and (4) of that section to order him to render accounts.

On the other hand it was contended on behalf of the guardian that the provisions of sec. 34 are only applicable to a guardian during the minority of the ward and that on that minority coming to an end the liability of the guardian to account must be enforced by the ward who has become sui juris in a regular suit and it is further pointed out that sub-sec. (3) of sec. 41 does not empower the Court to order the guardian to render accounts, and pay to the ward the balance found to be due on them, but only enables the Court to require the guardian "to deliver, as it directs, any property in his possession or control belonging to the ward, or any accounts in his possession or control relating to any past or present property of the ward." This it is contended is a power entirely distinct from that of requiring the guardian to "exhibit his account as directed," as given by sec. 34. There would be some force in the Respondents' contention if the guardian could be regarded as merely an officer of the Court, but he stands in a fiduciary character towards his ward, and is, as such accountable to him. The object of sec. 34 is to give the Court, as representing the interest of the minor, certain summary powers for the protection of the property. As soon as the ward becomes sui juris the necessity for the power conferred on the Court by sec. 34 ceases. He can then sue his guardian for an account, and can ratify expenditure or dispense with accounts as he thinks fit. The necessity, therefore, for giving the Court, as the protector of the minor's property, the summary powers created by sec. 34, ceases as soon as the minority ends, and the ward becomes capable of representing and protecting his own interest.

It is true that while sec. 41 provides for the cessation of the powers of the guardian on the ward attaining his majority it makes no provision for the cessation of his liabilities until he obtains his discharge. It is argued that this indicates that the liabilities of the guardian are preserved, and, inter alia, his liability to account under sec. 34. There would be great force in this argument if the liability to account was created by and only enforceable under sec. 34, but that is not so. The liability to account is incident to the fiduciary relation in which the guardian stands to the ward, and is entirely independent of sec. 34. That section creates a summary method of enforcing the liability.

NABU BEPARI v. SHEIKH MAHOMED.

There is no clear expression of intention in the Act that the guardian's liability to account is to continue to be enforceable by a summary process against which no appeal lies, after it has become enforceable by the ward in the ordinary process of law. In the absence of such expression of intention we think it must be held that the summary powers of the Court cease when the power of the ward to sue for an account comes into existence.

This view is strengthened by a critical examination of sec. 34 and by a general view of the Act. All the sub-sections of sec. 34, excepting (c) and (d) are clearly on the face of them inapplicable to the condition of things which arises when the ward becomes sui juris, and if it was intended that sub-secs. (c) and (d) should be applicable after that event it is difficult to see why they should have been inserted in sec. 34, and why the Court should only be empowered under sub-sec. (d) to direct the payment of the balance of the ward's money into Court, and should not be given the wider powers regarding property handed over on the termination of the guardianship which are given to it under sec. 41.

The sections headed "termination of the guardianship" are those from 38 to 42 and the section which deals with the power of the Court as to accounts on the termination of the guardianship, i.e., sec. 41, only empowers it to require the guardian "to deliver, as it directs, any accounts in his possession or control relating to any past or present property of the ward." This in our opinion cannot be construed into giving the Court, by summary procedure, a power to order accounts to be rendered after the termination of the guardianship. Had it been intended to give the Court such a power, it is in this section that we should have expected to find it.

For these reasons we disagree with the interpretation which the learned Judge in the Court below has placed on sec. 41, and we think he is wrong in supposing that he had jurisdiction to make an order under sec. 34, sub-secs. (c) and (d) after the ward had become sui juris. We think, therefore, if the order is regarded as made under sec. 34 (d) it is bad on two grounds, first, because there was no jurisdiction to make it after the ward had become sui juris, and, secondly, because, it is not an order for payment into Court as provided by sub-sec. (d) of that section, but for payment to the minor himself.

If it is regarded as made under sec. 41 it is equally objectionable, as it is not an order for "the delivery of property in the possession or control of the guardian," but an order for the payment of a sum found to be due on an investigation, which the Court had jurisdiction to authorize.

The rule, therefore, must be made absolute with costs 3 gold mohurs.

Rule made absolute.

S. C. S.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. MIS. NO. 98 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.	}	In the matter of
STEVENS, J.		RADHA KRISTO BARAT,
1901.		Complainant,
3, January.		* v.
		GOKULA NUT,
		Accused.

Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897), secs. 8, 9, 16—Penal Code Act (XLV of 1860), sec. 379—Theft—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 439—High Court, power of revision of—Order for detention of youthful offender in Reformatory School without passing sentence, legality of—Jurisdiction of High Court to consider legality or propriety of conviction, sentence or order, if affected by sec. 16, Reformatory Schools Act—Limitation of power.

Sec. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897) does not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court, as a Court of revision, to consider the legality or propriety of the conviction or sentence or of any order passed by a Subordinate Court other than that mentioned in that section.

SHEIKH REASUT v. J. COURTENEY (1), referred to.

The law requires that a Magistrate trying a case or one to whom the proceedings of the case are submitted under sec. 9 of the Reformatory Schools Act, should, in the first instance, sentence the accused to a term of imprisonment or transportation, which he may then commute into one of detention in a Reformatory School for such period as the law prescribes.

An order for the detention of a youthful offender in a Reformatory School, when no sentence of imprisonment or of transportation has been passed, is bad in law.

This was a rule issued on the 14th of December 1900, against an order of the District Magistrate of Bogra, dated the 23rd of July 1900.

The facts of the case were as follows :—

The complainant, Radha Kristo Barat, missed his umbrella valued at 12 annas in a haat (market place). On search it was found in the possession of the accused Gokula Nut, a boy of ten years of age. About that time a gang of Nuts had come and encamped in the neighbourhood. The accused admitted that the umbrella was in his possession but said that it had been purchased by his father for him. Thereupon the accused was prosecuted and placed on his trial before Babu Mahendra Chandra Mozumdar, Deputy Magistrate of Bogra. The Deputy Magistrate on the 23rd day of July 1900 found that the accused was a boy of ten years of age, that the identity of the umbrella with that of the complainant's stolen one had been clearly proved and that he was guilty of an offence under sec. 379, I. P. Code; but instead of passing any sentence upon him the Deputy Magistrate forwarded and submitted the proceedings to the District Magistrate under sec. 9 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897), he being of opinion that the boy was a proper inmate of a Reformatory School. There was, however, no evidence to shew that the accused either stole the umbrella or that he knew that it had been stolen.

The District Magistrate on the same day made an order directing the accused to be detained in the Alipur Reformatory School for a period of seven years, without himself passing any sentence on him.

Then the present rule was obtained against that order of the District Magistrate.

No one appeared in the case.

RADHA KRISTO BARAT v. GOKULA NUT.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Petitioner in this case, a boy of ten years of age who is said to belong to a gang of Nuts, was found in possession of an umbrella which is claimed by the complainant. There was no evidence that he stole the article.

The trying Magistrate, however, convicted him under sec. 379 of the Indian Penal Code but passed no sentence; and considering the lad to be a proper inmate of a Reformatory school forwarded the proceedings to the District Magistrate under sec. 9 of Act VIII of 1897. The District Magistrate thereupon recorded the following order:—"Considering that the boy convicted is only ten, I order that he be detained in the Alipuri Reformatory School for a period of seven years.

This order is clearly in contravention of the provisions of the law which requires that the Magistrate trying the case or to whom the proceedings are submitted under sec. 9, should, in the first instance, sentence the prisoner to a term of imprisonment or transportation which he may commute into detention in a Reformatory for such period as he thinks proper.

In our opinion, however, this is not a case in which any sentence of imprisonment should be passed. The boy was only found in possession of property which was alleged to be stolen; there was nothing to show that he knew it had been stolen. He should therefore have been at once discharged. Had guilty knowledge been made out, this being the boy's first offence so far as we can gather from the record, it would have been a fit case for a few stripes by way of school discipline. But as we have already observed, there is nothing to show that he knew the umbrella to be stolen property and therefore he was entitled to be acquitted.

Sec. 16 of the Reformatory Act does not authorize the Appellate Court or Court of revision to interfere with the finding of the Magistrate as to the age of the boy, or to alter or modify an order of detention passed in substitution of imprisonment or transportation. But as we have pointed out in the case of Sheikh Reasut v. J. Courteney (1), it does not affect this Court's jurisdiction, to consider the legality or propriety of the sentence or of any order other than that mentioned in sec. 16 nor the legality or propriety of the conviction. We think the order in this case was entirely irregular and improper. And we direct that the boy be discharged and made over at once to the custody of his parents.

Rule made absolute: Conviction and sentence set aside.
H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 790 OF 1900.

SHEIKH REASUT,

Petitioner,

v.

AMEER ALI, J.

STEVENS, J.

1900.

J. COURTENEY, Guard,

28, November. E. B. S. Ry., Opposite Party.

Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897), secs. 8, 16—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 379—Theft—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 439—High Court, revisional jurisdiction of, as to legality, or

(1) 5 C. W. N. 211 (1900).

SHEIKH REASUT v. J. COURTENEY.

propriety of conviction, sentence or order—Youthful offender—First offence—Sentence, alteration of.

Sec. 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897) does not in any way take away the jurisdiction of the High Court, as a Court of revision, to alter or set aside the sentence in substitution of which an order for detention in a Reformatory school is made.

A young lad was found abstracting a piece of coal from a waggon and was on a charge for theft sentenced to a month's rigorous imprisonment and ordered, in lieu thereof, to be detained in a Reformatory School for 4 years. The High Court, on the ground of its being the first offence and a trivial one, set aside the sentence and passed one of whipping by way of school discipline.

This was a Rule issued on the 27th of September 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Sealdah, dated the 21st of August 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Hemendra Nath Mitter for the Petitioner.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this matter a Rule was issued on the District Magistrate to shew cause why the sentence should not be modified on the ground that this was a very trifling theft and that, so far as appears from the record, it was the Petitioner's first offence. It appears that the trial was a summary one and that the accused is a boy whose age has not been found by the trying Magistrate. He is stated to have been found abstracting a piece of coal from a waggon the value of which is said to be about six pies. The trying Magistrate, as already observed, without finding what the age of the boy was and without stating whether, in his opinion, he was a proper person to be an inmate of the Reformatory School, sentenced him to rigorous imprisonment for one month and, in lieu thereof, directed that he be detained, in the Reformatory School for four years. The evidence recorded is extremely slight. There is nothing to show that the Petitioner was ever before convicted or what his antecedents are and we certainly think that a sentence of one month's rigorous imprisonment was not a proper sentence for the offence committed.

Our attention has been called to the provisions of secs. 8 and 16 of the Reformatory Schools Act. Sec. 16 provides that a Court of Appeal or revision should not alter or reverse any order passed with respect to the age of an youthful offender or the substitution of an order for detention in a Reformatory School for transportation or imprisonment. But it does not in any way take away the jurisdiction of this Court to alter or set aside the sentence in substitution of which the order for detention is made. The power of the Court remains in tact to consider the propriety or legality of any sentence passed upon an youthful offender. In that view, we are of opinion that the sentence of one month's rigorous imprisonment is an improper sentence. The accused is a young lad, for even in the descriptive roll sent up from the Police, he is put down as 15 years of age. And this appears to be his first offence. We accordingly set aside the sentence of imprisonment for one month and, in lieu thereof considering the nature of the offence, direct that the Petitioner do undergo a whipping of five stripes by way of school discipline, and then be discharged from custody.

SHEIKH REASUT v. J. COURTENEY.

Rule made absolute :

Sentence altered.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 374 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	{	PRIYA NATH BOSE,
HANDLEY, J.		Complainant, Petitioner,
1900.	{	v.
6, July.		ROY BASANTA KUMAR
		SINGH, Accused,
		Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 250—Compensation for vexatious accusation—Imprisonment in default of payment of compensation—Simultaneous order.

It is only after an attempt has been made to realize the compensation awarded that a Magistrate is competent to pass an order of imprisonment for default. A simultaneous order of imprisonment in default of payment of compensation is illegal.

This was a rule issued on the 19th May 1900, against the order of the Honorary Magistrate of Midnapur, dated the 7th February 1900, affirmed on appeal by the District Magistrate of Midnapur on the 30th March 1900.

The facts of the case were shortly as follows:—The Petitioner, Priya Nath Bose, lodged a complaint against Roy Basanta Kumar Singh for offences under secs. 448, 504, 352 and 143, I.P. Code. The case was dismissed and the accused was acquitted on the 1st February 1900, and the complainant was called upon to shew cause why he should not pay Rs. 25 as compensation for bringing a vexatious accusation under sec. 250, Cr. P. Code. The complainant shewed cause by a written petition. His objection was, however, not recorded by the Honorary Magistrate who on the 7th February 1900 made an order directing the complainant to pay Rs. 25 to the accused as compensation and he further directed in the same order that in default of payment of such compensation the complainant do undergo imprisonment for a certain term.

The complainant thereupon preferred an appeal against that order to the District Magistrate of Midnapur and that officer held that although there were two grave irregularities in the proceedings of the Honorary Magistrate, viz., first, that the order for compensation was not passed on the day the order of acquittal was made, and, secondly, that the objection of the complainant in shewing cause was not recorded by the Honorary Magistrate,—those were mere irregularities which did not prejudice the party and cause a failure of justice and that as mere irregularities they were cured by sec. 537 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The District Magistrate then affirmed the order of the Honorary Magistrate.

The Petitioner then moved the High Court and obtained the present rule, and on his behalf it was contended that the summary order of imprisonment on non-payment of compensation was illegal.

Mr. Abdur Rahim and Babu Bipin Behary Ghose for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to shew cause.

PRIYA NATH BOSE v. ROY BASANTA KUMAR SINGH.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The rule will be made absolute. It has been frequently pointed out by this Court that sec. 250, C. Cr. P., does not permit a Magistrate, who has passed an order directing the complainant to give compensation to the accused, forthwith to add to his order that, in default of payment of compensation, imprisonment for a certain term shall be undergone. The law requires that an attempt should be made to realize the amount ordered to be paid as compensation and that, if it be not recovered, an order of imprisonment may be passed in default. In this instance, the order was a summary order to follow non-payment of the compensation. The order of imprisonment is accordingly set aside.

Rule made absolute.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 914 OF 1899.

PRINSEP, J.	}	SUCHANDI KOLITANI,
STANLEY, J.		Complainant,
1900.		Petitioner,
14, February.		v.
		DOM KOLITA, Accused,
		Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), sec. 250—Compensation for frivolous and vexatious accusation, objection against, failure to record and consider—Simultaneous order of imprisonment in default of compensation.

A Magistrate ought to record and consider any objection made and urged by the complainant against the making of an order for compensation for bringing a frivolous and vexatious accusation, and a failure to do so makes the order bad in law.

An order of imprisonment in default of payment of compensation cannot, under the terms of sec. 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, be made unless and until it is found that the payment of the compensation cannot be enforced by legal process.

This was a rule issued on the 12th of December 1899, against the order of the Assistant Commissioner of Jorhat, dated the 25th of August 1899.

The facts of the case were shortly these:—Complainant Suchandi Kolutani lodged a complaint against her husband for having defamed her by publishing a false accusation that she had misbehaved with one Kollai and by driving her out of the house. The accusation was, she alleged, false and in consequence of it, she had been outcasted. So she brought against her husband, Dom Kolita, a charge under sec. 500, I. P. Code. This complaint was dismissed and accused acquitted by J. Cornish, Esq., Assistant Commissioner of Jorhat, on the 25th August 1899. The Assistant Commissioner made the following order in regard to payment of compensation:—"I regard this as a most unjustifiable complaint. . . . The complainant has, in my opinion, shewn no reason why she should not pay compensation for bringing a vexatious charge. She is, therefore, ordered to pay the accused Rs. 30 under sec. 250, Cr. P. C., and accused is acquitted under sec. 258, Cr. P. Code. In default of paying the compensation Suchandi to undergo simple imprisonment for 14 days."

SUCHANDI KOLITANI v. DOM KOLITA.

Against this order the Petitioner moved the High Court and obtained the present rule.

Babu Prosunno Gopal Roy for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to shew cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The order for compensation under sec. 250, Cr. P. C. is bad. The Magistrate has not proceeded in accordance with law as he has failed to record and consider any objection which the complainant might urge, against the making of such order before he passed it. In the next place, the order of imprisonment in default of payment of the compensation is bad because it cannot, under the terms of sec. 250, be awarded unless it is found that the payment of the compensation cannot be enforced by legal process. The orders must, therefore, be set aside and the Magistrate must proceed in accordance with law. The amount, if paid, will be refunded.

Rule made absolute : Orders set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 297 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.
HANDLEY, J.
1900.

RASH MOHAN PAL,
Petitioner,
v.

6, June. MOHIM CHANDRA CHAKRA-
VARTY, Opposite Party.

Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 143, 341—Erecting a fence over a way—Obstruction to public pathway—Decree of Civil Court—Maps and plans depicting way—Unlawful assembly—Wrongful restraint—

Magistrate, duty of, to maintain decrees of Civil Court—Rule, enlargement of, at the hearing.

In deciding whether a person, accused of wrongful restraint by erecting a fence over a way, had, as he alleged, obtained a decree of the civil Court with regard to that particular way, a Magistrate should, instead of obtaining evidence to modify or question a decree passed by the civil Court declaring rights of parties, confine his attention to observing or enforcing the terms of the decree of the civil Court.

This was a rule issued on the 19th of April 1900, against the order of the Honorary Magistrate of Munshigunge, dated the 17th of February 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the District Magistrate of Dacca, on the 5th of April 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. W. Jackson, Babu Basunta Kumar Bose and Babu Hara Chandra Chuckerbarty for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to shew cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

There has been a long-standing dispute between the parties regarding a right of way and the matter has been before the civil Court and been dealt with by a decree passed on an arbitration award. The Petitioner has been convicted of wrongful restraint in erecting a fence which has been found to be over the way which was declared to exist in that decree and he has also been convicted of being a member of an unlawful assembly the common object of such assembly being to deprive the complainant's master of a right of way by means of criminal force or show of criminal force.

RASH MOHAN PAL v. MOHIM CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTY.

Now, in regard to the first offence found, namely, the wrongful restraint which has been committed by the erection of the fence, the Magistrate has found considerable difficulty in determining that this fence was over the way covered by the decree and he has arrived at that conclusion not from the terms of the decree itself and the map attached to such decree by which the rights of the parties were declared but he has taken upon himself to question the map and to examine two of the arbitrators and the Nazir of the Court in order to determine what should have been rightly depicted in that map and so as, in fact, to declare what should have been decreed as shown by a map properly drawn. He has then, in fact, interpreted the decree in a manner different from its terms as explained in that map and he has acted on evidence to modify or correct that decree. If, however, that decree was incorrectly expressed it could be altered only by the Court which passed it. The Magistrate has on this evidence found that the map was an erroneous map, although it was a record of a civil Court, and he has upon this finding, held that the Petitioner has committed an offence by erecting an obstruction over the way decreed by the civil Court.

We cannot regard the course taken by the Magistrate as proper. He should have confined his attention to observing or enforcing it in the terms of the decree of the civil Court without obtaining evidence to modify or question it and we would further observe that, if there was such difficulty in determining the direction of the way, we cannot understand how the accused could be properly convicted of having wilfully disturbed a right what was decreed against him in the civil Court. He should, at least, have been given the benefit of the doubt of having acted in accordance with the decree of the civil Court and the map attached thereto declaring the direction of the way. So far, therefore, we think that the conviction under sec. 341, I. P. C., is bad and that the conviction and sentence should be set aside.

It has, however, been brought to our notice that, owing apparently to an oversight, the conviction and sentence under sec. 143, I. P. C., which was simultaneously passed has not been referred to in the rule. We think that it is a matter which depends upon the conviction of the other charge, for, if the common object of this unlawful assembly was, as stated in the charge, to deprive the complainant's master of a right of way, we think that the act of the accused cannot fall within its terms by reason of the grounds already stated for setting aside the conviction of wrongful restraint. We, therefore, set aside both the convictions and the sentence and direct that any fines that may have been imposed should be refunded.

Rule made absolute :

Conviction set aside.

H. P. C.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[ON APPEAL FROM MADRAS HIGH COURT.]

LORD HOBHOUSE. IMMADIPATTAM
 LORD DAVEY. [THIRUGNANA, Defend-LORD ROBERTSON. ant, Appellant,
 SIR R. COUCH. v.
 1900. PERIYA DORASAMI,
 Heard, 15, Nov. Plaintiff and anr.,
 Judgment, 8, Dec. Respondents.

Family arrangement—Contract to transfer—Incomplete transfer—Implement of contract to transfer—Pleadings—Burden of proof.

In 1882 an usufructuary mortgage of the disputed properties was executed by Plaintiff's father, his uncle and his cousin, Thirugnana, the present Defendant. In that mortgage a certain sum was stated to have been borrowed "in order that, after a settlement of the differences existing between the members of the family, the same might be paid as a recompense to. . . . Ovala . . . (the Plaintiff's father), one of us for his transferring even now the right to" the properties to the Defendant "and his addressing an arzi to the Collector stating the said fact." An arzi was submitted to the Collector in which Ovala stated that he had transferred the properties to the Defendant. He also made a similar statement to the Tahsildar and there was a mutation of names from Ovala to Thirugnana. At that time Plaintiff was not born. There was no registered deed of transfer and possession was all along with the mortgagee. Plaintiff brought the present suits to redeem the properties. The Defendant Thirugnana, by his pleadings, claimed that the properties had been transferred to him, but in appeal he contended that the transaction amounted to a contract to transfer and he was entitled to call upon Plaintiff to implement that contract :

Held—That though there may have been an intention to transfer the property, it was never so transferred in the mode required by law.

That the onus of proving a transfer is upon the party who relies upon it.

That the Defendant not having raised the issue in the first Court that there was a valid contract to transfer, he cannot now be allowed to raise it and to ask the Plaintiff to implement that contract.

Quære—Whether if the documents in proof contained on their face clear evidence of a valuable consideration passing to Ovala, it was not open to the Defendant to ask for implement of contract on appeal.

These were appeals from two suits brought in forma pauperis by the Respondent Periya, son of the late zemindar of Ayakadu, to redeem family property. The principal Defendant, the Appellant, was a near relative of the Plaintiff. The Defendant Chetty was the mortgagee; he did not dispute Plaintiff's title.

While the property was in the hands of Plaintiff's father he mismanaged it to such an extent that it became liable to a heavy debt. Decrees were obtained by creditors, with the result that a document was executed by the adult members of the family including the Plaintiff's father Ovala, and the mortgagees' representative, the above-named Lukshman Chetty, on the 4th November 1882, called an usufructuary mortgage.

It was under this arrangement that the Appellant claimed and alleged that he was thereby constituted proprietor of the property. The evidence with regard to Appellant's claim that the property was transferred to him is to be found in this mortgage deed, and in an arzi written by Plaintiff's father to the

IMMADIPATTAM THIRUGNANA v. PERIYA DORASAMI.

Collector three days after. The important portions of the mortgage deed and the arzi are stated in their Lordships' judgment.

The actual possession of the property has been with the mortgagee Defendant.

The principal issue raised was "whether by the arrangement come to between Plaintiff's father and the Defendant the property passed to the latter."

The Sub-Judge of Madura held that Appellant was entitled to succeed on that issue. He declined to consider the question, because he thought it was taken too late, that the alleged transfer was invalid inasmuch as it could only be made under the Transfer of Property Act by a registered document.

The High Court, inter alia, said with reference to the mortgage:—

"It may be said that there was declaration of an intention on the part of Plaintiff's father to divest himself of his ownership in the zemindari," but nothing was done to give legal effect to this intention, and without a registered conveyance it was not competent for him to pass the property, whether the transaction was in the nature of a sale or in the nature of a gift . . . . . It is hardly suggested that the Plaintiff's father absolutely divested himself of the ownership in such a manner as to vest an indefeasible title on the Respondent." The High Court decided both suits in Plaintiff's favour.

Mr. Mayne for the Appellant.

Mr. Philips for the Plaintiff-Respondent.

Mr. Branson for the Mortgagee.

Mr. Mayne now relied on the terms of the said mortgage deed, the arzi, and certain documents of later date, showing that Appellant was, as he urged the openly recognized zemindar, and as evidence that the transfer was recognised. He urged that absolute transfer of title to the Zemindari was part of a family arrangement, all the terms of which were embodied in the said registered mortgage deed.

LORD DAVEY.—You have got no conveyance.

Mr. Mayne.—No, we have not, but we have it all set out in this family arrangement.

LORD DAVEY.—No consideration passed from you, you were a mere volunteer.

Mr. Mayne.—The mortgagee relied on our undertaking personal responsibility to Government. He then further commented on the terms of the mortgage deed more particularly referring to cls. 25 and 27 thereof.

Their Lordships did not call on Mr. Phillips for reply.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD HOBHOUSE.—The subject of this litigation is the impartible Zemindari of Ayakudi. In the year 1882 Oyala was its owner. Transactions then took place by virtue of which Thirugnana, his nephew, claims to be owner. He, along with his minor son, is the substantial Defendant below and now Appellant. Afterwards in the year 1883 Periya, the Plaintiff below and now Respondent, was born to Oyala by his wife Angammal. He also claims to be owner by inheritance from his father who died in the year 1890.

There are in fact two suits, Nos. 53

IMMADIPATTAM THIRUGNANA v. PERIYA DORASAMI.

and 54 of 1895. But the only difference between them is that the bulk of the property which is comprised in one suit, is subject to a mortgage which the Plaintiff seeks to redeem: and that a small portion of it, consisting of the palace, the temple, and some endowments, comprised in the other suit, is not so subject. The question in both suits is the same, viz.: What was the effect of the transactions in the year 1882? Other issues have been raised, but have not been urged at this Bar. The Subordinate Judge decided in favour of the Defendant. The High Court decided the other way; and the Defendant appeals from their decision.

Ovala came to the Zemindari in the year 1872 by transfer from his father, who declared himself to be old and unable to manage the affairs. He seems to have been no more capable than his father, and in his hands the debts of the estate, which were large before, became larger. In the year 1879 he executed an usufructuary mortgage by way of lease for 19 years to one Ramanathan Chettier in consideration of advances of money and of a sum of Rs. 3,000 per annum to be paid by the mortgagee for the maintenance of the family. Debts, however, went on increasing, and on the 4th November 1882 a new arrangement was made with Lakshamanan Chettier, who was the heir of Ramanathan and is the present mortgagee. . .

The deed of that date is a deed poll executed by (1) Ovala the zemindar. (2) His brother Karutha. (3) The Defendant Thirugnana son of Karutha, and (4) another son of Karutha: and addressed by them to the mortgagee

Lakshamanan. It commences by stating the "particulars of our having usufructually mortgaged the Zemindari to him for Rs. 2,47,000." It gives an account of the debts affecting the estate, of which much the largest is the debt already due to Lakshamanan. Other subsequent items amount to about Rs. 65,000, all of which the four parties to the deed declare to be due by them. Among them is specified "Rs. 10,000 borrowed from you on this date in order that, after a settlement of the differences existing between the members of our family, the same might be paid as a recompense to the said I. Ovala Kondama Naiker Aliyan Avergal, one of us, for his transferring even now the right to Ayakudi Zemin and Rettayambadi Mitta to I. Thirugnana Sammanda Ovala Kandama Naiker Aliyan Avergal and his addressing an arzi to the Collector of Madura District stating the said fact."

The parties then state that they had importuned the mortgagee to take an usufructuary mortgage on the estate in lieu of interest on his debt, that he had kindly agreed to do so, and that they had conveyed 28 villages with their incidents or appurtenances to him. They stipulate that he shall pay the peshcush and road-access to Government, and also an allowance "for our maintenance at the rate of Rs. 270 per mensem." Clauses 24 and 25 are as follows:—

"24. We shall not only inform the Collector of the Madura District, the Sub-Collector of the Dindigul Division and the Tahsildar of the Palani Taluk by means of arzis and yadast that a conveyance on usufructuary mortgage has been made to you and that all the proceedings in revenue matters should be conducted in your name, but also cause the said fact to be published by means of proclamation in the villages.

IMMADIPATTAM THIRUGNANA v. PERIYA DORASAMI.

"25. As soon as the above-mentioned mortgage amount, the amount spent by you on repairs and the amount of expenses incurred by you in suits, are paid in full at the end of any Fusli either by all of us jointly or by I. Thirugnana Sammanda Ovala Kondama Naiker Iyen Avergal, you should surrender the said Zemin and the Mitta to I. Thirugnana Sammanda Ovala Kondama Naiker, one of us."

The azis contemplated in the deed were presented by Ovala on the 7th November. One is addressed to the Deputy Collector of Madura as follows :—

"As besides being too old and infirm to bear and manage our two Zemindaris of Ayakudi and Rettayambadi and all other immoveable and moveable properties appertaining thereto and the duties of Hukdar of Pachala Naickenpatti village attached to Sri Agobalesvara Perumal Devasthanam, we are also issueless, we have transferred the right to Immudipattam Thirugnana Sammanda Ovala Kondama Naiker who is the eldest son of our brother Karutha Kondama Naiker and who is the next heir to get the said Zemin and all other possessions, and have at this very moment delivered the said Zemin and all other possessions into the hands of the said Thirugnana Sammanda Ovala Kondama Naiker after entering into an arrangement with him that he should be paying us month by month at the rate of Rs. 250 per mensem for the maintenance of ourself and those attached to our family. Therefore, I request that the name of the said Thirugnana Sammanda Ovala Kondama Naiker may be entered in the register and that orders may in future be issued for conducting all the revenue proceedings through him as the zemindar for the Zemins and as Hukdar for the Devasthanam in our place."

The other is addressed to the Collector of Madura in similar terms.

On the 17th November Ovala made a statement before the Tahsildar of Palani Talook, which is in the following terms :—

"The Arzi, dated the 7th instant, now read and shown is the one addressed by me to the Sub-Collector. I have also written to the Collector on the said date. As I have surrendered to my brother's son Thirugnana Sammanda Ovala Kondama Naiker, son Kondama Naiker, the villages and all other possessions attached to the Zemin, in consequence of my inability to look after all the affairs relating to the said Zemin and for other reasons as stated in the said Arzi, all proceedings relating to the Government should, in future, be conducted through him."

After this was signed by Ovala and the Tashildar, another question was put to Ovala, to which he answered "I have no issue," and this again is signed by him and the Tahsildar.

These are the transactions relied on by the Defendant to prove the transfer under which he claims. It is not disputed that according to the law established at this time such a transfer could not be effected except by a registered deed. The azis and the statement made to the Collector clearly do not bear any such character. Mutation of names in the Collector's books seems to have been effected in the year 1888; though possession of the 28 villages has always been with the mortgagee, and it does not appear that Ovala was ever put out of possession of the other property. But even if a complete change had been effected in these respects, it would at the utmost do no more than give a starting point for the law of limitation. It would not supply the conditions of the law of transfer.

The Subordinate Judge would not allow the Plaintiff the benefit of this law because he had not made it the subject of express pleading and issue. In this he was wrong, because the party who relies on a transfer must prove it, and the second issue, as the High Court point out, raises the question whether by the stated arrangements the property had passed to the Defendant.

IMMADIPATTAM THIRUGNANA v. PERIYA DORASAMI.

The question then is whether the mortgage effects the alleged transfer. Directly, it does not. It contemplates such a transfer and an arzi stating the fact, and it requires that the mortgagee, if paid off either by all the family or by the Defendant, shall surrender to the Defendant. But both in form and in substance it is a transaction between the family and the mortgagee and not one between the several members of the family.

The defendant's case is then put in a different way, and this is the point principally argued at the Bar. It is contended that though the mortgage may fall short of an actual transfer it shows a good contract for one and that the Defendant may now call upon Ovala's heir to implement that contract. Certainly, if such a right exists it would be an answer to the Plaintiff's claim and the exact form in which it could be enforced need not be considered. The High Court held it to be fatal to the Defendant that his case was not put in that way in the Court below, and that no evidence was tendered upon it. Clearly it was for the Defendant to allege a contract between himself and Ovala, founded on valuable consideration, that Ovala should cease to be owner and that he should become owner. In the absence of such an allegation the circumstances which led Ovala to execute the mortgage and to present the arzis have not been examined.

If the documents in proof contained on their face clear evidence of a valuable consideration passing to Ovala, it would have to be considered whether it was open to the Defendant to make such a case on appeal. Mr. Mayne has argued the case very fully on the supposition that it is open. So treating it, their Lordships cannot find that the existence of a contract for valuable consideration between the Defendant and Ovala is proved by the mortgage deed. It is suggested that the transfer was part of a general family arrangement; but there is no proof of that. It is contended that the family were making themselves liable for payment to the mortgagee. But, as the High Court point out, the family was a joint family, and the estate a joint estate, though impartible; and the object was to strengthen the mortgagee's title, not to effect changes in the family. It did not signify to the mortgagee whether the estate when redeemed went back to Ovala or to the Defendant. All wished to save it from sale, and in the then position of Ovala it was likely that either his brother Karutha or his nephew the Defendant would be zemindar on his death. No reason is given why a transfer of interest from the uncle to the nephew should form part of a joint effort by the family to keep the estate in the family. If there was any reason it should have been alleged and proved.

As to pecuniary benefits accruing directly to Ovala only two are mentioned. One is the pension of Rs. 250; which is only a continuance of a similar payment by Ramanathan, and which is for the maintenance of all the members of the family. The other is the sum of Rs. 6,000, said to be given to Ovala as a recompense for his transfer of the property. But there is no evidence that this recompense ever really reached

IMMADIPATTAM THIRUGNANA v. PERIYA DORASAMI.

Ovala's hands, and the documents give reason for doubting it. It was to be paid "after a settlement of the differences existing between the members of our family." No evidence has been given of any such settlement. To treat the intended payment as the consideration for Ovala's transfer is inconsistent with his *arzi*s presented three days later and with his statement to the Tahsildar made thirteen days later. In none of these documents does he allude to the receipt of money, except that he is to have Rs. 250 per mensem for maintenance of himself and family. The reasons he assigns for the transfer are that he is infirm, that he has no issue, and that Thirugnana is the next heir. If there had been any substance in the allegation that the mortgagee had paid Rs. 6,000 to Ovala as consideration for transferring the estate, it is inexplicable that it should not be mentioned in the *arzi*s which were intended to effect the legal transfer.

With such imperfect evidence on the face of the documents it was imperative on the Defendant that in order to avail himself of an antecedent contract he should by his pleadings and evidence have put it in a proper course of trial. Not having done so, he has been rightly adjudged to have failed on that issue.

The case is not free from obscurity or difficulty. But their Lordships think that the High Court has arrived at the sound legal conclusion, viz, that though there may have been an intention to transfer the property it never was effected in the mode required by law; and that the intended transferee cannot now call for implement of the intention because he fails to show any contract founded on valuable consideration.

The mortgagee has been added as a Respondent in these appeals. Mr. Mayne now asks that he may be relieved from paying the Respondent's costs, because, as nobody sought to attack his interests, he need not have appeared. The mortgagee is clearly interested to watch the litigation in the redemption suit; but he has judiciously kept himself from doing more; treating the controversy between the cousins as a matter indifferent to himself. It is quite possible that arrangements might have been made with him to dispense with his appearance. But none have been made; and he appears here, maintaining the same attitude of neutrality as before. The Appellants say that they were obliged to bring the mortgagee here as a matter of procedure. If so, it is one of the necessary incidents of the appeal, and the costs of it must be taken as part of the costs of this appeal.

In giving the foregoing reasons their Lordships have not distinguished between the more important suit for redemption, and the other for possession. The result in both is governed by substantially the same consideration, and the cases have been so treated by the High Court. Their Lordships will humbly advise Her Majesty to dismiss both appeals as against both Respondents, whose costs the Appellants must pay.

Solicitors: Messrs. Lawford & Waterhouse for the Appellants.

Solicitors: Messrs. Keen, Rogers & Co. for the Respondents.

Appeals dismissed.

C. W. A.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 568 OF 1871.

SALE, J.	{	COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR
1900.		GHOSAL and others,
5, July.		v.
		RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE
		and others.

Receiver's accounts—Exceptions to accounts—Mofussil accounts—Receiver, liability of—Procedure—Practice—Costs—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 503.

A Receiver is responsible for all properties which comes into his custody or management and he is responsible not only for actual sums received by him but for those which might have been received by him but for his wilful neglect and default.

BALAJI NARAYAN PATVARDHAN v. RAM CHANDRA GOBIND (1) referred to.

The only question which properly arises on an application by a Receiver to pass his accounts is as to the items of that particular account and involves the inquiry whether all his collections, made on behalf of the property of which he is the Receiver, are duly entered in the accounts and next, whether all his disbursements are payments properly made in respect of that estate.

A Receiver's liability is not restricted to matters shewn upon his accounts.

If there is any liability attaching to the Receiver other than that which appears on the face of the accounts the proper course is to sue the Receiver for the purpose of establishing that liability.

Questions with regard to the soundness or prudence of the system of management adopted by a Receiver or charges of wilful default or neglect are not matters that can be disposed of in the shape of exceptions to accounts.

Even where a prima facie case of the responsibility of the receiver for malpractices of his servants is made out, an inquiry into such practices is foreign to an application to pass Receiver's accounts.

The objection that a Receiver has not included in his accounts collections made in the mofussil, cannot be dealt with upon an application to pass his accounts.

If a prima facie ground is made out of the accountability of the Receiver for the mofussil collections, the proper course is to either postpone the passing of the accounts until the question of the Receiver's liability is established by suit or to pass the accounts reserving the right of the parties to establish any claim they may make against the Receiver in a suit properly framed for the purpose.

This matter came on in Chambers upon exceptions to the Receiver's accounts when it was adjourned into Court. The estate in question was a very large one and consisted mainly of four large zemindari situated in various districts in Eastern Bengal and in Kidderpore in the suburbs of Calcutta. Many years ago certain members of the family interested in the estate were appointed Receivers. Subsequently in 1878, they retired from that position and an Advocate of this Court was appointed Receiver. From that time there had been many changes in the receivership. Mr. Caspersz was appointed in the place of Mr. Dunne in 1893 and continued as such till 1899, when, being desirous of going to England for a short time, Mr. Graham was, with the consent of all the parties, appointed to act for him. The present exceptions were filed both to the last accounts filed by Mr. Caspersz and those filed by Mr. Graham. They were heard together.

(1) I. L. R. 19 Bom. 660 (1894).

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE.

It appears that the usual practice under the Receivers had all along been as follows:—Each separate Zamindari was under the immediate charge of a naib who through tahsildars collected the rents and out of the gross collections paid the Government revenue, mofussil establishment, expenses of litigation and other local expenses of and incidental to collection and management, and, from time to time, but at no fixed periods, remitted to the Receiver sums on account of surplus collections called irshal profits. The naibs used to render monthly statements, called mascabars, showing collections and disbursements, debiting under the latter head the monies so remitted. These monies were applied by the Receiver towards the expenses of the sudder establishment, High Court costs and other expenses in Calcutta and, subject thereto, towards paying the nett available income of the estate to the beneficiaries. The Government revenue and cesses and the superior landlord's rents and taxes amounted in all to about 60 per cent. of the gross collections. Separate accounts were kept by each naib in respect of each of the four zamindaries.

Under an order of Court, dated the 10th of March 1880, the same procedure was followed with regard to the Kidderpore properties. The sudder office at Kidderpore was under the immediate charge of the Dewan, Annoda Prosad Mookerjee, who had occupied that position for a great many years and who was immediately assisted by a sheristadar and a sudder muktear and it was the duty of these two officers to receive and check the naib's accounts.

According to the practice followed by all the previous Receivers, half-yearly accounts used to be filed showing moneys actually received by the Receiver and how the same had been disbursed by him and for the information of the parties the said accounts also shewed payments (though not actually disbursed by the Receiver) for Government revenue and cesses and rents to superior landlords for the period covered by the accounts. The receipts included and mainly consisted of irshals or remittances from the four naibs, but details of local receipts and disbursements by the naibs were never included. It appears that no exception had ever been filed to any of the accounts previously filed by any of the Receivers. It was also stated that from time to time proposals had been made by the various Receivers that all monies should be remitted in the first instance to the sudder office and disbursements made from that office, but such proposals were always objected to by the beneficiaries.

The exceptions filed were numerous, but the principal objections were as follows:—

As against Mr. Caspersz,—“(1). That the said accounts are incomplete and incorrect (a) on the ground that they do not contain the accounts of the whole estate (the account of the zemindaries being left out), (b) that they do not show what the gross rental is, how much realized, how much in arrears, the total cost of realisation and the nett income which I am advised and verily believe the Receiver's account ought to show, (c) made unusually lengthy by transfer entries of the Government revenue, cesses and rents to superior landlords paid in the mofussil.

“(4) That the mofussil accounts not bein incorporated with these accounts, there is nothing to shew what the Dewan's journey to the mofussil cost the estate and what benefit the estate derived, as without shewing the benefit, the Receiver, I am advised and verily believe, is not entitled to charge the expenses against the estate.

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE.

"(7). Credit entry of one rupee only on the 4th February from Ram Ugra Sing—This man stood surety for Sewbarat Panday, who embezzled Rs. 291 from the Receiver's office and it was arranged that Ram Ugra Sing should pay Rs. 8 monthly to make up this amount. An explanation why only one rupee was realised. The whole amount embezzled still remains due and Ram Ugra has also been dismissed. An inquiry should be directed on this subject.

"(8). Debit of Rs. 4,000 for Kidderpore taxes. It appears from the Kidderpore accounts that nearly Rs. 19,000 are due from the tenants for unrealised taxes and that Rs. 9,791 are debited to the naib on suspense account for pleaders' fees and taxes, yet the sum (Rs. 4,000) is paid out of the sudder office although the receipts from Kidderpore amount only to Rs. 3,053-6-3. An enquiry should be directed on this point.

"(10). That the compensation account is not embodied in this account but the balance only shewn. That if the compensation account be examined it will be found that large sums of money received on this account have not been paid to the parties under the order of 12th July 1886 but have been misapplied to the general purposes of the estate. . . . .

"(11) That the suspense account shews a large sum of money, Rs. 11,004-15-6; of this amount Rs. 957 stand in the name of Girija Bhoosan Mookerjee who retired from service some time ago, . . . . .; Rs. 9,791-13 in the name of Lal Mohan Banerjee, naib of Kidderpore, is pending for a long time and the said naib has been dismissed without rendering any accounts.

"(15) That the litigation expenses are very heavy and incurred without the sanction of the Court or consent of the parties and should be disallowed.

"(16) That an account of the zemindaries has never been filed by Mr. Caspersz, but if such account is taken it will appear that the estate has not been properly managed but that on the other hand the estate has been put to great loss by such management.

"(17). That I have inspected the zemindari accounts up to 1304 B. S., and the correspondence with the mofussil and I found "(a) that the average collections did not exceed 59 per cent. of the current rents but that in some cases not more than 7 per cent. was realised.

"(b) That up to 1304 current arrears amounted to Rs. six lakhs. . . . .

"(c) That instalment bonds were entered into for payment of the amount due under rent decrees without any sanction of Court or consent of parties which became ultimately unrealisable and more than Rs. 20,000 were lost to the estate. . . . .

"(d) That several instalment bonds were entered into with substantial talukdars of the estate for payment of the amount due under rent decrees (which could be realised at once after giving up interest), without any sanction of Court or consent of the parties, to the great injury of the estate. . . . .

"(f) That several taluks and under-tenures were brought by the estate in execution of rent decrees and 12 years were allowed to elapse from the purchase without taking any steps to take possession or re-settle the same and the estate has been put to great loss. . . . .

"(g) That rent decrees to the extent of Rs. 20,000 have been allowed to be barred by limitation.

"(i) That the said Mr. Caspersz . . . . . sanctioned without leave of Court or consent of parties, a sum of Rs. 7,644-9-3 for the expenses of a criminal case under sec. 147, Cr. P. C., relating to certain plots of land in Madan Mollah, whereas the collections from the said Madan Mollah amounted to Rs. 136 on an average of 3 years."

As against Mr. Graham's accounts, the principal objections, besides some of those taken against Mr. Caspersz' accounts, were:—

"(8). The cheque for Rs. 100 debited to Messrs. Carruthers and Co. on the 17th February, should not have been debited as the cheque has not yet been delivered.

"(15). That if an account of the zemindaries be taken and an enquiry directed, it will be found that Mr. Graham has caused considerable loss to the estate. . . . .

"(16). That the chota kuti and lands appertaining thereto in the District of Burisal were acquired by the Government under the Land

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE.

Acquisition Act. Under the award of the Land Acquisition Collector Rs. 11,767-2-9 were awarded as compensation, but the Collector reduced the amount to nearly half of it and served notice upon the Receiver for the time being, Mr. Caspersz to accept the amount but the said Mr. Caspersz declined to accept the amount and asked the matter to be referred to the civil Court for ascertaining the valuation Mr. Graham . . . . accepted the Collector's award without any sanction of Court or consent of the parties, received payment of the said amount and put the estate to the loss of nearly Rs. 15,000 as the proper price of the said building and land would have been not less than Rs. 20,000.

"(17) That soon after the appointment of the said Mr. Graham his attention was called to the fact that there were large sums of compensation money for lands acquired by Government for the Kidderpore Wet Docks in the hands of the Receiver which have been misapplied for the purposes of the estate but which ought to be paid to the parties in accordance with the order of 12th July 1886, but the said Mr. Graham refused to comply with the said request or to set the compensation account right. . . .

"(18). That the said Mr. Graham has himself mixed up the compensation fund and the general fund.

"(20). That the said Mr. Graham by dismissing the naib of Kidderpore instead of suspending him and taking accounts from him and by accepting the resignation of the devan without taking an account from him of his dealings with the estate has caused great injury to the estate especially as the said devan received large sums of money as nuzzur while in the mofussil, bonuses for granting time to judgment-debtors for instalments granted to them, for settlements made by him, which sums have not been credited to the estate.

"21. That the said Mr. Graham . . . . granted two months' time to . . . . to pay Rs. 1,200 due from him on the two decrees for arrears of rent and gave up nearly Rs. 500 for interest due on the said decrees, and ordered instalments to be entered into for the payment of the decretal amount, all of which, your Petitioners are advised and verily believed, the said Receiver had no power to do without the sanction of this Hon'ble Court.

"28. That the said Mr. Graham has without leave from the Court or consent of the parties compromised suit No. 505 of 1899 pending before the second Munsif's Court of Alipur wherein Tarapodo Ghose was the Plaintiff and he was the Defendant for the removal of a wall, after putting the estate to the cost of over Rs. 500 in defending the same. In this case no leave was obtained from the High Court to bring this suit against the Receiver.....

"31. That the said Receiver.....ordered payment of Rs. 150 to the officers of the Road-cess Department to hush up inquiries about the false return filed by the estate and caused a loss of the said amount to the estate."

The rest of the objections dealt principally with the management of the zemindaries by the Receiver. Both Mr. Caspersz and Mr. Graham filed affidavits in reply, but it is not necessary for the purposes of this report to set them out here.

Messrs. Garth and C. R. Das for the Plaintiffs.

Mr. S. P. Sinha and Mr. C. R. Das for the Defendants, Rani Golapmonee Debee, Suttya Sri Ghosal and Suttiya Mohan Ghosal.

Mr. A. Chauthuri for Dakhina Mohan Roy.

Messrs. Hill and Chakravarti for Mr. Caspersz.

Messrs. Jackson and Knight for Mr. Graham.

The other parties appeared by their respective Attorneys.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

SALE, J.—The question which arises upon this application is as to whether certain accounts filed by two Receivers appointed in this suit should be passed. Certain exceptions have been filed to the accounts submitted by the Receivers and the question is whether these exceptions are well founded. The facts shortly are these. The estate in question is a very large one and consists mainly of four large zemindaris situated in the mofussil. I believe there are properties in Calcutta belonging to the estate but no question arises as to these. Very many years ago certain members of the family interested in the estate were appointed Receivers. Subsequently they retired from that position and Mr. Fergusson, an advocate of this Court, was appointed Receiver in their place. That was in 1878. From that time to this there have been from time to time Receivers appointed all of whom have been advocates of this Court, and they have filed their accounts every six months and all such accounts have been passed, I think, without any exception being taken thereto. I think this is the only occasion when exceptions have been filed to the Receiver's accounts. It appears that Mr. Caspersz was appointed Receiver in the place of Mr. Dunne in 1893. He continued as Receiver till 1899 and passed his accounts at intervals in the ordinary way. He was leaving the country in that year and proposed that Mr. Graham should be appointed to act for him during his absence from the country. He obtained the consent of all parties to this proposal and Mr. Graham was appointed Receiver in March 1899. Mr. Caspersz returned to this country in September of that year and proposed to take up the appointment vacated by him. That was objected to by the parties. Mr. Graham was not anxious to continue and asked to be relieved of his duties. That also was objected to. The result was Mr. Graham at the suggestion of the Court, continued to act as Receiver, but shortly afterwards finding that the parties persisted in maintaining a hostile attitude he was compelled to make an application to the Court for his discharge from the office of Receiver and he was accordingly discharged in the month of March of 1900.

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEN.

In the meantime steps had been taken to oppose the applications of these gentlemen to pass their accounts. The first account objected to is that of Mr. Caspersz which covers the period of six months from August or September 1898 to the end of March 1899. It appears that this account was filed in the ordinary course and remained for months without any objection being taken to it. It is said that during the period Mr. Graham acted as Receiver, the parties obtained inspection of certain mofussil accounts and that from the information obtained thereby, they became aware for the first time of certain errors and omissions which necessitated objections being filed to the accounts both of Mr. Caspersz and Mr. Graham. I do not believe that these so-called discoveries have anything to do with the filing of these exceptions.

The matter supposed to be discovered are matters of which the parties must have had general knowledge for years past. They may not have known of certain particulars disclosed in the accounts inspected but the principle and methods adopted by the Receivers in rendering their accounts which are now so strongly objected to must have been known to the parties for a long course of years.

The question now is whether these exceptions disclose any real or just ground for refusing to pass the accounts which the Receivers have filed. I propose to deal with the exceptions to the accounts filed by both Receivers at one and the same time, as what I have to say will apply to both sets of exceptions equally.

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE.

There is first a general ground of exception taken to these accounts and that is that they do not cover the whole extent of the liability or accountability of the Receivers, inasmuch as they do not include the mofussil accounts of the estate. It seems to me this is not strictly speaking a matter of exception to the accounts filed. The only question which properly arises on an application by a Receiver to pass his accounts is as to the items of the particular account and involves the inquiry whether all his collections, made on behalf of the property of which he is the Receiver, are duly entered in the accounts, and next whether all his disbursements are payments properly made in respect of the estate of which he is the Receiver. These are the only matters which can be conveniently dealt with on an application to pass accounts. But it by no means follows that a Receiver's liability is to be restricted to matters shown upon his accounts. If there is any liability attaching to the Receiver other than that which appears on the face of the accounts the proper course is to sue the Receiver for the purpose of establishing that liability. It is impossible on an application to pass a Receiver's accounts to go into serious questions with regard to his liability and responsibility, which are really not dependent upon the accounts filed by him, but arise independently of his accounts. Questions of this sort can only be satisfactorily dealt with by suit. There is, moreover, but little doubt as regards the question what the liability of a Receiver really is. That liability is defined in sec. 503, Civil Procedure Code, and is also explained by Farran, J., in Balaji Narain Patwardhan v. Ram Chandra Govind Kanade (1). The Receiver is responsible for all properties which came into his custody or management and he is responsible not only for actual sums received by him but for those which might have been received by him but for his wilful neglect and default. It is unusual and improper to raise questions with regard to the soundness or prudence of the system of management adopted by a Receiver or to seek to charge him for wilful default or negligence on an application by him to pass his accounts. These are not matters which can be disposed of in the shape of exceptions to accounts. Applying these tests to the several exceptions which have been filed to the accounts submitted by the Receivers, it appears that not a single one of these exceptions can be supported as a proper exception to these accounts. In not one of them is the objection taken that the Receiver has received any sum which he has not properly credited, nor is there a single exception which charges that any payment or disbursement appearing in the accounts either has not been made by him as a fact, or, if made, was not made for the purposes of the estate. If any such questions had been raised by the exceptions, and it appeared there was substance in the dispute, it might have been necessary to refer such dispute or disputes for enquiry. But after a long hearing and careful examination of the matters raised by these exceptions all I need say is that there does not appear to be one which has either been established or which would justify a reference for further enquiry.

(1) I. L. R. 19 Bom. 660 (1894).

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE.

In substance the exceptions consist of objections more or less specific to the mode of management adopted by the Receivers.

Certain of them allege misconduct of the Receivers in respect of the estate property as regards alleged improper compromises of claims or suits.

Another class of exceptions complain that Receivers have sanctioned methods on the part of the naiibs or other employés of the estate which are not justifiable.

It is said also that instalment bonds have been improperly taken by the naiibs for a consideration with the object of giving time to the debtors to pay their debts and also that nuzzurs have been received by various employés of the estate and have not been credited. It is suggested in respect of all these matters that the management by the Receivers has been at fault and has caused loss to the estate. I do not understand it to be suggested that the Receiver is personally responsible in respect of bribes which the employés of the estate have received.

But I am asked that an enquiry should be directed on these allegations for the purpose of establishing the fact that the management by the Receivers has not been beneficial to the estate. All I need say is that there is nothing in the evidence to show that the Receivers are in any sense personally responsible for the mal-practices of the servants of the estate which are complained of, and even if a prima facie case of responsibility on the part of the Receivers had been made out, it seems to me that an enquiry of this sort would be foreign to the purposes and scope of the present application.

I think therefore all these exceptions must be disallowed, but I should like to make some observations upon a matter which rises only incidentally upon these exceptions, but has been made the subject of considerable argument, and that is the objection to the effect, that the accounts filed by the Receivers are improperly confined to sums that have come into their own hands and their dealings therewith.

It is urged that in these accounts of the Receivers there is no account included of the mofussil collections made by the employés of the estate and it is contended that a Receiver's accountability extends to all these collections whether they came to the Receiver's hands or not. My difficulty in respect of this argument is that I do not see how a question of that sort can be determined upon an application to pass accounts. It might have been necessary to adopt one or other of the following courses: to postpone the passing of these accounts until the question of the Receiver's liability has been established by suit, or to pass the accounts reserving the right of the parties to establish any claim they may make against the Receivers in a suit properly framed for the purpose.

I do not think it necessary to take either of these courses. No suit has been instituted in respect of this matter although the parties have had months to consider what they are pleased to call their discoveries, and in the next place before I can take either of these courses, I must see if any real prima facie ground of accountability was made out against the Receivers in respect of this matter. It seems to me that the evidence now adduced entirely contradicts the alleged accountability. It is quite clear that the Receivers from the first disclaimed all responsibility in respect of sums other than those directly remitted to them from the mofussil. That position was taken by the Receivers from the very first, and there can be no stronger evidence of this fact than this, that from 1878, twenty two years ago, accounts of the Receivers filed in this Court have been confined to sums actually received by them and this has been done with the approval and sanction of the parties and of the Court.

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE.

The Receivers have not included in their accounts the mofussil collections by the servants of the estate, and for this very good reason, that the parties objected to the Receivers having any control over the mofussil collections. From time to time one Receiver after another has pointed out the difficulty which arises in respect of the management of the estate by reason of all mofussil collections not being permitted to come to their hands and on one occasion an application was made on the part of the then Receiver that he ought to be allowed out of some large funds then available to form a reserve fund for paying Government revenue and it was pointed out that if that was done it would enable the Receiver to undertake the responsibility of paying Government revenue and of making all mofussil collections. But as usual, in the history of this suit, when any course has been suggested by the Receiver for the benefit of the parties, it is strongly objected to by them. They preferred the old system that the Receivers should have no control over the naiibs, that the naiibs should make all local collections and disbursements including the payment of Government revenue and how, on the face of this, the present Applicant and his supporters can urge that the Receiver is responsible for the acts of the naiibs I fail to understand. The Receiver can only be responsible for mofussil collections if he is in a position to exercise control over them. But here the parties insist upon the accountability of the Receivers and at the same time object to put them in a position to exercise effective control.

There is a great deal in Mr. Garth's argument with which I entirely agree. I agree that the system adopted with regard to the management of this estate was unsound and could only result in loss to the estate and that so long as it continued, anything like good management was impossible. I also agree that because this system has been adopted till now, there is no reason why the parties should not be at liberty to put an end to that system. There is nothing so far as I know, to prevent the parties taking the management of the estate in their own hands, or if they prefer the Receiver to remain in possession of the estate, to propose a scheme which would enable him to be responsible for the payment of Government revenue and the receipt of all mofussil collections. But knowing as I do the history of this estate, I think it is safe to predict that, if any such application is made by one party, it would be opposed by all the rest. If the parties would only agree to take the management of the estate upon themselves, it would relieve the Court of a considerable burden and enable the parties to gratify their own wishes and ideas as to the proper management of the estate. I should be happy to assist the parties in following out any such course of action.

COOMAR SATTYA SANKAR GHOSAL v. RANEE GOLAPMONEE DEBEE.

It is quite a different thing to raise all these objections, which in my opinion are utterly unreal and unsubstantial and devoid of good faith, to the management of the Receivers and upon an application of this sort.

Under these circumstances it seems to me that the applicant has failed to show that prima facie ground exists for supposing that the Receivers are liable for anything except that which appears in their accounts. I express no opinion whether this finding will affect in any way any issue which the parties may seek to raise by suit as to any larger accountability on the part of the Receiver.

I must disallow all the exceptions, and I pass the accounts filed and direct that the applicants who filed exceptions do bear and pay their costs and pay the Receiver's costs. The Receivers will be entitled to their costs as between attorney and client.

Mr. Knight asks that the sureties be vacated.

THE COURT.—Yes.

Mr. A Chaudhuri submits that the applicants should pay his costs.

THE COURT.—I do not see my way to allow that.

Mr. Knight asks for costs as of a hearing. The suit was placed on the peremptory list and treated as a hearing.

Mr. C. R. Duss.—That was at their request and to suit their convenience.

Mr. N. C. Bose.—I do not see why it should be treated differently.

THE COURT.—I do not see my way to direct costs on scale 2.

Mr. Knight.—The share of Mr. N. C. Bose's client is under attachment; Messrs. Carruthers' client's shares are also under attachment and Mr. Garth's clients are insolvents. Costs should be paid out of the fund in Court. Receiver has to pay monthly sums for maintenance, our costs should be paid out of that

Mr. C. R. Duss.—If there are any funds in the hands of the Receiver they can execute the order by attachment. The Receiver is not the Receiver now. He is not in possession.

THE COURT.—I will give the present Receiver liberty to pay the costs sanctioned and debit the same to the shares of the parties who have filed exceptions. Certified for counsel.

Mr. M. M. Chatterjee.—Does your Lordship make any order as to my costs.

THE COURT.—No.

Mr. N. C. Bose.—As regards the costs of the other parties there will be a general taxation of our costs.

THE COURT.—Yes.

Babu Bhuban Mohan Das, Attorney for some of the Plaintiffs.

Mr. N. C. Bose, Attorney for the Plaintiff Sattyabadi Ghosal.

Messrs. Carruthers & Co., Attorneys for some of the Defendants.

Messrs. Dignam & Co., Attorneys for Mr. Graham.

Messrs. Sanderson & Co., Attorneys for Mr. Caspersz.

Mr. A. H. Gillanders, Babus M. M. Chatterjee and Bhupendra Sri Ghosa for some of the other parties.

S. R. D. Exceptions disallowed,

SHRO PERSHAD SINGH v. BABU TILUK SINGH.

two mortgage sales against a purchaser at a prior mortgage sale to have it settled upon what terms the latter was to redeem him and keep the property, and praying that if the latter did not pay him off, as ordered, he might be allowed to pay off the Defendant and take the property.

The Defendant strenuously contended that the Plaintiff was a mere benamidar and could not sue at all. The Munsif held that this was the case and dismissed the suit.

On appeal the Subordinate Judge held that this was not the case. He accordingly gave the Plaintiff a decree directing the Defendant to pay to the Plaintiff within three months the proportionate amount paid by him for Beni Singh's 8-pie share in Mirzapore, the property in dispute, failing which payment, the Plaintiff was to be at liberty to pay into Court the amount of Rs. 201 paid by the Defendant for the property, on doing which the Plaintiff would be entitled to have his name registered as owner of the property.

The Defendant appeals. On his behalf it has been contended that the Subordinate Judge had no right to record the evidence of Beni Singh; that the Defendant should be allowed to redeem the Plaintiff by paying, not a proportionate amount of the purchase-money paid by him but a proportionate amount of the amount of his mortgages.

We need not say much about the first of these grounds. The Subordinate Judge's action in taking the evidence of Beni Singh is warrantable by the provisions of sec. 568, C. P. C. We cannot interfere with his finding that the Plaintiff is not a benamidar.

The Appellant's second plea raises a more difficult question. It is not easy to see what are the equities in this case. But on the whole we think the Appellant's plea must prevail. The Plaintiff when he sued the mortgagors did not make the Defendant, whose mortgage was then in existence, a party to the suit. The Defendant purchased the equity of redemption before either of the sales at which the Plaintiff purchased and before the date of the Plaintiff's second decree.

All the proceedings taken by the Plaintiff including the sales at which the Plaintiff purchased are consequently of no effect as against him. When the Plaintiff purchased the equity of redemption in the property in dispute, at the sales in execution of his two decrees it had already passed to the Defendant. So what the Plaintiff purchased and paid for was the mortgagee's rights and the equity of redemption in the remainder of the property not covered by the Defendant's decree. It is true the Defendant's decree and consequent sale were of no effect as against the Plaintiff as he was not made a party to the Defendant's suit, but his only right would seem to be to redeem as mortgagee.

In these circumstances, we must modify the decree of the Subordinate Judge and direct that the Defendant do pay off the proportionate amount of the Plaintiff's mortgages due on the property purchased by him. Failing payment by the Defendant within three months, the Plaintiff will be entitled to pay off the Defendant by depositing Rs. 201 as directed by the Subordinate Judge.

The appeal is to this extent decreed with costs in proportion.

H. C. B.

Decree modified.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

Nos. 1712 AND 1788 OF 1898.

FAZLAR RAHMAN CHOW-

DHRY, Plaintiff,

AMEER ALI, J.

Appellant,

BRETT, J.

1900.

26, July.

RAJ CHUNDER SEN and

others, Defendants,

Respondents.

Possession, suit for—Previous suit on the basis of possession without title, dismissal of—Dispossession by Plaintiff in the previous suit—Previous decree, effect of—Title, want of, of Plaintiff in subsequent suit.

Defendants brought a suit in 1886 for a declaration of their title and to recover possession of the lands in suit against the Plaintiff. The suit was dismissed, Defendants having failed in that suit to prove their title. Defendants subsequently dispossessed the Plaintiff in 1890; and Plaintiff instituted the present suit in 1896 but could not prove his title :

Held—That the effect of the decree in the previous suit was to declare as against the present Defendants, that Plaintiff's possession was lawful, and such being the case and the Defendants being wrong-doers and having no title, the Plaintiff in the present suit, on the basis of the decree in the previous suit and his previous lawful possession, is entitled to recover possession if the lands are the same.

NISU CHAND GAITA & ORS. v. KANCHIRAM BAGANI (3), GOBIND CHUNDER KONDOO & ORS. v. TARUK CHUNDER BOSE & ORS. (2), ISMAIL ARIFF v. MAHOMED GHIOUS (1) distinguished.

There were two appeals preferred on the

(1) I. L. R. 20 Cal. 834 : S. C. L. R. 20 I. A. 99 (1898).

(2) I. L. R. 3 Cal 145 (1877).

(3) 3 C. W. N. 568 (1899).

23rd of August 1898, against the decree of G. Gordon, Esq., Officiating District Judge of Zillah Chittagong, dated the 30th of April 1898, reversing the decree of Babu Prankrishna Biswas, Munsif of Fatickhary, dated the 31st of May 1897.

The two suits out of which these two appeals arose were brought by the Plaintiff for recovery of possession of a plot of land which the Plaintiff claimed as a part and parcel of his taluk Amina Bibi and Noabad jote No. 14. The lands with respect to the suit out of which appeal No. 1788 arose relates to one gunda of the south-eastern portion of the plot and the other appeal relates to the remaining portion. The Plaintiff brought two suits instead of one as the one gunda of land above-mentioned was held by Defendant Makar Ali and Latu as tenants under the zemindar Defendants Raj Chandra Sen, and Bungshi Mohon Sen, while the remaining portion was in the khas possession of the Sen Defendants. In 1886, the Sen Defendants were said to have sued the Plaintiff for possession of this very land on the allegations that it belonged to their taluk and the suit was dismissed up to the High Court. The Plaintiff relied on this decree as entitling him to eject the Defendants. The Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 being unsuccessful in the suit brought by them were alleged to have wrongfully trespassed into the house erected by the Plaintiff in the month of Jaista of 1252 Maghi.

The facts of the previous suit as well as the reasons for its dismissal will appear from the judgment passed on appeal in that case by the first Appellate Court which was as follows :—

The subject-matter of the suit giving rise to

FAZLAR RAHMAN CHOWDHRY v. RAJ CHUNDER SEN.

these two appeals is 9½ gundas. The Munsif has given the Plaintiffs a decree for 1 gundas odd and dismissed their claim for the remainder. The Plaintiffs have appealed in respect of the latter; the Defendants in respect of the former. The Plaintiffs claim that the land appertains to their taluk which became their property under a decree they obtained against the heirs of one Mobaruk Ali in 1883 or 1884 in a foreclosure suit. The 1st Defendant claims that the land appertains to the taluk No. 20572 which he purchased in October 1884 upon its being sold for arrears of revenue upon default being made by the aforesaid heirs of Mobaruk Ali and their co-sharer. The question is to which taluk does the disputed land appertain, to that alleged by the Plaintiffs or that alleged by Defendant. And this question has very wisely been narrowed down by the parties to the point, as part and parcel of which taluk was the land measured at the survey of 1200 Maghi and this has been the only point argued in this Court.

I do not think that it is shown that the disputed land appertains to any of the days alleged by the Plaintiffs. * * * * *

* * The survey was conducted in the most unscientific and rudest manner. It would be impossible to identify by means of it such a small quantity of land as is involved in the present suit, independently of landmarks, and such marks are not available in the present suit for more reasons than one. The burden of proof lay upon the Plaintiffs and they have not discharged themselves of it. The judgment of the Munsif is set aside in so far as he has decreed any portion of the claim in favour of the Plaintiffs; the appeal No. 525 is dismissed; the appeal No. 537 is decreed, and it is ordered that the Plaintiffs' suit be dismissed and Plaintiffs-Appellants do pay Defendants-Respondents their costs in both Courts. The 4th May 1888.

On appeal the High Court dismissed the appeal by its judgment, dated 13th May 1889.

The Munsif decreed the present suits and remarked as follows at the end of the judgment:—

What is the effect of the former decree dismissing the Defendant's suit against the present Plaintiff? The 5th issue is not very happily worded for there can be no estoppel by conduct.

What was evidently meant by that issue is, whether the Plaintiff is entitled to recover possession on the strength of that decree. What was decided in the case was that the then Plaintiffs, the present Defendants, had failed to prove their title to the land and their suit was accordingly dismissed. Nothing was then decided as to the title of the present Plaintiff. The decree therefore is no evidence of Plaintiff's title but only of the absence of Defendants' title to the land. Sec. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure has therefore no application to the present case and the question of Plaintiff's title is not res judicata though the decree is conclusive evidence of the fact that the present Defendants have no title to the land. But nevertheless, I think the Plaintiff is entitled to succeed. I admit that in a suit for ejectment, the Plaintiff must succeed by the strength of his own title and not by the weakness of Defendants'. But the circumstances of the present case are peculiar. Here we find the Plaintiff is in quiet possession when the present Defendants sue to eject him. The Court refused to allow him to do this and then he took the law in his own hands and turned the Plaintiff out. It would be contrary to public policy to allow him to do this and sanction this wrongful act on his part. It would be holding out a premium to lawlessness if a Plaintiff after losing his case is allowed to turn the Defendant out by force and then call on him to prove his title when that Defendant sues to be restored to possession. A person in complete possession is entitled to be protected against a trespasser who has no sort of title or interest in the land. In the case of Ismail Arif and Mahomed Ghous (20 Indian Law Reports, Calcutta, 834), their Lordships of the Privy Council held that possession is sufficient evidence of title as owner as against a wrong-doer and that it is just and proper that a person in possession should be able as against a person who has no title and is a mere wrong-doer to obtain a declaration of title as owner and an injunction to restrain the wrong-doer from interfering with his possession. Here the case is much stronger. The Court refused to eject the Plaintiff and confirmed, so to speak, the Plaintiff's possession and then the Defendant took the law in his own hands and did what the Court refused to allow him to do. It is manifestly intolerable that he should be allowed to do this and the Plaintiff is entitled to be restored to possession as against a trespasser and a wrong-doer, whom the Court refused to assist even though the Plaintiff comes in to Court more than six months after dis-possession. His previous possession is sufficient to create a presumption of title in his favour and entitle him to eject the Defendants.

FAZLAR RAHMAN CHOWDHRY v. RAJ CHUNDER SEN.

The District Judge, in appeal, dismissed the suits and made the following observations:—

"The most important question in the case is as to the effect of the former decision. It appears to me that the decision of the lower Court cannot stand. Had the conduct of the Appellants been so intolerable as the lower Court imagines, the Respondent had abundant remedy not only under the Specific Relief Act but even in the Criminal Courts. As it was he did nothing for more than six years, although he now says that dispossession was by a definite and hostile act such as the actual entering of his home by force. It appears to me that if a man waits for six years before resenting an act of this nature he must offer clear proof that he had title at the time when dispossession took place.

The lower Court has not gone so far as saying that the decree in the former suit proves that the Respondent had any title, in fact it has expressly stated that it is no evidence upon that point but it seems to imagine that it is evidence that he was in possession. I think that this view is wrong. No doubt an inference as to a man's possession may be drawn from the fact that another has brought a suit to evict him, but I do not think that such an inference is strong enough to warrant a finding that there was actual possession of all the lands claimed.

Even assuming that the Respondent was in possession of some portion of the land and apart from the decree in question, after reading the evidence I find that the proof is as the learned Munsif has shown quite insufficient. I think that under the circumstances of the case the suit will have to be decided upon the title. I do not know any authority for the proposition that if a man who has no title abandons or is deprived of his possession he can recover except as against a mere trespasser the property which he has lost. The Appellants in the present case are not shown to be mere trespassers and the ruling quoted by the Munsif has no application.

I hold therefore that the Respondent having failed to prove his title, his suits must be dismissed.

The appeals are decreed with costs.

Plaintiff preferred this second appeal.

Babus Saroda Charan Mitter and Hem Chunder Mitter for the Appellant in No. 1712.

Babu Hem Chunder Mitter for the Appellant in No. 1758.

Babu Akshoy Kumar Banerjee for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Plaintiff instituted two suits in the Munsif's Court to recover possession from the Defendants of two plots of land from which he alleged he had been forcibly dispossessed by them in Jaista 1252—1890. His case was that he had purchased the land at an auction sale for arrears of revenue in 1247, 20th October 1884, when the rights of the previous owner Jakar Ali were sold, and that he obtained possession. The Defendants brought a suit against him in 1886 (No. 294 of 1886) for a declaration of their title and to recover possession. That suit was wholly dismissed in appeal, the judgment of this Court in second appeal being delivered on the 13th May 1889.

Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 are the superior landlords and the land claimed is said to appertain to the site of their Zemindari cutchery building. Having failed in the suit the Defendants dispossessed the Plaintiff in 1890, and in consequence these two suits were instituted in 1896.

The Munsif framed 4 issues of which the fourth is of importance in this appeal. It was as follows:—"Is the land identical with the land covered by decree No. 297 of 1886 and are the Defendants estopped from disputing the Plaintiff's title."

FAZLAR RAHMAN CHOWDHRY v. RAJ CHUNDER SEN.

The decision of the other issues practically depended on the decision of this issue. The Munsif in an elaborate judgment found that the lands were identical with the lands claimed by the Defendants in suit No. 294 of 1896. That suit was however dismissed on the failure of the present Defendants who were then Plaintiffs, to prove their title. The title of the present Plaintiff was not found in that case to have been proved. On this account the Munsif held that sec. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure could not be held to apply nor the question of Plaintiff's title be held to be res judicata between the parties. The Munsif, however, found that the decree in that case was conclusive evidence that the present Defendants have no title to the land. The present Plaintiff was then in possession and the Munsif was of opinion that the Defendants could not be allowed, after losing their case for ejectment in Court to turn the Plaintiffs out by force, and then to call on him to prove his title, when he sued to be restored to possession. He held that the principle laid down by the Privy Council in the case of Ismail Ariff v. Mahomed Ghous (1) applied to this case, viz., "that lawful possession of land is sufficient evidence of right as owner as against a person who has no title whatever and who is a mere trespasser." He held that the Defendants having failed to prove their title in the previous suit were in the position of trespassers or wrong-doers when they dispossessed the Plaintiff and that the Plaintiff's possession at the time of that suit and till dispossession was "sufficient to create a presumption of title in his favour to entitle him to eject the Defendant." He accordingly gave the Plaintiff decrees in both suits. The Defendant appealed to the District Judge, who reversed the decrees of the Munsif and directed that both suits should be dismissed. The Plaintiff has appealed to this Court. As to the question of the identity of the lands in these suits with the lands which were the subject-matter of suit No. 294 of 1886 the District Judge does not come to any definite finding. He, however, found that the Munsif was wrong in holding that Plaintiff to support his title in this suit could set up alone his possession at the time of the suit in 1886 and on that, obtain decrees to eject the Defendants. He seems to have held that the Plaintiff was bound to prove his title to all the lands, that the inference could not be drawn from the previous suit that Plaintiff was in actual possession of all the lands claimed, that Appellants in the present case were not shown to be mere trespassers and the ruling quoted by the Munsif has no application. He accordingly held that the Respondent having failed to prove his title, his suit must be dismissed.

The arguments in this Court have been confined to the point whether, supposing the lands in this suit to be identical with those claimed in suit No. 294 of 1886; the fact, that Plaintiff was then in apparent lawful possession of those lands and the Defendants had failed to establish their title to them, would entitle the Plaintiff in this suit, after subsequent forcible dispossession by Defendants, to obtain decrees for the ejectment of the Defendants as trespassers and wrong-doers, without at the same time otherwise proving his own title. In support of the appeal it is argued on the authority of the Full Bench Ruling in Gobind Chunder Koondoo and ors. v. Taruk Chunder Bose and ors. (2) that Defendants, having failed to prove their title in their previous suit, are barred from setting up the same title against the Plaintiff in this suit and that in subsequently dispossessing the Plaintiff they acted as trespassers and wrong-doers and that the principle laid down in the case relied on by the Munsif [Ismail Ariff v. Muhomed Ghous (1)] would apply and that the Plaintiff's previous lawful possession was sufficient evidence of his right as owner against them. In fact the Plaintiff's suit is brought on the decree in the previous case and on his previous lawful possession as proved at the time of that decree and it is contended that the Defendants cannot set up as against the Plaintiff's claim their title which in the previous suit was held to be invalid, even though since the decision of that suit they have contrived to obtain possession of the property.

(1) I. L. R. 20 Cal. 831; S. C. L. R. 20 I. A. 99 (1893).

FAZLAR RAHMAN CHOWDHRY v. RAJ CHUNDER SEN.

In opposition, the ruling in the case of Nisu Chand Gaita and ors. v. Kanchiram Bagani (3) is relied on. In that case it was held that in a suit against a trespasser to recover possession brought more than 6 months after the date of dispossession the Plaintiff must prove title: and mere previous possession for any period short of the statutory period of 12 years cannot be sufficient for the purpose. The cases of Ismail Ariff v. Muhomed Ghous (1) and Nisu Chand Gaita and ors. v. Kanchiram Bagani and ors. (3) are, however, to be distinguished from the present case. In the former case of Ismail Ariff v. Muhomed Ghous (1) the Plaintiff was in possession, and prayed for a decree declaring his right, and an injunction restraining the Defendant from disturbing his possession, and the Privy Council held that he was entitled to the relief which he sought. If he had been dispossessed and had brought a suit under sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act within 6 months he could have recovered possession even as against a person who might establish a better title. Their Lordships of the Privy Council held that such being the case, it was only right and just that if he brought the suit before dispossession he should be declared entitled to retain possession as against a mere wrong-doer, and should obtain an injunction restraining the wrong-doer from interference with his possession. In the case before us the Plaintiff is out of possession. In the case of Nisu Chand Gaita and ors. v. Kanchiram Bagani (3) the Plaintiff was out of possession and he sued to eject the Defendant on the basis of a previous possession which was for a period of less than 12 years and which did not itself give him an absolute title. It was held in that case that the Plaintiff could not recover on proof of a posses-

(1) 1. L. R. 20 Cal. 834: s. c. L. R. 20 I. A. 99 (1893).

(2) 1. L. R. 3 Cal. 145 (1877).

(3) 3rd C. W. N. 568 (1899).

(1) 1. L. R. 20 Cal. 834: s. c. L. R. 20 I. A. 99 (1893).

(3) 3 C. W. N. 568 (1899).

FAZLAR RAHMAN CHOWDHRY v. RAJ CHUNDER SEN.

sion which was insufficient to give him title as he had failed to bring a suit under sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act to recover possession within 6 months after dispossession. The present case is totally different from this last case. Here no doubt the Plaintiff is out of possession, but he sues on the basis of the decree passed in the suit No. 294 of 1886 coupled with his previous lawful possession as found at the time of that suit. In that suit in 1886 the parties were the same, though the positions they held as Plaintiff and Defendant were the reverse of those held by them in the present suit. In that suit the issue raised between the parties was whether the lands appertained to the taluk No. 1528 of the present Defendant (the then Plaintiff) as being included in the survey dags 5872 and 5873 or whether they belonged to the taluk of the present Plaintiff (the then Defendant). The present Plaintiff was then in possession. It was held that the present Defendants had failed to prove that the lands in suit were included in the two dags or that they had any legal title to them or that they had any right to eject the present Plaintiff. Their suit was accordingly dismissed. Subsequently in 1890 they forcibly dispossessed the present Plaintiff. When this suit is brought by the Plaintiff to recover possession the Defendants set up, certainly as far as the greater part of the land is concerned, identically the same title which it was found in the previous suit they had failed to prove. In para. 12 of their written statement they say,—“The disputed land appertains to dags 5872 and 5873 and the gunzaish excess of taluk No. 1528 named Mahomed Dawi Nazir. The question is whether the present Defendants who are manifestly trespassers and wrong-doers can be allowed to set up, in opposition to the present suit of the Plaintiff to recover possession, a title which in the previous suit was held to be invalid in law, and whether they can compel the Plaintiff to prove his own title. We are of opinion that they cannot. So far as Defendants' title is concerned to the lands covered by the previous suit the question is res judicata between the present parties. It has been judicially held that they have no title. Having no title they cannot rely on their own trespass to defeat the present suit. At the time of the previous suit the present Plaintiff was in possession and the effect of the decree in that suit was to declare as against the present Defendants, that his possession was lawful. Such being the case and the Defendants being admittedly wrong-doers and having no title we hold that the Plaintiff on the basis of the decree in the previous suit and his previous lawful possession is entitled to recover possession from the Defendants of the lands covered by that suit, and the Defendants have no case against him.

We are, therefore, unable to agree with the findings of the District Judge and set them aside and his decrees.

The District Judge has not attempted to decide the question which now becomes the most important for decision, viz., whether the lands in the present suits are in whole or part identical with those covered by suit No. 294 of 1886. The two appeals must therefore be remanded to the District Judge for the disposal of this question and for the decision of the appeal on the merits, having regard to the findings of this Court in this judgment. Costs to abide the result.

FAZLAR RAHMAN CHOWDHRY v. RAJ CHUNDER SEN.

S. C. S.

Case remanded.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]*APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2313 of 1898.

HARI DOYAL SINGH ROY

and others, Defendants,

BANERJEE, J.

Appellants,

BRETT, J.

v.

1900.

SHEIKH SAMSUDDIN and 11, December. another, Plaintiff, and pro forma Defendant,

Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 11, 315—Refund of purchase money when judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property sold—Suit for such refund, whether maintainable—Remedy.

Sec. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive and does not confine an execution purchaser to the special remedy provided by that section and a suit lies under sec. 11 of the Code for a claim to get a refund of the purchase money when the judgment-debtor is found to have no saleable interest in the property sold.

MUNNA SINGH v. GAJADHAR SINGH (1), KISHUN LAL v. MUHAMMAD SAFDAR ALI KHAN (2), PACHAYAPPAN v. NARAYANA (3) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 28th of November 1898, against the decree of Babu Mahim Chandra Ghose, 3rd Subordinate Judge of Hughly, dated the 24th August 1898, passed on appeal from the decree of Babu Siris Chandra Mukerjee, Munsif, 3rd Court of Howrah, dated the 21st December 1897.

The facts of the case were as follows:—

The Plaintiff, Sheikh Samsuddin, brought this suit, out of which this appeal arose, to recover from the principal Defendants, Hari Dayal Singh Roy and others, Rs. 600, being the amount of purchase money and compensation, after setting aside a rent decree and sale, made at the instance of the principal Defendants, as fraudulent. The Principal Defendants alone appeared and pleaded, inter alia, that the Plaintiff had no cause of action and that his suit for setting aside the sale and refund of purchase money was not legally maintainable. The first Court held that the Plaintiff had a cause of action and that the suit was maintainable and upon the findings arrived at, it gave the Plaintiff a modified decree for Rs. 480 with costs. On appeal, the Subordinate Judge dismissed the appeal, holding that the suit was maintainable.

Against that decree the Defendants preferred this appeal and the principal point urged was that the lower Courts were wrong in holding that a regular suit was maintainable for refund of purchase money paid by a purchaser at an execution sale.

Babus Saroda Charan Mitter and Soroshi Charan Mitter for the Appellants.

Moulvi Serajul Islam for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this appeal, which arises out of a

(1) I. L. R. 5 All. 577 (1883).

(2) I. L. R. 18 All. 383 (1891).

(3) I. L. R. 11 Mad. 269 (1887).

HARI DOYAL SINGH ROY v. SHEIKH SAMSUDDIN.

suit for refund of the purchase money paid by the Plaintiff-Respondent, on the ground that the judgment-debtor, whose interest was advertised for sale, had no saleable interest, two grounds have been urged before us on behalf of the Defendants-Appellants, first, that the lower Appellate Court is wrong in not allowing the question that the Plaintiff was a mere benamidar to be raised, and, second, that the lower Appellate Court is wrong in holding that a regular suit is maintainable for refund of purchase money paid by a purchaser at an execution sale.

As to the first point we are of opinion that the Court of Appeal below was quite right. The question of benami was not taken in the written statement, nor was it made the subject of an issue, and it was not even raised in the memorandum of appeal before the lower Appellate Court. That being so, the lower Appellate Court in our opinion has rightly refused to allow the question to be raised.

As to the second point, the argument is, that as there is a special provision in sec. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure under which an auction-purchaser is allowed to receive back his purchase money when the judgment-debtor is found to have had no saleable interest in the property which purported to be sold, the auction-purchaser could avail himself only of that provision, and was not entitled to maintain a regular suit. Sec. 315, however, whilst it provides a simple and summary procedure by which an auction-purchaser, under circumstances like the present, can recover back his purchase money, does not contain any provision barring a civil suit, such as we find in sec. 312, or sec. 244, of the Code. That being so, and there being a clear right in the auction-purchaser to claim refund of the purchase money in a case like the present, a right, the existence of which is recognized in sec. 315 itself, we think a civil suit would lie under sec. 11 of the Code.

It was finally contended that the questions arising in such a suit would come under sec. 244 of the Code. We do not see how that can be so. The question whether an auction-purchaser is entitled to receive back his purchase money by reason of the judgment-debtor having no saleable interest in the property sold can hardly be regarded as a question between the parties to a suit.

We should add that the view taken by the Court of Appeal below that the suit is maintainable is amply supported by authority. See Munna Singh v. Gajadhar Singh (1), Kishun Lal v. Muhammad Safdar Ali Khan (2), and Pachayappan v. Narayana (3).

The grounds urged before us therefore both fail, and this appeal must consequently be dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed

H. P. C.

- (1) I. L. R. 5 All. 577 (1883).
- (2) I. L. R. 13 All. 383 (1891).
- (3) I. L. R. 11 Mad. 269 (1887).

[APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

No. 2 OF 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J. PRINSEP, J. HILL, J. 1900. 21, December.	}	CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE, Defendant, Appellant, v. RAM KINKUR DUTT and another, Plaintiffs, Respondents.
---	---	--

Hindu Law—Hindu mother, interest of, on partition—Abatement of suit—Arbitrator—Valuator—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 506, 522—Decree upon award of valuator—Right to sue, revival of.

Upon a partition, D. was allotted a one-third share of certain premises as a Hindu mother. A suit brought by her to restrain Appellant, who had purchased the two-thirds share of the sons, from encroaching upon her was compromised and by consent an order purporting to be made under sec. 506, Civ. P. C., was made referring it to certain persons to settle the price of D.'s share and interest in the disputed property, and directing that, upon payment by the Appellant to D.'s attorney of the price so settled, D. do convey all her share and interest in the property to the Appellant. After the award as to the price, but before decree thereon, D. died leaving two sons, the present Respondents, who obtained an ex parte order reviving the suit in their names. They subsequently applied for a decree upon the award under sec. 522, Civ. P. Code :

Held—That the order of reference upon the compromise gave D. certain fresh rights in respect of which the right to sue survives to her representatives, the present Respondents.

Oakey & Sons v. Dalton (1), Jones v. Simes (2), and Phillips v. Homfray (3) referred to.

The persons to whom it was referred to settle the price of D.'s share were rather valuers than arbitrators and the order of reference cannot accordingly be regarded as one under sec. 506, Civ. P. C.

In re Carus-Wilson v. Greene (4) referred to.

No decree on the award of the valuers can be made under sec. 522, Civ. P. C.

This was an appeal from a decision of Ameer Ali, J., sitting as a Judge of the High Court in its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction, dated the 13th June 1899.

The facts of the case are shortly these : On a partition between the sons, the present Respondents, their mother Denomoyee was allotted a one-third share of the property to be held by her as a Hindu mother. Subsequently the shares of the two sons were purchased by the Defendant-Appellant. The present suit was instituted by Denomoyee to restrain the Defendant from encroaching on her portion of the premises and for damages. The suit was compromised on the following terms as set out in the petition of compromise filed by Denomoyee :

"That it has been arranged between the parties that this suit should be settled on the following terms, viz., that the Defendant shall buy the Plaintiff's share and interest in the disputed property at a price to be settled by Babu..... and Babu....., as arbitrators, and in case of difference between them, the question of the price is to be referred to the umpirage of ..... whose decision will be final and binding on both parties.

"That upon payment by the Defendant to the Plaintiff's attorney of the sum to be fixed

(1) L. R. 35 Ch. Div. 700 (1887).

(2) L. R. 43 Ch. Div. 607 (1890).

(3) L. R. 24 Ch. Div. 439 (1882).

(4) L. R. 18 Q. B. Div. 7 (1886).

CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE v. RAM KINKUR DUTT.

by the said arbitrators or the umpire, as the case may be, the Plaintiff will convey all her share and right in the said property to the Defendant or as she may direct."

Thereupon on the 22nd June 1899, an order was made by consent of parties whereby it was ordered,

"That it be referred to the final decision of Babu..... and Babu....., to settle the price of the Plaintiff's share and interest in the disputed property the subject-matter of this suit, and which was allotted to her on partition in the said plaint mentioned, and to make their award in writing and submit the same to this Court, together with all proceedings, depositions and exhibits in this suit, on or before the 3rd August next; and in case of difference of opinion between the said arbitrators, the said matters be referred to the final decision of..... as umpire, who is to make his award in writing and submit, etc..... And it is further ordered, that, upon payment by the Defendant to the Plaintiff's attorney of the price so to be settled as aforesaid by the said arbitrators or umpire, as the case may be, the Plaintiff do convey all her share and interest in the said property to the Defendant free from all incumbrances, if any, created by her....."

The award was made on the 6th September 1899, but before a decree was passed on the award, and on the 13th September the Plaintiff died leaving the two sons, who had, as already stated, sold their two-thirds share to the Defendant. On the 18th September, the two sons obtained an ex parte order reviving the suit in their names. On the 16th November 1899, the Defendant gave notice of motion to discharge the above ex parte order. This application as also an application by the Respondents for judgment upon the award came on before Ameer Ali, J., on the 8th December, when his Lordship refused the application and gave judgment upon the award.

His Lordship's judgment, as well as the facts of this case, are fully reported in A. C. W. N. 280. *

Sir Griffith Evans (with him Mr. Garth) for the Appellant.—It is not an award at all. Mere valuation by a person nominated by the parties to value the property is not an award (see Russell on Awards, 8th Edition, pp. 17 and 18, Q. B. D. 7). The agreement to refer the question of valuation to certain persons was not for the purpose of settling any dispute which had arisen between the parties, but was for the purpose of preventing any dispute which might arise between them. The report of the referee, in this case Mr. Belchambers, is in no sense an award and there cannot be any judgment upon it, as upon an award. Besides the matter referred was outside the scope of the suit. The suit was wrongly revived. What the Defendant had agreed to buy was the life interest of the original Plaintiff, a Hindu widow. Upon her death, the cause of action did not survive to her sons, who had previously sold their entire interest in the property to the Defendant in the action. The life tenant complained of certain interference with her rights of enjoyment of the property. Upon her death the suit could not be revived. A mere agreement to buy does not under the Transfer of Property Act pass any interest to the intending purchaser, sec. 54, Transfer of Property Act. The agreement to buy and sell has become incapable of performance upon the lady's death. The sons have nothing to convey, therefore the decree and the order for revival of the suit are both bad.

Mr. A. Chaudhuri (with him Mr. S. P. Sinha) for the Respondents.—It is too late now to raise the question as to whether the report of Mr. Belchambers can be treated as an award or not. The parties in their petition asked the Court to refer the matter then in dispute between them to two persons as arbitrators and in case of difference between them to Mr. Belchambers, as an umpire, and it is upon such application that those persons were vested with powers such as are given to arbitrators under the Civil Procedure Code, namely, to examine witnesses on oath and to make their award. Here the suit was settled upon the terms that the Defendant was to buy the original Plaintiff's interest upon a price to be thereafter fixed, but as they differed about the value the matter was referred to certain persons. After the decision of the umpire as to the value, the Defendant was called upon by the original Plaintiff to pay the amount and take the conveyance from her. The Defendant neglected to do so. Plaintiff died thereafter but the Defendant cannot take advantage of that fact, as by the original decree in the suit, it was directed that the Defendant was to pay the said Plaintiff upon the value being fixed. The lady became entitled to the money before her death and it is now due to her estate represented by her sons, who have, under the circumstances, been rightly placed on the record by revivor. See Specific Relief Act, sec 13, Ill. (b). It is not correct that an agreement to buy land does not create any interest in the intending purchaser. Sec. 54, Transfer of Property Act, says that it does not, of itself, create any interest in or charge on such property. He acquires certain rights. See Specific Relief Act, sec. 27 (b), sec. 40, Transfer of Property Act, sec. 91, Indian Trusts Act (II of 1882). He can dispose of such right by Will (Dart's Vendors and Purchasers, 6th Edition, p. 306). It is useless to discuss whether the original cause of action survived in the son. The original decree created certain rights in the Plaintiff since deceased and the suit has been rightly revived. Under the Code persons not parties to any suit, might have asked the Court to refer matters in dispute between them to arbitrators and might have obtained a decree upon their award. The objection that the report of Mr. Belchambers in the present case is not an award is merely technical.

CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE v. RAM KINKUR DUTT.

Sir Griffith Evans in reply.—What I meant was that in consequence of an agreement to buy land, the equitable interest in it does not pass to the intending purchaser as in England. The contract has no such effect on the property.

THE JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—The original Plaintiff in this suit was one Sreemutty Denomoyee Dassee, a Hindu widow, and on the 16th September 1898 she brought an action against the Defendant Chooney Money Dassee (the present Appellant) alleging in effect that the Defendant had wrongfully trespassed and encroached upon the Plaintiff's property and asking for a declaration that the Defendant had no right to do what she was doing, for an injunction, damages and costs.

The Plaintiff's case was briefly as follows:—Her husband died many years ago leaving herself and two sons, Hari Das and Ram Kinkur, surviving him and leaving as part of his estate a certain house in Calcutta known as No. 6,

CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE v. RAM KINKUR DUTT.

Gobind Chandra Sen's Lane. This house was eventually partitioned, and on the 16th June 1900 one-third of the house in question was allotted to the Plaintiff to be held and enjoyed by her as a Hindu mother, during the term of her natural life. By divers conveyances and acts—in the law the Defendant ultimately became the owner of the whole house, subject to the above interest of the Plaintiff in one-third of it. According to the Plaintiff's story the Defendant then demolished a portion of the buildings allotted to the portion of the premises allotted to the Plaintiff for her life and committed other acts of trespass and hence the action. The Defendant, by her written statement, denied the alleged encroachment and trespass. On or about the 22nd June 1899 the Plaintiff presented a petition to the Court and in paragraphs 4 and 6 stated as follows:—

"That it has been arranged between the parties that this suit should be settled on the following terms, viz., that the Defendant shall buy the Plaintiff's share and interest in the disputed property at a price to be settled by Babu Jadu Nath Sen of Sibnarain Dass' Lane, and Babu Bepin Behary Dhur of 98, Clive Street, Calcutta, as arbitrators, and in case of difference between them, the question of the price is to be referred to the umpirage of R. Belchambers, Esqr., the Registrar of this Honourable Court, whose decision will be final, and binding on both the parties.

"That upon payment by the Defendant to the Plaintiff's attorney of the sum to be fixed by the said arbitrators or the umpire, as the case may be, the Plaintiff will convey all her share and right in the said property to the Defendant or as she may direct." And the Petitioner asked for an order referring to the arbitration of the arbitrators named "to settle the price of the Plaintiff's interest and share in the disputed property" and for further relief, consequential upon that price being so determined.

On the 22nd June 1899 the order, set out at page 7 of the Paper-book, was made, and this order, to my mind, has created the difficulty in the case. It provided for a reference to two persons named to "settle the price of the Plaintiff's share and interest in the disputed property," with a proviso for reference, in case of difference to Mr. Belchambers, the Registrar of the Court, as umpire, and ordered that, upon payment by the Defendants to the Plaintiff's attorney of the price so to be settled as aforesaid by the said arbitrators or umpire, as the case may be, the Plaintiff do convey all her share and interest in the said property to the Defendant free from incumbrances, if any, created by her. This order, I understand, was made by consent and in chambers, and apparently without any discussion. It evidently purports to be made under sec. 506 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The matter then proceeded, the arbitrators differed as to the price, and Mr. Belchambers found the price to be Rs. 2,850, treating the Plaintiff as entitled to an absolute interest in the property. This so-called award was dated the 4th September 1899, and the Plaintiff died on the 13th of the same month, after having, as is alleged, offered to execute a conveyance to the Defendant, and after demanding Rs. 2,850 as the purchase money determined by Mr. Belchambers. By an ex parte order, dated the 18th September 1899, her sons Hari Dass and Ram Kinkur were upon their own petition placed upon the record in the stead of the deceased Plaintiff, as her heirs and representatives. On the 16th November 1899 the Defendant gave notice of motion to discharge the above ex parte order.

CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE v. RAM KINKUR DUTT.

The application to discharge this ex parte order as also, as I understand, an application for judgment on Mr. Belchambers's award came before Mr. Justice Ameer Ali sitting on the Original Side, who refused to set aside the order of the 18th of September 1899 and gave judgment in terms of the award of Mr. Belchambers under sec. 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Hence the present appeal. We have then to deal with two points: (1) whether the Judge in the Court below was right in refusing to discharge the order of the 18th September 1899, and (2) if so, whether he was right in giving judgment in terms of the award under sec. 522.

Upon the first question, whilst it is perfectly true, that we are not dealing with the case of the heir to the property which has been injured seeking to carry on the action commenced by his predecessor-in-title for damages for that injury, as, in the present case, Hari Das and Ram Kinkur have no interest in the property which belongs to the Defendant, it is, I think, at least doubtful whether the principle of the cases of Oakey & Sons v. Dalton (1) and Jones v. Simes (2) rather than that of Phillips v. Homfray (3) does not apply. But be that as it may, the order of the 22nd June must be taken into consideration in dealing with this part of the case, and that order appears to me to make a substantial difference in arriving at our conclusion. That is still a subsisting order, it has not yet been discharged and we are bound, therefore, to give some effect to it. It changed the position of the parties in the litigation; so far as one can judge it was intended to be an order to give effect, in some shape or other, to the compromise at which the parties had arrived; it obviously contemplated the payment to the Plaintiff of the purchase money awarded, with a consequent conveyance by her. Assuming for the moment that Hari Das and Ram Kinkur, as her representatives, are, under this order, entitled to the purchase money awarded—a point upon which I express no opinion,—can it be rightly said that the right to sue for it did not survive, or that they are not entitled to be placed in her shoes so that they may be able to receive it, and to enforce the order of the 22nd June? Was it intended that all the proceedings under this order were to determine on the death of the original Plaintiff? I think not. The order of the 18th September is, perhaps, not very happily or carefully worded, but it must, I think, be regarded as an order enabling Hari Das and Ram Kinkur to proceed with the suit, as it then stood, that is, as modified or partially determined by the order of the 22nd June, in which view, having regard to the terms of that order, I think the Court below was right

(1) L. R. 35 Ch. Div. 700 (1887).

(2) L. R. 43 Ch. Div. 607 (1890).

(3) L. R. 24 Ch. Div. 439 (1883).

CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE v. RAM KINKUR DUTT.

in its conclusion upon this part of the case. In short that order gave the Plaintiff certain fresh rights or, at least possible rights, in respect of which the right to sue survives to her representatives. On this point, then, the appeal fails.

Upon the second point I unfortunately am unable to agree with the learned Judge in the Court below. He has declared that the award ought to be carried into effect. What is there in the so-called award to carry into effect? Mr. Belchambers has only determined the amount of purchase money—he has done nothing else. The Appellants say the amount has been determined upon a wrong principle, viz., upon the view of the mother having an absolute interest in the one-third share, when she had only the interest of a Hindu mother. I say nothing about that now. The difficulty arises from the terms of the order of the 22nd June, and from the circumstance that it appears to have been treated as if it were one under sec. 506 of the Code. It may well be that it was intended, in making that order, to make one under sec. 506, but obviously it cannot properly be regarded as one under that section, for what the so-called arbitrators and umpire were to decide was not any matter in difference between the parties in the suit but merely to settle the price of the Plaintiff's share and interest in the disputed property. They were, in effect, rather valuers than arbitrators [see In re Carus-Wilson and Greene (4)] and if the reference were not properly a reference under sec. 506, it is reasonably clear that no order could properly be made under sec. 522, the section under which the learned Judge purported to act. This seems to conclude the matter. I may add that this point, which has been carefully argued before us, does not appear, so far as one can judge from his judgment, to have been drawn to the attention of the Judge in the Court below. The appeal, then succeeds on this point. Then what is the proper course to be pursued? I think this order of the Court below must be discharged and the case remanded to the lower Court with liberty to either party to apply to that Court as they may be advised. If the present Respondents consider they are entitled to the purchase money as determined by Mr. Belchambers, it may be that they can make a proper application to the lower Court for an order directing payment to them: but I express no opinion as to whether they are so entitled, nor has that question been, as yet, determined by the Court of first instance. If on the other hand no step be taken by the Respondents, it will, probably, be open to the Appellant to apply to the lower Court for an order determining the litigation for want of prosecution. But I do not see that we can properly do more, at the present juncture, than remand the case. As regards costs, the victory has been divided and there will be no costs of the appeal, the more so as the present Appellant was a consenting party to the order of the 22nd June, to which I attribute most of the difficulty which has arisen. As regards the costs of the hearing before Mr. Justice Ameer Ali each party will bear their own costs. We do not interfere with his order refusing to discharge the order of the 18th September.

CHOONEY MONEY DASSEE v. RAM KINKUR DUTT.

PRINSEP J.—I am of the same opinion.

HILL J.—I am also of the same opinion.

Messrs. Watkins & Co., Attorneys for the Appellant.

Mr. N. C. Bose and Babu Sarat Chandra Dutt, Attorneys for the Respondents.

Case remanded.

S. R. D.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 372 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	TARAK NATH NUNDY,
HANDLEY, J.	Complainant, Petitioner,
1900.	v.
5, July.	GOBINDA CHANDRA MITRA,
	Accused, Opposite Party.

Court of Wards, servants of, prosecution of, by proprietor of estate on assuming management.

The owner of an estate on assuming management thereof is competent to prosecute a servant of the Court of Wards for criminal breach of trust committed during the management of the estate by the Court.

This was a rule issued on the 18th of May 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Khulna, dated the 18th of April 1900.

The facts of the case are as follows :—

The estate on behalf of which the present complaint was made was up to the year 1305, B. S., under the administration of the Court of Wards. The accused, Govind Chandra Mitra, who was charged with criminal breach of trust, was a servant under the Court of Wards. His services were dispensed with in 1304, B. S., by the Court of Wards. The items in respect of which it was alleged he committed breach of trust related to 1303, i.e., when he was employed under the Court of Wards. The estate having come into the hands of the proprietor on his attaining majority he prosecuted the accused for criminal breach of trust committed in 1303 when he was in the service of the Court of Wards. The trying Magistrate dismissed the complaint on the ground that the proper party to prosecute was the Court of Wards and that it would be a dangerous policy if landlords after the release of their estates and the discharge of servants legally employed under the Court were allowed to prosecute them at pleasure at any time.

The complainant thereupon moved the High Court for further enquiry into the matter.

Babu Shama Prosumno Majumdar for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause against the Rule.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

Strictly speaking this application for further inquiry in a case in which the Magistrate had discharged the accused should have been made either to the District Magistrate or to the Sessions Judge instead of to this Court direct. It was, however, in consequence of the nature of this application, the error of the Magistrate being clear, that we have consented to deal with it ourselves.

The accused was prosecuted for criminal breach of trust in respect of moneys said to have been misappropriated by him when he was a servant of the zemindar, who is represented by the complainant while the estate was under the management of the Court of Wards. The Magistrate, in discharging the accused, seems to think that the accused could not be properly prosecuted at the instance of the owner of the estate, even though the money of such person may have been misappropriated, but that the prosecution could be only on behalf of the Court of Wards, because the accused was a servant of the Court of Wards when the offence was committed. But the Court of Wards are in no way concerned in this matter. The Court of Wards acted in the management of this estate only on behalf of its real owner and, as they have relinquished the management, it is clearly within the power of the owner of the estate to proceed against any person who may have caused damage to it even during the time when it was under the management of the Court of Wards. In this view we think that the order of the Magistrate discharging the accused was erroneous and that there should be a further inquiry held.

TARAK NATH NUNDY v. GOBINDA CHANDRA MITRA.

Rule made absolute.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NOS. 450 AND 512 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	AKHOY KUMAR CHATTERJEE,
HANDLEY, J.		in No. 450.
1900.		PUNCHANUN BAGIS & ORS.,
16, July.		in No. 512, Petitioners,
		v.
		THE QUEEN EMRESS.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 110, cl. (f), 117, cl. 3—Repute, evidence of, admissibility of.

Evidence of repute is not admissible in cases coming under cl. (f) of sec. 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Where the imputations were that the Petitioners had from some time past made themselves very objectionable in the neighbourhood and that they had been annoying the villagers in various ways, by kicking at their doors at night or throwing brick-bats on the roof and annoying respectable women :

Held—That these imputations, even if proved, do not constitute conduct so as to render the Petitioners liable to give security for good behaviour by reason of their being so desperate and dangerous as to render their being at large without security hazardous to the community.

This was a rule issued on the 13th of June 1900, against the order of the District Magistrate of Khulna, dated the 28th of April 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Chandra Kant Sen for the Petitioner in No. 450.

Babu Chandra Kant Sen for the Petitioners in No. 512.

No one appeared to show cause against these rules.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The Petitioner, Akhoy Coomar Chatterjee, together with four others, has in the same proceedings been required to give security under sec. 110 (e) and (f), that is to say, for habitually committing or attempting to commit, or abetting the commission of, offences involving a breach of the peace and for being so desperate and dangerous as to render their being at large without security hazardous to the community.

AKHOY KUMAR CHATTERJEE v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

The Magistrate's judgment, however, makes it clear that though he proceeded against the Petitioners also under cl. (e), he really required security from them under cl. (f) and, indeed, the evidence is directed only to prove the conduct of the Petitioners within the terms of cl. (f).

It has been pointed out to us that the evidence on which this order has been passed is evidence of general repute which is not admissible in proceedings taken under cl. (f) but only in proceedings in which the facts to be proved is that a person is a habitual offender.

We think that this contention is sound and that evidence of repute is not admissible in cases coming under cl. (f). We have read the evidence of the witnesses in this case and we find that it consists almost entirely of evidence of repute and that where, in one or two instances, there is some attempt to prove acts against the accused, the evidence is so vague and the acts to which it relates are said to have been committed so long ago that it is impossible to consider this evidence sufficient to justify an order requiring Petitioners to give security for good behaviour. The facts proved seem to be that the Petitioners have from some time past made themselves very objectionable in the neighbourhood and that they have been annoying the villagers in various ways by knocking at their doors at night or throwing brick-bats on the roof. But what seems to have given most offence has been that they have, in their lewdness, been constantly annoying respectable women.

These imputations, however, even if proved, do not, in our opinion, constitute conduct so as to render the Petitioners liable to give security for good behaviour by reason of their being so desperate and dangerous as to render their being at large without security hazardous to the community. It appears to us that acts of this description do not fall within these terms.

The rules are, therefore, made absolute and the orders for security are set aside.

Rule made absolute.

S. C. S.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 457 OF 1900.

STEVENS, J.

HANDLEY, J.

1900.

2, August.

SRIHARI SHOME and

BABAR ALI, Petitioners,

v.

LAL KHAN, Opposite
Party.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 114, 144—Possession of deadly weapon, if necessary to render each member of unlawful assembly liable for offence under sec. 144—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 106, 522—Binding down to keep the peace, order for—"Criminal force," meaning of—Order for restoration of immoveable property.

When one person instigates another to join an unlawful assembly armed with a deadly weapon and afterwards joins the unlawful assembly himself, he may be punishable under sec. 144, I. P. Code, read with sec. 114, even though he was not himself armed with a deadly weapon.

Sec. 106 of the Code of Criminal Procedure may apply to a case in which armed men are assembled with the intention of committing a breach of the peace but no breach of the peace occurs because the assembly does not go so far.

The term "criminal force" used n

SRIHARI SHOME v. LAL KHAN.

sec. 522 of the Code of Criminal Procedure must be understood as defined in sec. 350 of the Penal Code and to justify an order for the restoration of possession of immoveable property under sec. 522, Cr. P. Code, the dispossession must have been by the actual use of criminal force and not merely by the show of such force.

RAM CHANDRA BORAL v. JITYANDRIA (1)
ISHAN CHANDRA KOLLA v. DINA NATH
BHADAK (2) followed.

This was a rule issued on the 14th of June 1900, against the order of the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Munshigunge, dated the 6th of April 1900, which order was, on appeal, modified by the Sessions Judge of Dacca on the 4th May 1900.

The facts of the case and the arguments addressed to the Court appear from the judgment.

Mr. Jackson and Babu Harendra Narayan Mitter for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause against the Rule.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT WAS AS FOLLOWS :—

The Petitioners were convicted by the Subdivisional Magistrate of Munshigunge under sec. 147, I. P. C., and they were sentenced to undergo each one year's rigorous imprisonment. They were also directed to execute bonds with sureties each to keep the peace for one year. A further direction was made under sec. 522, C. Cr. P., for the restoration of the party of the complainant to the possession of the disputed chur from a portion of which they had been dispossessed.

The learned Sessions Judge, on appeal, was of opinion that the offence of rioting had not been proved. He, therefore, altered the conviction, in the case of the Petitioner Babar Ali, to one under sec. 144 and, in the case of the Petitioner Srihari Shome, to one under that same section, read with sec. 114, I. P. C., maintaining the sentences and the orders under secs. 106 and 522, C. Cr. P.

It appears, upon the findings of the Courts below, that the complainant's party had erected some huts on a very newly-formed chur and, at the time of the occurrence, some 15 or 16 persons of the party appear to have been on the chur guarding those huts. The Petitioners came up with a large party, the numbers of which are variously stated at from 300 to 450, many of them armed with fish spears and other weapons. The Petitioner Srihari Shome, however, is said to have carried nothing but an umbrella. It seems that, on his order to beat the other party and break down their houses, some of the party of the Petitioners' party advanced, when the complainant's party immediately took to flight. Thersupon the party of the Petitioners broke down the houses.

It has been contended, as regards Srihari Shome, that no conviction under sec. 114 read with sec. 144, I. P. C., could be maintained from the peculiar nature of an offence punishable under sec. 144, which requires that the person committing it should be armed with a deadly weapon. We are not entirely prepared to accede to this contention. We think that if it were proved that

* (1) 2 C. W. N. 305 : s. c. I. L. R.
25 Cal. 434 (1897).
(2) 4 C. W. N. 307 (1899).

SRIHARI SHOME v. LAL KHAN,

one person instigated another to join an unlawful assembly armed with a deadly weapon and afterwards joined the unlawful assembly himself, he might be punishable under sec. 144, read with sec. 114, even though he were not himself armed with a deadly weapon. In the present case, however there is no finding upon the evidence that there was any such instigation. The District Judge merely says that he thinks it must have been so. We think, then, that the conviction as regards Srihari Shome must be altered to one under sec. 143, I. P. C.

It has further been contended that the orders under secs. 106 and 522, C. Cr. P., are bad. Authority has been cited to show that there may be cases of unlawful assembly in which no breach of the peace occurs, because the assembly does not go so far and to which accordingly sec. 106 does not apply.

We are not prepared, however, to hold that that section has no application to a case like the present, in which armed men were assembled, as the occurrence showed, with the intention of committing a breach of the peace, for, the order was actually given to beat the persons who were at the time in occupation of the chur and an actual breach of the peace in pursuance of that order was prevented only by the fact that those persons at once took to flight and abandoned the position.

As regards the application of sec. 522, C. Cr. P., we have the authority of the case of Ram Chandra Boral v. Jityandria (1), which has been followed in the case of Ishan Chandra Kolla v. Dina Nath

(1) 2 C. W. N. 305 : s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 434 (1897).

Bhadak (2) for the proposition that the terms "criminal force" used in sec. 522, C. Cr. P., must be understood as defined in sec. 350, I. P. C., and that, to justify an order for the restoration of possession of property under sec. 522, the dispossession must have been by the actual use of criminal force and not merely by the show of such force. We are unable, therefore, to maintain the order under sec. 522. The conviction and sentence in the case of Babar Ali are maintained. The conviction in the case of Srihari Shome is altered to one under sec. 143, I. P. C., and the sentence is reduced to six months' rigorous imprisonment. The orders under sec. 106, C. Cr. P., are maintained. The order under sec. 522, C. Cr. P., is set aside and if, as we understand has been the case, any action has been taken upon it, the state of things existing at the time when the order was passed must be restored.

Rule made absolute in part.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 535 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	KAILASH CHUNDER PAL
HANDLEY, J.	and another, Petitioners,
1900.	v.
4, September.	JOYNUDDI, Opposite
	Party.

Summary trial—Complaint disclosing facts constituting offence of a graver nature—Process, issue, of, for minor offence if proper—Procedure—Jurisdiction of Magistrate—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 260, 530 (g)—Irregularity or illegality—Transfer of a case upon order for retrial, without issuing a rule.

(2) 4 C. W. N. 307 (1899).

KAILASH CHUNDER PAL v. JOYNUDDI.

A Magistrate is bound to proceed and regulate his proceedings at the trial as for the offence made up of the facts complained of if on the examination of the complainant, there is no reason to believe that the complaint is exaggerated or false and process is issued for the attendance of the accused.

When a Magistrate deliberately disregards the offence actually complained of, it becomes no question of mere irregularity but his proceedings are absolutely void under the provisions of sec. 530 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The High Court without issuing a rule directed a transfer of the case to some other Magistrate in ordering retrial.

This was a rule issued on the 9th of July 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Comillah, dated the 21st of June, an application for a reference of which order to the High Court for revision was rejected by the Sessions Judge on the 30th of June 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy for the Petitioners.

No one appeared to show cause against the Rule.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

A rule was granted in this case on the ground that the summary trial held was without jurisdiction, inasmuch as the offence charged in the complaint on which process was issued was rioting, an offence which was not triable summarily. The examination of the complainant is to the effect that 17 or 18 persons attacked and beat him and he gives reason for this attack on him. There was nothing before the Magistrate except this examination of the complainant on which he proceeded to deal with the case by issuing process on the accused to attend. The case, therefore, was undoubtedly prima facie one of rioting and the proceedings should have been regulated accordingly. We do not understand the explanation given by the Magistrate who considers that he "would have laid himself open to a charge of improper use of his discretion if he had tried such a case under sec. 147, I. P. C.," and he adds:—"Nine-tenth of the marpit cases and trespass cases are technically rioting cases, at least so far as the complainant's statement goes, but it would be absurd to try them all as rioting cases." We cannot understand what the Magistrate means by this. If, on the examination of the complainant, there is no reason to believe that the complaint is exaggerated or false and process is issued for the attendance of the accused, the Magistrate is bound to proceed and regulate his proceedings at the trial as for the offence made up of the facts complained of and there is no reason why, if that offence is rioting, the proceeding should not be so regulated. The real difference is that in proceedings held by what is known a summary procedure, the record is more easily prepared and the powers of the Magistrate in regard to finality of punishment are enhanced, but these are no sufficient reasons why the Magistrate should deliberately disregard the offence actually complained of. There is no question of irregularity in this matter, as the Magistrate seems to think. Sec. 530 (q), C. Cr. P., declares that if a

KAILASH CHUNDER PAL v. JOYNUDDI.

Magistrate, not empowered by law in this behalf, tries an offender summarily, his proceedings shall be void. We have, therefore, no option in the matter. A fresh trial must therefore be held and under the circumstances we think that it should be held by some other Magistrate. The proceedings, therefore, will be taken by the District Magistrate or by some other Magistrate to whom he may think proper to transfer them.

Rule made absolute : Case sent back for retrial.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 791 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.	}	SAHIRAM AGARWALLA
STEVENS, J.		and
1900.		JIBUN KAMAR,
21, November.		Petitioners.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 2, 195, 203—Sanction to prosecute for bringing a false complaint—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 211—Police-report declaring complaint false—Application for enquiry into the complaint—Complaint—Judicial determination.

An application for an enquiry into their complaint, made by persons in shewing cause why they should not be prosecuted for bringing a complaint declared by the Police to be false is in effect in the nature of a complaint, and a sanction for prosecution for bringing a false complaint cannot be given until and unless that complaint is judicially determined.

"Judicial determination" of a complaint does not necessarily mean the trial of the persons against whom the complaint is made but the final determination of the matter of the complaint by the officer holding the enquiry, upon evidence produced before him.

QUEEN-EMPRESS v. SHAM LALL (1),
SHEIKH KUTAB ALI v. EMPRESS (2) followed.

This was a rule issued on the 27th of September 1900, against an order of the Deputy Commissioner of Lakhimpur dated the 11th of September 1900, as well as the order of the Extra Assistant Commissioner of Dibrugarh, dated the 22nd of August 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Dasarathi Sanyal for the Petitioners.

No one appeared to shew cause against the Rule.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

A rule was obtained by the two Petitioners under the following circumstances: Sahiram's house was burnt down and a complaint was made before the Police by Jibun, his servant, that the house was burnt by two persons, Mafizullah and Chuni Lal. The Police reported the complaint to be false. Upon that, notice was issued upon the Petitioners to show cause why they should not be prosecuted under sec. 211, I. P. C. Thereupon the Petitioners, in showing cause, asked for an inquiry into their complaint. The matter was then referred to the Extra Assistant Commissioner for inquiry and that officer examined certain witnesses produced by the Petitioners and expressed his opinion thus: after stating that he had examined certain witnesses and that they had deposed to the facts alleged by the Petitioners, he goes on to say "so I think Chuni Lal and Mafizullah may be prosecuted under sec. 436, I. P. C." The matter appears to have been brought again to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner who directed a further inquiry to be held by the Extra Assistant Commissioner. On this occasion, several witnesses were examined before him on behalf of the Police and some of the former witnesses examined by the Petitioners were cross-examined, and the Assistant Commissioner came to the conclusion that the charge against Chuni Lal and Mafizullah was wholly false and he wound up his report by asking that sanction for the prosecution of the two men, Jibun Kamar and Sahiram, under secs. 211 and 109, I. P. C., might be accorded. Upon that the Deputy Commissioner on the 24th August directed a notice to issue to Sahiram to show cause within 7 days why he should not be prosecuted under secs. 211 and 109, I. P. C., and also upon Jibun to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under sec. 211. The Petitioners thereupon obtained this rule from this Court calling upon the Deputy Commissioner to show cause why the orders sanctioning their prosecution should not be set aside on the ground that the complaint of Jibun Kamar has not been judicially determined and upon two other grounds.

(1) I. L. R. 14 Cal. 707 (1887).

(2) 8 C. W. N. 490 (1899).

SAHIRAM AGARWALLA and JIBUN KAMAR.

We think, having regard to the precedents cited before us, namely, the Full Bench case of Queen-Empress v. Sham Lall (1) and the case of Sheik Kutab Ali v. Empress (2), that we must make this rule absolute upon the first ground. It is quite clear that the application of the Petitioners for an inquiry was in effect in the nature of a complaint and that no judicial determination has been arrived at, as pointed out in the cases to which we have referred and that, therefore, the orders complained of cannot be sustained. By judicial determination we do not mean a trial of the persons against whom the complaint was made by the Petitioners. What we mean is, as pointed out in the cases to which reference has been made, that the officer holding the inquiry must come to a conclusion upon the evidence produced before him and finally dispose of the matter of the complaint. The order sanctioning the prosecution of the Petitioners will accordingly be set aside.

(1) I. L. R. 14 Cal. 707 (1887).

(2) 3 C. W. N. 490 (1899).

Rule made absolute :

Sanction set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 434 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	BAIJ NATH RAM MAWRARI,
HANDLEY, J.	Petitioner,
1900.	v.
16, July.	BURGESS, Opposite
	Party.

Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 417—Cheating—Including an article in a bill not supplied—Payment of the bill in part—Intention to defraud.

The fact that a trader in a statement of his account included amongst other articles delivered, an article, which the complainant alleged she had returned, does not amount to cheating unless it is proved that he had intentionally done so with an intention to defraud and had obtained a payment of the whole bill or of the bill in part including the price of that article.

BAIJ NATH RAM MARWARI v. BURGESS.

This was a rule issued on the 4th of June 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Monghyr, dated the 3rd of May 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the Sessions Judge of Bhagulpore on the 22nd of June 1900.

The facts of the case appear sufficiently from the judgment.

Mr. W. Jackson (with him Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Dasarathi Sanyal) for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Petitioner has been convicted of cheating under sec. 417, I. P. C., and has been sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment and his appeal has been dismissed by the Sessions Judge.

A rule has been granted to consider the facts on which the Courts have convicted the Petitioner of cheating and whether they constitute that offence.

It appears that Mrs. Burgess had dealings with the Petitioner who is a cloth merchant and that she owed him money. She mislaid his bill and more than once asked him for another one. In the end the Petitioner gave her a statement of account but not a bill with all its details. Shortly afterwards, Mrs. Burgess found the bill which she had received from the Petitioner and she noticed that amongst the items was an item for certain cloth which she says, she had returned. This has been disputed by the Petitioner and this really forms the foundation of the offence of cheating of which the Petitioner has been convicted. The Courts have found that the cloth was returned and that, therefore, the Petitioner made an incorrect or, perhaps, a false charge against Mrs. Burgess. But the mere fact that there had been a wrong entry in a bill would not of itself constitute the offence of cheating.

To constitute that offence it must be proved that the accused by deceiving Mrs. Burgess fraudulently or dishonestly induced her to deliver property to her or intentionally induced her to do or omit to do something which she would not have done or omitted if she had not been so deceived, such an act or omission causing or being likely to cause damage to her in her property.

The lower Courts have found that the general statement of account instead of a detailed bill was intentionally given to Mrs. Burgess to deceive her so as to keep from her knowledge this item of the cloth which they found was improperly charged; and that had a bill with its details showing this item been given to Mrs. Burgess she would not have paid moneys to the accused, in fact, that the accused thus intentionally induced Mrs. Burgess to make payments to him by not giving her a bill with all its details including the item relating to the cloth;— in other words that if Mrs. Burgess had not been thus intentionally deceived by the accused she would not have made these payments. It is impossible, however, to understand how a wrong charge in the account could really have affected Mrs. Burgess's payments to the accused. Even excluding this disputed item of cloth which has been found against the accused, there still was admittedly, a considerable sum of money owing to the accused and there is nothing to show that any of these payments were made or applied expressly towards payment for this cloth. How then can it be said that in consequence of the suppression of knowledge of this item she was intentionally induced to make payments to the accused in liquidation of a debt admittedly due! Nor can it be reasonably found that the accused gave Mrs. Burgess a general statement of account with the intention of withholding from her knowledge this item. She had already received a detailed bill showing this item and she had never objected to it. To give her afterwards a general statement of the amount due by her on this bill is a transaction which ordinarily takes place, and she could then have asked to have the details. It is impossible to understand how it can be held that in consequence of her not being given a bill with all the items stated in detail, she made payments to liquidate a debt which she admits was justly due, which she would not otherwise have done. Lastly it cannot be held that by obtaining such payments damage was caused to her. There was certainly no damage done to her for the result of the payments was to reduce her debt to the Petitioner. To convict the accused of cheating it was necessary to prove all this.

BAIJ NATH RAM MARWARI, v. BURGESS.

The conviction and sentence are therefore bad and they must be set aside.

We observe that the Sessions Judge in his judgment has thought proper to disbelieve Mrs. Harris, a witness in this case, and in doing so, he states that he agrees with the Magistrate. But, on reading the Magistrate's judgment, we find that he has believed Mrs. Harris. It is impossible, therefore, to account for this expression of opinion on the part of the Sessions Judge.

H. P. C. Rule made absolute.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 446 OF 1900.

HADJEE AJAM GOLAM
HOSSEIN

STANLEY, J.

1901.

7, January.

v.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA
IN COUNCIL.

*Income Tax Act (II of 1886), sec. 47—
Principal place of business of a person, power of Governor-General to declare.*

Sec. 47 of the Income Tax Act so far as it empowers the Governor-General in Council to declare which of several places of business should be deemed to be the principal place of business, applies only to the case of a company or a firm and not to the case of an individual carrying on business.

The facts of the case, which was undefended, are fully stated in the judgment.

Mr. Knight for the Plaintiff commented on the different sub-sections of sec. 47 and contended that that section did not apply to the case of an individual carrying on business.

STANLEY, J.—This action has been brought by the Plaintiff, a merchant carrying on business in Bombay and also in Calcutta, to recover from the Secretary of State for India in Council Rs. 1302. I. 4., being monies which he alleges were paid by him under the compulsion of a distress warrant in respect of Income-tax which he had already paid in Bombay.

HADJEE AJAM GOLAM HOSSEIN v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL.

It appears on the evidence of his Calcutta Manager that the Plaintiff carried on business in Bombay before he opened a branch in Calcutta and that his head office is in Bombay. He paid the Income-tax for the year 1898-99 in Bombay in respect of both businesses. He was assessed however for Income-tax in Calcutta in respect of the two businesses and, notwithstanding that he informed the Collector that he had already paid it in Bombay, he was required to pay it again in Calcutta and did so, as I have said, on the issue of a distress warrant for its recovery.

The Defendant filed a written statement in which there is an admission that the certificate of payment of Income-tax for 1898-99 given by the Collector of Bombay was in the hands of the Defendant but under the impression that the Income-tax ought to have been paid in Calcutta and not in Bombay the Collector in Calcutta thought fit to insist on its payment here.

It is suggested that, under an order made in pursuance of sec. 47 of Act 2 of 1886, the Governor-General in Council had declared that Calcutta should be deemed to be the principal place of business of the Plaintiff.

This section, however, so far as it empowers the Governor-General in Council to declare which of several places of business should be deemed to be the principal place of business, appears to me only to apply to a case of a company or a firm and not to the case of an individual carrying on business.

Sub-sec. 3 of that section is the portion of the section which deals with a person carrying on business in several places and this section only enables the Governor-General in Council to declare which of those several places shall be deemed to be his residence.

In the case of a Company or a firm the Governor-General in Council may declare which of the several places of business shall be deemed to be the principal place of business.

Acting no doubt under some misconception, as it seems to me, the Collector in Calcutta ill-advisedly insisted on the payment of the Income-tax here. The money was paid on the 22nd June 1899 under compulsion, as I have said, of a distress warrant. I think that the Plaintiff has clearly established his right to recover this money.

In his claim he has asked for damages but his learned counsel has abandoned this portion of the claim and, under the circumstances, I shall give a decree for the amount claimed, Rs. 1302. I. 4. with interest at the Court rate of 6 per cent. from the 22nd June 1899, the amount so awarded to be satisfied within six weeks from the date of the decree.

Costs on scale No. 2 up to the time the suit was transferred; thereafter on scale No. 1. Interest on decree at 6 per cent.

The learned Standing Counsel applied to me that the case might be adjourned for a fortnight with a view to his client's filing his affidavit of documents and also for the purpose of considering as to whether or not the case should not be settled. I was unable to see my way to accede to this application and for this reason:

On 13th August 1900 an order was made for the discovery of documents and no discovery was made and on the 23rd November 1900 an application was made to me by the Plaintiff to compel the Defendant to file a list of documents under the former order. On this occasion I granted one month's extension and directed by the order that if the order was not complied with in the time mentioned, the action should be transferred to the undefended list and heard ex parte.

HADJEE AJAM GOLAM HOSSEIN v. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL.

No sufficient ground was shewn to me by the learned counsel why I should rescind this order or allow any further time, having regard to the number of months which the Defendant had already had for making the discovery.

Messrs. Pugh & Co., Attorneys for the Plaintiff.

S. R. D.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 702 of 1900.

STANLEY, J.	}	QUAZIE MAHMUDAR
1900.		ROHMAN, Plaintiff,
6, December.		v.
		SARAI CHANDRA DUTT,
		Defendant.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), Chap. XXXIX—Negotiable Instruments—Summary Procedure—Leave to defend, extension of time to apply for—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), sec. 4 and Sch. II, Art. 159.

In a suit under Chap. XXXIX, Civ. P. C., the Court has no power, after the time fixed by the summons for obtaining leave to appear and defend has expired, to extend the time.

Quere—Whether the Court has power to grant an extension of time if an application for such extension be made before the time fixed by the summons has expired.

This was a suit by the Plaintiff, as endorsee for value of a promissory note alleged to have been executed by the Defendant, instituted under Chap. XXXIX of the Civil Procedure Code, on the 30th August 1900. Summons was issued in the form given in Sch. IV, No. 172 of the Code, and the Defendant was given ten days from date of service to appear and apply for leave to defend if he intended to defend the action.

Mr. A. Chaudhuri was instructed by the Defendant to apply for leave to defend on the 19th of November 1900, the Defendant alleging that he had been served in the beginning of the month of October 1900, during the close holidays but the application, as a matter of fact, was not made till the 20th. The Courts re-opened on the 19th of November and the verified petition of the Defendant had been affirmed on that day. On counsel stating that having regard to the date when the application was being made a question of limitation arose, his Lordship directed notice to issue to the Plaintiff. The application was finally heard on the 3rd of December 1900.

Mr. R. Mitra (with him Mr. A. Chaudhuri) for the Defendant.—The Defendant is a resident of Hooghly, and this Court has held that a person who does not reside within the ordinary original jurisdiction of this Court should get sufficient time to appear and ask for leave, Groom v. Wilson (2).

Pontifex, J., in that case held, that inasmuch as sec. 532, Civ. P. C., provided that the summons was to be in the form given in the schedule, or in such other form as the High Court may from time to time prescribe, power to extend the time is given to the High Court by implication.

QUAZIE MAHMUDAR ROHMAN v. SARAT CHANDRA DUTT.

STANLEY, J.—Can a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the Court alter the form?

Mr. Mittra.—Under sec. 36 of the Letters Patent a single Judge has the same power as the High Court.

He also relied upon Chandra Kant Roy v. Pogose (1), Joseph v. Solano (6), and referred to certain unreported cases.

Mr. J. G. Woodroffe for the Plaintiff.—Under sec. 4 of the Limitation Act, the Court must take the point of limitation, it cannot be waived. Art. 159 of that Act expressly provides that the Defendant is to apply for leave to defend within ten days from the date of the service of summons. We say that the Defendant was served in the fourth week of September. It is very doubtful as to whether the Defendant was not barred even on the 19th of November when the Courts re-opened. He referred to Eisenlohr v. Goona Moni Debi (5) (before Sale, J., 12th March 1895) and Madhub Lall Dugur v. Woopendra Narain Sen (4). The cases referred to by Mr. Mittra all refer to extension of time of service, not the extension of time to appear after service. Sec. 534 gives the Defendant a right under special circumstances to set aside the decree and if necessary to stay or set aside execution, and that is the proper and the only course open to the Defendant.

Mr. R. Mitra in reply.—Sec. 534, Civ. P. C., supports my contention. If the Court can set aside the decree under special circumstances, such as exist in this case, it is merely a technical objection to say that the Court cannot give leave to the Defendant to defend the action before decree. The Court has got to be satisfied that the Plaintiff is entitled to a decree and there is an inherent power in the Court to order such steps or proceedings to be taken as may lead to the administration of justice.

STANLEY, J.—This matter comes before the Court on a petition filed by the Defendant for leave to defend the action.

The facts, upon which the point for my decision depends, are not disputed.

The suit was instituted on the 30th of August 1900 under Chap. XXXIX of the Code of Civil Procedure for the sum of Rs. 15,029 alleged to be due by the Defendant to the Plaintiff on the footing of a promissory note, dated the 24th of August 1900.

The summons prescribed by sec. 532 of the Code was served on the Defendant on the 21st September 1900 and as the ten days, during which the Defendant was entitled to apply for leave to appear and defend, expired during the long vacation, the Defendant had, up to the 19th of November, the first day on which the Court sat, to make his application.

The application was not made until the following day, the 20th of November, when I directed that notice of the application should be given to the Plaintiff.

Mr. Mittra on behalf of the Defendant contends that the Court has power to

(1) 3 B. L. R. O. S. 83 (1869).

(4) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 579 (1896).

(5) unreported (1895).

(6) 9 B. L. R. 111 (1872).

QUAZIE MAHMUDAR ROHMAN v. SARAT CHANDRA DUTT.

extend the time named in the summons for applying for leave to appear and defend and relied upon the provision of sec. 36 of the Charter and referred me to several cases.

In the case of Chandra Kant Roy v. N. P. Pogoos (1), the head-note appears to me to be inaccurate. It is as follows:—“Where in a suit under Act V of 1866, the Defendant is at such a distance as would make it impossible for him to put in an appearance within the seven days allowed by the Act, the Court will stay execution for a time long enough to allow him to appear.”

The application there was under the previous Act (V of 1866) which contains somewhat similar provisions to those in the present Code.

From the head-note it would appear as if the Court had extended the time for a time long enough to enable the Defendant to appear. But what Phear, J., says at p. 84 is, “that, in all cases in which the Defendant resided so far off that the whole or a considerable portion of the time within which he might apply for leave to defend would be consumed in the mere journey, execution should be stayed, so as to allow time to make an application to set aside the judgment according to the provisions of sec. 4,” so that it is not—as would appear from the head note—that time was granted to allow the Defendant to appear but execution was stayed for a time long enough to enable the Defendant to apply under sec. 4 to set aside the judgment.

Mr. Mitra also relies upon the decision of Lordship, J., in the case of Groom & amr. v. Wilson (2). In that case, however, the learned Judge in granting leave to the Plaintiff to file the plaint directed that, as the Defendant lived at Peshawar, the time within which the Defendant might obtain liberty to appear and defend should be a period of 28 days instead of 10 days the time specified in the form contained in the 4th schedule to the Code.

He held in fact that the Court in granting leave to issue a plaint under Chap. XXXIX might fix a reasonable time, having regard to the residence of the Defendant, within which the Defendant might apply for leave to defend and that the 10 days prescribed by the form was not an unalterable limit.

Accordingly in that case 28 days was fixed by the summons itself as the time within which the Defendant might apply for leave to appear and defend.

That was a different case from the present case in which the time fixed by the summons is 10 days.

Of the unreported cases to which I have been referred the first is the case of Narendra Nath Bose v. Hari Lall Mallick (3) which was heard on the 29th August 1898

In that case it appeared that the 10th day allowed by the summons expired on a Sunday and the application was made on the Monday following and the question there considered was whether the date of service should be excluded in computing the 10 days time. The matter came before Mr. Justice P. O’Kinealy and he allowed the Defendant liberty to appear and defend but on the express

(2) I. L. R. 3 Cal. 539 (1876).

(3) Unreported (1898).

(1) 8 B. L. R. O. S. 82 (1869).

QUAZIE MAHMUDAR ROHMAN v. SARAT CHANDRA DUTT.

condition that the Plaintiff should be at liberty to raise this question under the Statute of Limitation. The learned Judge said:—"On the question whether the application was made in time I have said that I will allow the Defendant leave to appear and defend but as the application is made ex parte I will allow the Plaintiff, if he so wishes, to be heard on the question of limitation." So there was no adjudication on the question which is raised before me.

Counsel on behalf of the Plaintiff contends that once the period fixed by the summons has expired the Court has no power to extend the time and he relies on sec. 1 of the Indian Limitation Act which provides that: "Subject to the provisions contained in secs. 5 to 25 (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal presented, and application made, after the period of limitation prescribed therefor by the second schedule hereto annexed, shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been set up as a defence."

The present case does not fall within any of the provisions of secs. 5 to 25, and under sec. 159 of the Limitation Act, the time from which leave to appear and defend a suit under Chap. XXXIX of the Code of Civil Procedure runs is from the service of the summons.

This was so held by Sale, J., in the case of Madhub Lall v. Woopendra Narain (4). In a subsequent case before Sale, J., which is unreported and which was disposed of on the 12th March 1895, F. Eisenlohr v. Goona Moni Debi (5), Mr. Avetoom applied for leave to file a warrant on behalf of the Defendant. On the part of the Plaintiff it was objected that the suit was under Chap. XXXIX and leave to appear and defend had not been obtained. Plaintiff's counsel submitted that Mr. Avetoom had no locus standi not having obtained leave to appear and defend and objected to his being heard.

The learned Judge stated that the proper course for Mr. Avetoom to take was to apply under sec. 534, Civ. P. Code, to set aside the decree. The Defendant not having within the time allowed by law applied for leave to appear and defend, an application at that stage for leave to appear and defend could not be entertained.

I am of opinion that sec. 4 of the Limitation Act is mandatory and that the Court has no power, after the time fixed by the summons for obtaining leave to appear and defend has expired, to extend the time. I refrain from expressing an opinion as to the power of the Court to grant an extension of time if an application for such extension be made before the time appointed by the summons had expired.

My decision does not conflict with the decision of Pontifex, J., in the case before him in which on the presentation and admission of the plaint the time was extended by the Court to 28 days. This seems to me to be a reasonable course to adopt in a case where the Defendant resides at a distance.

Under these circumstances, but with regret, I hold that I have no power to extend the time in this case. The Defendant has a remedy under sec. 534 if he can make out a case for the application of the section.

(4) I. L. R. 23 Cal. 578 (1896).

(5) Unreported (1895).

QUAZIE MAHMUDAR ROHMAN v. SARAT CHANDRA DUTT.

The application must be dismissed with costs.

Mr. R. C. Mitter, Attorney for the Plaintiff.

Mr. A. S. Barrow, Attorney for the Defendant.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2182 OF 1898.

AMBER ALI, J.
BRETT, J.

SHEIKH NIZAMUDDIN,
Defendant, Appellant,

1900.

3, August.

MOMTAZUDDIN & anr.,
Plaintiffs, Respondents.

Forfeiture—Denial of landlord's title before suit—Intention—Written statement—Landlord and Tenant Act (VIII of 1869).

A denial of landlord's title, in order to operate as a forfeiture must be an express denial prior to the institution of the suit; a denial in the written statement does not operate as a forfeiture; and if what transpired before suit is ambiguous in its character it would be irregular and hardly in accordance with the principles of law to refer to the written statement to explain the intention of the Defendant.

This was an appeal against the decree of Babu Shyam Kisore Bose, Subordinate Judge of Zillah Sylhet, dated the 1st of December 1898, confirming the decree of Babu Tara Prosunno Dass, Munsif of Sylhet, dated the 21st of July 1898.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Moulvie Seraful Islam for the Appellant.

Babu Gobinda Chandra Das for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The suit out of which this second appeal arises was brought by the Plaintiffs to recover possession from the principal Defendants of 3 kedars of land upon the allegation that they belong to Taluk Lakshman Deb: that the Plaintiffs have purchased the same from the vendor Defendants, who not having executed a kobala, were sued; and upon a decree obtained by the Plaintiffs, the kobala was executed by them in respect thereof. They further allege that the principal Defendants were holding the said lands under the vendors of the Plaintiffs, under a bhagidar jote right; and that upon the execution of the kobala they asked the Defendants to give them possession, and upon their refusal to do so, they bring this suit to obtain khas possession. They base their cause of action upon the refusal, and put the date as the 19th of Pous 1302, B. S., their date of purchase; and also the 5th of Jaista 1303, when the principal Defendants were verbally requested to give up the lands.

The Defendants, among other pleas, alleged that the land in suit appertained to mehal Rajbullabh, and not to taluk Lakshman Deb: they further alleged that the vendors of the Plaintiffs had no title; that, as a matter of fact, one Shib Joy Surma and others were proprietors in respect of a twelve-annas share, which the Defendants had purchased from them; and that in respect, of the remaining four annas, they were in possession of the same, by virtue of a raiyati title derived from Brojo Mohun Chowdhry.

SHEIKH NIZAMUDDIN v. MONTAZUDDIN.

The Munsif, in a judgment which is by no means satisfactory, held against the Defendants, and made a decree in favour of the Plaintiffs.

The Defendants appealed to the Subordinate Judge, who sets out in full the allegation of the parties, and deals with the principal questions involved in the case, and with which we are concerned in the present appeal.

One of the objections taken before the learned Subordinate Judge against the decree for khas possession was that, inasmuch as, according to the Plaintiffs' own shewing, the Defendants had a tenant right, they could not be evicted without notice; and the learned Subordinate Judge dealt with that question first. He says:—"In the written statement the tenant right was not set up; on the contrary the Defendants expressly denied having held as tenants. It is, however, clearly proved in the case that previously one Foyzuddi held the land as tenant under the Plaintiffs' vendors, and that subsequently the Defendants themselves held the land as tenants under the said vendors. The Plaintiffs' case is that on their demanding the Defendants to surrender the land, the latter denied the Plaintiffs' title, and thus forfeited the tenant right; and then he adds,—“I therefore find that there was a denial of Plaintiffs' title.” The Defendants appear to have contended before him that the statement in the plaint, and proved in the case, did not amount to a denial of Plaintiffs' title, but only referred to their right to re-enter. With reference to that contention the learned Subordinate Judge says as follows:—

“Reading, however, the statement in the light of the written statement, in which the Defendants most clearly denied the Plaintiffs' title, and their vendors' title to the land, I can have no doubt that by the previous statement the Defendants meant to deny not the Plaintiffs' right of re-entry only, but also their title to the land itself. That being so, the denial operated as a forfeiture, and the Defendants were therefore entitled to no notice.” He accordingly affirmed the decree of the first Court.

The Defendants have appealed to this Court from the judgment and decree of the Subordinate Judge; and the question which we have to determine in this case is whether the order for khas possession was right and proper under the circumstances.

Under Act VIII of 1885, there is no forfeiture arising out of a denial by the tenant of the landlord's title. On this question we need only refer to the case of Debiruddi v. Ablur Rahim (1). In that case the tenant had persistently denied the landlord's title, and yet the learned judges held that the Bengal Tenancy Act does not recognize forfeiture on the ground of the denial of the landlord's title. But the present case has arisen in a district where Act VIII of 1885 is not applicable; and the relations of landlord and tenant are still regulated by the provisions of Act VIII of 1869; and although there is no provision in that Act providing that a tenant denying his landlord's title should forfeit his tenancy, it has been held in several cases which have proceeded chiefly upon considerations of the English law, that such a denial would be a forfeiture.

(1) I. L. R. 17 Cal. 19 (1888).

SHEIKH NIZAMUDDIN v. MONTAZUDDIN.

As at present advised we do not wish to dissent from that view ; and we must, therefore, take it that if the Defendant denied before suit the title of the landlord it must be held that they have forfeited the tenancy. But a penal provision of this character can only be enforced on express denial ; it must not be inferential or proceed upon an ex post facto circumstance ; for example, the Subordinate Judge refers to the written statement to explain what transpired previously between the Plaintiffs and Defendant. A denial, however, in the written statement, as has been held in the case of Prānmath Shaha v. Modhu Khulu (2) would not operate as a forfeiture. The cause of action must arise before the institution of the suit. The real question for determination, therefore, is whether there was an express denial by the Defendant prior to the institution of the suit. If what transpired before suit is ambiguous in its character, it would be irregular and hardly in accordance with the principles of law to refer to the written statement to explain the intention of the Defendant for that would be proceeding upon a mere inference. The learned pleader for the Appellant desired to refer to the evidence to show that what took place before suit did not amount to denial of Plaintiffs' title. In second appeal we are unable to look into the evidence to see whether there was or was not, an express denial of the landlord's title in the case. Having regard, however, to the circumstances to which we have already adverted, we think this case must be sent back to the lower Appellate Court for the purpose of coming to a finding on the point of the express denial upon which alone the forfeiture can be based.

The appeal will remain on the file of this Court. The learned Judge will make the return of his finding within a month from the date of the receipt by him of the record.

Case remanded.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 387 OF 1899.

SRIMATI SARAT KUMARI

DEB, Judgment-debtor,

Appellant,

BANERJEE, J.

BRETT, J.

1900.

NIMAI CHARN DEY

26, November.

SIRCAR and another,

Decree-holders, Auction-purchasers, Respondents.

Execution sale, application to set aside—Fraud—Irregularity—Code of Civil Procedure (XIV of 1882), secs. 244, 294 and 311—Purchase by the decree-holder benami at a price less than that at which the decree-holder was permitted to bid—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 178.

The purchase of a property at an execution sale by the decree-holder, in the name of another person, at a price less than that at which the decree-holder obtained permission to bid for the said property, constitutes fraud which would vitiate the sale.

MAHOMED GAZER CHOUDHURY v. RAM LAI SEN (1) referred to.

Art. 178, Sch. II of the Limitation Act would govern such a case.

SRIMATI SARAT KUMARI DEBI v. NIMAI CHARN DEY SIRCAR.

This was an appeal preferred on the 21st of November 1899, against the order of Babu Rajendra Coomar Bose, Subordinate Judge, 2nd Court of Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 12th of September 1899.

The appeal arose out of an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale of a debt due to him secured by a bond. It appears that in execution of a decree obtained by the Respondent against the Appellant certain debt due to the Appellant and secured by a bond was put up to sale. The Respondent obtained permission to bid at the sale for the bond debt at a price of Rs. 5,000 and upwards. At the sale, however, the debt was purchased by one Sarat Chandra Dey for Rs. 3,000 and odd. The Appellant then made this application alleging that the real purchaser was the Respondent benami in the name of Sarat and contended that such purchase was an abuse of the process of the Court and should be set aside. He made the application more than thirty days after sale but within three years from that date.

Dr. Asutosh Mukerjee, Babus Jnanendra Nath Bose and Biraj Mohun Majumdar for the Appellant.

Babus Saroda Charan Mitra and Mahendra Nath Roy for the Respondent.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This appeal arises out of an application by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale of certain immoveable property and of a debt secured by a bond, on the ground of fraud and irregularity. The application was made more than thirty days after the date of sale but within three years from that date.

The Court below has held that the Petitioner's allegations have not been made out and that the application as regards the sale of the debt secured by a bond is barred by sec. 298 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and it has rejected the application in consequence.

In appeal it is contended on behalf of the judgment-debtor that the Court below ought to have held that the sale, so far as the debt secured by the bond was concerned, was vitiated by fraud; that the decree holder had in fact purchased that property benami in the name of Sharat Chandra Dey; that the application so far as this property was concerned was therefore one under sec. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that it was not therefore barred by sec. 298 of the Code, or by limitation, the period of limitation applicable to such a case being three years as provided in Art. 178 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act.

We may observe that the learned vakil for the Appellant did not press the appeal as regards the immoveable property and the appeal so far as that property is concerned must be dismissed.

For the success of the Appellant in the appeal in respect of the debt secured by the bond it is necessary that it should be established that the sale was vitiated by fraud, and that the purchase had in fact been made by the decree-holder; for it is then only that the case can come under sec. 244, and will be unaffected by sec. 298 of the Code, and governed by Art. 178 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act; and this is how this point is sought to be made out in the argument on behalf of the Appellant:— It is contended in the first place that the purchase at the execution sale, though made nominally by Sharat Chandra Dey, was made really by the decree-holder benami in the name of Sharat Chandra; and it is then contended that if the purchase was made by the decree-holder benami, having regard to the fact that the decree-holder had previously applied for and obtained permission to bid for this bond debt, Rs. 5,000 and upwards, but subsequently succeeded in buying it benami for 3,000 and odd rupees, the Court must infer that the decree-holder's purchase was, in the language of Sir Richard Garth in the case of Mahomed Gae Choudhry v. Ram Lall Sen (1), "an abuse of the process of the Court" with the object of defrauding the judgment-debtor to the extent of the difference between the minimum price fixed by the Court in its permission to the decree-holder to bid and the price for which the property was actually purchased. The foundation then of the Appellant's contention that the sale was vitiated by fraud lies in the allegation that the purchase was made by the decree-holder benami in the name of Sharat Chandra Dey. Let us see if that allegation is made out.

SRIMATI SARAT KUMARI DEBI v. NIMAI CHARN DEY SIRCAR.

The direct evidence upon this question on the side of the Petitioner may not be sufficient to prove her case. It only goes to show that Sharat Chandra Dey is a friend of the decree-holder and looks after his cases. But that evidence, taken with the evidence adduced on behalf of the decree-holder, is in our opinion, quite sufficient to prove that the purchase was made by the decree-holder benami in the name of Sharat Chandra. For we find that the property, after being purchased by Sharat Chandra, was sold by him, within four months after confirmation of the sale, to the decree-holder's wife and then, shortly after that, was purchased by the decree-holder from his wife; and a few days after his purchase the decree-holder settled with the debtor for five thousand rupees for which he obtained a mortgage bond carrying interest at four per cent. per annum. Nor is this all. Whilst the conveyances from Sharat Chandra to the decree-holder's wife and from the latter to the decree-holder make mention of payment of consideration, the amount of the consideration being the sum of three thousand rupees odd, that is, the amount for which the bond debt was purchased, the decree-holder in his deposition admits that no money was paid by him to his wife for the transfer by her to him; and though he says in one place in his evidence that his wife purchased the bond from Sharat Chandra with the money she had got from her mother, a little later on he is obliged to add "I cannot say myself whether or not any money was paid on behalf of my wife to Sharat on account of the sale of the said bond." Nor is it at all credible that if any money had been paid by the decree-holder's wife for the purchase of this bond, the decree-holder would not have known it! He does not say that his wife made the purchase without his knowledge. On the contrary he admits in his evidence that his wife consulted him. He further says that Sharat Chandra bears no relationship to him or his wife ; and that he does not go into the inner apartment of his house. If then there was a real sale for consideration by Sharat to the decree-holder's wife, it must in all probability have been transacted through the decree-holder himself, and if any money had been paid by the wife to the vendor, the husband must have known it. We may here add that Sharat Chandra is described as being a person who acts as a dalal and owns some hackney carriages, that is, two in number. This is the account of his means and position as given by the decree-holder himself. Then we should observe that when the decree-holder was asked the question, "why did you not purchase the bond on the strength of the permission of the Court?" his answer was "the bids did not rise ; if another person would purchase it, a suit was to be brought. On this consideration I did not purchase it." But he did not hesitate to advise his wife to buy, nor did he hesitate himself to purchase or take a transfer of the debt from his wife. It seems to us that the truth is told,—only it is half told—in the first sentence of the answer quoted above "the bids did not rise." The decree-holder, seeing that there were not many bidders, and the bids were not likely to rise, thought it to his interest not to avail himself of the permission of the Court ; for if he did so he would have had to begin with a bid of 5,000 rupees. He thought he might make a profitable bargain by just standing by and purchasing in the name of his friend Sharat Chandra Dey.

(1) 1. L. R. 10 Cal. 757 (1884).

SRIMATI SARAT KUMARI DEBI v. NIMAI CHARN DEY SIRCAR.

Upon the evidence then, taken as a whole, the inference is irresistible that the bond was purchased by the decree-holder benami in the name of Sharat Chandra and that it was purchased benami with a view to avoid paying 5,000 rupees or more, and therefore the purchase involved an abuse of the process of the Court and a fraud on the judgment-debtor in depriving the judgment-debtor of the full price which the decree-holder was bound to pay if he wanted the property.

That being so, we think the Appellant's contention is made out, and the appeal as regards the sale of the bond must be allowed and that sale set aside as vitiated by fraud ; but having regard to the fact that the Appellant succeeds only in part, we make no order as to costs.

Appeal allowed.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2039 OF 1898.

BANERJEE, J. BRETT, J. 1900. 13, December.	}	BENI MADHAB MITTER, Defendant No. 2, Appellant, v. PRIYA NATH MANDAL and another, Plaintiffs, Respondents.
---	---	--

Arbitration award, if binding on a person not a party to the reference—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 506—Acquiescence—Conduct of the party.

Mere silence on the part of a person, not party to an order of reference to arbitration, and his omission to inform the arbitrators that he was not a party to the reference, cannot make the award of the arbitrators binding on him even though, during the arbitration, he produced, through a servant, a document before the arbitrators in obedience to a summons and declined to produce others.

BENI MADHAB MITTER v. PRIYA NATH MANDAL.

SATURJET PERTAP BAHADOOR SAHI v. DULHIN GULAB KOER (1), UNNIRAMAN v. CHATHAN (2), SHITA NATH BISWAS v. KISHEN MOHUN MOOKERJEE (3), GOVETT v. RICHMOND (4) and TAYLOR v. PARRY (5) referred to and distinguished.

DEEGUMBUR CHATTERJEE v. MUSST. RAM PREA DEBEA (6) approved.

This was an appeal preferred on the 14th of October 1898, against the decree of C. P. Caspersz, Esq., District Judge of the 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 9th of July 1898, preferred on appeal from a decision of Babu Bulloram Mullick, Subordinate Judge, 1st Court of 24-Pergunnahs, Alipur, dated the 25th of June 1897.

In this appeal the question which arose was whether Defendant No. 2 was bound by an award of the arbitrators to whom the case was referred at the instance of the Plaintiff and some Defendants, Defendant No. 2 being no party to the reference. The suit was for the declaration of the rights of the Plaintiff and for recovery of possession of certain lands. The Defendant No. 2 filed a vakalatnama but did not contest the suit. The Plaintiff and four out of the ten Defendants applied for the reference to arbitration. The Defendant No. 2 did not join in the award, but he took no objection before the arbitrators and, on being summoned to do so by one of the parties, he produced a certain document before the arbitrators by one of his servants. Upon the return of the award of the arbitrators, the Defendant No. 2 objected that it was not binding on him, as he was not a party to the order of reference. The lower Appellate Court held that the conduct of the Defendant No. 2 amounted to an acquiescence on his part and the award was accordingly binding on him.

The Defendant No. 2 preferred this second appeal.

Dr. Rash Behari Ghose and Babu Dwarka Nath Chuckerbarty for the Appellant.

Dr. Asutosh Mukerjee and Babu Biraj Mohun Majumdar for the Respondents.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this appeal, which arises out of a suit for declaration of title to, and recovery of possession of, certain immoveable property, the question raised on behalf of the Appellant, the Defendant No. 2, is whether the lower Appellate Court was right in holding that that Defendant was bound by the award of the arbitrators, to whom the case was referred, although he was not a party to the reference, by reason of acquiescence.

It is admitted that the Defendant No. 2 did not join in the reference to arbitration that was made in the case. The ground upon which the learned Judge below has held him bound by the award is thus stated in his judgment. "The conduct of the Defendant No. 2, when his advantage was being debated, warrants the conclusion that he consented, as did his sub-tenant, to the arbitration proceedings." Then, after considering

(1) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 469 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 9 Mad. 451 (1886).

(3) 5 W. R. 130 (1866).

(4) 7 Sim. 1 (1834).

(5) 1 Man. and Grang. 604 (1840).

(6) Marshall's Rep. 517 (1863).

BENI MADHAB MITTER v. PRIYA NATH MANDAL.

certain cases presently to be noticed, the learned Judge observes:—"But this Defendant was fully aware of the proceedings, as notice was given to all the pleaders, he sent his servant to produce a document before the arbitrators, and he declined to produce other papers. He awaited the result of the reference, and then preferred an objection to the Court which did not impugn the award on the merits. Such conduct clearly disentitles the Defendant No. 2 to relief."

We are of opinion that the facts referred to in this judgment do not warrant the conclusion that the Defendant No. 2 is bound by the award by reason of his acquiescence in the reference. It is not said that this Defendant did any thing beyond sending his servant to produce a document, and this was done not at the instance of the Defendant himself but in obedience to a summons requiring him to produce the document, the summons being issued at the instance of the Defendant No. 7. It is not shown that Defendant No. 2 took any part in the proceedings before the arbitrator. It is not even suggested that he did. Mere silence on his part, and his omission to inform the arbitrators that he was not a party to the reference, cannot be taken to be sufficient to make the award binding upon him. Of the three cases relied upon by the learned Judge, that of Saturjet Pertap Bahadoor Sahi v. Dulhin Gulab Koer (1), was a case in which consent to a reference to arbitration was given by the agent of a party, and it being found that the party had ratified the act of his agent, it was held that he could not question the validity of the award. That case therefore was different from the present one. As regards the case of Unniraman v. Chathan (2), it will be sufficient to say that the learned Judges there, whilst declining to interfere under sec. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code in favour of the party who impugned the award on the ground of absence of consent on his part to the reference, observed: "It is not necessary to say, and we expressly refrain from saying, any thing as to the validity of the award." And the case of Shitlu Nath Biswas v. Kishen Mohun Mookerjee (3), is clearly distinguishable from the present, as there all that was held was that a party who was made a co-Plaintiff at his own instance after the suit had been referred to arbitration, could not object to the validity of the award, as he took the position of a co-Plaintiff in the case as it then stood before the arbitrators, and as he made no objection to the arbitration but suffered the arbitrators to give in their award which affected him equally with the other co-Plaintiffs.

Two English cases were relied upon by the learned vakil for the Respondents, namely, Govett v. Richmond (4) and Taylor v. Parry (5). Those cases in the first place, are not quite in point. Reference to arbitration in a pending suit is governed by certain express provisions in our Civil Procedure Code, one of which requires that all the parties shall give their consent to the reference and that an application for reference to arbitration shall be in writing. In the second place we feel bound to observe

(2) I. L. R. 9 Mad. 451 (1886).

(3) 5 W. R. 130 (1866).

(4) 7 Sim. 1 (1834).

(5) 1 Man. and Grang. 604 (1840).

(1) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 469 (1897).

BENI MADHAB MITTER v. PRIYA NATH MANDAL.

with reference to the former of the two cases just referred to that the correctness of the rule therein laid down is open to question and has been doubted by well known writers of text books on the subject. See Russel on Arbitration, 8th Edition, page 317, and Pollock on Contract, 6th Edition page 191. And as for the second case, the facts there were very different from those of the case before us. On the other hand, there is a case in Marshall Reports, page 517, namely, the case of Deegumbur Chatterjee v. Musst. Ram Prea Debea (6) which supports to a certain extent the view we take. There the Judge in the Court below referred the case to arbitration after having suggested to the parties that they should do so, and the reference was sought to be supported on the ground that the parties objecting did not oppose it when it was made. The learned Judge thereupon observed:—"We think that the judge took an erroneous view of this matter. A reference to arbitration should proceed on the recorded and expressed consent of both parties, and not in the absence of it."

The judgment of the learned District Judge cannot therefore be supported, and it must be set aside so far as it holds that the Defendant No. 2 is bound by the award.

We are then asked to remand the case for an inquiry into the question whether, although the acts and conduct referred to in the judgment of the learned District Judge may not be sufficient to amount to such an acquiescence as would make the arbitration award binding upon the Defendant No. 2, there were any other acts and conduct which would support the inference that there was acquiescence on the part of the Defendant No 2; and to allow the Respondents to adduce further evidence on the point. We are unable to accede to this prayer, because no foundation is laid for an application of this sort in the proceedings in the Courts below. When the Defendant No. 2 submitted his petition of objections to the award in the first Court he distinctly stated that there was no notice served upon him, that he never appeared before the arbitrators, and that he was not bound by the award. If the Respondents thought it necessary to adduce evidence to show that the Defendant No. 2 was bound by the award by reason of acquiescence, they ought to have asked the first Court to allow them to adduce such evidence, and even if it could be said that they had no sufficient opportunity of offering evidence before that Court by reason of the extreme view which it took on the question of law, they ought to have asked the lower appellate Court (before which they were Appellants) to take evidence on the point. Even this they omitted to do. That being so, we think they are not entitled to ask us to remand the case for a further enquiry into the question.

The result then is that this appeal must be allowed, and the case as against the Defendant No. 2 will be remanded to the first Court for retrial.

The costs of this appeal will abide the result.

Case remanded.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]*APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1166 of 1899.

JOGABUNDHU MAJUMDAR,
Plaintiff, Appellant,
RAMPINI, J.
PRATT, J.
1900.
14, August. RASHO MONJAN DASSYA,
Defendant, Respondent.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 167—Annulment of incumbrance, notice for—Notice, contents of—Notice, joint, to several persons.

A notice to annul an incumbrance under sec. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not bad though it does not specify the particulars of the land held by the tenant or the rent payable by him.

Such a notice if addressed to several tenants jointly is not bad if it is served in accordance with the prescribed rules.

This was an appeal preferred on the 19th of June 1899, against the decree of Babu Kali Kumar Basu, Sub-Judge of Birbhum, dated the 20th of March 1899, confirming a decision of Babu Benode Behari Mitter, Munsif of Bolepur, dated the 10th October 1898.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Jadu Nath Kanjilal for the Appellant.

Babu Hari Charn Sarkel for the Respondent.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal against a decision of the Subordinate Judge of Birbhum, dated the 20th of March 1899.

The Plaintiff is the purchaser of a holding containing 21 bighas 2 cottas, and he alleges that after the purchase he served notice on the under-tenants of the land under sec. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, declaring that their interests in the holding were annulled.

The Munsif and the Subordinate Judge have both held that the notice which the Plaintiff served through the Collector upon the Defendant was invalid in law; and the reasons which the Subordinate Judge gives for coming to this conclusion are that the notice did not specify the area of the land held by the tenants or the amount of rent paid by them, and that the notice was a joint notice to the several tenants. The learned Subordinate Judge says that this is bad in law. He does not, however, specify where the law is to be found according to which notices in this form are invalid. We are not aware of any such law. There is no provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act which prescribes the form of these notices; and we do not think that the Subordinate Judge was justified in introducing into the law a provision not to be found in it. And is there any reason why notices in such cases as the present should specify the particulars required by the Subordinate Judge? The Plaintiff does not want to treat the tenants as tenants any longer. He does not want any rent from them. He only desires to get rid of them. Therefore it seems to us, there was no necessity whatever for specifying in the notice the particulars of the land held by the tenants or the rent payable by them.

The Subordinate Judge has held that a joint notice to several tenants is bad. Why should this be so? There is no provision in the law which says that a joint notice to tenants is bad; and there is no reason why it should be held to be during their respective lives. He allowed Rs. 1,000 to be expended for his shrad and after other directions the Will runs as follows:—"Subject to the aforesaid bequests and payment of the aforesaid legacies and annuities I dedicate the whole of my estate moveable and immoveable to the sheba of the said Thakur. The surplus income of the said estate shall be expended by the shebait of the said Thakur for such festivals and other religious purposes as to the said shebait shall seem proper and as are enjoined by the shastras." By a codicil, dated the 21st day of March 1893, after reciting that by his Will that he gave and bequeathed the undivided  $\frac{1}{4}$ th share of the house and premises No. 108, Ahiritollah Street in Calcutta, to his wife for her life and after her death to his daughter Sreemutty Rojomoyee Dassee for her life and after the death of the latter to her sons in equal shares the testator by this codicil directed that neither his wife or daughter or grandsons were to have power to alienate by sale, mortgage, gift or otherwise the undivided  $\frac{1}{4}$ th share of this property. By a second codicil, dated the 2nd day of May 1893, he appointed Nittya Lall Dey as executor in place and stead of Kanai Lall Dey.

ROJOMOYEE DASSEE v. TROYLUCKHO MOHINEY DASSEE.

The present suit was instituted on the 4th September 1894 and subsequently on the 11th September 1894 the Defendant Troyluckho Mohiney Dassee as executrix and shebait under the Will instituted a suit against her co-executors for the administration of the estate seeking substantially the same relief as is sought in this action.

A written statement was filed by the Defendant Gopal Chunder Dey, one of the executors on the 7th December 1894 and in the eighth paragraph of this written statement he says that Sreemutty Rojomoyee Dassee, the daughter of the testator, and the Plaintiff in the present suit who is also the testator's next reversionary heir entitled in reversion after the death of his widow, has also instituted a suit that is the present suit and by her plaint alleges that the attempted dedication of the residue of the testator's property to the worship of the Thakur was not valid and that the direction in the Will to apply the surplus income of the estate to such festivals and other religious purposes as to the shebait of the said Thakur should seem proper, is also not valid. Notwithstanding the institution of this present suit by the present Plaintiff I find that a decree was obtained by consent in the action last mentioned which decree is dated the 4th March 1896. This decree after reciting that the Defendant Nittya Lall Dey did not appear either in person or by counsel, directs that the usual enquiries and accounts be made and taken and directed that a scheme should be prepared for carrying out the religious trusts and for the establishment of the Thakur Sree Radha Shamjee and for the erection of a suitable Thakurbaree as in the Will mentioned. It does not appear to have been brought to the notice of the learned Judge who passed the decree that the validity of the religious trusts was disputed by the reversionary heir for if this had been brought to the notice of the Court it is unlikely that a scheme for carrying out these trusts would have been directed in the absence of the reversionary heiress and in the absence of any beneficiary under the Will other than the executrix being a party to the suit. It is to be observed that the only parties to this suit are the executrix and executors.

ROJOMOYEE DASSEE v. TROYLUCKHO MOHINEY DASSEE.

On the 17th January 1898 a Receiver was appointed of the estate.

In the present suit the Plaintiff is desirous of having the opinion of the Court upon the validity of the bequests to which I have referred. It has been contended on behalf of Kanai Lall Dey that the Plaintiff as reversionary heiress notwithstanding that she does take certain other benefits under the Will such as small annuities is not entitled to have the estate administered. Counsel on his behalf has quoted a passage from Walker on Executors in which it is stated that a person who has a mere expectancy is not entitled to obtain a decree for administration.

The paragraph to which I refer is based on the authority of the case of Clowes v. Hilliard (1) where Sir George Jessel, Master of the Rolls, held that an administration suit could not be maintained by possible designated next-of-kin. In that case the testator directed that in the event of his daughter dying without issue certain property should pass to the persons who would be entitled under the statute if the testator had then died intestate. An action for administration was brought during the lifetime of the daughter by the persons who were the next-of-kin if the daughter died without issue.

It appears to me that this is an entirely different case from the present in which the Plaintiff is reversionary heiress and will, if she survives her mother, independent of any other event, become entitled to the estate. In Clowes v. Hilliard (1) the Plaintiffs had no interest at all either vested or contingent and it is a rule of Court that in order to maintain an action for administration a Plaintiff must have one or the other. The Master of the Rolls says as follows:—"How can the Plaintiff affirm that on the failure of the daughter's other issue, if the event ever happens, they or any of them will be then alive? They may all be dead. They have in fact neither a present interest nor anything beyond the expectation of a future interest. They have no interest at all either vested or contingent, and it is a rule of this Court that to enable them to sue they must have either the one or the other." Here the Plaintiff has more than the expectancy of a future interest. If not a vested she has a contingent interest.

The question moreover whether the dedication of part of the rents and profits of the estate as also the dedication of the residue to the idol is valid in law is one which concerns her. If these bequests be not valid in law, then the executors by their conduct in obtaining from the Court an order that a scheme should be provided for the purpose of this dedication, was such as to justify her, in my opinion in instituting and prosecuting a suit for the preservation of the property and to prevent waste by allowing the decree to be carried into effect.

Mr. Woodroffe admitted that in the case of waste the reversionary heir is entitled to apply to the Court for relief, but he contends that waste is not alleged by the Plaintiff.

ROJOMOYEE DASSEE v. TROYLUCKHO MOHINEY DASSEE.

It appears to me that if the dedication of the property to which the reversionary heir would become entitled, is contrary to law the proposal to carry out the dedication is such an act as would justify the reversionary heir in seeking the assistance of the Court and having the estate properly administered. If the Plaintiff in this case is not entitled to come to Court no other person is equally interested in seeing that the estate is not wasted.

Mr. Mayne in his work on Hindu Law says it is settled that the next reversioner has such an interest in the estate as will justify a suit when that interest is in danger and this rule is followed in several cases in this Court. One of the latest is that of Hem Chunder v. Sarnamoye (2).

I am therefore of opinion that the Plaintiff is entitled to maintain the suit. Then it is argued that already a decree for administration has been made in suit No. 725 of 1894 and that it would be improper to grant another decree for administration. The rule which has been adopted in England in cases where there are two suits instituted for the same or nearly for the same purpose is stated by Lord Romilly, Master of the Rolls, in the case of Zambaco v. Cassavetti (3). He says in his judgment at page 443 :—

“Now the two suits are either the same or they are not. In the first place, assume that they are the same. Then the invariable practice of this Court has been to do this—to say, ‘one decree shall be made in both suits;’ or if a decree has been already obtained, ‘we will stop the first suit if you have got the decree in the second suit first; and we will give the conduct of that decree to the person who first filed the bill.’ That is the practice that, in the absence of special circumstances, I have invariably followed and it is usual for the person who has obtained the decree in the second suit to apply by motion (informing the Plaintiffs in the first suit that a decree has been obtained), for the purpose of stopping further proceedings in the suit which was first instituted. Now not only is that the practice, but it is of frequent occurrence.

“Now suppose the suits are not for exactly the same purpose. Then, when the application is made for the purpose of stopping the proceedings in the first suit, the Plaintiffs in that suit say: ‘the decree that you have obtained will not do; our suit must come to a hearing, because it is for a different purpose, and it is a purpose which must be accomplished.’ Thereupon the Court, if it is of that opinion, allows the cause to proceed, and it comes on to be heard. Then if the two suits are in a great measure connected together, what the Court does is to direct that the second decree which is made in the suit so allowed to proceed to a hearing, and which is in truth the first suit instituted, shall be prosecuted before the same Judge, and in the same chambers, and before the same chief clerk, in which the former decree is prosecuted, in order to avoid all expenses that might possibly be incurred by hearing two suits, that is the regular practice." This rule is as adopted in the later case of Mellor v. Swire (4).

(2) I. L. R. 22 Cal. 354 (1894).

(3) L. R. 11 Eq. 439 (1871).

ROJOMOYEE DASSEE v. TROYLUCKHO MOHINEY DASSEE.

It appears to me that this is a convenient rule to follow. The Plaintiff in the present suit was the first to institute an action for the administration of the estate and it appears to me that having regard to the fact that this suit was pending when a second suit was instituted and that the executors had notice that the validity of some of the provisions of the Will were disputed, for this fact is disclosed in the written statement of the Defendant Gopal Chunder Dey filed in suit No. 925 of 1894, the executors ought not to have obtained the consent decree of the 4th March 1896.

I shall adopt therefore the rule thus laid down with some modifications rendered necessary by the circumstances which I shall mention presently. I come now to deal with the questions raised upon the construction of the Will. It is said that the direction to establish a Thakur is invalid and the direction out of the rents and profits of the estate to spend a sum of Rs. 12 for the daily worship of the Thakur as also the dedication of the whole of the residuary estate to the sheba of the Thakur, are invalid.

The argument of learned counsel is that according to Hindu law a testator cannot give property to a person who is not in fact or in contemplation of law in existence at the date of the testator's death. That the Thakur in this case not having been established in the lifetime of the testator was not a juridical person and that the rule of Hindu law which applies to individuals applies to an idol. Whether a gift be in "presenti" or in "futuro" it is settled that the donee must be a person in existence and capable of accepting the gift at the time it takes effect: Tagore v. Tagore (5). That which cannot be done directly by gift cannot be done by the intervention of a trustee: Krishna Ramani Das v. Ananda Krishna Bose (6), Rajender Dutt v. Sham Chund Mitter (7).

An idol cannot be said to have juridical existence unless it has been consecrated by the appropriate ceremonies and so has become spiritualized. Before this the deity of which the idol is the visible image does not reside in the idol: Doorya Proshad Dass v. Sheq Proshad Pandah (8).

The deity no doubt is in existence but there is no personification of the deity to whom a gift can be made. This was so decided in the case of Upendra Lal Boral v. Hem Chunder Boral (9), in which it was held that no valid gift can be made to an idol not in existence at the time of the testator's death. The Will in this case is not stated verbatim but in the judgment of the Court the following statement of it is made.

"Behari Lal Boral, who was the former owner of the property, made a Will on the 17th Bysack 1280. In it he expressed his intention to establish the service

(5) 9 B. L. R. 399 (1872).

(6) 4 B. L. R. (O. J.) 231 (1869).

(7) I. L. R. 6 Cal. 106 (1880).

(8) 7 C. L. R. 278 (1880).

(9) 2 C. W. N. 295 : s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 405 (1897).

(4) 21 Ch. Div. 647 (1882).

ROJOMOYEE DASSEE v. TROYLUCKHO MOHINEY DASSEE.

of an idol, to construct a temple, and to appoint his wife, Atarmoni, to be the shebait. In the event of his being unable to effect this, he provided that she shall, by virtue of his Will and in the exercise of powers equal to his own, establish the service of an idol and by making a Will in favour of it manage the properties, construct a temple, and perform the sheba. Then there are certain provisions relating to the management and restricting alienation, and authorising her to appoint another person to be the shebait. The Will concludes by providing that if Atarmoni died before doing those acts, the heirs of his spiritual preceptor and his family priest and his heirs should maintain the sheba and manage the properties."

The learned Judges decided that if there was a gift to the idol it was bad because the Thakur was not in existence at the date of the death of the testator.

At page 407 they say;—"We agree with the learned Subordinate Judge that Behari Lall made no devise of his property to his widow or to the idol, and that his widow succeeded as his heiress. Reading together the Will and the anumatipatro it could at the most be said that he gave a life estate to his widow with power to make a gift to an idol to be established by her or that he appointed her executrix with a similar power. It does not seem to us to matter much which view is taken. If there was a gift to the idol, it was bad because there was no idol in existence at the time of his death; if there was a power to make such a gift, the power was ineffective, because, on the authority of Bai Motivahoo

v. Bai Mamoo bai (10) we think that the power must be to convey to a person who was in existence either actually or in contemplation of law at the death of the testator, and the idol to which the dedication is said to have been made was not then in existence.

"We are unable to agree with the learned pleader for the Appellant that the idol was in existence in contemplation of law. The deity, no doubt, is always in existence, but there could be no gift to the deity as such, and there was no personification of the deity to whom the gift could have been made or who was capable of taking it. We must hold, therefore, that there was no valid gift or dedication to this idol either by Behari Lall directly or by his widow under the powers conferred upon her by the Will."

This is a decision which I am not disposed to dissent from

I do not see any reason why the rule laid down in the Tagore case as regards gifts to persons who are not in existence at the time when the gift is made should not be followed in the case of a juridical person such as an idol. The property proposed to be dedicated to the idol would apparently in a case like the present be without an owner until the idol has been spiritualized if this rule did not prevail.

It appears to me therefore that the gift of Rs. 12 for the daily worship of the Thakur is invalid and void and I shall so declare. Also that the proposed dedication of the residuary estate to the sheba of the Thakur is bad in law and I shall so declare.

Mr. Woodroffe contends that the direction in the Will to establish a Thakur at such place as the executors may think proper is a valid direction and I am unable to disagree with him. There is no rule of law which prevents a Hindu from directing his executor to establish a Thakur and it does not come within the rule to which I have referred which prohibits a gift being made to a person not in existence in fact or in contemplation of law at the date of the death of the testator. I shall accordingly declare that this portion of the Will is capable of being carried into effect and ought to be carried into effect.

ROJOMOYEE DASSEE v. TROYLUCKHO MOHINEY DASSEE.

Another question has been raised upon the construction of the Will in regard to the bequest of Rs. 40 monthly to the grandsons of the testator. It is said that this bequest is invalid because it does not appear that the objects of the gift are limited to the sons of the testator's daughter living at the date of the death of the testator and so capable of taking effect. The same argument is applied to the gift of the one-fourth share of the house which was given after the death of the testator's daughter to her sons in equal shares. It is argued that the gifts to the sons are invalid inasmuch as the Plaintiff may have sons living at her death who were not in existence at the date of the death of the testator and who therefore would be incapable of taking any gift under the Will and that as the testator clearly intended that all his daughter's sons should take equally this gift fails.

In England it is well settled that where a gift is made to a class of persons some of whom are incapable of taking the disposition fails as to all: Leak v. Robinson (11), Pearks v. Moseley (12).

This rule rests upon the ground that the intention of the testator was to benefit all the members of the class equally and that it is impossible to know what shape his wishes would have taken if he had known that they could not be carried out as he intended.

This rule has been applied in this country to the Wills of Hindus and it seems to me consonant with Hindu law and a convenient rule to follow.

The rule applies even though all the members of the class are born before the gift takes effect, if it was antecedently possible that they might have not been so born, and the fact that the gift might have included objects too remote is fatal to its validity, irrespective of the event.

In the case of In re Dawson (13), where the invalidity of a disposition turned on the probability that a particular person might have children it was held that evidence was not admissible to show that from advanced age the birth of future children was impossible. I therefore hold that the gifts which I have referred to—to the testator's grandsons are invalid.

The only other question which is brought to my attention is as to the right of the testator to restrain the beneficiaries under the Will from alienating the property given to them by the Will.

This restraint is clearly bad. It requires no authority for the proposition that a restraint upon alienation of pro-

(11) 2 Merivales 363 (1817).

(12) 5 App. Cas. 714 (1880).

(13) 39 Ch. Div. 155 (1888).

ROJOMOYEE DASSEE v. TROYLUCKHO MOHINEY DASSEE.

perty is void according to the rules of Hindu law as well as according to the law of England.

I shall therefore make a decree for the administration of the estate and I shall direct an account of the testator's debts, funeral and testamentary expenses, legacies, and an enquiry as to what part of the estate is outstanding and undisposed of.

I shall direct that the accounts and enquiries already had in the pending suit No. 725 of 1894 shall be adopted in this suit so far as applicable; this will save expense and is the proper course to adopt in my opinion under the circumstances of this case. I shall direct that a scheme be framed for carrying out the directions of the testator for the establishment of a Thakur named Sree Sree Radha Shamjee in accordance with the provisions of the Will at such places as may be proper. I shall reserve the costs of this suit.

Messrs. G. C. Chunder & Co., Attorneys for the Plaintiff.

Messrs. P. N. Sen, A. T. Dey, N. C. Dutt, R. K. Bysack and M. N. Sen, Attorneys for the Defendants

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL ORDER

No. 134 of 1900.

ADHAR MANI DASSI,
Judgment-debtor,
Petitioner, Appellant,
v.

AMEER ALI, J.
PRATT, J.

1901.

15, July.

MONMOTHA NATH BOSE,
Auction-purchaser,
Opposite Party,
and SURENDRA NATH
MONDAL and another,
Decree-holders, Respondents.

Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 244—Auction-purchaser—Fraud.

When a judgment-debtor applies to have an execution sale set aside alleging fraud on the part of the auction-purchaser who happens to be his agent and such application is opposed by the decree-holder, the question to be determined must be investigated under sec. 244, C. P. C., although no fraud may be alleged as against the decree-holder himself.

The fact that the judgment-debtor may be entitled to equitable relief against the auction-purchaser by a regular suit for reconveyance of the property acquired by fraud, does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court to set aside the sale on the ground of fraud under sec. 244, C. P. C.

In determining whether an application to set aside a sale comes within the scope of sec. 244, C. P. C., or not, the point to be considered is, whether there is a contest regarding the validity of the sale between the parties to the suit.

PROSUNNO KUMAR SANYAL v. KALI DAS SANYAL (1), HIRA LAL GHOSH v. CHUNDER

(1) I. L. R. 19 Cal. 683 (1892).

ADHAR MANI DASSI v. MONMOTHA NATH BOSE.

KANT GHOSH (2), KUMBALINGA v. ARIAPUTRA (3) and NEMAI CHAND KANJI v. DENO NATH KANJI (4) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 19th of April 1900, against the order of Babu Behari Lal Mullik, Subordinate Judge of Zillah Cuttack, dated the 9th of April 1900.

The facts of the case are fully stated in the judgment.

Dr. Asutosh Mookerjee and Babu Shoroshi Churn Mitter for the Judgment-debtor.

Mr. P. O'Kinealy and Babu Baido Nath Dutt for the Auction-purchaser, Respondent.

Babu Saroda Churn Mitter for the Decree-holders, Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This is an appeal from the judgment of the Subordinate Judge of Cuttack, rejecting the petition of the judgment-debtor to have a sale held in execution of a decree set aside.

The ground upon which the judgment-debtor's application has been rejected by the lower Court is that it does not fall within the provisions of sec. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code. It appears that the decree-holder Respondents in this case brought to sale certain properties belonging to the Petitioner. On the 9th November 1899 a petition was put in by a person of the name of Matungini Dassi under sec. 311 of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside the sale. Matungini is said to have been a creditor.

The application was rejected and an appeal was preferred by her to this Court and an application made for the stay of sale. This Court dismissed Matungini's appeal on the 27th March 1900.

On the 3rd April 1900 the judgment-debtor put in a petition from which the present appeal arises, and applied under sec. 244 to set aside the sale on grounds to which we shall presently refer. Her allegations were that the sale was brought about fraudulently by a person who acted as her agent; that the property was fraudulently bid for and purchased by him at a very low price; that the real value was a lakh and a half; and that her (the judgment-debtor's) interest was seriously prejudiced by the conduct of Monmotha Nath Bose, her nephew and agent. On the 7th April 1900 the decree-holders put in a petition objecting to the sale being set aside. Among other objections they urged that the matter did not fall under the provisions of sec. 244. The learned Subordinate Judge on the 9th April upheld this objection and rejected the application. Hence this appeal.

On behalf of the Appellant it has been contended that the Court of first instance is wrong in holding that inasmuch as no allegation of fraud was made against the decree-holders, the application did not come within the scope of sec. 244. It has been argued that what is to be borne in mind is the object of the application, so as to consider whether the contest raised upon the application is between the parties to the suit, namely, the judgment-debtor and the decree-holders, and

(2) 3 C. W. N. 403 (1889).

(3) I. L. R. 18 Mad. 436 (1895).

(4) 2 C. W. N. 691 (1898).

ADHAR MANI DASSI v. MONMOTHA NATH BOSE.

that the scope of the application should not be judged by the conduct of an outsider, like an auction-purchaser. In support of this contention the case of Prosunno Kumar Sanyal v. Kali Das Sanyal (1) and that of Hira Lal Ghosh v. Chunder Kant Ghosh (2) were relied on. On the other side Mr. O'Kinealy on behalf of the auction-purchaser Respondents has contended that in her petition the judgment-debtor makes no allegation as against the decree-holders. Whatever complaint she had is directed against her own agent, her remedy therefore is as against that person, and as she has a right of action against him she ought not to be allowed to come under sec. 244. He has also contended that this is not a matter between the parties to the suit, but between the judgment-debtor and a third party, namely, the auction-purchaser; and that therefore the case falls outside the principles laid down by the Judicial Committee in the case of Prosunno Kumar Sanyal v. Kali Das Sanyal (1). In support of the contention that the judgment-debtor Appellant has a right of action the case of Kumbalinga v. Ariaputra (3) was referred to.

It is unnecessary for us to enter upon a discussion of the right which the judgment-debtor may have against her agent. There can be no question that if she likes she may proceed against him to have the benefit of any property which he might have acquired with money paid to him by the judgment-debtor or otherwise, acting as an agent on her behalf. But that is not the remedy which the judgment-debtor seeks in the present application. What she seeks now is to have the sale set aside, in the result of which application the decree-holders are materially interested, and as a matter of fact in the Court of first instance they objected to the sale being set aside on several grounds. The question therefore is whether, fraud being alleged against the auction-purchaser alone, and it not being asserted or alleged that there was any collusion between him and the decree-holders, the matter comes within the scope of sec. 244. Cl. (c) of that section provides that all questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, or their representatives, and relating to the execution, discharge, or satisfaction of the decree, shall be decided by the Court executing the decree and not by a separate suit. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the case referred to pointed out that it was of the utmost importance that all objections to execution sales should be disposed of as cheaply and speedily as possible; and they added that "their Lordships are glad to find that the Courts in India have not placed any narrow construction on the language of sec. 244; and that when a question has arisen as to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, the fact that the purchaser who is not a party to the suit is intended in the result has never been held as a bar to the application of the section." This passage has been construed in several recent cases in this Court. In

(1) I. L. R. 19 Cal. 688 (1892).

(2) 3 C. W. N. 403 (1899).

(3) I. L. R. 18 Mad. 436 (1895).

ADHAR MANI DASSI v. MONMOTHA NATH BOSE.

the case of Nemai Chand Kanji v. Deno Nath Kanji (4) a similar question was raised, whether, the allegation being that the sale process, &c., had been fraudulently suppressed by the action of the auction-purchaser, the matter fell under the provisions of sec. 244, so as to give a right of a second appeal; and the learned Chief Justice said as follows:—“The first question is, Does a second appeal lie? It is difficult to say that the application is one entirely within sec. 311. Fraud is charged, the judgment-debtor's case is fraud, something more is alleged than a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, and that being so, we think the case is within sec. 244, although the question is one between the judgment-debtor and the auction-purchaser who was not the decree-holder.” In that view of the matter the case was remanded to the lower Court. The same question in another form came up before the learned Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Banerjee in Hira Lal Ghosh v. Chunder Kant Ghosh (2) cited by the pleader for the Appellant. In that case the sale having been set aside, an appeal was preferred by the auction-purchaser; the Respondent (judgment-debtor) objected that no appeal lay: And dealing with that objection the learned Chief Justice said as follows:—“To appreciate whether a case is or is not within sec. 244 we must consider what the application was, and whether, at the time it was made, it was an application under that section. It was an application by the judgment-debtor against the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, whose purchase had been confirmed, to have the sale set aside. The question was one between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, viz., the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder, relating to the execution of the decree, and was undoubtedly an application under that section.” Mr. Justice Banerjee also observed as follows:—“In answer to the objection it is urged by the learned vakil for the Appellant, that the question whether a second appeal lies, or not, will have to be determined, not by considering who the Appellant is, but by considering what the nature of the question is, that was raised in the Court below and has been determined by the order appealed against.” And further on he adds:—“Now the question that has been determined by the lower Appellate Court is that the sale of the judgment-debtor's property is liable to be set aside, it is not clearly stated on what grounds, but evidently it would seem on the ground of fraud. That being so, the order appealed against has determined a question which is either mentioned or referred to in sec. 244, and which is not specified in sec. 588.” For the learned Judge adds, “the question whether the sale should be set aside or should be allowed to stand, is a question that arose as between the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder, and was a question relating to the execution of the decree.”

We have given our best consideration to the arguments of the learned counsel for the auction-purchaser Respondents, and we see no reason to take a different view from that expressed in the cases decided in this Court, and to which reference has been made. We think that in judging of the question whether an application to set aside a sale comes within the scope of sec. 244 or not, the point to be considered is whether there is a contest regarding the validity of the sale between the parties to the suit. The mere fact that the sale is impugned upon the ground of some act done by another person, whether it be the auction-purchaser or an outsider who may take some action for the purpose of helping the decree-holder or otherwise, does not affect the determination of the question lying at the root of the matter. In the present case the allegation is that the auction-purchaser fraudulently brought about the sale. The decree-holder in the first Court opposed the application for setting aside the sale on the grounds contained in the petition of objection. The contest regarding the sale is therefore between the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder, and the question, therefore, relating to the execution of the decree, is strictly between the parties to the suit, and consequently falls, in our opinion, under the provisions of sec. 244. We hold that the Subordinate Judge was wrong in refusing to enter upon an investigation of the allegations made by the judgment-debtor. We accordingly set aside his order dated the 9th April 1900 with costs, and send back the case to be dealt with by him according to law.

(2) 3 C. W. N. 403 (1899).

(4) 2 C. W. N. 691 (1898).

ADHAR MANI DASSI v. MONMOTHA NATH BOSE.

We assess the hearing fee at five gold mohurs.

The record will be returned to the lower Court at once.

•

Appeal allowed.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 86 of 1901.

KHIRODE SUNDARI DEBI and anr., Judgment-debtors, Appellants,
v.

MACLEAN, C. J.

BANERJEE, J.

1901.

27 & 28, August.

JNANENDRA NATH PAL
CHAUDHURI, Auction-
purchaser, and ors.,
Opposite Party,
Respondents.

Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 2, 244—Decree—Order—Fraud—Auction-purchaser—Confirmation of sale.

An order determining any question referred to in sec. 244, C. P. C., is a decree under sec. 2, C. P. C.; when therefore an appeal is preferred against such an order, it is sufficient to attach to the memorandum of appeal a copy of the order itself and it is not necessary to attach to the memorandum, a copy of the decree, even though such a decree may have been drawn up. In the case however of a suit or proceedings which have the character of a suit (e.g., contentious probate proceedings, &c.) it is necessary to file a copy of the decree.

A judgment-debtor is entitled, by an application under sec. 244, C. P. C., to have an execution sale of his properties set aside if he alleges and proves fraud on the part of the decree-holder though no fraud is alleged or proved against the auction-purchaser who is a stranger to the suit.

PROSUNNO KUMAR SANYAL v. KALI DAS
SANYAL (1), NEMAI CHAND KANJI v. DENO
NATH KANJI (2), HIRA LAL GHOSH v.

(1) I. L. R. 19 Cal. 633 (1892).

(2) 2 C. W. N. 691 (1898).

KHIRODE SUNDARI DEBI v. JNANENDRA NATH PAL CHAUDEHURI.

CHUNDER KANT GHOSH (4) and DURGA CHARAN v. CHANDRA NATH (3) followed.

When during the pendency of an application under sec. 244, C. P. C., to set aside an execution sale, the sale is confirmed, such confirmation is no bar to the maintenance of the application, even though the auction-purchaser is a stranger to the suit.

The decision of the Privy Council in PROSUNNO KUMAR SANYAL v. KALI DAS SANYAL (1) must be taken to have overruled in effect the Full Bench case of MOHENDRA NARAIN CHATURAJ v. GOPAL MONDUL (5).

BIHUBAN MOHAN PAL v. RAJAH PEARY MOHUN MUKERJEE (6) followed.

This was an appeal preferred on the 8th of March 1901, against the order of L. Palit, Esq., District Judge of Zillah Jessore, dated the 31st of January 1901, reversing the order of Babu Srigopal Chatterjee, Officiating Subordinate Judge of that district, dated the 16th of August 1901.

The facts of the case appear fully from the judgment.

Dr. Asutosh Mookerjee, Babus Hara Prosad Chatterjee and Biraj Mohan Majumdar for the Appellants.

Mr. J. T. Woodroffe (Advocate-General) and Babu Upendra Gopal Mitter for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—This is an appeal from an order of the District Judge of Jessore, dated the 31st of January 1901,

(1) I. L. R. 19 Cal. 683 (1892).

(3) 4 C. W. N. 541 (1899).

(4) 3 C. W. N. 403 (1899).

(5) I. L. R. 17 Cal. 769 (1890).

(6) 3 C. W. N. 399 (1899).

by which he decided that the present application to set aside a sale could not be entertained under sec. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, but that a regular suit must be instituted for that purpose. The question is whether that view is correct.

A preliminary objection has been taken that the appeal is irregular because no copy of the order accompanied the memorandum of appeal when it was presented, and, consequently, that the provision of Rule 2 of Chap. IX of the rules relating to appeals from appellate decrees, has not been complied with. In support of such preliminary objection reliance has been placed upon an unreported decision of my colleague and myself of the 25th of June 1901 in appeal from original decree No. 354 of 1899.

The cases, however, are distinguishable. This is an appeal from an order made under sec. 244 of the Code, and, under sec. 2 of the Code, the order itself is the decree and no other decree is necessary, and a copy of this order did accompany the memorandum of appeal. It is none the less the order, because the reasons for which it is made are contained in the same document.

In the unreported case the order appealed against was made in certain probate proceedings, and under sec. 83 of the Probate and Administration Act, V of 1881, the proceedings are to take, as nearly as may be, the form of a suit according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, and those provisions necessitate that a decree shall be drawn up, as separate from the judgment. The appeal in the unreported case was from a decree in a proceeding tantamount to a suit, the present appeal is from an order under sec. 244. The preliminary objection must be overruled.

KHIRODE SUNDARI DEBI v. JNANENDRA NATH PAL CHAUDHURI.

On the merits, the question is whether the case comes within sec. 244 of the Code. Prima facie it does. It is an application made by the judgment-debtors against the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser to set aside the sale on the ground of fraud.

It is too late after the decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the case of Prosunno Kumar Sanyal v. Kali Das Sanyal (1), to contend that the introduction of the auction-purchaser into the proceeding is a bar to the application of the section. It is said that this case is distinguishable because the purchaser here was in truth a benamdar for some one who was the real purchaser. But that case is not set up in the petition of the present Appellants nor in the objections on the other side, though somehow or other some evidence was given upon the point. The Judge in the Court below said the section did not apply because the question of benami could not be gone into, in the absence of the alleged real purchaser. But both sides have stated before us at the bar that the question of benami does not properly arise on this proceeding, and so it might be eliminated. I therefore do not see why the case is not within the section. If the Appellants were contending that the sale ought to be set aside by reason of the fraud of the real purchaser (assuming that the purchase was benami) who is not a party to the application, he might find himself in a difficulty. But he is not: he says it is sufficient if he prove fraud on the part of the decree-holder. I think he is right in his contention; there are several cases which point to such conclusion. I may refer to Nemai Chand Kanji v. Deno Nath Kanji (2) and Durga Churn v. Chandra Nath (3), whilst Hira Lal Ghosh v. Chunder Kant Ghosh (4) is a clear decision on the point. I have heard no argument to-day against the soundness of that decision, which appears to me to be right.

I should mention that in the present case the sale was not confirmed until after the present application had been made. It was confirmed in effect pending the present application, which was summarily rejected by the first Court, a decision which was reversed on appeal, and the case was remanded to the first Court. It was between the first hearing and that on appeal that the sale was confirmed, but I do not think that confirmation under such circumstances can avail the purchaser.

The case must go back to the District Judge to be tried upon the merits, that is whether there was any fraud on the part of the decree-holder, the Appellants not seeking to go into any question of fraud on the part of the alleged real purchaser if the transaction were benami. The Appellant is entitled to his costs 5 gold mohurs.

BANERJEE, J.—I concur with the learned Chief Justice in thinking that the case must be remanded to the lower Appellate Court for trial of the appeal before that Court on the merits. With reference to

(2) 2 C. W. N. 691 (1898).

(3) 4 C. W. N. 541 (1899).

(4) 3 C. W. N. 403 (1899).

(1) L. L. R. 19 Cal. 683 (1892).

KHIRODE SUNDARI DEBI v. JNANENDRA NATH PAL CHAUDHURI.

the preliminary point raised in the case, I wish to add this, that this is an appeal from an order referred to in sec. 244, but not specified in sec. 588 of the Code of Civil Procedure. That being so, the order is itself a decree within the meaning of the term as defined in sec. 2 of the Code; and as the memorandum of appeal is accompanied by a copy of the order, that is quite enough, and it was not necessary for the Appellant to file with the memorandum of appeal a copy of any formal decree, if such a decree had been drawn up by the Court below.

It was argued by the learned Advocate-General for the Respondent that, even in the case of an order, sec. 2 of the Code makes a distinction between an order and a judgment, defining an order as being a formal expression of any decision of a Civil Court which is not a decree as above defined, and defining a judgment as being a statement given by the Judge of the grounds of a decree or order and that may be passed. A judgment is no doubt what states the reasons for the decision whether the decision result in the making of an order, or a decree: but before the preliminary objection can succeed, it must be shown that the order must be a separate document, in the case of an appeal from an order and distinct from the judgment. In the present case, what has been filed with the memorandum of appeal contains the reasons for the order, as well as the order itself; and there is no provision in the Code requiring a Court, when deciding any matter which is other than a regular suit, to draw up a formal order in addition to and distinct from the document containing the reasons for the order followed by the order itself. The only provision in the Code for the drawing up of two separate documents, the one containing, principally, the reasons for the decision, and the other, principally, or solely, the formal expression of the relief granted, or other determination of the case, is what is to be found in Ch. XVII which bears the heading, "Of judgment and decree," and which relates only to a regular suit. Those being the provisions of the Code, I do not think that any order separate and distinct from what has been filed in this case was necessary to be filed along with the memorandum of appeal.

As for the unreported case, upon which reliance was placed for the Respondent, that was an appeal from an order in a probate proceeding; and it being a contentious proceeding, by virtue of sec. 83 of the Probate and Administration Act, V of 1881, the proceeding took the form of a suit according to the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code; and that being so, a formal decree, in addition to the judgment, had to be drawn up as required by Ch. XVII of the Code. And what was held in the unreported case was, that, in an appeal in such a case, it was necessary that the memorandum of appeal should be accompanied by a copy of the decree.

On the merits, the question that arises in the case is, whether the Court of Appeal below was right in dismissing the application of the Appellant before us, the judgment-debtor, on the ground that that application did not come within the scope of sec. 244 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the relief which the judgment-debtors asked for could be obtained by them only by a regular suit.

KHIRODE SUNDARI DEBI v. JNANENDRA NATH PAL CHAUDHURI.

Now, the case of the judgment-debtor was, that the sale of the property in execution of the decree obtained against them was vitiated by the fraud of the decree-holder and also of the auction-purchaser. The auction-purchaser named in the petition is the person who, at the time of the sale, was declared to be the purchaser. But in the course of the evidence adduced on behalf of the judgment-debtors, as appears from the judgment of the first Court, it was sought to be made out that the fraud on the part of the auction-purchaser consisted in the fraudulent action of the agent of a person of the name of Nuffer Chunder Pal Chowdhury, who, it was alleged, was the real purchaser. The first Court found in favour of the allegations of the judgment-debtor; it found that Nuffer Chunder Pal Chowdhury was the real purchaser, and that the sale was vitiated by the fraud of the decree-holder and also of the auction-purchaser, Nuffer Chunder Pal Chowdhury: and it set aside the sale.

Against the order of the first Court an appeal was preferred by the auction-purchaser named in the proceeding of the Court. His case both before the lower Appellate Court and the first Court was a denial of fraud, and a denial of the fact that any person other than himself was the real purchaser. I should add that the application of the judgment-debtor was opposed in the first Court by the decree holder as well. When the appeal came on for hearing before the learned District Judge, without going into any question of fact, the learned Judge held that the application of the judgment-debtors could not be entertained, because the question of benami as between the auction-purchaser on the record and the alleged actual purchaser was a question which could not be gone into under sec. 244, and, furthermore, because it was a question which could not be gone into in the absence of the alleged real purchaser who was not brought before the Court; and the question for consideration in this appeal is, whether the lower Appellate Court was right in throwing out the application of the judgment-debtors upon these two grounds.

The learned vakil for the Appellants contends that the question of benami, namely, the question whether the auction-purchaser on the record was the real auction-purchaser or only a benamdar for some other person who was the real auction-purchaser is one that does not arise in this case, because he contends that it is enough for the success of the Appellants if they can show that the sale is vitiated by the fraud of the decree-holder; he is content to rest his case upon the allegation that the sale is vitiated by the fraud of the decree-holder, quite irrespective of the question, whether or not, there was any fraud on the part of the auction-purchaser.

This raises the question whether the case of fraud on the part of the decree-holder being established is enough to entitle a judgment-debtor to an order for reversal of an execution sale vitiated by such fraud. Upon that question, I think the answer ought to be in favour of the Appellants' contention. The sale in execution of a decree is brought about by the instrumentality of the Court, the Court being set in motion by the decree-holder. If the decree-holder is guilty of fraud in the conduct of the sale, the process of the Court must be held to have been abused by him in bringing about the sale; and it cannot be said that a sale obtained through the abuse of the process of the Court by the fraud of the decree-holder who set the Court in motion should be upheld merely because the auction-purchaser is innocent of the fraud. The auction-purchaser, of course, is entitled to have the purchase-money paid by him refunded by the decree-holder: but he cannot insist upon a sale brought about by fraud practised upon the Court and by the decree-holder being maintained.

KHIRODE SUNDARI DEBI v. JNANENDRA NATH PAL CHAUDHURI.

The view I take is in accordance with that taken by this Court in the case of Bhuban Mohan Pal v. Rajah Peary Mohun Mukerjee (6). That being so and the objection on the ground of the alleged real auction-purchaser not being before the Court being thus obviated, the question remains, whether the case comes within the scope of sec. 244 of the Code. Upon that question also the answer must, I think, be in favour of the Appellants.

Great reliance was placed by the learned Advocate-General who appeared for the Respondent upon the Full Bench decision of this Court in the case of Mohendra Narain Chaturaj v. Gopal Mondul (5), as showing that in a case like the present, sec. 244 of the Code does not apply. But that case must be taken to have been, in effect, overruled by the decision of the Privy Council in the case of Prosunno Kumar Sanyal v. Kali Das Sanyal (1), in which their Lordships of the Judicial Committee say:—"It is of the utmost importance that all objections to execution sales should be disposed of as cheaply and as speedily as possible. Their Lordships are glad to find that the Courts in India have not placed any narrow construction on the language of sec. 244, and that when a question has arisen as to the execution discharge or satisfaction of a decree between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, the fact that the purchaser who is no party to the suit is interested in the result has never been held as a bar to the application of the section."

(6) 3 C. W. N. 399 (1899).

Appeal allowed:

Case remanded.

J. B.

(1) I. L. R. 19 Cal. 683 (1892).

(5) I. L. R. 17 Cal. 769 (1890).

BRINDABUN GHOSH v. THE EMPEROR.

He was unable to say whether copies had been affixed at the Katcharies and Thanas as prescribed, as that was a matter concerning the Collector's office. There was other evidence of a similar character.

We are not prepared to say that it is immaterial in the case of a prosecution under sec. 76 (6) that the provisions of secs. 6 and 80 have not been complied with. Now, compliance with such provisions would be most material on the question of punishment.

The rule, it is to be observed, is in terms based upon the ground "that the proclamation was not duly made in the terms of sec. 80 of Act II, B. C. of 1882." By "proclamation" as here used, we understand the notification referred to in sec. 6. The Act nowhere requires the publication of any proclamation though curiously sec. 80 provides for the mode in which every proclamation required to be issued shall be published.

It is not necessary to decide on the evidence whether there had been a sufficient compliance with the provisions of secs. 6 and 80, but there certainly is a considerable body of evidence tending to show that the requirements of the law have been observed. In dealing with the rule we are bound by the finding of the Deputy Magistrate that this notification was duly published.

Under these circumstances we think that the order of the Deputy Magistrate was right and that the rule must be discharged.

Rule discharged.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[APPEAL FROM OUDH.]

LORD MACNAGHTEN.	}	NIDHA SAH and
LORD LINDLEY.		another,
SIR ANDREW SCOBLE.		v.
SIR ARTHUR WILSON.		MURLI DHAR
SIR JOHN BONSER.		and others.
1902.
3, December.

Construction of deed—Right of lessor to enter, on expiration of lease—Contract—Breach—Misrepresentation—Estoppel—Mortgage-deed.

An instrument purporting to be a mortgage with possession for 14 years which however did not secure the payment of any money or the performance of any engagement and which did not expressly or by implication provide for redemption, and under the terms of which no accounts were to be rendered or required—was not a mortgage-deed but was simply a grant of land for a fixed term, free of rent, in consideration of a sum made out of past and present advances.

One I. L., representing himself to be the absolute owner of certain villages, executed such an instrument in respect of these in favour of I. S, but not having absolute title to all of them failed to put I. S. in possession of the entirety of the premises comprised in the instrument. At the expiration of 14 years, the representatives of I. S. refused to give up possession on the ground that owing to I. L.'s misrepresentations they had been unable to recoup themselves the money they had advanced. The representatives of I. L. brought this suit to recover possession. Upon the contention, raised for the Defendants, that I. L. having failed to give I. S. possession of the entire pro-

NIDHA SAH v. MURLI DHAR.

party, as he had stipulated to do, the Plaintiffs could not be allowed to enforce the contract as against the Defendants :

Held—That the Plaintiffs were not seeking to enforce that contract. They relied on their proprietary rights, and in the absence of some stipulation in the instrument, either express or implied, depriving the Plaintiffs of their rights to recover possession, the Plaintiffs were entitled to a decree.

This was an appeal against a decision of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh which confirmed a decision of the Subordinate Judge of Bahraich. The suit was brought by the Plaintiffs as representatives of one Indarjit Lal, deceased, to recover from the Defendant the villages of Ilaka Dewasiapur at the expiration of 14 years, for which period they had been mortgaged to him as security for his debt. The Defendant pleaded that the mortgagor had misrepresented the nature of his interest in some of the villages and had wrongly deprived him of possession of others. Both Courts found that this defence was true in fact but worthless in law, and that the Defendant was bound to give up the villages unconditionally at the end of his term, being left to a suit for damages in respect of the wrongful acts complained of. The questions in this appeal were purely questions of law.

On the 10th July 1876, Indarjit Lal executed to the Defendant Ishri Sah the document upon which the rights of the parties depend. It recites a debt of Rs. 11,530-8-0 as due to the mortgagee. It then proceeds, "that in consideration of the debt hereinbefore mentioned, I mortgage with possession to Ishri Sah village Dewasiapur, together with all the villages therein included that are in my absolute proprietary possession and enjoyment up to date" for a period of 14 years from F. 1284 (4th September, 1876) to F. 1297. The names of the villages, 12 in number, are set out in the Schedule. The document then proceeds to specify the position of the title to these villages. Four of them, viz., Har Chanda, Aghapur Badainpur, Surjana, and Chak Meerpur, were under mortgage to certain persons who are named. These he was to redeem out of moneys, part of the Rs. 11,530, which were left in his hands for that purpose. Two others, viz., Jamaluddinpur and Bilnapara, were mortgaged to one Suraj Bali Singh for a term, at the expiration of which he was to take possession. As to two others, viz., Harrajpur and Chandidaspur, which were in the occupation of the mortgagor's sons, he was not to have actual possession, but was to retain an annual sum of Rs. 325. Indarjit was to get the name of Ishri Sah recorded in column 9 of the Revenue Register, "and having come into possession of all the villages hereby mortgaged, the said Sah shall for the said period pay the Government revenue, the Patwari cess, the Chaukidari rate, and any other expenses relating to Courts, out of the income of the estate, and shall appropriate the balance towards payment of the money secured under this document." The mortgagor stipulated on his own part that, "I, this declarant, and my heirs, shall not in any way interfere with the said estate until the expiration of 14 years, the term of this mortgage bond, and shall not approach the boundaries of the estate." "I, the declarant, shall not mortgage or sell the mortgaged villages to anybody during the term of this mortgage." "The mortgagor shall have no right to the profits of the estate during the term of the mortgage bond. On the other hand, in Jeth-Khali-fasal of the year in which the term of the mortgage expires, I, the declarant, shall come in possession of the mortgaged villages without settlement of accounts respecting the money entered in the document, the mortgagee and his heirs shall have no valid objection."

NIDHA SAH v. MURLI DHAR.

The Schedule is headed, "specification of villages of Ilaka Dewasiapur which were put in possession of the mortgagee as security for the debt, Rs. 11,530-8-0, as shown in this document."

The above-mentioned sum appears to have been made up in this way: Rs. 6,966-8-0 due by Indarjit to Ishri Sah; Rs. 4,250 to be paid to mortgagees, and a cash balance for costs of registration, &c.

After the expiration of the 14 years, Murlī Dhar, eldest son of Indarjit Lal, who was then dead, applied that the name of Ishri Sah should be struck off the column of mortgagees. This was resisted by Ishri Sah on the ground that he had not been put into possession of all the villages specified in the mortgage, and the application was refused, the Petitioner being referred to a civil suit. This led to the present suit for restitution of the land under the terms of the mortgage. Relief claimed was redemption of the mortgage and re-transfer and re-delivery. The defence was that the mortgagor had broken his contract by not allowing him possession of all the villages out of which he was to realise his debt. He said that the mortgagor had taken possession of two villages, and that others had been recovered from him by persons of whose claim he had no notice under the mortgage agreement.

On the 25th October 1893, the Subordinate Judge pronounced his judgment as follows:—

"The mortgagor's sons were to obtain (1) Harrajpur asli and (2) Chandidaspur, paying the Government revenue only to Defendant. Defendant was to hold definitely for 14 years and after that mortgagor was to take up possession without any accounts of the money entered in the deed, or of the profits enjoyed by the mortgagee. Mortgagor was to be responsible for claims by third persons, excepting the claims of the previous mortgagees mentioned. So far the conditions were clear and straightforward. But there is no mention in this deed that the mortgagor was to obtain (1a) Dewasiapur and to recover (7) Mohanmadpur after 2½ years.

"There is no mention of mortgagor's life-tenure of (6) Bilnapara, nor of his interest in (9) Dikauli Patti Ratan Singh, and (11) Aghapur Badainpur as merely that of a mere mortgagee. All these villages are described as mortgagor's proprietary villages. The document appears to have been carefully framed, and the omission to give a true description of the mortgagor's tenure of the last three villages cannot be overlooked. Perhaps Defendants knew that (9a) Deokali Patti Ali Hamid was a mortgage tenure (document 22), but there is no evidence of Defendants previous knowledge of the mortgagee tenure in villages Bilnapara (6) and (9) Dikauli Ratan Singh and (11) Aghapur Badainpur. It is true the Judicial Commissioner in two suits between the parties (document 2) held it 'proper' to presume that Defendant knew that Bilnapara was a life-tenure; and (document 4) that he would not believe Defendant's assertion that he did not know that Indarjit's tenure of Aghapur Badainpur (document 10) was that of a mere mortgagee. But in my humble opinion Plaintiffs were estopped from proving Defendant's previous knowledge of these tenures after the express declaration in the deed, dated 10th July, 1876, that all these villages were the proprietary villages of Indarjit, thus inducing Defendant to believe in that tenure and acting on that belief. But in respect of Dewasiapur and Mohammadpur, Plaintiffs have not proved any subsequent agreement, and it is admitted that such agreement was held invalid. The more I read the document and the subsequent litigation, the more I am inclined to think that Plaintiffs have not dealt honestly with Defendant.

NIDHA SAH v. MURLI DHAR.

"As a fact Defendant has never had possession of Dewasiapur, and Plaintiffs father took possession of Mohammadpur in Rabi 1286 Fasli, and Defendant has not had it for  $11\frac{1}{2}$  years of the stipulated period of 14 years. Plaintiff's father, Indarjit, the original mortgagor, dying, the Muafi Bilnapara was resumed by the grantor in 1290 Fasli, and Defendant has not had it for 8 years of the stipulated period. The proprietors of Patti Dikauli Ratan Singh redeemed the mortgage of that Patti in 1290 Fasli, and Defendant has not had it for 8 years of the stipulated period. Similarly they redeemed Aghapur Badainpur in 1293 Fasli, and Defendant has not had it for 5 years of the stipulated period. That there was a subsequent agreement a month after the mortgage in respect of Dewasiapur and Mohammadpur is not now denied, but when Defendant sued for arrears of rent of those villages, Plaintiffs opposed the claim, even asserting that the mortgage had never taken effect. See documents Nos 4 (second), 16 (first and second), and A 5. The agreement is not before me and I can only hold on the deed, dated 10th July, 1876, that Plaintiffs have retained the villages without right to do so. The decisions in the rent suits are not binding, they only show that Defendant failed to realise rents from Plaintiffs, in one case because it was held that Dewasiapur had been given for maintenance, and in the other because the agreement was inadmissible in evidence. Defendant is to blame for not trying to recover these two villages in the Civil Court, and this omission on his part must go against him."

He then held that under the mortgage-deed the Plaintiffs were entitled to get back the land at the end of the 14 years and that the Defendant's only remedy was by suits within the period of limitation. He found that the Defendants had paid off all the mortgages except one for Rs. 250 due to Moti Ram in respect of Chak Mirpur. He also found that the mesne profits for the 2 years since 1297 Fasli amounted to Rs. 1,930-11-6.

In the result of this judgment he decreed in favour of the Plaintiffs for redemption and possession of the villages, and for Rs. 2,180-11-6 in cash. "Bearing in mind how dishonestly Plaintiffs have dealt with Defendants I allow no costs to Plaintiffs, and direct that each party will bear his own costs."

NIDHA SAH v. MURLI DHAR.

Against this decree and judgment the Defendants appealed to the Judicial Commissioner's Court in Oudh, and the Plaintiffs filed objections to the order as to costs.

The Judicial Commissioners dismissed the appeal with costs.

Mr. Mayne for the Appellants urged that the Court was wrong in holding that the Plaintiffs could deprive the Defendant of the benefits of his contract and enforce against him its burden.

No one appeared for the Respondent.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

SIR JOHN BONSER.—On the 10th of July 1876 one Indarjit Lal, representing himself to have absolute proprietary rights in certain villages, executed an instrument purporting to be a mortgage of them with possession to one Ishri Sah "for a period of 14 years from 1284 Fasli to 1297 Fasli" by which it was provided that on the expiration of the term the mortgagor "shall come in possession of the mortgaged villages without settlement of accounts . . . that on the expiration of the term . . . the mortgagee shall have "no power whatever in respect of the said estate . . . and after the expiration of the term this mortgage deed . . . shall be returned to the mortgagor without his accounting for (paying) the mortgage money secured under this document."

This instrument, though it is called a mortgage, and though it will be convenient to follow the nomenclature used in the document itself and in the pleadings and judgments in the Courts below, is not a mortgage in any proper sense of the word. It is not a security for the payment of any money or for the performance of any engagement. No accounts were to be rendered or required. There was no provision for redemption expressed or implied. It was simply a grant of land for a fixed term free of rent in consideration of a sum made out of past and present advances.

It appears that the so-called mortgagor had not absolute proprietary rights in all the villages and that the mortgagee did not get the full benefit purported to be given him by the mortgage.

At the expiration of the 14 years the representatives of the original mortgagee refused to give up possession of such of the mortgaged property as the mortgagee had been able to get possession of on the ground that, owing to the misrepresentations of the mortgagor, they had been unable to recoup themselves the money they had advanced, and they claimed the right to hold the property until they had so recouped themselves.

The Respondents, who are the representatives of the mortgagor, then brought the action out of which this appeal arises to recover the property.

The Subordinate Judge made a decree in favour of the Plaintiffs, but deprived them of costs on the ground that the mortgagor had not "dealt honestly" with the mortgagee, and that decree was affirmed by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

NIDHA SAH v. MURLI DHAR.

It was contended before their Lordships that the mortgagor having broken his part of the contract by failing to give the mortgagee possession of the entirety of the premises comprised in the mortgage ought not to be allowed to enforce the contract as against the mortgagee, but the answer to this contention appears to their Lordships to be that the Plaintiffs are not seeking to enforce the contract; they rely on their proprietary right, and it is for the Appellant to shew some stipulation either express or implied in the mortgage deed which deprives the Plaintiffs of the right to recover possession. This the Appellant cannot do and their Lordships will therefore humbly advise His Majesty that the appeal be dismissed. As there was no appearance by the Respondents it will not be necessary to make any order as to costs.

Solicitors: Messrs. Young, Jackson, Beard and King for the Appellants.

Appeal dismissed.

C. W. A.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE
No. 930 OF 1900.

BANERJEE, J. GEIDT, J. 1903. 7, January.	}	KEAMUDDI, Defendant No. 5, Appellant, v. HARA MOHAN MONDUL and ors., Plaintiffs, Res- pondents.
---	---	--

Limitation—Alternative plea of limitation and tenancy.

It is open to a party to plead tenancy and limitation in the alternative.

JONARDON MUNDUL v. SAMBHU NATH MUNDUL (1) explained.

DINOMONEE DEBIA v. DOORGA PERSHAD MOJOOMDAR (2) relied upon.

Where Plaintiff and Defendant both claimed under the same landlord, and Defendant further took a plea that Plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation, the lower Appellate Court found Plaintiff's title proved and that Defendant's alleged tenancy was not proved and refused to go into the question of limitation raised by the Defendant:

Held—That the question of limitation must be decided.

This was an appeal filed on the 6th of June 1900, against the decree of Babu Bhuban Mohan Ghosh, Additional Sub-Judge of Faridpur, dated the 1st of March 1900, reversing the decree of Babu Ashutosh Ghosh, Munsif of Bhanga, dated the 13th October 1898.

Plaintiffs brought a suit to recover possession of certain land upon establishment of their title. The title set up by them was that of tenancy under certain maliks. It was alleged that they had been put in possession but were subsequently dispossessed by the Defendants. The defence was that the suit was barred by limitation, that the Defendants had been in possession all along as tenants under the same maliks and that the Plaintiff's allegation of possession and subsequent dispossession was false and the lease set up by the Plaintiffs collusive.

The first Court dismissed the suit, but on appeal the lower Appellate Court

(1) I. L. R. 16 Cal. 806 (1889).

(2) 21 W. R. 70 (1873).

KRAMUDDI v. HARA MOHAN MONDUL.

found in Plaintiffs' favour upon the question of title. It also disbelieved the evidence of title as tenants set up by the Defendants and without going into the question of limitation it gave the Plaintiffs a decree. The Defendant appealed.

Babu Brojo Lal Chuckerbutty for the Appellant.

Babu Sarat Chandra Khan for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this appeal which arises out of a suit brought by the Plaintiffs-Respondents to recover possession of certain land, upon establishment of their title, two questions arise for determination, first, whether the lower Appellate Court was right in giving the Plaintiffs a decree without disposing of the plea of limitation raised: and, second, whether the Court below was right in holding the proper custody of the amalnamah, relied upon by the Defendants, had not been satisfactorily proved, when the document was produced by the Defendants, whose title-deed it was and when they adduced evidence to show that it was in their custody.

The learned vakil for the Appellant, the Defendant No. 5, contends that both these questions ought to be answered in the negative and the case sent back to the lower Appellate Court for a proper determination of the question of limitation and of the question of the genuineness of the amalnamah.

We are of opinion that the Appellant's contention is correct. The title set up by the Plaintiffs is that of tenancy under certain m aliks created in the year 1297, that is, within twelve years before the institution of the suit; and they allege that they were put in possession and were subsequently dispossessed by the Defendants.

The defence was that the suit was barred by limitation, that the Defendants had been in possession all along as tenants under the same maliks and that the Plaintiffs' allegation of possession and subsequent dispossession was false and the lease set up by the Plaintiffs collusive.

The first Court found in favour of the Defendants upon the question of title as well as upon the question of possession, and dismissed the Plaintiffs' suit.

On appeal by the Plaintiffs, the lower Appellate Court has found in their favour upon the question of title. It has also disbelieved the evidence of title as tenants set up by the Defendants; and, then, without going into the question of limitation, which it considers as not arising in the case, it has given the Plaintiffs a decree. The view of the learned Subordinate Judge upon the question of limitation is that it does not arise, because both the Plaintiffs and the Defendants claim to be tenants under the same maliks, and, if that is so as the possession of the Defendants cannot be adverse to the common landlord, it can neither be adverse to the Plaintiffs, who derive title from that landlord; and, in support of this view, he has referred to the case of Jonardon Mundul v. Samblu Nath Mundul (1).

Now, it is quite true that if the Defendants were, as they alleged, tenants of the common landlord, their possession

(1) I. L. R. 16 Cal. 806 (1889).

KEAMUDDI v. HARA MOHAN MONDUL.

could not be adverse to the common landlord; but according to the finding arrived at by the lower Appellate Court, that alleged tenancy has not been proved. If that is so, the Defendants were trespassers, and, as they have pleaded limitation, it remains to be seen whether they had acquired a title by adverse possession or whether the Plaintiffs or their predecessor in interest, the common landlord, had possession within twelve years before the institution of the suit in order to prevent its being barred by limitation. That it is open to a party Defendant to plead tenancy and limitation in the alternative is settled by the decision of a Full Bench of this Court in the case of Dinomonee Debia v. Doorga Pershad Mojoomdar (2). As for the case of Jonardon Mundul v. Sambhu Nath Mundul (1) relied upon in the judgment of the lower Appellate Court, what was held in that case was that the whole question between the parties, who claimed to hold under the same common landlord, was whether the title of the Plaintiffs or that of the Defendants was to prevail; and as that question had been left undetermined, the case was remanded to the lower Appellate Court for retrial. It cannot therefore help the Plaintiffs-Respondents, in the present case, where it has been found that the alleged tenancy of the Defendants has not been proved. If the case of Jonardon Mundul v. Sambhu Nath Mundul (1) goes further, as the learned vakil for the Respondents contends, and lays down the broad rule that, wherever a Defendant sets up a tenancy, he is precluded from availing himself of the plea of limitation, even though the plea of tenancy be found against him, we must say we are unable to follow that case to that extent, it being opposed to the Full Bench decision in the case of Dinomonee v. Doorga Pershad (2) cited above. The question of limitation must therefore be decided. It was argued for the Plaintiffs-Respondents, that there is a finding in the judgment of the lower Appellate Court which disposes of the question of limitation, that finding being embodied in these words in the judgment appealed against: "The Plaintiffs have proved their possession by payment of rent." We are unable to accept this contention as correct. If the lower Appellate Court had found that the Plaintiffs had proved their actual possession after taking their lease, then, as that possession must have been possession within twelve years, it would have been sufficient to save their suit from being barred by limitation; but the finding does not amount to a finding that the Plaintiffs have proved actual possession. It only amounts to this, that the Plaintiffs have paid rent and that is the way they have proved their possession. That cannot be sufficient: for mere payment of rent to their lessor would not show that they had possession of the land.

Then, upon the second question, the lower Appellate Court says this, speaking of the amanamahs: "These documents are purported to be more than 30 years old but their proper custody has not been proved." The learned Subordinate Judge does not explain what he

(1) 1 L. R. 16 Cal. 806 (1889).

(2) 21 W. R. 70 (1873).

(2) 21 W. R. 70 (1873).

RAMESWAR SINGH v. JOGI SAHOO.

Magistrate and yet convicted the accused on a charge of assault :

Held—That this was not a proper way of dealing with the case and the accused ought not to have been convicted of an offence which did not form the subject-matter of complaint, specially when all the other matters relating to the event were found to be false or not proved.

This was a rule issued on the 26th of April 1900, against the order of the Assistant Magistrate of Monghyr, dated the 3rd of April 1900, which order was, on appeal, modified by W. H. Vincent, Esq., Sessions Judge of Bhagnulpur on the 19th April 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. W. Jackson, Moulvie Mahomed Yusuff and Babu Mgnmatha Nath Mitter for the Petitioners.

No one appeared to shew cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The original complaint in this case was that the complainant had been forcibly taken to the zemindar's cutchery, and there compelled to pay money and otherwise ill-treated and beaten. The Magistrate, at a later stage of the case, disbelieved the entire complaint and drew fresh charges of wrongful confinement and assault and he convicted the accused thereon, notwithstanding the protest of the accused that they had not an opportunity of properly defending themselves on this new case and of examining two other witnesses. On appeal, the Sessions Judge went even further than the Magistrate, for, he disbelieved the entire complaint originally made even up to the wrongful confinement of which the Magistrate had convicted as the last vestige of the occurrence complained of. The Sessions Judge then proceeded to consider the charge of assault and he has affirmed the conviction and sentence for this offence which, he finds, took place after the complainant was released from the confinement of which he complained and which was found to be unproved. The Magistrate's judgment does not state the nature of the assault for which he convicted the accused or when it took place but the Sessions Judge finds that an assault was committed after the entire occurrence complained of.

We think that this was not a proper way of dealing with the case and that the Sessions Judge on appeal should not have convicted of an offence which did not form the subject-matter of the complaint, more particularly when he had already found that all the other matters complained of were either false or unproved. Under these circumstances we set aside the conviction and the sentence.

S. C. S. Rule made absolute.

[APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

No. 15 of 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	SREEMUTTY MOKHODA
PRINSEP, J.		DASSEB, Plaintiff,
HILL, J.		Appellant,
1901.		v.
6, February.		NUNDO LAL HALDAR
		and others, Defendants,
		Respondents.

Hindu Law—Bengal School—Maintenance—Daughter, sonless, widowed—Marriage, effect of, on the status of a daughter.

SREEMUTTY MOKHODA DASSEE v. NUNDO LAL HALDAR.

A widowed daughter-in-law is not bound to reside in the house of her father-in-law.

RAJAH PIRTHEE SINGH v. RANEE RAJ KOWAR (1) followed.

When a Hindu maiden marries, she becomes incorporated into her husband's family and it is to that family that she must, in the first instance, look for her maintenance on becoming a widow.

A widowed daughter is not, any way, entitled to maintenance from her father's heir, who has succeeded to his estate, unless and until it can be satisfactorily shewn that she is unable to obtain maintenance from the family into which she has married; even then, however, is doubtful if she can succeed against her late father's estate.

BAI MANGAL v. BAI RUKHMINI (2) referred to.

When an offer has been made by her late father's heirs to provide her with a home and food and raiment, she is not entitled to a separate maintenance from him apart from his house and in a house of her own.

Quære—Whether under certain circumstances there is or is not a legally enforceable right by which a widowed daughter's maintenance can be claimed as a charge on her father's estate in the hands of his heirs.

KHETRAMANI DAS v. KASHINATH DAS (3) and BAI MANGAL v. BAI RUKHMINI (2) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 18th of May 1900, against the decision

(1) 20 W. R. 21 (1873).

(2) 1. L. R. 23 Bom. 291 (1898).

(3) 2 B. L. R. A. C. 15 (1868).

of Ameer Ali, J., dated the 23rd March 1900.

This was a suit by a daughter, who was a sonless widow, against the heir of her deceased father, for a declaration that she was entitled to separate maintenance during her natural life out of her late father's estate. The facts of the case as well as the judgment of Ameer Ali, J., are fully reported in 4 C. W. N. 669. There was practically no dispute in the case as to the facts except as to the indigency of the Plaintiff. It may here be mentioned that the present representative of her father-in-law's family offered her a home and food and raiment and a similar offer was made, during the trial of the case before Ameer Ali, J., by the Defendant, but she desired a separate maintenance.

Mr. R. Mittra and Mr. B. C. Chatterji for the Appellant.

Mr. W. C. Bonnerjee and Mr. S. P. Sinha for the adult Respondents.

Mr. B. Chakravarti and Mr. B. C. Mitter for the minor Respondents.

THEIR LORDSHIPS delivered the following judgments:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—The point we have to decide upon this appeal, is, whether, or not, an indigent daughter, who is a sonless widow, is entitled to maintenance out of her father's estate which has descended to his heir. The suit is one by a sonless widow against the heir of her deceased father, who, as such heir, acquired his property, for a declaration, in effect, that she is entitled to separate maintenance during her natural life out of her late father's estate.

Except as to the indigency of the

SREEMUTTY MOXHODA DASSEE v. NUNDO LAL HALDAR.

Plaintiff, there is virtually, no dispute of fact in the case, and no dispute that, at the time when the succession opened out, the Plaintiff was a sonless widow.

The facts as to the pedigree, and relating to the other historical portion of the case, have been, admittedly, stated with accuracy by the Court below, and there appears to be no necessity to re-capitulate them.

Upon the evidence, I think, it is, at least, doubtful, whether the Plaintiff is in the destitute condition she describes, but I will assume, for the purposes of my decision, that she is in such circumstances. In this connection, it is important to observe that Tulsī Das Dutt, who is now, apparently, the head of her late father-in-law's family, has offered her a home and food and raiment, and that a similar offer was made, during the trial of the case in the Court below, by the Defendant Nundo Lal Haldar, who, I understand, is her first cousin on her father's side and the present head of her late father's family. These offers have been refused by the Plaintiff, and it is reasonably apparent that what she really wants, is, not only separate maintenance for herself, but, in effect, maintenance for herself, and her three grandchildren who are living with her. The question is, whether she is entitled to such separate maintenance out of the estate of her late father, which has descended upon, and is now in the possession of his heir.

We have listened to a very learned and interesting argument from the counsel for the Appellant, the Court below having dismissed the suit, without costs; but I scarcely think it is necessary to pursue that argument in detail, or to deal, in detail, with the various texts and authorities which have been cited to us, as I think that the case is virtually concluded by authority. It may be taken, no doubt, in accordance with the view expressed by the Privy Council in the case of Rajah Pirthee Singh v. Ranee Raj Kowar (1), that a person situated as is the present Plaintiff, is not bound to live in the house of her father-in-law; but that is a very different proposition from that for which the Plaintiff is now contending. The authorities appear to me to establish that when a Hindu maiden marries, she becomes, if I may use the expression, incorporated into her husband's family, and that it is to that family she must, in the first instance, look for her maintenance on becoming a widow, and that, any way, she cannot be regarded as entitled to demand successfully maintenance from her father's heir, who has succeeded to his estate, unless and until it can be satisfactorily shown, that she is unable to obtain maintenance from the family into which she has married. It is, perhaps, not clear—in fact there is distinct authority the other way, see Bai Mangal v. Bai Rukhmini (2), whether, even in such an eventuality, she can succeed as against her late father's estate, but the facts of this case do not make it necessary for us to decide that particular point. In the case now before us, the Plaintiff has failed to show her inability to obtain maintenance from her husband's family, and having failed to show this, I do not appreciate how, under the Hindu Law

(1) 20 W. R. 21 (1873).

(2) I. L. R. 23 Bom. 291 (1898).

SREEMUTTY MOKHODA DASSEE v. NUNDO LAL HALDAR.

of the Bengal School, she can successfully claim maintenance out of her deceased father's estate; and even as against her father's estate, I do not think that when an offer has been made by his heir to provide her with a home, and food and raiment, she can, successfully, maintain that she is entitled to separate maintenance apart from his house, and apparently, in a house of her own. It seems to me that the present case is more than covered by the case of Bai Mangal v. Bai Rukhmini (2). Although the judgment there was delivered by a Judge of great knowledge and experience in Hindu Law, it may be a matter of consideration hereafter whether, having regard to the dicta of Peacock, C. J., in the case of Khetramani Dasi v. Kushinath Das (3), Mr. Justice Ranade has not gone a little too far in saying that there is no legally enforceable right by which a widowed daughter's maintenance can be claimed as a charge on her father's estate in the hands of his heirs. But as I have already observed it is unnecessary, in the circumstances of this case, to decide that question to-day. I may add that I see no reason why, upon this particular point, we should say that there is any distinction between the law on this side of India and that on the Bombay side.

On these grounds, it seems to me that the view taken by the learned Judge in the Court below is right, and that the appeal must be dismissed with costs.

As regards the cross-objections I see no reason why the Plaintiff should be exempted from the payment of the costs of the suit, and the cross-objection must succeed to this extent. The suit must be dismissed with costs.

PRINSEP, J.—I am of the same opinion.

HILL, J.—I am also of the same opinion.

Messrs. N. C. Bural & Co., Attorneys for the Appellant.

Messrs. Swinhoe & Co., and Messrs. Ghose and Kar, Attorneys for the several Respondents.

Appeal dismissed.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2599 of 1898.

BANERJEE, J. BRETT, J. 1900. 19, December.	SARODA SUNDARI DASSI and others, Defendants, Appellants, KRISTO JIBAN PAL, Plaintiff, Respondent.
---	---

Hindu Law—Hindu widow—Alienation, power of, over immoveable property—Bequest by husband—Will, construction of—Grant of absolute power, express or implied—Restrictions imposed upon power of alienation—Indian Succession Act (X of 1865), sec. 82.

Though a mere gift of immoveable property by a Hindu husband to his wife, does not carry with it the power of alienation, yet where any such property is given by the husband to the wife with express power of alienation, or when this power is implied by the grant, she would acquire an absolute power of disposal over the property; and when the gift is made by a Will, the legatee is entitled, under the provisions of sec. 82 of the Indian Succession Act, to the whole interest of the testator unless it appears from the Will

(2) 1 L. R. 23 Bom. 291 (1898).

(3) 2 B. L. R. A. C. 15 (1868).

SARODA SUNDARI DASSI v. KRISTO JIBAN PAL.

that only a restricted interest was intended to be given.

Where a Will does not in express terms convey any estate of inheritance to a Hindu widow, still the widow will be entitled to alienate the property at her pleasure if there is no restriction imposed by the terms of the Will, so far as the power of alienation is concerned.

Upon a construction of the Will in this case which provided as follows :—“ If neither of them (the wives) have any children then both my wives will enjoy and appropriate at their will the entire property moveable and immoveable in equal shares in full proprietary right. In the absence of one, the other will similarly enjoy and appropriate at her will the entire aforesaid property in full proprietary right. In the event of her death, my next reversionary heir will have such moveable and immoveable property as will remain : ”

Held—That an absolute power of alienation was intended to be conferred on the widows.

LALIT MOHAN SINGH v. CHUKKUN LAL ROY (1), LALA RAMJLWAN v. DALKOER (2), and RAJNARAIN BHADURI v. KATYAYANI DEBI (3) referred to.

This was an appeal preferred on the 20th of December 1898, against the decree of W. Teunon, Esq., District Judge of Murshidabad, dated the 19th of September 1898, reversing the decree of Babu Jogendra Natli Ghosh, Munsif of Berhampore, dated the 28th of January 1898.

This was a suit for a declaration that an alienation of certain property by Defendant No. 2, was not valid after the lifetime of that Defendant. The Defendant No. 2 was one of the widows of Krishna Chaitanya Pal and claimed the right to alienate the property under his Will. That Will was in the following terms :—

“The testator of this Will is Krishna Chaitanya Pal, son of Bissambhar Pal, deceased, of Jitpur, Station Jalangi, District Murshidabad. It is to the effect following:—Both my married wives are alive, the first Saroda Sundari Dasi, and the second is Nutumoni Dasi. I have no children. I am at present 36 years of age. Both my wives as well as myself are in the enjoyment of sound health. It is quite probable that I might beget children hereafter. It is also probable that I shall have no children at all. Human frame is but frail and there is no knowing when, where, how and under what circumstances I am to die. It is therefore prudent to provide for the future now. I therefore execute this Will and desire that if there be any issues by both or either of my wives then such children will have all my property after my death. If there be any children by one of my wives then the other will be allowed to remain with the family and will be given proper care and attention. She will be given her meals and clothing and the reasonable costs of bratas, pilgrimages etc., will be borne by the estate. If on account of ill-feelings with the wife or her children it be necessary for the other to separate, then, in conformity with the income of the estate at the time, this other will

(1) 1 C. W. N. 387 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 834 (1898).

(2) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 406 (1898).

(3) 4 C. W. N. 337 (1900).

SARODA SUNDARI DASSI v. KRISTO JIBAN PAL.

get a fair amount of cash and will be entitled to a fixed monthly allowance. She will also be allotted a habitable pucca room on the first floor of the house as also a cook-room. Her ornaments as well as the brass and metallic utensils fit for her use as also the wooden furniture bed, etc., will be retained and enjoyed by her. On her death the children of the other wife will come by all the property left behind by her after having duly performed her sradh. If neither of them have any children then both my wives will enjoy and appropriate at their will the entire property moveable and immoveable in equal shares in full proprietary right. In the absence of one the other will similarly enjoy and appropriate at her will the entire aforesaid property by virtue of her full proprietary title thereto. In the event of her death my next reversionary heir will have such moveable and immoveable property as will be left behind by her. But such heir will have the property after having regularly performed the sradh of the said deceased at a reasonable cost. If the said wives die childless before me then I will make other arrangements. If I do not or cannot do so, then after my death the entire property will revert to the said heir. This will be enforced and be operative as regards all such moveable and immoveable property as the pucca buildings, thatched houses, all sorts of rent-free and rent-paying lands, gardens, trees, money-lending business, cash, gold mohurs, gold and silver utensils, etc., of various metals, lawzima (things) made of silk, wool, cotton, glass and wood situate in Jitpur and Kaliaupur in this district in Baliadanga in District Nuddia, and in Bibigunge in District Dinagepur and all valuable things and dues from whatever source and in whatever manner existing which I might produce or acquire hereafter. The provisions of this Will will not come into force during my lifetime. After my death and after the performance of my adya sradh and sapindakaran the provisions of this Will will come into force as regards the remaining property. My first wife Saroda Sundari Dasi understands business affairs better than my second wife Nutumoni. Moreover the former is more advanced in age. Therefore so long as both the wives live together the younger will be under the guardianship of the elder. I presume that under these arrangements Saroda Sundari will in no way injure Nutumoni. If however she does, then Nutumoni will enjoy and appropriate half the property independently of the other. If however either of them becomes unfaithful and ceases to be a chaste woman then she will be deprived of all property and be ejected (from the house). With these stipulations I execute this Will. The 16th Baisakh 1285, B. S."

Babu Sib Chandra Palit for the Appellants.

Dr. Anutosh Mukerjee and Babu Biraj Mohan Majumdar for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this appeal, which arises out of a suit brought by the Plaintiff-Respondent, to obtain a declaration that an alienation of certain property by Defendant No. 2 was not valid after the lifetime of that Defendant, and for other reliefs, the only question that arises for determination is, whether, upon a proper construction of the Will of the late Krishna Chaitanya Pal, the husband of the first two Defendants, those Defendants have an unlimited power of alienation over the property in dispute. .

SARODA SUNDARI DASSI v. KRISTO JIBAN PAL.

The first Court answered that question in the affirmative and dismissed the suit. The lower Appellate Court, on appeal by the Plaintiff, has taken a different view, and reversed the decree of the first Court; and hence this second appeal.

The rule of law applicable to a case of gift of immoveable property by a Hindu husband to his wife is, that, though a mere gift of immoveable property does not carry with it the power of alienation, yet, where any such property is given by the husband to the wife with express power of alienation, or where this power is implied by the grant, she would acquire an absolute power of disposal over the property; and where the gift is by Will, sec. 82 of the Indian Succession Act, which applies to the Will of a Hindu, will entitle the legatee to the whole interest of the testator, unless it appears from the Will that only a restricted interest was intended to be given. The question then is whether by the terms of the Will in this case a restricted interest was intended to be given to the widows of the testator, or whether they have the unqualified power of alienation that they contend for. The portion of the Will that bears upon this question runs thus:—"If neither of them have any children then both my wives will enjoy and appropriate at their will the entire property moveable and immoveable in equal shares in full proprietary right. In the absence of one, the other will similarly enjoy and appropriate at her will the entire aforesaid property in full proprietary right. In the event of her death my next reversionary heir will have such moveable and immoveable property as will remain." These several provisions of the Will, the learned vakil for the Appellant contends, give an absolute power of alienation to the widows; and he lays particular stress upon the words "enjoy and appropriate," and, "full proprietary right," and also upon the words "as will remain" in the clause relating to the gift over to the reversionary heir of the testator. On the other hand, the learned vakil for the Plaintiff-Respondent, contends that although the words "in full proprietary right," may imply the giving of absolute power of alienation to the widows, yet the clause in which these words occur does not stand alone, and that the subsequent clauses providing for the right of survivorship among the widows, and containing the gift over to the reversionary heir of the testator imply a restriction of the right of the widows. It is quite true that the Will does not in express terms convey any estate of inheritance to widows, as the words in the clauses referred to go to show, but although that may be so, still the widows will be entitled to alienate the property at their pleasure if there is no restriction imposed by the terms of the Will, so far as the power of alienation is concerned.

We are of opinion that regard being had to the words used in the first clause, namely, that the widows "will enjoy and appropriate at their will the entire property moveable and immoveable in equal shares in full proprietary right," and also to the qualifying words used in the last clause quoted above, which imply, that the reversionary heir is to take, not the estate left by the testator, but only so much of it "as will remain," after the death of the widows, the natural inference is that an absolute power of alienation was intended to be conferred on the widows. The view we take is in accordance with that taken in the cases of Lalit Mohan Singh v. Chukkun Lal Roy (1), Lala Ramjiwan v. Dalkoer (2), and Rajnarain Bhaduri v. Katyayani Debi (3).

SARODA SUNDARI DASSI v. KRISTO JIBAN PAL.

The result is that the decree of the lower Appellate Court must be set aside and that of the first Court restored with costs in this Court and in the Court of Appeal below.

Appeal allowed.

H. P. C.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1384 of 1898.

UMESH CHUNDER DEY

and others, Plaintiffs,

GHOSE, J.

Appellants,

PRATT, J.

v.

1901.

SHARDESSUR CHUNDER

8, January.

[and another, Defendants, Respondents.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Res judicata.

(1) 1 C. W. N. 387 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 534 (1898).

(2) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 406 (1898).

(3) 4 C. W. N. 337 (1900).

Where a certain matter was not really dealt with and decided in a previous suit although an issue was raised in regard to that matter, a subsequent suit involving the same matter would not be barred by reason of the previous suit.

This was an appeal preferred on the 18th of July 1898, against a decision of H. R. H. Coxe, Esq., District Judge of Midnapur, dated the 25th of April 1898, confirming a decree of Babu Girish Chunder Chowdhury, Subordinate Judge of that district, dated the 17th of June 1897.

This was a suit for an account of a certain business from the Defendant who was alleged to be the servant of the Plaintiff and for the recovery of what might be found due from him on the taking of such accounts. The Plaintiff also claimed to recover the outstandings of such business on the ground that there was a contract between the parties under which the Defendant was liable to pay the same to the Plaintiff with liberty to collect them himself afterwards.

It appears that the Plaintiff had previously brought a suit against the Defendant, in which he had alleged that the Defendant had entered into an agreement with him to carry on certain business in copartnership; that in terms of the said agreement, the Plaintiff was to supply the capital and the Defendant to manage the same and that the profits were to be divided in equal shares between the two partners. He further alleged that according to the agreement, when the business was wound up, the sums due from the debtors to the business should be included in the share of the profits found to be due to the UMESH CHUNDER DEX v. SHARDESSUR CHUNDER.

Defendant; he prayed that the partnership business might be wound up, that an account may be taken of the partnership business on the footing of the said agreement and that the Defendant might be ordered to pay to him what might be found due to him on the taking of such accounts. The Defendant denied that he was a partner in the business which he had been managing: he said that he had been managing the business, not as a partner, but as an agent of the Plaintiff and he also raised an issue as to the terms of the contract which was entered into between the parties at the time when the business was set up. The issues framed in that case will be found set out in their Lordships' judgment below. The Subordinate Judge found that there was no agreement by which the Defendant had agreed to take over all the outstanding balances, and that the Defendant was a servant or agent and not a partner and he dismissed the suit. It was argued before him that even if the Defendant be found to be a servant, he was liable to render an account to the Plaintiff and the suit should not, therefore, be dismissed. But the Subordinate Judge refused to order an account against the Defendant as a servant on the ground that the Plaintiff could not be allowed to change the character of his suit. He did not deal with any of the other issues raised by him. The present suit was dismissed on the ground that it was res judicata by reason of the judgment in the previous suit.

Babus Lal Mohan Das and Sarat Chunder Dutt for the Appellant.

Dr. Anutosh Mukerjee and Babu Joy Gopal Ghose for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This appeal arises out of a suit for an account and for recovery of such sums of money as upon the taking of such account may be found due to the Plaintiff from the Defendant, the latter being regarded as the Plaintiff's servant.

The suit has been dismissed by both the Courts below upon the ground that it is barred by res judicata by reason of a previous judgment between the parties. That judgment was, however, passed in a suit in which the Plaintiff claimed, in the first place, the winding up of a partnership business, the Defendant being regarded as a co-partner in the business, which was being managed by him; in the second place, for an account being taken from the Defendant, he being regarded as the managing partner; and in the third place, for the recovery of such sums of money as might upon the taking of an account from the Defendant be found due to the Plaintiff. The Defendant denied that he was ever a partner in the business which he had been managing: he said that he had been managing it not as a partner, but as an agent of the Plaintiff, and he also raised an issue as to the terms of the contract which was entered into between the parties at the time when the business was set up.

The Subordinate Judge, who had to deal with that case in the first instance, laid down the following issues:—

"First—Whether the Plaintiff and Defendant were members of a partnership? If so, what were the terms of the contract of the partnership business, and whether the plaint has been properly drawn up?

UMESH CHUNDER DEY v SHARBESSUR CHUNDER.

"Second—Whether the Defendant is liable to the Plaintiff for accounts?

"Third—Whether the Defendant was the Plaintiff's servant remunerated by a share in the profits?

"Fourth—What payments, if any, have been made by the Defendant for which the Plaintiff has not given him credit?

"Sixth—What other relief is the Plaintiff entitled to?

"Seventh—Is the suit barred by limitation?"

The Subordinate Judge, however, as we understand his judgment, confined his attention to the first of these issues, and he held that the Plaintiff and Defendant were not partners, and that one of the terms of the contract between the parties was not, as it was alleged by the Plaintiff, that the Defendant should take over, at the time of the dissolution of the partnership business, all the outstandings; and being of opinion that the Defendant could not be sued in the capacity of a partner, he dismissed the suit.

It would appear that at the conclusion of the trial the Plaintiff asked that an account might be decreed against the Defendant, he being treated as a servant which he alleged himself to be. With reference to this matter the Subordinate Judge made the following observations:—

"It was argued that the Defendant would be liable to render accounts to the Plaintiff even if he be a servant instead of a partner, and that consequently the suit should not be dismissed. But the Plaintiff cannot be allowed to change the character of his suit or to succeed upon a case different from the one stated in his plaint. The observations made in the case of Ramdoyal v. Junmejoy (1) show that such a course would be very unusual. Sec. 53 of the Civil Procedure Code prohibits the amending of a plaint so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of another and inconsistent character."

So that it is perfectly clear that the Subordinate Judge meant to deal with the first issue only and not with any of the other issues raised in the case between the parties, he being of opinion, as just shown, that to regard the Defendant as a servant and to call upon him to render an account in that capacity would be to convert a suit of one character into a suit of a wholly different character.

The whole question raised in this appeal, to our minds, turns upon the consideration of the question, what was the true subject-matter of the previous suit, and what is the subject-matter of the present suit. Now the true subject-matter of the previous suit was, as we understand it, the winding up of the partnership business, though the suit was composed, as it were, of three different component parts; the first being the dissolution of the partnership business, the second the calling upon the Defendant for an account in respect of such partnership business, and the third being the recovery from the Defendant of such sums of money as upon the taking of account might be found due to the plaintiff. Now, it is quite clear that it is the first component part which was dealt with by the Subordinate Judge in that suit; and if that is so, it can hardly be said that the matter involved in the present suit was really dealt with and decided in the previous suit.

UMESH CHUNDER DEY v. SHARBESSOR CHUNDER.

We think, upon these grounds, the judgments of the Courts below, as they stand, cannot be supported; and the case should be sent back to the Court of first instance for trial upon the merits. But it should be understood, and in this respect the learned vakil for the Appellants concedes in favour of his adversary, that it must be taken, that it was found in the previous suit, that one of the terms of the contract which was entered into between the parties at the time when the business was set up, was not, as alleged by the Plaintiff, that the Defendant should, upon the closing of the business, take over all the outstandings. So far as this matter is concerned, it must be taken to be finally concluded by the judgment in the previous suit.

The Appellants are entitled to their costs in this Court and in the lower Appellate Court, the costs of the Court of first instance will abide the result. The Court-fee paid upon the appeal to this Court will be refunded to the Appellants.

S. R. D. Case remanded.

S. C. S. *

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 6 OF 1900.

RAJAH SOURINDRA

MOHAN TAGORE,

Defendant, Appellant,

v.

RANI SHIROMONI

| and others, Petitioners,

Respondents.

RAMPINI, J.

PRATT, J.

1900.

9, August.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 372—Appeal—Substitution of proprietors

after discharge of an encumbered estate—Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act (VI of 1876, B. C.).

An appeal lies against an order directing substitution of parties under sec. 372, C. P. C.; such an order amounts to an order disallowing objections to substitution.

In a case where the suit was brought by a manager appointed under the Encumbered Estates Act (Act VI of 1876), the proprietors of the estate are entitled to be substituted on the record after the discharge of the manager whose interest devolves upon them within the meaning of sec. 372 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

This was an appeal preferred on the 3rd of January 1900, against the order of Babu Triguna Prasanna Basu, Subordinate Judge of Zillah Bankura, dated the 26th of September 1899.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

On the case coming on for hearing, a preliminary objection was taken by Babu Digambar Chatterjee on behalf of the Respondents that no appeal lay in this case. Sec. 588, cl. 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure allowed an appeal only against orders disallowing objections under sec. 372 and no appeal was provided for against orders for substitution under sec. 372.

Dr. Rash Behary Ghose (with him Babus Lal Mohan Dass and Charu Chunder Ghose) for the Appellant.—I submit there is an appeal in the present case. We objected to the substitution of the Ranis under sec. 372 and the lower Court overruling our objections ordered the substitution of the Ranis. I am appealing therefore against the order of the lower Court disallowing my objections to the substitution of the Ranis under sec. 372, C. P. C. As regards the merits, I contend in the first place that no such substitution as has been ordered in the present case could take place. It may be that so long as the estate was under the charge of a manager appointed under the Encumbered Estates Act (Act VI of 1876) the manager was alone competent to sue. His position was only analogous to the case of an agent of the party entitled. See Kerr on Receivers, pp. 153, 157, and Wilkinson v. Gangadhar (1). But in order that the Ranis can sustain a claim for substitution in the place of the manager it must be made out that there has been a "devolution of interest" upon them as contemplated in sec. 372, C. P. C. The words "devolution of interest" have acquired a fixed meaning, and the cases in England show that they apply to cases of devolution of interest by death, see the cases collected in the Annual Practice, p. 216. [RAMPINI, J.—The Code of Civil Procedure does not prevail in England and we can only interpret the terms of sec. 372 as we find them.] Where the words in the Code of Civil Procedure and in the English Statute are identical, I submit that the Courts in India would, in the absence of a decided case on the point, naturally hesitate before refusing to accept the interpretation which has been put upon them in the English Courts. Secondly, I contend that the Privy Council having directed the manager to continue in his office, the order directing the substitution of the Ranis was clearly erroneous, and lastly, it is submitted that the Appellant having purchased the interests of the Ranis, no substitution could take place.

RAJAH SOURINDRA MOHAN TAGORE v. RANI SHIROMONI.

(1) 6 B. L. R. 486 (1871).

Babu Digambar Chatterjee (with him Babu Joy Gopal Ghosha) for the Respondents.—The manager having been discharged there was a devolution of interests upon the Ranis within the meaning of sec. 372 of the Code of Civil Procedure and the order of their Lordships of the Privy Council directing the manager to continue in his office not having been filed in the present record it could not be operative.

Dr. Rash Behary Ghose in reply.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT WAS AS FOLLOWS:—

This is an appeal against an order of the Subordinate Judge of Bankura, dated the 26th of September 1899.

The facts of this case are these:—A suit for arrears of rent was brought by one Bishnu Churn Kabiraj, the manager of the Dholbhoom Encumbered Estate, against the Defendant, Rajah Sir Sourindra Mohan Tagore. During the pendency of the suit the estate in question was released from the management of Babu Bishnu Churn Kabiraj; and an order was passed by the Deputy Commissioner, directing the proprietor of the property to take over charge of it. The question then arose as to who was to carry on the suit against Rajah Sir Sourindra Mohan Tagore. The Ranis of Rajah Ram Chunder Deo and Dhubal Deo applied to be made Plaintiffs under sec. 372; and an order was passed to that effect by the Subordinate Judge.

The Defendant, Rajah Sir Sourindra Mohan Tagore, now appeals to this Court and contends that the Subordinate Judge was not right in disallowing his objections to the substitution of the Ranis as Plaintiffs in this suit.

RAJAH SOURINDRA MOHAN TAGORE v. RANI SHIROMONI.

A preliminary objection has been taken to the hearing of this appeal on the ground that there is no appeal from an order passed under sec. 372 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that the provisions of sec. 588, cl. 21, C. P. C., only allow an appeal against an order disallowing objections. That may be so. But we think that the order of the Subordinate Judge disallowing the objections is practically the same as his order substituting the Ranis as Plaintiffs; and therefore we do not think that the Appellant is prevented from appealing to this Court by the somewhat ambiguous terms of cl. 21 of sec. 588, C. P. C.

Three pleas have been urged by the learned pleader for the Appellant (1) that the provisions of sec. 372, C. P. C., are not applicable to the facts of this case; (2) that there is a Privy Council order directing that the manager of the Dholbhoom Encumbered Estate should continue in the management of the estate; and (3) that Rajah Sourindra Mohan Tagore purchased the interests of the three Ranis and therefore the suit cannot proceed at their instance.

As to the first of these contentions we would say that we think that the provisions of sec. 372, C. P. C., are applicable to this case. It is true that there has been no assignment of interest. But it appears to me that there has been a devolution of interest pending the suit. Under the provisions of sec. 16 of Act VI of 1876, so long as the property remains under the management of the manager the proprietor cannot sue or recover rents. The manager only can do so; and now that the manager has been removed, it seems to us that there has been a devolution of the right to realize and recover rents from the manager to the proprietor of the estate.

The learned pleader for the Respondent argues that the words "devolution of interest" in sec. 372, C. P. C., apply to devolution of interest by death; and he cites some English cases to show that this is the interpretation put in England upon these words. But the Code of Civil Procedure does not prevail in England; and we must interpret its terms as best we may without reference to English cases. In our opinion the words "devolution of interest" in sec. 372 are not used in a technical sense; because the latter part of the section speaks of such interest coming to a person, "either in addition to or in substitution for the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require." From the use of the word "come" in the latter part of the section, it would appear that the words "devolution of interest" in the first part of the section do not mean only devolution by death.

Then, with regard to the second contention of the learned pleader for the Appellant, it appears that the Subordinate Judge in his judgment says that their Lordships of the Privy Council have by an interlocutory order passed in the case of Mohesh Chunder Dhal v. Sutrugan Dhal (2) directed that the Dholbhoom estate should continue to be under the management of the manager. But we do not think that we are entitled to refer to the Calcutta Weekly Notes for such an order, or to take cognizance of such an order as is said to have been passed, on the report of the Calcutta

RAJAH SOURINDRA MOHAN TAGORE v. RANI SHIROMONI.

Weekly Notes. No copy of any such order has been filed in the record: and we cannot act upon the order unless it is so filed. We are entitled to refer to reports of cases as precedents; but if an order is meant to be operative in a particular case, that order must be produced and filed in the record of that case.

Then, with regard to the Appellant's third plea it appears to us that the Subordinate Judge has only made the three Ranis provisional Plaintiffs. For he has, subsequent to the order making the Ranis Plaintiffs, framed three issues in the case, which are to be found at page 20, of the paper-book of appeal from original order No. 348 of 1899. These are:—
 "Fifth, whether Rani Shiromoni has sold her rights to the Zemindari to the Defendant, and whether she is entitled to any one. Sixth, whether the suit can proceed at the instance of the other two Ranis. Seventh, whether the Ranis Padmabati and Churamoni have relinquished their rights to the Zemindari in favour of Rani Shiromoni, and whether the latter has sold the same to the Defendant."

Now, we do not understand that the Subordinate Judge has by his order meant to exclude the Defendant from giving evidence in support of these issues; and certainly the order of the Subordinate Judge must not be considered as having that effect. These issues must be tried in the course of the trial; and should it appear that the interest of the three Ranis has passed to the Defendant, their names must be removed from the category of Plaintiffs; or if the interest of any one of the Ranis has passed to the Defendant her name must be removed therefrom. In the meanwhile the order of the Subordinate Judge making the Ranis provisional Plaintiffs appears correct.

This appeal therefore fails and we dismiss it with costs, which we assess at five gold mohurs and which are to be divided equally between the two sets of Respondents.

C. C. G.

Appeal dismissed.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL

No. 28 of 1899.

RAJAH PEARY MOHUN
 MUKHERJEE, Plaintiff,
 (Appellant in second Appeal), Appellant,

MACLEAN, C. J.
 BANERJEE, J.

1900.

21, August.

BADAL CHUNDER BAGDI
 and others, Defendants,
 (Respondents in second Appeal), Respondents.

*Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII* of 1885), secs. 22 (1), 85, 167—Purchase of a raiyati holding by a landlord in execution of a decree for rent—Annulment of incumbrance—Notice, if necessary.*

An under-raiyati lease if created by an instrument which is not registered is invalid under sec. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and a landlord purchasing the holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to take khas possession by ejecting such under-raiyat without annulling the same by a notice under sec. 167. The rights under such an under-raiyati lease are not protected by sub-sec. 1 of sec. 22 of the Act.

This was an appeal preferred on the 28th of April 1898, against the decree of the Hon'ble Charles Henry Hill, one of the Judges of this Court, dated the

RAJAH PEARY MOHAN MUKHERJEE v. BADAL CHUNDER BAGDI.

29th of March 1899, in Appeal from Appellate Decree No. 420 of 1898, against the decree of Babu Abinash Chunder Mitter, Sub-Judge, 2nd Court, of Zillah Hooghly, dated the 12th of January 1898, affirming the decree of Babu Nalini Nath Mitter, Munsif, 1st Court, of Howrah, dated the 31st of March 1897.

This was a suit to obtain khas possession of some land. The Plaintiff alleged that it formed part of an occupancy holding of a tenant under him, that it had been sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent and had been purchased by him. The Defendant claimed to be an under-raiyat under the Plaintiff's tenant. The lease by which the Defendant had acquired the under-raiyati interest was not a registered document. The Plaintiff also had not given notice of annulment under sec. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Babu Shyama Prosonno Majumdar for the Appellant.

Babu Boido Nath Dutt for the Respondent.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

BANERJEE, J.—This is an appeal under sec. 15 of the Letters Patent against a decision of Mr. Justice Hill confirming the judgments of the Courts below by which the Plaintiff's suit for khas possession of some land has been dismissed. The Plaintiff sued for khas possession of the land in dispute on the allegation that it formed part of the occupancy holding of one Mohesh Chunder Ghose under the Plaintiff, that that holding having been sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, was purchased by the Plaintiff, and that the Plaintiff was entitled to khas possession of the land as the Defendant had no right to the same.

The defence, so far as it is necessary to consider it now, was that the land was held by the Defendant as an under-raiyat under Mohesh, and that the Defendant had acquired a right of occupancy in the same.

Both the first Court and the learned Subordinate Judge, on appeal, held that the suit was liable to dismissal, as the Plaintiff, even if he was entitled to set aside the undertenancy of the Defendant, could not succeed in this suit, as he did not proceed in accordance with the provisions of sec. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act; and Mr. Justice Hill has confirmed their judgments, holding that though, by sec. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the sub-lease granted by Mohesh to the Defendant was invalid, and though by sec. 22 of the Act, upon the purchase of the occupancy holding by the Plaintiff, who was the sole landlord, the occupancy holding became merged in the Plaintiff's Zemindari right, still such merger could not affect the rights of the Defendant, and that it was therefore necessary for the Plaintiff, if he wanted to annul those rights, to proceed in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Bengal Tenancy Act.

It is contended on behalf of the Plaintiff-Appellant, that this view is incorrect, and that the effect of sec. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is to make the sub-letting, which was otherwise than by a registered instrument and was without the landlord's consent, altogether invalid as against the landlord, and if that was so there were no rights in the sub-lease, as such, which could come within the reservation contained in the concluding words of sub-sec. 1 of sec. 22 of the Act.

RAJAH PEARY MOHAN MUKHERJEE v. BADAL CHUNDER BAGDI.

I am of opinion that this contention is sound. It is true that sub-sec. 1 of sec. 22 concludes with these words:—“nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third party;” but that can only mean rights such as are valid. Here, the right which it is contended was protected by that provision, is expressly declared by sec. 85 of the Act to be invalid as against the landlord. Therefore we must hold that there was no right in the sub-lease, as such, which could have subsisted, and which can stand in the way of the landlord recovering his possession. The necessity of following the procedure prescribed by sec. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act for annulling an incumbrance arises only where the incumbrance is a subsisting one, and, but for the annulment which that section contemplates by the purchaser at a sale for arrears of rent, would be valid. Here, the sub-lease which would otherwise have come within the definition of an incumbrance, was invalid from the beginning as against the landlord; and for the landlord it was not necessary to annul that which was never operative against him. If a third party had purchased the right of occupancy at the sale for arrears of rent, it would have been necessary for such third party to follow the procedure prescribed by sec. 167 of the Tenancy Act. I am therefore of opinion that the decision appealed against must be reversed.

But then it is contended for the Defendant-Respondent, that, in addition to his right under the sub-lease, he set up a right of occupancy which he alleged he had acquired, and which an under-raiyat may acquire, having regard to the provisions of sec. 183 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, as explained by illustration 2 to that section; and as the Courts below have not, in the view they took of the case, thought it necessary to determine the question whether the Defendant has acquired such a right of occupancy, the case ought to be remanded to the Court of first instance in order that that question may be decided. We think that effect ought to be given to this contention on behalf of the Respondent. The result is that the judgments and decrees appealed against must be set aside and the case sent back to the first Court in order that it may determine the question whether the Defendant has acquired a right of occupancy. The parties will be at liberty to adduce fresh evidence upon that question. The costs will abide the result.

MACLEAN, C. J.—I have only one word to add. The appeal might, to my mind, be disposed of upon this short ground:—It is clear that the Defendant was claiming as a sub-lessee, not as an occupancy raiyat; but as the instrument creating the sub-tenancy was not registered, it was not valid under sec. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act as against the landlord. That ought to end the case. Then it is said that, inasmuch as, here, the interest of the landlord and of his tenant became united in the same person, viz., the superior landlord, the Defendants' rights are saved under sec. 22 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The answer is that he had no rights, and there was nothing to be saved.

Appeal allowed: Case remanded.

S. C. S.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SMALL CAUSE COURT TRANSFER

: SUIT No. 14 OF 1900.

STANLEY, J.	}	BHUPUTRAM and aurs.,
1900.		v.
21, December.		HARI PRIO COACH and ors.

Hundi—Shahjoge hundi—Endorsee for realization—Endorsement, effect of such—Maintainability of a suit by such endorsee for realization—Delivery, title by—Negligence—Payment to wrong person—Forged signature—Hundi made over to servant for realization, effect of—Estoppel.

A hundi payable to shajoge (to the respectable holder) was endorsed by the drawer "hundi sent for realization by (A (drawer) to B of Calcutta (Plaintiffs)," and sent by him to the Plaintiffs. The Plaintiffs handed the hundi to one S, the Plaintiffs' jemadar, who had been in the habit of taking hundis on their behalf for acceptance and payment, to be taken by him to the Defendants for acceptance. S took the hundi to the Defendants but subsequently, one R, who had no authority from the Plaintiffs to receive payment, acting on information either from S or some other source, represented himself to the Defendants as a jemadar of the Plaintiffs, wrongfully obtained the hundi from the Defendants, forged the Plaintiffs' signature to it and obtained payment. The Defendants, before such payment, had made no enquiries as to the position or respectability of R and paid the hundi on the faith of the forged signature :

Held—That such an endorsement coupled with the delivery of the hundi entitles the Plaintiffs to sue for and receive payment of the hundi from the acceptors, though as between the drawer and the Plaintiffs the latter are mere agents or parties with a defeasible title.

Such an endorsement is in the nature of a restrictive endorsement, giving the endorsee the right to receive payment of the hundi and if necessary to sue the acceptor for the amount, but not to transfer his rights as endorsee to anybody else ; any defence which would be available to the acceptor against the drawer would be available against the endorsee.

A hundi payable shajoge is only payable to the respectable holder and is not the same as a hundi payable to bearer.

THAKURDASS P. FUTTEH MULL (1) referred to.

The hundi continued to be shajoge even after such endorsement.

GONES DASS v. LUCHMI NARAYAN (3) referred to.

That the Plaintiffs are entitled to claim the amount of the hundi from the Defendants, unless they were guilty of such negligence or carelessness as would estop them from disputing the validity of the payment to R.

That even if S colluded with R and fraudulently obtained payment from Defendants, there was no negligence on the part of the Plaintiffs in entrusting the hundi to S. Even if such an act was negligent, the negligence was not so immediately conducive to the payment of the hundi as to estop the Plaintiffs from saying that R had no authority from them to receive payment and that the payment has not been made to them.

ROBERTS v. TUCKER (4), BANK OF IRELAND v. TRUSTEES OF EVANS CHARITIES

(1) 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871).

(3) I. L. R. 18 Bom. 570 (1893).

(4) 16 Ad. and El. p. 580 (1851).

BEHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

IN IRELAND (5), ARNOLD v. THE CHEQUE BANK (6), MAYOR, ETC., MERCHANTS OF THE STAPLE OF ENGLAND v. BANK OF ENGLAND (7), and BANK OF ENGLAND v. VAGLIANO BROS. (8) referred to.

Quære—Whether such a hundi would not, before acceptance, pass merely by delivery to a respectable holder.

GOURSIMULL v. DHANSUK DAS (2) and THAKURDASS v. FUTTEH MULL (1) referred to.

This was a suit for the recovery of a sum of Rs. 1,150, being the amount of a hundi drawn by one Gitaram Issuri Persad on the Defendants' firm of Sristidhur Coach, and endorsed over by the drawer in favour of the Plaintiffs for realization. The hundi was in the following terms:—"This auspicious letter is written to Bhai Babu Sristidhur Coach of the good and prosperous place Calcutta from Ooroya by Gitaram Issuri Persad whose salutations please accept. Further we draw upon you 1 hundi for Rs. 1,150, (in letters eleven hundred and fifty), half of which is five hundred and seventy-five, full double whereof is to be paid in favour of ourselves here miti 14th of the dark side of the moon in Pous. Pay at sight (lit. on arrival) the value (thereof) shahjoge (to the respectable holder) in company's coin, after making due inquiries as usual in hundi transactions. Hundi drawn on miti 14th of the dark side in Pous, Sumbut year 1956." On the hundi was the following endorsement by the drawer, viz., "Hundi sent for realization by Gitaram Issuri Persad to Bhai Binjram Bhupatram of Calcutta."

The allegations and contentions of the parties will be found fully stated in the judgment.

Mr. S. P. Sinha and Mr. J. G. Woodroffe for the Plaintiffs.

Mr. Garth, Mr. Chakravarti and Mr. Knight for the Defendants.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

STANLEY, J.—This action was brought in the Small Cause Court to recover the sum of Rs. 1,150, being the amount of a hundi drawn by the Defendant Gitaram Issuri Persad on the Defendants' firm of Sristidhur Coach and alleged to have been endorsed over to the Plaintiffs for collection, as also interest due thereon. Upon the application of the Defendants, Hari Prio Coach, Suttya Prio Coach and Dharino Prio Coach, who are the members of the firm of Sristidhur Coach the action was transferred to the High Court under the provisions of sec. 39 of Act I of 1895.

The Plaintiffs' cause of action as stated in the Small Cause Court is as follows:—They allege that Gitaram Issuri Persad drew the hundi the subject-matter of this suit on Sristidhur Coach payable to themselves at sight which they despatched to the Plaintiffs in account with them; that the hundi was sent by the Plaintiffs to the firm of Sristidhur Coach for acceptance in the usual way by their jemadar Sahadeb on the 2nd of January 1900; that the hundi not having been returned to the Plaintiffs accepted, Sahadeb was sent to enquire why the

(1) 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871).

(2) 7 B. L. R. 289 foot-note (1865).

(5) 5 H. L. Cas. 389 (1855).

(6) 1 C. P. D. 578 (1876).

(7) 21 Q. B. D. 160 (1887).

(8) L. R. (1891) App. Cas. 107.

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

hundi had not been returned accepted and also to get the same back accepted; and that the Defendants' firm informed Sahadeb that the hundi had been paid to a person who had called for such payment and the Defendants declined to pay the amount of the hundi or to return the hundi to the Plaintiffs.

The Defendant Issuri Persad filed a written statement in which he admits the drawing of the hundi and sending of the same duly endorsed to the Plaintiffs in order that the amount of it might be credited to his account with the Plaintiffs. He alleges that the Plaintiffs have refused to credit him with the amount of the hundi. He submits that the Plaintiffs have no cause of action against him and that the suit should be dismissed as against him with costs.

The Defendants, Hari Prio Coach, Suttia Prio Coach and Dharmo Prio Coach, filed their petition for transfer of the action to the High Court on the 9th of March 1900. In the petition they allege that they in the usual course of business paid the hundi in full to one Rampal whom they describe as the jemadar, Rampal who presented the hundi for payment. Further in the 6th paragraph of the petition they deny liability to the Plaintiffs "inasmuch as they say the claim of the Plaintiffs has been satisfied."

When the case was opened by the Plaintiffs' counsel, counsel on behalf of the Defendant Gitaram Issuri Persad contended that there was no issue raised in the pleadings in which his client had any interest and that the action should be dismissed as against him. The other Defendants acquiesced in this view and the Plaintiffs' counsel not raising any objection, I at this stage, with a view to saving unnecessary costs, dismissed the action as against Gitaram Issuri Persad. I shall hereafter describe the other Defendants as the Defendants. The hundi is in the following terms:—"This auspicious letter is written to Bhai Babu Sristidhur Coach of the good and prosperous place Calcutta from Ooroya by Gitaram Issuri Persad whose salutations please accept. Further we draw upon you 1 hundi for Rs. 1,150, (in letters eleven hundred and fifty), half of which is five hundred and seventy-five, full double whereof is to be paid in favour of ourselves. Here miti 14th of the dark side in Pous. Pay at sight (lit. on arrival) the value (thereof) shahjoge (to the respectable holder) in company's coin after making due enquiries as usual in hundi transactions. Hundi drawn on miti 14 of the dark side in Pous, Sumbut year 1956."

It has on it the following endorsement in the handwriting of Gitaram Issuri Persad, viz., "Hundi sent for realization by Gitaram Issuri Persad to Bhai Binraj Bhupatram of Calcutta." There is also endorsed upon it the acceptance of Sristidhur Coach under date the 20th of Pous 1306 and underneath the acceptance the signature "Binraj Bhuputram," also over a receipt stamp written "Received in full Rampul Ram." The signature Binraj Bhuputram is a forgery.

There was no jemadar of the name of Rampal in the employ of the Plaintiffs and the person to whom payment was made is entirely unknown to the Plaintiffs and was in no way authorised by them to receive payment. According to the

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

Plaintiffs' case the hundi was delivered by them to their jemadar one Sahadeb for presentation for acceptance to the Defendants and was left with the Defendants for acceptance by Sahadeb on the same day. On the following day Sahadeb by direction of the Plaintiffs went to the Defendants' guddi in order to obtain the hundi accepted when he was informed that it had already been paid.

There appears to be no doubt but that the Defendants paid the amount of the hundi to the man who described himself as Rampul but what has become of the money or of Rampul there is no evidence. The question now is upon whom the loss is to fall.

In addition to the defence of the Defendants that they have paid the hundi the Defendants' counsel at the hearing raised a defence on a point of law. They submit that the Plaintiffs are merely the agents of the drawer and cannot sue in their own names; that the endorsement made upon the hundi by the drawers, viz., "Hundi sent for realization by Gitaram Issuri Persad to Bhai Binraj Bhuputram of Calcutta" coupled with the delivery of the hundi by the drawer to the Plaintiffs does not entitle the Plaintiffs to maintain the action. The endorsement is, as I have said, in the handwriting of Gitaram Issuri Persad and undoubtedly was written with the object of enabling the endorsees to enforce payment of the hundi. Is then such an endorsement followed by delivery of the hundi sufficient to entitle the endorsees to maintain an action in their own name for recovery of the amount of the hundi?

Is the endorsement on and delivery of the hundi to the Plaintiffs a valid endorsement as against the acceptor? As between the drawer and the Plaintiffs the Plaintiffs are no doubt mere agents or parties with a defeasible title but does not the delivery of the hundi to the Plaintiffs coupled with the endorsement entitle the Plaintiffs to sue for and recover payment of the hundi from the acceptors?

Now in the first place I may observe that the Defendants themselves treated the Plaintiffs as the legal holders of the hundi for they accepted the hundi on presentation by the Plaintiffs and their case on the merits is that they paid the amount of it to the Plaintiffs; for this is the only construction which I am able to place on the language of their defence in which they state that they have in the usual course of business paid the hundi in full to the jemadar Rampul who presented the hundi for payment and follow this up by denying liability to the Plaintiffs inasmuch as the claim of the Plaintiffs has been satisfied.

The intention of the drawer in making the endorsement and delivering the hundi to the Plaintiffs was clearly to pass the right of dealing with the hundi to the Plaintiffs. The drawer in his written statement alleges that he sent the hundi duly endorsed to the Plaintiffs in order that the amount of it might be credited to his account with the Plaintiffs. The endorsement appears to me to be in the nature of a restrictive endorsement giving the endorsee the right to receive payment of the hundi and if necessary to sue the acceptor for the amount but not to transfer his rights as endorsee to anybody else.

In the case of such an endorsement:

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

any defence no doubt which would be available to the acceptor against the drawer would be available also against the endorsee. There is however no such defence here suggested.

In the case of Thakurdas v. Futteh Mull (1) the effect of a similar endorsement was considered by the Appellate Court. There the following endorsement was on the hundi, viz., "Hundi sold by Duberam Amir Chand to Bhai Muta-ulla Mull Thakur Dass." "Hundi sent by Muta-ulla Mull Thakur Dass to Bhai Urjun Das Hazari Mull for realization."

In delivering the judgment of the Court, upholding the endorsement as a good special endorsement of the hundi, Phear, J., says, at p. 303, "Returning then to the case before us, it seems to me that, in considering the right to a hundi, we are as much bound to put a reasonable construction upon the words of an endorsement or an acceptance as upon any other part of the document; and when a hundi-maker or rightful owner of a hundi payable in terms to the shajog, endorses it as sold or sent to A, he obviously means to pass the right of dealing with the hundi to A alone."

It may be open to doubt whether a hundi such as the hundi in question in this suit would not pass, at all events before acceptance, by delivery merely to a respectable holder. In the case of Goursimull and another v. Dhansuk Das and another (2), reported in the notes to Thakurdas v. Futteh Mull (1), Sir Barnes Peacock, C. J., expressed an opinion that the hundi in that case would pass at any rate prior to acceptance by delivery. The facts of that case were shortly as follows:—The Plaintiffs being holders of a hundi sent it to their kuti in Calcutta without endorsement. The hundi was lost or stolen on the way and came into the Defendants' hands as endorsees, the endorsement of the Plaintiffs having been forged. The Defendants without notice of the forgery paid full consideration for the hundi. It was held on appeal, reversing the decision of the Court below, that the Plaintiffs were not entitled to recover the hundi from the Defendants. It does not appear from the report of this case whether or not the hundi was a shahjoge hundi but the Court appears to have stated as its opinion that a hundi payable to shahjoge would pass by delivery merely, without regard to the authenticity or otherwise of any special or restrictive endorsement which might be upon it. In the case of Thakurdas v. Futteh Mull (1), to which I have already referred, the dictum of Sir Barnes Peacock, C. J., to which I have alluded was relied on by the Defendants' counsel, but the Court said that it was not clear how that expression of opinion was pertinent to the case before the Court and that it supposed that the Court never meant to lay down that under the Hindu law every one who took the hundi even though he obtained it by fraud would be treated as a shahjoge.

In the case of Gones Dass Ram Narayan and others. v. Luchmi Narayan and others (3) the nature of a hundi payable to a shahjoge was considered.

(1) 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871).

(2) 7 B. L. R. 289 foot-note (1865).

(1) 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871).

(3) I. L. R. 18 Bom. 570 (1893).

BEUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

There the Plaintiffs having bought at Sholapur a shahjoge hundi drawn upon the Defendants at Bombay endorsed it to Ramrukh Ramkissen and sent it by post to him for collections. It was stolen in the course of transmission and the name of Ramrukh Ramkissen was expunged and another name, that of Dwarkidas Lalji, was substituted. The hundi was presented for payment to the Defendants in Bombay by a person giving his name as Dwarkidas Lalji and the Defendants paid it without enquiring as to the responsibility or position of the person to whom they paid it. It was held that the Defendants were guilty of conversion of the hundi and were liable to the Plaintiffs the lawful holder in trover and it was further held that the hundi continued to be shahjoge after being endorsed to a particular person.

The Plaintiffs in the case before me are admittedly a respectable and well-known firm in Calcutta. To them the hundi was admittedly delivered by the drawer. If a shahjoge hundi passes by delivery alone the Plaintiffs were unquestionably the holders of the hundi and as such would be entitled to sue. The endorsement in their favour strengthens their position.

The Defendants have neglected the directions contained in the hundi to pay to the shahjoge and have paid the amount of the hundi to a person who was not shahjoge and who had no authority whatever from the Plaintiffs to receive payment. They made no enquiry whatever as to the position or respectability of Rampal and paid the hundi to him on the faith of the forged signature of the Plaintiffs. It seems to me that under these circumstances unless the Plaintiffs have been guilty of such negligence or carelessness in the transaction as would estop them from disputing the validity of the payment made to Rampal they are entitled to succeed in this action.

• As the respectable holders of the hundi, though no doubt only agents for collection, the Plaintiffs have in my opinion a right to maintain this action. There appears to me to be no substance in the point of law which has been raised at the trial, namely, that the Plaintiffs being merely agents for the drawer of the hundi are not entitled to maintain this action.

This question of the right of the Plaintiffs to sue was not raised by the Defendants in the petition which they filed. It is wholly inconsistent with their conduct in this transaction in accepting the hundi on presentation of it made by the Plaintiffs and with their defence that the Plaintiffs' claim had been satisfied. I do not question the right of the Defendants to rely at the trial upon any infirmity which might be discovered in the Plaintiffs' title but in the circumstances of this case if they intended to rely upon this point of law the Defendants ought in my opinion to have raised the question in their petition. It may probably be that the point was only discovered after the petition was filed. The defence which was filed forced the Plaintiffs to proceed with the action so as to have a determination of the issue raised by the Defendants, namely, whether or not the payment of the hundi made by the Defendants to Rampal was a good payment to the Plaintiffs. If payment was made to them as alleged by the

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

Defendants then the Plaintiffs would be liable to the drawer for the amount of the hundi and would be bound to credit the amount to him. If, on the other hand, the hundi was not paid it remained the duty of the Plaintiffs as endorsees for collection if not to enforce payment of the hundi at least to return the hundi to the drawer.

I come now to deal with what appears to me to be the substantial question in the case, namely, whether or not the payment of the hundi to Rampal operated as a discharge to the Defendants from all liability in respect of the hundi.

The hundi according to its tenor was payable at sight shahjoge (to the respectable holder) "after making due enquiries as usual in hundi transaction." A considerable amount of evidence was given on the part of both the Plaintiffs and the Defendants as to the practice prevailing in Calcutta in regard to the payment of hundis. The evidence was most discrepant. In fact it appeared to me that almost as many different practices prevailed as there were witnesses deposing to the practice.

One witness on the part of the Plaintiffs, namely, Buldeo Dass gave evidence to the effect that if the man who brings the hundi for acceptance and afterwards for payment be not known to the acceptors, the acceptors before payment require that the man who applies for payment shall be identified. Another of the Plaintiffs' witnesses, Ram Chandra, deposed that it is not the practice to accept shahjoge hundis if the person bringing it be not known to the acceptors. If the man bringing it be not known to the acceptors the acceptors send over a man of their firm to the payee's firm to see that the amount of the hundi is credited to them. But even if payment be made in the guddi of the acceptors' firm to a person who is unknown to the acceptors' firm that, this witness says, would be a good payment because a man from the acceptors' firm had been to the payee's firm with the accepted hundi.

On the part of the Defendants Bhuban Mohun Ghose who is employed in the Defendants' firm, deposed that if a man brings a hundi for acceptance from a firm well-known to the acceptors and the same man comes for payment no enquiry is usually made about the man. It is not usual with his firm, he said, to make enquiry and is not, he thinks, usual with many firms. If his firm have already received advice from their beparee of the drawing of hundi and the hundi is subsequently brought for acceptance from a firm of which his firm knew nothing he says that his firm make no enquiry; that it is usual to accept a hundi presented by a firm of whom his firm knew nothing at all if his firm have already received advice from their beparee of the drawing of the hundi. If they have not received such advice they keep back the acceptance until they have received advice. Various other practices were deposed to but it is not necessary for me, having regard to the view which I have formed in this case, to comment on them.

The hundi in this case was payable to the shahjoge. It was not paid to the Shah but to a person who had no connection in any way with the Shah. The position of Rampal was no better than that of a thief who had stolen this hundi. He had wrongfully got possession of it.

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

If a shahjoge hundi were hundi payable to bearer quite independently of the endorsements on it there would be much to be said in favour of the Defendants' contention that payment to Rampal was a good payment, but it appears to me impossible to hold that a hundi which is payable to the shahjoge is equivalent to a hundi payable to bearer. According to the tenor of the instrument such a hundi is only payable to the respectable holder.

In the case to which I have already referred, Thakurdas v. Futteh Mull (1), it was held that in the case of a hundi specially endorsed and especially accepted as was the hundi in the present case there was nothing to show that by Hindu law such a hundi would pass as one payable to the holder without endorsement. Phear, J., says in his judgment: — "It may well be that, according to Hindu customary law, A can transfer his right to a third person B by word of mouth or mere delivery, notwithstanding that the special endorsement to himself is in writing, but there is no evidence before us to suggest that, after the special endorsement to A, the hundi can be validly transferred to B otherwise than by A, or by A's authority. It seems to be only common sense that the term "shahjoog" should be subordinate to the directions of "the successive owners, and should mean the right men to be paid," according to the tenor of the document, which must include both the endorsement and acceptance. I certainly am not aware of any rule of Hindu law, customary or otherwise, which would have the effect of making the word "shahjoog" mean payable to bearer, quite independently of the endorsements. If there were such a rule in practice, endorsements would be useless, and would, I suppose, very soon be dropped altogether. Also, I know of no principle of mercantile expediency, having the force of law or otherwise, which would be served by our disregarding the direction of the endorser, and treating a specially-endorsed and specially-accepted hundi as if it were an English negotiable instrument made payable to bearer, and as such part of the currency of the country. On the contrary, as it appears to me, expediency is all the other way."

This seems to me to be a reasonable and correct view of the matter and I adopt it.

But it is contended on the part of the Defendants that the hundi was paid by them under circumstances which estop the Plaintiffs from denying that the payment made to Rampal operated as a valid payment to them; that there was such negligence on the part of the Plaintiffs in their dealing with the hundi as disentitles them to succeed in this action.

Let us see then what are the true facts connected with the payment of the hundi. The evidence on this head is conflicting. The Plaintiffs' case is that they sent their jemadar Sahadeb to the Defendants with the hundi for acceptance and that he according to the usual custom left it with the Defendants, that on the following day Sahadeb was again sent by the Plaintiffs to the Defendants to obtain a return of the hundi accepted

(1) 7 B. L. R. 275 (1871).

BHUPUTRAM v. ILARI PRIO COACH.

when he was informed that the amount of the hundi had already been paid ; that he returned to the Plaintiffs and informed them of this, whereupon Megraj the Plaintiffs' cashier and one Chuggan Mull who is the moonib gomastha of Teluck Chand Neem Chand, and in no way connected with the parties to this suit at the request of Senji Ram the Plaintiffs' gomastha went over to the Defendants' guddi and made enquiry as to the alleged payment. In the course of the interview it is said that Bhuban in reply to Chuggan Mull said he did not know the person to whom he had made payment and that Chuggan said if you did not know the man, why did you make payment to him. Bhuban said he was a tall dark man.* Chuggan said if you were making payment to a new man you ought to have sent a man of yours to Baijuath's guddi and made payment there ; they said we saw the hundi and made payment. *

After this interview on the same afternoon according to the Plaintiffs' case the Defendants' cashier Kailash Chandra Nandi and their moonib gomastha came over to the Plaintiffs' guddi to make enquiry as to the matter. The cashier said that he had made payment. He was asked if he had made payment to Sahadeb and on his replying in the negative all the employees of the Plaintiffs' firm were made to stand before him and he was asked if he had made the payment to any of them. He replied 'no.'

The Defendants deny that this meeting ever took place. According to them the incident is a pure fabrication.

The Plaintiffs' witnesses gave their evidence in a fair and straightforward way and I have no reason to think that they falsely concocted this evidence.

The Defendants' account of the matter is that the hundi was brought to the Defendants' firm for acceptance by a man who gave the name of Rampal and not by the Plaintiffs' jemadar Shahadeb ; that Bhuban Mohun Ghose asked "whose hundi is this ?" Rampal said "this hundi has come to Binraj Bhuputram. Bhuban then asked Rampal his name. He said Rampal. Bhuban then asked him from whose guddi he came. He said from Binraj Bhuputram.

The Defendants' witnesses say that the same man returned on the following day for payment of the hundi and that Bhuban asked him who he was when he replied Rampal a jemadar of Binraj Bhuputram and said that he came for payment of the hundi he had left the previous day ; that Bhuban thereupon accepted the hundi and gave it to Rampal and that Rampal went away and in about a quarter of an hour or half an hour returned with the hundi signed and asked for payment and payment was made and he went away ; that shortly after this Sahadeb the Plaintiffs' jemadar came to the Defendants' guddi and asked the question. 'Has the payment of our hundi been received ?' To which Bhuban replied "yes, your jemadar Rampal has taken the money away" and thereupon Sahadeb went away.

The evidence given by the parties as to the details of the transaction is, as I have said, conflicting. One or other party must be speaking what is false.

That the hundi was handed by the Plaintiffs to their jemadar Sahadeb to take to the Defendants' firm for acceptance, I have no doubt. Rampal was not in their service at all and was not known to the Plaintiffs and it is not likely that the Plaintiffs would have entrusted to a stranger a valuable document. If Rampal did present the hundi for acceptance I am satisfied that he did not obtain it from the Plaintiffs but that he got it in some improper way, it may be, from Sahadeb. It appears that Sahadeb left the service of the Plaintiffs a few months after this transaction and that he has been recently convicted of embezzling money from his employer. He is at present undergoing a sentence of two years' imprisonment in respect of this offence.

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

It does not appear to me to be a matter of much importance whether it was Sahadeb as it is alleged by the Plaintiffs or Rampal as is alleged by the Defendants who left the hundi with the Defendants for acceptance. I shall however deal with this matter.

Sahadeb has been examined and he states that the hundi was handed to him by Seuji Ram, the Plaintiffs' gomastha, and that he took it over to Bhuban Mohun Ghose. The following day he says that about 4 o'clock in the afternoon Seuji Ram asked him to get over the hundi and that he went to the Defendants' guddi for it when he was informed by Bhuban that he had already made payment. Sahadeb then returned to his masters' guddi and reported the matter.

The Defendants admit that Sahadeb came to their guddi on the day on which payment was made to Rampal but they say that he did not ask for payment of the hundi but simply made enquiry if the money had been paid. Why Sahadeb should come and make this enquiry it is difficult to see. If he, in league with Rampal, had set himself to embezzle the money and had handed over the hundi to Rampal for that purpose it is difficult to conceive that he would have gone to the Defendants' firm and have asked if the money had been paid or taken away. If he wished to allay suspicion as to his own guilt in the transaction his request would surely have been for a return of the hundi accepted by the Defendants. He would not stultify himself by asking if the hundi for payment of which he had come had already been paid. I am not disposed to believe this portion of the Defendants' evidence nor do I think that the evidence of the Defendants' witnesses that Rampal was the person who left the hundi for acceptance is reliable.

According to the evidence of the Defendant Hari Prio Coach, when Sahadeb went over to the Defendants' guddi in the company of Chugun Mull and Megraj, Sahadeb stated that he had left the hundi for acceptance. This accords with Sahadeb's evidence. Bhuban denies that there was any conversation about Sahadeb leaving the hundi for acceptance. Kailash Chandra Nandi, the Defendants' cashier, is silent as to this conversation. That it took place I have no doubt. Again Bhuban says that the name of the person who presents a hundi for acceptance to the Defendants' firm is generally entered in a book or written on a piece of challan paper, and kept with the hundi. He says that in this case the name of Rampal was written on a piece of challan paper. It would have been interesting to have seen this piece of paper but strange to say it is not forthcoming. Bhuban says that it was thrown away. This is a little remarkable. One would have expected that if there had been any memorandum made as to the person who left the hundi for acceptance it would under the circumstances have been carefully preserved. According to Bhuban it was thrown away. This witness as also Kailash Chandra Nandi deny that they went over to the Plaintiffs' guddi in reference to the payment of the hundi, but the evidence satisfies me that they did so.

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

Seuji Ram says that Bhuban came over to the Plaintiffs' guddi and asked if they had received payment of the hundi. On Seuji Ram saying "no," Bhuban desired him to report the matter to the local Thanna and to the Currency Office, but he declined saying that the Plaintiffs had not received payment and why should they do that. Seuji Ram is corroborated as to this interview by Megraj and by Ram Chunder, as well as by Sahadeb. The matter is not perhaps of much importance; it seems however to shew a disinclination on the part of Bhuban to the making of an admission of any matter which might suggest anxiety on his part as to the propriety of the payment made to Rampal.

The evidence given by Hari Prio Coach and the witnesses Bhuban Ghose and Kailash Chandra Nandi as to what occurred when the hundi was presented for acceptance and afterwards for payment did not seem to me to be altogether trustworthy. There was a sameness in the evidence of these witnesses which savoured as it seemed to me of tutoring.

The conclusion which I have come to upon the evidence is that the hundi was handed by the Plaintiffs to Sahadeb to be taken by him to the Defendants for acceptance and that Sahadeb did take it to the Defendants for acceptance; that subsequently acting on information either obtained from Sahadeb or from some other source Rampal by misrepresenting himself to be a jemadar of the Plaintiffs wrongfully obtained the hundi from the Defendants, forged the Plaintiffs' signature to it and obtained payment and disappeared with the money.

The question then is on which of the parties is the loss to fall. The hundi is a hundi payable to the respectable holder after making due enquiry. Was it paid by the Defendants to the Plaintiffs or if not actually paid to the Plaintiffs was it paid by the Defendants to Rampal under such circumstances as would stop the Plaintiffs from denying the validity of the payment. The hundi was undoubtedly not paid to the Plaintiffs. It was paid to a total stranger upon a forged signature of the Plaintiffs. Is there then an estoppel by negligence on the part of the Plaintiffs? Are the Plaintiffs through any negligence on their part precluded from setting up the forgery and want of authority of Rampal?

In the case of Robarts and ors. v. Tucker (4) in the Exchequer Chamber it was held that a banker cannot debit his customer with the payment made to one who claims through a forged endorsement and so cannot give a valid discharge for the Bill unless there be circumstances amounting to a direction from the customer to the bankers to pay the bill without reference to the genuineness of the endorsement or equivalent to an admission of its genuineness inducing the banker to alter his position so as to preclude the customer from showing that it was forged. In delivering the judgment of the Court Baron Parke says:—

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

“If this were the ordinary case of an acceptance made payable at bankers’, there can be no question that making the acceptance payable there is tantamount to an order, on the part of the acceptor, to the banker to pay the bill to the person who is according to the law merchant capable of giving a good discharge for the bill. Therefore, if the bill is payable to order, it is an authority to pay the bill to any person who becomes holder by a genuine endorsement. And, if the bill is originally payable to bearer, or if there is afterwards a genuine endorsement in blank, it is an authority to pay the bill to the person who seems to be the holder. The bankers cannot charge their customer with any other payments than those made in pursuance of that authority. If bankers wish to avoid the responsibility of deciding on the genuineness of endorsements, they may require their customers to domicile their bills at their own offices, and to honour them by giving a cheque upon the banker.”

In the case of the Bank of Ireland v. Trustees of Evans Charities in Ireland (5), the trustees of a charity incorporated by Act of Parliament and having a common seal possessed stock in the public funds which stock was registered in the Bank of Ireland. The Secretary of the trustees was allowed to have the seal in his possession. Five several powers of attorney prepared in different years, sealed with the seal of the trustees, the due affixing of which was attested by witnesses who attested, but without any fraudulent intention, what was not true, the seal having been affixed by the unauthorized act of the Secretary alone, were presented to the Bank and the stock was transferred. The fact of the Secretary’s misconduct was subsequently discovered and he was indicted and convicted—a power-of-attorney was then duly executed whereby the trustees authorised their attorney to transfer the stock but the Bank refused to make the transfer. In an action by the trustees against the Bank on their refusal, the Judge who tried the action told the jury that, if under these circumstances the trustees had so negligently conducted themselves as to contribute to the loss, the verdict must be given for the Bank. It was held that this direction was wrong.

Baron Parke, whose view was adopted by the learned Lords who delivered the judgment of the House of Lords, laid it down as the opinion of himself and the other Judges that the negligence which would deprive the Plaintiffs of their right to insist that the transfer was invalid must be negligence in or immediately connected with the transfer itself. He expressed his concurrence in the judgment of the Irish Exchequer Chamber in which this proposition was expounded. Baron Parke says:—“If such negligence” that is the negligence charged in that case, “could disentitle the Plaintiffs,

(5) 9 H. L. Cas. 389 (1855).

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

to what extent is it to go? If a man should lose his cheque-book, or neglect to look the desk in which it is kept and a servant or stranger should take it up, it is impossible in our opinion to contend that a banker paying his forged cheque would be entitled to charge his customer with the payment. It is clear, we think, that the negligence in the present case, if there be any, is much too remote to affect the transfer itself and to cause the trustees to be parties to misleading the Bank in making the transfer on the forged power-of-attorney."

In the case of Arnold & Co v. The Cheque Bank (6) it was held that negligence in the custody of a draft or in its transmission by post will not disentitle the owner of it to recover the draft or its proceeds from one who has wrongfully obtained possession of it.

Lord Colbridge, C. J., in delivering the judgment of the Court says:- "There could be no negligence in relying on the honesty of their servants in the discharge of their ordinary duty, that of conveying letters to the post; nor can there be any duty to the general public to exercise the same care in transmission of the draft as if any or every servant employed were a notorious thief." To the same effect is the judgment of the Court of Appeal in the case of the Mayor, etc., Merchants of the staple of England v. Bank of England (7). The decision in these cases does not appear to me to be affected by the judgment of the majority of the learned Lords in the more recent case in the House of Lords of the Bank of England v.

Vagliano Bros. (8). The judgment in this case seems to have rested entirely on the fact that there was no real drawer or payee, nor any person, payment to whom or to whose order would have enabled the acceptor to charge the supposed drawer. Lord Halsbury, L. C., in his judgment expressly recognizes the propriety of the decision in Roberts v. Tucker (4). He says: "I am not intending to throw any doubt upon the propriety of the decision in Roberts v. Tucker (4); nor am I prepared to assent to the proposition that it is a harsh decision. A customer tells his banker to pay a particular person, the banker pays some one else, and it would seem to follow as a perfectly just result that the banker should be called upon to make good the amount he has so erroneously paid. But what relation has such a decision to a case where a thing which bears the form and semblance of a known commercial document like a Bill of Exchange gets, by the act of the customer into the hands of the banker, where there is no real drawer, no real transaction between himself and the supposed drawer, and where, as a matter of fact, there is no person who in the proper and ordinary sense of the word is a payee at all?"

Now, assuming in the case before me that Sahadeb colluded with Rampal and handed him the hundi for the purpose of enabling Rampal to forge the signature of the Plaintiffs and so obtain payment of the hundi, can it be said that it was negligence on the part of the Plaintiffs to entrust the hundi to Sahadeb and if

(6) 1 C. P. D. 578 (1876)

(7) 21 Q. B. D. 160 (1887).

(4) 16 Ad. and El., p. 560 (1851).

(8) L. R. (1891) App. Cas. 107.

BHUPUTRAM v. HARI PRIO COACH.

it was negligence to do so, can it be said that such negligence was the proximate cause of the loss? Sahadeb had been in the service of the Plaintiffs as jemadar for some months prior to this transaction. He had been in the habit of taking *hundi*s on behalf of the Plaintiffs for acceptance and payment and so far as appears was an honest and respectable man. There had been nothing in his conduct to excite suspicion as to his trustworthiness. I am unable to say that it was a careless or negligent act on the part of the Plaintiffs under the circumstances to entrust the hundi to him. But assuming that it was a careless or negligent act on the part of the Plaintiffs, was it a direct and immediate consequence of that carelessness or negligence that Sahadeb should combine with Rampal to commit and should commit or aid in the commission of a forgery and that the Defendants should be thereby induced to pay the hundi? The answer must be given I think in the negative. The proximate cause of the loss would be, I would say, the crime of Sahadeb and Rampal. It could not be truthfully said that the crime of these two men was itself the natural or necessary or immediate consequence of the Plaintiffs' negligence. If then there was any negligence on the part of the Plaintiffs in their dealings with the hundi it was not in my opinion negligence so immediately conducive to the payment of the hundi to Rampal as to estop the Plaintiffs from saying that Rampal had no authority from them to receive payment and that the payment has not been made to them.

Contrary to the express direction on the hundi the Defendants without making any enquiry paid, not the shahjoge, but a stranger who had no authority whatever to receive payment and who forged the signature of the Plaintiffs. This was an overtrustful and rash act on their part for which they must abide the consequences. For these reasons I am of opinion that the Plaintiffs are entitled to recover from the Defendants the amount of the hundi and I shall give judgment accordingly for the principal sum claimed. The Defendants must pay the Plaintiffs' costs of this action to be taxed on scale No. 2.

Mr. J. C. Dutt, Attorney for the Plaintiffs.

Mr. M. M. Chatterjee and Messrs. Swinhoe & Co, Attorneys for the Defendants.

Suit decreed.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]*APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1201 of 1898.

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	MAHOMED ALI HOSEIN,
BANERJEE, J.		Plaintiff, Appellant,
BRETT, J.		v.
1901.	}	MIR NAZAR ALI and ORS.,
20, February.		Defendants, Respondents.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 92—Conduct, evidence of, to vary the meaning of a deed—Mortgage—Sale, out-and-out—Indian Law Reports Act (XVIII of 1875), sec. 3—Unreported cases—Reports, authorized.

Oral evidence as to the acts and conduct of the parties is admissible to show whether a certain deed is, as it purports to be, an out-and-out sale or a mortgage.

PRIYA NATH SHAHA v. MADHU SUDAN BHUYA (2) followed.

(2) 2 C. W. N. 562 : s. & L.L. R. 25 Cal. 603 (1898).

MAHOMED ALI HOSSEIN v. MIR NAZAR ALI.

Oral evidence of the intention of the parties is, however, not admissible.

BALKISHEN DAS v. LEGGE (1) followed.

A High Court judgment is none the less an authority because it has not been reported.

Sec. 3 of Act XVIII of 1875 was framed to constitute a monopoly, if the Judges so desired, for the authorised Law Reports; it does not prevent the Court from looking at an unreported judgment.

MAKBUL AHMED v. RAKHAL DAS HAZRA (3) dissented from.

This was an appeal from a decision of Babu Bipro Das Chatterji, Subordinate Judge of Murshidabad, dated the 22nd March 1898, modifying a decision of Babu Kapali Prasanna Mukerji, Munsif of Kandi, dated the 16th August 1897.

This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the Plaintiff for redemption of 4 bighas of ayama land mortgaged to Defendant No. 5 by Defendant No. 1 for Rs. 91 by a deed of mortgage, dated 6th Kartic 1293, whereby the said Defendant No. 5 was put in possession of the land in lieu of interest, and the time fixed for the payment of Rs. 91 was Magh 1294.

Plaintiff's case is, that Defendant No. 4, wife of Defendant No. 1, became the owner of the land before the said mortgage; that she sold it to Defendant No. 6, the brother of Defendant No. 1, on the 8th Aswin 1294 by a kobala for the sum of Rs. 180, out of which she took Rs. 89 in cash and Rs. 91 was made payable by Defendant No. 6 to Defendant No. 5 on account of the aforesaid mortgage; that on the 29th Aswin 1296 Defendant No. 6 sold it to Plaintiff No. 1 for Rs. 189 by a kobala wherein Defendant No. 6 stated that he had paid off the abovementioned sum of Rs. 91 to Defendant No. 5 in Magh 1294 and obtained possession of the land, that it appears subsequently that Defendant No. 6 did not pay that sum of Rs. 91 to Defendant No. 5; that Nayan Sheikh, (whose legal representatives are the Plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5) as lessee under Defendant No. 6 and subsequently under Plaintiff No. 1, brought a suit for recovery of possession of the land against the Defendants Nos. 1 to 5, which was dismissed by the High Court, in special appeal, holding that Nayan Sheikh was never in possession and was not entitled to possession until the mortgage debt of Defendant No. 1 to Defendant No. 5 is satisfied; and so the present suit has been brought on the deposit of the said debt of Rs. 91 into Court.

The defence inter alia was, that though the deed of the 8th Aswin 1294 executed by Defendant No. 4 in favour of Defendant No. 6 purported to be an out-and-out sale yet it was really a deed of conditional sale, that is, a kut kobala; that though by that deed the sum of Rs. 91 payable by Defendant No. 1 to Defendant No. 5 was made payable by Defendant No. 6, still at the latter's request Defendant No. 1 paid that sum to Defendant No. 5 in Jeyt 1296; who having then prepared the land for cultivation granted a kabuliyat on the 25th Jeyt 1296 to Defendant No. 1 and remained in possession of the land till the end of that year; that Defendant No. 1 has also paid to Defendant No. 6 the sum of Rs. 89, which

(1) 4 C. W. N. 153. s. c L. R. 27 L. A. 58 (1899).

(3) 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900).

MAHOMED ALI HOSSEIN v. MIR NAZAR ALI.

Defendant No. 4 had received under the kut kobala of the 8th Ašwin 1294; and that from the commencement of 1297 Defendant No. 1 is in possession of the land through his lessees the Defendants Nos. 2 and 3.

Moulvie Zakadur Rahim Zakad for the Appellant.

Babu Dwarka Nath Chuckerbutty for the Defendants.

THEIR LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENTS WERE AS FOLLOWS:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—The main objection to the decree appealed against is, that the Court below was wrong in admitting oral evidence to show the real intention of the parties to the kobala in question, or in other words, to show that the kobala in question was not intended, as it purported, to be an out-and-out sale, but only a kut kobala or mortgage. If the evidence had been so directed, I should have held, having regard to the decision of the Privy Council in the case of Balkissen Das v. Legge (1)—that the Court below was wrong in admitting it. But, here, it is reasonably clear that the evidence which was admitted, was evidence as to the acts and conduct of the parties, and this Court, following many other cases, has decided in the Full Bench case of Priya Nath Shaha v. Modhu Sudan Bhugina (2), that such evidence is admissible. There is a passage in the opinion of the Board in the Privy Council case to which I have referred, which would appear to give support to this view, for there their Lordships say,

“the case must therefore be decided on a consideration of the contents of the documents themselves with such extrinsic evidence of the surrounding circumstances as may be required to show in what manner the language of the document is related to existing facts.” The distinction between evidence as to the mere intention of the parties to the deed, and as to the acts and conduct of the parties has been recently pointed out in an unreported case decided by Mr. Justice Bamerjee and Mr. Justice Brett on the 12th of December last in Special Appeal No. 2633 of 1898.* This disposes of the first point.

The second point is that the Plaintiff being a bona fide purchaser for value without notice is entitled to rely on the kobala alone, and is not affected by any oral agreement between the Defendants Nos. 4 and 6 changing the nature of the transaction between them. But no issue has ever been raised on this point. The Plaintiff might have raised such an issue but he has never raised it, and not having raised it, I do not see how we can fairly go into such a question now in second appeal. I may remark that there is a passage in the judgment of the Subordinate Judge to the effect that his opinion tended to the conclusion that the purchase by the Plaintiff No. 1 from the Defendant No. 6 was a collusive transaction. The point of being a purchaser for value without notice has never been raised, and I am not disposed to remand this case at this late stage for an issue to be raised as to it.

I cannot however part with this case without taking the opportunity of expressing

(1) 1 C. W. N. 153; S. C. L. R. 27 I. A. 58 (1899).

(2) 22 C. W. N. 562; S. C. L. R. 25 Cal. 603 (1898).

* To be reported shortly.—Ed.

MAHOMED ALI HOSSEIN v. MIR NAZAR ALI.

ing my dissent from the view taken by Mr. Justice Rampini and Mr. Justice Pratt in the case of Makbul Ahmed v. Rakhal Das Harra (3), where they held that they were not bound to receive or treat as an authority binding on them an unreported case or ruling, basing that view upon sec. 3 of Act XVIII of 1875. That section was framed to constitute a monopoly, if the Judges so desired, for the authorized Law Reports; it only says that no Court shall be bound to hear cited the "report" of any case, etc.; it does not prevent the Court from looking at an unreported judgment of other Judges of the same Court. This has always been done and can and ought to be done. A judgment is none the less an authority because it has not been reported, otherwise the question of whether or not a judgment could or could not be regarded, would depend upon the mere whim of the Reporter. I therefore respectfully dissent from the view on this point expressed in the case reported in Calcutta Weekly Notes, Vol. 4, page 732.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion. I only wish to add, with reference to the first point raised in the case, that I adhere to the view expressed by me in my judgment in Special Appeal No. 2633 of 1898, in which it has been pointed out that the Full Bench decision in Prigya Nath Shaha v. Madhu Sudan Bhayya (2), has not been in any way overruled by the decision of the Privy Council in Balkissen Das v. Legge (1).

(1) 4 C. W. N. 153 : s. c. L. R. 27 I. A.

58 (1899)

(2) 2 C. W. N. 562 : s. c. I. L. R. 25 Cal. 603 (1898).

(3) 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900).

BRETT, J.—I agree with the learned Chief Justice.

Appeal dismissed.

S. R. D.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 924 OF 1899.

PRINSEP, J.	TEKAIT KUNJ BEHARI
STANLEY, J.	NARAIN DEO, Petitioner,
	v.
1900.	BHIKO SINGH, Opposite
9, June.	Party.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 188—Disobedience of an order of a public servant lawfully promulgated—Order under sec. 144, Cr. P. Code, interfering with the exercise of private rights of individuals, if lawful—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to pass such orders.

If a Magistrate apprehends a breach of the peace he can restrain temporarily the exercise by any private person of his lawful rights to prevent such breach of the peace, by making an order under sec. 144, Cr. P. Code; and disobedience to such an order amounts to an offence under sec. 188, I. P. Code.

BYCUNTRAM SHAHA ROY (1) followed.

This was a rule issued on the 15th of December 1899, against the order of the Joint-Magistrate of Giridih, dated the 31st of July 1899, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the Judicial Commissioner of Chota Nagpur on the 21st of August 1899.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Atulya Churn Bose for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to shew cause.

(1) 10 B. L. R. 448 (1872).

TEKAIT KUNJ BEHARI NARAIN DEO v. BEIKO SINGH.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The Petitioner has been convicted under sec. 188, I. P. C., for disobedience of an order under sec. 144, C. Cr. P. The objection taken before us is that that order was passed without jurisdiction and that, therefore, it was not an order by a public officer lawfully empowered to promulgate the order which the Petitioner was bound to obey and that consequently the conviction and sentence are bad. The order is to the effect that whereas a riot is likely to take place in taking or removing crop and other properties in Pachari claimed by Tekail Tadal Narain Singh, "you are hereby ordered not to interfere either personally or by means of others with the things abovementioned. You are directed not to interfere with those things."

It is objected by Mr. Roy who appears for the Petitioner that that order is not a lawful order because it is an interference with the exercise of the private rights of the Petitioner. We think it unnecessary to do more than refer to the judgment of the Full Bench in the case of Bycuntram Shaha Roy (1) in which this very point was argued and it was held that if the Magistrate apprehended a breach of the peace, he could restrain temporarily the exercise by any private person of his lawful rights to prevent that result. In that particular case, however, the order was of a permanent character and, therefore, on that ground it was held to be a bad order. The terms in which the learned Chief Justice expressed himself in that judgment apply equally to the present case and it is unnecessary to refer to any further cases on the subject in which those principles may not have been completely followed. In the present case, the object of the Magistrate was to prevent a breach of the peace and it is sufficient to say in this respect that what has since taken place has amply justified the Magistrate's intervention. The rule is, therefore, discharged.

H. P. C.

Rule discharged.

[CRIMINAL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL NO. 840 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.	}	BROJA RAKHAL MOZUM-
STEVENS, J.		DAR, Appellant,
1900.	}	v.
27, November.		THE EMPRESS,
		Respondent.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 423, 439—High Court, power of, to deal with accused person not appealing—Conviction, setting aside of, of accused not appealing while dealing with an appeal on behalf of persons appealing.

The High Court has power under sec. 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in a proper case, to deal with the case of accused persons not appealing against their conviction, while considering and trying the appeal preferred by some other persons; and cl. (5) of the section does not in any way affect the jurisdiction vested in the High Court to deal with their case.

This was an appeal preferred on the 27th of September 1900, against the conviction and the sentence passed by the Sessions Judge of Dinajpur on the 17th of September 1900.

The facts of the case, so far as they are material to this report, appear fully from the judgment.

(1) 10 B. L. R. 443 (1872).

BROJO BAKHAL MOZUMDAR v. THE EMPRESS.

Mr. K. N. Chaudhuri (with him Babu Dwarka Nath Mitter) for the Appellant.— I submit that it is a fit case in which your Lordships should consider the case of Ananta Dobe, who has not appealed, in the exercise of the power vested in you by sec. 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code. This is a case in which both the accused persons should be acquitted. *

Babu Shrivish Chunder Chaudhuri (Assistant Government Pleader) for the Crown.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Appellant in this case has been convicted by the Sessions Judge of Dinajpur under secs. 330 and 347, I. P. C., and sentenced to eighteen months' rigorous imprisonment under each of the sections or to an aggregate sentence of three years' rigorous imprisonment. There was another person prosecuted along with him who has been sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment under each of the sections. He, however, has not appealed and we shall have to deal with his case in a different way.

(After commenting on the evidence their Lordships concluded the judgment as follows):—

We consider the story told by the prosecution initially improbable and vitiated by so many circumstances which we cannot accept that we feel bound to set aside the conviction and sentence of the accused Brojo Bakhal Mozumdar and direct that he be released. We make the order accordingly.

As regards the other accused, Ananta Dobe, who has been convicted and sentenced by the Sessions Judge to one year's rigorous imprisonment in the aggregate under the two sections referred to above and who has not appealed from jail, we asked the learned Government pleader if he had anything to say why we should not set aside the conviction in his case also. This Court has undoubtedly the power under sec. 439, Cr. P. C., to deal with the case and cl. (5) does not in any way affect the jurisdiction vested in us to deal with this particular case. The Government pleader having nothing to say, we, in exercise of the powers vested in us under sec. 439, set aside the conviction and sentence passed on the accused Ananta Dobe and direct that he be also released.

Appeal allowed: Convictions of both the accused set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 862 of 1899.

PRINSEP, J.	} FAIRWEATHER, Petitioner, ". SURESH CHUNDER DUTT, License Inspector, Howrah Municipality, Opposite Party.
STANLEY, J.
1900.
1, February.

Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884), sec. 267, 273—Keeper of hackney carriage—Milkman—License.

Where it was found that a person had 7 or 8 ponies and 4 cows and some sheep and let out one carriage and a pair of ponies on a monthly hire and kept the same in her stable, and also kept other ponies for sale and supplied milk to others out of her cows:

Held—That the facts found do not render her liable within the terms of sec. 273 of the Bengal Municipal Act.

FAIRWEATHER v. SURESH CHUNDER DUTT.

This was a rule issued on the 4th of December 1899, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Howrah, dated 22nd of October 1899, convicting the Petitioner Mrs. Fairweather, under sec. 273, cl. (2) of Act III of 1884, B. C., and sentencing her to pay a fine of Rs. 20 or in default to undergo a sentence of simple imprisonment for twenty days.

The facts of the case are briefly these:—On the 14th August 1899 the Petitioner's husband was summoned to appear before Moulvie Buzlal Karim, first class Deputy Magistrate of Howrah to answer a charge under sec. 273, cl. (2) of Act III of 1884, B. C., for keeping without a license at his place several ponies, cows and sheep. The case was eventually not proceeded with against the Petitioner's husband but the Petitioner was summoned to appear before the Court on the same charge. The Deputy Magistrate found that she kept the animals for purposes of trade and that she came within the category of persons mentioned in sec. 263 of the Act, and accordingly convicted and sentenced the Petitioner as aforesaid.

The judgment of the lower Court was as follows:—

The evidence shows that one Mrs. Fairweather keeps 7 or 8 ponies, about 4 cows, and some sheep for the purpose of trade at a place within the Municipality without taking out a license for 1899-1900. It appears that she took out the license till 1897-98.

The evidence shows that the accused lets out one carriage and a pair of ponies to Mrs. Langer on a monthly hire of Rs. 40 and that the said carriage and the ponies are kept in the stable of the accused. The evidence further shows that the accused keeps the other ponies for sale and the sheep for supplying mutton to gentlemen. She also supplies milk to others out of her cows. Thus it is clear that she has kept these animals for the purpose of trade.

The next question raised by defence is that the accused does not come in the category of persons mentioned in sec. 273 of the Municipal Act. I think she comes within the category as "a keeper of hackney carriage" inasmuch as she lets out the carriage on hire. This being so I think she is bound to take out license under sec. 263 of the Act and as she kept the animals for trade without taking out the required license she is amenable to punishment under cl. 2 of sec. 273 of the Municipal Act.

The Court therefore fines her Rs. 20 (twenty) in default 20 days simple imprisonment besides cost of Rs. 3 to be paid to the Municipality.

Babu Prosanna Gopal Roy for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to shew cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

We have had some difficulty in applying sec. 273 of the Bengal Municipal Act to the case before us in which the Petitioner is said to unite in her person the designation of a "milkman and a keeper of hackney carriages."

We are of opinion that the facts found against her do not render her liable within the terms of sec. 273. The conviction and sentence must, therefore, be set aside and the fine, if paid, refunded.

S. C. S. Rule made absolute.

C. C. G.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 938 of 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.	}	JAGAT CHANDRA SARMA,
PRATT, J.		Petitioner,
1901.		v.
7, February.		LAL CHAND DAS,
		Opposite Party.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 165, 165—Receiving illegal gratification as a public servant—Gratification received partly on one day and partly on another—Continuous offence—Conviction for separate

JAGAT CHANDRA SARMA v. LAL CHAND DAS.

offences, if proper—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 421—Summary dismissal of appeal of accused, legality of, on admission of appeal of co-accused.

Where a certain sum of money is paid to a public servant as illegal gratification on one day and a certain sum on another day for the same purpose, the offence of receiving illegal gratification becomes a continuous offence and there ought not to be separate convictions for offences under secs. 161 and 165 of the Penal Code for the same offence.

The law gives to the Appellate Court the power of dismissing summarily an appeal upon going through the judgment, if the Court is satisfied that there is no sufficient reason shown for the interference of the Appellate Court, and the fact that the Appellate Court admitted one Appellant's appeal does not affect the order summarily dismissing another Appellant's appeal.

This was a rule issued on the 1st of December 1900, against the order of the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Sunamgunge, dated the 18th of September 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the Sessions Judge of Sylhet on the 21st September 1900. The facts of the case and the arguments addressed to the Court appear fully from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Havendra Narayan Mitra for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to shew cause.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Petitioner in this case, Jagat Chandra Sarma, who was head constable in charge of the Police outpost of Juggernathpore, was convicted by the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Sunamgunge under secs. 161, 165 and 347, I. P. C., and sentenced, under the first-named section, to two years' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 200, under the second, to three months' simple imprisonment and, under the third, to nine months' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 50; in the aggregate, to three years' imprisonment. The charge against him was that he had accepted certain bribes in the course of his official duty in connection with an investigation into a fishery case regarding which a complaint had been preferred at the outpost and that he had confined certain women of the village for the purpose of extorting money from their relatives. The Sub-divisional officer, in a long judgment in which he reviews the evidence at considerable length, found that the charges aforesaid were made out against the head constable. A person of the name of Chandi Pershad Das was a co-accused with the head constable, and the prosecution alleged that it was through this Chandi that the head constable received the bribes. Chandi was convicted by the Sub-divisional officer under sec. 481, I. P. C., and was sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for 15 months and to pay a fine of Rs. 500. Chandi Persad and the head constable appealed separately to the Sessions Judge. The appeal of the head constable, Jagat Chandra Sarma, was summarily dismissed under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The appeal of Chandi Persad was admitted and the learned Judge, after going through the evidence, although he was of opinion that the accused had been rightly convicted, thought that the sentence of imprisonment was unnecessarily severe, having regard to the part alleged by the prosecution to have been taken by him. He was accordingly let off with a fine. On the application of the accused Jagat Chandra Sarma, we issued a rule on the 29th November calling upon the Deputy Commissioner to show cause why the conviction and sentence should not be set aside on the grounds set forth in the petition. Mr. Roy has now appeared in support of the rule and we have allowed him to go into the whole case both upon the evidence and the questions of law. His contentions are that the Judge ought to have admitted the head constable's appeal having regard to the fact that he had admitted Chandi Persad's appeal. With regard to that, we observe that the law gives to the Sessions Judge the power of dismissing summarily an appeal upon going through the judgment, if he is satisfied that there is no sufficient reason shown for the interference of the Appellate Court. The fact that the Sessions Judge admitted Chandi Persad's appeal, does not, in our opinion, affect his order dismissing summarily the Petitioner's appeal. It must also be borne in mind that the Sessions Judge in Chandi Persad's case affirmed the conviction and only dealt with the question of sentence and we may presume that, upon going through the judgment as it affected the present Petitioner he did not think it necessary in his discretion to vary the sentence or sentences passed by the Deputy Magistrate. Moreover, upon the rule issued by this Court we have allowed learned counsel for the Petitioner to go into the facts of the case and, therefore, no question of prejudice arises from the fact that the Sessions Judge did not give an opportunity to the Petitioner to argue his appeal before him.

JAGAT CHANDRA SARMA v. LAL CHAND DAS.

The next point urged by Mr. Roy is that the sentence under sec. 165 is erroneous inasmuch as the acceptance of the bribe, whether taken partly on one day and partly on another, was a continuous offence and, therefore, there ought not to have been a separate sentence under that section. We will deal with this after disposing of the other questions which have been raised on the Petitioner's behalf, viz., that the evidence in the case consists only of the testimony of accomplices or persons next to accomplices and, therefore, a conviction upon such testimony ought not to be sustained. Another objection is that the charge under sec. 384, I. P. C., having been dismissed, the conviction under sec. 347 was wrong and it is also urged that the Deputy Magistrate was in error in admitting certain proceedings in the fishery case as well as in what is called the obstruction case in the consideration of the other evidence against the Petitioner.

Dealing now with the merits, viz., whether the evidence which has been adduced by the prosecution against the Petitioner consists only of the testimony of accomplices, we find that the Deputy Magistrate has relied upon the statements of three persons whom he considers not to be accomplices in any shape or character, viz., Tara Nath Sen, Jabanulla and Nazib Khan. That evidence has been placed before us and we find that so far as Jabanulla and Nazib Khan are concerned, there is no reason for suggesting that they were in the smallest degree concerned with the payment of the bribe or in bringing about the settlement between the villagers and the accused. They cannot, therefore, be regarded as accomplices. Tara Nath may be said to have taken some part in arranging what amounts should be paid by the different villagers but he states in his evidence that, although he took part in that way in what was going on between Chandi Persad and the present accused, he did not concern himself, to paraphrase his language, with the payment of the bribe or otherwise. But however that may be, we are quite clear that Jaban-ullah and Nazib Khan's evidence cannot be impugned on the ground upon which the other evidence in the case is impugned and we think, therefore, that there is no reason for setting aside the conviction on the ground that it is based on the uncorroborated testimony of accomplices. The evidence is that a certain sum of money was paid on one day and a certain sum on another day and we think that there is a great deal of force in the contention of learned counsel that it was a continuous offence. We think, therefore, that the conviction under sec. 165, I. P. C., cannot be maintained.

JAGAT CHANDRA SARMA v. LAL CHAND DAS.

There can be no doubt upon the evidence that, under the orders of the head constable, a number of women were brought by the constables and detained for a considerable time until Rupnath Das and other villagers had agreed, upon the suggestion of Chandi Persad, to pay a nazar, as it is called, to the head constable. We think, therefore, that the conviction under sec. 347, I. P. C., is correct.

Having thus taken the entire evidence in the case into consideration, we are of opinion that the convictions under secs. 161 and 347, I. P. C., must be maintained. We think, however, that the sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment under sec. 161 is quite sufficient to meet the ends of justice. We therefore remit the sentence of fine under that section.

We are also of opinion that the sentence of six months' rigorous imprisonment under sec. 347 is amply sufficient for the purposes of the case and we accordingly reduce the sentence passed against the Petitioner under that section to six months' rigorous imprisonment and remit also the order of fine under this section. We set aside the sentence under sec. 165. The conviction under both secs. 161 and 347 will be upheld and the Petitioner will be called upon to surrender to undergo the remaining portion of his sentence.

Rule made absolute in part.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 997 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.	}	LALIT CHANDRA NEOGI
PRATT, J.		and ors., 2nd Party,
1901.		Petitioners.
8, February.		v.
		TARINI PERSAD GUPTA,
		1st Party, Opposite
		Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V. of 1898), sec. 147—Easement, right of, obstruction to—Right of way, likelihood of breach of the peace concerning—Exercise of right within statutory period—"Such thing shall be done, &c.," meaning of—Order, form of.

Where one party has a right of way over the land of another who obstructs

LALIT CHANDRA NEOGI v. TARINI PERSAD GUPTA.

such right by erecting certain huts and there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace in consequence of such obstruction :

Held—That a Magistrate is competent, under the provisions of sec. 147, Cr. P. Code, to direct that the obstruction be removed.

PASUPATI NATH BOSE AND ANR. v. NANDO LAL BOSE AND ANR. (1) followed.

This was a rule issued on the 13th of December 1900, against the order of Babu Akhoy Kumar Chatterjee, Sub divisional Magistrate of Tangail, dated the 29th of November 1900.

The facts of the case will appear from the following portion of the judgment of the lower Court :—

This case originated with a petition filed by the first party to the effect that the Defendants engaged 200 or 250 lathials and 50 or 60 servants and constructed a hut on the path leading from his house to the school, Post office and bazar, etc., and when his men objected to it, they were beaten and driven away. If his men attempt to go to his shop, they will be beaten by the lathials of the Defendant and there is a likelihood of the breach of the peace if he tries to exercise his right of easement over this path. The occurrence is said to have taken place on the 5th May 1900. The petition was sent to the Sub-Inspector of Police, Tangail, for enquiry and report and that officer and the Inspector of Police reported on the correctness of the subject-matter of the petition and applied for proceedings under sec. 147, C. P. C., on the 17th May 1900. Proceedings were accordingly drawn up on the 22nd May last.

The second point for determination is whether the Defendant has a right of easement over the road and whether he exercised the same for 8 months prior to the drawing up of the proceedings.

On a full consideration of the evidence and circumstances of this case I am certainly of opinion that the first party were in possession of the right of easement till the 5th May last and I accordingly direct the first party to exercise their right of easement over the road which has been obstructed until the second party obtains the decision of a competent Court against this order under sec. 147, C. P. C. The second party must remove all obstructions from the road at once.

Against the order of the Deputy Magistrate the Petitioners moved the High Court and obtained the present rule.

Sir Griffith Evans, Babus Dwarka Nati Chuckerbutty and Brojo Lal Chuckerbutty for the Petitioners.

Mr. Pugh and Babu Harendra Narayan Mitter for the Opposite Party.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This rule was granted for the purpose of considering the legality of the order made by the Deputy Magistrate under sec. 147 of the Criminal Procedure Code and we have had the opportunity and advantage of hearing Sir Griffith Evans on the law and the difficulties created by the imperfect drafting of sec. 147 C. Cr. P. Upon the facts found by the Deputy Magistrate, we see no sufficient reason to differentiate the present case from the case of Pasupati Nath Bose and anr. v. Nando Lal Bose and anr. (1) and, as at present advised, we see also no reason for taking the course suggested by learned counsel, viz., to refer the case to a Full Bench. Having, therefore, given the case our best consideration we have come to the conclusion that this rule ought to be discharged and we discharge it accordingly.

Rule discharged.

H. P. C.

(1) 5 C. W. N. 67 (1900).

(1) 5 C. W. N. 67 (1900).

KHEDON MAHATO v. BUDHUN MAHATO.

reconsideration of this question, I am clearly of opinion that no second appeal lies in a case of this kind. I was a party to the decision in the case of Priag Nath Shadoo v. Mura Munda (3), but the view taken in that case proceeded almost entirely upon what was conceived to be an established course of practice supported by a decision in an unreported case decided by Mr. Justice Tottenham and Mr. Justice Agnew in May 1885, in Second Appeals Nos. 621 to 625 of 1884. That case, however, does not now appear to me on a reconsideration of the question and after hearing what has been addressed to us to-day to have been correctly decided.

I entirely agree with what has fallen from the learned Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Macpherson as to the construction of Act I of 1879 (B. C.), and the effect upon the question now before us of sec. 4 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

RAMPINI, J.—I also consider that no second appeal lies in this case. I would only add to what has been said by the learned Chief Justice and my learned brothers that Act I of 1879 (B. C.) seems to me to contain internal evidence that the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure are not applicable to cases arising under that Act and that therefore sec. 584 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not apply. I would refer to secs. 47, 49 to 56 and 62 to 67 of the Act which lay down certain procedure for the trial of cases arising under the Act. These sections would be superfluous, if the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure applied in their entirety to cases arising under Act I of 1879 (B. C.).

(3) L. L. R. 24 Cal. 249 (1896).

I would also refer to secs. 38, 76 and 98 of the Act which make certain provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure expressly applicable. These would be absolutely unnecessary if the provisions of the whole Code applied to cases under this Act. And I may also, in support of this view, point to the title of the Act, which is described as "an Act to amend the procedure in suits between landlords and tenants in Chota Nagpur." Upon these grounds I am clearly of opinion that the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure do not apply to cases under Act I of 1879 (B. C.).

Moreover, as has already been pointed out by several of my learned brothers, sec. 4 of the Code of Civil Procedure expressly excludes the Code from applying to cases between landholders and their tenants. For these reasons I think that no second appeal lies in this case, and that the cases of Ramjan Khan v. Raman Chaman (2), and of Priag Nath Shadoo v. Mura Munda (3), so far as they hold that a second appeal lies in cases of this nature arising under Act I of 1897 (B. C.), have not been rightly decided.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]*APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE

No. 28 of 1899.

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	RAJNARAIN BHADURI
MACPHERSON, J.		& anr., Appellants,
HILL, J.		v.
1900.		KATYAYANI DEBI,
25, January.		Respondent.

Hindu Law—Will, construction of—Gift to widow of malikatwa as exercised by the

(2) 11 C. L. R. 480 (1882).

(3) L. L. R. 24 Cal. 249 (1896).

RAJNARAIN BHADURI v. KATTAYANI DEBI.

testator, in respect of moveable and immoveable property—Stridhan or widow's interest—Hindu Wills Act (XXI of 1870)—The Indian Succession Act (IX of 1865), sec. 82.

Where a Hindu testator by his Will made before the Hindu Wills Act (XXI of 1870) appointed his widow to the malikatwa, as exercised by himself, of all his moveable and immoveable property :

Held—That the widow took an absolute interest, and on her death such interest devolved upon her heirs, and not upon the heirs of her late husband.

BEABA TARINI DEBI v. PEARY LAL SANYAL (1), KOONJ BEHARI DHUR v. PREM CHAND DUTT (2), SRIMUTTY SOORJEE MONEY DASSEE v. DENOBUNDHOO MULLICK (3), SHUMSOOL HOODA v. SHEWUKRAM (4) followed.

HARI LAL PRAN LAL v. BAI REWA (5) distinguished and dissented from.

Testator, a childless Hindu, executed a Will in Bengali by which he appointed his widow to the malikatwa (ownership) of his moveable and immoveable property as was exercised by himself. The testator died in June 1862, i.e., prior to the Hindu Wills Act which incorporates sec. 82 of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865). After his death the widow took and remained in possession till her death. On her death intestate, her next-of-kin and sole heir, the Defendant-Respondent in this case took possession of all her properties. Thereupon the Plaintiffs-Appellants, as the reversionary heirs of the testator, brought this suit for the construction of the Will and contended that under it his widow took only a Hindu widow's life estate in the immoveable property, and that on her death, the Plaintiffs-Appellants became entitled to this property.

The facts material to this report and the Will in question are thus set out in the judgment of the Original Court:—

The main question in this case is whether under the Will of Krishna Lal Bhadury his widow Bhubaneswari Debi took an absolute interest in his immoveable property or merely the ordinary estate of a Hindu widow.

Krishna Lal Bhadury died many years ago leaving an only widow but no issue surviving. He made a Will in Bengali, dated the 2nd of June 1862, of which the translation is as follows:—

“(To) the blessed Srimati Bhubaneswari Debi.

This instrument of willnamah (Will) is executed by Sri Krishna Lal Bhadury to the following effect:—I having, by reason of ill health, come to the house of my father-in-law Srijut Nilmani Chakravarti Mohasay at monzah Nabagram in the district of Hughli; (and) not having recovered under various modes of medical treatment (and hence) considering my life to be in peril, I appoint (literally, make) my wife Srimati Bhubaneswari Debi to the malikatwa (ownership) after my demise, as exercised (literally, done) by myself in respect of the family dwelling-house (consisting of) 2 cottahs (and) 6 chataks of land with building purchased in the name of my father Nilmani Bhaduri Mohasay, deceased, at Sutanuti gram in the town of Calcutta and wearing apparel, utensils, etc., whatever there is, (i.e.), in respect of all the properties aforesaid. I of my own free will, make

(1) 1 C. W. N. 578 : s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 646 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 684 (1880).

(3) 6 M. 1 A. 526 at p. 550 (1857)

(4) L. R. 2 I. A. 7 at p. 14 (1874).

(5) I. L. R. 21 Bom. 376 (1895).

RAJNARAIN BHADURI v. KATYAYANI DEBI.

(this) Will. Finis. Year 1269 twelve hundred and sixty-nine Sal, date 20th Jaistha."

After the testator's death his widow took possession of his property and remained in possession of it until her death on the 17th of January 1898. She died intestate leaving the Defendant Ashutosh Chakerbutty her sole heir. The Plaintiffs are grandsons of Rooder Narain Bhadury who was brother of Joy Narain Bhadury, the grandfather of the testator Krishna Lal Bhadury and as such are the reversionary heirs of Krishna Lal Bhadury. They contend that under the Will of Krishna Lal Bhadury, Bhubaneswari Debi only took the ordinary estate of a Hindu widow in his immoveable property and that upon her death they became entitled to this property as reversionary heirs.

In the Original Court, Stanley, J., held that the Will gave an absolute estate to the widow and dismissed the suit. From that decision* the Plaintiffs appealed.

Sir Griffith Evans and Mr. Chuckerbutty for the Appellants.

Mr. Hill, Mr. A. Chaudhuri, and Mr. M. L. Dutt for the Respondent.

Sir Griffith Evans.—The question in this case is whether the widow had an out-and-out gift or whether the property goes to her husband's relatives after her death. Where under the Hindu law a gift is made by a husband to a wife and the property is immoveable, there is a distinct rule of Hindu law that the wife does not take an absolute estate. After her death the property goes to the heirs of the husband and not to the heirs of the wife.

It has also been established by a series of decision that in respect of a gift, whether inter vivos or by Will, it is necessary for the husband to give her in express terms a heritable right or power of alienation.

In support of his contention he cited :

Bhaba Tarini Debi v. Peary Lal Sangal (1), Koonj Behari Dhur v. Prem Chand Dutt (2), Mussumut Kollany Koorer v. Luchmee Pershad (6), Colebrooke's Dayabhaga, Ch. IV, sec. 1, cl. 23 (Ed. 1810), Dr. Bannerjee's Hindu Law of Marriage and Stridhan, Lecture VIII, Narada's text at p. 323, Colebrooke's Digest of Hindu Law, 2nd Vol., p. 515, 3rd Vol., at pp. 575, 576, texts of Narada and Cātyayāna, Hari Lal Pran Lal v Bai Rewa (5), Jatindra Mohan Tagore v. Ganendra Mohan Tagore (7), Ram Narain Sing v. Peuri Bhugut (8), Sreenuttu Pabitra Dasi v. Damudar Jana (9), Punchoo Money Dassee v. Troylucko Mohney Dassee (10).

Mr. Hill.—A gift of immoveable property to a wife from a husband ordinarily goes to the husband's heirs, unless it is given with express words, because there the control over the property given continues with the husband in his lifetime. In a gift by Will the husband has no control over the property, and in such a case different considerations prevail. When a gift is made to a woman over which her husband has no control that is a peculium or woman's

(1) 1 C. W. N. 578 : s. c. I. L. R.

24 Cal. 646 at pp. 649, 651 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 684 (1880).

(5) I. L. R. 21 Bom. 376 at p. 380 (1895).

(6) 24 W. R. 395 (1875).

(7) 9 B. L. R. 377 (1872).

(8) I. L. R. 9 Cal. 830 (1883).

(9) 7 B. L. R. 697 (1871).

(10) I. L. R. 10 Cal. 342 (1884).

* See I. L. R. 27 Cal. 44.—Ed.

RAJNARAIN BHADURI v. KATTAYANI DEBI.

stridhan. In Colebrooke's Dayabhaga, Ch. IV, sec. 1, sloka 18, stridhan is described thus:— . . . . "That alone is her peculiar property, which she has power to give, sell, or use, independently of her husband's control." In Bhaba Tarini Debi v. Peary Lal Sanyal (1) the wife had an absolute interest in the property. In support of his contention he cited Bannerjee's Tagore Law Lectures for 1878, 2nd Ed., at p. 322; Siromani's Commentary on the Hindu Law, 1st Ed., p. 400; Colebrooke's Dayabhaga, Ch. IV, sec. 1, sloka 13 (of Yajnyawalkya) to sloka 19 and sloka 23 (Narada's text); Colebrooke's Digest of Hindu Law 627 (1801).

[The CHIEF JUSTICE.—Let us look to the wording of the Will. He gave all the malikatwa that he had; he had the dominion and so he gave the power of absolute alienation to his wife. His Lordship referred to Lalit Mohun Singh Roy and others v. Chukkun Lal Roy (11), and Bhujanga Rau v. Ramayamma (12), where Turner, C. J., says "It is not denied, &c. . . ." and observed that in Ram Narain Sing v. Peary Bhugut (8), it was held "that the words of limitation are not necessary, you must construe the Will taking it as a whole and not piecemeal.]

Mr. Hill.—Here the clear intention is to give the wife full rights. The same words cover both moveable and immoveable properties, whatever properties he had.

Sir- Griffith Evans in reply.—The malikatwa must have been given owing to the fact that in the Supreme Court days the heirs used to get themselves appointed Receivers and the widow used to be put under their control. He cited also the Tagore Law Lectures, 1879 (Lecture VI:—Hindu Widows' Estate), Macnaghten's Hindu Law, Ch. VIII, Case 8 at p. 215 (which showed that the fetter was not removed by the death of the husband), Mussamut Bhagbutti Dace v. Chowdry Bholanath Thakoor and others (13) and Lallu v. Jugmohun (14).

As to costs where the difficulty was caused by the testator, the costs should come out of the estate: Tagore v. Tagore (7) and Coote's Probate Practice 502(3), William Forster Charter v. Charles Charter (15).

[The CHIEF JUSTICE.—That was the rule in the original case, but never in appeal.]

Sir Griffith Evans.—That was so done in the Tagore case.

Mr. Chaudhuri.—They brought a suit for declaration of their rights pleading intestacy when they were aware of the Will. The difficulty has not been created by the testator, but they want to interpret his words in a different way. The usual rules as to costs should be followed.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—The question which we have to decide in this case is dependent upon the construction of the Will of one Krishna Lal Bhadury who died many years ago leaving a widow surviving him, and no issue.

(1) 1 C. W. N. 578: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 646 at p. 650 (1897).

(8) I. L. R. 9 Cal. 830 (1888).

(11) 1 C. W. N. 387: s. c. I. L. R. 24 Cal. 834 (1897).

(12) I. L. R. 7 Mad. 387 at 389 (1884).

(7) 9 B. L. R. 377 (1879).

(13) I. L. R. 2 I. A. 256 (1875).

(14) I. L. R. 22 Bom. 409 (1898).

(15) 7 Eng. & Irish App. 364 (1874).

RAJNARAIN BHADURI v. KATTAYANI DEBI.

His will, which was made in Bengali, is dated the 2nd of June, 1862, and is in the following terms:—"I having by reason of ill-health come to the house of my father-in-law," (naming him) "and not having recovered under various modes of medical treatment, and hence considering my life to be in peril, I appoint (literally, make) my wife, Sreemutty Bhambaneswari Debi, to the malikatwa (ownership) after my demise as exercised (literally, done) by myself, in respect of the family dwelling-house," (describing it) "and wearing apparel, utensils, &c., whatever there is (i.e.) in respect of all the properties aforesaid, I, of my own free will, make (this) Will."

The question is whether the heirs of the deceased testator who are the Plaintiffs, or the heirs of the widow, who died in January 1898, who are the Defendants, are entitled to this property, and this depends upon the question what was the estate which the widow took, whether she took an absolute interest, or only the interest of a childless Hindu widow. The learned Judge in the Court below has dismissed the suit; hence the present appeal by the heirs of the deceased testator.

It is urged for the Appellants that, although the words of the Will having regard to the true import of the word malikatwa, might have conferred upon the widow an absolute interest, had the property been given to her under the Will of a stranger—I should say that the question only arises as to the immoveable property—that when the gift is by a husband to his wife the same considerations do not apply and that she does not, and cannot, take an absolute interest upon the ground that there is a distinct and binding rule of Hindu law that, unless upon the language of the Will, although the word "malik" or "malikatwa" may be used, an express or an implied power of alienation can be taken as given to the widow, she only takes the limited interest of a childless Hindu widow.

For this proposition the Appellants rely upon the case of Bhaba Tarini Debi v. Peary Lal Sanyal (1) which followed the decision in the case of Koonj Behari Dhu v. Prem Chand Dutt (2).

I ought to state that, admittedly, the case is not affected by the Hindu Wills Act, or by sec. 82 of the Indian Succession Act.

In the case of Bhaba Tarini Debi v. Peary Lal Sanyal (1) the law at p. 649 of the report is laid down as follows:—"If this stood alone" "this" referring to the words in the particular Will which the Judges were then construing,—“and sec. 82 of the Indian Succession Act was not applicable to the case, then as the bequest (which in this respect follows the same rule as a gift) was one of immoveable property by the husband to his wives, they would take a limited estate under the Dayabhaga. They would take the property without having any power to alienate it; and property over which they have not the power of alienation, cannot constitute their Stridhan, or absolute property (see Dayabhaga, Chapter IV, secs. 1, 18, 19 and 23) and must on their death pass to the heirs of her husband (see Colebrooke's Digest, Bk. V, 515, commentary):”—and, later on, at p. 651, the same view is further expressed in the following passage:—"We only wish to observe, with regard to those cases, that an important distinction, which is sometimes lost sight of, may reconcile the apparent conflict in some of them. The rule of Hindu law referred to above is based upon a text attributed to Narada cited in the Dayabhaga, Chapter IV, secs. 1, 23, and is limited to the case of gift of immoveable property to the wife, and it is to this particular case that the decision in Koonj Behari Dhur v. Prem Chand Dutt (2) relates."

(1) 1 C. W. N. 578: a. c. L. L. R. 24 Cal. 646 (1897).

(2) L. L. R. 5 Cal. 684 (1896).

RAJNARAIN BHADURI v. KATTAYANI DEBI.

Taking then the law to be that as stated in the cases I have mentioned, we have to ascertain, whether, upon the construction of the Will, in this case—and accepting as a guide to that question of construction the law as laid down by the Privy Council in the cases of Srimutty Soorjee Money Dassee v. Denobundhoo Mullick (3) and Shumsool Hooda v. Shewukram (4), an express or implied power of alienation can be regarded as given to the widow. If the gift had stopped at the words, "after my demise," there would be considerable force in the argument of Sir Griffith Evans, that an absolute interest was not conferred: but we must give some effect to the words that follow, "as exercised by myself." Ownership as exercised by myself! What do these words mean? What was the nature of his ownership? It was an absolute ownership, and as incident to it, an absolute power of alienation; and he confers upon his wife the same class of ownership, that is an ownership with power of alienation. In this view, which I take to be the true one, she takes an absolute interest, an interest which, upon her death, devolved upon her heirs, and not upon the heirs of her late husband.

We have been much pressed with a decision in the Bombay High Court in the case of Hari Lal Pran Lal v. Bai Rewa (5), where the language used was somewhat similar to that in the present case. There the Court held that the widow only took a limited, and not an absolute, interest. Whilst entertaining the greatest respect for the decisions of that tribunal, they are not binding upon us and moreover the language of that Will is, in many respects, different from that in the present case. The whole of that Will is not set out in the report, and though no doubt these are the words "Just as I am the owner of the property at present, in the same way my wife, Ujjain is the owner," those words were regarded by the Court as qualified by other provisions in the Will, provisions which we do not find in the Will now before us. But even in that case, the learned Judges expressed doubt as to the conclusion at which they arrived. I am unable to regard that case as governing the present: the two Wills are very different in their language and provisions.

Having regard to the circumstances of the testator in this case at the date of his Will—he had no children and no near relatives—it is not improbable that he should wish to give his wife an absolute interest in the property and in my opinion the language of his Will has done so.

The view taken by the Court below is right, and the appeal must be dismissed with costs.

(2) 1. L. R. 5 Cal. 681 (1897).

(3) 8 M. I. A. 526 at p. 550 (1857).

(4) L. R. 2 I. A. 7 at p. 14 (1874).

(5) I. L. R. 21 Bom. 379 (1895).

RAJNARAIN BHADURI v. KATYAYNI DEBI.

MACPHERSON, J.—I am of the same opinion.

HILL, J.—I am also of the same opinion.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

J. N. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE ORDER

No. 174 of 1899.

BANERJEE, J. STEVENS, J. 1899. 18, December.	}	KANI BHUSAN ROY CHOWDHURY, Decree-holder, Appellant, v. BAMA SUNDARI DEBI, widow of Chandra Roy Chowdury, Judgment-debtor, Respondent.
---	---	---

Costs—Order for costs in remand-order directing 'costs to abide result'—Execution for such costs by successful party when same not specified in decree of Court below—Remand, materials necessary for ascertaining result of, for purposes of awarding costs.

Where an appellate Court after setting aside the decree of the lower Court, remanded the case and the order as to costs provided "costs will abide the result :"

Held—That if the result of the remand was entirely in favour of the successful party he was entitled as a matter of course to the costs in question, even if the decree of the lower Court after remand did not contain any such direction.

That the only materials that should be placed before the Court to determine the result of the remand are the judgment and the decree made in this case.

This was an appeal, preferred on the 17th of May 1899, against the order of J. Pratt, Esq., District Judge of Zillah 24 Pargunnahs, dated the 4th of February 1899, affirming the order of Babu Rajendra Coomar Bose, Subordinate Judge, 2nd Court of that district, dated the 14th of October 1898.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Sharat Chandru Roy Chowdhury for the Appellant.

Babu Upendra Nath Mitra for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

In this appeal which arises out of an application for execution of decree made by the Appellant, the only question that arises for consideration is whether the decree for costs which the Appellant seeks to enforce is capable of execution.

The decree is a decree of the Appellate Court by which a preliminary decree for partition made by the first Court was set aside and the case was remanded for trial on the merits ; and the order as to costs was in these terms, namely, that "costs will abide the result." The amount of the costs of the Appellate Court is specified in the decree, but the order being that costs will abide the result the decree necessarily left it undetermined as to which party was to pay those costs and which party was to receive them. The Courts below have held that this indefiniteness in the decree as to costs makes it incapable of execution.

The learned vakil for the Appellant contends that though the order was indefinite when first made, it has been rendered definite by the result of the remand ; and as that result has been entirely in the Appellant's favour he is entitled to recover the costs in question.

FANI BHUSAN ROY CHOWDHURY v. BAMA SUNDARI DEBI.

We have come to the opinion, though not without some hesitation, that this contention of the Appellant is correct. The decree of the Appellate Court, from the nature of the order made as to costs, could not have been more definite than it is. The only question is whether it was absolutely necessary for the Appellant to have the matter rendered explicitly definite when the case was disposed of by the first Court after remand. That he might have asked that Court when it disposed of the case after remand to make some express order with reference to the costs of the Appellate Court is not disputed; but what the learned vakil for the Appellant in effect urges is that though that might have been done, yet it was not absolutely necessary for the Appellant to do that, and that he would be entitled to the relief he now asks for if he could show that the result of the remand was entirely in his favour, and that he is therefore entitled as a matter of course to the costs in question. If the Appellate Court in its order for costs had left it to the discretion of the first Court to apportion the costs in such manner as it thought proper, the Appellant could not have succeeded in his present contention, because he did not ask the first Court to exercise its discretion and to apportion the costs on the result of the remand. But the Appellate Court left no such discretion to the first Court. It cannot, therefore, be said that it was absolutely necessary for the Appellant to have the matter definitely stated in the decree of the first Court. But here the question arises whether the result of the remand has been entirely in favour of the Appellant as the Appellant contends. Upon this question the materials placed before the Court are not sufficient to enable it to arrive at any decision; and as it was the Appellant's fault that full and proper materials were not placed before the Court, we think that though he is entitled to succeed upon his contention that the decree is not incapable of execution and may ask us to remand the case the remand must be in terms as to costs. We think it right that the Appellant should pay all the costs that have been thrown away, namely, the costs in the first Court and the costs in this appeal, the lower Appellate Court not having made any order for costs. We would add that the only materials which it would be allowable to the Appellant to place before the Court in order that it may come to a decision upon the question whether the result of the remand was entirely in his favour are the judgments and decrees made in the case.

The result is that the order of the lower Appellate Court will be set aside and the case sent back to that Court in order that it may dispose of the appeal after determining the question we have indicated upon the materials just referred to. The Appellant will have an opportunity of placing those materials before the lower Appellate Court; but it will be a condition precedent to this remand taking effect that the Appellant should pay to the Respondent his costs in this and the first Court.

We assess the hearing fee in this Court at one gold mohur.

Case remanded.

J. N. D.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 433 of 1899.

PRINSEP, J.	}	PARMESHWAR SINGH,
HILL, J.		Petitioner,
1899.		v.
14, July.		EMPRESS, on the prosecution of W. A. Cox, Opposite Party.

Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 143, 379—Unlawful assembly and theft—Property in crop grown on another's land on contract to pay latter a certain sum for the crop when grown—Removal of such crop by owner of land.

An Indigo Planter agreed with some cultivators that the former would grow rice on their land at his own expense and take the whole crop paying them Rs. 16 for each bigha. The owners of the land cut and carried away the crop so grown :

Held—That, on the agreement the crop remained the property of the owners of the land which the factory merely agreed to purchase, and that a removal of the crop did not constitute theft but merely a breach of contract remediable in damages.

As the acts did not amount to theft, which was said to be the common object of the accused, conviction for being members of an unlawful assembly cannot stand.

This was a rule, granted on the 8th of June 1899, against an order of the Deputy Magistrate of Motihari, dated the 8th of February 1899, which order was modified on appeal by the Sessions Judge of Sarun on the 14th of April 1899.

The Petitioner, Parmeshwar Singh, owned some lands which he used for the purpose of growing Indigo for a factory. The Indigo crop having failed, the Petitioner and the party with whom he had previously agreed to grow Indigo on his land, turned their attention to using the lands for other purposes. The first proposal made by Mr. Cox, the Indigo Planter, was that the tenants, that is to say, the accused and others, should plant rice and give the factory half the produce; and then the factory would pay the tenants the full rate as allowed for Indigo, that is, Rs. 16 per bigha. The tenants were unable to accept these terms as they had no seed or money for the purpose of cultivation. Thereupon they agreed that Mr. Cox would plant rice on the land, at the expense of the factory, and take the whole crop paying them Rs. 16 a bigha. After this Mr. Cox had the land ploughed and transplanted with paddy and had the field irrigated when it required water. Then on the 25th of November 1899 the accused Parmeshwar and another Ugar Singh with other raiyats came to the land and had the paddy forcibly cut and taken away by their coolies.

Upon these facts the Petitioner and Ugar Singh were prosecuted and tried by the Deputy Magistrate of Motihari who, on the 8th of February 1899, convicted the two accused of offences under secs. 143 and 379 of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced each of them to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one month and to pay a fine of Rs. 100, and in default to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a further period of one month.

On appeal to the Sessions Judge of Sarun, that officer, on the 14th of April 1899, set aside the conviction and sentence of Ugar Singh and affirmed the conviction of the Petitioner, Parmeshwar Singh, but altered the sentence to the term of imprisonment already undergone by him and a fine of Rs. 200.

PARMESWAR SINGH v. EMPRESS.

Thereupon the Petitioner obtained the present rule.

Babus Dasarathi Sanyal and Lakshmi Narain Singh for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause.

The following JUDGMENT was delivered by the Court:—

We think that the Sessions Judge has misapprehended the position of the parties, and the conviction and sentence passed against the Petitioners for theft cannot consequently be sustained.

There appears to have been some agreement between the parties in regard to cultivation and the crop raised on certain lands. The lands were admittedly the lands of the accused and they had been used by the accused for the purposes of growing Indigo for a factory. The indigo crop having failed, the parties naturally turned their attention to using the lands for other purposes. Mr. Cox, the indigo planter, explains that the first proposal was that the tenants, that is to say, the accused and others, should plant rice and give the factory half the produce, and then the factory would pay the tenants the full rate as allowed for indigo, that is, Rs. 16 per bigha. The tenants were unable to accept these terms as they had no seed or money for the purposes of cultivation. Thereupon they agreed that Mr. Cox would plant rice on the land, at the factory expense, and take the whole crop paying them Rs. 16 a bigha. It seems to us that on this agreement the crop remained the property of the tenants as grown on their lands and the factory agreed paying the tenants Rs. 16 per bigha for it; and if it should so happen that the tenants cut and carried away the crop, they would not be guilty of theft, though a suit would lie for damages for breach of contract. The crop, as we understand it, was the property of the accused, which the factory agreed to purchase at Rs. 16 per bigha.

We therefore think that the conviction and sentence must be set aside, and we direct that the fine, if paid, be refunded.

The conviction under sec. 143 will also be set aside, as the common object of the assembly was stated to have been theft, which, as has already been stated, could not, under the circumstances, have been committed.

Rule made absolute; conviction set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 698 OF 1899.

PRINSEP, J.	}	PANCHU SINGH alias
STANLEY, J.		PUNCHANAN SINGH,
1899.		• Petitioner,
30, November.		v.
		UMOR MAHOMED SHEIKH,
		Opposite Party.

Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898), secs. 247, 437—Dismissal of complaint in the absence of complainant in a summons case—Acquittal of one of two accused who alone was present—Revival of proceedings by superior Magistrate, order for, against absent accused.

Dismissal of a case and the acquittal of one of two accused under sec. 247, C. Cr. P., on the ground of complainant's absence and purporting to be a termination of all proceedings relating to that matter, will operate also against a co-accused whose attendance could not be obtained and against whom the trial did not proceed. The order can be passed under sec. 437 setting aside the order and directing the case to be proceeded with against the absent accused.

PANCHU SINGH v. UMOR MAHOMED SHEIKH.

This was a rule, issued on the 19th of September 1899, against an order of J. N. Gupta, Esq., District Magistrate of Maldah, dated the 8th August 1899.

Babu Tarak Nath Chakrabarty for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause.

The facts of the case, so far as they are material to this report, appear from the judgment.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

There were two persons, Enayetullah and Panchu, accused in the case with criminal trespass and theft. The attendance of Panchu could not be obtained and the trial proceeded against Enayetullah. The complainant being absent, the Magistrate under sec. 247, C. Cr. P., dismissed the case and acquitted Enayetullah. He did not acquit Panchu because Panchu had never been before him but nevertheless he “dismissed the case” by which, we understand, he desired to terminate all proceedings relating to that matter in his Court.

The District Magistrate, however, has considered that the order under sec. 247 dismissing the case should be set aside and the case proceeded with as against Panchu. We are not aware of any authority for this order. It is not an order that could properly be passed under sec. 437, C. Cr. P. We accordingly direct that that order be set aside and that no further proceedings be taken in respect of Panchu.

Order set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 781 OF 1899.

PRINSEP, J.	}	THAKUR TEWARY,
STANLEY,		Petitioner,
1900.		v.
11, January.		THE QUEEN-EMPRESS,
		Opposite Party.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 211—False report by a police-officer—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 195—Sanction.

Where a police-officer made a false report regarding a certain offence, which the Magistrate found, after hearing the evidence, to be false, and thereupon sanction was given for the prosecution of the police-officer under sec. 211, I. P. C. :

Held—That it could not be said that the police-officer instituted or caused to be instituted any criminal proceedings against any person and therefore the sanction for the prosecution of the police-officer under sec. 211, I. P. C., was bad in law.

This was a rule, issued on the 7th of November 1899, against the order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Hajipur, dated the 6th of September 1899, sanctioning the prosecution of the Petitioner under sec. 211, I. P. C.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. Hill, Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Charu Chandra Ghose for the Petitioner.

No one appeared to show cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is a matter relating to a sanction under sec. 195, C. Cr. P., granted in reference to a prosecution under sec. 211, I. P. C. The Petitioner is a Sub-Inspector of Police and the offence imputed to him consists in his making a false report regarding a certain offence which the Magistrate found, after hearing the evidence, was a false case. Now, the question we have to decide on this rule is whether, on these facts, the Sub-Inspector could be convicted under sec. 211, I. P. C. We are inclined to think that it cannot be properly said that he instituted or caused to be instituted any criminal proceedings against any person. What he did was, as found by the Magistrate, to make a coloured or false report that a certain offence investigated by him was proved and that he did so, it was said, corruptly. Whether the Petitioner should be prosecuted for any other offence under the Indian Penal Code, it is not for us, in the proceedings now before us, to say, for, no one appears against this rule and, therefore, the only question that we have to decide is what orders should be passed in respect of this particular sanction. We do not mean to say that we have not the power ourselves to grant any sanction that may seem proper under sec. 195, C. Cr. P., but it has been held on more than one occasion that, unless an application for such sanction is made—and there is no application for such sanction in this case—no such order can properly be made. We accordingly set aside the order for the prosecution under sec. 211, I. P. C., because in our opinion the facts stated do not amount to that offence. Whether they amount to any other offence, it is not for us to express any opinion ex parte. The rule will be made absolute.

THAKUR TEWARI v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

Rule made absolute.

S. C. S.

[CRIMINAL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL No. 4 OF 1899.

PRINSEP, J.
• STANLEY, J.
1900.
22, January.

DEPUTY LEGAL REMEMBRANCER ON behalf of the Government of Bengal,
Appellant,
v.
SENYAT ALI and AMJAD
ALI, Respondents.

*Bengal Municipal Act* (III of 1884, B. C.), secs. 155, 156—Ferry—Unlicensed boat—Two-mile limit—Wrongful restraint—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 341.*

Under sec. 155 of the Bengal Municipal Act the farmer of a ferry has a monopoly to a distance of two miles from his ferry but has no right to interfere with a boat plying between one point beyond the two-mile limit and another point within the said limit.

A ferryman has, under no circumstances, authority to demand tolls from persons who are merely passengers in an unlicensed

* SEC. 152.—No person shall be liable to pay any toll for crossing any river or stream at or near a Municipal ferry, unless he avails himself of the means provided by the Commissioners for crossing such river or stream.

SEC. 155.—No person shall keep a ferry-boat for the purpose of plying for hire within a distance of two miles above or below any Municipal ferry without the previous sanction, of the Commissioners, if he plies within the limits of the Municipality, of the Magistrate of the District, if without such limits, or of the Magistrate of the District and the Commissioners, if one of the two banks between which he plies is within, and the other bank is without, such limits.

This section shall not apply to any private ferry which may be in existence at the commencement of this Act.

SEC. 156.—Whoever keeps a ferry-boat contrary to the provisions of the last preceding section, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, &c., &c.

DEPUTY LEGAL REMEMBRANCER v. SENYAT ALL.

boat ; the remedy lies under sec. 156 against the person who keeps the ferry boat without license.

This was an appeal, preferred on the 27th of November 1899, against the order of the District Magistrate of Chittagong, dated the 10th August 1899, setting aside the order of the Assistant Magistrate of Chittagong, dated the 17th of July 1899.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

The Deputy Legal Remembrancer (Mr. Gordon Leith) for the Crown.

The facts of the case material to this report are shortly these :—Certain persons were travelling by sampan in a khal, which flows into the Kurnfuli river. On that river there is a Municipal ferry plying in the neighbourhood of that khal. Complaint was made to the Magistrate by some passengers in a boat going through that khal and after entering the Kurnfuli river crossing over to the opposite side, that they had been stopped by the servants of the ferrymen and been made to pay toll under the Bengal Municipal Act as if they had crossed that river in a Municipal ferry-boat.

This case was tried by the Assistant Magistrate of Chittagong, and a question was raised as to whether the terms of sec. 155 of the Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884, B. C.) in regard to the limits of the ferry would apply to passengers going from a distance of more than two miles through the khal into the river so as to convey them to the opposite bank. For the defence it was contended that the passengers had entered the boat within two miles from the mouth of the khal, and were, therefore, within the terms of sec. 155 of the Act, and that the servants of the Municipal ferrymen were justified in doing what they did and were not guilty of any offence. The Assistant Magistrate, however, held on the evidence that the passengers had entered the boat beyond the limits of two miles, that therefore they would not come within the terms of the Municipal Act and consequently the demanding and obtaining payment of tolls from them by the servants of the Municipal ferrymen and their detention until such payments were made constituted the offence of wrongful restraint under sec. 341 of the Penal Code and he convicted the servants of that offence and sentenced them to pay a fine.

On appeal the District Magistrate held that he was bound to follow a judgment in a precisely similar case, delivered by the Sessions Judge in which that officer had held that the crossing of the bar of the mouth of the khal so as to enter the Kurnfuli river and to land passengers on the opposite bank constituted a breach of the Municipal Act. He accordingly set aside the conviction and sentence.

Thereupon this appeal was preferred by the Local Government against the order of acquittal passed by the District Magistrate.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The matters raised for our determination in this appeal, relate to the construction of the sections regarding Municipal ferries contained in the Bengal Municipal Act. Certain persons were travelling by sampan in a khal which flows into the Kurnfuli river. On that river, there is a Municipal ferry plying in the neighbourhood of that khal. Complaint was made to the DEPUTY LEGAL REMEMBRANCER v. SENYAT ALI.

Magistrate by some passengers in a boat going through that khal and, after entering the Kurnfuli river, landing them on the opposite side, that they had been stopped by the servants of the ferrymen and been made to pay tolls under the Municipal Act as if they had crossed that river in a Municipal ferry-boat.

There was some argument before the Assistant Magistrate, who held the trial, whether the terms of sec. 155 of the Municipal Act in regard to the limits of the ferry would apply to passengers going from a distance of more than two miles through the khal into the river so as to convey them to the opposite bank. For the defence, it was contended that the passengers had entered that boat within two miles from the mouth of the khal and were, therefore, within the terms of sec. 155. The Assistant Magistrate, however, held on the evidence that the passengers had entered the boat beyond the limits of two miles, that, therefore, they would not come within the terms of the Municipal Act and that consequently the demanding and obtaining payment of tolls from them by the servants of the Municipal ferrymen and their detention until such payments were made constituted the offence of wrongful restraint of which he accordingly convicted the servants and sentenced them to a fine.

On appeal, the District Magistrate held that he was bound to follow a judgment in a precisely similar case delivered by the Sessions Judge in which that officer had held that the crossing of the bar of the mouth of the khal so as to enter the Kurnfuli river and to land passengers on the opposite bank constituted a breach of the Municipal Act. He accordingly set aside the conviction and sentence.

An appeal has been made by the Local Government against the order of acquittal. Now, in regard to the merits of the case, we may at once say that the ferrymen under no circumstances had authority to demand tolls from these persons who were merely passengers in an unlicensed boat. The remedy is provided by sec. 156 of the Municipal Act against the person who keeps a ferry-boat without license plying within the prescribed limits. The conviction and sentence were therefore proper and must be restored.

But as a part of this case we have been asked to consider whether the Magistrate is right in adopting as a matter of law the precedent of a judgment of the Sessions Judge in a former case, that is to say, whether the mere crossing the bar of the khal leading into the limits of the Municipal ferry would constitute a breach of the Act. We are of opinion that the view, expressed by the learned Sessions Judge, is erroneous. The crossing of the bar of a stream so as to enter another stream would constitute no breach of secs. 155 and 156. A ferry, as we understand the meaning of that expression in the Bengal Municipal Act, means the exclusive right to carry passengers across a stream from one bank to the other on payment of certain prescribed tolls, and the object of sec. 155 appears to us to be to prevent the crossing of passengers from one bank of the river to the opposite bank by a boat plying for hire without a license within the prescribed limits. On both grounds therefore the order of the District Magistrate on appeal setting aside the conviction and sentence is bad. The order of the Assistant Magistrate is restored.

S, C. S.

Appeal allowed.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. 48 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	ISWAR CHUNDER RAUT,
STANLEY, J.		Petitioner,
1900.		v.
20, February.		KALI KUMAR DASS,
		Opposite Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 256, 257—Cross-examination, right of.

When, after the charge was drawn, the accused claimed the right to have the medical officer re-summoned for the purpose of cross-examination, and the Magistrate refused to allow process except on payment of fees for his attendance, and the Magistrate in his explanation to the High Court said that the accused had the opportunity to cross-examine the witness immediately after his examination-in-chief was concluded but that he had declined to do so :

Held—That under the terms of sec. 256, Cr. P. C., the accused was entitled to claim this as a matter of right and that sec. 257, Cr. P. C., did not apply to the present case.

This was a rule, issued on the 18th of January 1900, against the order of an Hony. Magistrate of Naraingunge, dated the 14th of December 1899, which order was on appeal affirmed by the District Magistrate of Dacca on the 29th of December 1899.

Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Grija Prosunno Roy Chaudhuri for the Petitioner.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The rule must be made absolute. After the charge was drawn, the Petitioner who was the accused in the case claimed the right to have the medical officer resummoned for the purposes of cross-examination. The Magistrate refused to allow process to the medical officer except on payment of fees for his attendance and, in the explanation which he has since submitted in answer to the rule, he states that the accused had an opportunity to cross-examine the medical officer immediately after his examination-in-chief was concluded, but that he declined to do so. The Magistrate, therefore, thinks that the accused was not entitled to a process for the purpose of obtaining the cross-examination.

Under the terms of sec. 256, C. Cr. P., the Petitioner was entitled to claim this as a matter of right. It is only under sec. 257, which does not apply to the present case, that an order such as the Magistrate has passed could have been made. The conviction and sentence are, therefore, set aside, and the Magistrate is directed to allow process to be issued for the attendance of the medical officer for the purposes of cross-examination, and after such cross-examination he should allow the accused to summon such witnesses as he may desire to have examined for his defence and then proceed to decide the case on the evidence on the record.

S. C. S.

*Rule made absolute.[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 102 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	In the matter of MOULI
STANLEY, J.		DURZI, Complainant,
1900.		Petitioner,
20, February.		v.
		NAURANGI LALL, Accused, Opposite
		Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 157, 159, 476—Complaint—Police report—Judicial proceeding—Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 211.

MOULI DUREI v. NAURANGI LALL.

An enquiry can be made under sec. 159, C. Cr. P., only on a report submitted within the terms of sec. 157.

Where the Petitioner laid information to the Police charging a certain person with criminal trespass in his house to commit a particular offence and the Police reported that they did not believe the object was to commit the offence stated, but that they were not disinclined to believe the charge of trespass, whereupon the Magistrate called upon the Petitioner to prove his case, and the latter appeared and declined to take any further proceedings. The Magistrate then took evidence and directed the prosecution of the Petitioner under sec. 211, I. P. C.:

Held—That there was no judicial proceeding before the Magistrate and the order under sec. 476, C. Cr. P., directing the prosecution of the Petitioner was bad.

That sec. 159, C. Cr. P., had no application to the present case.

This was a rule, issued on the 31st January 1900, against the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Madhipura, dated the 25th of November 1899, an application for a reference of which order to the High Court for revision was rejected by the Sessions Judge of Bhagalpore on the 3rd January 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Dasarathi Sanyal for the Petitioner.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Petitioner laid information to the Police charging a certain person with criminal trespass in his house with intent to have improper intercourse with one of the female inmates thereof. The Police reported that they did not believe the object stated but that they were not disinclined to believe the charge of trespass. The Magistrate thereupon called upon the complainant to prove his case. The complainant appeared and desired to take no further proceedings, as, he said, that his witnesses would not give evidence on his behalf. The Magistrate has nevertheless persisted in taking evidence and, in the end, he has directed the prosecution of the complainant under sec. 211, I. P. C., for making a false complaint.

On an application to us, a rule has been granted because prima facie it appeared that an order should not have been passed under sec. 476, C. Cr. P., inasmuch as there was no judicial proceeding then before the Magistrate. The Magistrate in his explanation points out that his proceedings were judicial and were taken under sec. 159, C. Cr. P. We have no doubt that sec. 159 does not apply to the present case. An enquiry can be made under sec. 159 only on a report submitted within the terms of sec. 157, and the police-report made in this matter is not of that description. We are, therefore, of opinion that as there was no judicial proceeding before the Magistrate, the order under sec. 476 directing the prosecution of the Petitioner was bad. We have taken into consideration the facts relating to this matter and we are of opinion that no further proceedings should be taken, the order under sec. 476 being set aside.

Rule made absolute.

S. C. S.

MUSST. MONIJAN BIBEE v. KHADEM HOSSEIN.

cessor. That sec. 539, C. P. C., was a special provision based on Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, the only difference being that under the latter the procedure was summary and that there was no qualification as to who the persons were that were authorised to file the petition therein contemplated. That sec. 539, C. P. C., was introduced for the purpose of safeguarding a trustee against unnecessary suits by a member of the public. He cited Lakshmandas Parashram v. Ganpatrav Krishna (2), Kazi Hassan v. Sagun Balakrishna (3), Vishvanath Gobind Dashmane v. Rmabhat (4), Miya Valiulla v. Sayed Bava (5) and Wajid Ali v. Dinat-ullah (6), and said that the true ratio of the section had been pointed out by Banerjee, J., in Sajedur Raja v. Gour Mohun Das (1) at p. 425.

Mr. Chatterji, in reply, cited Jan Ali v. Ram Nath Mungdal (7) and Neti Rama v. Venkatacharulu (8) and drew attention to para. 24 of the plaint submitting that the allegations contained in it brought this case within the decisions cited by him. He further submitted that the Bombay decisions went far beyond the plain meaning of the section.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

BODILLY, J.—The case must proceed in spite of the preliminary objection. However I do not think that the point is entirely free from doubt, but I must follow, in my opinion, the principle laid down by a large number of cases in the Bombay and the Allahabad Courts which have been cited to me and which deal with this section. The section is worded, as I said during the argument, in a very obscure manner, but it means, in my opinion, that there must be some dispute in existence of such a public nature that the intervention of the Advocate-General is necessary to decide if and by whom a suit should be brought to establish public rights.

In this regard I follow the words of Mr. Justice Banerjee, reported in Sajedur Raja Chowdhuri v. Gour Mohan Das (1), which are as follows :—“This condition was imposed to prevent an indefinite number of reckless and harassing suits being brought against trustees by different persons interested in the trust. Where this condition is fulfilled, and the risk of harassing suits being brought against trustees is thus guarded against, there is no reason why suits brought under the section should be restricted in any other way.”

This dispute is merely one between two entirely private parties, each claiming to exercise rights, as matwallis over wakf property and it is not a dispute of such a public nature as to bring it, in my opinion, within sec. 539 of the Civil Procedure Code, making it necessary that the sanction of the Advocate-General should be obtained. For these reasons I decide that the preliminary objection fails.

Mr. J. N. Chatterji, Attorney for the Plaintiff.

Mr. Satyendra Chunder Mitter, Attorney for the Defendants.

A. N. C.

(1) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 418 at p. 425 (1897).

(1) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 418, 425 (1897).

(2) I. L. R. 8 Bom. 365 (1884).

(3) I. L. R. 24 Bom. 170 (1899).

(4) I. L. R. 15 Bom. 148 (1890).

(5) I. L. R. 22 Bom. 496 (1896).

(6) I. L. R. 5 All. 31 (1886).

(7) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 32 (1881).

(8) I. L. R. 26 Mad. 450 (1903).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1750 of 1901.

BRETT, J. HARA SUNDAR MAJUM-
WOODROFFE, J. DAR, Defendant No. 1,
1904. Appellant,
Heard, 29, July. v.
Judgment, BASUNTA KUMAR ROY
5, August. & ors., Respondents. .

Debutter—Words of dedication—Second appeal—Construction of document—Grounds.

Where a document of title, and which was the foundation of the whole of the Plaintiff's claim in the suit, was misconstrued by the lower Appellate Court :

Held—That it was open to the High Court in second appeal to interfere with the findings of the lower Appellate Court arrived at on a misinterpretation of the meaning of the passages of the document.

NAWBUT SINGH v. CHUTTER DHAREE SINGH (1) referred to.

Where in a deed of gift and dedication the following passage occurred: "The right and power of gift are yours. I and my heirs shall have no liability, claim or right:"

Held—That there was no absolute dedication of the property to the idol so as to constitute the property covered by the same, debutter and inalienable.

This was an appeal preferred on the 22nd August 1901, against the decree of F. MacBlaine, Esq., District Judge of Zillah Pubna and Bogra, dated the 11th of June 1901, reversing that of Babu Mohendra Nath Mitter, Additional Subordinate Judge of that district, dated the 16th of July 1900.

The Plaintiff alleged the property in suit to be debutter and inalienable. The Defendant No. 2 had sold his share of the property to the Defendant No. 1 in Assin 1301. Amongst other reliefs Plaintiff asked to have the sale set aside. The main question which arose in the case was whether the property was debutter and inalienable. The facts of the case clearly appear from the judgment. The question rested upon the construction of the danpatra executed by one, Krishna Mohan Sarma Roy, in respect of the property in dispute in favour of his mother Siddessurree Debya and the Wills of Siddessurree Debya, Alokmoni Debya and Annapura Debya.

(1) 19 W. R. 222 (1873).

The material portion of the danpatra, executed by Krishna Mohan Sarma Roy, was as follows :—

To the feet of Sreejuta Mata Siddessari Debya Thakurain of noble desires and worthy of supreme adoration.

This danarpan-patra is executed by Krishna Mohan Sarma Roy in the year 1246 B. S., (twelve hundred forty-six) to the effect following :— That my purchased taluka 3 anna 15 gundas hissya . . . . . all these properties are in my possession and enjoyment ; and I dedicate all these properties for the sheba (worship) of the idol Lakshmi Narain Chakra Bigrha installed by you, estimating the value thereof at Rs. 50. From to-day's date you do own and hold all the properties mentioned in this danpatra and do continue to perform the sheba (worship) of the idol from the proceeds thereof after paying the sudder malguzari. The right and power of gift and sale are yours. I and my heirs shall have no liability, claim and right. If at any time any body should advance any claim, the same shall be null and void. To the above effect I execute the danarpan patra. Finis ; dated the 25th Kartic of the year mentioned above.

The material portion of the Will of Siddessurree was as follows :—

To the worthy of supreme bliss.

Srimati Annapura Debya, Srimati Bhagirathi Debya and Srimati Alokmoni Debya.

HARA SUNDAR MAJUMDAR v. BASUNTA KUMAR ROY.

A Will is executed in the year 1255 B. S., to the effect following :—

That a 7½ annas share of Kismut Pengna together with Chak Nalkola . . . . . I have been holding possession thereof . . . . . Beside these a 3 annas 15 gundas share of Kismut Pasbagsewa and a 12 annas share of Kismut Chak Pengna . . . . . jama belonged to my son Sriman Krishna Mohan Roy and he has endowed the same under a deed of gift for the services of the deity installed by me while holding possession of all these as also of my purchased properties, I have endowed these properties as devottar for the services of the said deity and with the profits thereof I have been performing the services. I am now in the last stage of my life, and there is no certainty about my existence ; you are my three daughters-in-law and as such, while I am still alive, I appoint you *shebait*s for the performance of the services of the said deity in proportion to the shares of all the endowed properties divided amongst you, you hold possession of all these properties including the chakran land according to the shares specified below, get your names registered in the Collectorate and the zemindar's *serisht*a as may be necessary, pay the sudder rent (mulguzari) and perform the services, and continue to enjoy them according to those shares. My sons, sons' sons shall have no concern in these properties. Finis.

Paragraph 2.—I fix the shares in this way, you Annapurna Debi shall take a 6 annas share, you Bhagirathi Debi a 5 annas share, and you Alokmoni Debi (torn) 5 annas share of all the properties described above, you shall hold possession in proportion to these shares and continue to perform the services. Besides these you shall hold in equal shares my own khanabari (homestead) bari i.e., site of a tank purchased by me from Joy Nath Chakravati, the bari obtained in exchange from Jharu Biswas, and the bari of the 8 annas 15 gundas share on the (illegible) east of the khanabari. You shall be competent for the services of the deity to grant settlement of any of all these properties otherwise you shall have no right of alienation by gift or sale you shall not be competent to appoint any one as shebait, except your own heirs. Finis.

Paragraph 3.—You shall pay in proportion to the aforesaid shares, the sudder jama of Rs. 15-6 annas 13 gundas 1 kara 1 krant (illegible) Company's Rs. 16-7 annas in respect of (illegible) share of Kismut Pengna and Chak Nalkola . . . . . None of you shall act in contravention of the provisions of this Will, and if you do, it shall not be rejected. If it becomes necessary to have recourse to a loan for the performance of the sheva (services) of the deity or for defraying the daily and occasional expenses, you shall do so in proportion to the aforesaid shares, and manage the same. None of you shall be competent to give away or sell the services of the deity or the annual (illegible) lowajima as per schedule given below without the consent of the other, and even if you do so, it shall be null and void, to the above effect I execute this Will. Finis, dated the 9th Kartic, year as above.

The Will of Alokmoni Debya was as follows :—
To

The worthy of supreme bliss Srimutti Gour Sundari alias Parashmoni Debya, wife of Kashi Mohan Rai and mother of Raj Kumar, Nobo Kumar and Basanta Kumar Rai.

This Will (is executed) in the year 1270, twelve hundred and seventy, to the effect following : I am in the last stage of my life ; besides, I have been so much prostrated with cholera, that my life has been totally despaired of. It is now necessary for me, now that I am alive and conscious, to lay down rules regarding the management of my moveable and immoveable properties, the performance of the annual ceremonies, and for the carrying on in a satisfactory manner, of the sheba worship of the idol Lakshmi Narayan. Neither I, nor you shall be competent to do any act in contravention of the rules which are laid down below by this Will. If in future, I or my heirs make any claim or demand in respect thereof the same shall be rejected. Finis, year as above, dated the 6th of Falgun.

Paragraph 1.—You are my daughter-in-law. I have been much pleased with your nursing and attendance. A 5 annas share obtained under the Will dated the 9th Kartic of the year 1255 executed by my mother-in-law the late Siddheswari Debya of the debottar properties of the idol Lakshmi Narain Bagraha Thakur i.e., of the immoveable properties specified below, the same being treated as 16 annas, is my shebaiti interest I am owning and holding the same. The same together with other moveable properties covered by the said Will as well as the stridhan I possess are entirely made over by me to you by this Will, and I do hereby agree that after my death, you will own and hold all the properties specified below and by getting your name published in the sudder and moffasil and by paying the rents and (revenue ?) in respect of the said debottar mehals, according to your own share you with your sons, sons' sons and other heirs in succession, will continue to enjoy and appropriate the same, after performing with the profits, the sheba worship of the idol and the annual ceremonies, etc., according to your pali (turn). No right of alienation by gift or sale is conferred. Except making over the said properties to your heirs, you shall not be competent to appoint any person as shebait in respect thereof or to make any other person owner thereof in any way. You will be competent to carry out the survey and settlement of rents in respect of the debottar lands, to bring the same under cultivation and to let out the same; to cancel and to confirm (the tenures) recorded as chakrans and to have a partition by metes and bounds effected with the co-sharers in respect of the debottar lands. You shall not be competent to do any wasteful act. If you do so it shall be void. Finis.

HARA SUNДАР MAJUMDAR v. BASUNTA KUMAR ROY.

Paragraph 2.—A 5 annas 6 gundas 2 cowris 2 krants share of the purchased tank on account of Raj Krishna Sarkar and the khanabari including the tank which are my nij property together with the buildings, the articles of wood, iron, brass, bell metal, copper, gold and silver, and those of wool and silk which I possess, are given to you by me. You will, in the aforesaid manner, hold possession of all the aforesaid properties, nobody shall have any claim or demand or interest therein. Finis.

The material portion of the Will of Annapurna Debya was as follows :—

In the name of Gour Sundari Debya, wife of Kashi Mohan Rai.

This Will is executed in the year 1272 B. S., to the effect following :—

. . . . . A 6 annas share of all the moveable and immoveable properties which are the debottar properties of the idol Lakshmi Narain Bagraha Thakur, specified at the foot (the Will) executed on the 9th of Kartic of the year 1255 by my mother-in-law the late Siddheswari Debya is my shebaiti property. I have been owning and holding the same. I therefore of my own accord, and in my proper state of body and mind make over to you, by this Will, a moiety of the said share i.e., a 3 annas share. After my death, you will, in my own title be entitled to and hold possession of a 3 annas share being a moiety of my nij 6 annas share of all the properties specified below. You will, upon getting your name registered in the sudder and moffasil according to (your) share, continue to enjoy and appropriate the profits, by paying the rent (or revenue) in proportion to your share, and by carrying out according to your turn, the sheba worship and the annual ceremonies etc., of the idol Lakshmi Narayan. You shall not be competent to appoint any person as shebait in respect of the said properties, to make any person owner thereof in any way or to give away or to sell the same, to any person, other than your heirs. You will have the absolute right to carry on the measurement, and the assessment of rent in respect of the debottar lands and to let out the same and to bring the same under cultivation. You will be competent to annul, confirm and alter the chakran and other (tenures) which are recorded, as appertaining thereto. You will be competent to have a partition by metes and bounds effected with the co-sharers in respect of the debottar mehal. Neither I nor you shall be competent to do any act in contravention of the terms of this Will. If in future I or any of my heirs make any claim or demand in respect thereof, it shall be void. Finis, dated the 15th Sraavan.

Dr. Rash Behari Ghose, Babu Golap Chandra Sarkar and Babu Mohini Mohan Chuckerbutty for the Appellant.

Babu Shyama Prosunna Majumdar for the Respondents.

HARA SUNDAR MAJUMDAR v. BASUNTA KUMAR ROY.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This suit was brought by the Plaintiff (Respondent) to set aside the sale of a share in certain property which the Defendant No. 2 had sold to Defendant No. 1 in Aswin 1301. The Plaintiff's allegation was that the property sold was a share in debuttar property which was inalienable, and that therefore the sale was invalid and conveyed no rights to the purchaser. He accordingly prayed for a decree declaring the land to be debuttar and inalienable, that the deed of sale was invalid and of no effect, and that the Plaintiff was entitled as shebait to recover possession of the property in suit. There was a further prayer that an order which had been passed for the registration of the name of Defendant No. 1 as the owner of the properties should be set aside.

The Defendant No. 1, who contested the suit, denied that the property sold was debuttar property or that there had ever been a valid dedication of the property as such. Other minor points in defence were taken, but the main question for decision in the case has all along been whether the property in suit was a share in debuttar property, and whether there had ever been a valid dedication of the property.

The Plaintiff's case was that in 1246 Krishna Mohan Sarma Roy executed a danarpan-patra or deed of gift and dedication by which he dedicated various properties set out therein, including lands held under various titles as well as a lakhiraj bari and jote, to the worship of the family idol Lakshmi Narayana. The deed was executed in favour of his mother Siddessuree Debya Thakurain, and after reciting that the properties had been dedicated to the idol it proceeds to state "From to-day's date you do own and hold all the properties mentioned in the danpatra and do continue to perform the worship of the idol from the proceeds thereof after paying the sadar malgajari. The right and power of gift and sale are yours. I and my heirs shall have no liability, claim and right." (This, it is to be observed, is the translation of the document by the translator of this Court).

In the year 1255 B. S., Siddessuree Debya executed a Will in which after reciting that she had been in possession of certain properties in her own right as well as of the properties dedicated to the idol by her son Krishna Mohan Roy, she goes on to say : "I have endowed all the properties as debuttar for the services of the said deity and with the proceeds thereof I have been performing the services." She then appoints her three daughters as shebaits of the idol for the performance of the services of the idol in proportion to the shares of all the properties divided among you," and directs that they will get their names registered in the Collectorate, pay the rent, perform the services, and continue to enjoy the properties according to those shares." In paragraph 2 she fixes the shares of her daughters as follows : To Annapurna Debi 6 annas share, to Bhagirathi Debi 5 annas share, and to Alokhamoni Debi 5 annas share. The document then provides : "You shall be competent for the services of the deity to grant settlement of any of all these properties, otherwise you shall have no right of alienation by gift or sale. You shall not be competent to appoint any one as shebait except your own heirs." And in the 4th paragraph the following passage occurs: "If it becomes necessary to have recourse to a loan for the purpose of the sheba (services) of the deity or for defraying the daily and occasional expenses you shall do so in proportion to the aforesaid shares and manage the same." A list of the miscellaneous properties is attached to the Will. This includes a large 'huka' and a napa (boat) with appurtenances. These are strange articles with which to endow the *shebait*s of an idol. As regards these articles in this list too there is the proviso, "If God forbid, any of these articles are required to be sold they shall be taken in proportion to the above shares."

HARA SUNDAR MAJUMDAR v. BASUNTA KUMAR ROY.

The three daughters of Siddessuree afterwards by different Wills left their shares, in defiance of the provisions of Siddessuree's Will, to various persons, none of whom were in fact their heirs at law. The final result of the various transfers is however that an eight annas share of the properties has come to Plaintiff and his two brothers (Defendants Nos. 2 and 3) the male descendants of Alokhamoni, one of the daughters, and the other eight annas share has passed to Defendants Nos. 4 and 5, the male descendants of Bhagirathi, another daughter. This, it is to be remarked, is the way in which the properties would have passed by inheritance, supposing them to have remained purely secular. It is not the way in which they would have passed if the provisions of the Will of Siddessuree had been followed.

The Subordinate Judge before whom the case was tried held that there was no absolute dedication of the property to the idol in the danputra executed by Krishna Mohan, or in the Will executed by Siddessuree. The former document gave to Siddessuree power to sell or make a gift of the property. The Will divided the properties into three shares and distributed them among the three daughters of the testatrix as *shebait*s. He further found that in the receipts given to the tenants the properties were never described as debuttar till 1290 (1887) and the names of Gourhari (to whom the eight annas share now in possession of Plaintiff and Defendants Nos. 2 and 3 originally passed under the Wills of Alokhamoni and Annapurna) and afterwards the names of Defendants Nos. 4 and 5 were registered as "proprietors" and not as *shebait*s. In the Revenue Challans and the Road-cess returns the alleged *shebait*s are described as proprietors. He further held that "there was no reliable evidence that the whole of the profits were devoted to the worship of (the idol) 'Lakhi Narayan.'" He accordingly came to the conclusion that the property in suit was not debuttar property at all, and that the dedication was a mere pretence, and has had recourse to as the family was in debt and engaged in litigation at the time of the execution of the danputra.

He further was of opinion that as the widow of Defendant No. 2 was alive the Plaintiff had not sufficiently proved his title to bring the suit.

He accordingly dismissed the suit with costs.

The judgment and decree of the Sub-

HARA SUNDAR MAJUMDAR v. BASUNTA KUMAR ROY.

ordinate Judge has been set aside by the District Judge on appeal and the suit of the Plaintiff has been decreed. Defendant No. 1 has appealed to this Court.

The judgment of the District Judge is not easy to understand. The commencement certainly conveys the impression that the inclination of the Judge was at first to support the decision of the Sub-Judge, for he arrives at the conclusion that Krishna Mohan "was not free from pecuniary embarrassment at the time of executing the danpatra." He seems however on a further examination of the danpatra to have discovered the names of the idols (sic) Lakhi Narayan on the margin of the document which he had not noticed at first and then to have entirely changed his view of the case. Later on in his judgment he arrives at a conclusion contrary to that previously stated, and remarks: "I do not find any evidence to warrant the statement that the family was involved in debt and litigation at the time of the danpatra."

He next proceeds to interpret the meaning of the danpatra and the Will executed by Siddessuree and adopting a translation of the Bengali words used directly contrary to that of the Subordinate Judge he arrived at the conclusion that there was an absolute dedication of the property to the service of the idol. He has however wrongly interpreted Lakhi Narayan to mean two idols whereas it clearly means one only. He accordingly held that the property in dispute was debutter and as such inalienable, and that the sale by Defendant No. 2 to Defendant No. 1 transferred no right in the property to the latter. He therefore gave the Plaintiff a decree for the full relief claimed.

For the Appellant it has been urged that the learned District Judge has mistranslated and misunderstood the passages in the dinarpan-patra executed by Krishna Mohan Sarma and the Will executed by Siddessuree Dehya, that the Subordinate Judge translated them aright, that there was not an absolute dedication of the property to the idol, that the dedication was a mere pretence to save the property from being sold in satisfaction of the family debts, and that the subsequent conduct of the parties and the dispositions under the Wills executed by the three daughters of Siddessuree leave no doubt that the property was in fact to pass to the descendants of Krishna Mohan and Siddessuree in the manner in which it would have passed under the Hindu law if there had been no dedication.

On behalf of the Respondent it has been urged on the authority of the case of Nowbat Singh v. Chutter Dhare Singh (1), that as the District Judge has interpreted the meaning of passages in the document, none of which contain technical words or phrases as to the meaning of which there could be any doubt, it is not open to this Court in second appeal to interfere with his finding so on the point. We are of opinion that the contention is unsound and that there is nothing in the ruling referred to which supports it. In that case it was held that this Court would not interfere in second appeal because of a mistake as to the meaning of some portion of the evidence which was in writing if it was connected with other evidence affecting its construction. The Judges, it may be observed, in their judgment in that suit are careful to say, "The misconstruction of a document which is the foundation of a suit which is in the nature of a contract or a document of title is allowed to be a ground for special appeal." The documents, which it is alleged on behalf of the Appellants that the District Judge has misconstrued, are documents of title and are the foundation of the whole of the Plaintiff's claim in the suit. The passages as to which there is dispute are the most important for the construction of the documents. The objection cannot therefore be entertained.

HARA SUNDAR MAJUMDAR v. BASUNTA KUMAR ROY.

Now the passage as to which there is dispute in the danarpan-patra is as follows: "Danbikrīr shatyadhikār āpandār āmār o āmār worisonēr kono dāi dāwā o shatyā thakilo nā." The learned Subordinate Judge and the translator of this Court have translated it as follows:—"The right and power of gift are yours. I and my heirs shall have no liability, claim or right." There is as usual no punctuation in the passage in Bengali nor in fact in any part of the document. The District Judge, owing apparently to the absence of any punctuation, appears to have translated it as follows:—"In the right and power of gift, you, I and my heirs shall have no liability, claim or right." The learned pleader for the Respondent does not go so far as to say that the translation of the District Judge is right but contends that this Court is bound by it. We have no hesitation in holding that the translation is wrong and that we are not bound by it.

The juxtaposition of the words supports the meaning given to them by the Subordinate Judge, and the passage as translated by the District Judge is hardly intelligible. We have no doubt then that under the danarpan-patra, power of alienation was expressly given to Siddessurā Debya. There was not therefore an absolute dedication of the property to the idol, so as to constitute the property covered by the same debuttar and inalienable.

The District Judge has held that the Subordinate Judge has erred in translating "Nitya Noimittik" in contradistinction to "Ishwar Sheba" in the Will of Siddessurā as referring to family expenses and has held that it must be taken to mean the daily expenses of the idol as opposed to the expenses at the time of the great festivals. The Subordinate Judge's construction appears however to have been based not on one isolated passage in which the two expressions occur, but on the Will as a whole. In that document the testator first divides all the properties into 3 shares, which, we may observe, is inconsistent with their nature as debuttar property, and then provides that after paying the rent and the expenses of the idol the daughters are to enjoy the properties according to their shares. This provision for enjoyment supports the view that the occasional expenses referred to in the later passages were family expenses. We are unable therefore to agree with the District Judge that the Subordinate Judge was in error in his translation of the words referred to in the document. Further we may add that in our opinion the whole terms of the Will, which bequeathed in different shares to the daughters of the testator all the property, immoveable and moveable, of which she died possessed, and the subsequent dispositions of the properties by Will by her daughters, are entirely inconsistent with the view that there was an absolute dedication of the properties as debttar.

HARA SUNDAR MAJUMDAR v. BASUNTA KUMAR ROY.

As we hold that the findings of the District Judge cannot be supported as regards the foundation of the title on which the Plaintiff has based his suit we are unable to confirm his judgment and decree. We accordingly set the judgment and decree of the District Judge and restore those of the Subordinate Judge, and decree the appeal with costs.

S. C. S.

Appeal allowed.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[APPEAL FROM BENGAL.]

LORD DAVEY.

LORD ROBERTSON.

SIR ARTHUR WILSON.

1904.

26, July

DEBI PERSHAD
CHOWDHRY and others, Plaintiffs,
Appellants,

v.

RANI RADHA CHOWDHRAIN (since deceased) and
others, Defendants,
Respondents.

Pedigree, proof of—Probability of claim—Evidence of relatives, value of—Hindu practice of teaching boys the names of ancestors—Relationship no ground for disbelieving witness—Ordinary caution only to be exercised—Evidence of person who assists in the case, how estimated—Non-acceptance of specific statements, if ground for disbelieving witness generally.

D sought to prove a pedigree which would establish his title as reversioner to a Hindu widow's estate. In it he represented his grandfather as the great-grandson of an agnatic relation of the last male holder. D and his family were well-known and well-settled in the district and D's grandfather in 1812 and his father in 1863 and 1885 publicly asserted their position as agnates in Court and were not contradicted. These circumstances were pointed out as showing that D was not a claimant who dropped from the skies and the pedigree put forward by him could not be treated as in any high degree improbable, though D was still bound to prove it.

To prove the pedigree, D adduced the evidence of some of his own kinsfolk which, the Judicial Committee held, were admissible in quality and derived special weight from the fact that Hindu boys are taught the names of their paternal and maternal ancestors up to the seventh (or even higher) degree as a matter of necessity. Such evidence, it was pointed out, could come only from D's relatives and would be of no value if it came from strangers, and so should not be treated with more than the ordinary caution with which testimony is sifted where sympathy with one side is to be taken for granted.

Evidence of certain other witnesses, who were disbelieved because one of them was a relative of D and was assisting him in the case and the others were connected with this person by blood or service, was held to have been wrongly dealt with. It was shown that this person who had been found by the Court of first instance to be a very respectable zemindar of the district was conceivably supporting his kinsman because he knew his cause to be just.

DEBI PERSHAD CHOWDHRY v. RANI RADHA CHOWDHRAN.

A witness's testimony should not be held to be generally untrustworthy where owing to caution on the part of the Court or inaccuracy on the part of the witness some specific statements made by him have not been accepted.

This is an appeal from a judgment and decree of a Division Bench composed of Rampini and Wilkins, JJ., of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, dated the 13th February, 1900, which reversed a judgment and decree of the first Subordinate Judge of Bhagulpur, and dismissed with costs the suit of the Plaintiff.

The Plaintiff, Debi Pershad Chowdhry, sued as next reversioner to the Hira Bhatokher Estate expectant on the death of Rani Radha Chowdhrain, for a declaration that certain alienations of the estate made by her, and more particularly a deed of gift executed by her on the 21st July 1895, in favour of the Respondents, Nanda Kishore and Ananta Kishore, would be inoperative as against the Plaintiff after the said lady's death. The main question raised on the present appeal was whether or not the Plaintiff had proved that he was the next reversioner. On this point the Courts below differed; the Subordinate Judge found the pedigree proved; the High Court considered the evidence insufficient to establish the Plaintiff's right.

The pedigree is set out in their Lordships' judgment.

The estate of Bharo Kher was originally acquired by grant from the Emperor Jehangir Shah to two brothers, Hira Nand and Vidya Nand, upon whom the title and position of Chowdhry was conferred. The property in suit constituted the share taken by Hira Nand on a partition with his brother with accretions thereto; and whether or not the property was strictly impartible, the eldest member of the family seemed to have been the Chowdhry, and, as such, to have held possession of the whole estate, allowing maintenance to the other members of the family.

In the year 1812 Munni Ram was the head of the family. On the 7th or 27th July of that year he executed a deed of gift of the whole estate in favour of his son, Shib Nag Chandi Nath, and applied for the registration of his son's name in the revenue registers.

The principal Defendant, Rani Radha, was the widow of Shib Nag Chandi Nath.

The question in dispute was one entirely of fact whether Appellant had proved that he was a direct descendant of Deo Chand (see pedigree infra).

The Subordinate Judge more particularly relying on the evidence of 5 witnesses for Plaintiff decided in his favour.

The High Court on appeal decided as follows on the fact:—

"Now, there can be no doubt that the Plaintiff is the son of one Gobind Pershad, who was the son of Kirpa Nath. This is proved by the evidence of the Defendant's witnesses, and there can be no question as to these facts. Therefore what the Plaintiff has to prove is, that Kirpa Nath was the son of Sankar Nath, that Sankar Nath was the son of Manik Chand and that Manik Chand was the son of Deo Chand. If he can establish these three links, he has proved his case. Now, this part of the Plaintiff's case

DEBI PERSHAD CHOWDHRY v. RANI RADHA CHOWDHRAIN.

entirely rests on his oral evidence, and if his witnesses are to be fully believed, he has made out his right to the relief prayed for. The Subordinate Judge, while disbelieving the Plaintiff's witnesses on many material points, has yet credited their statements as to the genealogy of the Plaintiff, although it cannot be within their personal knowledge who were the father of Kirpa Nath, Sankar and Manik. We are, however, unable to place so much reliance as the Subordinate Judge has placed on the statements of these witnesses. They cannot, we think, be regarded as disinterested or reliable witnesses. They are nine in number, and may be divided into two classes: the first class consisting of relatives of the Plaintiff, the second, of relatives and dependants of one Kartik Nath Panday, a connection of the Plaintiff by marriage, and who is undoubtedly supporting and assisting him in the prosecution of this case. Now the witnesses of the first class are Gaibi Nath Panday, who is the Plaintiff's brother-in-law; (2) Kedar Nath Upadhya, Plaintiff's uncle's son-in-law; (3) Shib Dyal Misser, Plaintiff's paternal uncle's son; (4) Rameshwar Nath Dobay, Plaintiff's brother-in-law; and (5) Goura Chowdhraani, the Plaintiff's mother. The second class consists of (1) Kartik Nath Panday, connected with the Plaintiff by marriage, who admittedly assists Plaintiff in this case (see page 100, l. 28); (2) Eknath Sukul, mother's sister's son of Kartik; (3) Jag Lal Tewari, Kartik's cook and servant; and (4) Durdari Lal Panday, Kartik's raiyat. The Subordinate Judge has disbelieved these witnesses in so far as they say that the Plaintiff's father, Gobind, performed the sradh of Shib Nag. He has found that this sradh was performed by the Defendant No. 1 herself, and this we fully believe to have been the case, and yet he has believed them when they depose that they heard the Plaintiff's genealogy recited on the occasion of religious ceremonies, and when they say, too, that the Defendant No. 1 admitted the Plaintiff to be her husband's nearest agnate, and that, with her assent, the Plaintiff's father performed various religious ceremonies as the nearest agnate and heir of her husband. Now, in addition to the distrust in these witnesses' veracity which we must feel owing to the false evidence they have given as to the performance of the sradh of Shib Nag, we must say that it seems to us very unlikely that the Defendant would acknowledge the Plaintiff's father as her husband's nearest agnate and would allow him to perform religious ceremonies on her behalf during the lifetime of Harbaus Tewari, admitted by both sides to have been a nearer agnate of Shib Nag's than the Plaintiff's father, and we cannot accept, as satisfactory, the exposition of the reasons given by the Subordinate Judge which probably induced the Defendant No. 1 to act in this way. It is sufficient for us to point out that the Subordinate Judge himself does not entirely rely on the evidence of the Plaintiff's witnesses as to these alleged admissions. For he says:—'Of other instances, when she is said to have described the relationship between Gobind Pershad and her late husband, the one, when she is said to have prevented Gobind Pershad from accepting an offer of marriage from Panday family of Pakour, may not be reliable. But there is not sufficient reason for disbelieving all of them.' The question would rather seem to us to be whether there is sufficient reason for believing them when they made so many statements which are clearly untrue. Are we able to sift the true part (if any) of their evidence from the false, and would we be justified in relying on them to such an extent as to interfere with the devolution of very valuable property upon persons who are certainly relations, and by no means very remote relations of the last owner of the property. As to the religious ceremonies said to have been performed by the parents of the Plaintiffs, and which are described in the Subordinate Judge's judgment, we cannot, on the evidence adduced by the Plaintiffs, feel confident that they really took place."

DEBI PERSHAD CHOWDHRY v. RANI RADHA CHOWDHRAIN.

In result the Court dismissed Plaintiff's suit. Plaintiff appealed.

In the lower Courts as well as before their Lordships of the Privy Council, a question relating to inter-marriage amongst members of the same gotra had been raised and in the judgment of both the lower Courts this question had been discussed. The Judicial Committee have however decided the question on evidence, and this question of gotra is not adverted to in their Lordships' judgment.

Mr. DeGruyther for the Appellants.

The Rt. Hon'ble R. B. Haldane, K. C., and Mr. C. W. Arathoon for the Respondents, on the question of inter-marriage in the same gotra, referred to the exposition of the law at pp. 58, 59 and 60 of Sir Gooroo Dass Banerjee's book on the Hindu Law of Marriage, Tagore Law Lectures for 1879, and the text of Manu there referred to. The passages, referred to by the Subordinate Judge, of Vyasa, quoted in Vyavastha Chandrika by Shama Charan Sarkar, Vol. II, p. 451, were commented on.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD ROBERTSON.—At the date of the suit, out of which this appeal arises, the Respondents were in possession of the estate in dispute. Their title was a deed of gift in their favour, dated 21st July 1895. This deed was executed by Rani Radha Chowdhraïn, widow of Shib Nag Chandi Nath Chowdhry, to whom the estate had belonged. (This lady, who figures largely in the controversy, will be referred to as the Chowdhraïn). The validity of this deed was immediately challenged by the Appellant Debi Pershad Chowdhry, who, in the suit brought on 12th September 1905, claimed a declaration that he was next reversioner, and that the Chowdhraïn's gift was invalid and not binding on him.

Besides the Chowdhraïn and her donees, the Appellant Debi Pershad impleaded one Ram Nath Chowdhry, who made pretensions to the estate which have now been finally negatived, and certain relatives who make no claim. The contest in the Courts below was between the Plaintiff on the one hand, and the Chowdhraïn and her donees on the other. The Subordinate Judge decided in favour of the Appellant Debi Pershad, but this was reversed in the High Court. After judgment had been given in the High Court the Chowdhraïn died, and the Respondents in the present appeal are between this very lady and the group of persons in question, there is a very significant indication in an episode of her deposition, for her own pleader suggested that Gaibi Nath Panday (who married the Appellant's sister and is an important witness for him) should "repeat the exact words in cross-examination," he being a person "before whom the witness appears."

DEBI PERSHAD CHOWDHRY v RANI RADHA CHOWDHRAIN.

Now of this family (viz., that of the Appellant) thus well known, it is certain that three times, viz., in 1812, in 1863, and in 1885, its representative, for the time being, has, occasion requiring it, made public assertion of his position as an agnate of the Chowdhraïn's husband, and has never met with a denial. In 1812 Kirpa Nath, the Appellant's grandfather, and in 1863 and 1885, Gobind Pershad, the Appellant's father, came into Court in the quality of agnate. These judicial appearances have not the less significance that while Kirpa Nath came into Court adversely to the interests of the Chowdhraïn, the intervention of the father, Gobind Pershad, was invoked by the Chowdhraïn herself.

In face of these facts, it would be affectation to treat the thesis of the Appellant, as expressed in his pedigree, as being in any high degree improbable; but it not the less must be adequately proved. Now the Appellant brings a substantial body of evidence from his own kinsfolk, which is clearly within the Indian Evidence Act. This evidence derives special weight from the considerations explained in the following passage in the judgment of the Subordinate Judge in this case:—

"The Plaintiff himself says, that amongst others he heard the names recited by his father and uncles and Durga Dutt Chowdhry. It is well known, as has been recorded in that first volume of the fifth report from the Select Committee that Hindu boys are taught the names of their ancestors, paternal and maternal, by their parents and other relatives while they are very young, together with their gotras and Prabars, &c. These instructions are given not merely as a matter of curiosity, but as a matter of necessity; for Hindus, and specially the Brahmins, are required to perform their śradhs annually and on Parvana occasions, and to offer water oblations (turpana) for a whole fortnight, or rather 15 days of the dark side of the moon in the month of Bhadro. Their right of inheritance depends upon such ceremonies, and their marriages are regulated according to blood relationship. This way the names of the ancestors up to the seventh degree in ascent (the Sakulyas) at the least are taught, though in most respectable families the names up to the fourteenth degree in ascent (the Samanodakas) are also taught. So, there is nothing unusual in the Plaintiff's statement."

It cannot be doubted that, in its quality, this is admissible evidence. The singular criticism of the High Court is that it comes from relatives of the Appellant; but it is difficult to see where else such evidence could be found; or that in the mouths of strangers it would have any value at all. Each of the persons who has spoken to this pedigree has been carefully cross-examined, and each proves circumstances, apart from the pedigree, which support his knowledge and credit. This is not the case of a pedigree learned by rote, but it is circumstantially corroborated, as far as time and memory admit.

Their Lordships are unable to agree with the High Court in their appreciations of the evidence. For the reason already given, they do not think that the relationship of one class of the witnesses is a consideration which should inspire more than the ordinary caution with which testimony is sifted where sympathy with one side is to be taken for granted. Again the High Court discards, or at least largely discounts, the rest of the Appellant's witnesses because it appears that one of them, Kartik Nath Panday, besides being a relative was "assisting the Appellant" in the case, and the others are connected with this person by blood or service. Their Lordships do not consider this to be a safe or sufficiently discriminating way of dealing with the testimony of these witnesses. They observe that the Subordinate Judge describes Kartik Nath Panday as "a very respectable zemindar of this district;" and it is at least conceivable that he is supporting his kinsman because he knows his cause to be just. Nor do the instances in which the Subordinate Judge declined to accept specific statements of the witnesses seem to imply any reason for distrusting their testimony generally. The matter of the madh, of which the High Court makes much, involves the credit of only one witness; and the other instances in which the Subordinate Judge has not acted on the evidence do not involve more than caution on his part or inaccuracy on the part of the witness.

DEBI PERSHAD CHOWDHRY v. RANI RADHA CHOWDERAIN.

In default of more substantial topics, the learned Counsel for the Respondents bestowed much attention on a supposed anachronism in a pedigree which is printed on pages 63 and 64. It is enough to say that it is adequately proved that there were two persons of the name of Kirpa Nath; and, if this be so, the difficulty disappears.

Their Lordships deem it unnecessary to refer to several ephemeral arguments naturally arising out of a case so voluminous.

Their Lordships are satisfied that the Appellant has established his claim. They will humbly advise His Majesty that the appeal ought to be allowed, the decree of the High Court discharged with costs, and the decree of the Subordinate Judge restored. The Respondents will pay the costs of the appeal.

Solicitors: Messrs. T. L. Wilson & Co. for the Appellants.

Solicitors: Messrs. Watkins and Lampriere for the Respondents.

Appeal allowed with costs.

C. W. A.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 295 OF 1876.

CUNNINGHAM, J

ROSE

1881.

1, August.

SREEMUTTY BIDDA-

DHURRY DASSEE & anr.

Administration of estate by Court—Position of creditors—Default on creditor's part—Creditor admitted so as not to disturb past dividends, position of—Equity.

The general principle governing the position of creditors of an estate under administration by the Court is that they will on due cause shown be let in at any time while the fund is in Court, even where the money has been apportioned amongst the creditors and transferred to the Accountant-General for payment to them.

LASHLEY v. HOGG (1), ANGELL v. HARDON (3) DAVID v. FROWD (4) referred to.

(1) 11 Ves. 602 (1805).

(3) 1 Madd. 529 (1816).

(4) Mylne & Keen's p. 200 (1833).

ROSE v. SREEMUTTY BIDDADHURRY DASSEE.

Where, however, a creditor has been guilty of remissness in the assertion of his claim, his default shall not be allowed to operate so as to prejudice or inconvenience others more diligent than himself.

CATTELL v. SIMONS (5) referred to.

The legal position of a creditor who for some reason or other has been excluded from a first dividend and subsequently gets his claim admitted to the schedule so as not to disturb past dividends, is that if further assets come in he is entitled to have a preferential dividend paid to him out of such assets before any further dividend is paid.

SNEE v. PRESCOT (6) referred to.

This was a motion on behalf of the Agra Bank, one of the creditors in the administration suit against the estate of Heera Lal Seal, to have a preferential dividend paid to them out of the available assets, before the payment of any further dividend.

Mr. Stokoe, on behalf of the Bank, moved on notice in terms of prayer of petition for an order that before any further dividends be paid on the sums realized since payment of last dividend, a dividend be paid to applicant out of the money now in hand so as to place applicant on an equality with the other creditors who have been paid.

He cited sec. 43, of Bankruptcy Act of 1879. He said that he did not refer to this Act as governing this Court but to shew the principle that the Legislature has adopted. David v. Frowd (4), Angell

v. Haddon (3), In the matter of Wheeler (7), Snee v. Prescott (6), Ex parte Boddam (8).

Mr. Allen, contra, cited Cattell v. Simons (5).

Mr. Fox for the Defendant followed Mr. Allen.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

CUNNINGHAM, J.—The question raised in this motion is the claim of the Agra Bank, one of the creditors in the administration suit against the estate of Heera Lal Seal, to have a preferential dividend paid to them out of the available assets before any further dividend is paid.

The original administration decree was made on the 12th June 1876; the Agra Bank proved for Rs. 1,12,617-10-2, inclusive of interest to the 14th April 1876. This claim, however, did not include a sum of Rs. 71,500 representing certain cheques drawn on the Bank in favour of Heera Lal by the Cossipore Hydraulic Company, which sum the Bank had transferred from the account of the Cossipore Company to that of Heera Lal. It was subsequently decided that this transfer was improper and that, on repayment of it to the Cossipore Company, the Bank would be entitled to add it to their claim against Heera Lal and on the 12th September 1876 an order in this suit was made, upon the Bank undertaking to repay the Official

(3) 1 Madd. 529 (1816).

(5) 8 Beavan 243 (1845).

(6) 1 Atkyns 246 (1743).

(7) 1 Sch. and Lef. 242 (1803).

(8) 29 L. J. Bankruptcy N. S., pp. 20, 24 (1860).

(4) 1 Mylne and Keen's p. 200 (1833).

(5) 8 Beavan 243 (1845).

(6) 1 Atkyns 246 (1743).

ROSE v. SREEMUTTY BIDDADHURRY DASSEE.

Trustee on behalf of the Cossipore Company the amount of the cheques and interest, that the Bank's claim against the estate should be amended by the addition of that sum.

On the 16th October 1876 the Bank paid the Cossipore Company the Rs. 71,500 + Rs. 1,674-14-5 interest: but they appear to have taken no steps to see that the order of amendment was carried out and consequently their claim was not amended and on the 12th August 1878 a decree in this suit was passed declaring the creditors and their claims, shewing the Bank as a creditor for Rs. 1,12,617-10-2 only, and omitting the Rs. 73,174-14-5 and on this occasion, again, the Bank failed to take steps for having the decree amended. They say that they became aware of the error only on the 25th April 1880, when they got the first dividend. They then took action and on the 20th December 1880 an order was made in this suit that, without disturbing any past dividend, already declared, the schedule containing the list of creditors attached to the administration decree of the 12th August 1878 should be amended by adding the sum of Rs. 73,174-14-5 to the Bank's claim, thus increasing it to Rs. 1,85,792-8-7 and by inserting in the 4th column of the schedule a direction that the sum of Rs. 71,500 part of the added amount bears interest at 6 per cent. from the 12th October 1876.

The Bank now prays to be allowed, out of assets, which they believe to have been realized since the order of the 20th December 1880, before any further dividend is paid to the other creditors, to be allowed a first dividend on the

Rs. 73,174-14-5 In support of the Petitioners it is urged that all that the order does is to amend the schedule of debts with a proviso that past dividends should be undisturbed, and that the schedule being thus amended there is nothing in the order to prevent the Bank, now that assets are actually in hand, from asking for a preferential dividend in respect of the sum erroneously omitted from the original schedule. On the other hand the creditors contend that the position which the Bank asks for now and would occupy if I make the order, is something very different from that which it occupies under the order of the 20th December 1880. That order, it is urged, gave the Bank merely the right to come in, for the future, and prove pari passu with the other creditors. The order now prayed for would entitle them not only to come in pari passu but to have the first dividend on the Rs. 73,174-14-5, which, as matters now stand, they have lost, paid to them in preference to any other claim of the creditors; and that the present order, accordingly, would materially alter the position assigned to the Bank by that of the 20th December 1880 and be in fact a supersession of that order.

The general principle, governing the position of creditors of an estate under administration by the Court, is that creditors will on due cause shown be let in at any time while the fund is in Court: Lashley v. Hogg (1), Hartwell v. Colvin (2) and that, even where the money has been apportioned amongst the creditors

(1) 11 Ves. 602 (1805)

(2) 16 Beav. 143 (1852).

ROSE v. SREENMUTTY BIDDADHURRY DASSEE.

and transferred to the Accountant-General for payment to them: Angell v. Haddon (3). The effect of the proceedings in an administration suit was clearly explained by the Master of the Rolls in David v. Frowd (4). That though a claim is not established in the first instance, if a person comes in and shows that his failure to do so has not been by wilful default, he will, on establishing his claim, have the same benefit of his title as if he had originally claimed (p. 209). This principle of a rateable apportionment amongst creditors without preference or priority, is obviously just and equitable—it is recognized by our own legislature in the case of the administration of a deceased's estate,—sec. 282 of the Indian Succession Act—in the Insolvency section of the Civil Procedure Code, sec. 356 (d), in the English Insolvency Act, 32 and 35 Vic., c. 71, 543.

It is, however, qualified in its practical application by another important principle, viz., that when any creditor has been guilty of remissness in the assertion of his claim, his default shall not be allowed to operate so as to prejudice or inconvenience others more diligent than himself and, moreover, as in the case of Cattell v. Simons (5), a creditor, who had failed for nine years to obtain due recognition of an equitable mortgage, was not allowed to disturb the existing arrangement by inducing the Court to recognize his security to the detriment of the other creditors. Such being the law applicable to the case, I have to consider what the intention of the order of the 20th December 1880 was and whether it precludes the Bank from asking the relief now prayed. It forbade the disturbance of any past dividend, and as there were sums in Court apportioned under the first dividend but not claimed, it was no doubt directed immediately to the exemption of those sums from any claim on the part of the Bank. Thus the Bank suffered pretty heavily for its default, for, in the first place, it has been kept out of the dividend due on the Rs. 71,500 ever since the declaration of dividend, and in the next place, had further assets not been available, it would have lost its money altogether. Now, however, that further assets have come in, is there anything in the order to imply that the Bank may not claim to have its first dividend paid to it before any further distribution? I do not think that there is; but, on the contrary, that this is the legal position assigned to a creditor, who, for some reason or other, has been excluded from a first dividend and subsequently gets his claim admitted to the schedule “so as not to disturb past dividends.” This view is strongly favoured by the case Snee v. Prescott (6), where the Lord Chancellor observed that a creditor who has admitted “so as not to disturb former dividends,” and by that means must in the first place be brought up equal to the creditors, under the former dividend, before the Commissioners can proceed to make a second.

There is, at any rate, nothing in the order to show an intention to exclude the Petitioners from this advantage and

(3) 1 Madd. 529 (1816).

(4) 1 Mylne and Keen's, p. 200 (1833).

(5) 8 Beavan 243 (1845).

(6) 1 Atkyns 246 (1748).

ROSE v. SREEMUTTY BIDDADHURRY DASSEE.

I think that I ought to read it in the light most favourable to the equity of the case and to what I understand to be the policy of the law. I must therefore admit the claim, but the Bank must pay the costs of and incidental to the application.

Application granted without costs.

A. N. C.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 323 OF 1901.

WOODROFFE, J. } BHUGWAN DAS KHETTRY
1904. } v.
5, December. } NILKANTA GANGULI.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), secs. 372 and 365—Meaning of "other cases" in sec. 372—Mortgage decree—Order absolute for sale—Death of decree-holder—Pending suit—Application for substitution by legal representatives of a decree-holder, if under sec. 372 of C. P. C.

The words "other cases" in sec. 372 of the Civil Procedure Code mean cases other than those specifically mentioned in the previous sections in Chap. XXI. If therefore the preceding sections, though they may have dealt with the event of death, have dealt so with particular cases only, other cases will fall under sec. 372. Sec. 365, C. P. C., refers to death only as occurring before decree.

A mortgage suit, even after a decree has been made and an order absolute for sale passed, is a pending suit until the sale actually takes place, and an application made before sale by the legal representatives of the deceased decree-holder for substitution would fall within sec. 372 of the Civil Procedure Code.

CHUNNI LAL v. ABDUL ALI KHAN (1)
referred to.

PANNA LAL v. AGHORE NATH NEOGY (2)
followed.

This was an application, in Chambers, on a Registrar's summons, on behalf of Baldeb Das Khettry and Basanta Lal Khettry, the sons and executors of the last Will and testament of the Plaintiff abovenamed, now deceased, for an order that the cause-title in the plaint and the register of the suit be amended by substituting therein the names of the said applicants as such sons and executors as aforesaid in the place and stead of the said deceased Plaintiff, and that thereupon, the reference and the sale of the mortgaged property pursuant to the decree and the order made in this suit, and dated respectively the 8th of July 1901 and 2nd of September 1902, be proceeded with and that the costs of and incidental to this application be costs in the cause.

The facts are shortly as follows:—Bhagwan Das Khettry, the Plaintiff, now deceased, obtained the usual mortgage decree against the Defendant on the 8th of July 1901. Pursuant to the said decree the Registrar took the accounts directed thereby and by his report, dated the 5th of December 1901, he found and reported that on the 2nd of July 1902 there would be due to the Plaintiff upon and by virtue of the mortgage security mentioned in the said decree a sum of Rs. 5,531-6-9 and he appointed the 3rd of July 1902 as the day of payment of the said sum together with the Plaintiff's taxed costs. The Defendant failed to pay same and thereupon on the 2nd of September 1902 an order absolute for sale was made. Thereafter the Defendant paid to the Plaintiff the following sums on the following dates :—Rs. 800 on the 5th of September 1902, Rs. 150 on the 6th of April 1903 and Rs. 200 on the 25th of July 1903. No subsequent payment was made by the Defendant either to the Plaintiff, or, after the latter's death, to the applicants.

(1) I. L. R. 23 All. 381, 384 (1901).

(2) Unreported, decided by Sale, J., on 10th May 1898.

BHUGWAN DAS KHETTRY v. NILKANTA GANGULI.

The Plaintiff, Bhugwan Das Khettry, died on 12th of January 1904 leaving a Will whereof he appointed his sons, the present applicants, executors. Probate of this Will was taken out on the 19th of August 1904.

Babu Brajo Lal Mukerji, for the Defendant, opposed the application. He submitted that it was not maintainable. This being a mortgage-decree, sec. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code could not apply. The only other sections applicable were secs. 365 and 372. But if sec. 365 were applicable, this application was barred by limitation (Art. 175A, Limitation Act). Nor was sec. 372 applicable, because the words "in other cases" in that section mean cases other than death, marriage or insolvency of parties: Benone Mohini v. Sarat Chunder (3), but in this case the devolution of interest was by death. Moreover, since an order absolute for sale had been made, the suit was not a 'pending suit.' The decree was final. But even if sec. 372 be held applicable, the application is barred: Vide Art. 178, Limitation Act. He also cited Mungul Prasad v. Girija

Kant (4) and submitted that sec. 365 was the only section which could apply and therefore the application was barred by limitation.

Babu Luckhi Narain Khettry for the applicants, in reply, submitted that the application was under sec. 372 of the Civil Procedure Code. Notwithstanding the order absolute for sale, this suit was a pending suit, for the Defendant could redeem the mortgaged property by paying off the mortgage debt at any time before the actual sale of the property: Vide Ribijan Bibi v. Sm. Suchi Bewa (5). The words "other cases" in sec. 372, C. P. C., do not mean cases other than death, marriage or insolvency, but cases other than those specifically mentioned in the previous sections of Ch. XXI.

The Court delivered a considered judgment :—

WOODROFFE, J.—This is an application for substitution upon a Registrar's summons after a mortgage-decree made in this suit on the 8th July 1901. Pursuant to the decree the Registrar took the accounts thereby directed and made his report on the 5th December 1901. The 3rd of July 1902 was appointed as the day for payment. The Defendant having failed to pay to the Plaintiff the sum due under the mortgage decree and costs, an order absolute for sale was made on the 7th September 1902. Thereafter the Defendant paid to the Plaintiff certain sums of money on the 5th September 1902, the 6th April and the 25th July 1903.

The Plaintiff died on the 12th January 1904 leaving a Will of which he appointed his sons, the present applicants, exe-

(4) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 51 (1881).

(5) 8 C. W. N. 684 (1904).

(8) I. L. R. 8 Cal. 837 (1882).

BHUGWAN DAS KHETTRY v. NILKANTA GANGULI.

utors, and they on the 2nd August 1904 applied for and on the 19th August 1904 obtained probate of their father's Will. They state that, except as above-mentioned, the Defendant has not paid anything either to their father during his lifetime or to them after their father's death and that they are desirous of having their names substituted in the cause-title and register of this suit in place and stead of the deceased Plaintiff their father and of having the sale of the mortgaged property proceeded with. They accordingly on the 22nd November 1904 took out a Registrar's summons for an order that the cause-title in the plaint and the register of the suit be amended by substituting the names of the applicants as sons and executors in the place and stated of the deceased Plaintiff their father and that thereupon the reference and the sale of the mortgaged property pursuant to the decree and the order made in this suit and dated respectively the 8th July 1901 and the 2nd September 1902 be proceeded with and that the costs of and incidental to this application be costs in the cause.

Numerous objections have been taken the effect of which if upheld is admitted to be that nothing can be done and the sale which has been directed by the decree in this suit cannot take place.

Various sections of the Code have been referred to for the purpose of showing that none are applicable. This is not, as has been supposed, a proceeding in execution in the usual sense of the term but a carrying out of the directions contained in the decree passed in this suit, viz., that upon default the mortgaged property should be sold. Then it is said, referring to Ch. XXI of the Civil Procedure Code, that if sec. 365 is applicable the application is barred. That section it has been held does not apply to a suit in which a decree has, as in the present case, been made.

It is unnecessary, however, to consider any section other than sec. 372 under which, it is stated, the application is made.

It is objected that this application does not come within the words "other cases" as these words mean, it is submitted, cases other than death, marriage and insolvency and the event in the present instance is the death of the Plaintiff. But I think that these words mean cases other than those specifically provided for in the preceding sections. If, therefore, the preceding sections though they may have dealt with the event of death have so dealt with particular cases only, other cases will fall under sec. 372: so while sec. 365 refers to death it does so only as occurring before decree.

It is next said that there has been no devolution of interest "pending the suit," but that such devolution occurred after the suit had come to an end, viz., it is alleged, on the 2nd September 1902 after the passing of the order absolute for sale. I cannot accept the contention that absolutely and in every case after decree no suit is pending. For some purposes a suit may still under sec. 372 be treated as a pending suit even after a decree has been made. The determination of the question whether a suit is or is not pending does not always depend upon the question whether a decree has or has not been passed in it,

BHUGWAN DAS KHETTRY v. NILKANTA GANGULI.

This may be so in some cases assuming, as to which there appears to have been expressed some doubt, that the section does not apply to proceedings in execution and that the word 'suit' is limited to proceedings up to the decree. In other cases this is not so for the decree may be of a preliminary character such as decrees directing an account, the settlement of a scheme, partition under sec. 88 of the Transfer of Property Act. It is, however, urged that in the present case there was a final decree when the order absolute was made. In my opinion, however, the suit cannot be said to have come to an end until the actual sale under that order takes place—up to which time as has been recently held by this Court, the mortgagor has the right to pay and redeem. It has, with reference to the doctrine of lis pendens, been considered Chunni Lal v. Abdul Ali Khan (1), that a suit is not at an end until there is a final decree, that in a mortgage suit the lis would certainly not be completed before the passing of the order absolute and would probably not be completed before the actual sale or in the case of a decree for foreclosure until the mortgagee was actually placed in possession under his foreclosure. A case more directly in point is that of Panna Lal v. Aghore Nath Neogy (2).

In this case an application was made on behalf of the Plaintiff on a petition asking that the representatives of the Defendant Aghore Nath Neogy should be made parties in the suit in his place and stead. The suit was a mortgage suit in which a decree was made on the 8th September 1882. The Registrar's report was made on the 28th February 1883 and the 8th September 1883 was fixed as the date of payment of the mortgage money. On the 13th January 1885 an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged premises was made. Subsequently on the 7th February 1885 an office copy of the order was filed in the usual way in the Account Department for the purpose of proceeding to a sale of the property.

In that case Mr. Justice Sale observed as follows:—"In the first place I think the suit is a pending suit, the decree is a mortgage decree and though an order absolute under the Transfer of Property Act has been made yet it is clear that this does not prevent the representatives of the mortgagor from applying, at any time up to the actual sale of the property by tender of the mortgage debt to him, that the proceedings be set aside and the property redeemed. . . . .

"Further it is clear that under the order for sale various proceedings have to be taken, amongst others examination of title requiring examination of witnesses. It is clear also that according to the practice under the Judicature Acts in England, after the usual mortgage decree the suit is held to be a pending suit up to the time when the property is actually sold. For these reasons, I have no hesitation in holding that notwithstanding the order absolute for sale the suit is still a pending suit."

The Court further held that sec. 372 was the section applicable to applications like the application then before it subsequent to decree. This decision, with which I agree, is a clear authority in support of the applicant's contention. No question arises of limitation assuming the case to fall, as I hold it does, within sec. 372. I make therefore the order in terms of the summons.

(1) I. L. R. 23 All. 331, 334 (1901).

(2) Unreported, decided by Sale, J., on the 10th May 1893.

BUGWAN DAS KHETTRY v. NILKANTA GANGULI.

Messrs. G. C. Chunder & Co., Attorneys for the Petitioner.

Messrs. T. H. Wilson & Co., Attorneys for the Opposite Party.

Application granted.

A. N. C.

[FULL BENCH REFERENCE.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE
No. 2310 of 1901.

MACLEAN, C. J.	}	LAL GOPAL DUTT CHOW-
HOSE, J.		DHRY and others,
RAMPINI, J.		Appellants,
STEPHEN, J.		v.
MITRA, J.*		MONMOTHA LAL DUTT
1904.		CHOWDHRY and another,
19, August.		Respondents.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 67
—Liability of auction-purchaser to pay interest at the rate stipulated in the kabuliyat of his predecessor.

A jama was created by a kabuliyat, dated 11th Joista 1287 (1880), in which it was stipulated that interest would be payable on arrears at the rate of 1 anna per rupee per mensem. It was sold for its own arrears in 1895 :

Held—That the lease being a subsisting one the purchasers (in this case some of the landlord decree-holders) bought the jama subject to the terms of the lease one of which related to interest.

This was an appeal preferred on the 18th of November 1901, against the decree of Babu Nunda Lal Kundu, Subordinate Judge of Zillah Khulna, dated the 21st of June 1901, affirming the decree of Babu Sarat Chandra Ghose, Munsif, 2nd Court, at Bagirhat, dated the 28th of February 1901.

The appeal arose out of a suit for the recovery of a three annas share of the arrears of rent due in respect of a jama for the years 1303 to 1306. The Plaintiff's claims, which among other items included a demand for interest on the said arrears at the rate of 1 anna per rupee per mensem, were based on a kabuliyat, dated the 11th of Joista 1287 B. S. (23rd May 1880), and executed by one Ishan Chandra Shaha. According to Plaintiff's allegations the jama came into the possession of the principal Defendants in the following manner: The jama held by Ishan Chandra Shaha having fallen in arrears the Plaintiff and the Defendants Nos. 1 to 7 (who were joint owners of the property) jointly brought a rent suit against Ishan and got a decree in 1299 B. S. (1892). About this time (1300 B. S.) the Plaintiff and the Defendants separated. In 1895 the Defendants Nos. 1 to 6 who were 8 as co-sharers executed the whole rent-decree obtained in 1299 B. S., and themselves became the purchasers at a value of Rs. 100 setting off the purchase-money against the whole decree. The present suit was brought by the Plaintiff who owned a three annas share to recover a three annas share of the arrears of rent for the years 1303 to 1306 from Defendants Nos. 1 to 6 who, he alleged, had purchased the property for themselves without his consent and were in possession of the jamai right of Ishan Chandra Shaha.

The first Court in decreeing the suit, amongst other reliefs, allowed Plaintiff to recover interest on the arrears at the rate of 1 anna per rupee per mensem as stipulated in the kabuliyat and this was affirmed on appeal by the lower Appellate Court.

LAL GOPAL DUTT CHOWDHRY v. MONMOTHA LAL DUTT CHOWDHRY.

The only question raised in second appeal before the High Court was about the rate of interest.

The appeal first came before Maclean, C. J., and Bodilly, J., who on the 9th August 1904 referred the matter to a Full Bench with the following observations :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—This is a suit for arrears of rent for the years 1303 to 1306 Bengal Style with cesses, dāk-charges and interest. The facts as found by the lower Appellate Court are as follows :—

"The facts of the case are that the Defendants Nos. 1 to 6 are eight annas sharers of the property, the Plaintiff is 3 annas co-sharer. The parties remained joint till 1300, when they separated. Before their separation one Ishan Chandra Shaha held a jama of Rs. 285-10-5 for 500 bighas of land. This jama was created by a kabuliyat, dated 11th Joista 1287 B. S. The jama having fallen in arrear, all the co-sharers jointly sued for arrears of rent and obtained a joint decree; in execution of that decree by the Defendants Nos. 1 to 6 only, the jama was sold, and they themselves became the purchasers at a value of Rs. 100 setting off the purchase money against the whole decree, though the previous order of the Court was to deposit the purchase money in Court. Thereafter the Defendant No. 7 sued separately for her 5 annas share of rent and obtained a decree in the lower Court and in the Appellate Court. It is now pending in appeal in the High Court. The Plaintiff therefore brought this suit for his 3 annas share of rent for the years 1303 to 1306, stating that the Defendants Nos. 1 to 6 purchased the property for themselves without his consent, and he did not get possession of the jama right of Ishan Chandra Shaha."

The only question raised before us was as to the rate of interest, i.e., whether the Plaintiff was entitled to recover interest at the rate mentioned in the kabuliyat or at the rate mentioned in sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

There appears to be a considerable difference of judicial opinion on the point. In Alim v. Satis Chandra Chaturdhuri (2), Ali Mamud Pramanick v. Bhagabati Debya Chowdhurani (3), Kali Nath Sen v. Traylukhya Nath Roy (1), and Administrator-General of Bengal v. Asraf Ali and others (4), it was apparently held that interest was not payable at the rate mentioned in the kabuliyat, whilst a contrary view was held in Kishore Lal Dey v. The Administrator-General of Bengal (5) and Rajnarain Mitra v. Panna Chand Singh (6).

This question of the rate of interest was the only one raised before us

In consequence of the above divergence of view we send the case to a Full Bench.

The question we submit is: "Whether

(1) I. L. R. 26 Cal. 315 (1899).

(2) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 37 (1896).

(3) 2 C. W. N. 525 (1898).

(4) I. L. R. 28 Cal. 227 (1900).

(5) 2 C. W. N. 303 (1898).

(6) 7 C. W. N. 208 (1902).

Gopi Nath Mahato v. Mansaram Koomar.

happened. Very good, this is criminal negligence. He should not have gone away while the swinging was on. It is quite clear that the witnesses have been gained over, their demeanour declares this. One is a chowkidar and should be dismissed. Such an inhuman practice must be put down at all costs. It is a blot on civilization. Under sec. 336, I. P. C., I sentence accused Gopi Nath to 3 months' rigorous imprisonment for allowing Mansaram to swing by hooks from a charak pujah pole which accused had a license to conduct.

• Mr. P. L. Roy and Babu Joy Gopal Ghosha for the Petitioner.

Mr. Leith (Deputy Legal Remembrancer) for the Crown.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT WAS AS follows :—

The circumstances of this case are somewhat peculiar. It seems that the Petitioner before us had a license to conduct the swinging during the charak pujah in his village, of which he was the headman. It seems that the persons who swing on these occasions are expected to be attached to the swinging apparatus by cloths. The case against the Petitioner is that he allowed a certain person to swing by hooks inserted in the flesh. He has been convicted in respect of that act under sec. 336, I. P. C., and has been sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment. The offence made punishable by sec. 336 is the doing of an act so rashly or negligently as to endanger human life or the personal safety of others. We are unable to see how what has been brought home to the Petitioner by the evidence can come within the provisions of that section. It has not been shewn to us that the Petitioner was punishable under any other law on the facts found, and as we are clearly of opinion that he was not punishable under sec. 336, I. P. C., we must make the rule absolute, set aside the conviction and direct his discharge from bail.

Rule made absolute :

H. P. C. Conviction set aside.

[TESTAMENTARY AND INTESTATE JURISDICTION.]

SUIT NO. 7 OF 1900.

SALE, J.	}	In the goods of
1900.		MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY,
1, August.		deceased.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), secs. 50 and 87—Revocation of probate—Procedure—Practice—Motion on notice—Rule nisi—Jurisdiction—"High Court," meaning of, in sec. 87.

To revoke a grant of probate on the ground of forgery the proper course is to make an application under sec. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act and not by suit.

KOMOL LOCHUN DUTT v. NILRUTTUN MUNDLE (1) followed.

The "High Court" in sec. 87 of the Probate and Administration Act is not merely confined to the Appellate Jurisdiction of that Court, but includes its Original Jurisdiction, and under that section the High Court exercising its Original Jurisdiction has concurrent jurisdiction with the District Judge for the purpose of exercising all powers provided by the Act.

Proceedings of this description should be initiated by motion on notice and not by rule. The procedure by rule nisi should be confined to applications which are urgent and where relief in the shape of an injunction is required.

This was a rule which had been obtained on the 25th June 1900 by the brother

(1) I. L. R. 4 Cal. 360 (1878).

IN THE GOODS OF MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY.

and the only daughter of the deceased, calling on Ashutosh Mukerjee, the sole executor named in the last Will of the deceased, to show cause why the grant of probate of the Will made to him should not be revoked and why he should not pay the costs of and incidental to this application.

The deceased Mohendra Narain Roy died at Calcutta on the 20th February 1900, leaving him surviving a childless widow, an only daughter by a predeceased wife, a brother and his widowed mother. He left no property, moveable or immovable, within the jurisdiction of this Court save and except a watch and chain, an umbrella and some wearing apparel. He came to Calcutta for medical treatment about 17 days before his death, and died at the house of his father-in-law, Ashutosh Mukerjee.

It was alleged by Ashutosh Mukerjee that prior to his death, that is to say, on the 19th February, the deceased executed a Will whereby he appointed him his sole executor. On the 28th April 1900 Ashutosh, the father-in-law, obtained probate of that Will from this Court, and now the applicants sought to set aside the grant of probate on the ground, first, that this Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the application for probate and, secondly, that the Will was not a genuine Will of the deceased.

Messrs. W. C. Bonnerjee, Garth and Chakravarti in support of the Rule.

Messrs. Jackson and Sinha showed cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

SALE, J.—This is a rule which was obtained on the 25th of June this year by the brother and the only daughter of one Mohendra Narain Roy, deceased, calling on Ashutosh Mukerjee, the sole executor named in the last Will and testament of the deceased, to show cause why the grant of probate of the Will made to him on the 28th day of April last should not be revoked and why he should not pay the costs of and incidental to this application.

It appears from the petition of Ashutosh Mukerjee, the sole executor appointed by the Will, that probate, was issued of the Will of the deceased on the 28th of April 1900.

The present applicants allege that the Will is not the Will of Mohendra Narain Roy, deceased, and that the signature of the alleged testator is a forgery and they therefore ask that the probate should be revoked.

The rule was obtained on various affidavits filed, all of which tended to show that certain of the near relatives of the testator were ignorant of the fact that the testator had executed a Will at the time that the Will was alleged to have been executed. The affidavits also tend to show that although the brother, mother and daughter of the deceased were in the house when the testator was lying ill at the time when the supposed Will is said to have been executed, they never heard that the testator was desirous of making a Will or taking any steps to have a Will executed. It also appears from their affidavits that the testator had his ordinary place of residence or fixed abode not in Calcutta but in the mofussil in the District of Beerbhoom where he possessed landed property jointly with his brother, one of the present applicants, and the suggestion upon the affidavits is that the signature of the testator who was in ill-health was procured by his father-in-law in a surreptitious manner, and that Ashutosh Mukerjee acting in collusion with the widow of the deceased falsely now alleges that the testator before his death executed the Will in question.

IN THE GOODS OF MOHENDRA NARAYN ROY.

In opposition to the rule there are also a number of affidavits filed, which affidavits are relied upon as explaining away the suspicious circumstances attending the execution of this Will.

The affidavits in support of the Will purport to show that the deceased had for some time been dissatisfied with his relatives, particularly with his brother and mother, inasmuch as he thought they were not giving proper attention to him in his illness and not procuring medical attendance for him. The affidavits go to show that the testator went to Suri for the purpose of obtaining medical attendance and that from Suri he was brought down by servants sent up for that purpose to his father-in-law's place in Calcutta; and it is shown that while in Calcutta he expressed a desire to make a Will with the object of providing for his wife who, he said, was not on friendly relations with his relatives. Therefore an attorney was sent for and in the presence of the doctor Atool Bose the Will was read over and explained to him.

That is the general nature of the case I have to try.

I should like to express my sympathy with Mr. Jackson when he said that proceedings of this kind ought not to be initiated by rule but by notice. That procedure would, I think, be advantageous, and the time necessarily devoted in the hearing of the proceeding is shortened inasmuch as an ex parte proceeding on granting a rule is avoided.

I am informed that a learned colleague, sitting on the Original Side lately, also expressed dissatisfaction at this practice. His opinion was that these proceedings in this Court should not be by rule but by motion, and I think that as a general rule that practice is one which ought to be maintained. It seems to me that a rule for the purpose of setting aside probate necessitates very many affidavits and does not come on for hearing for a long period and requires two hearings when one possibly would be sufficient. The rule ought to be confined to applications which are urgent and where relief in the shape of an injunction is required.

Coming to the points raised in this case, a preliminary objection taken is that this Court has no jurisdiction to entertain applications for probate and having no jurisdiction to grant probate it should now be revoked.

Reliance is placed on sec. 87 of the Probate and Administration Act. That section says:—"The High Court shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the District Judge in the exercise of all the powers hereby conferred upon the District Judges."

It has been contended that the "High Court" should be taken as meaning High Court as defined in the General Clauses Act. In the latter Act High Court is defined as the Highest Court of Appeal and, it is said, that as the High Court it has concurrent jurisdiction with the

IN THE GOODS OF MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY.

District Judge in the exercise of powers under the Probate and Administration Act. If that contention were correct, the result would be serious. It would mean that the "High Court" in sec. 87 meant High Court in the exercise of its Appellate Jurisdiction. It is only the High Court exercising Original Civil Jurisdiction which has jurisdiction of issuing probates and granting administration under the Probate and Administration Act, nor is it very clear—if by High Court is meant a Court of Appeal—how that Court could have concurrent jurisdiction with a District Judge. I take it that High Court in its Appellate Jurisdiction cannot have any power or jurisdiction to deal with things that can only be done by the High Court in its Original Jurisdiction. Moreover it has been pointed out that if the High Court has no power under the Probate and Administration Act to grant probates and letters of administration, it is also clear that it has no power to do so under the Charter. Sec. 150 of the Probate and Administration Act expressly provides that "No proceedings to obtain probate of a Will, or letters of administration to the estate, of any Hindu, Mahomedan, Buddhist or person exempted under sec. 332 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, shall be instituted in any Court in British India except under this Act." That section would of course control the power which the Court possesses under the Charter; that has been so held in more than one recent case. But I think it is sufficiently clear that the "High Court" in sec. 87 of the Probate and Administration Act is not intended merely to be confined to the High Court in its Appellate Jurisdiction, but also includes the High Court exercising Original Jurisdiction. It is only by placing that meaning on the "High Court" that any effect can be given to sec. 87. Moreover the words in sec. 87 are in effect the same as in sec. 264 of the Indian Succession Act, and as Mr. Bonnerjee pointed out at a very early period, the definition of District Judge in the Succession Act included the High Court exercising Original Jurisdiction. In the Probate and Administration Act that is not defined. District Judge means Judge of a principal Court of Civil Jurisdiction. In sec. 3 of the Indian Succession Act 'District Judge' is defined in the same way and certainly from that time downwards it has been considered that the definition of District Judge included a Judge of the High Court exercising Original Jurisdiction.

I therefore think that there is no doubt under sec. 87, that this Court, as exercising Original Jurisdiction has concurrent jurisdiction with the District Judge for the purpose of exercising all powers provided by the Act.

The next question is that under sec. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act this Court ought to revoke the probate inasmuch as the grant was obtained by fraud and misrepresentation of the property which the testator possessed within the jurisdiction of this Court. In the petition for probate the testator is described as a Hindu inhabitant of Calcutta, and as regards the property there can be no question that he left no property in Calcutta except a watch and chain, umbrella and wearing apparel.

So far as the property is concerned, no misrepresentation or fraud has been practised on this Court. I am informed that the only property that the testator possessed was the property I have mentioned. I think, having regard to the facts of the case, by reason of the testator having come to Calcutta only for the purposes of medical treatment, that would be a slender ground to charge that fraud was practised upon this Court. It is true he had no fixed abode in Calcutta but that is not alleged and having regard to the circumstances that he came to Calcutta suffering from a serious complaint and it was not known how long he might have remained in Calcutta it seems to me it would be going too far to say that the executor practised fraud on the Court by describing the testator as a Hindu inhabitant of Calcutta. As a matter of fact he resided in Calcutta and had been residing in one sense of the word since the 11th of February and he had come there for no other purpose than, so far as it appears, of having medical attendance.

IN THE GOODS OF MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY.

I think therefore no grounds exist for revocation of the probate on that ground.

Still, a more serious question is raised as to whether or not this Will is not a forgery. Under sec. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act it is provided :—
“The grant of probate or letters of administration may be revoked or annulled for just cause.”

The explanation states that just cause exists where the probate is obtained by making a false representation. I take it that that expression is sufficient to cover a case in which it is alleged that the Will of the testator is a forged document. Illustration (c) cites a case “that the grant was obtained by means of an untrue allegation of a fact essential in point of law to justify the grant, though such allegation was made in ignorance or inadvertently.”

Therefore it appears to me, in accordance with sec. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act, that the proper course, when there is an allegation of forgery, would have been to make an application under sec. 50 to have the probate revoked on that ground. It was suggested, supposing that form was not permitted by the Code, that there was another course by way of a suit to have the probate declared invalid on the ground that the Will was a forged document. I, however, entertain very great doubts whether that course is now open having regard to the Probate and Administration Act.

Although sec. 50 is similar in terms to sec. 234 of the Indian Succession Act, it has been held by a Divisional Bench of this Court, so far back as the year 1878, that the proper course under the Succession Act is to make an application for revocation in a case where it is alleged that the Will is a forgery.

In the case of Komol Lochun Dutt v. Nilruttun Mundle (1) Justice Markby in delivering judgment says :—

“The probate can be revoked upon any of the grounds mentioned in sec. 234. The duty of the Judge upon an application being made under this section somewhat depends upon what has passed on the previous grant of probate. Clearly, however, the first thing for him to do is to direct notice to be given to the executor and all persons interested under the Will or claiming to have any interest

IN THE GOODS OF MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY.

ni the estate of the deceased. It is also clear from sec. 261 that the executor will be the Plaintiff in the regular suit which the Judge will then have to try, and the object of this is clear. It is in order to enable the Judge, if he thinks proper, to call upon the executor to prove the Will again in the presence of the objector, notwithstanding the prior probate, just as in England he may be called upon to prove the Will in solemn form. But a discretion is left to the Judge. Where there had been already full enquiry as to the genuineness of the Will, the Judge would probably take, as he would have a right to take, the previous grant of probate as prima facie evidence of the Will, and so shift the onus on to the objector. But if there had been no previous contention, and the Will had only been proved summarily, or in what is called common form in England, that is, without any opposition, and merely ex parte, to the satisfaction of the Judge, who can know nothing of the circumstances or the state of the family, then he ought in all ordinary cases to have the Will regularly proved afresh, so as to give the objector an opportunity of testing the evidence in support of the Will before being called upon to produce his own evidence to impeach it. For example, when, as has actually happened in this case, the widow applied to have the probate revoked, the District Judge rejected her application without giving any notice to anyone, because she did not make a prima facie case against the Will. We think that was wrong. The District Judge should have summoned the executor and the other parties interested under the Will and in the estate of the deceased, and should, in such a case as the present, have required the executor to prove the Will in the presence of the widow.

"So also when the applicant for probate is about to prove a Will in common form, and a caveat is put in, unless the parties signify their desire at once to proceed to trial, it is preferable that a postponement should be granted so that there may be a formal trial of the matter on all the evidence that either side may be able to adduce." I do not think I should be right in departing from that procedure in a case where forgery is alleged. So far as my knowledge goes, the practice has been in accordance with the statement of Justice Markby, and I would not be right in departing from that procedure. It is obviously unsatisfactory, in a case where forgery is alleged, to come to a conclusion upon issues of that character merely on affidavits. I am bound to say that if it was a matter which could be decided on affidavits, I should hold that the evidence rather preponderates in favour of the Will. It seems to me that the affidavits produced in support of the Will together with the testator's own letter go very far to explain how the Will came to be executed in Calcutta. It has occurred to me whether it is open to me to say that the probate which has already been granted should be considered as prima facie evidence of the Will and that I should accordingly shift the onus on to the objector. After all, little would be gained by adopting that course, and it would be departing from the practice of this Court. I think therefore taking all the circumstances that I ought to set

IN THE GOODS OF MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY.

this case down to be tried and to direct the executor to give his evidence afresh, in the presence of the objector, of the due execution of this Will. The effect would be to revoke the probate. That must follow. That was asked for. This is a case which must be expedited and not relegated to the bottom of the Peremptory List of Causes. I direct the case to appear at the top of the remanet list this day three weeks.

Messrs. Rutter & Co., Attorneys for the Applicants.

Babu M. M. Chatterjee, Attorney for the Executor.

S. R. D.

[TESTAMENTARY AND INTESTATE JURISDICTION.]

HARINGTON, J.	} In the goods of 1900.
19, December.

HARENDRA KRISHNA
MUKERJEE, deceased.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), secs. 50 and 83—Revocation of probate—Procedure—Practice—Motion on notice—Suit to set aside probate—Rule nisi—Will, invalidity of—Grant of probate, irregularity in—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), Sch. IV, Part E, Form 115.

When it is sought to revoke a grant of probate on the ground of the invalidity of the Will, the proceedings should be initiated by a regular suit, using the form of plaint given in the Civil Procedure Code, Sch. IV, Part E, No. 115, and not by motion on notice.

KOMOL LOCHUN DUTT v. NILRUTTUN MUNDLE (1) distinguished.

When it is sought to revoke the grant of probate of a valid Will on the ground of some irregularity in making the grant,

(1) I. L. R. 4 Cal. 360 (1878).

the proceedings should be by motion on notice.

Proceedings of this description should not be initiated by a rule nisi.

IN THE GOODS OF MOHENDRA NARAIN ROY (2) referred to.

This was an application on notice by the widow of the deceased for revocation of the probate of the Will of her deceased husband which had been granted to his brother Parbutty Churn Mukerjee, the executor named in the Will, on the ground that the Will was a forgery. The application was opposed by the executor both on the facts and on the ground that it was wrong in form, but as regards the issues of fact it was agreed that they could not be tried upon the present application.

The Advocate-General (Hon'ble J. T. Woodroffe) and Mr. Sinha for the Applicant.

Messrs. Garth, Chakravarti and J. G. Woodroffe for the Executor.

The Advocate-General.—The proper form of application is by motion on notice as appears from the recent decision in In the goods of Mohendra Narain Roy (2). Sir Lawrence Jenkins when sitting on this side of the Court required proceedings to be commenced by motion on notice and not by rule nisi. The procedure is not by suit as suggested, see Kamol Lochun Dutt v. Nilruttun Mundle (1). The object of this contention is to throw the onus on the applicant, who would be the Plaintiff, in such a suit whereas the onus is on the executor who has not yet proved

(1) I. L. R. 4 Cal. 360 (1878).

(2) 5 C. W. N. 377 (1900).

IN THE GOODS OF HARENDRA KRISHNA MUKERJEE.

the Will in solemn form to so prove it in the applicant's presence.

Mr. J. G. Woodroffe.—According to the usual practice the procedure is by rule nisi. This appears from the judgment in the case cited. But if that procedure is not to be followed, the proceedings should take the form of a regular suit. It is not contended that the mere change in the form of the proceedings would affect the onus. As to the form of pleadings in such a suit, see the unreported case in this Court of William George Black v. William Kenneth Douglas and another, suit No. 225 of 1877, decided by Pontifex, J., on the 2nd May 1878, which was a suit by the son of the alleged testatrix against the executor and executrix to call in the probate of the Will and to have the same proved in solemn form on the ground that the testatrix was not in a sound and disposing state of mind.*

The Advocate-General in reply.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT WAS AS FOLLOWS:—

HARRINGTON, J.—This was an application by the widow of one Harendra Krishna Mukerjee for revocation of probate of the Will of her deceased husband which has been granted to Parbutty

* The prayer of the plaint ran as follows:—
“The Plaintiff therefore prays that the probate of the alleged Will of the said Eliza Anne Black so granted to William Kenneth Douglas and Alice Mary, his wife, be called in, and that it may be ordered that the said alleged Will be proved in solemn form and that all necessary directions be given and the Plaintiff also prays for such further and other relief in the premises as the circumstances of the case may require and as to this Honorable Court shall seem fit.”—REP.

Churn Mukerjee. The application is opposed both on the facts and on the ground that it is wrong in form. It is conceded however that the issues of fact cannot be tried on the present application. The only question therefore to be decided now is whether the proceedings are in proper form and whether any order ought to be made on this application.

The Respondent contends that a rule should have been obtained calling on the executors to show cause why the probate should not be revoked; he also says if that contention is not correct, at any rate, the proceedings should have taken the form of a regular suit. In either view the present application which is by notice of motion would be wrong.

Now the jurisdiction to annul or revoke a grant of probate is given to the Court by sec. 50 of the Probate and Administration Act which enacts that probate may be revoked or annulled for “just cause.” The illustrations and explanation shew that “just cause” may be either a defect in the proceedings not necessarily affecting the validity of the Will or it may be a matter which renders the Will invalid.

In the present case the affidavits disclose that the case for the applicant is that the Will of which probate has been granted is a forgery and that the deceased at the time he was alleged to have made his Will, was incapable of making a disposition of his property.

Chapter V of the Probate and Administration Act, comprising secs. 51 to 87, purports to lay down the practice in the granting and revoking of probates and letters of administration, but while secs. 70 to 73 and 83 indicate that where the grant of probate is opposed by a caveator the proceedings are to be in the form of a suit under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, in which the Petitioner for the grant shall be Plaintiff, and the person opposing the grant Defendant, there is nothing in the chapter to indicate what procedure is to be followed where a grant has been already made and it is sought to set aside that grant. It is said that the practice that has been adopted here, is to issue a rule calling on the executors to show cause why probate should not be revoked. Such a procedure is not directed either by the statutes or by the rules of this Court. It has been disapproved in a recent case, and it is stated that it was not followed by a learned Judge who was lately a member of this Court. Under these circumstances I am not bound by that practice. I agree in thinking that the practice of proceeding by rule is not the proper practice for obtaining revocation of probate. The practice of initiating proceedings for revocation of probate by motion has been approved in a recent case in this Court, and inasmuch as the present application is made in accordance with that practice I think the applicant should have an order made on her motion. But I do not agree with her contention that the case of Komol Lochun Dutt v. Nilruttun Mundle (1) is an authority for the proposition that a grant of probate cannot be revoked by a regular suit instituted for that purpose.

IN THE GOODS OF HARENDRA KRISHNA MUKERJEE.

No doubt that case lays down that the grant of probate cannot be questioned in an ordinary civil suit; but it does not lay down that probate cannot be revoked by a regular suit brought in the Court by which the probate was granted under its Probate Jurisdiction.

That such a suit can be brought is clear from the Civil Procedure Code. In the Civil Procedure Code, Sch. IV, Part (E) which is headed "plaints in suits for special relief," the form of a plaint is given, No. 115 (2), which is to be used by an executor or legatee or next of kin seeking to obtain revocation of probate in cases in which the claim for revocation is founded on the allegation that the Will of which probate has been granted is not the true Will of the testator.

This form is only applicable to a case in which the ground on which relief is sought is that the Will is invalid. It could not be used in a case in which an application is made to recall the grant of probate of a valid Will on the ground of some irregularity in making the grant. Such an application as that will be properly made by motion.

It has been argued that the applicant is entitled to have the Will proved in her presence. This may be so, but that is not the present application. The present application is that the probate already granted should be revoked on the ground that the Will is a forgery. That is in its nature quite distinct and different from a proceeding to have the Will proved in the presence of the objector—or as it would be called in England in solemn form—and it is quite distinct from a motion to recall a grant on the ground of some informality in the proceedings.

In the present case the application is made on the faith of a practice which has been approved and followed in this Court, and on that ground I think an order ought to be made on this motion. But in my opinion in cases in which Form 115, Schedule IV of the Civil Procedure Code is applicable, the proper practice is to bring a suit for revocation of probate using that Form in obedience to sec. 644 of that Act.

(1) 1. L. R. 4 Cal. 360 (1878).

IN THE GOODS OF HARENDRA KRISHNA MUKERJEE.

I do not think therefore it would be right to dismiss the application although in my opinion the course followed by the applicant is not the proper one. Sec. 644 of the Civil Procedure Code and Schedule IV, Part E, Form 115 indicate that when it is desired to dispute the validity of a Will of which probate has been granted, the proceedings should be by a regular suit brought in this Court under its Probate Jurisdiction. *

The order will be that the matter be set down for hearing as a contentious cause, the petition being treated as a plaint, the affidavit of executor as the written statement. Liberty to file a separate written statement in a fortnight.

Babu Nolin Chunder Gupta, Attorney for the Applicant.

Messrs. Carruthers & Co., Attorneys for the Executor.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE

No. 65 of 1899.

PROTAP NARAIN

MUKERJEE and anr.,

MACLEAN, C. J. Defendants, Appellants,
BANERJEE, J. v.

1900.

2, August.

SARAT KUMARI DEBI,

wife of Ram Narain

Banerjee, Plaintiff,

Respondent.

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), sec. 23, cl. (c)—Family arrangement—Compromise of doubtful rights—Suit to enforce compromise by a person not party thereto—Person beneficially entitled under the compromise.

A suit to set aside a deed of partition between the members of the same family was compromised. By the deed of compromise it was stipulated that certain of the parties to the compromise should pay to the Plaintiff Rs. 5,000. The Plaintiff was not a party to the suit or compromise.

Held—That she being a person beneficially interested under the compromise, was entitled to sue for the recovery of the money, if the compromise was a compromise of doubtful rights.

This was an appeal preferred on the 27th of February 1899, against the decree of Babu Mohim Chunder Ghosh, Subordinate Judge, 3rd Court of Zillah Hooghly, dated the 16th of February 1899.

The suit, out of which this appeal arose, was instituted to recover the sum of Rs. 5,000 under the following circumstances: One Nobokristo Mukerjee died in 1297, B. S., leaving four sons, viz., Protap Narain, Ram Narain, Surya Narain and Raj Narain, and four daughters, Sarat Kumari, Kusum Kumari, Khirod Kumari and Fool Kumari, and a widow Nistarini Debi. After his death, the four sons and the widow executed a deed of partition, by which the widow gave up her one-fifth share in her husband's estate and in lieu thereof got four rooms in the family dwelling-house, a house at Bali and a monthly allowance of Rs. 25 from each of her four sons on account of maintenance. The sons further agreed by this deed that they should each of them pay Rs. 1,500 to the mother within five years from its date. Subsequently in 1892, the youngest son Raj Narain instituted a suit against his three brothers and the mother to set aside this deed of partition. This suit was amicably settled and a petition of compromise (solenamah) was filed in the suit dated the 26th May 1893. That solenamah, after providing for a division of the properties left by Nobokristo among the sons, proceeded as follows:—

PROTAP NARAIN MUKERJEE v. SARAT KUMARI DEBI.

"7. We, the four uterine brothers, Protap Narain and Ram Narain and Surya Narain and Raj Narain Mookerjees shall pay Rs. 5,000 to each of our sisters Srimati Sarat Kumari Debi, Srimati Kusum Kumari Debi, Srimati Khirod Kumari Debi and Srimati Fool Kumari Debi within five years from this date. If we do not pay within five years, we shall pay interest on the said sum at the rate of 12 annas per cent. per month. Out of this, I, Surya Narain Mookerjee, shall pay to my third sister, Khirod Kumari Debi, the sum of Rs. 5,000 which is payable to her; and I, Raj Narain Mookerjee shall pay to Srimati Fool Kumari Debi the sum of Rs. 5,000 which is payable to her, and we, both Protap Narain and Ram Narain Mookerjees, shall pay the sum of Rs. 10,000 at the rate of Rs. 5,000 each to Srimati Sarat Kumari Debi and Srimati Kusum Kumari Debi, i.e., each of us shall pay at the rate of Rs. 5,000 to our mother Srimati Nistarini Debi according to the aforesaid stipulation. God forbid, if our mother dies within the said five years, then we shall pay the said sum to the said Sarat Kumari and Kusum Kumari Debi. Khirod Kumari and Fool Kumari Debi shall have no right to the said sum.

"8. That in addition to the monthly allowance provided for by the deed of partition, I, Ram Narain Mookerjee, shall pay to our mother Srimati Nistarini Debi each year at the time of Durga Pujah festival the sum of Rs. 200, and I, Raj Narain Mookerjee, shall pay each year to our mother at the time of Durga Pujah festival, a sum of Rs. 100, and I, Surya Narain Mookerjee, shall pay each year to my mother at the time of the said Durga Pujah festival a sum of Rs. 100.

"9. That the late Nobokristo Mookerjee, the father of us, Protap Narain, Ram Narain, Surya Narain and Raj Narain Mookerjees, and the husband of me, Srimati Nistarini Debi, died without making any Will. Though I, Raj Narain Mookerjee, had previously done some acts in the belief that my father had made a Will, but now I have learnt on enquiry that such belief of mine is groundless, and I, Srimati Nistarini Debi, have also learnt on enquiry that my deceased husband, Nobokristo Mookerjee, had not made any Will, so that in future we shall not be able to make any claim or demand on the ground of the existence of a Will made by him.

* * * *

"13. That I, Srimati Nistarini Debi, on agreeing to take Rs. 100 as monthly allowance at the time of the partition between my sons of the estate left by my husband, relinquished the share receivable by me under the Hindu law, and signed the said partition deed. But as I was then ill in body I declared that I had not perfectly understood the same. But I now having relinquished the share receivable by me after perfectly understanding the above matter and the disputes among my sons having been settled and my sons having agreed to pay at the rate of Rs. 5,000 to my daughters, as stated in para. 7, I am fully a consenting party to the said partition deed and to this ruffanama (deed of compromise) and I fully approve all the terms of the same. In future I shall not be able to make any claim or demand on the ground of my having any share in the properties left by my husband."

PROTAP NARAIN MUKERJEE v. SARAT KUMARI DEBI.

A decree was made in that suit in terms of the said solanamah.

Subsequently in 1894 the mother died, having prior to her death executed a Will, the 3rd clause of which was as follows:

"That my youngest son, Raj Narain Mukerjee, had brought a suit No. 15 in the 3rd Sub-Judge's Court, Zillah Hooghly, to set aside the said deed of butwara which suit having been disposed of, and according to the terms of a solanamah on the 26th May 1893, there is a stipulation in para. 7 of the said solanamah of that date, to the effect that of the sum of Rs. 5,000 payable to my eldest daughter Srimati Sarat Kumari Debi, and the sum of Rs. 5,000 payable to my second daughter Srimati Kusum Kumari Debi, in all Rs. 10,000, by my eldest son Protap Narain Mukerjee and by my second son Ram Narain Mukerjee, shall each pay at the rate of Rs. 5,000. My said sons, up to this time, have not paid any the least amount on that account according to the said stipulation. On my death, the said daughters shall get the said sums from the said sons, under the terms of the said solanamah, (and) my said sons shall not be able to raise any kind of objection to the same. On account of (my) said sons, having agreed to pay such sums to my daughters, I consented to the said ruffanama and on relinquishing the right which had devolved on me to obtain a fifth share of the properties left by my husband by reason of the partition made between the sons, I have been only receiving a monthly allowance. But if, according to the terms of the said ruffanama my sons do not pay to my said daughters each at the rate of Rs. 5,000 payable to each respectively, then on the terms of the said ruffanama and the butwara being cancelled, (the profits which I would have received, of the one-fifth share of the properties left by my husband from the 19th day of Falgun 1297 till the date of my death, after deducting therefrom the amount recovered for my monthly allowance), a four annas portion of such balance amount as I would have received on adjustment of accounts, my daughter Sarat Kumari Debi shall be able to realise from my son Protap Narain Mukerjee and another 4 annas portion my daughter Kusum Kumari Debi shall be able to realise from my son Ram Narain Mukerjee."

Probate of the Will was granted to Ram Narain Mukerjee, the executor named in the Will.

The Plaintiff, Sarat Kumari, now brought this suit against her brothers Protap Narain and Ram Narain, to recover the sum of Rs. 5,000 with interest. In her plaint she pleaded the state of the family at the death of Nobokristo as given above, referred to the deed of partition, the subsequent suit by Raj Narain, the solanamah, the decree on the sarvamah, the death of her mother Nistarini and her Will and alleged that the said sum had not been paid either to her deceased mother or to her. The lower Court made a decree in her favour, from which the Defendants now appealed.

PROTAP NARAIN MUKERJEE v. SARAT KUMARI DEBI.

Mr. Woodroffe and Babu Benode Behari Mukerjee for the Appellants.

Dr. Rash Behari Ghosh and Babu Debendra Chunder Mullik for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—This appeal raises an interesting but not, I think, a very difficult point. The facts necessary to be stated for its due appreciation lie within a very narrow compass. One Nabokristo Mukerjee, the father of the present Plaintiff, died on the 27th Bhadro 1297 leaving him surviving four sons, four daughters and his widow, the mother of all the eight children. A short time after his death, the four sons partitioned the property, and they came to an arrangement with their mother, in lieu of her share under a partition, that she should be entitled to occupy certain rooms and receive Rs. 100 a month. Afterwards one of the sons, Raj Narain Mukerjee challenged this partition and instituted a suit to have it set aside, and he made parties to that suit, his three other brothers and his mother. In that suit, the parties effected a compromise. The present Plaintiff, one of the daughters, was not a party to that suit or to the compromise, which is dated the 26th of May 1893. The compromise evidently was effected after the trial of the suit had begun, because it recites "that after examination of witnesses on behalf of the Plaintiff had commenced, this suit has been postponed for settlement by way of compromise." The clauses in that document to which I need refer are the 7th, the 9th and the 13th.

The 7th clause is in these terms :— "We, the four uterine brothers, shall pay Rs. 5,000 to each of our sisters," naming them, "within five years from this date. If we do not pay within five years we shall pay interest on the said sum at the rate of 12 annas per cent. per month. Out of this, I, Surja Narain Mukerjee, shall pay to my third sister, Khirod Kumari Debi, the sum of Rs. 5,000 which is payable to her, and I, Raj Narain Mukerjee, shall pay to Srimati Fool Kumari Debi the sum of Rs. 5,000 which is payable to her; and we, both Protap Narain and Ram Narain Mukerjee, shall pay the sum of Rs. 10,000 at the rate of Rs. 5,000 each to Srimati Sarat Kumari Debi and Srimati Kusum Kumari Debi, (i.e.), each of us shall pay at the rate of Rs. 5,000 to our mother Srimati Nistarini Debi according to the aforesaid stipulations. God forbid, if our mother dies within the said five years, then we shall pay the said sum to the said Sarat Kumari Debi and Kusum Kumari Debi. Khirod Kumari and Fool Kumari shall have no right to the said sum."

Clause 9 is in these terms :—"That the late Nabokristo Mukerjee, the father of us, Protap Narain, Ram Narain, Surya Narain and Raj Narain Mukerjee, and the husband of me, Srimati Nistarini Debi, died without making any Will. Though I, Raj Narain Mukerjee, had previously done some acts on the belief that my father had made a Will, but now I have learnt on enquiry that such belief of mine is groundless, and I, Srimati Nistarini Debi have also learnt on enquiry that my deceased husband Nobokristo Mukerjee had not made any Will, so that in future we shall not be able to make any claim or demand on the ground of the existence of a Will made by him."

PROTAP NARAIN MUKERJEE v. SARAT KUMARI DEBI.

Clause 13 is in these terms:—"That I, Nistarini Debi, on agreeing to take Rs. 100 as monthly allowance, at the time of the partition between my sons, of the estate left by my husband, relinquished the share receivable by me under the Hindu law, and signed the said partition deed. But, as I was then ill in body, I declared that I had not perfectly understood the same. But I now having relinquished the share receivable by me after perfectly understanding the above matter, and the disputes among my sons having been settled and my sons having agreed to pay at the rate of Rs. 5,000 to my daughters, as stated in paragraph 7, I am fully a consenting party to the said partition deed and to this ruffanama, and I fully approve all the terms of the same. In future I shall not be able to make any claim or demand on the ground of my having any share in the properties left by my husband."

The mother has died within the five years mentioned in clause 7, and the present Plaintiff Sarat Kumari Debi sues her brothers, Protap Narain and Ram Narain for the Rs. 5,000, which she says they agreed to pay her under the solenamah. Her case is that under the terms of the solenamah or compromise, the mother having died within the prescribed period, the Rs. 5,000 is now payable to her. The Defendants contend that she is not entitled to maintain this suit, not being a party to the compromise, and, in support of that proposition, certain cases decided in the Courts in England have been referred to. For instance the cases of In re Rotherham Alum and Chemical Company (1) and Child and Co. v. Thurley (2). It is unnecessary, however, to deal with these cases, for we have to decide this question according to Indian and not according to English law, and the question admittedly turns upon what is the true meaning of sub-section (c) of sec 23 of the Specific Relief Act. That section runs as follows:—"Except as otherwise provided by this chapter,"—and it is not suggested that there is any other provision which touches this point,—“the specific performance of a contract may be obtained (c) where the contract is a settlement on marriage,” which is not the case here, “or a compromise of doubtful rights between members of the same family, any person beneficially entitled thereunder.” The Plaintiff says that this was a compromise of doubtful rights between members of the same family, and that she is a person beneficially entitled thereunder. We have, therefore, to consider, first, whether the compromise in this case is one of doubtful rights within the meaning of the sub-section, and, secondly, whether the Plaintiff is a person beneficially entitled thereunder, so as to entitle her to sue under the statute. There is no such statutory right known to the English law, and consequently English authorities are not of much value in this connection.

(1) L. R. 25 Ch. Div. 103 (1883).

(2) L. R. 16 Ch. Div. 151 at p. 155 (1880).

PROTAP NARAIN MUKERJEE v. SARAT KUMARI DEBI.

There cannot be any reasonable doubt that this was a compromise of doubtful rights. In the first place one of the sons was challenging the validity of the previous partition, and the mother was suggesting, at any rate the existence of a Will by her late husband, and claiming that she did not fully understand the arrangement as to her only receiving Rs. 100 per month and that she was not bound by that arrangement, whilst apparently the other brothers were contesting these claims. There was therefore a contest between the parties. The issue of that contest was doubtful, the rights of the parties under that contest was undetermined, and so far as one can judge doubtful. Under such circumstances it is impossible to say that this compromise was not one of doubtful rights.

Then the question arises whether the Plaintiff is a person beneficially interested thereunder. That, again, is reasonably clear. The words "beneficially entitled thereunder" are wide and comprehensive. the legislature does not confine the right to sue hereby merely to the parties to the compromise. We have then to discover whether the present Plaintiff is a person beneficially entitled under the compromise. She clearly was: she was entitled to Rs. 5,000 on the happening of a certain event which has happened. The mother stipulated, as one of the terms of her joining in the compromise, that the Plaintiff should have this sum of Rs. 5,000, and that being so, she is clearly a person beneficially entitled under the compromise. This disposes of the case. It has, however, been suggested that Kusum Kumari Debi or her representatives are necessary parties to the suit. I do not think this is so. The Plaintiff is not asking for any relief as against her. It is clear on the construction of clause 7 read with clause 13 of the compromise, that each of the two daughters was to receive a sum of Rs. 5,000 and the Plaintiff is not asking for anything more than her Rs. 5,000. Her present claim does not appear to affect in any wise the rights of her sister Kusum Kumari. One other point has been mentioned. It is said, that it has not been decided whether the liability of the two brothers Protap Narain and Ram Narain is a joint or several liability, in other words whether each of them is liable for the whole Rs. 5,000 or only for Rs. 2,500. No difficulty however arises as to this, for Dr. Rash Behari Ghosh for the Respondent is willing to take a decree limiting the liability of each brother to Rs. 2,500 only. The decree must be modified by limiting the liability of each brother, that is, of each Defendant, to Rs. 2,500 only. Subject to this modification the appeal must be dismissed with costs.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion.

S. C. S. Appeal dismissed.

D. C. M.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 539 OF 1900.

PRINSEP, J.	}	ADHAR MIDDAY and
HANDLEY, J.		others, Petitioners,
1900.		v.
4, September.		THE EMPRESS, Opposite
		Party.

Warrant, validity of—Attachment of property in execution of an invalid warrant—

ADHAR MIDDAY v. THE EMPRESS.

*Resistance or obstruction to such execution—
Re-issue of warrant after expired date, legality of—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs 183, 186.*

A warrant for realization of money due under a certificate from a Revenue officer having the force of a decree, dated the 15th February, was issued on the 24th February 1900 and made returnable on the 5th March following. A return was made on the 3rd March that no property of the debtor could be found. On the 30th March the same warrant was re-issued by the Nazir and made returnable on the following day. In execution of this warrant certain cattle belonging to the judgment-debtor were attached, and these were taken away by the debtor's men who pushed one of the peons. The debtor's men were thereupon prosecuted for and convicted of offences under secs. 183 and 186 of the Penal Code.

Held—That after the return of the 3rd March was made, the warrant ceased to be a valid warrant and it could not be re-issued in that form.

That the warrant being illegal, no offence relating to the execution of such warrant was committed by the persons resisting such execution.

This was a rule issued on the 12th of July 1900, against the order of the 2nd Deputy Magistrate of Diamond Harbour, dated the 8th of June 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the District Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs on the 30th of June 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Babu Shyama Prasunno Mozumdar for the Petitioners.

No one appeared to show cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The Petitioners were convicted of offences under secs. 183 and 186, I. P. C., and were sentenced to imprisonment as well as fine, and their appeals were dismissed by the District Magistrate. The question raised in this rule is whether the peons who are said to have been obstructed in the execution of their duty were so acting, that is to say, whether they were acting under valid warrants for attachment of the property of the debtor. The warrant was for realization of money due under a certificate from a Revenue officer having the force of a decree. We find that the warrant bears date the 15th February and it was issued on the 24th idem. It declared that the return was to be made on the 6th of March. It was made over to two peons, Adhar and Bhutnath, for execution. A return was made on the 3rd March that no property of the debtor could be found. On the 30th of March, the same warrant was re-issued and given to Ram Charan and Jogendra, two other peons, and they were directed to make a return on the following day. The evidence goes to show that, under this warrant, they made an attachment of certain cattle apparently belonging to the judgment-debtor, and that these were taken away by the debtor's men who pushed one of the peons. It was pleaded before the District Magistrate in appeal and the same point has been raised before us that no offence within secs. 183 and 186 has been committed inasmuch as the peons were not making an attachment in execution of their duty under a valid warrant. We cannot agree with the view taken by the District Magistrate. It seems to us that, after the return of the 3rd March was made, that warrant ceased to be a valid warrant and it could not be re-issued in that form. If it was the intention of the Deputy Collector to attach property, he should have issued a warrant which could be properly executed. We think, therefore, that on this ground the conviction and sentence should be set aside, and inasmuch as any assault which was committed on the peon was merely nominal, we think that no other punishment should be awarded for that offence. The fine, if paid, will be refunded.

AMEER MIDDAY v. THE EMPRESS.

Rule made absolute :

H. P. C.

Commution set aside.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE

Nos. 298, 299, & 348 OF 1898.

AMEER ALI, J.

BRETT, J.

1900.

17, July.

In No. 298,

HARI SARAN MAITRA,

Defendant No. 2,

Appellant,

v.

JOTINDRA MOHAN

LAHIRI and others,

Plaintiffs, Respondents.

Contribution, suit for—Joint wrong-doers—Bona fide claim of right.

When a joint decree was passed against several persons, no suit for contribution would lie as between them if they were wrong-doers in the sense that they knew or ought to have known that they were doing an illegal or wrongful act. But if they were not guilty of wrong in that sense but acted under a bona fide claim of right and had reason to suppose that they had a right to do what they did, then there is a right of contribution inter se.

Some time in 1826 R, the common ancestor of the parties, dispossessed K of a share in a certain property; after an interval of 27 years and 6 months K brought a suit and proved his right and recovered possession; meanwhile, i.e., 5 years after the dispossession R had died and had been succeeded by his sons. There was nothing to shew that R or after him his heirs knew that they were doing a wrongful or unlawful act or that they did not do it under cover of a bona fide claim of right. The circumstances pointed to the opposite conclusion:

\ Held—That in such a case a suit for contribution lay.*

MERRY WEATHER v. NIXAN (1), BETTS v. GIBBINS (2), ADAMSON v. JARVIS (3), PEARSON v. SKELTON (4), PALMER v. WICK AND PULTENCYTOWN STEAM SHIPPING COMPANY, LD. (5), SREEPUTTY ROY v. LOHARAM ROY (6), SAPUT SINGH v. IMBIT TEWARY (7), and BROJENDRA KUMAR ROY CHOWDHURY v. RASH BEHARI ROY CHOWDHURY (8) referred to.

These were appeals preferred against the decree of Babu Gopal Chandra Banerjee, Subordinate Judge of Zillah Rungpur, dated the 25th of May 1898.

The facts of the case, appear from the judgment.

(1) 8 T. R. 186 (1799).

(2) 2 A. & E 57 at p. 74 (1834).

(3) 4 Bing. Rep. 66 (1827).

(4) 1 M. & W. 504 (1836).

(5) L. R. App. Cas. for 1894, p. 318 (1894).

(6) 7 W. R. 384 (1867).

(7) 1 L. L. R. 5 Cal. 720 (1860).

(8) 1 L. L. R. 13 Cal. 300 (1886).

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHIRI.

Babus Sreenath Das, Saroda Churn Mitter, Pramatha Nath Sen and Tarit Mohan Das for the Appellant in No. 298.

Babus Issur Chandra Chuckerbutty, Kishori Lal Sarkar, Munindra Nath Bhattacharjee, Tarit Mohan Das and Debendra Nath Bagchi for the Appellant in No. 299.

Babus Nilmadhub Bose and Mohini Mohan Chuckerbutty for the Respondents in Nos. 298 and 299.

Babus Nilmadhub Bose and Mohini Mohan Chuckerbutty for the Appellant in No. 348.

Babu Issur Chandra Chuckerbutty for the Respondent in No. 348.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The suit, out of which these appeals arise was brought by the Plaintiff on the 10th September 1894, against the Defendant for contribution. He and the Defendants are the descendants and heirs of Roma Nath Lahiri. Roma Nath and Kali Chandra Lahiri were co-sharers in a certain property called Karaibari, the former being entitled to a twelve annas and the latter to a four annas share. Roma Nath dispossessed Kali Chandra and he and after his death his sons held possession of the share of Kali Chandra from 22nd September 1826 to the 25th July 1854. Kali Chandra brought a suit against Roma Nath and obtained a decree declaring his title to the four annas share and for possession in 1854. After Kali Chandra's death his widow brought a suit against the heirs and representatives of Roma Nath, No. 8 of 1862, for the recovery of mesne profits for the period of her husband's dispossession and that suit was finally disposed of by the High Court in April 1879. The result was that Kali Chandra's widow obtained a decree for Rs. 85,795 with costs and interest at 6 per cent. per annum against the heirs and representatives of Roma Nath.

Roma Nath had died in 1831. Execution under that decree was taken out by the decree-holders. Various sums were paid at different times and finally on Plaintiff's property being attached in execution he had to pay off the balance. His contention was that in consequence he had had to pay more than the amount due from him which should have been proportionate to his share in the ancestral estate inherited by him and the Defendants from Roma Nath.

He claimed to be entitled to receive Rs. 4,670 from Defendant No. 1 and Rs. 9,000-4 from Defendant No. 2 with interest on the amounts claimed at 12 per cent. per mensem during the pendency of the suit and costs against the Defendants severally according to their respective shares or for any modified or altered relief which the Court might think fit to award him.

In the schedule to the plaint he set out his own share and the shares of the Defendants as the basis on which he had calculated the amount due from each. The share of Defendant No. 2, Hari Saran Maitra, he put down at 3 as. 4 p. The share of Defendant No. 1, Nilkamal Lahiri, he put down at 6 as. 8 g. and his own share at 3 as. 18 g. He also set out the share of Kanaktara Debya as 2 as. 10 g. That share after the death of Kanaktara in 1884, admittedly devolved in moiety on Defendant No. 1 and the Plaintiff.

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHIRI.

The payments and liabilities in respect of that share are shown in the schedule to balance and for the purposes of this case that share may be left out of consideration. The only dispute which has been raised in this appeal is with regard to the other three shares.

The Defendants in bar of the suit put forward a plea of limitation, and on that plea the Sub-Judge of Rungpore dismissed the suit on the 25th June 1895. On appeal this Court reversed the judgment and decree of the Sub-Judge on the 16th August 1897, and remanded the suit to him for trial on the merits. As this appeal is against his decision on the merits it is necessary to mention the rest of the defence which was entered into by the Defendants.

The defence, common to both Defendants, was as follows: that the Plaintiff had not paid more than he was liable to pay in proportion to his share in the ancestral estate: and that after the decision of the suit various worthless and groundless objections were set forward by the Plaintiff's mother and guardian Bhubaneswari Debya which delayed the payment in satisfaction of the decree of certain sums of money which were in deposit in the treasury of the Garo Hills and the Court of the District Judge of Rungpore to the credit of Plaintiff and the Defendants and consequently a large amount of interest accrued on the debt due under the decree, any share of which the Defendants denied the Plaintiff's right to recover from them. The objections were all disallowed in judgments passed in 1882 and 1886.

Further it was contended that Plaintiff having voluntarily and without any fraud admitted when the last payments were made in execution of the decree, liability of Rs. 25,700 and having paid that sum under the petition then filed he is bound by that admission: Plaintiff's right to the interest claimed during suit or after was also denied.

For Defendant No. 1 it was further urged that he had paid up the full amount due from him proportionate to his share in the ancestral estate and that he was not liable to the Plaintiff for anything more.

For Defendant No. 2 it was contended that he had paid up the full amount due from him in proportion to his share. It was urged that it was unjust that Plaintiff should claim from Defendant No. 2 contribution on the basis of his having a 3 annas 4 gundas share in the estate, and yet, out of the joint fund taken out of deposit in the Garo Hills treasury, should credit him with an amount proportionate to 2 annas share only.

It was also contended that the Plaintiff did not claim interest for the delay in taking out the share of the joint fund from the District Judge's Court and its payment in satisfaction of the decree as the delay was due to a groundless objection preferred by him in that Court: and that in consequence of a dispute between Plaintiff and Defendant regarding a portion of Defendant's 3 annas 4 gundas share, the Defendant was kept out of possession and enjoyment of 1 anna 4 gundas share of it up to April 1888, and so Plaintiff's claim for interest was in proportion not maintainable: and finally that Plaintiff's claim was altogether without foundation: he had increased the interest on the original decretal debt in consequence of his groundless objections and he had not paid any sum under the decree that was due from the Defendants. The Subordinate Judge framed five issues. The first relating to limitation has already been noticed. The others were :—

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHIRI.

2. Whether the Plaintiff was alone liable for the interest that accrued subsequent to his guardian taking objection to the amendment of the High Court decree and to the payment of the money held in deposit in the treasuries at Rungpur and Garo Hills to the decree-holders?

3. Whether Plaintiff satisfied any portion of the decree payable by the Defendants and, if so, to what extent?

4. Is the Plaintiff entitled to any and what interest on the excess paid by him?

5. What was Defendant No. 2's share in the money held in deposit at Garo Hills and Rungpur treasuries?

On the 2nd issue the Subordinate Judge found that the Plaintiff was entitled to the share of the interest paid by him to the decree-holders for the Defendants. He held that the objections raised by the Plaintiff's guardian did not prevent the Defendant from withdrawing their shares in the sums in the treasuries and for paying off the decree.

On the 3rd issue he found that the Plaintiff had proved that he had paid Rs. 6,215-11-2 for Defendant No. 2, Hari Saran Maitra, and that he had paid Rs. 3,229-11-5 for Defendant No. 1, Nilkamal Lahiri.

On the 4th point he found that the Plaintiff was not entitled to recover interest at 12 per cent. per month from the Defendants during the pendency of the suit as Plaintiff's guardian was responsible for borrowing money at such high interest, and Plaintiff also instituted the suit after a long delay.

On the 5th issue he found that Defendant No. 2 Hari Saran Maitra's share in the deposit in the Garo Hills treasury was two annas at the time the money was drawn by the decree-holder as he was out of possession of 1 anna 3 gundas (apparently this should be 1 anna 4 gundas) share at that time.

With regard to the contention that the Plaintiff was bound by the admission of liability made in the petition filed by the pleader when the Rs. 25,700 was paid in satisfaction of the decree, the Subordinate Judge held that the Plaintiff being then a minor was not bound by the admission of his guardian, even if that admission was voluntary which he doubted.

In consequence of the delay in the withdrawal of the sums out of the treasury of the Garo Hills and the Court of the District Judge of Rungpur caused by the objections put forward by the Plaintiff which were all rejected, the Subordinate Judge held that the Plaintiff was not entitled to recover from the Defendants interest on the sums paid by the Plaintiff for the Defendants.

An objection of law which was not raised in the pleadings was taken during the trial. It was that the Plaintiff being a joint wrong-doer with the Defendants could not sue them for contribution. This objection was rejected by the Subordinate Judge on the ground that Roma Nath was the original wrong-doer and not the present parties to the suit.

Finally he gave the Plaintiff a decree for Rs. 3,229-11-9 against Defendant

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHURI.

No. 1 and for Rs. 6,215-11-2 against Defendant No. 2 with proportionate costs and interest at 6 per cent. during pendency of the suit and up to realization.

Both Defendants have appealed separately to this Court. Defendant No. 2 in appeal No. 298 of 1898 and Defendant No. 1 in appeal No. 299 of 1898. Plaintiff has also preferred a separate appeal No. 348 of 1898 in respect of the interest which had been disallowed.

When the appeals came on for hearing, the learned pleader for the Plaintiff stated that he would not press the Plaintiff's appeal. That appeal is therefore dismissed.

The other two appeals have been argued separately though some of the contentions raised are common to both.

The first common contention which has been raised is that the Plaintiff as a joint tortfeasor with the Defendants cannot recover contribution from them. The general principle as laid down in the leading case of Merry Weather v. Nixan (1) is relied on. That principle is not, however, in our opinion, applicable to the present case. The principle was explained by Lord Denman in Betts v. Gibbins (2) who said:—"The general rule is that between wrong-doers there is neither indemnity nor contribution: the exception is where the act is not clearly illegal in itself." In Adamson v. Jarvis (3) and Pearson v. Skelton (4) it was pointed out that "the rule applies only to cases where the person asking redress must be presumed to have known that he was doing an illegal act and does not extend to cases where he was a tortfeasor by inference of law only." In the case of Palmer v. Wick and Pulteneytown Steam Shipping Company, Ltd. (5) Lord Herschell, L. C., adopted the view expressed by Best, C. J., in Adamson v. Jarvis (3) and pointed out that there is a tendency even in England to limit the broad principle laid down in Merry Weather v. Nixan (1). The law, as thus laid down by high authority, had been followed by this Court in several cases. In the case of Sreeputty Roy v. Loharam Roy and others (6) the Plaintiff was one of several persons including the Defendants who had wrongfully constructed a bandel and caught fish within the limits of a Jalkar belonging to a third party. That third party had in a subsequent suit obtained a decree against the Plaintiffs and Defendants jointly which he had executed against the Plaintiff alone. The Plaintiff sued the Defendants for contribution. In the judgment of the Full Bench delivered in that case the following remarks are made:—"All that we can say is that the Plaintiff was not necessarily precluded from recovering contribution merely because the damages for which the decree was given was caused by a wrong, in the legal sense of the term, done to the Plaintiff." If they (the Plaintiff and the Defendants) were all jointly concerned in committing an act which they knew to be illegal, the Plaintiff is not entitled to contribution. "The general rule [i.e., laid down in Merry Weather v. Nixan (1)] has been

(1) 8 T. R. 186 (1799).

(2) 2 A. & E. 57 at p. 74 (1834).

(3) 4 Bing. Rep. 66 (1827).

(4) 1 M. & W. 504 (1836).

(1) 8 T. R. 186 (1799).

(3) 4 Bing. Rep. 66 (1827).

(5) L. R. App. Cas. for 1894, p. 318 (1894).

(6) 7 W. R. 384 (1867).

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHRI.

greatly modified in later cases. The true principle was laid down by Chief Justice Best in Adamson v. Jarvis (3) in which he said that the rule was confined to cases where the person seeking redress must be presumed to have known that he was doing an unlawful act."

The same view was adopted in Saput Singh and others v. Imrit Tewari and others (7) where the law was laid down as follows:—"The question as to whether as between persons against whom a joint decree has been passed there is any right of contribution at all depends upon the question whether the Defendants in the former suit were wrong-doers in the sense that they knew or ought to have known that they were doing an illegal or wrongful act. In that case no suit for contribution will lie. If the Defendants in the former suit were not guilty of wrong in that sense but acted under a bona fide claim of right and had reason to suppose that they had a right to do what they did then they may have a right of contribution inter se and the Court should inquire what share they each took in the transaction." The same view was taken in the case of Brojendra Kumar Roy Chowdhury v. Rash Behari Roy Chowdhury (8).

Applying the principles thus laid down to the facts of the present case we find as follows:—Some time in 1826, that is nearly 75 years ago, Roma Nath, the common ancestor of the parties in this suit, dispossessed Kali Chandra, possibly a relation, of a share in a certain property; why he did so we do not know, and there is nothing on the record to help us. After an interval of 27 years and 6 months Kali Chandra brought a suit and proved his right and recovered possession. Meanwhile, i.e., 5 years* after the dispossession, Roma Nath had died and had been succeeded by his sons. There is nothing in the record to show that Roma Nath in the first instance or after him his sons and heirs when they entered into possession of the share, of Kali Chandra knew that they were doing a wrongful or unlawful act, or that they did not do it under cover of a bona fide claim of right. The circumstances in fact point to the opposite conclusion, and under the circumstances and having regard to the authorities quoted we are unable to hold that the Plaintiff's suit for contribution against the Defendants is not maintainable. We agree therefore with the Subordinate Judge in rejecting this objection.

We will now take the case on the merits. The Plaintiff in this case is seeking equitable relief against the Defendants and it therefore rests on him primarily to establish his case that he has paid more than his share under the decree. It has been urged by the learned pleader for the Plaintiff-Respondent that in the pleadings no question was raised as to the correctness of the shares set out in the schedule attached to the plaint or during the trial. So far as Defendant No. 1 is concerned, this seems to be correct, and is in fact admitted by his pleader. So far as Defendant No. 2 is concerned, it appears that, after the remand by this Court, he put in a petition to the Sub-Judge on the 13th. Magh 1304 (25th January 1898) in which he prayed that two additional issues might

(3) 4 Bing. Rep. 86 (1827).

(7) I. L. R. 5 Cal. 720 (1889).

(8) I. L. R. 13 Cal. 300 (1886).

SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LATHI.

be framed and tried. They were as

(1) Is the Defendant liable for more than two annas share of the debt and interest? (2) Is the Plaintiff legally entitled to a decree for contribution as prayed for by him and is the Plaintiff entitled to any relief, he being one of the tortfeasors.

Arguments appear to have been heard on the subject of the petition but no order with regard to it was passed. We find however no discussion of the shares of the parties in the judgment of the Sub-Judge though we do find that the question of the Plaintiff's right as a joint tortfeasor to sue for contribution was considered. For Defendant No. 1 it is contended that the question can be considered by this Court, such order being passed with regard to costs as may seem fit.

Now the Plaintiff estimates his share at 3 annas 18 gundas in the ancestral property, apart from the share inherited by him from Kanaktara on her death. As already noticed, there is no dispute about Kanaktara's share or the respective liabilities in respect of it of Plaintiff and Defendant No. 1. It has been dealt with separately. In the schedule of accounts a complete adjustment in respect of it is exhibited and we may omit that share from consideration. We have to deal with the respective shares of the parties of which they were in possession from September 1826 to 25th July 1854,—while Plaintiff says that he was in possession of a share of 3 annas 18 gundas—the case for the Defendant is that he was in possession of a 5 annas share.

Of late years there appears to have been a good deal of litigation between the parties and in order to show what that litigation was about and at the same time apparently to prove what his share in the ancestral property was during the years in question the Plaintiff has filed several copies of proceedings in Court and amongst others a copy of a judgment of this Court dated the 5th September 1892. Similarly, for the Defendant, copies of petitions, judgments and other proceedings were filed. It is to be observed that in this appeal each party wishes to make use of those documents to prove that the pleadings and conduct of his opponent in those proceedings support his own case in this Court. In fact they want to prove from those proceedings that each of them was in possession of a smaller share than is now alleged and his adversary was in possession of a larger share.

It rests however with the Plaintiff to prove his share first. He says his share was 3 annas 18 gundas and he must show how he arrives at it.

Roma Nath, the common ancestor of the Plaintiff and Defendants, had 5 sons. Ordinarily on his death they would have succeeded to his estate in equal shares of one-fifth or 3 annas 4 gundas each. As a matter of fact they have not so succeeded. Defendant No. 2 is the only descendant who is now admittedly entitled to a 3 annas 4 gundas share but his right to it was only ascertained after a suit for that purpose had been instituted by his mother on the 26th August 1870 (No. 42 of 1870). The only explanation of the alteration in the shares which came to the heirs of Roma Nath, which we can find on the record, is to be gathered from the judgment of this

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHRI.

Court (NORRIS and BEVERLEY, JJ.) dated the 6th September 1892, which, as noticed above, was filed by the Plaintiff. The whole history of the devolution of the shares and the litigation between the parties is fully and lucidly set out in that judgment. It is not possible for us now to say where the facts stated in the judgment were gathered from, i.e., whether from the arguments of the counsel, or the pleadings or judgments in the previous cases. But they appear to us to be correct, and it hardly rests with the Plaintiff to dispute them.

There can be no doubt that on the 26th August 1870 Uma Sundari instituted a suit against Bhubaneswari, the mother and guardian of the Plaintiff, Nilkamal Defendant No. 1, and Kanaktara (since deceased and whose property has been inherited by Plaintiff and Defendant No. 1) to recover possession of 1 anna 4 gundas share of the property of which she said she had been dispossessed out of the 3 annas 4 gundas share which devolved on her grandfather on the death of Roma Nath. In opposition to her claim a copy of a deed of (annoomati annoogya patra) settlement said to have been executed by Roma Nath in October 1826 and a deed of conveyance of 10 gundas of the share said to have been executed by Uma Sundari's mother Chandramani to Shib Nath, the karta, or manager of the joint family, dated March 1856, were propounded by the Defendants. The suit was finally disposed of on appeal by the High Court. The conveyance was held not to be binding on Uma Sundari and the documentary evidence to prove the settlement was held to be inadmissible. A decree for 3 annas 4 gundas share was granted in favour of Uma Sundari. This decree was affirmed by the Privy Council on the 20th November 1880.

In spite, however, of the result of that suit there can be no doubt [see judgment of the Privy Council in Bhubaneswari Devi v. Hari Saran Moitra (9)] that there was some deed executed by Roma Nath of the description of the deed of settlement and that the arrangement which it purported to make was acted upon. It is only on that theory that the shares at present claimed and held by the Plaintiff and Defendant No. 1 can be explained. The statement of the shares then created and the devolution of those shares on the heirs and descendants of Roma Nath are fully set out in the judgment of this Court to which reference has been made previously. By the settlement Roma Nath kept 3 annas for himself and his wife, gave 3 annas to his eldest son, and 2 annas 10 gundas to each of his younger sons.

Kanaktara was the widow of the eldest son. Roma Nath died in 1831, and on the death of his widow his 3 annas devolved in equal shares on the two surviving male descendants, Nilkamal and Shib Nath. Shib Nath is the father of Plaintiff and his share then became 4 annas. In March 1856 the grandmother of Defendant No. 2 Chandramoni, Kanaktara and Chandramani, widow of the deceased third son of Roma Nath, are said to have conveyed 10 gundas each of their shares to Shib Nath. Shib Nath appears to have been then the manager of the family. This made Shib Nath's share 5 annas 10 gundas. Shib Nath made a gift of 10 gundas to Nilkamal, Defendant No. 1, and this left him with 5 annas which devolved on his death on his widow Bhoobaneswari.

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHIRI.

The share of Nilkamal by inheritance from Jagadiswari by gift from Shibnath and by inheritance from Chandramani amounted to 6 annas 18 gundas. The 10 gundas was however given after 1856.

After the suit brought by Uma Sundari, mother of Defendant No. 2, and daughter of Chandramani, in 1870, had been disposed of and a share of 1 anna 4 gundas had been decreed to her in addition to the share of 2 annas of which she was then in possession, 1 anna 2 gundas were taken from Plaintiff's share and 2 gundas from the share of Defendant No. 1 which was then 6 annas 10 gundas.

According then to the facts as they appear in the judgment and which afford the only explanation which has been offered to us of the shares claimed by the Plaintiff and Defendant No. 1, it appears to us that there can be no doubt that between 1826 and 1854 the shares in respect of which the Plaintiff must be held to be liable under the decree amounted to 5 annas. His father Shib Nath was then the karta of the family and it seems impossible to believe that when he, in opposition to Uma Sundari's claim, put forward the deed of settlement and the conveyances he did not act according to them in appropriating the profits of the estate among the different co-sharers. The deed of settlement appears to have disappeared between 1826 and 1870, but it seems to have been produced and referred to in the proceedings in 1832 and 1837. It was not therefore a purely imaginary document though this Court held in Uma Sundari's case that the evidence adduced to support it was insufficient.

From this judgment and from the facts as they appear in the case it appears then that for the years 1826 to 1854 the Plaintiff's share must be taken as 5 annas, the share of Defendant No. 2 as 2 annas 10 gundas and the share of Defendant No. 1 as 6 annas. This excludes the 2 annas 10 gundas share of Kanaktara as to which there is no dispute. That Plaintiff's share was 5 annas is further supported by Ex. XXIV the account of Koraibari for 1883-1884, by Ex. XXV, the certified copy of the English account of Garo Hills in the name of Kanaktara Debi, by Ex. I the petition put in by Bhoobaneswari Debi in the execution proceedings of the case in which the mesne profits were decreed, and by order 25 in the order sheet of those proceedings. The evidence of Plaintiff's witness Mathura Nath Pal is to the same effect.

On behalf, however, of the Plaintiff it is argued that the averments in the plaint filed by Uma Sundari in August 1870 (5 Bhadra 1277) show that her share was all along 3 annas 4 gundas and that dispossession of one anna 4 gundas of that share was only alleged from 1861 (Falgoon 1268), also that the same case was put forward by Hari Saran Maitra, Defendant No. 2, in his suit brought in 1881 for the mesne profits from 1877 and in his suit brought in 1891 for mesne profits from 1292 to 1295 (1885 to 1888). It is urged that it never was his or his mother or his grandmother's case before him that they were only in possession of 2 annas 10 gundas share from 1826 to

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDRA MOHAN LAHIRI.

1854, and that as the point was not distinctly raised in the pleadings their liability should be held to be proportionate to the 3 annas 4 gundas share to which they have been found to be entitled.

We do not, however, think that in the plaint referred to it was intended to do more than to assert the right of Defendant No. 2 or his predecessors to a 1 ans. 4 g. share of which possession was held jointly with their co-sharers. We do not think that the statements in the different plaints can be regarded as admissions of possession. On the other hand we see no reason to doubt that the father of the Plaintiff as manager of the family was able to act on the settlement which he and others propounded and to distribute the profits in accordance with it. We find therefore that the share for which the Plaintiff must be held responsible for the years 1826 to 1854 was 5 ans., Defendant No. 1, 6 ans, Defendant No. 2, 2 ans. 10 g. The alleged conveyance of the 10 g. by the grand mother of Defendant No. 2 to Shib Nath was in 1856.

The Plaintiff has estimated his own liability at Rs. 20,912-9-0-15 on the basis of a 3 ans. 18 g. share. It should however have been calculated at Rs. 26,810-15-8 on the basis of a 5 annas share.

The liability of Defendant No. 1 has been estimated on the basis of a 6 annas 8 gundas share. It should have been estimated on the basis of a 6 annas share. This would make his liability Rs. 32,173-3 instead of Rs. 34,318. As to the credits there is no real dispute. Making up the account on this basis the amount paid by the Defendant No. 1 covers his liability and we find that the Plaintiff's claim for contribution against him must fail.

The liability of Defendant No. 2 has been estimated on the basis of a 3 ans. 4 g. share. It should have been estimated on the basis of a 2 ans. 10 g. share. This would give his liability as Rs. 13,405-8-1 instead of Rs. 17,159-0-4-17 as given in the schedule of the plaint.

There has been considerable discussion as to the share to which Defendant No. 2 is entitled to credit for out of the sum drawn from the 'Garro Hills treasury and paid to the decree-holders in satisfaction of their decree. The Plaintiff has given him credit for Rs. 2,615-9-4-10 in respect of a 2 annas share, and the Sub Judge has accepted that estimate on the ground that the Plaintiff was out of possession of the 1 anna 4 gundas share at that time. It is not clear what time the Subordinate Judge refers to. The suit was brought by Uma Sundari claiming a 3 annas 4 gundas share in 1870 and it was decreed in the High Court in 1874 and in the Privy Council in 1880. The money was drawn out of the Garro Hills treasury in 1883. Certainly at the time the money was drawn, Defendant No. 2 was entitled to a 3 annas 1 gundas share of it. We cannot therefore agree with the finding of the Subordinate Judge in this point but hold that Defendant No. 2 is entitled to a credit out of the sum drawn from the Garro Hills treasury proportionate to a 3 annas 4 gundas or one-fifth share, that is to say to Rs. 4,181-11-9.

As to the other credits there is no dispute.

On these findings then of this Court

HARI SARAN MAITRA v. JOTINDEA MOHAN LAHIRI.

It follows that the Defendant No. 2 has paid up the full amount due from him under the decree, proportionate to his share, and the Plaintiff's claim against him for contribution fails.

The result is that the judgment and decree of the Subordinate Judge is set aside and in lieu thereof, we dismiss the Plaintiff's suit against both Defendants.

Appeals Nos. 298 and 299 of 1898 are decreed and appeal No. 318 of 1898 is dismissed.

As the decision of the case has really turned on the ascertainment of the shares of the different parties in the ancestral property during the years 1826 to 1851, and as that issue was not raised at all by Defendant No. 1 in the pleadings and only at a late stage after remand by Defendant No. 2, we think that the parties should bear their own costs in these appeals.

The Defendants are entitled to their costs in the lower Court with interest at 6 per cent. per annum up to the date of realization; and it is ordered accordingly.

Appeal dismissed.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 566 OF 1899.

RAMPINI, J.

PRATT, J.

1900.

8. August.

SHIB NARAIN PAHARI,
Plaintiff, Appellant,

v.

SHANKAR PANIGRAHI
and others, Defendants,
Respondents.

Onus probandi—Mortgage suit—Fraud—Collusion.

In a suit on a mortgage, where collusion and fraud is pleaded by a subsequent auction-purchaser of the mortgaged property, the onus is upon the Plaintiff to prove that the transaction was perfectly genuine and free from taint of fraud.

BRAJESHWARE PESHAKAR v. BUDHAN-UDDI (1) referred to and explained.

ISHAN CHUNDER SIRKAR v. BENI MADHUB SIRKAR (2) distinguished.

This was an appeal preferred on the 23rd of March 1899, against the decree of Babu Durga Churn Ghose, Subordinate Judge of Zillah Midnapur, dated the 23rd of December 1898, modifying the decree of Babu Kalidhan Mukerjee, Munsif of Contai, 4th Court, dated the 31st of July 1897.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Karuna Sundhar Mukerjee for the Appellant.

Dr. Asutosh Mukerjee for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal against a decision of the Subordinate Judge of Midnapur, dated the 23rd December 1898.

The suit is one brought upon a mortgage. The Plaintiff is the mortgagee; and he alleges that the mortgage which was for Rs. 49, was executed in his favour by the father of the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 and by the Defendant No. 1. Subsequently to the execution of this mortgage the property was sold in execution of another decree for arrears of rent and purchased by the Defendants Nos. 5 to 13. In this suit the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 did not appear, but the Defendant No. 4 appeared. He admitted the genuineness of the mortgage, and pleaded part payment, but he gave no evidence at all in support of his allegations. The real contesting Defendants are the Defendants Nos. 5 to 13, who say that the mortgage was a collusive transaction and was never really executed by the father of the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 and by the Defendant No. 4. It is to be noticed that the Defendants Nos. 5 to 13 do not contest the Plaintiff's suit with regard to plot No. 1, because they have no concern with that plot. Their concern is with plot No. 2 which they purchased.

(1) I. L. R. 6 Cal. 268 (1880).

(2) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 92 (1896).

SHIB NARAIN PAHARI v. SHANKAR PANIGRAHI.

The Court of first instance gave the Plaintiff a decree.

The Munsif's decision has been reversed by the Subordinate Judge, who has found that the mortgage bond, although duly executed, was, nevertheless, fraudulent and collusive.

The learned pleader for the Plaintiff-Appellant urges that the burden of proof in this case has been misplaced, and that the Judge in the Court below was not justified in relying upon the ruling in Brajeshware Peshakar v. Budhanuddi (1), in support of his placing the onus probandi in this case on the Plaintiff. The pleader contends that the ratio decidendi in that case was that the execution-purchaser was not the representative of the judgment-debtor, that his purchase was adverse to the rights of the judgment-debtor and that therefore he was entitled to impugn the genuineness of the mortgage transaction. The learned pleader contends that by the Full Bench ruling in Ishan Chunder Sirkar v. Beni Madhub Sirkar (2) it has now been laid down that the execution-purchaser is the representative of the judgment-debtor and that the onus should therefore be placed, not upon the Plaintiff but upon the Defendant.

We are unable to take this view of the matter. The Full Bench ruling in the case of Ishan Chunder Sirkar v. Beni Madhub Sirkar (2) only held that an execution-purchaser is the representative of the judgment-debtor for the purpose of sec. 244, C. P. C. Furthermore, we do not find that the ratio decidendi of the case of Brajeshware Peshakar v. Budhanuddi (1) is as stated by the learned pleader for the Appellant, that the execution-purchaser is not the representative of the judgment-debtor. The ruling in that case seems to proceed upon the general principle that the Plaintiff must prove his case, and we do not think that the rule is altered when the transaction is impugned on the ground of fraud. It must be for the Plaintiff to prove that the transaction was perfectly genuine and free from taint of fraud. As a matter of fact such a case has not been made out. The Plaintiff has produced prima facie evidence in support of the genuineness of his mortgage, but it has not satisfied the Judge in the Court below. On the contrary he has held on that evidence that the mortgage was a fraudulent transaction. The grounds upon which he has come to this conclusion are as follows:—(i) that the mortgage deed is unregistered; (ii) that the transaction was between relations and there was no necessity on the part of

(1) I. L. R. 6 Cal. 268 (1880).

(2) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 62 (1896).

(1) I. L. R. 6 Cal. 268 (1880).

SRI NARAIN PAHARI v. SHANKAR PANIGRAHI.

the mortgagors for borrowing money; (iii) that the mortgagors were possessed of other properties; (iv) that the due date for re-payment of the loan was fixed at more than 4½ years later; (v) that the attesting witnesses to the deed are not independent persons.

Now, it is not possible for us to say that these facts do not justify the finding of the Judge deducing fraud, when he takes the view with regard to the transaction which he has done. The strongest facts in support of the conclusion that the deed is not genuine, are three, namely, that there is no evidence that the Defendants required to borrow such a small sum as Rs. 49, that it is in evidence that they were possessed of other property; and that the date for repayment of this paltry loan of Rs. 49 was fixed at 4½ years later; so that the Defendants, these well-to-do gentlemen, possessed of other means were to pay off this trifling and insignificant sum of Rs. 49 at the rate of Rs. 10 per annum. The three witnesses to the deed are not independent witnesses and the suit has been brought after great delay, namely, 11½ years.

Altogether we are not prepared to say that the finding arrived at by the learned Subordinate Judge is incorrect, or that he has improperly laid the onus of proof upon the Plaintiff: and we accordingly dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1892 of 1898.

GHOSE, J.

PRATT, J.

1900.

23, November.

SHEIKH SARAFUDDIN
MONDUL and another, Defendants, Appellants,

v.

CHANDRA MANI GUPTA
and another, Plaintiffs,
Respondents.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), Sch. III, Art. 3 - Limitation—Dispossession by a co-sharer landlord—Recognition of tenant's title.

Where one of two co-sharer landlords brought a suit to have his right established to sell the occupancy holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for money obtained by him, and it was proved that although the other co-sharer landlord had dispossessed the raiyat more than 2 years before the institution of the suit, but that notwithstanding the unlawful dispossession, the title of the raiyat was throughout recognised by all parties concerned, and the recognition had been up to within two years of the institution of the suit:

Held—That the suit was not barred by the two years' rule.

This was an appeal preferred on the 8th of September 1898, against the decree of Babu A. C. Ghosh, Subordinate Judge of Birbhum, dated the 25th of July 1898, preferred on appeal from the decision of Babu Bhaba Churn Mukerjee, Additional Munsif of Rampurhat, dated the 15th of March 1897.

The facts of the case, out of which this appeal arose, were as follows:—

Chandra Mani Gupta (Plaintiff No. 1) having obtained a decree for money against Siva Ram Mondul (Defendant No. 3) attached in execution of the said decree the land in suit together with other lands forming the jote of the said Siva Ram Mondul. Thereupon the Defendants Nos. 1 and 2, the Appellants in this appeal, preferred a claim to the land in suit which was allowed. Chandra Mani Gupta then brought the present suit, for a declaration of her judgment-debtor's (Siva Ram Mondul's) right to the land in suit and that it was liable to be sold in execution of the decree obtained by her against the said Siva Ram Mondul.

SHEIKH SARAFUDDIN MONDUL v. CHANDRA MANI GUPTA.

The Plaintiff's case, so far as is material to this report, was briefly this:— That the disputed 6 bighas 11 cottahs of land formed part of the jote of Siva Ram Mondul consisting of 12½ bighas of land in kismut Chanchal of which the Plaintiff was seputnidar to the extent of a one moiety share, and Defendant No. 1 was the durputnidar of the remaining one moiety share, and that both the landlords were in possession by separate realization of rent from the tenants of the aforesaid mehal kismut Chanchal, that Siva Ram Mondul who was an occupancy raiyat of the said jote sub-let a portion of his jote, viz., the disputed 6 bighas 11 cottahs of land, to one Ram Doyal Muchi in 1289, B. S., and Ram Doyal Muchi remained in possession of the same since then to 1293 as kamfadar under Siva Ram Mondul, that Ram Doyal gave up the land in 1293, whereupon Siva Ram sub-let the same to one Haridas Babaji who died in 1299 without leaving any heir, that after Haridas' death, Siva Ram took khas possession of the land, and that since then he was in khas possession of it, by cultivating the land himself, that the Plaintiff obtained a decree for money for Rs. 80-9 annas against Siva Ram Mondul on the 17th January 1895, and that in execution of the said decree the whole jote of Siva Ram was attached, out of which Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 preferred a claim in respect of 6 bighas 11 cottahs only, the subject-matter of the present suit, that the said claim was allowed on the 13th July 1895.

The defence of the principal Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 was, inter alia, that the Plaintiff Chandra Mani Gupta had no right to sue inasmuch as she had no right to the money due upon the decree mentioned by her in the plaint; that the Defendant No. 3 Siva Ram had no right to the land in suit; that the suit was barred by limitation as Siva Ram was never in possession within twelve years prior to the suit; that Siva Ram, on behalf of himself and his minor brother relinquished the land in suit in favour of Defendant No. 1 and the predecessors in interest of the Plaintiff, who were the 16 annas landlords at that time; that thereafter Defendant No. 1 kept the land in khas possession and paid rent therefor to himself and his co-sharer landlord and settled the same with Ram Doyal Muchi but no mutation of names in the landlord's sherista was made and Siva Ram's name continued in the sherista in respect of the whole jama; that Defendant Nos. 1 and 2 continued to be in possession up to date; that subsequently the land in suit was registered in the name of Haridas Babaji, who was merely a benamidar of Defendant No. 1; that no objection was made by Defendant No. 3 at that time and as Defendant

SHEIKH SARAFUDDIN MONDUL v. CHANDRA MANI GUPTA.

No. 3 or his brother was not in possession within 12 years or two years of the suit, whatever right they had in the land in suit had been relinquished. Defendant No. 3 supported the Plaintiff's allegations.

Girija Sankar Roy, the adopted son, was also made a Plaintiff.

The Munsif dismissed the Plaintiff's suit and held on the question of limitation, that Siva Ram was an occupancy raiyat, and any suit for recovery of possession of the land in suit by him would be governed by Art. 3, Part I, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act which provides two years' limitation from the date of dispossession and that the said article would apply to any such suit by Siva Ram Mondul was sufficiently clear from the case of Bheka Singh v. Nakhel Singh (1) and that the provisions of sec. 28 of the Limitation Act read together with sec. 185 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, clearly shewed that even if Siva Ram had any such right as alleged by the Plaintiff it was extinguished.

On appeal, the Subordinate Judge reversed the decision of the Munsif and allowed the appeal and decreed the Plaintiff's suit holding that the suit was not for recovery of possession of jote land by a tenant against his landlord, and that two years' limitation would not apply, but was for declaration of jote right of the tenant in the disputed land under sec. 283 of the Civil Procedure Code, that it might be sold in execution of Plaintiff's decree for money, and that the Defendant No. 1 not being 16 annas proprietor, dispossession by him could not be held to be dispossession by the landlord as contemplated by the Bengal Tenancy Act, and relying upon the case of Dinabandhu Shaha v. Lolit Mohun Mitter (2) held that 12 years' limitation applied to the case and the suit having been instituted within 12 years from 1294 the date of dispossession, was not barred.

The lower Appellate Court further found that the alleged istafa by Siva Ram in 1282 was not proved and that Siva Ram's name was still recorded in the sherista of the Plaintiff as jotedar of the entire land, and it continued in the sherista of Defendant till 1294. It was also found that Plaintiff had sued Siva Ram for her share of the rent of the whole jote from 1297 to 1300 and obtained a decree and that the money was realised and Defendant No. 1 paid the money.

Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 preferred this appeal.

Babu Karuna Sindhu Mukerjee for the Appellants.

Babus Golap Chandra Sarkar and Surendra Chandra Sen and Mr. J. R. Percival for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The question that has been primarily discussed before us is, whether, under Art. 3 of the 3rd Schedule of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the suit is barred by limitation. We, however, pointed out in the course of the argument that that is not quite the right way of putting the point that arises in this appeal. That point is this. The raiyat, Siva Ram, having been dispossessed by the Defendants more than two years antecedent to the suit, whether it is now open to the Plaintiff, who is one of the co-sharer landlords, to bring to sale the land of Siva Ram in execution of a decree obtained by him against that individual. No doubt, if Siva Ram lost his right by efflux of time, and if he was not in a position to assert his right to this land by reason of the article of the limitation law in the Bengal Tenancy Act, to which we have referred, it would not be open to the Plaintiff in this case to bring to sale the property in question as the property of Siva Ram. But then turning to the judgment of the lower Appellate Court, it seems to us that as a matter of fact the right of Siva Ram to this property did not come to an end before two years antecedent to the present suit. It would appear from the facts as recited in that judgment that notwithstanding the unlawful possession which is said to be taken by the Defendant No. 1, who is one of the co-sharer landlords, the title of Siva Ram as tenant was throughout recognized by all parties concerned, and the recognition seems to have been up to, as we gather, within two years of the institution of the suit. That being so, it seems to us that the view of the relative rights of the parties, as taken by the Court of Appeal, is right.

(1) L. L. R. 24 Cal. 40 (1896).

(2) 2 C. W. N. 595 (1895).

SHEIKH SARAFUDDIN MONDUL v. CHANDRA MANI GUPTA.

The result is that this appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

S. C. S.

H. P. C.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 724 of 1895.

STANLEY, J.

1901.

* 14, January.

NETAI CHAND CHUCKERBUTTY, Plaintiff,
v.
ASHUTOSH CHUCKERBUTTY, Defendant.

Mortgage suit—Administration suit—Residuary legatee, mortgage by—Administration, subsequent, of testator's estate—Receiver of testator's estate pending administration—Receiver, sale by, of mortgaged property before completion of administration.

Defendant mortgaged certain properties, which he took under the Will of his father to the Plaintiff. Plaintiff brought this suit on the mortgage and obtained a decree and an order for sale by the Registrar. In the meantime a suit for administration of the testator's property had been filed and an order made in that suit appointing a Receiver. Plaintiff now applied that the sale of the mortgaged properties might be held by the Receiver appointed in the administration suit instead of by the Registrar. The administration suit was still pending and administration of the testator's estate had not been completed :

Held—That the sale could not be held by the Receiver before the completion of the administration.

That till such completion of administration it could not be said that the Defendant was entitled to the mortgaged properties.

This was an application in Chambers for a sale of certain properties by the Receiver, appointed in an administration suit, under the following circumstances : It appears that the Defendant Ashutosh had acquired the properties in dispute under the Will of his father Woomesh Chunder Chuckerbutty by which he was also appointed the executor. On the 29th February 1892 he mortgaged them to the Plaintiff's father and subsequently created various other encumbrances. Some time in 1893, one Jadub Kissen Mukerjee and others brought a suit (being suit No. 514 of 1893) against the Defendant Ashutosh for the administration of the estate of Woomesh Chunder Chuckerbutty and for other reliefs and in that suit an order was made appointing a Receiver who took over possession of, amongst other properties, the properties mortgaged to the Plaintiff's father.

NETAI CHAND CHUCKERBUTTY v. ASHUTOSH CHUCKERBUTTY.

The present suit was instituted in 1895 for the recovery of the monies due on the mortgage executed by Ashutosh, the subsequent mortgagees being also made parties thereto. Under an order made in the administration suit, the Receiver was also made a party Defendant. On the 2nd June 1896 the suit was dismissed as against the Receiver but decreed against the others. By an order made in this suit some of the properties mortgaged were ordered to be sold by the Registrar, and, in pursuance of that order, the Registrar had settled the notification and conditions of sale and the properties had been partially advertised to be sold by the Registrar on the 23rd instant. The Plaintiff now applied, with the consent of all the parties to the mortgage suit, that the sale advertised for the 23rd instant be held by the Receiver, as such Receiver in possession of the mortgaged properties, and not by the Registrar, on the ground that the said properties were in the possession of the Receiver and that the purchasers at his sale will be able to take possession from him and will be in a position to ascertain precisely the nature of the charges, if any, still attaching to those properties in the administration suit.

The administration suit was still pending and the administration had not yet been completed. It appeared that there was no finding in that suit that the Defendant was entitled to the properties which he had mortgaged free from encumbrances or charges, and the Receiver was still in possession.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :-

I have considered this application and cannot see my way to accede to it.

The property which forms the subject-matter of the sale which has been ordered formerly belonged to one Woomesh Chunder Chuckerbutty.

The estate of Woomesh Chunder Chuckerbutty is being administered under the directions of the Court in suit No. 514 of 1893. Ashutosh Chuckerbutty, a son of Woomesh Chunder Chuckerbutty, appears to have acquired the property in question under the Will of his father. He mortgaged it to one Bhola Nath Chuckerbutty and to various other parties and the action in which the order for sale has been made was instituted in 1895 and is a suit for recovery of the moneys due on foot of the mortgage made in favour of Bhola Nath Chuckerbutty.

The administration suit is, as I have observed, still pending, and it does not appear that there has been any finding of the Court in that suit that Ashutosh

NETAI CHAND CHUCKERBUTTY v. ASHUTOSH CHUCKERBUTTY.

Chuckerbutty was entitled to the property which he has mortgaged free from incumbrances or charges. From the fact that a Receiver was appointed who is still in possession of the property, it would seem that this matter is still undetermined. Mr. Osmond Beeby is the Receiver and he was appointed such in the administration suit.

Any incumbrance or charge which affected the property at the time of the death of Woomesh Chunder Chuckerbutty would be paramount to the mortgage securities obtained from Ashutosh Chuckerbutty, and any sale which is made under the order which has been made in the mortgage suit cannot prejudice such incumbrances, if any there be.

The mortgagees have obtained in their mortgage suit the usual decree for sale, and pursuant to the decree the Registrar has settled the notification and conditions of sale, and the properties have been partially, it is said, advertised to be sold by the Registrar on the 23rd of February instant. An obvious difficulty in the way of effecting an advantageous sale by the mortgagees is the fact that the administration suit is still pending. Purchasers would possibly be slow to bid for property which they must purchase subject to an existing lis pendens. To avoid this difficulty no doubt the idea of having a sale carried out by the Receiver in the administration suit has occurred to the advisers of the parties to the mortgage suit. In the affidavit upon which this motion is grounded, it is stated that it has been represented to the Plaintiff by the mortgagees that a sale by the Receiver "will be more beneficial to all parties concerned as the purchasers at his sale will be able to take possession from him and will be in a position to ascertain precisely the nature of the charges, if any, still attaching to the said properties in the said suit No. 514 of 1893." This statement suggests to me that one at least of the objects of this application is to overcome the difficulty which stands in the way of the applicant, namely, the difficulty of making title to the properties by reason of the existence of the administration suit.

Now if there are charges attaching to the properties which are paramount to the interest of the mortgagor and his mortgagees as is suggested, it seems obvious to me that a sale by the Receiver should not be sanctioned by the Court unless at least all the charges which affect the property have been ascertained in the administration suit and are provided for.

It appears to me that to grant the present application would only tend to confuse and entangle the proceedings in the administration suit and possibly lend to grave complications. I see at present no justification for the application. If the mortgagees choose to sell now, they must sell subject to all paramount claims which may be established against the properties in the administration suit. The Receiver in that suit cannot properly deliver possession of the properties to a purchaser unless he do so under an order of this Court to be made in the administration suit. It has not been shown to me that such an order could be properly made at the present time.

The application appears to me to be misconceived and must be refused.

NETAI CHAND CHUCKERBUTTY v. ASHUTOSH CHUCKERBUTTY.

Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, Attorney for the Plaintiff.

Babus Bolie Chand Dutt, Kamini Kumar Guha, H. C. Ghose, A. C. Bose, and Messrs. Gregory and Jones, Attorneys for some of the Defendants.

S. R. D.      Application refused.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NOS. 952, 968, 1034, 1035 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.      JOGESHWAR GHOSE,

PRATT, J.      Petitioner,

1901.      v.

5, February.      THE KING EMPEROR,
Opposite Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 215—Commitment, quashing of, when may be made—Points of law—Statements made by witnesses—Absence of evidence to go to a jury—Contradictory statements in cross-examination—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 193—False evidence in a judicial proceeding—High Court, powers of, to quash commitment.

Absence of evidence to warrant a commitment is a point of law and may furnish a good ground for the quashing of a commitment.

Under the present Code of Criminal Procedure a Court of Session does not possess the power to withdraw a case from the jury on any ground whatsoever.

Where the case is such that the Sessions Judge would, if he possessed the power of withdrawing the case from the jury, exercise that power, the High Court will exercise its powers of revision.

These were rules issued on the 8th of December 1900, against the proceedings taken against the Petitioners as well as the order of the Sessions Judge of Rungpur, dated the 19th of November 1900.

The facts of the cases were as follows :—

Ram Gopal Byragi complained to the Police against Samiruddin Nasya, Kefaitulla Nasya and others, alleging that while he was taking his wife Genda Dasya in a cart from her father Nabu Mistry's house to his own house, 10 or 15 persons (including the accused) stopped the cart and forcibly carried off Genda Dasya.

Charges were framed under secs. 366, 147, 343 and 379, I. P. C., and the case was committed to the Sessions. At the Sessions trial the Sessions Judge concurring with the assessors acquitted the accused.

The Sessions Judge thereupon framed proceedings against the Petitioners under sec. 477, Criminal Procedure Code, and committed them for trial under sec. 193, I. P. Code, at the next Sessions.

In No. 952.—Mr. C. P. Hill (with him Babus Sarat Chandra Khan and Manmatha Nath Mukherjee) contended that there was no contradiction on the face of the statements and therefore there was no case to go to a jury so far as his client was concerned.

In No. 968.—Babus Sarat Chandra Khan and Manmatha Nath Mukherjee argued upon the same lines.

In Nos. 1034, 1035.—Mr. Caspersz (with him Babu Mohini Mohan Chakravarti) for Nobo Mistry and Ram Gopal Bairagi referred to In the matter of Munni Buksh (1) and argued that regard should be had to the fact that these statements, though confused and apparently inconsistent, were made under the stress of cross-examination, no intention to commit perjury was made out. The Court should therefore quash the commitments.

JOGESHWAR GHOSE v. THE KING EMPEROR.

Mr. Leith for the Crown.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

In these cases rules were issued on the Magistrate of the district to show cause why the commitment of the Petitioners should not be set aside or, in the alternative, why the cases should not be transferred to some other Sessions Court or why such other order should not be made as to this Court might appear fit and proper. All the cases do not stand on the same footing.

We will take up, first, the petition of Kali Kant Biswas, the Sub-Inspector of Police (case No. 968). He appears to have given evidence before the Sessions Judge in an abduction case, and it is alleged that on that occasion he made one statement in his examination-in-chief and another and of a contradictory character in cross-examination. The Sessions Judge has, in his proceeding under sec. 477, C. Cr. P., set out the two statements which he considers contradictory. The application for quashing the commitment is made under sec. 215, C. Cr. P., which provides that a commitment once made under the sections mentioned there by a competent Magistrate or by a Court of Session under sec. 477 or by a Civil or Revenue Court under sec. 478 can be quashed by the High Court only and only on a point of law. Insufficiency of evidence has never been treated as a ground for quashing a commitment, but this Court following the principle laid down by the Courts in England has held that the absence of evidence to warrant a commitment is a point of law and may furnish a good ground for quashing the commitment. What we have to see, therefore, in the present case, is whether upon the proceeding of the Sessions Judge it is clear that the statements made by Kali Kant Biswas are of such a contradictory character as to justify the commitment. We have read the evidence given by the accused and the grounds of commitment, but we are not satisfied that the statements of the accused, interpreted as they reasonably might be, show any contradiction such as the Sessions Judge supposes they do. In this case, therefore, we are of opinion that the commitment should be quashed and we quash it accordingly.

The other witnesses, namely, Nobo Mistry and Ram Gopal Bairagi who had also deposed in the same abduction case before the Sessions Judge, have been committed by him to take their trial under a charge under sec. 193, I. P. C. The learned Sessions Judge in his proceeding under sec. 477 gives the statements one or other of which, he considers, must be false. These statements are of a very confused character and appear to have been made in the course of a severe cross-examination. There is nothing to show that the accused Nobo Mistry and Ram Gopal Bairagi had any particular motive in making a false statement with regard to those particular matters. It may be contended that that fact is for the consideration of the jury. But this Court has undoubtedly to consider whether there is such evidence as would justify the case going before a jury. If the case is such that the presiding Judge would, if he had the power, withdraw it from the jury, we think it would not be right to allow the commitment to stand.

JOGESHWAR GHOSE v. THE KING EMPEROR.

Under the Criminal Procedure Code a Court of Session has not the power to withdraw a case from the jury on any ground whatsoever. The power of quashing a commitment, in other words, withdrawing a case from the jury, is specially given to the High Court, and the High Court has to consider whether there is a ground of law. In our opinion, the statements upon which the commitments in the cases against Nobo and Ram Gopal are based do not amount to such a contradiction as to justify the prosecution of these witnesses under sec. 193, I. P. C. We accordingly quash their commitments (Nos. 1034 and 1035) also.

In the case of Jogeshwar Ghose, Head Constable (No. 952), we felt some doubt because, no doubt, in his evidence he stated, first, that he had not seen the Sub-Inspector on that Saturday before 8 or 8-30 P.M. and, afterwards, on being further questioned, he stated that he had seen him in the forenoon of that day. These are the only two contradictory statements made by him and upon which his commitment is based. The accused Jogeshwar when asked how he came to say at one time that he had not seen the Sub-Inspector before 8 or 8-30 P.M. and, afterwards, that he saw him in the morning at 10, 10-30 A.M. said he had made a mistake. The learned Sessions Judge in committing this accused under sec. 193, I. P. C., does not furnish any further grounds than what is stated above and the only persons who are named as witnesses, are men, who either affirmed him or heard him give evidence. It seems to us that, in the absence of any fact which would justify a prosecution of this character, it would not be right, merely because there stand two contradictory and possibly erroneous statements on the record that the accused should be harassed by a trial in the Sessions Court. On the face of the commitment there is nothing to show that the statement of the accused that what he stated first was a mistake was untrue in fact. We think, therefore, that in this case also we are justified in quashing the commitment and we do so accordingly.

Rules made absolute :

H. P. C.                      Commitments quashed.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 998 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J.	}	DEBI SINGH, Petitioner,
PRATT, J.		v.
1901.		THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.
8, February.	}

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 225B, 353—Resistance to execution of warrant—Obstruction to public servant in execution of duty—Warrant, validity of—Warrant with incorrect description—Onus of proof—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898) sec. 75.

In order to have a conviction for illegal disobedience of a warrant, it is for the prosecution to shew that the accused is the person against whom the warrant was issued or in other words, that he satisfied the description of the person against whom it was issued and not on the accused to shew that he was not the person.

It is illegal to convict a person, under secs. 225B and 353 of the Penal Code when the warrant attempted to be executed was addressed to the person with a wrong description to which the accused did not answer.

DEBI SINGH v. THE QUEEN-EMPRESS.

This was a rule issued on the 20th December 1900, against the order of the Joint-Magistrate of Chupra, dated the 26th of October 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by R. H. Anderson, Esq., Sessions Judge of Saran, on the 7th December 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report were as follows :—

The Petitioner was in arrears to the Collector with his rent for a ferry and a warrant was issued by the Saran certificate officer for his arrest. This was entrusted to Ram Avtar Lal Bakshi to execute and he proceeded with two peons Lakhan Dube and Bias Lal to the Petitioner's village where he arrived on the 4th August. On the next morning they went to the Petitioner's house, found him there and demanded the money due. The Petitioner said he had paid and was asked for proof. As he admitted he had none the Bakshi said he would arrest him and showed the warrant. The Petitioner said he would not obey the order. The two peons then arrested the Petitioner under the Bakshi's orders and the Petitioner called for help. Some men came and forcibly released him from the peons and he went off after giving each of the peons a slap in the face.

The warrant was addressed to Debi Singh, son of Gunraj Singh, but the Petitioner alleged that his father's name was Rung Lal Singh and not Gunraj Singh, and that the warrant was invalid.

Mr. Hill and Babu Dwarka Nath Mitter for the Petitioner.

Mr. Leith for the Crown.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

We issued this rule upon the District Magistrate to show cause why the conviction of, and sentence passed upon, the Petitioner by the Joint-Magistrate of Saran should not be set aside on the grounds stated in the petition. One of those grounds is that the warrant of arrest which the Petitioner is alleged to have disobeyed was not a valid warrant in law and, therefore, the conviction under secs. 225B and 353 was illegal. It appears that the warrant was made out against Debi Singh, son of Gunraj Singh, and, in the course of the trial, it appeared upon the examination of the accused that his father's name was different. In order to have a conviction for illegal disobedience of the warrant, it was for the prosecution to shew that the accused was the person against whom the warrant had issued, or, in other words, that he was the son of Gunraj Singh and not of Rung Lal Singh as he alleged. It was not for the accused to shew that he was not the person against whom the warrant was issued. The onus was on the prosecution to prove the affirmative, not on the accused to prove the negative. Upon the whole, therefore, we are of opinion that the conviction cannot be sustained and we accordingly set it aside and direct that the Petitioner be discharged from bail.

Rule made absolute :

• • Conviction set aside.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 996 OF 1900.

SALE, J.

NASIB ALI MOJUMDAR,

PRATT, J.

Petitioner,

1901.

20, February.

| RUKHMINI MOHAN ENDA,

Opposite Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898); secs. 517, 523—Disposal of property taken by Police as stolen property—Adjudication of theft case if absolutely necessary before order for disposal of property—Stay of proceedings in case—Speedy remedy, whether may justify order made at request of parties—Jurisdiction.

A Magistrate has jurisdiction to make an order under sec. 523 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for disposal of property taken charge of by the Police as stolen property when he considers that an immediate order is necessary to save the property from possible loss or decay before a formal adjudication of the case of theft, specially when the case has broken down by reason of non-prosecution and when both the parties apply to the Magistrate for such an order.

This was a rule issued on the 15th of December 1900, against the order of the Extra Assistant Commissioner of Cachar, dated the 25th of October 1900.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. P. L. Roy (with him Babu Sarat Chunder Ghosh) for the Petitioner.

Babu Jogendra Chunder Ghosh for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The facts, out of which this rule arises, may be briefly stated as follows:—Rukhmini contracted for the purchase of 330 logs and subsequently for the purchase of 265 logs from Nasib Ali, whose men had cut them down under a permit from the forest officer. Of these logs some had been resold, it is said, by Rukhmini, and the remainder numbering 362 logs were being floated down the river when a dispute arose between Nasib Ali and Rukhmini, the former contending that the sale was incomplete because the full price had not yet been paid by the latter. A riot is said to have taken place, which resulted in the institution of cross-cases. The complaint of theft and riot preferred by Nasib Ali was reported by the Police in "C" Form, and the Magistrate tells us that Nasib Ali has taken no subsequent steps to have that case brought to trial. In the counter-case some of Nasib Ali's party were sent up for trial on a charge of rioting and that case is still pending. The Police seized the 362 logs, and reported the fact to the Magistrate. The pleaders of both parties asked the Magistrate to make an adjudication under sec. 523, C. P. C., respecting the disposal of the logs. The Magistrate while conceding that it would be more satisfactory if final order on those applications could be postponed till the conclusion of the trial on the pending case of riot, still recognized the urgency of the matter, as the river was rapidly receding, and there would soon be insufficient water for floating the logs to a convenient mart. Therefore in the interests of the rival claimants, and it must be added at their own express desire the Magistrate who is styled Extra Assistant Commissioner proceeded to determine who was entitled to the possession of the logs. On the 25th October last he ordered that upon Rukhmini depositing in Court the sum of Rs. 3,225 which was the amount claimed by Nasib Ali as still due to him on account of purchase-money and royalty (though a less sum was admitted by Rukhmini), the logs should be delivered over to Rukhmini. The deposit was made and the logs were accordingly made over to Rukhmini. Now a rule has been obtained by Nasib Ali calling upon the Deputy Commissioner of Cachar as well as Rukhmini to show cause why the order of the Extra Assistant Commissioner, dated the 25th October last, should not be set aside on the grounds stated in the petition or why such other order should not be made as to this Court may appear fit and proper. In the meantime an order was made upon Rukhmini restraining him from disposing of the logs in dispute pending the hearing of this rule.

NASIB ALI MOJUMDAR v. RUKHMINI MOHAN ENDA.

It has been contended before us that the Extra Assistant Commissioner had no jurisdiction to make an order under sec. 523, C. P. C., and that he should waited till the conclusion of the trial of the pending criminal case, and then have made an order under sec. 517 regarding the disposal of the timber.

After hearing the learned counsel on both sides at considerable length, we are not disposed to accept this view, or to say that the legal advisers of the respective parties were wrong in claiming an adjudication under sec. 523. The pending case is one of rioting and not of theft of the disputed logs. Mr. Roy for the Petitioner concedes that the logs were not seized in connection with the pending case of rioting. They appear to have been seized by the Police in connection with the counter-charge of theft as well as rioting. They were seized because in the language of sec. 523 they were "alleged to have been stolen." That case has broken down upon investigation by the Police, but having seized the property the Police were obliged to ask for orders as to its disposal. The parties themselves pressed the Magistrate to determine the question forthwith under sec. 523 in order to avoid the risk of serious loss if the timber were left stranded. Under the circumstances the Magistrate seems to have had jurisdiction to make the order he did, and we think he would have no authority to deal with it under sec. 517 as if it were the subject of the pending case of rioting. If Nasib Ali feels aggrieved he has a remedy for damages against Rukhmini. It has been urged that the amount ordered to be deposited was inadequate because the timber is worth Rs. 7,000. This is, however, a misconception, if, as the Extra Assistant Commissioner states in his explanation, Rukhmini had already paid some Rs. 3,937 to Nasib Ali besides something for royalty to the forest department. However this may be, we have only to determine whether the lower Court had jurisdiction to make an order under sec. 523. We think it had, and that it was not wrong to adjudge the purchaser to be the party entitled to possession of the timber. We accordingly discharge the rule.

Rule discharged.

H. P. C.

ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 880 OF 1896.

STANLEY, J.	}	BHUGWAN DAS SUREKA
1901.		v.
4, February.		HEERA LAL.

Administration suit—Receiver—Discharge of Receiver before completion of administration decree.

No order can be made for the discharge of a Receiver appointed in an administration suit and directing him to make over possession of the estate to the Plaintiff, before the completion of the administration decree.

This was a suit instituted by the next friend of the Plaintiff, who was then a minor, for the construction of the Will of his grandfather Sewbux Sureka and to have the validity of certain trusts under the Will, and the rights of the parties ascertained and declared. The plaint also asked for an inquiry as to what the estate of the grandfather consisted of, for the appointment of a Receiver and the usual relief sought for in an administration suit.

On the 28th January 1897, a Receiver was appointed by the Court of the moveable properties, of the rents, issues and profits of the immoveable properties and of a certain business carried on by the grandfather.

On the 16th March 1899, a preliminary decree for administration was made, and it was further directed that the Receiver should be continued; the Court reserved consideration of all further directions and costs till after the Registrar's report.

The Plaintiff, who had subsequently attained majority, now applied for an order that the Receiver do pay to the Petitioner's attorneys their costs not otherwise disposed of and after making certain other payments mentioned in the petition, that he should be directed to make over the properties including Government securities of the value of over a lakh of rupees to the Plaintiff and that he should then be discharged upon passing his accounts. Plaintiff urged that there was no contest in the suit, that he was the sole beneficiary under the Will, and that he was therefore entitled to all these properties. It appeared that the accounts directed by the preliminary decree had not yet been taken, and no advertisements had been published in the papers for the creditors to come in, but the Plaintiff and the Defendant, the surviving executor, put in affidavits stating that there were no debts due from the estate.

Mr. Pugh for the Plaintiff.—There being no debts and no contest as to the Plaintiff being entitled to the estate, his application should be granted. [STANLEY, J.—There being an administration decree, how can I discharge the Receiver?] I don't ask the Court to touch the decree. The Receiver holds for the parties and not for the creditors, see Kerr on Receivers, 2nd Ed., p. 187; Davis v. Duke of Marlborough (1), Bainbridge v. Blair (2) and Hoskins v. Campbell (3).

Mr. Sinha for the surviving executor left the matter in the hands of the Court.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT WAS AS follows:—

STANLEY, J.—This is a renewal of an application which was made to me on a previous occasion when it appeared to me the application was entirely untenable

(1) 2 Swanston 103 (1812).

(2) 3 Beav. 421 (1841).

(3) W. N. for 1869, p. 59.

BRUGWAN DAS SUREKA v. HEERA LAL.

and I so stated. The application is now renewed on further affidavits. These affidavits, however, do not materially affect my views as to the propriety of the order I should make.

The suit was brought in 1896 by or on behalf of the present applicant who was then an infant for the construction of the Will of one Sew Bux Sureka, the grandfather of the applicant, and to have the valid trusts of the Will and the rights of all parties in his estate ascertained and declared. In the claim the usual accounts and enquiries which are directed by the Court in an administration suit are asked for as also the appointment of a Receiver and the other relief which is sought for in an administration suit.

On the 28th of January 1897, the Court was pleased to appoint Mr. Fink to be the Receiver of the moveable property and of the rents, issues and profits of the immoveable property and of the business carried on at No. 3, Juggomohan Mullick's Street, forming the estate of Sew Bux Sureka with power to get in and collect the outstanding debts and claims due to the estate of the said testator and with all the powers provided for in sec. 503, clause (d) of the Civil Procedure Code.

On the 16th March 1899, a preliminary decree for administration was made, and it was thereby ordered that the Receiver be continued and the usual administration accounts were directed including an account of debts and funeral and testamentary expenses, and an enquiry was directed to ascertain the encumbrances and charges affecting the estate and as to the provision which should be made for carrying out the provisions of the testator's Will. It further directed that the Registrar should cause advertisements to be published in the papers calling upon creditors to come in and prove their claims, and that the estate should be applied in payment of his debts, etc.

The Defendants were directed to bring in their accounts, and the Court reserved the consideration of all further directions and the question of costs till after the Registrar's report. Pursuant to the decree a Receiver was appointed.

The application now made to me is that "the Receiver appointed under the order of 28th January 1897 do pay to the Petitioner's attorneys their costs not otherwise disposed of and incidental to this suit (as between attorney and client to be taxed by the Taxing officer of this Honorable Court) whether incurred on behalf and account of your Petitioner his next friend or the said Receiver and do also pay to the said Receiver's attorneys all other costs incurred by the said Receiver in suits and proceedings other than this whether in Calcutta, at Mandalay or elsewhere and do endorse and deliver over to your Petitioner all the Government security and pay to him all the monies balance now in his hands standing to the credit of the said estate in his books of accounts and forming part of the estate of the said Sew Bux Sureka, deceased, and do also make over and deliver to your Petitioner the immoveable properties at Ranigunj and Mandalay forming part of the estate of which he may have obtained possession and thereupon and upon passing his accounts the said Receiver be discharged and that the said Receiver may be at liberty, out of the assets belonging to your Petitioner in his hands, to pay your Petitioner's costs of the last-mentioned application."

BRUGWAN DAS SUREKA v. HEERA LAL.

It appears that as yet the accounts directed by the decree have not been taken and that, in fact as Mr. Pugh has stated, there has been no advertisements for creditors and yet I am asked to direct the Receiver not merely to give over the immoveable property to the Plaintiff but also to hand over to him the monies and securities of considerably over one lakh of rupees.

So far as I am aware, the Plaintiff may not be able to establish his title to any portion of this property. It has not been decided by the Court that he is absolutely entitled to any portion of it and it has not been ascertained yet whether there are any encumbrances or charges affecting the property.

If the present applicant is really entitled to all this property free from any encumbrances or liabilities, the proper course is to have the accounts and enquiries directed by the decree made before the Registrar and to have his report thereon made and confirmed.

The short cut which is sought to be taken in this case in the disposal of an administration suit is one which not a little surprises me and one to which I can lend no countenance. It is without precedent in my experience and contrary to the practice of the Court. I must refuse the application with costs.

Messrs. Kalinath Mitter & Sarbadhikari for the Plaintiff.

Messrs. G. C. Chunder & Co. for the Defendant.

S. R. D.

Application refused.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2390 of 1898.

MACLEAN, C. J. ISHAN CHANDRA DEY,
BANERJEE, J. Defendant, Appellant,

STEVENS, J. GONESH CHANDRA
1900. PARSHI and others,
28, May. Plaintiffs, Respondents.

Registration Act (III of 1877), sec. 50—Registered transfer—Unregistered mortgage deed—Decree.

When a decree or order is obtained upon an unregistered mortgage deed against the mortgagor alone, subsequent to a registered transfer of the mortgaged property, sec. 50 of the Registration Act gives priority to the registered transferee.

When an unregistered mortgage is merged in a decree, a transferee under a registered deed subsequent to the mortgage is precluded from claiming priority under sec. 50 only when the decree can be used as evidence against the registered transferee.

This was an appeal preferred on the 30th of November 1898, against the decree of Babu Rajendra Kumar Bose, Subordinate Judge, 2nd Court of Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 27th of July 1898, affirming the decree of Babu Chandi Churn Sen, Munsif, 2nd Court at Alipur, dated the 21st of February 1898.

Jhumuk Parshi and Jitni Parshini, who were the original proprietors of the land in dispute, mortgaged the same to the Defendant Ishan Chandra Dey in Pous 1297 by an unregistered mortgage bond. Subsequently in Bhadra 1300, Jitni Parshini and the heir and legal representative of Jhumuk Parshi sold this land to the Plaintiff by a registered deed of sale. In 1894, subsequent to the execution of the deed of sale, the Defendant Ishan Chandra Dey brought a suit for recovery of money due under the mortgage bond and obtained a decree declaring his lien upon the land. In execution of the decree the land was put to sale and purchased by himself; and when possession was delivered to him by the Court, the Plaintiff brought a suit for damages on the allegation that Defendant cut down the trees on the land. But that suit was withdrawn, and he subsequently brought the present suit on the ground that the decree in execution of which the disputed land was sold and purchased by Defendant was a mere collusive transaction. The Defendant also impeached the sale-deed executed in favour of Plaintiff as a mere collusive transaction. The issues were as follows:—

ISHAN CHANDRA DEY v. GONESH CHANDRA PARSHI.

Whether the sale transaction set up by Plaintiff is a collusive transaction, and whether the mortgage bond set up by Defendant is collusive transaction, or whether both the transactions are real and bonâ fide?

Whether the registered deed of sale executed in favour of Plaintiff shall have priority over the unregistered mortgage bond executed in favour of Defendant?

It was found by the lower Courts that both the transactions were real and none of them collusive. With regard to the second issue the first Court remarked as follows:—

“Now the question is—whether the registered sale-deed subsequently executed is calculated to nullify or supersede all claims based under the unregistered mortgage bond previously executed in consequence of the provisions contained in sec. 50 of the Registration Act. After carefully looking into the several case-law on the subject, I think the registered deed takes effect against the previously unregistered document. *On taking equitable view also it is quite apparent that intending purchasers may avoid the risk of purchasing any encumbered property by a search of the Registration Office. But those who lend money on unregistered bond deprive these purchasers of the opportunity of making proper enquiry into the matter. Under these circumstances the law punishes the holder of the unregistered instruments.”

Plaintiff's suit was accordingly decreed. The lower Appellate Court upheld this judgment. Defendant preferred this second appeal.

Dr. Ashutosh Mukerjee and Babu Jnanendra Nath Bose for the Appellant.

Babu Joy Gopal Ghosha for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—I think it sufficient to say that I concur in the view expressed in the case of Keshab Pandurang v. Vinayak Hari (1) and also in the two cases of Jethabhai Dayalji v. Girdhar (2) and Desai Lallubhai Jethubhai v. Munda Kuber Das (3), a view which seems to be in consonance with that taken in the case of The Himalya Bank v. The Simla Bank (4) and the case of Jagrup Rai v. Radhey Singh (5). I am not dis-

(1) I. L. R. 18 Bom. 355 (1893).

(2) I. L. R. 20 Bom. 158 (1894).

(3) I. L. R. 20 Bom. 390 (1895).

(4) I. L. R. 8 All. 23 (1885).

(5) I. L. R. 13 All. 288 (1890).

ISHAN CHANDRA DEY v. GONESH CHANDRA PARSHI.

posed to follow the case of Baijnath v. Luchman Das (6), which is not consistent with that taken in the other cases to which I have referred. The appeal therefore fails and must be dismissed with costs.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion. The learned vakil for the Appellant contends that any view opposed to his contention would necessitate the reading of some qualifying words into sec. 50 of the Registration Act after the words, "not being a decree or order," and that whenever an unregistered mortgage is merged in a decree, a transferee under a registered deed subsequent to the mortgage is precluded from claiming priority under sec. 50. The answer to this contention is, shortly, this, that the words "a decree or order" in sec. 50 must mean a decree or order which can be evidence against the subsequent transferee under a registered deed; and in order that a decree or order may be evidence against a subsequent transferee, it must either be a decree or order to which the subsequent transferee was a party, or a decree or order obtained against his transferor before the transfer to him, in which case also the decree will be evidence against him. But where the decree or order is obtained upon an unregistered mortgage deed against the mortgagor alone, subsequent to the registered transfer on which the opposing claim is based, there sec. 50 must, in my opinion, give priority to the claimant under the registered transfer; because in such a case the only basis upon which the mortgagee can rest his claim must be, not the decree which is not evidence against the subsequent transferee, but the prior unregistered mortgage, and that, by sec. 50, is entitled to no priority against the subsequent registered transfer.

STEVENS, J.—I concur.

S. C. S. Appeal dismissed.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 253 OF 1899.

MOHUNT JAGANNATH

RAMANUJ DAS

and others,

GHOSE, J.

PRATT, J.

Defendants, Appellants,

1900.

v.

28, November. CHANDRA KUMAR BOSE

and others,

Plaintiffs, Respondents.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 106—Res judicata—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Parties.

Plaintiffs initiated proceedings under sec. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act against the landlord and the Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 who claimed to be rival tenants of the land, to have their names recorded as tenants in the settlement proceedings. The Settlement Officer held that the Plaintiffs were the tenants and made an order in their favour. On appeal by Defendants Nos. 2 to 9, and not by the landlords, the Special Judge reversed the decision and ordered that the names of Defendants Nos. 2 to 9, who he held were the tenants, be registered. The Plaintiffs thereupon brought the present suit to have their rights declared as tenants of the land:

Held—That the previous decision of the Special Judge not having been a decision between the parties, i.e., the tenants on the one hand and the landlord on the other, it could not operate as res judicata in the present suit.

MOHUNT JAGANNATH RAMANUJ DAS v. CHANDRA KUMAR BOSE.

This was an appeal preferred on the 1st of August 1899, against the order of W. B. Brown, Esq., District Judge of Zillah Cuttack, dated the 2nd of May 1899, reversing the order of Babu Adoito Prosad Dey, Munsif of Kendrapara, dated the 9th of February 1899, and remanding the suit to his Court for trial on its merits.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Jyoti Prasad Sarbadhikari for the Appellants.

Babu Dasurathi Sanyal for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The question raised in this appeal is one of res judicata; and it arises in this way: The Plaintiffs initiated proceedings under sec. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act against the landlord and the Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 who claimed to be rival tenants of the land, to have their names recorded as tenants in the settlement proceedings. The Assistant Settlement Officer held that the Plaintiffs were the tenants, and accordingly made an order in their favour. The landlord did not appeal against this order, but the other Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 did appeal to the special Judge; and on their appeal, that officer reversed the order of the Assistant Settlement Officer, holding that the Plaintiffs had not satisfactorily proved that they were the tenants, and at the same time ordered that the names of the Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 should be registered as the tenants. In making this order the Special Judge in the concluding part of his judgment made the following observation:—"I think he (that is, the Plaintiff) has failed to make out his case in the present proceeding; though possibly if the case had been thoroughly threshed out in the ordinary Civil Court, the result might have been different." Thereupon the suit, out of which this appeal arises, was instituted by the Plaintiffs to have their rights declared as tenants of the land with a right of occupancy therein; and the defence on the part of the Defendants was that the suit was barred by res judicata by reason of the previous decision in the settlement proceeding.

The learned District Judge in this case has held that the previous decision by himself as Special Judge would not operate by way of res judicata, and has accordingly directed that the case should be tried out on the merits.

The learned vakil for the Appellants, who has ably argued the case, has contended that this view of the law is incorrect; and he has relied upon a variety of cases in support of his contention. We are, however, unable to accept the view that he has placed before us, and we think the Judge is right in the conclusion that he has arrived at. We have already stated that, so far as the question between the Plaintiff on the one hand, and the landlord and the other Defendants on the other, under sec. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was concerned, it was determined in favour of the Plaintiff by the Assistant Settlement Officer. The landlord was satisfied with that determination, and he did not appeal to the Special Judge; and the appeal that was preferred was by the

MOHUNT JAGANNATH RAMANUJ DAS v. CHANDRA KUMAR BOSE.

Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 only, who claimed to be the rival tenants of the property. And therefore it seems to be obvious that the decision that was pronounced by the Special Judge on appeal was a decision as between the Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 as Appellants and the Plaintiffs and the landlord as Respondents. And this is made more clear by the fact to which we have already referred, viz., that in allowing the appeal of the Defendants Nos. 2 to 9 the Special Judge ordered that their names should be registered as raiyats. We think, under these circumstances, it could not rightly be said that the decision of the Special Judge was a decision between the parties, namely, the Plaintiff, on the one hand, and the zemindar, on the other. The decision should, we think, be taken to be limited between the Plaintiff and the Defendants Nos. 2 to 9, the tenant Defendants; and if that is the right view to take, there is clear authority to hold that under such circumstances the previous decision under sec. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act could not operate as res judicata in this case. We refer to the case of Pundit Sardar v. Meajun Mirdha (1). And in this connection we may also refer to the case of Brojo Behari Mitter v. Kedar Nath Mozumdar (2), where A had brought a suit against B, claiming certain property as tenant of C, who was also made a Defendant in the suit, and where the suit was on the merits decided in favour of B; and in a suit brought by C against B for possession of the same property, it was held that such suit was not barred by reason of sec. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

(1) I. L. R. 21 Cal. 378 (1893).

(2) I. L. R. 12 Cal. 80 (1886).

Upon these grounds we think that the question of res judicata now raised ought to be decided against the Appellants. We accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs. Hearing-fee one gold mohur.

S. C. S.

Appeal dismissed.

H. P. C.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2037 OF 1898.

RAMMOY HAZRA,

BANERJEE, J.

Plaintiff, Appellant,

BRETT, J.

1901.

PREM CHAND NASKAR

21, January. [and others, Defendants,
Respondents.

*Mortgage--Transferees from mortgagors-- Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882),
sec. 85--Purchase with consent of mortgagee
--Parties--Contribution--Frame of suit-- Apportionment of debt--Redemption.*

The heirs of a mortgagor, against whom a decree on the mortgage had been obtained by the mortgagee, and in execution of which the mortgaged property was sold and a part of which was purchased by the mortgagee himself, and a person who purchased a portion of the mortgaged property with the consent of the mortgagee are not necessary parties in a suit by the mortgagee for contribution or apportionment of the mortgage debt.

A suit by the mortgagee framed improperly for a declaration of the rights of the purchasers of portion of the mortgaged property of redemption to the properties purchased by them, who were not made parties in the mortgage suit and for declaration of the mortgagee's absolute right over those properties on the failure of such purchasers to redeem, and for khas possession will not lie.

RAMMOY HAZRA v. PREM CHAND NASKAR.

The only relief to which the mortgagee in such a case is entitled to is a decree for apportionment of the mortgage debt on the property purchased by the purchasers account being taken in that apportionment as well of the property transferred by the mortgagor to other parties with the consent of the mortgagee; as of the portion of the mortgaged property purchased by the mortgagee himself.

This was an appeal preferred on the 13th of October 1898, against a decree of Babu Rajendra Kumar Bose, Subordinate Judge of Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 22nd of July 1898, affirming a decree of Babu Nagendra Nath Mitter, Officiating Munsif of Alipur, 2nd Court, dated the 2nd of April 1898.

The facts of the case were as follows :—

One Behari Lal Ghose, since deceased, executed a mortgage bond for Rs. 200 on 8th Kartick 1294, B. S., in favour of the Plaintiff creating a charge on his properties described in schedule (ka) and (kha) of the plaint and subsequently sold the properties described in schedule (kha) of the plaint to one Raj Krishna Mondal free from Plaintiff's mortgage lien on payment of Rs. 100 to him with Plaintiff's concurrence in Bysack 1300, B. S. After the death of Behary Lal, this Plaintiff instituted suit No. 791 of 1894 against Noni Lal Ghose, the son and heir of Behary Lal and Srimonto Bacharsh and Prosunno Moyi Dassi, the purchaser of certain portions of the mortgaged property, and got a decree on this mortgage bond. In execution sale under that decree, the Plaintiff purchased the properties described in schedule (ka) for Rs. 175 on 18th July 1896 and obtained delivery of symbolical possession from Court on 17th December 1896. Thereafter when the Plaintiff went to take actual possession of the land in Choitra 1303, B. S., he was resisted by the Defendants who were the purchasers of lands given in schedule (ga) and (gha) respectively, and by Defendant No. 2 as a tenant of plot 2 of schedule (ga) under Defendant No. 1. The Plaintiff not having known of this alleged purchase of the Defendants from Behary Lal did not and could not make them parties in that case. Hence the Plaintiff instituted this suit for declaration of Defendants Nos. 1 and 3's rights of redemption to the properties described in schedules (ga) and (gha) of the plaint and for declaration of Plaintiff's absolute right over those properties on the failure of Defendants Nos. 1 and 3 to pay off the whole mortgage money within a fixed time, and for khas possession of these properties.

Both the Courts below dismissed the suit. The lower Appellate Court held that the suit in the form in which it was brought was not maintainable, that the suit was bad as neither the heirs of the original mortgagor nor the purchaser Raj Krishna by whom the (kha) lands which formed a part of the original mortgaged premises were purchased subsequent to the purchase of the Defendants Nos. 1 and 3 were not made parties, that the provisions of sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act were imperative, and it was therefore obligatory on the mortgagee in a suit relating to mortgage to join the mortgagor and all subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers as parties. It was further held that both the portions of the property (ka), which was held by the Plaintiff in right of purchase, as well as the portion of (ka) which was specified in schedules (ga) and (gha) should contribute to the mortgage debt payable to the Plaintiff, and which was claimed in suit No. 791, and that the suit was not framed on that line.

RAMMOY HAZRA v. PREM CHAND NASKAR.

Plaintiff preferred this second appeal.

Dr. Ashutosh Mukerjee for the Appellant.

Babu Bhuban Mohun Das for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

In this appeal, which arises out of a suit brought by the Plaintiff-Appellant to make certain properties in the hands of the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3, who are purchasers of the same from the mortgagor, liable for the mortgage debt in respect of which the Plaintiff had obtained a decree, two questions have been raised by the learned vakil for the Plaintiff-Appellant, first, whether the Court of Appeal below was right in dismissing the suit on the ground of defect of parties; and, second, whether that Court was right in dismissing the suit on the ground of its having been wrongly framed.

The persons whose non-joinder in the opinion of the lower Appellate Court amounts to a defect of parties, are the heirs of the original mortgagor, and one Raj Krishna, who is said to have purchased a portion of the mortgaged property with the consent of the Plaintiff. Now as regards the heirs of the mortgagor it cannot be said that they were necessary parties to this suit, as the Plaintiff has already obtained a decree on his mortgage against them, and has, in execution of the mortgage decree already sold the mortgaged property and purchased it himself. And as regards Raj Krishna, he too was not a necessary party, because no relief could be claimed against him, seeing that he purchased a portion of the mortgaged property with the consent of the Plaintiff. Of course the effect of such purchase will be to release the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 from liability for such portion of the mortgage debt as on apportionment is attributable to the property purchased by Raj Krishna. We are therefore of opinion that the first question raised in this appeal ought to be answered in the negative. There has not been, in our opinion, any real defect of parties.

It has been argued by the learned vakil for the Respondents that if, as the first Court has found, the Plaintiff was aware of the purchase by the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 at the time when he brought his suit upon his mortgage, as he was bound to make those Defendants parties to that suit under sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act, his opinion to do so must be treated as a valid ground for the dismissal of this suit; and in support of this contention the case of Ghulam Kadir Khan v. Mustakin Khan (1) is relied upon. We do not think that the case cited bears very much upon the present question. Of course, upon the assumed state of facts, the omission of the Plaintiff to make the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 parties to the original mortgage suit would have been a fatal objection to that suit. But we do not see how that circumstance can be a ground for the dismissal of this suit. Sec. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act does not lend any support to this contention; nor, as far as we can see, can it be held that sec. 43 of the Code of Civil Procedure would be a bar to the present suit by reason of the Plaintiff's omission to make the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 parties to the former suit.

RAMMOY HAZRA v. PREM CHAND NASKAR.

Coming now to the second question, namely, whether the lower Appellate Court was right in dismissing the suit on the ground of its being wrongly framed, we are bound to say that the prayers in the plaint are not so distinct as they ought to have been according to the only view of the case upon which this suit can proceed. The learned vakil for the Appellant freely admits that the only relief that the Plaintiff can be entitled to in this suit will be a decree for an apportionment of the mortgage debt on the property purchased by the Defendants Nos. 1 to 3, account being taken in that apportionment as well of the property purchased by Rajkrishna as of the portion of the mortgaged property purchased by the Plaintiff himself. The prayers in the plaint are not very distinct in asking for this relief, though at the same time we cannot say that they are incapable of being viewed as seeking for any relief of the sort we have indicated above. But having regard to the indistinct manner in which the prayers have been framed, we think that if the case goes back, as it ought, in our opinion, to go, to the first Court, that must be upon the condition of the Plaintiff-Appellant's paying to the Defendants-Respondents all the costs incurred by them up to date in all the Courts.

The result is that the decrees of the Courts below will be set aside, and the case sent back to the Court of first instance to try it on the merits with reference to the points indicated above, upon the condition that the Plaintiff-Appellant pays to the Defendants-Respondents all the costs incurred by them up to date within a month from the date of the receipt of the record by the first Court. In default of payment of such costs within the time allowed, this appeal will stand dismissed with costs.

H. P. C.

Case remanded.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 220 of 1900.

GHOSE, J. STEVENS, J. 1901. 12, March.	}	B. L. FRIZONI, Decree- holder, Appellant, v. RAJA RAM NARAIN SINGH, Judgment- debtor, Respondent.
---	---	--

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 583—Application for restitution of property—Execution of decree of Appellate Court—Decree, whether capable of execution against and binding upon person not a party to appeal—Assignment not subsequent to the decree—Lis pendens—Refund by assignee.

Under sec. 583 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the decree of the Appellate Court has to be executed and by the very scope of the section it can only apply to the parties to the appeal; it cannot be executed against a person who was no party to the decree of the Appellate Court and who has not derived any interest subsequent to such decree.

BHAGWATI PRASAD v. JAMNA PRASAD
(1) and SADIQ HUSAIN v. LALTA PRASAD
(2) referred to and followed.

(1) I. L. R. 19 All. 186 (1896).

(2) I. L. R. 20 All. 189 (1897).

B. L. FRIZONI v. RAJA RAM NARAIN SINGH.

This was an appeal preferred on the 18th of June 1900 from an order of Babu Nepal Chandra Bose, Sub-Judge of Ranchi, dated the 7th April 1900, reversing an order of Babu Rajoni Kant Mukerji, Munsif of Hazaribagh, dated the 5th of December 1899.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Jogesh Chunder De for the Appellant.

Babus Karuna Sindhu Mukerjee and Surendra Nath Ghoshal for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This appeal arises out of an application under sec. 583 for restitution of property.

The facts are shortly these :—One Luchman Ram obtained a money decree against the father of Raja Ram Narain Singh on the 19th of January 1897. On the next day, (i.e.) on the 20th of January, this decree, or rather the interest of Luchman Ram in it, was transferred by him to one Frizoni. An appeal was preferred against the decree by the Defendant, but in that appeal Frizoni was not made a Respondent, Luchman Ram being the only Respondent in it. On the 8th March 1897 an application was made by Frizoni, as the assignee of the decree from Luchman Ram for execution thereof. This was objected to by the judgment-debtor, and he prayed for stay of execution. This prayer seems to have been rejected, and the judgment-debtor was referred to the Appellate Court. The execution was then allowed to proceed and certain property of the judgment-debtor having been advertised for sale, he paid into Court the money covered by the decree on the 30th of June 1897, and the amount was withdrawn by Frizoni. Subsequently, on the 10th of February 1898, the Appellate Court, upon the appeal of the Defendant, reversed the decree of the Court of first instance, and remanded the case for retrial, and on the 6th June of the same year, the suit was dismissed by the Court of first instance.

We might here mention that, notwithstanding the order of the execution Court of the 10th April 1897, the judgment-debtor made no application to the Appellate Court for stay of execution, nor did he ask that Frizoni be added as a party Respondent to the appeal, the result being that the decree of the Appellate Court remanding the case for retrial was made in the absence of Frizoni, and likewise the decree of the first Court after remand dismissing the suit was also made in his absence. The present application was then made by Raja Ram Narain Singh under sec. 583 of the Code of Civil Procedure for execution of the decree of the Appellate Court, by which the decree of the 19th January 1897 was set aside, and for getting back the money which Frizoni had withdrawn from Court. This application was rejected by the Munsif to whom it was presented, but the Subordinate Judge, on appeal, has reversed the order of the Munsif, and made an order directing Frizoni to pay the amount to Raja Ram Narain Singh. It will be observed that under sec. 583 of the Code the decree of the Appellate Court has to be executed, and by the very scope of the section

B. L. FRIZONI v. RAJA RAM NARAIN SINGH.

it can only apply to the parties to the appeal; and so it has been held in the Allahabad High Court in the cases of Bhagwati Prasad v. Jamna Prasad (1) and Sadiq Husain v. Lalta Prasad (2). It has, however, been contended that Frizoni is bound by the decree of the Appellate Court upon the principle of lis pendens, and that it was his duty, if he was desirous to contest the appeal preferred by the judgment-debtor, to apply to the Court to make him a party in the appeal. It is perhaps not necessary to discuss the question whether the principle of lis pendens applies, for all that we are concerned with in the present instance is whether the application made under sec. 583 could succeed against Frizoni. We are of opinion that the decree of the Appellate Court cannot be executed against him, he being no party to that decree, and not having derived any interest from the Plaintiff in the suit subsequent to such decree. It will be borne in mind that the assignment to Frizoni was at a time when no proceeding was pending in any Court, but the fact of the assignment was clearly brought to the notice of the Defendant by the application made by Frizoni for execution of the decree, and the judgment-debtor was distinctly referred by the execution Court to the Appellate Court, and yet he took no steps to get Frizoni added as a party Respondent to the appeal, and if in these circumstances the decree of the Appellate Court was made in the absence of Frizoni, it would, perhaps, be straining the rule of lis pendens if we were to hold that under that rule the decree of the Appellate Court was binding upon Frizoni, so that restitution might be had against him in execution of the decree of that Court. However that may be, and without expressing any decisive opinion on the matter, it is sufficient to say that Frizoni having been no party to the decree of the Appellate Court, and having derived no interest subsequent to such decree, it could not be executed against him under sec. 583 of the Code.

The result is that this appeal will be allowed, the order of the Court of first instance restored; but in the circumstances of the case each party will bear his own costs in all the Courts.

Appeal allowed:

Order of first Court restored.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 868 OF 1900.

ANESH MOLLAH and 6
others, 2nd party,
Petitioners,
v.

AMEER ALI, J.
STEVENS, J.

1901.
18, January.

EJAHAR UDDI MOLLAH,
1st party, Ismile
Munshi, 3rd party,
Opposite Party.

*Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898),
sec. 145—Jurisdiction of High Court—Parties, non-joinder of necessary—Object of the law—Breach of the peace, apprehension and prevention of—Magistrate, jurisdiction of.*

Under sec. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure a special jurisdiction is vested in the subordinate Criminal Courts under special circumstances and for a special

(1) 1. L. R. 19 All. 136 (1896).

(2) 1. L. R. 20 All. 139 (1897)

ANESH MOLLAH v. EJAHAR UDDI MOLLAH.

purpose ; when either the special circumstances do not exist or when the order made under the section does not attain the purpose for which the jurisdiction is created, then the special jurisdiction vested under the section falls to the ground.

The circumstances which give jurisdiction to a Magistrate are circumstances which give rise to an apprehension of a breach of the peace and if there is no apprehension of a breach of the peace, there is no jurisdiction to make an order under the section.

In enacting sec. 145, the purpose the legislature had in view was the prevention of a breach of the peace and if that object is not attained by an order purporting to be made under the section, it must be taken to have been without jurisdiction.

Non-joinder of persons concerned in a dispute whose presence is necessary for the purpose of preventing an apprehended breach of the peace involves a question of jurisdiction, and the High Court has power to set aside an order made in a proceeding under sec. 145, Cr. P. Code, in which such persons are not made parties.

LALDHARI SINGH v. SUKHDEO NARAIN SINGH (1) referred to and followed.

This was a rule issued on the 20th November 1900, against the order of the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Madaripore, dated the 24th August 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Mr. Hill and Babu Jogesh Chunder Roy and Moulvie A. K. Fuzlal Huq for the Petitioner.

Sir Griffith Evans and Babu Atulya Charan Bose for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The facts which gave rise to the application upon which this rule was granted are shortly these. The land in dispute covers an area of over 200 bighas and was the subject of a proceeding between two sets of zemindars called respectively the Khororia and Shahapore Babus. An order was made in favour of the Khororia zemindars under sec. 145, C. Cr. P. A civil suit was then brought by the Shahapore zemindars in respect of the lands in question and they succeeded in obtaining a decree therefor. They obtained symbolical possession under their decree and then proceeded to give pattahs to various people who are now grouped as second party in the proceedings before us. The first party is one Ejahar Uddi and he claims to have been since a long time in occupation of the lands in dispute. He presented a petition to the Deputy Magistrate on the 7th April 1900 in which he stated that he was the tenant of the Khororia zemindars in respect of the lands in dispute and that he gave evidence in their favour, but, since the Shahapore zemindars had obtained possession, he was willing to attorn to them ; but that they are trying to oust him of his possession through members of the second party. The petition was referred to the Police for enquiry who made a report to the effect that, in consequence of these disputes, there was an apprehension of a breach of the peace. Upon the aforesaid petition and report, the Sub-divisional

(1) 4 C. W. N. 613 : s. c. 1. L. R. 27 Cal. 892 (1900).

ANESH MOLLAH v. EJAHAR UDDI MOLLAH.

Officer, on the 12th April last, directed proceedings under sec. 145. On the 18th May, a proceeding was drawn up against Ejahar Uddi who was made the first party and against the various persons who had obtained pattahs from the Shahapore zemindars who were made the second party. On the 3rd June one Ismail Munshi came in and presented a petition to the effect that he was entitled to the land in dispute jointly with Ejahar Uddi. Accordingly he also was made a party and on the 18th June, the former proceeding was cancelled and a fresh proceeding was drawn up with Ismail as the third party.

The first, second and third parties filed their statements in accordance with the directions given to them. The second party stated that, since their zemindars had obtained possession of the land in dispute and had given them pattahs, they were in possession of these lands under separate documents from separate sets of the Shahapore zemindars, and that there was no connection between the several plots so held by them separately. They also contended that, as the Shahapore zemindars claimed possession of these lands, they as well as the Khororia zemindars were necessary parties to the proceedings. The Magistrate did not make the zemindars parties to the proceeding, but, on the 24th August, made an order under sec. 145 in favour of the first party Ejahar Uddi. The second party thereupon applied to this Court and obtained the rule now before us.

The three points urged in this Court are, first, that the Shahapore zemindars were necessary parties to the proceeding, and they not having been joined, the order under sec. 145 is bad; secondly, that inasmuch as the dispute refers to various plots of land held by different persons grouped under the head of second party under different titles and under different allegations, there ought not to be one proceeding or one investigation and that therefore the order is bad. The third ground is that the order directing that Ejahar Uddi and Ismail Munshi, the first and third parties, do retain possession of these lands jointly in equal moieties is an improper order. The learned counsel, who appeared on behalf of the first party in showing cause, contended that none of these points raised any question of jurisdiction and that inasmuch as, since the amendment of the law, the power of this Court to revise orders under sec. 145 is confined to questions of jurisdiction, we ought not to interfere with the present order. Ordinarily speaking, an objection based upon non-joinder of parties does not involve a question of jurisdiction but in cases arising under sec. 145 the question relating to jurisdiction depends upon the provisions of that section. It appears to us that, under sec. 145, C. Cr. P., a special jurisdiction is vested in the subordinate Criminal Courts under special circumstances and for a special purpose; when either the special circumstances do not exist or when the order made under sec. 145 does not attain the purpose for which the jurisdiction is created, then the special jurisdiction vested under that section falls to the ground. It is sufficient to point out that the circumstances under which the jurisdiction springs up are circumstances which give rise to an apprehension of a breach of the peace and if there is no apprehension of a breach of the peace, of course there is no jurisdiction to make the order. Again it seems to us that the purpose the legislature had in view was the prevention of a breach of the peace. If that object is not attained by an order purporting to be made under sec. 145, it must be taken to have been without jurisdiction.

ANESH MOLLAH v. EJAHAR UDDI MOLLAH.

Now in the present case, there was undoubtedly an apprehension of a breach of the peace and so far as the first part of the section is concerned, the Court had jurisdiction to take cognizance of the matter. The second part has reference to the proceeding in Court instituted for the purpose of attaining a definite object, namely, to prevent a breach of the peace. We think the present case falls exactly within the principle laid down in Laldhari Singh v. Sukhdeo Narain Singh (1). It was attempted to distinguish that case from the one before us. In Laldhari Singh's case a certain set of tenants was disputing about the possession of a particular piece of land claiming to hold it under one set of landlords whereas another set of tenants claimed to hold the same land under another set of landlords. A proceeding was first started in which the tenants were made parties regarding the possession of the land. It was afterwards altered into one in which the dispute was stated to be regarding the collection of rent as between the two sets of landlords. In this latter proceeding, the tenants were not made parties. It was held there that in altering the proceeding the Magistrate had wrongly exercised his jurisdiction. That was one part of the case. It was also held that the lower Court was wrong in not making the tenants parties to the proceeding, inasmuch as they were persons concerned in the dispute and their presence was necessary for the purpose of preventing a breach of the peace which was apprehended. Stanley, J., in his judgment points out that—"The duty of the Magistrate was to deal with the dispute as it really was, namely, a dispute between one set of zemindars and their tenants on the one side and another set of zemindars and their tenants on the other, and accordingly to maintain in possession according to their respective interests the zemindars and their tenants whom he found on satisfactory evidence to have been in actual possession at the date of the order, if the evidence satisfied him that any of the parties to the dispute was in such possession." Then after referring to the cases on the point he went on to add "that the order is calculated to operate to the prejudice of the first party and their tenants, appears to me to follow from the fact that all disturbance of possession of the second party is prohibited by this order." The necessity of bringing into Court all the parties concerned in the dispute is pointed out again in p. 915. "But here two rival sets of tenants holding under two different sets of zemindars were contending about the actual possession of a strip of land. There was no question as to the collection of rent at all. The dispute, pure and simple, was which set of tenants was in actual occupation of the land. The tenants, thus, were the parties directly concerned in the dispute. If the tenants of the first party were in possession, then the latter were in possession through them (to use the Sub-Inspector's language). If the tenants of the Nargu Babus were in possession, then these zemindars were in possession through them. It will be seen therefore, that whereas the tenants were directly concerned in the dispute the zemindar's concern was of an indirect character. The presence of the tenants was thus essentially necessary for the proper and effectual decision of the case." In the present case it is admitted that the Shahapore zemindars obtained symbolical possession from the Court and were in possession through their tenants who had given them kabuliyats. From the very objection pressed before us it seems that they were necessary parties to this proceeding. It was stated by Ejahar Uddi that he had long occupied the land but that the Shahapore zemindars were trying to do away with his possession by means of persons to whom they had given pattahs, in other words, the second party. If that be so, and that seems to be the case of the first party, it is quite clear that the dispute is not put an end to by merely making an order against the second party, for the zemindars are in no way bound by that order. They can come in at any moment and go upon the land or they may give pattahs to any body else they like with the object of retaining possession of the land. The tenants against whom the order has been made may abide by it, but that in no way puts an end to the dispute and in no way prevents the apprehension of a breach of the peace, the purpose for which alone the law contemplates a proceeding of the special character provided for in sec. 145. We are of opinion, therefore, that this order is bad for non-joinder of the Shahapore zemindars. We do not think it necessary to express any opinion on the other questions upon which this rule was granted. We think that the present order must be set aside and we set it aside accordingly. This order, however, will not stand in the way of the Magistrate, if he considers that there is still an apprehension of a breach of the peace to take such steps as he may be advised.

(1) 4 C. W. N. 613 : s. c. I. L. R. 27 Cal. 892 (1900)

ANESH MOLLAH v. EJAHAR UDDI MOLLAH.

Rule made absolute :

H. P. C.

Order set aside.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 1019 OF 1900.

DEBENDRA CHANDRA
CHOWDHURY, Complainant, Petitioner,
v.

AMEER ALI, J.
PRATT, J.

1901.

18, February.

MOHINI MOHAN CHOW-
DHURY, Accused,
Opposite Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 423, 522—Right of way, interference with—Order for preserving statu quo ante on conviction, if proper—Appellate Court, power of, to set aside such order—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), sec. 341—Wrongful restraint.

Where a person blocked up a private way, along which the complainant had a right to go, by raising a wall and was convicted of the offence of wrongful restraint under sec. 341 of the Penal Code and an order was passed by the trying Magistrate directing the accused to remove the obstruction and not to interfere with the complainant's right of way and, on appeal, following a case mentioned in Belchambers' Practice, p. 263, held that no case had been made out for a change and refused the application with costs; against this order the Plaintiff through his next friend appealed.

DINENDRA NATH DUTT v. T. H. WILSON & Co.

Mr. Garth (with him Mr. A. Chaudhuri) for the Respondents.—The appeal is wrongly entitled; it should be headed, "In the matter of an application in the suit." Besides there is no appeal from such an order, which is a mere matter of procedure.

Sir Griffith Evans (Mr. Knight appearing with him) for the Appellant contended that there was an appeal under cl. (15) of the Letters Patent. See the cases of The Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Company (6) and Hadjee Ismail v. Hadjee Muhomed (7). The decisions, following which the order appealed against was made, were unsound in law. No practice of the Court can override the right which every suitor has to change his attorney when he desires so to do, and the position of a next friend is not different from that of an ordinary suitor.

Mr. Garth.—There has been a series of decisions of this Court from the time of Norman, J., that the next friend is in a fiduciary position and cannot be allowed to change from one attorney to another without sufficient cause. See Ram Chunder Roy v. Poorno Chunder Roy (2), Sarat Chunder Dawn v. Kristo Dhone Dawn (3). Leave of the Court is necessary under the rules to obtain a change of attorney, and any order asked for in an infant's suit should be shown to be for the benefit of the infant. Here the charges made against the attorney have been proved to be without any foundation. They are merely colorable. The attorneys on the record do not want to continue, but they are anxious that they should be discharged of the imputations made against them.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—This is a summons taken out by the infant Plaintiff in the suit asking for an order that upon payment of their taxed costs, including the costs of, and incidental to the application, to Messrs. Wilson, Chatterjee and Mitter, the attorneys on record for the Plaintiff, the name of Babu Priya Nath Sen be placed on record in the said suit as such attorney for the Plaintiff, with directions for taxing the costs.

Upon that summons being served upon them, the solicitors, Messrs. Wilson & Co., intimated to the Plaintiff's solicitor that he should appear by counsel at the hearing of the application and in consequence, apparently, of that intimation the Plaintiff said that he would file an affidavit showing grounds of application; and in consequence a long affidavit was filed on behalf of the Plaintiff making certain charges against the solicitors, and that affidavit was replied to by the solicitors in repudiation of the charges. The matter came on under these circumstances before Mr. Justice Pratt, then sitting as a Vacation Judge.

Mr. Justice Pratt following, and properly following, certain decisions of this *(2) 4 C. W. N. clxxv (1900).

(3) 5 C. W. N. lxxxiii (1901).

(6) 8 B. L. R. 433 (1872).

(7) 13 B. L. R. 91 (1874).

DINENDRA NATH DUTT v. T. H. WILSON & Co.

Court to the effect that the next friend of an infant Plaintiff was not entitled to change his solicitor unless he could satisfy the Court that, either owing to the misconduct of the solicitor, or for some other cause, the change was for the benefit of the infant, dismissed the application with costs. Hence the present appeal by the Plaintiff through his next friend, who is his father. There is nothing to indicate that the father is actuated by any improper or sinister motive in desiring to change his solicitors, nor has anything been said against the solicitor whom he desires to appoint. It is, however, abundantly clear that, rightly or wrongly, he has ceased to place confidence in his present solicitors, the present Respondents.

I ought to mention—it is a minute matter—that the heading of the Paper-book is wrong: it ought to have been entitled “In the suit and in the matter of the present application” and in this respect it ought to be amended.

It has been objected that in a case of this nature, no appeal lies.

We have not had the advantage of hearing Mr. Garth on this point, owing to the shape which the discussion before us has taken, but it would, I think, have been difficult to convince us that no appeal lay.

The Appellant contends that the next friend of an infant Plaintiff, although, no doubt, he must, under the rules, come to the Court if he desire to change his solicitor and to have a new solicitor placed upon the record in the place of the old one, is entitled to change that solicitor if he desires so to do, just as much as an ordinary litigant, who is sui juris.

The contention of the solicitors is that that is not so, that according to certain decisions to which I will refer in a moment, the next friend of an infant Plaintiff is not entitled to change his solicitor as of right, but that he must make out a case of something approaching misconduct on the part of the solicitor and satisfy the Court that the change is for the benefit of the infant.

There are no doubt authorities to that effect in this Court. The first is an unreported case before Mr. Justice Norris, dated the 23rd August 1883, the case of Manick Lal Seal v. Sarat Kumari Dasi (1). There, Mr. Justice Norris held, after consultation, as he tells us, with Mr. Justice Pigot, that the next friend of an infant Plaintiff was not entitled to change his solicitor unless he made out a case warranting such a change. Mr. Justice Norris says that he was following a similar decision of Mr. Justice Norman. Speaking with every respect for this judgment, I am unable to follow the reasoning upon which it is based, nor does it convey to my mind the impression of a carefully considered judgment. Mr. Justice Norris says that he does not agree with Mr. Bonnerjee, who was making the application, that a next friend is in the same position as an ordinary suitor. He says that “the next friend is in a fiduciary position.” I suppose he means in relation to appointing his own solicitor. I doubt if the expression is directly pertinent in that connection: and I would prefer to say that the next friend is bound to do his very best to protect the interests of the infant Plaintiff.

(1) Unreported. Suit No. 338 of 1883, Norris, J., 23rd August 1883.

DEBENDRA CHANDRA CHOWDHURY v. MOHINI MOHAN CHOWDHURY.

the Appellate Court set aside the order directing the removal of the obstruction and preventing the accused from interfering with the complainant's right :

Held—That the order of removal of the obstruction was a necessary corollary to the previous conviction of the accused and was a proper order.

That though an Appellate Court has, under sec. 423 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the power of making any amendment or any consequential or incidental order that may be just and proper, such Court cannot make an order which would make the entire proceeding infructuous and absurd.

That the order of the Appellate Court setting aside the order of removal of obstruction was neither proper nor just.

This was a rule issued on the 22nd December 1900, against the order of the District Magistrate of Dacca, dated the 26th October 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Babu Sarat Chandra Basak for the Petitioner.

Mr. C. R. Das for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

This rule was issued on the Magistrate of the District to show cause why his order setting aside the order made by the Sub-Deputy Magistrate under sec. 522 of the Criminal Procedure Code should not be set aside as having been made without jurisdiction, or why such other order should not be made as to this Court may seem fit and proper.

The opposite party appeared by counsel and although objection was raised to his being heard, we have had the advantage of his argument.

There seems to be some misconception about the order made by the Deputy Magistrate ; although perfectly right in form, and, as the necessary result of the conviction of the accused, it was not properly made under sec. 522 of the Criminal Procedure ; and it seems to us that the District Magistrate fell into an error on that ground.

It appears that the Petitioner in this Court had a private right of way which the accused blocked up by raising a wall in the complainant's absence. The Petitioner brought a charge against the accused, and the latter was convicted of wrongful restraint under sec. 341 of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced to pay a fine of hundred rupees. The natural result of that conviction was that the accused should be directed not to interfere with the complainant any further by stopping him from proceeding in the direction he was entitled to go. The order, therefore, directing him to remove the obstruction was a natural consequence, a corollary, of the previous conviction of the accused. It has nothing to do with the restoration of any property to the complainant which is contemplated by sec. 522 of the Criminal Procedure Code. For example, supposing the accused was to stop the way of the complainant by placing a moveable obstruction, upon the conviction, he would be directed to remove it so as not to interfere with the freedom of action of the complainant ; and that was what the Deputy Magistrate intended to do, and what he has purported to do, by his order.

DEBENDRA CHANDRA CHOWDHURY v. MOHINI MOHAN CHOWDHURY.

The District Magistrate, on appeal, thinks that the order was made under sec. 522 of the Criminal Procedure Code and inasmuch as no criminal force was used by the accused, the order could not be maintained, and he accordingly set aside the Deputy Magistrate's order.

No doubt under sec. 423 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, an Appellate Court has the power of making any amendment, or any consequential, or incidental order that may be just or proper; but in this case the result of the District Magistrate's order would be to make the entire proceeding infructuous and absurd. In our opinion the order which has been made by the District Magistrate is neither proper nor just. We therefore set it aside and restore the order of the Deputy Magistrate, expunging from it the words "under sec. 522."

Rule made absolute.

H. P. C.

[APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

No. 34 OF 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.	DINENDRA NATH DUTT,
PRINSEP, J.	Appellant,
	v.
HILL, J.	T. H. WILSON & CO.,
1901.	and
6, February.	KALLY PROSONNO
	GHOSE, Respondents.

Practice—Attorney, change of, application by next friend of an infant for—Grant of such application as a matter of course—Appeal from an order refusing change—Appeal, heading of.

A next friend of an infant is entitled to an order for change of attorney on the same terms as any other litigant sui juris.

It is not necessary for him to shew that such change is for the benefit of the infant, though the Court will interfere and remove the next friend if it appears that in the matter of such an application he was acting in a manner detrimental to the interests of the infant.

So long as he continues to be the next friend, he is entitled to appoint and change his own solicitor.

PEYTON v. BOND (4) referred to.

MANICK LAL SEAL v. SARAT KUMARI DASI (1), RAM CHUNDER ROY v. POORNO CHUNDER ROY (2), and SARAT CHUNDER DAWN v. KRISTO DHONE DAWN (3) dis-sented from.

Semble—An appeal lies from an order refusing change of attorney.

On the 19th September last an application was made to the Vacation Judge, Mr. Justice Pratt, on behalf of the Plaintiff, who is an infant, for change of attorney from Messrs. Willson, Chatterjee and Mitter to Babu Priya Nath Sen.

When the Registrar's summons for the application was served, it was not accompanied by any grounds. On the returnable date of the summons, the applicant's counsel obtained an adjournment in order to put in grounds. Later on an affidavit was filed by the next friend making certain allegations against the infant's attorneys on the record. The attorneys filed an affidavit in reply to meet these charges. Mr. Justice Pratt held that the charges made against the attorneys had been satisfactorily answered and

(1) Unreported. Suit No. 338 of 1888.

Norris, J., 23rd August 1883.

(2) 4 C. W. N. clxxv (1900).

(3) 5 C. W. N. lxxxiii (1901).

(4) 1 Sim. 390 (1827).

MATUNGINI DEBI v. MAKRUHA BIBI.

decree of J. Windsor, Esq., District Judge of Zillah Burdwan, dated the 7th of September 1898, reversing the decree of Babu Gobinda Chunder Dey, Munsif, 1st Court at Katwa, dated the 11th of December 1897.

The facts of the case appear from the following order of reference made by Rampini and Pratt, JJ. :—

"In this case the question is whether the Plaintiff is entitled to interest on arrears of rent at the rate specified in the ijara kabuliyat executed in his favour by the Defendant, viz., Rs. 3-2 per month or whether he is restricted to the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, allowed by sec. 67 of the Tenancy Act. The lease is a permanent mokurari lease, and it is contended on behalf of the Plaintiff that sec. 179 of the Tenancy Act renders the provisions of sec. 67 inapplicable to such leases. The Judge in the Court below has held, on the authority of the case of Atulya Churn Bose v. Tulsi Das Sarkar (2), that the Plaintiff is entitled to the rate contracted for with him by the Defendant. The ruling in this case fully supports the view held by him. On the other hand, it is urged by the learned pleader for the Appellant, that this case is in conflict with that of Basunta Coomar Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhuttacharjee (1) in which it has been laid down that a contract by a tenant holding under a permanent mokurari lease to pay interest on arrears at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum is not enforceable in law. The rulings in the two cases are in direct conflict. We are therefore bound to refer this case to a Full Bench, which we accordingly do.

We may add that we are of opinion that the ruling in the case of Atulya Churn Bose v. Tulsi Das Sarkar (2) is correct. One of the members of this Bench was a party to the decision in Basunta Coomar Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhuttacharjee (1), but he concurs in the opinion that that case was not rightly decided.

We are fortified in the view we take of the question at issue by the ruling in the case of Krishna Chandra Sen v. Sushila Soondury Dassee (3), which, though not directly in point, yet lays down that the provisions of sec. 74 do not control sec. 179, but the contrary.

The questions we propound for the decision of the Full Bench are—

First.—Whether the Plaintiff in this case is entitled to interest at the rate specified in the kabuliyat executed by the Defendant, or whether sec. 67 of the Tenancy Act controls the provisions of sec. 179 of the same Act; and

Second.—Whether the case of Basunta Coomar Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhuttacharjee (1) had been rightly decided."

Dr. Rash Behari Ghose and Babu Nalini Ranjan Chatterjee for the Appellants.

Mr. O'Kinealy, Moulvie Serajul Islam, and Moulvie Mustafa Khan for the Respondents.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—If it had not been

(1) 3 C. W. N. 36: s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 130 (1898).

(2) 2 C. W. N. 543 (1895).

(1) 3 C. W. N. 36: s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 130 (1898).

(2) 2 C. W. N. 543 (1895).

(3) I. L. R. 26 Cal. 611 (1899).

MATUNGINI DEBI v. MAKRURA BIBI.

for the view entertained by my learned colleague, I should have thought that this was a reasonably clear case. The question submitted to us is whether the Plaintiff in this case is entitled to interest at the rate specified in the kabuliyat executed by him, or whether sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act controls the provisions of sec. 179 of the same Act. Construing the Act by the ordinary rules of construction applicable to statutory enactments, the case does not to my mind present any real difficulty. Sec. 67 is general: sec. 179 is particular and specific, and by it the Legislature has thought fit, to make special provision in relation to permanent tenures in permanently settled areas.

The location of sec. 179 is not without some importance in relation to the question we are now discussing: for it comes after sec. 67, and after cl. (h) of sub-sec. 3 of sec. 178, and the section says:—"Nothing in this Act,"—I pause there for a moment to point out that "nothing in this Act" must cover the provisions of sec. 67,— "shall be deemed to prevent the proprietor or holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area from granting a permanent mokurari lease on any terms that may be agreed on between himself and his tenant." The language is clear and precise: why are we not to give its ordinary meaning to it? I can find no good reason nor have I heard any valid argument against our so doing. The provision in the case before us as to payment of interest is, speaking with all respect to the view taken by the learned Judges who decided the case of Basunta Coomar Roy Chowdhri v.

Promotha Nath Bhuttacharjee (1) undoubtedly a term agreed upon between the landlord and his tenant, and I am quite unable to accept the subtle but unconvincing reasoning as to what the expression "term" means, as suggested in the last-mentioned case. To my mind if we were to accept the view laid down in that case, and from which view, it is not unimportant to mention, that one of the learned Judges has already resiled, we might just as well strike sec. 179 out of the Act.

The language of the section is plain and clear, and there is nothing in any other part of the Act to warrant us in qualifying it, or putting a construction upon it which the words read in their ordinary acceptance, do not bear.

The question ought to be answered by saying that the Plaintiff is entitled to the interest specified in the kabuliyat, that sec. 67 does not control the provisions of sec. 179, and that the case of Basunta Coomar Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhuttacharjee (1) has not been rightly decided.

The result is that the appeal must be dismissed with costs including the costs of this reference.

PRINSEP, J.—The question submitted to the Full Bench in this case is whether, in granting a permanent lease, within the terms of sec. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a condition that interest shall be payable at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum, as allowed by sec. 67 of that Act, is permissible. It is strange that in sec. 178 of the Act it should be declared in cl. (h) of sub-

(1) 3 C. W. N. 36; s. c. L. L. R. 26 Cal. 180 (1898).

DINENDRA NATH DUTT v. T. H. WILSON & Co.

I am unfortunately unable to accept either the reasoning or the conclusion of Mr. Justice Norris. That case was followed by Mr. Justice Sale in the case of Ram Chunder Roy v. Poorno Chunder Roy (2) and also by Mr. Justice Stanley in the case of Sarat Chunder Dawn v. Kristo Dhone Dawn (3), but neither of these learned Judges would appear to have considered the matter independently, but rather to have regarded themselves as bound by Mr. Justice Norris' view as laying down the practice of the Court. I respectfully dissent from these decisions, as, in my opinion, the next friend of an infant Plaintiff is as much entitled to change his solicitor as any other Plaintiff who is sui juris. To my mind the difficulty has arisen through a confusion between the rights and the obligations of the next friend. His right is such as I have stated: his obligation is not to make such an appointment as would be detrimental to the interest of the infant Plaintiff, and if the next friend were to come to the Court and ask for a change of solicitors, and it was made apparent to the Court that he was asking for such change from some sinister motive, that he was proposing, for instance, to appoint as his solicitor, one who was acting for Defendants with interests adverse to those of the infant Plaintiff, or that he was colluding with the Defendants, or generally that he was not acting in the matter for the benefit of the infant, I entertain no doubt but that the Court has ample power to interfere and would interfere to protect the infant; but the proper course to my mind in such a state of circumstances would be, as was done in the old case of Peyton v. Bond (4) to apply for the removal of the next friend, and for the substitution of a new next friend on the ground that the next friend was not doing his duty. As long as he continues next friend, I think he is entitled to appoint his own solicitor.

Before the suit is instituted he can appoint his own solicitor, and it has never been suggested that it was necessary that such appointment should be sanctioned by the Court after the suit was instituted. Yet logically this ought to be done if Mr. Justice Norris' decision be well founded.

No authority in the English Courts has been cited in support of Mr. Justice Norris' decision and, personally, I have never known of such a case. The case of Brown v. Brown (5) has no bearing on the present case, though, if at all, it tends inferentially to support my present view.

I may add that I do not think it can be for the benefit of the infant that the solicitor should continue fastened upon the next friend, when the latter has lost confidence in the former.

Is it likely that, in such a condition of affairs, the suit can be beneficially conducted for the infant? I should say no.

This is the first occasion upon which the point has been submitted to the Court of Appeal here, and, speaking with every respect, I think, the view hitherto taken is erroneous.

The appeal must therefore succeed."

(2) 4 C. W. N. clxxv (1900).

(3) 5 C. W. N. lxxxiii (1901).

(4) 1 Sim. 390 (1827).

(5) 11 Beav. 562 (1849).

DINENDRA NATH DUTT v. T. H. WILSON & Co.

This being so, it is not strictly necessary to go into the question of the charges made against the solicitors: but I propose to do so as it is important upon the question of costs and only fair to the solicitors themselves.

We are all satisfied that there is no ground whatever for the imputations or quasi-imputations which were made against them.

The only question then is the question of costs, and that has caused me some difficulty.

In the first instance, in my view of the law, the next friend was right in making this application, as he did, but then he was wrong and inconsistent in making the charges against the solicitors, and equally the solicitors were not well advised in not offering to retire when their clients were unwilling to retain their services any longer. At the same time, there is some force in the view they took, that, having regard to the authorities I have mentioned, their removal might be taken to imply some imputation upon them, and that they wished to clear themselves of such imputations. This they have done and very properly, through their counsel, have now desired to retire. Under all these circumstances, feeling as I do that the difficulty has arisen from the above decisions, and although one ought to be very careful as to throwing the burden of costs on an infant's estate, I am of opinion that the costs of both parties in both Courts must come out of that estate.

It would be unjust, under the circumstances, to make the solicitors pay any costs.

The result is that the appeal must be allowed and an order must be made in terms of the summons, with such order as to costs as I have intimated.

PRINSEP, J.—I am of the same opinion.

HILL, J.—I agree.

Babu Priya Nath Sen, Attorney for the Appellant.

Messrs. Wilson, Chatterjee & Mitter, Attorneys on the Record.

Appeal allowed.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

[Full Bench.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2562 of 1898.

MACLEAN, C. J. MATUNGINI DEBI and PRINSEP, J. others, Defendants,
BANERJEE, J. Appellants,

AMEER ALI, J.

v.

RAMPINI, J. MAKRURA BIBI and 1901. another, Plaintiffs,

12, February.

Respondents.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), secs. 67, 179—Interest at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum—Permanent lease—Contract.

(Held by the Full Bench—AMEER ALI, J., dissenting) that sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not control the provisions of sec. 179 of the same Act.

That in granting a permanent lease within the terms of sec. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a condition that interest shall be payable at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum, as allowed by sec. 67 of that Act, is permissible.

BASUNTA COOMAR ROY CHOWDHRI v. PROMOTHA NATH BHUTTACHARJEE (1) over-ruled.

This was an appeal preferred on the 16th of December 1898, against the

(1) 3 C. W. N. 36: s. c. I. L. R.
26 Cal. 130 (1898).

MATUNGINI DEBI v. MAKURRA BIBI.

sec. 3, that nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of the Act shall affect the provisions of sec. 67 relating to interest payable on arrears of rent, and that following on that section, sec. 179 should declare that nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a proprietor or a holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area from granting a permanent mokurari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant. It seems to me however that having regard to the words, nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent such person from granting a permanent mokurari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant, really conclude the matter, though they are inconsistent with the terms of cl. (h) of sub-sec. 3 of sec. 178 which precede that section.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion. The question which we have to determine in this case is, whether sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act controls the provisions of sec. 179 of the same Act; in other words, whether the contract for the payment of interest on arrears of rent at a higher rate than twelve per cent. per annum, entered into between a zemindar and a permanent tenure-holder under him is enforceable by law.

The question has been referred to the Full Bench by reason of the conflict between the cases of Atulya Churn Bose v. Tulsi Das Sarkar (2) and Basunta Coomar Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhattacharjee (1).

The determination of the question must depend upon the language of sec. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. That section enacts that "nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a proprietor or holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area from granting a permanent mokurari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant."

Now sec. 67 of the Act which provides that "an arrear of rent shall bear simple interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum," is a provision of the Act; and so also is cl. (h) of sub-sec. 3 of sec. 178 which enacts that "nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of this Act shall affect the provisions of sec. 67 relating to interest payable on arrears of rent." And these are the provisions in the Act, which, if they stood alone, would have prevented a proprietor or a holder of a permanent tenure from recovering from his under-tenant interest otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of sec. 67. But sec. 179 expressly enacts that nothing in the Act shall be deemed to prevent the landlord from granting a permanent mokurari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant. It was, therefore, competent to the parties in this case to enter into a contract stipulating for the payment of interest on arrears of rent at any rate agreed upon between them, even if it was higher than that mentioned in sec. 67.

It was argued that if this be the true effect of sec. 179, it would render nugatory the provisions of sec. 67, and cl. (h) of sub-sec. 3 of sec. 178. But that does not at all follow. The last-mentioned provisions relate to tenants generally; sec. 179 relates to a particular class of tenants, namely, the holders of permanent tenures or under-tenures; and it is a general rule of construction, that of two clauses, one having a general application, and the other applying only to a particular class of cases, the latter shall control the former, and not the reverse. The opposite view would render sec. 179 nugatory.

(1) 3 C. W. N. 36; s. c. I. L. R. 26 Cal. 180 (1898).

(2) 2 C. W. N. 543 (1895).

MATUNGINI DEBI v. MAKRURA BIBI.

It was next contended that, in construing sec. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, we must bear in mind the reason for its insertion in the Act, and if we bear that in mind, we shall find reason for holding that it was not intended to control any of the earlier provisions of the Act. And the reason for the enactment of sec. 179, according to the argument of the learned vakil for the Appellant, was this, that the Tenancy Act repealed Regulation V of 1812, which authorized proprietors of estates to grant permanent leases, and having repealed that Regulation, the Legislature thought it necessary to re-enact the provisions of the repealed Regulation in sec. 179 of the Tenancy Act, which was an amending and a consolidating enactment. But although that may account for the existence in the Tenancy Act of some provision authorizing proprietors and holders of permanent tenures to create permanent under-tenures, there was no reason why sec. 179 of the Tenancy Act should contain the words, "on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant," if the Legislature did not intend to authorize the granting of permanent leases on any terms agreed upon.

It was lastly argued that if sec. 179 be construed in the way we are construing it, it would render nugatory a statutory provision of the law intended for the protection of tenants, the provision, namely, that interest upon arrears of rent shall not be allowed at a higher rate than twelve per cent. per annum. I think that it is a sufficient answer to this argument to say that, although the Legislature might have thought this provision necessary to protect certain classes of tenants, chiefly raiyats, it might not have felt that the same necessity existed for the protection of the interests of a different class of tenants, namely, permanent tenure-holders.

AMEER ALI, J.—The question which has been referred to us is one purely of interpretation.

When the case of Basanta Kumar Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhattacharjee (1) came before me and Mr. Justice Pratt we dealt with it as res integra and in construing sec. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act expressed ourselves with reserve, as will appear from the concluding words of our judgment which are as follows—

"For these reasons, as at present advised, we think that the conclusion arrived at by the Subordinate Judge in this case is correct, and this appeal must be dismissed with costs."

Having regard to the arguments of learned counsel for the Respondent, speaking for myself, I should have liked to have had some opportunity of considering the matter further. Although the judgments of my learned colleagues make me feel some doubt regarding the view I then expressed, it seems to me that sec. 179 of the Tenancy Act requires to be reconciled with the other provisions of the Tenancy Act. As I have ventured to point out in my judgment in Basunta Kumar Roy Chowdhri (1) it is a well-recognized principle in the interpretation of statutes that an Act of the Legislature should be so construed as to give effect, so far as possible, to all its enactments, nor must it be so construed as to allow one provision to stultify another. I have not heard any argument to-day to induce me to alter that opinion. Sec. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act therefore has to be reconciled with the provisions of cl. (h) of the third proviso of sec. 178. And I think the only way in which we can reconcile them is by reading sec. 179, as suggested by Dr. Rash Behari Ghose, in other words, sec. 179 should be read as follows:—"That nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a proprietor or a holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area from granting a permanent mokurari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant so far as they are not in conflict with the provisions of this Act."

MATUNGINI DEBI v. MAKRURA BIBI.

RAMPINI, J.—I think it is sufficient for me to say that I agree with the views of the majority of the learned Judges constituting this Bench, and I would accordingly answer the first part of the question referred to us in the affirmative, that is to say, I consider that the Plaintiff is entitled to recover interest at the rate specified in the kabuliyat executed by the Defendant, and I would answer the second part of the question in the negative, that is to say, I do not consider that sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act controls the provisions of sec. 179 of that Act, but, on the contrary, that sec. 179 controls the provisions of sec. 67. I also consider that the case of Basunta Coomar Roy Chowdhri v. Promotha Nath Bhutta-charjee (1) has not been rightly decided.

Appeal dismissed.

S. C. S.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM ORDER

No. 201 OF 1899.

UMA CHARAN DAS,

MACLEAN, C. J.

Opposite Party,

BANERJEE, J.

Appellant,

STEVENS, J.

1900.

MUKTA KESHI DAS,

6, July.

Applicant,

Respondent.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), secs. 51, 86, 90—Order granting permission to dispose of immovable property.

The word "hereby" in sec. 86 of the Probate and Administration Act means "by the whole Act" and not merely by the chapter in which the section occurs. An order made by a District Judge granting permission to dispose of immovable property under the Probate and Administration Act is appealable.

This was an appeal preferred on the 7th of June 1899, against the order of F. F. Handley, Esq., District Judge of Zillah 24-Pergunnahs, dated the 17th of April 1899.

The facts appear from the judgment.

Babu Sarat Chandra Dutt for the Appellant.

Babu Dasarathi Sanyal for the Respondent.

(1) 3 C. W. N. 36 : s. c. I. L. R.
26 Cal. 130 (1898).

(1) 3 C. W. N. 36 : s. c. I. L. R.
26 Cal. 130 (1898).

UMA CHARAN DAS v. MUKTA KESHI DAS.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—This appeal must succeed. A preliminary objection has been taken that an appeal does not lie to this Court from an order of the District Judge, in a case such as the present. I am unable to accept that view. Sec. 86 of the Probate and Administration Act says that “every order made by a District Judge or District Delegate by virtue of the powers hereby conferred upon him, shall be subject to appeal to the High Court.”

The order now appealed against is an order made by the District Judge, but it is said that an appeal does not lie because the expression “hereby” only applies to powers conferred under the chapter which contains the section, and this argument rests upon the position in which the section is placed in the Act itself. I am unable to accept that view: there is nothing in the Act to narrow the meaning of the expression “hereby” which to my mind means “by the whole Act” and not merely by the chapter in which the section appears. An appeal therefore lies. Upon the merits, the question is whether the Petitioner has made out the existence of such a debt such as would justify the Court in allowing her, as administratrix of her son, whose property it was, to sell. It is for her to make out that case. The present objector, who claims to be the reversioner, says she has made out no such case. It is quite clear that letters of administration were not taken out till some thirty or five and thirty years after the death of the Respondent's son, and it is not disputed that they were taken out for the express purpose of obtaining an order to confer power on her to sell the property. The story of the Plaintiff herself, who is an old woman, and of her nephew, whose mother lent the money is, that about nine years ago she borrowed not a small sum, but a substantial sum of Rs. 300, which has, since, increased by interest to Rs. 400. That is her case; that is her nephew's case; a loan of 300 some 9 years ago. The nephew was not present when any money was lent but only heard of it, and “did not once see the lending of the money.” Upon that evidence it is clear that the loan was made nine years ago, and though there are certain loose statements as to interest, there is nothing to show that any interest was ever paid, or, at any rate, up to what date or when it was paid. Upon that evidence the Judge in the Court below finds that the Respondent used to get small loans, but the evidence is quite to the opposite effect. She got Rs. 300 in one loan—a large sum for persons in this position of life to advance or to receive—there was no security nor is any document produced to evidence the existence or creation of the loan. Then the Judge says the debt is not barred by the statute because “it is a running account.” What he means by a running account, I really do not know. There is no evidence upon the record to substantiate a case of a running account or the payment of any interest and the loan was made 9 years ago. The debt is clearly statute-barred. In my opinion the Petitioner has not made out the existence of this debt or any case which would warrant the Judge in making the order which he has made.

UMA CHARAN DAS v. MUKTA KESHI DAS.

The appeal must be allowed with costs in both Courts, the hearing fee in this Court being fixed at two gold mohurs.

BANERJEE, J.—I am of the same opinion. I only wish to add a few words with reference to the preliminary objection taken that no second appeal lies against the order in question. The provision in the Probate and Administration Act in regard to appeals is sec. 86 which provides that, "every order made by a District Judge or District Delegate by virtue of the powers hereby conferred upon him shall be subject to appeal to the High Court," &c. It is true that the order appealed against is an order granting the Respondent permission to dispose of immoveable property, and the section of the Act which speaks of such permission is sec. 90 which is contained in Ch. VI of the Act which follows Ch. V in which sec. 86 occurs. But sec. 90 does not say anything about the power of the District Judge to grant permission to dispose of immoveable property, and the power which the District Judge has to grant such permission must be that conferred upon him by sec. 51 which precedes sec. 86 and which provides that the District Judge shall have jurisdiction in granting and revoking probate and letters of administration in all cases within his district. The power to grant permission to an administrator to dispose of immoveable property must be considered as ancillary to the power vested in the District Judge in granting letters of administration.

STEVENS, J.—I also think that an appeal lies in this case and that the appeal on the merits should be allowed.

S. C. S.

Appeal allowed.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2581 of 1898.

CHHOTU MAHTON and

others, Plaintiffs,

Appellants,

v.

RAMPINI, J.

BRETT, J.

1901.

15, March.

MUSST. SHEOBARTI KOER and another, Defendants,

Respondents.

* Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), sec. 42—Suit to set aside a mortgage—Reversionary heirs—Dispute as to nearer heir—Mortgage for a small amount which may be repaid by widow—Maintainability of suit—Declaration in a dismissed suit.

Where a Hindu widow mortgaged a portion of her husband's estate for a small sum of money which might be paid off by the widow in her life-time, a suit by the reversionary heirs, specially when there is a dispute as to who the nearer reversionary heir or heirs are, is premature and not maintainable.

A Civil Court has ample discretion under sec. 42 of the Specific Relief Act to exercise jurisdiction vested in it and to decline to set aside, during her life-time, an alienation made by a Hindu widow when no proper case has been made out by the party seeking to have such alienation set aside.

UPENDRA NARAIN MYTI v. GOPEENATH BERA (1) and ISRI DUT KOER v. HANSBUTTI KOERANI (2) distinguished.

A declaration affecting the Plaintiff in a suit which is dismissed is not legal.

This was an appeal preferred on the 17th of December 1898, against the decree of Babu Jadupati Banerjee, Officiating Subordinate Judge of Chupra, dated

(1) I. L. R. 9 Cal. 817 (1883).

(2) I. L. R. 10 Cal. 824 (1883).

CHHOTU MAHTON v. MUSST. SHEOBARTI KOER.

the 10th of September 1898, preferred on appeal from the decision of Babu Baroda Prosad Roy, Munsif of Motihari, dated the 4th of March 1898.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Babu Dwarka Nath Mittra for the Appellants.

Babu Jnanendra Nath Bose for the Respondents.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal against a decision of the Subordinate Judge of Chupra, dated the 10th September 1898.

The suit, out of which this appeal arises, is one brought by five persons, who allege themselves to be the reversionary heirs of one Kodai, the son of Khursihal, to set aside a mortgage of 2 bighas of land executed by Sheobarti, the widow of Khursihal, in favour of the Defendant No. 2 to secure Rs. 150 for arrears of rent in respect of the kasht land referred to in the mortgage and to pay costs for the sradh of her deceased husband.

The Subordinate Judge has disallowed the suit upon the ground that it involved intricate questions of law and fact and that as the jurisdiction imposed on him by sec. 42 of Act I of 1877 is a discretionary one, he has not thought fit to exercise that discretion in favour of the Plaintiffs in this case.

The pleader for the Appellants contends that the learned Subordinate Judge is wrong in not exercising his discretion in this case; and in support of this contention he has cited the rulings in the case of Upendra Narain Myti v. Gopeenath Bera (1) and Isri Dut Koer v. Hansbutti

Koerani (2). In the first of these decisions it is laid down that "where the person who is the next reversioner after the death of a Hindu widow sues during the lifetime of the widow for a declaration that a compromise made by her is not binding on him, it is no sufficient ground for refusing the declaration that the Plaintiff may not succeed for many years to the possession of the property or that some of the property is of a perishable nature."

The case of Isri Dut Koer v. Hansbutti Koerani (2) lays down that a suit brought during the lifetime of a Hindu widow by the presumptive heir, entitled on her death to the possession of the property in which she held her limited estate, to have an alienation by her declared to operate only for her life is among the exceptions to the general rule established by decision upon Act VIII of 1859, sec. 15, viz., that except in certain cases a declaratory decree is not to be made unless the Plaintiff allows a title to, though he does not ask for, consequential relief.

But neither of these cases seems applicable to this case, because it is by no means certain that the Plaintiffs are the next reversionary heirs to the estate of the widow's husband, seeing that it has been alleged by the Defendant that there is a nearer reversionary heir, Mirsu, and this person undoubtedly would be a nearer reversioner, if legitimate.

Now, the legitimacy of Mirsu is in dispute. The first Court has decided that point against Mirsu and held that he is illegitimate. The Subordinate Judge has not affirmed the decision of the first

(1) I. L. R. 9, Cal. 817 (1883),

(2) I. L. R. 10 Cal. 324 (1883).

CHHOTU MAHTON v. MUSST. SHEOBARTI KOER.

Court upon this point; and, even if he had done so, it will be apparent that, inasmuch as Mirsu is not a party to the suit, no finding on this point in the case can settle that question for ever. For it will always be open to Mirsu, at some future period, to come forward and establish as against the Plaintiffs and the persons in possession of the property that he, and not the Plaintiffs, is the next reversionary heir to the estate of Kodai.

In these circumstances we think that the Subordinate Judge was quite justified in declining to exercise the discretion imposed on him by sec. 42 of Act I of 1877 and in refusing the declaratory decree sought for by the Plaintiffs. Furthermore, the Subordinate Judge has pointed out that the transaction which the Plaintiffs in this case have impugned is a mortgage for a very small sum. It may be paid off by the widow in her lifetime; and then the Plaintiffs will have no cause of action at all, and will have no reason to complain of the proceedings of the widow. The Plaintiffs' suit is therefore premature.

In the next place, the Subordinate Judge has come to a finding which, however, seeing that he has dismissed the suit, will not be binding on the Plaintiffs, namely, that the alienation was for legal necessity and justified in the circumstances of the widow. However this may be, we think it proper to say no more upon this point, because when the suit is dismissed entirely on this ground on which the lower Appellate Court has dismissed it, this finding must not be regarded as binding in any way, or as precluding the Plaintiffs from, at some future time, raising the plea as to want of legal necessity for the mortgage.

For these reasons we affirm the decree of the Subordinate Judge and dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

H. P. C.

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. NO. 1015 OF 1900.

AMEER ALI, J. ) ABDUL SIKDAR and anr.,
Pratt, J. Petitioners,

1901. MATHU SINGH, Opposite
18, February. Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), sec. 79—Warrant, validity of—Endorsement by initials if sufficient—Arrest made in execution of such warrant—Resistance or obstruction to arrest—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), secs. 224, 353.

An endorsement in a warrant of arrest should be made properly in accordance with law. When an endorsement is made only by initials which are proved or identified to be of the proper person, the warrant does not become invalid by reason merely of the endorsement being by initials.

This was a rule issued on the 19th of December 1900, against an order of the Deputy Magistrate of Perozepur, dated the 29th of September 1900, which order was, on appeal, affirmed by the Additional Sessions Judge of Backergunge, on the 12th of November 1900.

The facts of the case were as follows :—

The warrant under which the arrest was made was addressed to the Court Sub-Inspector. He endorsed it to the officer in charge of the Sharupkati station and that officer endorsed it by name to a constable who made the arrest. The initials below the last endorsement appear to be on comparison with other signatures on the record to be of the Sub-Inspector of Sharupkati thana, the officer in charge of that station. The constable did notify the substance of the warrant to the person to be arrested, showed it to him and gave him an opportunity to give bail, which he declined to do.

ABDUL SIKDAR v. MATHU SINGH.

The Petitioner Kaminuddi Sikdar was sentenced, under sec. 353, I. P. C., to 9 months' rigorous imprisonment and the Petitioner Abdul Sikdar to 6 months' rigorous imprisonment under sec. 224, I. P. C. The first question raised in the rule was whether the arrest of the Appellant Abdul was a legal arrest so as to make a resistance or obstruction or escape, or assault or use of criminal force an offence either under sec. 224 or 225 or 353, I. P. C.

Moulvie A. K. Fuzlul Huq for the Petitioners.

No one appeared to show cause.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This rule was issued upon the Magistrate of the district to show cause why the conviction of and sentence passed on the Petitioners by the Sub-divisional Magistrate of Perozepur should not be set aside on the ground that the warrant of arrest under which the constable purported to act was not duly endorsed and, therefore, the constable was not legally competent to arrest the accused, and secondly that the conviction is wrong inasmuch as the Sub-divisional Officer refused the application of the Petitioners to recall the witnesses for the prosecution for cross-examination, or why such other order should not be made as to this Court may seem fit and proper.

We have heard the pleader for the Petitioners in this case, and also have had the warrant translated and placed before us. We are satisfied that the warrant fulfils the requirements of the law. Although one of the endorsements is only by initials, it seems to us that as those initials have been identified upon the evidence, there is no validity in the first objection. It is desirable, however, that initials should not be allowed, and probably a direction from the District Magistrate would be sufficient for the purpose.

But the second ground remains and seems to us to be well-founded.

We accordingly set aside the conviction of and sentence passed on the Petitioners, and direct that the case be retried before the Sub-divisional Officer if he is in the station, or before any other Magistrate competent to try the same, who may be nominated by the District Magistrate, giving to the accused the opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution.

Rule made partly absolute.

H. P. C.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[APPEAL FROM THE CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.]

THE LORD CHANCELLOR.

LORD MACNAGHTEN.

LORD DAVEY.

LORD ROBERTSON.

LORD LINDLEY.

1901.

Heard, 20, February.

Judgment, 21,

February.

THE EAST INDIA

RAILWAY COMPANY

Appellant,

v.

KALIDAS

MUKERJEE,

Respondent.

Railway Company—Passenger, carriage of, obligation as to—Reasonable care and diligence and safe carriage—Negligence—Explosion in railway carriage—Burden of proof—Passenger's luggage, duty to search—Damages, suit for against Railway Company—Common carriers—Dangerous goods, carriage of, duty to prevent.

There is no obligation upon a Railway Company to carry a passenger safely; they are only bound to carry him with reasonable care and diligence.

COLLET v. THE LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY (1) explained.

In a suit for damages for loss of a son who helped his father and whose death was caused by an explosion in a railway carriage, the onus is upon the Plaintiff to prove that the accident was due to a want of reasonable care and diligence on the part of the Railway Company.

Where the explosion was caused by certain fireworks taken in some parcels into the carriage by some fellow-passengers, and there was no evidence to show that the parcels exhibited such signs of their real nature as ought to have called the attention of the railway servants to them, there was no obligation on the Railway Company to prevent such goods from being carried.

Railway Companies are not "common carriers" of passengers and it is not for them to prove beyond doubt that they are not responsible for the accident. Evidence must be given of their want of care and diligence.

This was an appeal from a decision of the High Court of Bengal (the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Prinsep and Mr. Justice Ameer Ali), dated the 17th of February 1899, which had affirmed the decree of Mr. Justice O'Kinealy, dated the 8th of June 1898.

The action was brought by the Respondent against the Railway Company to recover damages for the loss he had sustained by the death of his son Atindranath; which death he charged was due to the negligence of the Appellant Company.

The facts found by both Courts on which their judgments were based were as follows:—

One Atindranath, who was a clerk, aged 20 years in the service of the Government of India in the Government Arsenal at Rawalpindi, and who, out of his earnings as such clerk, maintained the Respondent, who is a paralytic, and unable to maintain himself, started from Bally, a station on the Appellant Company's railway, on or about the 25th day of April 1896, on his return journey, after a holiday to resume the duties of his said office at Rawalpindi aforesaid. When the train by which the said Atindranath was travelling was running from Secunderabad, on the said line, to Dadri, another of the stations on the Appellant Company's line, an explosion took place in the carriage in which the said Atindranath was travelling, whereby he was so burnt and injured that he expired on the 5th day of May 1896, in consequence of such injuries.

THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY v. KALIDAS MUKERJEE.

The explosion was caused by certain fireworks which were placed under the seat of the compartment in which Plaintiff's son was travelling by a fellow-passenger.

The Appellate High Court found the following facts established :—

(a) That it was established by the evidence that the deceased, Atindranath, on the 25th of April 1896, took a third class ticket from the Appellant Company for the journey from Bally to Rawalpindi and that on the 27th April 1896, while on his journey the carriage in which he was travelling caught fire, and he was badly burnt and injured by the said fire and explosion and by falling through the floor of the carriage subsequently died of those injuries.

(b) That the said fire resulted from an explosion of fireworks carried by some of the fellow-passengers of the injured man in the compartment in which he was travelling.

(c) That when such explosion took place there was a large quantity of fireworks in the said carriage, that these fireworks exploded, and that by such explosion, and the resulting fire, the said Atindranath was seriously injured and died of such injuries.

(d) That the facts proved in the case established a prima facie case of want of such care on the part of the Appellant Company as might reasonably be required of them, and thus cast upon them the onus of rebutting such evidence and proving that they had taken all reasonable precautions to prevent the occurrence of such an accident as did happen, whereas they had not produced any such evidence, nor attempted to prove that they had taken all reasonable care and precaution in the matter.

(e) That no evidence was tendered by the Appellant Company to show that any care or precaution was taken to prevent passengers who might be suspected of carrying dangerous goods from taking them into a passenger compartment.

(f) That under sec. 59 of the Indian Railways Act (IX of 1890) the Appellants' servants had power to examine passengers' luggage if there was reason to believe that it contained dangerous goods.

(g) That the month of April was the Hindu marriage season, a time at which it is notorious that fireworks were in demand for marriage festivities, and when the Railway authorities might be expected to be on the alert to detect such traffic.

(h) That the Plaintiff in this case had established by evidence circumstances from which it might fairly be inferred that there is a reasonable probability that the accident resulted from the want of some precautions which the Appellant Company might and ought to have taken, and that the Appellant Company had produced no evidence to show that they had in fact taken such precautions and were therefore liable in damages to the Respondent.

The facts were not disputed on the appeal to His Majesty in Council. The Appellants stated that the facts found by both Courts, were so found by their having put upon the Appellants the onus of showing that they took due precautions to prevent the introduction of the explosives, and that no such evidence being forthcoming judgment was given for Plaintiff. This the Appellants' counsel contended was wrong. The onus on the facts found was on the Plaintiff. If the facts found were consistent with negligence as with no negligence, then it was on Plaintiff to prove the negligence. Those fireworks were not in the Defendants' control, and whether they could have been so had not been shown by the Plaintiff; Scott v. London Dock Company (2) did not apply. Among the other authorities cited and commented on were Wakelin v. London and South Western Railway (3), Walfare v. L. B. and S. C. R. (4), Daniel v. Metropolitan Railway Co. (5), Cotton v. Wood (6).

THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY v. KALIDAS MUKERJEE.

Mr. Haldane, K. C., Mr. Bray, K. C., and Mr. Rowlatt for the Appellants.

Mr. Asquith, K. C., and Mr. Branson for the Respondent.

THEIR LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

THE LORD CHANCELLOR.—In this case the Plaintiff, who is entitled to bring the action, sues the Defendant Company for the death of his son, who was killed by an explosion in a railway carriage. The explosion was caused by the bringing into the carriage of a quantity of fireworks. The carriage was one in which smoking was permitted; and a small charcoal stand was there for the accommodation of the smokers. The two persons responsible for bringing in the combustibles, themselves became the victims of the explosion; but the action is brought against the Railway Company upon the allegation that they were guilty of negligence in permitting the explosives to be brought into the carriage.

No precise evidence was given as to the course of business at the station at which the two persons in question got in. The fact that the fireworks were brought in was clear. But it is contended that it was the duty of the Company to see that dangerous articles such as fireworks, should not be permitted to be brought into a passenger train. That it would be negligence knowingly to permit such articles to be carried in a passenger carriage is obvious enough, but it is not suggested, so far as the Railway Company or their servants, are concerned, that they were knowingly permitted to be brought in.

The sole question is whether, upon such facts as are here proved, their Lordships can find reasonable evidence of a neglect of duty on the part of the Company, in not detecting the nature of the parcel or parcels which it is presumed that one, or both, of the persons who brought the fireworks to the train had with them when they passed the ticket barrier at the station at which they got into the train.

No evidence is given by anyone of the appearance, or even the bulk, of the parcel, or parcels. No evidence is given by the Railway Company of any inspection of any passenger's luggage at the station in question. The parcel, whatever it was, was placed under the seat of the carriage; and some expert evidence was given that the extensive explosion which occurred, and in which the two people responsible for carrying the fireworks were themselves killed, might be caused by half-a-dozen bombs such as are usually used on such an occasion, as these fireworks were intended for, namely, a Hindu marriage; and these bombs are described

(2) 3 H. of L. C. 596 (1865).

(3) L. R. 12 App. Cas., p. 41 (1886).

(4) L. R. 4 Q. B. 693 (1869).

(5) L. R. 5 E. & I. App. 45 (1871).

(6) 8 C. B. N. S. 568 (1860).

THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY v. KALIDAS MUKERJEE.

as being about the size of ordinary cricket balls.

There is no evidence, direct or indirect, of the dimensions of the parcel or parcels; and it seems to have been assumed on both sides that the practice of passengers carrying some of their own parcels into the carriages in which they travel prevails in India as in England.

The question then is reduced to this; whether there is any proof that the parcels carried by the two passengers exhibited such signs of their real nature as ought to have called the attention of the railway servants to them, and thus prevented such dangerous goods being carried. Their Lordships can find none. If one puts into plain words the duty, the neglect of which is relied on, it at once discloses the absence of evidence on the part of the Plaintiff. The duty is to prevent dangerous goods from being carried. What evidence is there that any servant of the Company knew, or had any opportunity of knowing, or enquiring, what these parcels contained? It has been already pointed out that there is no evidence of what they looked like, or whether any part of them was so uncovered as to suggest danger to anyone.

Their Lordships cannot think that the Railway Company were under the obligation to disprove what was not proved, i.e., to disprove that these were dangerous looking parcels, when not a shred of evidence has been given that they were dangerous looking. It was not indeed contended, as it could not be, that it was the duty of the Company to search every parcel which every passenger carried with him.

One source of error which their Lordships think has been committed in the judgments below is an apparent misunderstanding of what has been decided in the Courts of this country as to the true obligation which exists on the part of a Railway Company towards its passengers. The learned Judge, Ameer Ali, in terms says:—"Now it may be regarded as settled law that, in the case of carriers of passengers under statutory powers, there exists an express duty, independently of any implied contract, to carry them safely." Their Lordships observe that in the course of Mr. Asquith's argument yesterday, he used the same phrase; that the extent of the obligation of a Railway Company is to carry safely; in short that they are common carriers of passengers. That is not the law. It appears to have given rise to the impression that, that being the state of the law, it was for the Railway Company to prove beyond doubt that they were not responsible for the accident that occurred. As a matter of fact, the argument would be illogical, because if they were carriers of passengers in the sense of being common carriers they would be responsible, quite independently of any question whether there was negligence, or not. It would be enough to show that the passenger had not been carried safely, which would at once establish liability. The learned Judge appears to have been misled by an observation of Lord Campbell in the case that he quotes of Collett v. The London and North Western Railway Company (1). That turned upon the duty of the Railway Company, which was set out in the declaration, to carry a Post Office clerk under certain provisions of Railway

THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY v. KALIDAS MUKERJEE.

Legislation. It was demurred to, upon the ground that there was no contractual relation between the Post Office clerk and the Railway Company. The judgment upon demurrer is sufficiently explained if one looks at the allegations in the declaration, and the judgment upon it. But unfortunately Lord Campbell used a phrase which the learned Judge Ameer All quotes, that the Railway Company were under an obligation to carry safely, which their Lordships think has been the origin of the error. Lord Campbell says:—"I am of opinion that there is no difficulty in the question which has been raised. The allegation that it was the duty of the Company to use due and proper care and skill in conveying is admitted," admitted, that is to say, by the demurrer. "That duty does not arise in respect of any contract between the Company and the persons conveyed by them, but is one which the law imposes. If they are bound to carry, they are bound to carry safely." That probably is the origin of the error which their Lordships think the learned Judges below have fallen into. What Lord Campbell is saying there is that they are not relieved from the ordinary obligations which would exist by contract because by statute they were compelled to carry the Post Office clerk; and he goes on to say that the obligation is not satisfied by carrying a man's corpse, and not himself. His mind is not applied at all to the extent of the obligation created, but his mind is upon the argument that there was no obligation at all; and he practically says: "You must take as much care of him as if he was a passenger who contracted with you." Whatever may be the difficulty that arises about such a phrase in Lord Campbell's mouth, there is no difficulty whatever if one looks at the Declaration and the Assignment of the breach of duty, where the duty is set up, as, indeed, Lord Campbell, in the earlier parts of his judgment, points out, to carry with reasonable care and diligence; and the allegation in the Declaration, corresponding to the duty which exists, is that they did not do so; and then the assignment of breach is not that the man was not carried safely, which according to the argument would be sufficient, but the allegation is that they did not use proper care and skill in the carrying. If one looks at that, as indeed at the two other cases which the learned Judge, Ameer All, quotes as justifying the onus that he throws upon the Railway Company, it is intelligible enough. In the one case it was a child under three years of age, between whom and the Railway Company, of course, there was no contract, and the other is a case of the same character. It is important, perhaps, to observe what runs through the judgments, and to observe that Mr. Asquith, naturally enough, used the same phrase yesterday in his argument as enforcing the necessity of the Railway Company discharging themselves by any conceivable evidence by saying that their contract was to carry safely. Their Lordships think it is desirable that the error should be plainly stated, because it may mislead others hereafter. It is enough to say that, in their Lordships' judgment, there is no such obligation on the part of the Railway Company.

Their Lordships will therefore humbly

THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY v. KALIDAS MUKERJEE.

advise His Majesty that the judgments appealed from must be reversed, and judgment entered for the Defendants in both Courts below; but, having regard to what fell from counsel at their Lordships' Bar, without disturbing any directions given in India as to costs.

Solicitors: Messrs. Freshfields for the Appellants.

Solicitors: Messrs. T. L. Wilson & Co. for the Respondent.

Appeal allowed.

C. W. A.

[ORDINARY ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.]

SUIT No. 699 OF 1896.

HARINGTON, J.      RAJ NARAIN GHOSH
1901.                      and anr.,
8, February.              v.
                                 ABDUR RAHIM and ors.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), sec. 68—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), sec. 59—Attesting witness—Mortgage—Writer of the deed.

A person who is present and witnesses the execution of a deed and whose name appears on the document, though he is therein described merely as the writer of the deed, is a competent witness to prove the execution of the deed. He need not be described in the deed as an attesting witness.

RADHA KISSEN v. FATEH ALI RAM (1) referred to.

This was a suit on a mortgage. The persons who were described in the deed as attesting witnesses were not called to prove the execution. The Plaintiff, however, called a person who was described in the deed as the writer of the mortgage. His evidence went to show that he was present at the time of execution and that the two attesting witnesses named in the mortgage as such were also present and saw the executant sign.

Mr. Bagram for the Plaintiff.

Mr. A. C. Banerjee and Mr. A. K. Ghose for the adult Defendants.

Mr. Gregory for the infant Defendant.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

HARINGTON, J.—This is a mortgage suit, and the only substantial question between the parties is whether the four mortgage deeds which have been tendered have been proved as being properly executed.

Sec. 59 of the Transfer of Property Act provides that a mortgage such as in the present case can be effected only by a registered instrument signed by the mortgagor and attested by at least two witnesses. Sec. 68 of the Evidence Act provides that if a document is required by law to be attested it shall not be used as evidence until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution if there be an attesting witness alive and subject to the process of the Court and capable of giving evidence.

In the present case the witnesses who have been called to prove the due execution of the mortgage deeds have been described as the persons who wrote the deeds; in the case of the first deed Johur Ally and in the case of the last three deeds a man named Gopal Chandra Sen.

The objection taken by counsel for the infant Defendant is that these two persons are merely the respective writers of the deeds in question and cannot be regarded as attesting witnesses. The objection, as I have understood it, is that the writers were not attesting witnesses. The objection was the same in all four deeds except that the writer of one deed was different from the writer of the other three. The question as to what constitutes the attestation of a document, was considered in an old case decided in London in 1850. It is there stated that attestation means that the person shall be present and see what passes. The question has also arisen in this country in the case of Ridha Kissen v. Fatch Ali Ram (1), which was decided in the Allahabad High Court. It was held there that if the scribe of the bond had in fact witnessed the execution of it he would be a competent witness for the purpose of proving the execution.

RAJ NARAIN GHOSH v. ABDUR RAHIM.

Neither in the Evidence Act nor in the Transfer of Property Act is there a definition of what is meant by attestation. Nor is there any form given of an attestation clause. In the absence of anything to show that it is incumbent upon the attesting witness to be described as such in a deed which he attests, I am of opinion that a person who was present and witnessed the execution and whose name appears on the document is a competent witness to prove the execution. I further hold that in this case it has been shewn that the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act have been complied with because it indicates that affirmative evidence is called to show that not only did the witnesses of the deeds in question in fact witness the execution, but that also another person was present who also witnessed the signing of the deeds in question by the executant.

It is shown that two persons were present and saw the executant sign the deeds, they were present and saw what passed; one of them, namely, the writer of the one deed and the writer of the three other deeds, one of the persons present has been called to prove what passed. In my opinion the proof that he has given is sufficient and the execution of the mortgage deeds is good.

As that is the only issue raised, the Plaintiff will be entitled to the usual mortgage decree.

Messrs. Gregory & Jones, Attorneys for the Plaintiff.

Messrs. O'Connell and Remfry & Son, Attorneys for the Defendants.

S. R. D.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL TO H. M. IN COUNCIL
No. 4 OF 1901.

MACLEAN, C. J.	} MUSST. SAKALBOTI
PRINSEP, J.
HILL, J.
1901.
5, February.	} MANDARAIN, Appellant, v. BABULAL MUNDAR and ors., Respondents.

Appeal to His Majesty in Council—Leave to appeal—Concurrent findings of fact—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 596.

Where there are concurrent findings of the lower Court and of the High Court upon questions of fact and no question of law arises, a certificate granting leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council should not be granted.

This was an application for leave to

(1) I. L. R. 20 All. 582 (1898).

MUSST. SAKALBOTI MANDARAIN v. BABULAL MUNDAR.

appeal to His Majesty in Council against the decree of this Court (Rampini and Pratt, JJ.), dated the 24th of July 1900, on appeal preferred on the 7th January 1898 from the decree of Babu Jogesh Chunder Mitter, Subordinate Judge, 2nd Court, of Zillah Bhagulpore, dated the 4th of November 1897.

The facts of the case are as follows —

Plaintiff brought a suit to prove her right to and recover possession of a 2 ans. share in Mouzah Belo. Plaintiff alleged that her husband purchased the property in the benami of Dursi Mandar who was her brother and who had died before the institution of the suit. Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 are the sons of Dursi Mandar. The Defendant No. 3 is a transferee from them. It was alleged that Plaintiff's husband lent money to one Kiran Narain and to Samputbatl, his sister-in-law, in the name of Dursi Mandar to enable them to carry on a litigation with one Gopal Singh who laid claim to a property named Kumar Khad. The condition of the loan was that Guru Dayal was to get 3 ans. of Belo if Kiran Narain and Samputbatl were successful and half anna of it if they lost. It is said that Guru Dayal became entitled to obtain only half-anna of Belo ; Guru Dayal then lent Rs. 336 to Kiran Narain on a mortgage bond and assigned his rights to the bond to Dursi Mandar. In execution of the decree obtained on this bond the remaining  $1\frac{1}{2}$  ans. in Belo was put up to sale and Dursi Mandar purchased it himself. One Datta Sahu had previous to this purchased the  $1\frac{1}{2}$  ans. of Belo in execution of the decree for money, and relinquished his rights in favour of Dursi Mandar by a deed of relinquishment.

Plaintiff alleged that all these transactions were benami, that is to say, the assignment of the mortgage bond to Dursi Mandar, his sale and purchase, as well as the loan by Datta Sahu, his decree, execution, purchase and relinquishment in favour of Dursi Mandar. The Defendants contended that all these transactions were real. The Subordinate Judge dismissed the suit holding that though there might be a suspicion that some of the transactions are benami, but the Plaintiff had entirely failed to substantiate her plea that they were so. On appeal to the High Court it was urged that the finding of the Sub-Judge was against the weight of evidence, and that the Sub-Judge was in error in holding that the Plaintiff was barred from bringing this suit. The High Court held that it was not clear that the suit was bad in consequence of the property being placed in the name of Dursi Mandar and that the plea in any case applied to the  $1\frac{1}{2}$  ans. of Belo. But on the view their Lordships took they did not think it necessary to consider it further. It was contended that the Subordinate Judge was wrong in holding that the suit was barred by sec. 317, C. P. C. ; their Lordships were of opinion that the Sub-Judge had not meant to hold this and even if he did he was wrong. On the merits their Lordships considered the findings of the Sub-Judge to be correct.

The suit and appeal was valued at Rs. 12,880.

Babu Dwarka Nath Chuckerbutty for the Petitioner.

Babu Karuna Sindhu Mukerjee for the Opposite Party

MUSST. SAKALBOTI v. BABULAL MUNDAR.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—We do not think that this is a case in which a certificate ought to be granted. It appears to us that the view taken in the case of Gopinath Birbar v. Goluck Chunder Bose (1) must be taken to have been subsequently overruled by the decision of the Privy Council in the case of Tulsi Pershad Bhakt v. Binayek Misar (2).

In the latter case their Lordships of the Judicial Committee sum up their conclusion in this language: "Their Lordships think that no question of law, either as to construction of documents or any other point, arises on the judgment of the High Court, and that there are concurrent findings of the two Courts below on the oral and documentary evidence submitted to them. That being so, the present appeal cannot be entertained."

In the present case there are concurrent findings of the lower Court and of this Court upon questions which are merely questions of fact, and upon those findings as they stand it is conceded that no question of law arises. The case, therefore, appears to us to be covered by the Privy Council authority to which I have referred—an authority as to the true meaning of sec. 596 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

According to that view it is not open to us to grant a certificate in the present case.

The application must be dismissed with costs 3 gold mohurs.

S. C. S.

Application refused.

(1) 1 L. R. 16 Cal. 292 (1884).

(2) 1 L. R. 23 Cal. 918 (1896).

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

[Full Bench.]

REV. No. 599 OF 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.

PRINSEP, J.

GHOSE, J.

HILL, J.

SALE, J.

HARRINGTON, J.

BRETT, J.

1901.

15, February.

Presidency Magistrate—Warrant-case—Discharge—Re-hearing of warrant-case after discharge of accused person—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), Ch. XXI—Judgment.

(Held by the Full Bench, GHOSE, J., dissenting)—That a Presidency Magistrate is competent to re-hear a warrant-case triable under Chap. XXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in which he has discharged the accused person.

QUEEN EMPRESS v. DOLE GOBIND DASS (1), OPOORNA KUMAR SETT v. PROBODH KUMARY DASSI (3) approved of.

This was a reference made by Ameer Ali and Stevens, JJ., to the Full Bench in Revision No. 599 of 1900.

The reference was as follows :—

"A charge of criminal breach of trust under sec. 406 of the Indian Penal Code was laid before the Presidency Magistrate of the Northern Division, Syed Ameer Hossin. On the case coming on for hearing on the 26th May 1900, the Magistrate recorded the following order :—

"Complainant is absent. Defendant

(1) 5 C. W. N. 169 (1900).

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1898).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

denies the charge. Dismissed. Defendant is discharged."

That order could not be legally passed under sec. 259 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, because the offence of criminal breach of trust is not one of those which may be lawfully compounded under the provisions of sec. 345 of the Code.

It appears that the complainant applied that the case might be revived and the Magistrate passed the following order on the 26th June 1900 :—

"Heard both the parties at length.

The complainant in this case was absent, when his name was called, by few minutes. It is, I think, fair that this case should be revived. The ruling of the High Court in the case of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Prabodh Kumary Dassi (3) (Honorable H. T. Prinsep and Trevelyan, JJ.) gives me such power.

I therefore revive the case and order the issue of summons."

The accused then applied to this Court to have the order of revival set aside; but as the setting aside of that order would have had the effect of restoring the illegal order of dismissal, Stevens and Pratt, JJ., before whom the application was made, directed that a rule should issue to show cause why both the orders should not be set aside, so that the trial of the charge might proceed regularly, as if the order of dismissal had not been made.

On the rule coming up before us for hearing it appeared to us that there was a conflict of authority on the question of the competence of a Presidency Magistrate to revive a warrant-case in which he has made an order of discharge.

In the case of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Prabodh Kumary Dassi (3), cited by the Magistrate of the Northern Division, it was held by Prinsep and Trevelyan, JJ., that a Presidency Magistrate was competent to revive a case after making an order of discharge, the reasons for the decision being, as we understand, first, that an order of discharge cannot operate as an acquittal and is therefore not a bar to subsequent proceedings, and, secondly, that the provisions of secs. 436 and 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which in the case of Magistrate other than Presidency Magistrate provide for the re-opening upon the order of a superior authority of a case in which an order of discharge has been improperly made, do not apply to a Presidency Magistrate.

On the other hand we have been referred to two cases in which the contrary view has been expressed.

The first is the case of Damini Dassi v. Hurry Mohun Mukerjee (16), in which it was held by Ameer Ali and Hill, JJ., that the Presidency Magistrate of the Northern Division after discharging an accused person under sec. 259 of the Code of Criminal Procedure "clearly had no jurisdiction to revive the case."

The other is the case of Ram Coomar v. Ramjee and another (17), in which Stevens and Pratt, JJ., upon a reference made by certain Honorary Presidency Magistrates under the provisions of sec. 432 of the Code of Criminal Procedure held that an order of the Presidency Magistrate of the Northern Division reviving

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1898).

(16) 4 C. W. N. 46 (1898).

(17) 4 C. W. N. 26 (1898).

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1898).

DWARAKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

a non-compoundable warrant-case which he had dismissed for default was bad as being without warrant of law, inasmuch as the Code of Criminal Procedure contains no provisions empowering him to make such an order of revival.

The view expressed in these two cases, with which we agree, seems to us to be in direct conflict with the decision in the case of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Probodh Kumary Dassi (3). With great respect to the learned Judges who decided that case we do not find ourselves able, in the absence of any provision of law conferring a power of revival upon a Presidency Magistrate, to accept the view that such a power is to be inferred from the fact that the provisions of secs. 436 and 437 do not apply to such Magistrates. We would observe, moreover, that it has been repeatedly held that, apart from those provisions of law, this Court has authority to interfere with an improper order of discharge made by a Presidency Magistrate. We may refer to the cases of Colville v. Kisto Kishore Bose (18) and Charoobala Dabee v. Empress (9) (decided on different grounds from the preceding case) and the unreported case of Nemy Chand Kundu v. Nibaran Chunder Dheria and others (19), Criminal Revision Case No. 205 of 1900, decided on the 30th March 1900, as instances in which that authority has been exercised and indeed it would seem that in the case of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Probodh Kumary Dassi (3) the learned Judges intended to convey that if an application had been made to this Court to set aside the Presidency Magistrate's order of dismissal, the Court would have had power to do so under the Charter Act.

In view of the conflict of authority that we have noticed we refer to a Full Bench the question :—

Whether a Presidency Magistrate is competent to revive a warrant-case triable under Chap. XXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure in which he has discharged the accused person.

Mr. M. R. Mehta (with him Babu Amarendra Nath Chatterjee) for the Petitioner.—In the cases of Komal Chandra Pal (11) and Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Probodh Kumary Dassi (3) it was laid down that a Mofussil Magistrate cannot of his own accord revive a complaint as secs. 436 and 437, C. Cr. P., give the power of ordering further enquiry and setting aside an order of discharge to superior tribunals. But sec. 439, C. Cr. P., read with sec. 423, C. Cr. P., gives the High Court power to order further enquiry and set aside order of discharge made by Presidency Magistrates, as was laid down in the Full Bench case of Haridas Sanyal (4) and the cases of Empress v. Ram Lal Singh (20),* Girish Chandra Roy v. Agurwalla (15), Colville v. Kisto Kishore Bose (18), though Mr. Justice Prinsep doubted it in the cases of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Probodh Kumary Dassi (3) and Charoobala Dabee v. Empress (9).

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

(4) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 608 (1881).

(9) 3 C. W. N. 601 (1899).

(11) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 286 (1897)

(15) 1 C. W. N. 870 (1897)

(18) 3 C. W. N. 598 (1899)

(20) I. L. R. 6 All. 40 (1898)

(8) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

(9) 3 C. W. N. 601 (1899).

(18) 3 C. W. N. 598 (1899).

(19) 4 C. W. N. clix (1900).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

Hence, I submit, if secs. 436 and 437, C. Cr. P., prevent Mofussil Magistrates from reviving complaints, then secs. 439 and 423 likewise prevent Presidency Magistrates from reviving complaints.

Further, secs. 436, 437 and 439 necessitate the inference that an order of dismissal or discharge must be first set aside by a superior tribunal before proceedings are re-opened. See cases of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Pro'odh Kumary Dass (3), Nil Ratan Sen v. Jogesh Chunder Bhattacharjee (10), Girish Chandra Roy v. Agurwalla (15), Komal Chandra Pal (11) and Weir's Law of Offences and Criminal Procedure, pp. 874 and 875. If a Magistrate can revive proceedings of his own accord, it would tantamount to reviewing his own previous order. But in the cases of Empress v. Durga Charan (21), Empress v. Fox (22), F. W. Gibbons (23) it was laid down that the High Court cannot review its own order; much less, therefore, can a Presidency Magistrate.

An order discharging an accused person is, I submit, a judgment and that, by sec. 369, C. Cr. P., the same Court cannot alter or review it. The Code is defective inasmuch as the word "judgment" is not defined.

MR. JUSTICE PRINSEP :—Isn't it defined by sec. 367, C. Cr. P.?

Mr. Mehta :—I submit sec. 367, C. Cr. P., enacts what the language and contents of a judgment should be, but

(8) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

(10) 1 C. W. N. 57; s. c. I. L. R. 23 Cal. 983 (1896).

(11) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 286 (1897).

(15) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

(21) I. L. R. 7 All. 672 (1885).

(22) I. L. R. 10 Bom. 176 (1885).

(23) I. L. R. 14 Cal. 42 (1886).

does not define judgment. The word "judgment" is defined by the Civ. P. C. as "the statement given by the Judge of the grounds of a decree or order" and in Stroud's Judicial Dictionary it is stated that "judgment" does not merely mean the final judgment in criminal cases, but includes any decision in such cases, such as taxation of costs, refusal to quash a Magisterial conviction, refusing to admit to bail, or to grant a certiorari. Hence an order of discharge is, I submit, clearly a judgment.

In the case of Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass (1) the learned Chief Justice says that a Magistrate is bound to hear a complaint under sec. 252, C. Cr. P., but it is respectfully submitted that sec. 252 relates to original complaints and not to rehearing of complaints.

The fact that there is nothing in the Code directly enabling Presidency Magistrates to reopen proceedings, I submit, clearly shows that the Legislature never intended to give such a power to Presidency Magistrates.

That this is so, will, I submit, be apparent if the Code of 1872 be compared with the present Code. The former Code by sec. 215, Expl. II, expressly authorised the institution of fresh proceedings, whilst in the present Code there is an omission of such authority.

The cases answering the question before your Lordships in the negative are Girish Chandra Roy v. Agurwalla (15), Ram Coomár v. Ramjee (17), Damini v. Hurry Mohun Mukerjee (16) and in the affirmative are Opoorba Kumar Sett v.

(1) 5 C. W. N. 169 (1900).

(15) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

(16) 4 C. W. N. 46 (1898).

(17) 4 C. W. N. 26 (1898).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

Probodh Kumary Dass (3), Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass (1).

Babu Amarendra Nath Chatterjee.—In the recent Allahabad case of Queen v. Adam Khan (12), Blair and Burklitt, JJ., followed the Calcutta case of Girish Chandra Roy (15), and used almost the same language as Ghose and Gordon, JJ.

Further, there was distinct provision both in secs. 147 and 215, Expl. II of the Code of 1872 and in secs. 32 (2) and 87 of the Presidency Magistrate's Act (VII of 1877) that a discharge was not a bar to the revival of a prosecution for the same offence—a provision which is not found in the present Code. The intention of the Legislature was, I submit, to curtail such a power of revival. The High Court, moreover, has the power to send for the record of the case in which a Presidency Magistrate has discharged the accused and to order further enquiry into the case. See the unreported case of Nemy Chand Kundu v. Nibaran Chandra Dheria and ors. (19), in which your Lordship Mr. Justice Prinsep set aside an order of discharge made by a Presidency Magistrate and directed a further enquiry. The accused would be harassed by several prosecutions if after a discharge made by a Magistrate, the same Magistrate can reopen the proceedings.

No one appeared to shew cause.

THE JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows :—

MACLEAN, C. J.—I have heard nothing in the argument addressed to us to warrant me in changing or even qualifying the opinion I expressed in the ruling in the case of the Queen Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass (1), and I adhere to that ruling. The argument in this case, however, has led me to doubt whether the principle I have enunciated ought not to be held to apply to the case of a Mofussil Magistrate equally with that of a Presidency Magistrate, and whether the authorities which would appear to decide the contrary are well-founded in law. That question is not before us to-day.

I answer the question by saying that a Presidency Magistrate is competent to rehear—I do not like the expression “revive,” though I am aware it has been frequently used—a warrant-case triable under Chap. XXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure in which he has discharged the accused person.

PRINSEP, J.—I am of the same opinion. I think it necessary however to add a few words on my own behalf in connection with the question raised before us.

I have, since 1877, in the case of Queen Empress v. Donnelly (2), invariably held the opinion that there was no restriction to a Magistrate trying a case in which there had not been a final order, such as an order of acquittal or conviction. There is however one case, Oloorba Kumar Sett v. Probodh Kumary Dass (3), which has been brought to my notice in which a different opinion has been expressed. That, however, was not a point necessary for the decision of that case; and I may state that this

(1) 5 C. W. N. 169 (1900).

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1898).

(12) I. L. R. 22 All. 106 (1899).

(15) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

(19) 4 C. W. N. clix (1900).

(1) 5 C. W. N. 169 (1900).

(2) I. L. R. 2 Cal. 405 (1877).

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1898).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

observation escaped my notice, I certainly never intended to modify the opinion that I had formerly expressed on the subject.

The question incidentally arose, again, in the case of Haridas Sanyal v. Sarikatullah (4), and while agreeing with the majority consisting of six Judges of this Court on the point referred to the Full Bench, I differed on another point which is the point now under consideration; this had been incidentally noticed in the judgment of the Court which was pronounced by Mr. Justice Wilson, and formed a portion of the statement of the law. I then expressed the opinion that there was nothing in the law to prevent a second Magistrate from hearing a complaint in a proceeding, in which an order dismissing it or discharging an accused person had been made, that not being a final order in the case which could be pleaded in bar. The point has been again raised in the present case, although it was not one on which the reference was made.

The learned counsel, who appeared in support of the rule—and it is much to be regretted that there was no argument on the other side—contended that inasmuch as no Provincial Magistrate was competent to revive, or, stating it more correctly, to hear the complaint in a matter which had been already dealt with by an order of dismissal, or discharge, the same rule would apply to a Presidency Magistrate. If the case law on the subject be examined, it will be seen that under the Code of 1872; it was frequently held that a Magistrate could hear a complaint under such circumstances, but this Court thought proper to restrict the exercise of this power to cases in which fresh evidence was forthcoming. The cases to which I refer are Hari Singh v. Danish Mahomed (5), Kistoram Mohora v. Anis & ors. (6), Reg. v. Devama (7), Queen-Empress v. Donnelly (2), and In the matter of Dijabur Dutt & ors. (8). In this respect, as in the case now before us which has led to this reference, the High Court has interposed so as to prevent the exercise of jurisdiction by a Magistrate where the law itself has expressed no intention, directly, so to limit it. Sec. 403 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which is the only section dealing with this subject, declares, that an order of acquittal or conviction shall be a bar to further proceedings, and it specially excepts from these terms a case such as the one now before us.

But it has been argued that an order dismissing a complaint or discharging an accused person is a judgment within the terms of Ch. XXVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and that by reason of sec. 364 the Court which passed the judgment is unable to alter or review it. Now, here, I would state that in my opinion such an order is not a judgment within the terms of Ch. XXVI. Sec. 367 explains what constitutes a judgment, and it clearly indicates to my mind that a judgment within that chapter is only a judgment of acquittal or of conviction. In the case of an order of discharge, or in the case of an order dismissing a complaint, it is expressly required by the law

(2) I. L. R. 2 Cal. 405 (1877).

(5) 20 W. R. 46 (1878).

(6) 20 W. R. 47 (1878).

(7) I. L. R. 1 Bom. 64 (1875).

(8) I. L. R. 4 Cal. 647 (1879).

(4) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 608 (1888).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

that the Magistrate shall state his reasons, and I therefore take it that, if it had not been so required, it would have been unnecessary for a Magistrate to state any reasons for his order. Consequently in this point of view, the order would not constitute a judgment. And it seems to me, also, that the expression judgment itself indicates some final determination of the case which would end it once for all, such as an order of conviction or acquittal.

In regard, also, to the argument which has been addressed to us on the subject, I would draw attention to the terms of sec. 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which enable a superior Court to order a further enquiry into a complaint that had been dismissed under sec. 203 of the Code, that is, summarily dismissed, merely on the examination of the complainant, without hearing his witnesses, or under sec. 204, sub-sec. 3, that is to say, a complaint which has been dismissed on default of the complainant to pay the necessary process-fee within a reasonable time, or in a case in which the accused has been discharged. It seems to me, therefore, that any argument which may be directed towards any one of these orders, must be equally applicable to all three. I cannot understand, from this point of view, why it is necessary to apply to a superior Court before a Magistrate can hear a complaint in which he has acted arbitrarily or hastily in dismissing it on the ground that the process-fee has not been paid within the time fixed by him, if he should be afterwards satisfied that the delay was not due to neglect, but was due to some reasonable cause. I cannot understand why obstacles should be placed in the administration of justice, and why a complainant should not be entitled to require a Court to try a case before it, and to hear all his evidence if he can satisfy it that he has good grounds for his complaint. What would be the position of any Magistrate, say, another Magistrate, if, after an order dismissing a complaint, or discharging the accused, had been passed, the complainant appeared before him with another complaint and asked for its trial. The order of dismissal or discharge could not be pleaded as a bar to the proceedings under sec. 403. But it is the law, as it has been declared by the reported cases, that has raised an impediment. The High Court has thought proper to hold that such an order must be set aside by a superior Court before any Magistrate can proceed to hear such a complaint. But I have never been able to agree to this view, for it has seemed to me that there is nothing to set aside. There is no bar to further proceedings under the law, and, therefore, a Magistrate, to whom a complaint has been made under such circumstances, is bound to proceed in the manner set out in sec. 200, that is, to examine the complaint, and unless he has reason to distrust the truth of the complaint, or for some other reasons expressly recognised by law, such as if he finds that no offence had been committed, he is bound to take cognizance of the offence on a complaint and unless he has good reason to doubt the truth of the complaint he is bound to do justice to the complainant, to summon his witnesses and to hear them in the presence of the accused,

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

The argument which seems to have been freely used, to support this point of view, is, that the accused might be constantly brought before the Courts to hear the evidence on which two opinions may be formed by different Courts and thus be put to considerable inconvenience and harassment. In the exercise of such a power, as well as in the exercise of many other powers, if a reasonable discretion is not exercised, an injustice to the parties may be done. That is a matter which may be set right by a superior Court. It, certainly, is not a matter which to me seems to require that the exercise of powers which the law confers on a judicial officer should be curtailed, generally, and in all cases. This argument, moreover, would not apply to a case in which the complaint had been summarily dismissed under sec. 203 or dismissed on default to pay process-fees under sec. 204 (3) and such cases are also within the terms of sec. 437. There can be no distinction in respect to the powers of a Magistrate in dealing with such cases. This power to act under sec. 437 is only as it were on a mandamus to order proceedings to be taken where a case has been dropped and not to restrict the powers conferred by law.

In conclusion, I would only refer to the judgment of the Full Bench in Haridas Sanyal v. Sariatullah (4) which has been pressed on us as settling the matter now under consideration. If reference be made to the report of the case, it will be seen that this was not one of the points on which the opinion of the Court was desired on the reference. It did not necessarily arise on the reference nor did it form the subject of argument at the Bar. The opinion expressed by the learned Judges on this subject was only in the course of reasoning to explain how they dealt with the entire matter. It cannot, in respect, of the matter now under consideration, be regarded as finally dealing with it. I cannot, therefore, consider that the opinion so expressed is absolutely binding, though, of course, it is entitled to the greatest respect, seeing that it is the opinion of six Judges of this Court, all of whom are Judges of great experience and learning. Whether, therefore, this point arises, or not, I desire to express my opinion in this matter which is still open to discussion. On the point stated on the reference I agree with the answer which my Lord the Chief Justice proposes to give.

GHOSH, J.—The question referred to the Full Bench is “whether a Presidency Magistrate is competent to revive a warrant case triable under Chap. XXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure in which he has discharged the accused person.” This question is rather general, and applies to any case where an order of discharge, upon whatever ground and at whatever stage of the trial it might be, is made.

It seems to me that if we were to confine ourselves to the circumstances, in which the order of discharge was made in the present case, the general question referred to hardly arises.

It appears that a charge of criminal breach of trust under sec. 406 of the Penal Code was laid before one of the Presidency Magistrates of Calcutta on the 12th of May 1900. The accused was thereupon summoned, and on the 26th May when the matter was taken up for trial, the complainant was absent, though the Defendant was present; and the latter having denied the charge, the complaint was dismissed and the Defendant was discharged without any trial. A few minutes after this order was made, the complainant came into Court, and applied that the case might be "restored or revived," stating that, on account of illness, he was unable to be punctual. The Magistrate thereupon, on the 26th of June of the same year, ordered that the case be revived, and summons on the accused do issue.

(4) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 608 (1888).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

There can be no doubt that the order of the 26th May 1900 which apparently was made under sec. 259 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, was illegal, because it was a warrant-case, and the offence for which the accused was charged could not lawfully be compounded; but then the question that arises is, whether he had authority to revive the complaint, and order fresh summons to issue upon the original complaint.

Sec. 369 of the Code provides that "no Court other than a High Court, when it has signed its judgment, can alter or review the same, except as provided in secs. 295 and 484, or to correct a clerical error." The sections specifically referred to have no application to the present case, and therefore may be left out of consideration.

The question is, whether the order of the 26th of May 1900 was a judgment which could not be altered or reviewed by the Magistrate.

Sec. 403 of the Code lays down that when a person is once acquitted or convicted of any offence he shall not be tried again for the same offence. And there is an explanation attached to it which runs thus:—

"The dismissal of a complaint, the stopping of proceedings under sec. 249, the discharge of the accused on an entry made on a charge under sec. 273, is not an acquittal for the purposes of the section."

There can be no doubt that the discharge of the accused could not operate as an acquittal, and it follows from this that if the Magistrate in this particular case was authorized under the law to alter or review his own order, he could rightly make the order that he did make on the 26th June 1900.

Sec. 369 of the Code, as already stated, prohibits a judgment, when once pronounced being altered or reviewed; and by implication it may be taken that if an order is not a judgment, it may be altered or reviewed.

The Code does not define what a judgment is. Sec. 367, however, so far as the Provincial Criminal Courts are concerned, lays down what a judgment should contain, but sec. 370, as applicable to a Presidency Magistrate provides a different form for the recording of a judgment. It only provides for certain particulars being mentioned in the judgment, and that in all cases in which the Magistrate inflicts imprisonment, or a fine exceeding Rs. 200, brief statement of the reasons therefor should be recorded. Upon examination of the various provisions of the Code, it will be found that it is only after the Magistrate investigates the merits of the complaint, either by examination of the complainant, or by taking such evidence as may be produced, that the Magistrate is in a position to pronounce a judgment, or, in other words, that the case should reach a stage which entitles or requires him to pronounce a decision upon the guilt or innocence of the accused. And if he then makes his order, either convicting the accused or discharging him, it would, I think, be a judgment within the meaning of the Code. In this respect, there is a difference between a summons and a warrant-case. Confining myself to a warrant-case, and referring to secs. 203, 252, 253 and the following sections in Chap. XXI of the Code, it seems to me clear that it is only when the Magistrate, after investigating into the merits of the complaint, pronounces an order, it is a judgment. In the present case, however, the Magistrate did not so investigate the merits, but as expressed by himself, it was "struck off in the absence of the complainant," on the day fixed for trial. It is obvious that the case did not reach that stage which entitled him to pronounce an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused. I am, therefore, inclined to think that the order of the 26th May 1900 is not a judgment within the meaning of sec. 369 of the Code; and that being so, the Magistrate was entitled to alter or review it, as he did by his order of the 26th of June of the same year.

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

The view that I have just expressed would be sufficient to dispose of the reference before us, but as already mentioned the question referred to the Full Bench is a larger question, and refers generally to all warrant-cases, in which the accused has been discharged; and the arguments addressed to us have been rather upon that larger question; and as the learned Chief Justice has expressed his views upon it I feel it incumbent upon me to state what my views on the subject are and I proceed to do so shortly.

I have already referred to the section of the Code which lays down that a judgment of a Criminal Court if once pronounced cannot be altered or reviewed; and I have also tried to explain in what cases the order of a Magistrate would be a judgment. Take the case of an order under sec. 203 which provides—

"The Magistrate before whom a complaint is made, or to whom it has been transferred, may dismiss the complaint, if, after examining the complainant and considering the result of the investigation (if any) made under sec. 202, there is in his judgment no sufficient ground for proceeding. In such a case he shall briefly record his reasons for so doing."

The Magistrate in such a case has to give reasons for his order dismissing the complaint. In like manner, in making an order under sec. 253 discharging the accused after examining the complainant, or after taking such evidence that may be produced in support of the prosecution, he has to record his reasons. Such an order would, in my opinion, be a judgment. Sec. 370 of the Code, as applicable to a Presidency Magistrate, though in terms does not lay down that the reasons for making an order of discharge should be recorded, yet I take it that it is to be read with the other sections to which I have just referred; and in this view of the matter, I should think that, when after examining the complaint or after taking certain evidence, however incomplete such evidence may be, the Magistrate exercises his judgment upon the merits of the complainant, and makes an order of discharge, it is a judgment, which under sec 369 cannot be reviewed or altered by himself.

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

But it has been said that sec. 367 of the Code, as applicable to Provincial Criminal Courts, does not speak of an order of discharge, but only of conviction and acquittal. And therefore such an order, though containing the reasons for making it, is not a judgment. I am unable to accede to this view; for it seems to me that the first paragraph of that section is applicable to all orders which are passed after a Criminal Court exercises its judgment upon the merits of the complaint, though no doubt the following paragraphs speak of conviction or acquittal. But, however that may be, the argument that may be drawn from the wording of this section is hardly applicable to a judgment as referred to in sec. 370.

But it is said that the discharge of the accused being not an acquittal, and there being nothing in the Code of Criminal Procedure prohibiting the Magistrate from entertaining a fresh complaint, either upon the same facts, or upon additional facts, he is competent to take fresh cognizance of the case. So far as this particular argument bears upon the present case, it cannot be applicable; for the simple reason that the application that was made to the Magistrate after the complaint was dismissed was simply for a revival and not a fresh complaint. But perhaps this is rather a technical view of the matter. I therefore pass on to the question of the general applicability of the argument.

Referring to sec. 87 of the Presidency Magistrate's Act IV of 1877, which was repealed by the Criminal Procedure Code of 1882, I find that a provision similar to sec. 259 of the present Code was contained in it. Explanation I of that section provides—

“The absence of the complainant, except when the offence may lawfully be compounded, shall not be deemed sufficient ground for a discharge, if there appear other evidence of a nature rendering a trial desirable.” And then Explanation II laid down:—“A discharge is not equivalent to an acquittal, and does not bar the revival of a prosecution for the same offence.” The words in Explanation II “and does not bar the revival of a prosecution for the same offence” have not been incorporated in the present Code, and all we have in it is that the discharge of the accused does not operate as an acquittal. I may further refer to the 2nd paragraph of sec. 32 of the same Act, which is analogous to sec. 203 of the present Code, with this difference that in that paragraph there was an express provision for a revival after dismissal, whereas there is no such provision in the present law. What do these omissions, to which I have just referred, indicate? Do not they indicate that the Legislature intended that the Magistrate, when once he has discharged the accused, should not have, on his own authority, the power to revive a complaint or take fresh cognizance of it? On the other hand, instead of any provision like that which was contained in the Act of 1877, we have in Chap. XXXII of the present Code secs. 435 to 439, which give the superior criminal authority, including the High Court, the power to set aside an order of discharge improperly made by a Magistrate, and to order further inquiry. It is however said that secs. 436 and 437 do not apply to Presidency Magistrates [see the observations of the learned Chief Justice in Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass (1)]; but conceding that this is so, there can be, I think, no doubt that secs. 435 and 439 are applicable, and they confer upon the High Court the power of sending for the record of any inferior tribunal, and reversing the order of the Magistrate, including the power of ordering a further inquiry in the case of an improper discharge. And this was the view that was adopted in respect to an order made by a Provincial Magistrate in the Full Bench case of Haridas Sanyal (4). It will be observed that the said Chap. XXXII refers to Presidency Magistrates, as also to Provincial Magistrates, and though it may be said that sec. 435 does not in terms refer to Presidency Magistrates, yet the words "any inferior Criminal Court" would include a Presidency Magistrate's Court, and the High Court is by the terms of sec. 439, read with sec. 423 of the Code, empowered to set aside the order of discharge, and direct a further inquiry. I am here confronted by certain observations of Sir Henry Prinsep and Hill, JJ., in the case of Charooballa Dabes (9), where, in referring to the powers of the High Court under sec. 439, read with sec. 423, they stated that the latter section "does not enable a Court of Appeal to direct that further enquiry be made into a case in which an order of discharge or dismissal may have been passed. Sec. 423 confers a power to direct a further enquiry, only in respect of a case of an appeal from an order of acquittal, and that the power is so limited is shewn by an express enactment in sec. 437 to provide for such orders being passed." To this I need only say that this view is opposed to the decision of the Full Bench in the case of Haridas Sanyal (4), to which I have already referred. I shall only quote here a few lines bearing upon this point. Wilson, J., in delivering the judgment of the majority of the Court, says, "thirdly, though I am inclined to agree with the contention urged before us that the mention of the High Court in sec. 437 was not strictly necessary, and that, if it had not been mentioned, it would have had, under secs. 435 and 439, the same powers which are here expressly given to it, still I think the mention of the three tribunals together, the High Court, the Court of Session, and the District Magistrate, tends to show that the Legislature intended them to have the same power with regard to the matter dealt with in the section." If these sections to which I have just referred were intended only to apply to the Provincial Magistracy, it is to my mind simply incomprehensible, why the Legislature, while they omitted in the present Code the reservation in favour of a revival as embodied in Explanation II

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

(1) 5 C. W. N. 169 (1900).

(4) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 608 (1888).

(9) 3 C. W. N. 601 (1899).

(4) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 608 (1888).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

of sec. 87 of Act IV of 1877, and in sec. 32, para. 2 of the same Act and made distinct provisions in secs. 435 to 439 for setting aside an improper order of discharge by a Magistrate, should have made no such provision as regards orders made by Presidency Magistrates. And in this connection, I may refer to secs. 147 and 215 of the Code of 1872, which contained provisions similar to Explanation II of secs. 87 and 32 of the Presidency Magistrate's Act, viz., that the dismissal of a complaint or the discharge of the accused shall not prevent subsequent proceedings, which proviso has also been omitted in the corresponding secs. 203 and 403 of the present Code. It seems to me obvious therefore that both the Presidency Magistrates, and the Provincial Magistrates have, under the Code of 1882, been placed on the same footing, and the omission of the provisions as contained in both the Presidency Magistrate's Act, and the Code of 1872, just referred to, is significant as indicating the intention of the Legislature to take away from Magistrates the power which they hitherto possessed of reviving on their own authority, a complaint which has once been dismissed, or where the accused has been discharged. It has been repeatedly held in this Court that, after an order of discharge has been made by a Provincial Magistrate, it is not open to him to reopen the proceeding without an order of a superior authority, and this has been held by not less an authority than Sir Henry Prinsep. In the case of Opoorba Coomar Sett v. Probodh Kumary Dassi (3), that learned Judge referring to Mofussil Magistrates, expressed himself in these terms "no doubt the power to reopen criminal proceedings after an order of discharge is not open to every Magistrate unless an order from some superior authority is passed directing further inquiry or commitment. To the same effect is the case of Nil Ratin Sen (10) as also the case of Komal Chunder Pal v. Gour Chand Audhikari (11). These two latter cases have been quoted with approval by the Allahabad High Court in the recent case of Empress v. Adam Khan (12). And I would also refer in this connection to a case in the Madras High Court reported in Weir's Law of Offences and Criminal Procedure, page 874.

If then what has been repeatedly held in this Court as to the want of authority in the Provincial Magistrate's reopening proceedings after an order of discharge has been made, be correct, it is to my mind impossible to hold (arguing by analogy) that a Presidency Magistrate in similar circumstances, is possessed of that authority.

Then is there anything in the Code itself to favour the view that has been propounded on the other side? The Code of Criminal Procedure is but an enabling Act (see e.g., sec. 5); and it seems to me that, before such an authority as is claimed for a Presidency Magistrate is held to exist, it must be shown that there is express provision in the Code giving him that authority.

There may not be any express provision in the Code that the dismissal of

(10) 1 C. W. N. 57; s. c. I. L. R. 23 Cal. 983 (1896).

(11) I. L. R. 24 Cal. 286 (1897).

(12) I. L. R. 22 All. 106 (1899).

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1898).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

complaint shall be a bar to a fresh complaint being entertained so long as the order of dismissal remains unreversed; but on the other hand, as Banerjee, J., has observed in the case of Nil Ratan Sen (10), "there is no express provision to the contrary, not even such as there was in sec. 147 of the former Code," while secs. 435 to 439 of the Code authorize the superior criminal authority to revise the order of dismissal, and to direct a further inquiry. I do not desire to import anything in the Code which does not exist there; but I do say, what is there in the Code which authorizes a Magistrate, when once he has dismissed a complaint or discharged an accused to reopen proceedings, either on the same complaint, or on a fresh complaint? Secs. 190 and 252 of the Code, no doubt, authorize a Magistrate to take cognizance of an offence in one of three ways, and to investigate the same; but these sections, with all deference to the contrary opinion that has been expressed, can only refer to one and the same complaint, and to the same set of facts presented to the Magistrate at the time of the initiation of proceedings; otherwise the accused would be in peril of being prosecuted upon the same facts, first of all, under a complaint, then upon a police-report, and lastly upon the Magistrate's own initiation provided only there has been no acquittal on the charge. The mischief of such a course was pointed out in the case of Mohesh Mistree (13), where the accused was prosecuted three times for the same offence under the old Code. And I think it is not unreasonable to suppose that, having regard to the mischief that sometimes arose under the old Code, the Legislature took away from the Magistrates the power they possessed of reviving proceedings after a discharge, on their own authority.

But it is said that an order of discharge being not an acquittal, there is nothing to alter or set aside; and therefore a Magistrate is competent to take cognizance of the same matter notwithstanding the provisions of sec. 369. No doubt, such an order is not an acquittal, and does not bar subsequent proceedings—but supposing that the reviving of proceedings, after an order of discharge, is not practically to alter or set aside the previous order, the question yet arises whether the Magistrate could do so on his own authority<sup>2</sup>—and whether, so far as he is concerned, he is empowered to take further proceedings in respect of the same matter, without the orders of a superior Court.

The learned Chief Justice, in his judgment in the case of Queen-Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass (1), has, in support of the view he expressed therein, relied upon among other matters, which I have already discussed, to three cases, and which I now proceed to notice.

The first case is of Hari Singh v. Danish Mahomed (5). That was a case under the Code of 1872, which authorized, as I have already stated, the revival of proceedings after a discharge (see sec. 215, Expl. II, and sec. 147). Moreover, in that particular case, it was the District Magistrate who directed fresh (10) 1 C. W. N. 57: s. c. L. L. R.

28 Cal. 988 (1896).

(13) I. L. R. 1 Cal. 282 (1876).

(1) 1 C. W. N. 169 (1900).

(5) 20 W. R. 46 (1873).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

proceedings being taken after an order of discharge made by a Subordinate Magistrate, and it was held by Couch, C. J., that he had authority to do this. The same power exists also in the present Code, and the case therefore, in my opinion, does not help us in the decision of the point at issue in the present reference.

The next case is that of Empress v. Donnelly (2). This was also a case under the Code of 1872, which as I have already noticed, expressly authorized the institution of fresh proceedings. The learned Judges, however, drew a distinction, which is of importance, in the consideration of the question now raised before us, viz., that a District Magistrate cannot direct the revival, by his own authority, of a case in which there has been a discharge, where there is no further evidence forthcoming. Under the present Code, however, as expounded by the majority of the Court in the case of Haridra Sanyal (4), there is a power given to the District Magistrate of directing a further enquiry upon the same facts.

The last case is of Queen v. Poran (14). That case, no doubt, is authority for the proposition that a Magistrate, after an order of dismissal under sec. 203, is not precluded from entertaining again the complaint upon the same state of facts. But this, I may observe, is against the current of rulings in this Court, where it has been held that this could only be done under the orders of a superior authority.

The only other case that I need notice is the case of Girish Chantra Roy (15).

(2) I. L. R. 2 Cal. 405 (1877).

(4) I. L. R. 15 Cal. 608 (1888).

(14) I. L. R. 9 All. 85 (1886).

(15) 1 C. W. N. 370 (1897).

In that case the accused had been discharged by an Honorary Magistrate, and subsequently one of the stipendiary Magistrates upon an application being made to him, ordered a revival of the case. And I held that this was, in effect, dealing by one Magistrate with the order of another Magistrate of co-ordinate jurisdiction, as if he were an appellate authority and that this he was not empowered to do. The learned Chief Justice, I observe, in the case of Empress v. Dola Gobind Dass (1) expressed his dissent, both from my reasoning and the conclusion I arrived at in that case. He was of opinion that under sec. 252 of the Code, the Magistrate was bound to hear the case upon the fresh complaint made to him, and that there was nothing in the Procedure Code to preclude him from so doing. In the earlier part of my judgment I have discussed this particular point, and I need not therefore repeat here what I have already said. I may, however, in this connection, refer to the recent case of Queen v. Adam Khan (12), decided by the Allahabad Court (Blair and Burkitt, JJ.), where precisely the same view, which I expressed, has been approved of and adopted. The learned Judges observed:—

“We think it utterly contrary to sound principles that one Magistrate of co-ordinate jurisdiction should, in effect and substance, deal with, as if it were an appeal or a matter for revision, a complaint which had already been dismissed by a competent tribunal of co-ordinate authority.

For all these reasons I should answer

(1) 5 C. W. N. 69 (1900).

(12) I. L. R. 22 All. 106 (1899).

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

the general question referred to the Full Bench in the negative subject, of course, to the reservation as indicated in the early part of my judgment. And this is the view that was adopted by no less than six Judges of this Court, including the two Judges who have referred this case.

HILL, J.—I think that this reference should be answered in the manner proposed by my Lord, and I have little to add. Confining myself to the question arising out of the proceedings before the Magistrate, the case of Opoorba Kumar Sett v. Prooth Kumary Dassi (3) was, I think, rightly decided and ought to be followed. It would amount virtually to a reluctio ad absurdum, were it to be held that if the complainant had renewed his complaint, after the order of discharge had been made, the Magistrate might have proceeded with the prosecution, notwithstanding that order, as there can be no doubt he might have done [see the judgment of the Chief Justice in the case of Empress v. Dole Gobind Dass (1)], but that he was precluded by that order, which, it is to be observed, was not made on the merits, and was an altogether illegal order, from taking further action in consequence of the circumstances that the complaint was not formally repeated by the complainant. The jurisdiction, moreover, does not rest exclusively on complaint. See the remarks of Markby, J., in the case of Empress v. Donnelly (2), which were accepted in principle by Mr. Justice Prinsep.

I may add that the case of Damini

Dassi v. Hurry Mohun Mukerjee (16) to the decision of which I was a party proceeded so far as I was concerned on what I conceived to be the practice of the Court rather than upon principle. None of the cases bearing upon the question now before us were cited. The decision cannot, I think, be sustained.

SALE, J.—I also agree in the answer proposed to be made in the reference by the Chief Justice and for the reasons stated in his judgment. It seems to me that under the Criminal Procedure Code an order of discharge in a warrant-case is no bar to further proceedings on the same charge and that this is so irrespective of the circumstances under which the order of discharge was made.

HARINGTON, J.—I agree that the question propounded to us ought to be answered in the terms stated by my Lord. The answer depends on whether the order of discharge is a "judgment," or not; and though there is no definition that I can find of what constitutes "judgment"; there is, in sec. 29 of the Penal Code, a definition of what constitutes a Judge, who is defined as every person who is empowered by law to give, in any legal proceeding, civil or criminal, a definitive judgment, or a judgment which, if not appealed against, would be definitive, or a judgment which, if confirmed by some other authority, would be definitive, or who is one of a body of persons, which body of persons is empowered by law to give such a judgment; and, amongst the illustrations, it is pointed out that a Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in respect of a charge on which he has power to sen-

(1) 5 C. W. N. 169 (1900).

(2) I. L. R. 2 Cal. 405 (1877).

(3) 1 C. W. N. 49 (1893).

(16) 4 C. W. N. 46 (1898)

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADHUB BANERJI.

tence to fine or imprisonment, with or without appeal, is a Judge. In this case it appears to me that at the stage of the proceedings at which this charge was dismissed, the Magistrate could not be accurately described as a Judge, because he had not, at that stage of the proceedings, jurisdiction to pass a sentence of fine or imprisonment. All that he had jurisdiction to do was this; if no prima facie case was made, he was entitled to discharge the accused; if, on the other hand, a prima facie case was made out, he was called upon to determine whether if a charge were framed on the facts disclosed he could inflict an adequate punishment and if he could, he was bound to frame a charge under sec. 254 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and call upon the accused to plead to that charge and then proceed to try it. In my opinion, until the charge had been framed and the accused called upon to plead to it, the Magistrate could not accurately be described as a Judge and any order that he made previous to the framing of the charge could not be described as "judgment." For that reason I think that the order of discharge was not a judgment. And, indeed, it is difficult to understand how in proceedings under Ch. XXI of the Criminal Procedure Code an order of discharge could be called a judgment, when at the time it was made no charge had been framed on which a "judgment" could be passed, and the accused had not been called upon to plead. It could under no circumstances be "definitive" for it does not operate as an acquittal under sec. 403 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. That section shows what constitutes a definitive judgment in a criminal case.

There is only one other point on which I desire to add an observation, and that is this; it was open to argument that when the Magistrate had passed the order of discharge, he became functus officio, and therefore was unable to re-hear the case without a fresh complaint or information. As to this, I desire to say that that question is not the question referred to us; and, in this particular case, it is clear that the Magistrate had not discharged the duties which were imposed on him by sec. 252 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and, therefore, he could not be said to be functus officio, and moreover there is nothing to show that, when the parties appeared before him, on the 26th of June, when the case was re-heard and a fresh summons issued, the conditions requisite for initiating proceedings were not fulfilled and the Magistrate therefore was not empowered to take cognizance of the case under secs. 190 and 200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

For the reasons I have given, I agree in thinking that the answer which should be given to this question should be the answer stated by my Lord.

BRETT, J.—I would answer the question referred to us in the manner suggested by the learned Chief Justice for the reasons given by him in the case of Empress v. Dole Gobind (1), and in his judgment just delivered with which I agree. I agree with the broad principle therein laid down that when a Magistrate is empowered by law to entertain a complaint he should exercise that power unless there is any bar to prevent his doing so. Sec. 190, C. Cr. P., gives that power to all Presidency Magistrates, and an order of discharge cannot operate as a bar to the exercise of that power (see sec. 403, Cr. P. C.). Nor can the provisions of sec. 435 or 439, Cr. P. C., which are enabling sections operate to limit the powers given to a Presidency Magistrate otherwise under the law.

DWARKA NATH MONDUL v. BENI MADAUB BANERJI.

H. P. C. Rule discharged.

[CIVIL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]*Full Bench.

RULE NO. 1217 OF 1900.

MACLEAN, C. J.	AMRITA LAL BOSE,
PRINSEP, J.	Decree-holder,
BANERJEE, J.	Petitioner,
AMEER ALI, J.
RAMPINI, J.	NEMAI CHAND MUKHO-
1901.	[PADHYA and anr., Claim-
13, February.	ants, Opposite Party.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), sec. 170—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 278—Claim adverse to the tenure or holding, if maintainable, when attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent.

Held by the Full Bench (BANERJEE, J., dissenting)—That sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act bars a claim under sec. 278, P. C., to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon, in all cases, and, the operation is not confined merely to claims to the tenure or holding but extends to claims based on the ground that the property claimed does not form part of the tenure or holding attached.

JAGABUNDHU CHATTOPADHYA v. DEENU PAL (1) overruled.

MAKBUL AHMED v. RAKHAL DAS HAZRA (2) approved of.

This was a rule obtained by the decree-holder against the order of Babu Sarat Chandra Pal, Munsif of Barnipur, dated the 21st of April 1900.

The Petitioner obtained a decree for arrears of rent against one Pitambar Chakravarti and in execution of the same attached the defaulting tenure whereupon the opposite party preferred a claim under sec. 278, C. P. C., to the tenure attached. In the first Court a preliminary objection was raised as to whether a claim could be preferred under sec. 278 to a tenure attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent. The Court held that the claimants claimed under an adverse title to the tenure and decided the question in favour of the claimants and relied upon the case of Jagabundhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal (1) (Civil Rule No. 1370 of 1886).*

The decree-holder made an application under sec. 622, C. P. C., and obtained the present rule.

It was contended on behalf of the decree-holder that under sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the provisions of sec. 278, C. P. C., are excluded and declared not to be applicable to proceedings in execution of rent-decrees, and that the recent case of Makbul Ahmed v. Rakhal Das Hazra (2) (Civil Rule No. 201 of 1900, decided by Rampini and Pratt, JJ.), was in favour of this contention; and that this case being in conflict with the case of Jagabundhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal (1) the question should be referred to a Full Bench.

Rule I of Ch. V of the High Court

(1) 4 C. W. N. 784 (1887).

(2) 4 C. W. N. 782 (1900).

(1) 4 C. W. N. 784 (1887).

(2) 4 C. W. N. 782 (1900).

AMRITA LAL BOSE v. NEMAI CHAND* MUKHOPADHYA.

Rules on its Appellate Side was also referred to.

It was contended that although the cases of Makbul Ahmed v. Rakhal Das Hazra and Jagabandhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal had not been reported, yet, in view of the conflict, the question should be referred to a Full Bench under Rule 1 of Ch. V of the High Court Rules.*

Maclean, C. J., and Banerjee, J., who heard the rule, referred it to the Full Bench. The following is the order of reference:—

In this rule the first question that arises for decision is—

Whether sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act bars a claim under sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon, in all cases, or whether the operation is confined to claims to the tenure or holding and does not extend to claims based on the ground that the property claimed does not form part of the tenure or holding attached.

Upon that question there is a clear conflict between the decisions of this Court in the cases of Jagabandhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal (1) and Makbul Ahmed and others v. Rakhal Das Hazra (2).

The question must, therefore, be referred to a Full Bench for determination, and as the question arises in a rule, the whole case must be so referred.

(1) 4 C. W. N. 734 (1887).

(2) 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900).

* These cases have since been reported at 4 C. W. N., pp. 732 and 734. See on this point Mahomed Ali v. Mir Nazur, 5 C. W. N., p. 326.—Ed.

Babu Bankim Chunder Sen for the Petitioner.

Babu Sarat Chandra Roy Chowdhry for the Opposite Party.

The JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows:—

MACLEAN, C. J.—The question submitted for our consideration is, whether sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act bars a claim under sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon, in all cases, or whether the operation is confined to claims to the tenure or holding and does not extend to claims based on the ground that the property claimed does not form part of the tenure or holding attached.

There are, as has been pointed out in the reference, two conflicting decisions upon the point, the one Jagabandhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal (1) and the other Makbul Ahmed v. Rakhal Das Hazra (2).

The question is not free from difficulty and the answer is dependent upon the true construction of sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, sub-sec. 1, which is in these terms:—“Secs. 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due thereon.” What is meant by the words, “shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due thereon?” The person making a claim or raising an objection under sec. 278 is entitled in the first instance to prefer such claim or objection, and the

(1) 4 C. W. N. 734 (1887).

(2) 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900).

AMRITA LAL ROSE v. NEMAI CHAND MUKHOPADHYA.

onus then lies upon the other side to show that sec. 170 is a bar to the further prosecution of that claim. He must show that the tenure or holding has been attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon. But if he produces the decree under which he is proceeding in execution and that decree upon the face of it shows that it is a decree for arrears of rent due upon the tenure or holding attached in execution of the decree, it seems to me that he has sufficiently discharged such onus, and that the Court ought not to proceed further with the investigation of the claim under sec. 278; otherwise this somewhat extraordinary result would ensue, viz., a long and possibly intricate enquiry under sec. 278 not for the purpose of investigating the claim or objection under that section, but with the preliminary object of ascertaining whether sec. 170 was or was not a bar to the proceeding under sec. 278. If that were so in the majority of, if not in all, cases, sec. 170 would become almost a dead letter and I feel much hesitancy in placing such a construction upon sec. 170 as would tend to so abortive a result. In other words the claim or objection under sec. 278 would in effect be investigated under color of the preliminary enquiry whether or not the decree was one for arrears due on the tenure or holding attached. This, to my mind, is not what the Legislature intended by sec. 170.

Upon these grounds I answer the question referred by saying that sec. 170 of the Tenancy Act does bar a claim under sec. 278 of the Code to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due thereon in all cases where it is shown that the decree was one for such arrears, and I answer the alternative question in the negative.

The result will be that the rule will be made absolute with costs including the costs of this reference, the hearing fee being fixed at three gold mohurs for both hearings.

PRINSEP, J.—I am of the same opinion. I merely wish to add that I believe that this point has arisen in several unreported cases before me in which judgment has been delivered in the way in which My Lord the Chief Justice proposes to answer this reference to the Full Bench. I do not recollect a single instance in which the correctness of this view of the law has been impugned. This can cause no injustice to a party placed in the position of the Petitioner in this matter, for there are other remedies provided by the law which would equally enable him to maintain his possession or be restored to his possession notwithstanding what may be a fraudulent decree conferring a right to possession of the land.

BANERJEE, J.—I regret very much that I am unable to agree with my learned colleagues in this case. The question referred to us for decision is, whether sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act bars a claim under sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon, in all cases, or whether its operation is confined to claims to the tenure or holding and does not extend to claims based on the ground that the property claimed does not form part of the tenure or holding attached. And the necessity for this reference to a Full Bench arose from the fact of there being a conflict of decisions upon the point between the cases of Jagabandhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal (1) and Makbul Ahmed v. Kakhil Das Hazra (2).

AMRITA LAL BOSE v. NEMAI CHAND MUKHOPADHYA.

The determination of this question depends upon the language of sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and this is what sub-sec. 1 of that section says:—“Secs. 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.” The section thus bars the application of secs. 278 to 283 of the Code of Civil Procedure to certain classes of cases, namely, those in which the tenure or holding is attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon. Upon a claim under sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure being preferred, it, therefore, lies upon the party opposing the claim to show that the claim is barred by sec. 170. He can show that by showing that, upon the claimant's own case, sec. 170 applies to it, and bars the application of sec. 278. That will be the case where the claim is of this nature, namely, that the claimant admits that the tenure or holding attached is held under the decree-holder, that arrears of rent are due thereon and that the decree is in respect of such arrears, but contends that the decree ought not to be allowed to be executed by the attachment and sale of the tenure, because it was obtained against a wrong person, that the claimant was the person entitled to the tenure or holding and that, unless and until the landlord sues him and obtains a decree against him, the tenure or holding cannot be sold. Where that is the nature of the claim, sec. 170 will bar the claim upon the claimant's own case. But where the claim is of this nature, namely, that the tenure or holding attached, or rather I should say the land said to constitute the tenure or holding attached, was not held by the claimant under the decree-holder, but was held by him under an independent right, and that the decree for arrears is, consequently, not a decree for arrears due in respect of such land, there the decree-holder cannot say that, upon the claimant's own showing, sec. 170 is a bar to the claim being entertained. Nor can it be said that the case is one of a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon, as the decree sought to be enforced would go to show. For that would be so only as between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor. If the claimant is to be treated as a party to the proceedings, and if the order rejecting the claim on the ground of sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act being a bar to it, is to be made in his presence, he must be allowed to say that the decree itself cannot be decisive of the question. For, if that be so, it would make the decree-holder in many cases, and the decree-holder and judgment-debtor acting in concert in all cases, the arbiter of the question. A decree-holder, with the view of defrauding a party of his land, may, in collusion with a tenant, or an alleged tenant, aver, in his plaint, in a suit for arrears of rent, that the arrears are due in respect of a tenure or holding comprising such land, and he may obtain a decree in a suit so brought; and, then, if the view contended for by the other side be correct, the third party, whose property has in this fraudulent manner been included in the tenure or holding will be deprived of the summary remedy provided by sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure, without having any opportunity of showing that the decree was not for arrears really due in respect of the property attached. The decree, therefore, cannot, in my opinion, be treated as settling the question. The question must be determined in the presence of the claimant, and, if necessary, upon evidence. No doubt, this would be open to the objection that, in determining whether a claimant is barred under sec. 170 of the Tenancy Act, a preliminary enquiry will have to be gone into; but such preliminary enquiry may have to be gone into for the purpose of determining whether the preliminary objection ought to prevail, unless it can be shown that upon the very case of the party, against whom the objection is taken, the objection should succeed. It may also be said, on the other side, that, if this view be correct, it would lead to the very investigation which sec. 170 is intended to prevent, and that it would, after all, leave little scope for sub-sec. 1 of sec. 170. But, as I understand the section, I do not think it would lead to any such anomalous results as these. The preliminary enquiry will be directed, not towards determining whether or not the claimant is entitled to the property, but towards determining whether the arrears, in respect of which the decree has been obtained, were due in respect of the property attached. If that is made out, the claim will have to be at once rejected, without any further investigation as to the case put forward by the claimant. Nor will the view I take make sec. 170 nugatory. As I have already observed, the object of that section, as I understand it, is to prevent any claim being advanced by a party who admits that the property attached constitutes a tenure or holding as alleged by the decree-holder, and that the decree is for arrears due thereon, and whose only objection is, that such tenure or holding held under the decree-holder belongs not to the judgment-debtor, but to the claimant. It is to exclude claims in this class of cases that sec. 170 was enacted. That will appear also, from a reference to the old law on the subject, sec. 63 of Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869. Therefore the view I take is not only in accordance with the words of the section, but is supported also by a reference to the law on the subject as it stood before.

(1) 4 C. W. N. 734 (1887).

(2) 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900).

AMRITA LAL BOSE v. NEMAI CHAND MUKHOPADHYA.

Reference was made to sec. 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, sub-sec. 3, which provides that sec. 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale of a tenure or holding under the Tenancy Act, as showing that the Legislature intended to make several provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure inapplicable to the attachment and sale of a tenure or holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent. I think that a reference to this provision rather tends to support an inference the other way. For it would not be reasonable to suppose that the Legislature meant to increase the number of inoperative execution sales and thus enhance the risk of auction-purchasers by leaving open the claims of parties against whom fraud might have been committed, without giving them an opportunity of coming under sec. 278 of the Code and having their property released from attachment, when it debarred auction-purchasers from having any remedy under sec. 313 of the Code.

AMRITA LAL BOSE v. NEMAI CHAND MUKHOPADHYA.

Then it has been said that a claimant, situated as this claimant was, would suffer no injury by the sale of the tenure or holding, as his rights could not possibly pass by such a sale. That is quite true; but that would be no reason why he should be deprived of the remedy under sec. 278, when other claimants of whom also the same thing might be said are allowed the benefit of that remedy.

For these reasons, I respectfully dissent from the view taken in the case of Makbul Ahmed v. Rakhal Das Hazra (2) and agreeing with the decision in the case of Jogabundhu Chattopadhyaya v. Deenu Pal (1) I would answer the first branch of the question referred to the Full Bench in the negative, and the second branch of it in the affirmative.

AMEER ALI, J.—I am also of opinion, and for the reasons given by the learned Chief Justice, that sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act bars a claim under sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon. I only wish to add one other ground in support of the view already expressed. When a landlord obtains a decree against his tenant for arrears of rent due upon his alleged tenure or holding, the decree is unquestionably binding upon the parties and on the tenure or holding; supposing that in the course of the execution of that decree a third party comes forward and alleges that either in whole or in part he is entitled to that tenure or holding, as the case may be, his claim amounts to this that the property attached in execution of the decree is not liable to such attachment, which brings the matter clearly under sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Now, if we refer to the provisions of sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, we find that without any exception secs. 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure are declared not to be applicable to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon. I said without exception, because whether the claim is adverse to the tenure or holding, or whether it is for the tenure or holding, all claims to the property attached on the ground that it was not liable to such attachment, which can only be put forward under sec. 278 of the Code, are excluded from the purview of the Court by sec. 170. To hold otherwise would be to open the door to the difficulties which, it must be taken, the Legislature intended to avoid, and to launch the holder of a decree for arrears of rent in a complicated enquiry, the result of which may, after all, be wholly infructuous. The tenant against whom a decree for arrears of rent has been obtained may put forward a number of people to claim either in whole or in part the tenure or holding and thus prevent the landlord from reaping the fruits of his decree. As regards sec. 63 of Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869 to which reference was made by the learned vakil for the opposite party, I may observe

(1) 4 C. W. N. 784 (1887).

(2) 4 C. W. N. 732 (1900).

AMRITA LAI BOSE v NEMAI CHAND MUKHOPADHYA.

that that section seems to strengthen the view I have expressed. The Legislature presumably, if not certainly, had that section before it. And still deliberately proceeded to enact sub-sec. 1 of sec. 170 of the present Tenancy Act barring in all cases claims under sec. 278 of the Civil Procedure Code.

RAMPINI, J.—I concur in the views of the majority of the Judges constituting this Bench. I am of opinion that sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act bars a claim under sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon in all cases, and that its operation is not confined to claims to the tenure or holding, but does extend to claims based on the ground that the property attached does not form part of the tenure or holding attached.

The determination of this question would seem to me to depend upon the construction of the provisions of sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure read in conjunction with those of sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Sec. 278 of the Code of Civil Procedure prescribes how a claim preferred to, or an objection made to the attachment of any property attached in execution of a decree is to be investigated, and sec. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act provides that the provisions of sec. 278, amongst others, of the Civil Procedure Code shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon. The two sections when thus read together would seem to me to imply that when a tenure or holding is attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due thereon, no third party is to be at liberty to prefer any claim of any kind or to intervene in any way in the proceedings in execution of a decree for arrears of rent.

The same conclusion, I think, follows when the question is considered from another point of view, namely, as to whether a third party, who seeks to prefer a claim under sec. 278 of the Code to a tenure or holding, is in any way affected by the proceedings taken in execution of a decree for arrears of rent. It seems to me that he is not. He is no party to the decree for arrears of rent; he is not affected by it; he cannot be affected in any way by any proceedings taken by the landlord, the decree-holder, as against the tenant the judgment-debtor. The rent-decree and the proceedings taken in execution cannot make any question arising between the parties to that decree and a third-party, the claimant, res judicata.

Then, it is to be remembered that it is not of the essence of a tenure or holding in this country that it should consist of any particular area of land situated within definite boundaries. A tenure or holding may have definite boundaries, or it may not, or it may have no boundaries at all. At any rate the essence of a tenure or holding in this country is that it is the subject of a contract, express or implied, between the parties concerned, viz., the landlord and the tenant, and when a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, what passes at the sale is the subject-matter of the contract between the contracting parties, which is hypothecated for the rent under the provisions of sec. 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and the right of the tenant in such subject-matter, and nothing more.

AMRITA LAL BOSE v. NEMAI CHAND MUKHOPADHYA.

Then, I would point out that the purchaser of a tenure or holding at a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is not necessarily entitled to possession of the tenure or holding which he has purchased. If he attempts to take possession, the person in actual possession of that tenure or holding has his remedy. He can first of all raise an objection under sec. 331, C. C. P., which is a portion of the Code not excluded by sec. 170 of the Tenancy Act, and if his objection is overruled, he still has a further remedy in a regular suit.

Then I would point to the provisions of sec. 63 of the former law, Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869 which are founded on those of sec. 106 of Act X of 1859. According to those provisions a claimant who wished to raise an objection to the attachment of any under-tenure was by the old law obliged, before he could be heard, to pay the decretal amount into Court. If the view of the learned pleader who appears for the opposite party in this case be correct, then such claimant would be entitled to come in and to have his claim heard without, first, depositing the decretal amount. It is generally understood that one of the objects of the Bengal Tenancy Act was to give landlords greater facilities for the collection of their rents in consideration of the greater rights bestowed upon tenants by that Act, and it would seem to me to be an anomaly if such being the avowed intention of the Tenancy Act, the effect of one of its clauses were to be to remove the restrictions imposed by the former law on the preferment of claims in execution of decrees for rent and so to place obstructions in the way of, instead of affording facilities for the collection of arrears of rent by landlords.

I would finally advert to the provisions of sec. 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, cl. 3 of which provides that sec. 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sales under this chapter, that is Chap. XIV. Now sec. 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure gives a purchaser the right to apply to a Court to set aside a sale on the ground that the person against whom the decree was passed had no saleable interest whatever in the property sold. The Tenancy Act, however, provides that the purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is not at liberty to apply for the setting aside of a sale on this ground. It seems very strange that a purchaser, whose rights may be affected, because if the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest, the purchaser must lose his money, should have no right to come in and object to the sale on this ground, and yet that a person whose interests are not affected should have the right to come in at a preliminary stage of the execution proceedings, and demand that the proceedings be stayed until his claim has been enquired into and determined.

S. C. S.

Rule made absolute.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 452 OF 1897.

	HEM CHUNDER MISRI and another,
O'KINEALLY, J.	{ Defendants, Appellants,
GUPTA, J.
1898.	RAJAH SIR SOURINDRA
4, May.	MOHAN TAGORE
	BAHADUR, Plaintiff,
	Respondent.

Suit for rent—Assignment by landlord of portion of interest to a mortgagee—Registered proprietor—"Rent due"—Right of mortgagee, whether may be set up in defence—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), secs. 3, cl. (2), 60.

In a suit for rent by a proprietor registered under the Land Registration Act (VII, B. C., of 1876) the Defendants are precluded, by reason of sec. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act from pleading as a defence to the claim that the rent is due to a mortgagee to whom the landlord has assigned a part of his interest but whose name has not been registered under the Land Registration Act.

This was an appeal preferred on the 23rd of March 1897, against the decree of B. G. Geidt, Esq., District Judge of Bankura, dated the 23rd of December 1896, reversing the decree of Babu Poresb Nath Chatterjee, Munsif of Khatra, dated the 10th of December 1895.

The facts of the case material to this report and the points raised in the case appear from the judgment of the lower Appellate Court which was as follows:—

This was a suit for rent. The defence set up was that the rent had been paid to Muktarām, a mortgagee of that part of the estate in which Defendants' holding is situated. The Plaintiff's name is registered as proprietor. Muktarām's name is not registered. Prima facie, therefore, the Defendants under sec. 60 of the Tenancy Act cannot plead that rent is due to Muktarām. But the Munsif considers that proprietor must mean proprietor of the whole estate, and as Plaintiff is not proprietor of the whole estate, the Munsif thinks that sec. 60 is not applicable. This interpretation of the section is not correct, as will be seen by reference to the definition in cl. (2), sec. 3 of the Act, where proprietor is defined as a person owning an estate or a part of an estate. Then the Munsif thinks that as the Defendants have paid to Muktarām, the rent cannot be said to be due to him. The word due here means no more than payable. The Munsif's decision is wrong. The appeal is allowed. The Plaintiff will get a decree for the rent and cesses of the years under claim. But I allow no interest or damages. The Plaintiff will get his costs in both Courts.

The Defendants preferred this second appeal.

Babu Harendra Narayan Mitra (for Babu Digambar Chatterjee) for the Appellants.

Babu Lal Mohan Das for the Respondent.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

This is an appeal from a decision of the District Judge of Bankura, dated the 23rd December 1896.

The Plaintiff is the proprietor of the village in which the tenure in dispute lies, and he got his name registered under sec. 55 of Act VII (B. C.) of 1876. Of that there is no dispute. The Defendants admittedly are tenants, and ordinarily the rent would be due from them to the proprietor, but they say that the landlord has assigned part of his interest to a mortgagee, and that he is the person entitled to the rent. The mortgagee has not been registered. Before the Rent Act of 1885, it was decided in this Court that a person who was registered could not obtain rent unless the relation of landlord and tenant existed between him and the person whom he sued for rent. Then came sec. 60 of the new Rent Act which was not the law before. It runs as follows:—"Where rent is due to the proprietor, manager, or mortgagee of an estate, the receipt of the person registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876, as proprietor, manager or mortgagee of that estate, or of his agent authorized in that behalf, shall be a sufficient discharge for the rent; and the person liable for the rent shall not be entitled to plead in defence to a claim by the person so registered that the rent is due to any third person. But nothing in this section shall affect any remedy which any such third person may have against the registered proprietor, manager or mortgagee." The mortgagee not having been registered under Act VII (B. C.) of 1876, the Defendants are, we think, precluded from pleading as a defence to the claim that the rent is due to any other third person, or, in other words, is due to the mortgagee. What would be the effect if it had been found in the lower Court that the Defendants had, without knowledge of the registration of the proprietor, paid to the mortgagee, is a question not raised in this case, and we desire to guard ourselves against it being thought that we have decided anything that has not been raised.

HEM CHUNDER MISRI v. RAJAH SIR SOURINDRA MOHAN TAGORE BAHADUR.

We think that the Defendants are not entitled to set up the mortgagee as between themselves and the proprietor to whom the rent would ordinarily be due, and we accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.*

H. P. C.

Appeal dismissed.

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 1030 OF 1898.

MUSST. BHUGWANBUTTI
RAMPINI, J.	CHOWDHURANI, Plaintiff,
PRATT, J.	Appellant,
1900.	v.
- 21, June.	A. H. FORBES,
	Defendant, Respondent.

* Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 13—Res judicata—Decisions in two suits not open to appeal in the same way—Joinder of several causes of action—Claim for cess.

To make a matter res judicata it is not necessary that the two suits should be open to appeal in the same way.

A Plaintiff cannot be allowed to evade the provisions of sec. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code by joining several causes of action against the same Defendant in one suit and by bringing his suit in a Court of superior jurisdiction.

This was an appeal preferred on the 20th of May 1898, against the decree of D. Cameron, Esq., Judge of Zillah Pubna, dated the 10th of February 1898, affirming the decree of Babu Chakrodhur Prosad, Subordinate Judge of Purneah, dated the 11th of August 1897.

The suit, out of which this appeal arose, was one in which the Plaintiff sought to recover the sum of Rs. 1,138-13 on account of cesses, etc., from the Defendant, who was the holder of a putni lease under her. The Defendant did not dispute his liability. He only contested the rate at which he was sued.

MUSSTI. BHUGWANBUTTI CHOWDHURI v. A. H. FORBES.

The point in regard to which the parties were at issue was as to the rate at which the Defendant was to pay road-cess and public works cess. The Plaintiff contended that the Defendant was liable to pay these cesses at the rate of Rs. 415-10 per annum. The Defendant maintained that it was decided in a previous litigation between the parties that he was not bound to pay on that account more than Rs. 165-15 per annum.

The Courts below found in favour of the Defendant. The Plaintiff then preferred this second appeal.

Mr. Hill (with him Mr. Gregory) for the Appellant.—The suit in which the question of the Defendant's liability to pay road-cess, etc., was previously decided was one of a Small Cause Court nature; the High Court accordingly held in that suit that no second appeal lay; hence the Court in which the suit was originally decided was not a Court competent to decide the present one; the former suit was instituted in the Court of a Munsif who would have been incompetent to decide the present suit; the claim was for an amount in excess of the pecuniary jurisdiction of a Munsif and was therefore instituted in the Court of a Subordinate Judge. To make a matter res judicata the two suits must be open to appeal in the same way; see Bhola v. Adesang (1), Govind v. Dhondbrar (2) and Vithilinga v. Vilbilinga (3).

(1) I. L. R. 9 Bom. 75 (1884).

(2) I. L. R. 15 Bom. 104 (1890).

(3) I. L. R. 15 Mad. 111 (1891).

Mr. Bonnerjee (with him Babu Umakali Mukerjee) for the Respondent referred to Rai Charan Ghose v. Kumud Mohun (4).

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows:—

The suit, out of which this appeal arises, is one in which the Plaintiff sought to recover the sum of Rs. 1,138-13 on account of cesses, etc., from the Defendant who is the holder of a putni lease under her. The Defendant does not dispute his liability. He only contests the rate at which he is sued.

The point with regard to which the parties are at issue in this second appeal is as to the rate at which the Defendant is to pay road-cess and public works cess. The Plaintiff, (second Appellant before us) contends that the Defendant is liable to pay these cesses at the rate of Rs. 415-10. The Defendant maintains that it has already been decided in a previous litigation between the parties that he is not bound to pay on this account more than Rs. 165-15 per annum.

The District Judge found in favour of the Defendant, hence this second appeal.

Mr. Hill on behalf of the Plaintiff contends (1) that the suit in which the question of the Defendant's liability to pay road-cess, &c., was previously decided was one of a Small Cause Court nature and that this Court accordingly held that no second appeal lay to it. Hence the Court in which the suit was originally decided was not a Court competent to decide the present one. (2) He points out that the former suit was instituted in the Court of a Munsif who would have been incompetent to decide the present suit, in which the claim was for an amount in excess of the pecuniary jurisdiction of a Munsif and which was therefore instituted in the Court of a Subordinate Judge. Mr. Hill in support of his first contention has cited the cases of Bhola Bhai v. Adesang (1), Govind bin Lakshmanshet v. Dhondbrar bin Ganvbarar (2) and Vithilinga Padayachi v. Vilbilinga Mudali (3), which, it is said, lay down that to make a matter res judicata the two suits must be open to appeal in the same way. Mr. Bonnerjee on the other hand has called our attention to the case of Rai Charan Ghose v. Kumud Mohun (4), which is a decision of this Court and in which the contrary view has been held. We agree with the views expressed in this last-mentioned case and must therefore follow it.

(4) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 571 (1898).

MUSST. BHUGWANBUTTI CHOWDHURI v. A. H. FORBES.

As to the objection on the ground of the incompetency of the Munsif who decided the former suit to decide a suit of the value of the present suit, it appears that the claim on account of road-cess and public works cess was below Rs. 1,000 and was therefore within the competency of a Munsif to try. The Plaintiff in this suit joined several causes of action against the same Defendant together and hence instituted her suit in the Subordinate Judge's Courts. She therefore joined together several suits. She cannot be allowed to evade the provisions of sec. 13 in this way. It would have been perfectly competent for a Munsif to try the Plaintiff's present suit for road-cess and public works cess.

The appeal therefore fails. We dismiss it with costs.

S. C. S.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) I. L. R. 9 Bom. 75 (1884).

(2) I. L. R. 15 Bom. 104 (1890).

(3) I. L. R. 15 Mad. 111 (1891).

(4) I. L. R. 25 Cal. 571 (1898).

[CIVIL APPELLATE JURISDICTION.]

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE

No. 2457 of 1898.

PURNA CHANDRA

GHOSE, J.

SARKAR, Plaintiff,

PRATT, J.

Appellant,

1901.

v.

10, January.

NIL MADHUB NANDI,

Defendant, Respondent.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), sec. 375—Compromise decree—Extraneous matter.

The admission of a review presented out of time without any sufficient cause is a good ground of appeal under sec. 629, cl. (c) of the Code of Civil Procedure.

In granting a review the Court should not travel beyond the grounds mentioned in the application for review.

A decree passed on a compromise cannot be regarded as ultra vires simply because it goes beyond the subject-matter of the suit and contains other conditions.

The other conditions, if they are the considerations for the compromise of the subject-matter of the suit, must be incorporated in the decree; but if the other conditions are independent of it they may be regarded as surplusage.

This was an appeal preferred on the 6th of December 1898, against a decree of Babu Chandi Charan Sen, Additional Subordinate Judge of Burdwan, dated the 29th of September 1898, passed on appeal from the decision of Babu Bepin Behari Ghose, Additional Munsif of Rani-gunge, dated 31st July 1895.

The facts of the case appear from the judgment.

Babu Nalini Ranjan Chatterjee for the Appellant.

PURNA CHANDRA SARKAR v. NIL MADHUB NANDI.

Babus Lal Mohan Das and Debendra Chunder Mullik for the Respondent.

THE JUDGMENTS OF THE COURT were as follows :—

PRATT, J.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought under sec. 77 of the Registration Act whereby the Plaintiffs sought to compel the Defendant to register a kabuliyat. The first Court decreed the Plaintiff's suit. While the appeal was pending, the parties came to a compromise and filed a petition of compromise on the 31st January 1898. In that petition it was set forth that the kabuliyat in suit will be upheld; that the Plaintiffs would withdraw certain pending suits; that they would grant a settlement to the Defendant of certain noabadi and waste lands, and would admit him as the holder of certain other mal lands. A decree was passed in accordance with the compromise on the 23rd February 1898, the terms of the solenama being embodied in full in the decree. On the 8th June 1898 the Defendant presented an application for review. The application was admitted, the compromise decree was set aside, and the appeal reheard, the result being that the decree of the first Court was reversed, and the suit dismissed.

The only grounds taken before us in this appeal to which it is necessary to advert are two: first, that the review was admitted after the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed therefor, and without sufficient cause, and, secondly, that the review was admitted on a ground not stated in the application.

As regards the first point, it would appear that neither in the application of the Defendant nor in the judgment of the Appellate Court is any reason given for presenting the application for review after the expiration of 90 days from the date of the decree. We therefore think, having regard to the terms of sec. 629, cl. (c), Code of Civil Procedure, that this is a good ground of appeal before us.

As regards the second contention, we observe that the application for review was made on the ground of fraud, deceit and coercion, and also that the Plaintiffs had failed to carry out the terms of the solenama. The learned Subordinate Judge held that the allegations of fraud and coercion had not been made out, but he granted the review because he thought there was a clear misunderstanding by both parties as to the terms and meaning of the solenama. It has been frankly admitted before us by the learned vakil for the Respondent that the meaning of the solenama is perfectly clear. Moreover it is manifest from the application for review that a misapprehension of the terms of the solenama was not a ground upon which the application for review was made. It is true that the Defendant in a supplementary written statement made certain allegations from which the Subordinate Judge thought he was at liberty to find that the Defendant did not understand the terms of the solenama; but we think that the Subordinate Judge has travelled beyond the purpose of the application before him, not only because the alleged misunderstanding was not an express ground for review, but also, as we have already indicated, because the terms of the solenamā are clear and definite and not capable of being misunderstood. The learned pleader for the Respondent has urged before us that, notwithstanding the objections which have been taken to the judgment of the Subordinate Judge, we ought to hold that the compromise decree was a nullity, because it goes beyond the subject-matter of the suit, and that therefore on this ground we ought not to allow it to be affirmed. No doubt, the compromise, besides affirming the kabuliyat, refers to certain lands which are not mentioned in that document, but it may well be contended that the conditions embodied in the solenama were the consideration for which the Defendant agreed to concede that the kabuliyat was a valid document. Under sec. 375 of the Code of Civil Procedure the decree is "final so far as it relates to so much of the subject-matter of the suit as is dealt with by the agreement, compromise or satisfaction." Therefore whether the whole of the decree is capable of execution or not, it is evident that it is a good decree at least so far as regards the validity of the kabuliyat. The other terms of the decree are concessions in favour of the Respondent, and he would not wish them to be struck out while the validity of the kabuliyat is affirmed, as we think it must be. The argument for the Respondent therefore fails and the appeal should be decreed with costs, the compromise decree being restored.

PURNA CHANDRA SARKAR v. NIL MADHUB NANDI.

GHOSH, J.—I agree in the judgment which has just been delivered by my learned brother. There is one remark, however, that I desire to add with regard to the argument which was last pressed upon us by the learned vakīl for the Respondent, upon the question of the validity of the compromise decree which was made between the parties on the 31st January 1898. As pointed out by my learned brother, that decree affirms the kabuliyat for the enforcement of which the suit was brought by the Plaintiffs, and, in the second place, it refers to various other conditions which the parties agreed to in respect of other lands not covered by the kabuliyat. It seems to me (and indeed that was the position taken by the learned vakīl for the Respondent himself) that these other conditions were either the consideration for the affirmance of the kabuliyat, for which the suit was brought, or they were conditions independent thereof. In the first-mentioned case, the whole of the conditions must be incorporated in the decree: in the latter case, the decree, according to the view presented by the learned vakīl himself, so far as it incorporates only the first condition, namely, as to the kabuliyat, must be upheld, and therefore the portion of the decree incorporating the other conditions may be regarded as surplusage. But the decree cannot be regarded as ultra vires, simply because the other conditions were inserted in it. It seems to me that in either view of the matter, the argument addressed to us by the learned vakīl for the Respondent cannot stand.

The appeal will be allowed, and the compromise decree affirmed, with costs.

Appeal allowed.

S. C. S. .

[CRIMINAL REVISIONAL JURISDICTION.]

REV. No. 1030 of 1900.

SALE, J.

AYEN MAHMAD AKAND,

PRATT J.

Petitioner, .

1901.

v.

12, February.

THE KING-EMPEROR,

Opposite Party.

*Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), secs. 190, 528—Cognizance of offence against persons accused but not sent up for trial—
Refusal by trying Magistrate to issue processes against such accused persons—Transfer by District Magistrate of case—Warrants, issue of, against accused not sent up—Pending case—Jurisdiction.*

Where several persons were accused of rioting, and only one of the accused was sent up by the Police and convicted of the offence, and the trying Magistrate, on application made for summoning the others, refused to summon them, and the District Magistrate transferred the case to his own file and directed the issue of warrants against the accused persons originally charged but not sent up for trial :

Held—That the order of the trying Magistrate refusing to summon the other accused persons did not finally dispose of the case so as to remove it from his file altogether ; and the District Magistrate had ample jurisdiction to transfer the case to his own file under sec. 528 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

NUKHEDA SINGH v. RITU MARDAN SINGH

(1) referred to and followed.

That even if the case be treated as not pending in the Court of the trying Magistrate at the date of his order refusing to the other accused persons, the District Magistrate had jurisdiction to take cognizance of the case as against the

(1) 4 C. W. N. 239 (1898).

other accused persons under sec. 190 of the Code.

This was a rule issued on the 20th
December 1900, against the order of the District Magistrate of Bogra, dated the 17th October 1900, transferring the case of Kristo Chandra Pal to his own file, as well as against his order, dated the 3rd
November 1900.

The facts of the case material to this report appear from the judgment.

Babu Sarat Chunder Roy Chowdhury for the Petitioner.

Mr. Leith for the Crown.

The JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was as follows :—

The two orders which are complained of in this case are the orders of the District Magistrate of Bogra, dated respectively the 17th October and 3rd November 1900. It is said that these orders were made without jurisdiction and ought to be set aside. It appears that, on the 15th March 1900, an information was filed against 20 persons charging them with the offence of rioting.

On the 26th March, the Police sent up an A. form against one of the persons whose names appeared in that information, Kristo Chandra Pal. He was tried and convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs. 50. On the 12th May, the complainant applied for processes against the other accused persons who had not been sent up by the Police. The Deputy Magistrate, after considering the evidence in the case, thought, as he says, that the details of the occurrence were not satisfactory and he therefore refused to issue further processes. The matter was then brought before the District Magistrate who called for a report from the right or interest in the mortgaged properties to redeem them by depositing the decretal amount in Court. The applicants' pleader contends that under sec. 91 of the Transfer of Property Act the applicants having interest in the mortgaged properties have this right. I cannot accept this contention. Sec. 9, no doubt, gives the right of redemption to certain persons, but it does not in any way affect the law of procedure as laid down in sec. 86 of the Act. It merely invests certain persons with a right of redemption. If the party having such right wants to redeem the properties mortgaged by depositing the decretal amount in Court within the statutory time, he must conform to the laws of procedure as laid down in secs. 86 to 90 of the Act; and under these sections nobody except the Defendant has a right to deposit the decretal amount in Court. It is accordingly ordered that the application be rejected.

MOHANAND CHATTERJEE v. AKHOY KUMAR BARARI.

Against this order an application was made and the present rule was obtained.

Babu Bhuban Mohan Das for the Petitioners.

Babus Hari Mohun Chakravarti and Karuna Sindhu Mukerjee for the Opposite Parties.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT was delivered by RAMPINI, J.—This is a rule calling upon the opposite party to show cause why the order complained of in this case should not be set aside. The order complained of is one under sec. 437, C. P. C. refusing to make one of the applicants a party in a redemption suit.

The facts are these:—The opposite party obtained a preliminary decree for foreclosure against one Surja Kumar Chatterjee, who is the brother of the applicant, Akhoy Kumar Chatterjee, and is the executor under their father's Will. Surja Kumar therefore fully represents the estate. Surja Kumar alone was made a party to the redemption suit and the preliminary order for foreclosure was passed against him. After this preliminary order was passed, one of the present applicants, Akhoy Kumar Chatterjee, prayed to the Court to be made a party to the suit, so that he might redeem the property before the final decree. His application was dismissed under sec. 437, C. P. C. Now Akhoy Kumar Chatterjee and a purchaser from Akhoy have appeared before this Court and obtained this rule. They have asked to be made parties to the suit so that they may redeem the property.

We think that there is really no reason why we should make the order prayed for. Surja Kumar Chatterjee was the only executor named in his father's Will and he fully represented the father's estate. There was no necessity for the opposite party to have made the present applicant Akhoy a party to the suit and further it appears to us that as Akhoy has transferred a considerable portion of his interest in the property which he obtained under his father's Will to the transferee, the other applicant, whose name is Mohananda Chatterjee, he has little or no interest in redeeming the property. The person who is really interested in redeeming the property is Mohananda Chatterjee, and he has no right to be made a party to the proceedings in the redemption suit.

Furthermore, we are told that Mohananda had made a previous attempt to intervene in these proceedings. He tried to be made a party to the probate case before the District Judge and his application was refused. For these reasons he has no right to be made a party to the redemption proceedings and has no right to redeem the property.

MOHANAND CHATTERJEE v. AKHOY KUMAR BARARI.

The rule is discharged with costs two gold mohurs.

S. C. S.

Rule discharged.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

[APPEAL FROM BENGAL.]

LORD MACNAGHTEN.]

LORD ROBERTSON.

SRIMATI RANI PAR-

LORD LINDLEY.

BATI KUMARI DEBI,

Heard,

Appellant,

12, 13, November,

v.

1901.

JAGADISH CHUNDER

Judgment,

DHABAL and another,

22, February,

Respondents.

1902.

Hindu law—Mitakshara School—Family custom, personal and geographical—Presumption arising from origin of family—Evidences of custom—Succession—Impartible estate, savings from, whether ancestral or self-acquired.

Case in which it was held on the evidence, that the family though located in Bengal was governed by the Mitakshara law.

The question in such cases being primarily one of personal as distinguished from geographical custom, it is of the first importance to enquire into the origin of the family. The origin, ascertained, gives rise to the presumption that the family preserves the customs of its place of origin. Of evidences, which go to prove or rebut this presumption, the most direct are instances of succession in the family, and next, ceremonies at marriages, births and shraddhs.

Under the Mitakshara law, the ancestral estate of a childless person passes, at his death, to his brother to the exclusion of his widow.

Property purchased by a zemindar, or by the Court of Wards on his behalf during minority, from savings of an impartible ancestral Raj is to be regarded as his self-acquired property, unless an intention appears on his part to deal with it as a part of the Raj; and the mere fact that the same servant collected rents from both properties and that the collection papers were kept together are no proof that there was such intention.

This was an appeal against a decree of the Calcutta High Court, which reversed a decree of the Sub-Judge of Midnapore. The suit was brought by the Appellant, one of the two widows of Raja Purna Chunder of Jamboni, who had died intestate without leaving any male issue, to recover his estate from Iswar Chunder, his half-brother. The suit was brought on the assumption that the family was governed by the Dayabhaga law. The Defendant-Respondent resisted the claim asserting that the Mitakshara law governed the family, under which the widow was only entitled to maintenance and in any case the other widow the 2nd Defendant, who was found to be the senior widow, was the preferential heir. The Sub-Judge found in favour of Appellant. The High Court reversed that decision and dismissed the suit. The arguments were entirely on facts and on examination of the oral evidence. The Appellant also claimed the savings made by the late Raja from the income of his estate during his lifetime, claiming that there was no evidence that such properties were incorporated in the zemindari.

Mr. Mayne for the Appellant.

Mr. Asquith, K. C., and Mr. Branson for the Respondent.

SRIMATI RANI PARBATI KUMARI DEBI v. JAGADISH CHUNDER DHABAL.

Their LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT was delivered by

LORD ROBERTSON.—The questions raised by this appeal relate to the succession of Raja Purna Chunder, who died on 23rd August 1886. He left no issue but was survived by two widows and a half-brother. One of the two widows, Rani Radha Kumari Debi, granted a release, and although appearing as a Defendant in this suit, raised no claim adverse to the interest of the half-brother, and does not appear in this appeal. The half-brother has died since this suit was instituted and is now represented by his son the minor Respondent. The present controversy is between the Appellant, who is the other widow, on the one hand, and the son of the brother on the other hand and relates to two subject-matters of very different values.* Those are (1) the ancestral estates of the deceased Purna Chunder which are situate in the jungle-mehals of Midnapore and are claimed by the Appellant on the ground that the succession is governed by the Dayabhaga law which would give it to her; and (2) four mouzahs, bought by the Court of Wards with the savings of Purna Chunder's estate while it was under their management, which the Appellant claims, even assuming the Mitakshara-law to govern the succession. The Respondent's answer to the claim to the ancestral estates is that the Mitakshara and not the Dayabhaga law rules, and under the Mitakshara law he is the undoubted heir; but he says further that, even if the Dayabhaga law governed, the right to compete with him would lie not in the Appellant but in the other widow who has renounced her rights in his favour.

On the question of the four mouzahs he maintains that the conduct of Purna Chunder in dealing with this property showed his intention that it should go with the ancestral properties. By much the most important and complicated question thus raised is as to which system of law governs this succession, the Mitakshara or the Dayabhaga.

The suit was brought by the Appellant, whose plaint was filed on 14th April 1893, the lands in dispute having by this time been taken possession of by the half-brother. The Defendants were Iswar Chunder (the half-brother) and Radha Kumari, the other widow. The Appellant prayed for a declaration that she was entitled, either jointly with the other widow or exclusively, to the whole estate, moveable or immoveable, of the deceased Purna Chunder, or for a similar declaration as regards his self-acquired property or to maintenance. The Appellant alleged that upon the death of her husband who (as she averred) like his ancestors had lived under and was governed by the Bengal School of the Hindu law, she and the other widow, as his co-heiresses, became entitled to the Jamboni Raj, which was the ancestral estate, and also to his self-acquired properties. It was further averred that the second Defendant (the other widow) had granted to the first Defendant a release and declaration, which transaction was characterised as fraudulent and collusive. The plaint (and by consequence all the proceedings) were greatly inflated and complicated by a number of questions, now extinct, which it would be superfluous to rehearse.

Written statements were filed on behalf of both Defendants. The first Defendant Iswar Chunder claimed the Raj as heir under the Mitakshara law and also the long-standing custom and usage of the family. He explained that his ancestors were originally inhabitants of Dharanuggur in the North-West Provinces, where the Mitakshara Shastra was in force; that they came from there and took possession of the lands now in question; that since then and to the present time their family ceremonies have been performed according to the Mitakshara; and that the right of inheritance is determined according to it.

SRIMATI RANI PARBATI KUMARI DEBI v. JAGADISH CHUNDER DHABAL.

As to the second Defendant (i.e., the other widow) Iswar Chunder alleged that the release granted by her was executed in good faith and because she knew and thereby acknowledged that the Mitakshara law governed the succession that any rights she had were vested in the first Defendant, and could not be held to be acquired by the Plaintiff. As regards the four mouzahs the first Defendant (Iswar) alleged that the right to them had been acquired by the Court of Wards (when the Raja Purna was under that Court in minority) out of the profits of the Raj Jamboni and must be "taken as a . . . part of the joint original impartible estate."

A written statement was also filed for the second Defendant, the other widow, in which she made no claim adverse to the first Defendant and took his side in denying the Appellant's claim. Her fourth and sixth statements set out a further obstacle in the Appellant's way strongly insisted on in argument by the Respondent, the representative of the first Defendant but which only arises for consideration if the Dayabhaga law applies:—

"4. This Defendant further submits, that if the Court holds that the family of this Defendant's husband was governed by the Dayabhaga Shastra, this Defendant, by reason of her being the pat-mohishi and of the zemindari being impartible, is alone entitled to get the said zemindari, etc., and the Plaintiff cannot acquire any right therein, and the said right cannot at all be taken to have been extinguished in connection with or in favour of the Plaintiff, and no right can accrue to the Plaintiff."

"6. This Defendant is the elder wife, i.e., the first married pat-mohishi of her husband and she is older than the Plaintiff. The statement made by the Plaintiff in para. 12 of the plaint that she is older than this Defendant, is not true."

Her fifth statement also must be noted, having regard to eventualities:

"5. If the Court holds that the moveable and immoveable properties mentioned in Sch. C., were the self-acquired properties of my late husband, and that the Plaintiff and this Defendant both were our husband's heirs with regard to the same, this Defendant submits that this Defendant is entitled to get an eight annas share of the said properties and the said right cannot be taken to have been extinguished or relinquished in favour of the Plaintiff by the deed of release mentioned above executed by this Defendant. Accordingly, the Plaintiff's claim with regard to the 16 annas of the same, is wholly improper."

Various issues were settled and tried; but of these the fourth (as to the law governing the succession), the ninth (as to the effect of the Defendant widow's release), and the eleventh, whether the four mouzahs were self-acquired estate the only questions argued under the present appeal.

After much procedure, the examination of many witnesses and the production of several documents, the first Subordinate Judge of Midnapore on 26th February 1895 gave judgment. He held that the Dayabhaga law governed the succession and ordered that the Plaintiff (Appellant) do recover possession of all the properties in suit. This order was qualified by a declaration (not satisfactory to the Appellant and not very clearly explainable) that instead of being full owner the Plaintiff should recover possession as manager. Against this decree appeals were taken both by the present Respondents (for Iswar was now dead) and the present Appellant; and on 17th May 1897 the High Court at Fort William set aside the decision and dismissed the suit as regards possession of moveables and immoveables, and ordered an allowance of maintenance. The main ground of judgment was that the Mitakshara law governed the succession; and this superseded the question as to the rights of the Appellant in relation to the other widow, even assuming the Dayabhaga to prevail. The question of the four mouzabs is not discussed in the judgment.

SRIMATI RANI PARBATI KUMARI DEBI v. JAGADISH CHUNDER DEBHAL.

In comparing the judgment of the Subordinate Judge, which was in favour of the Appellant, on the main question between the Mitakshara and the Dayabhaga with the judgment of the High Court, which was for the Respondents, their Lordships take note of two facts. The first and most important is that the Subordinate Judge fell into the grave error of holding that the origin of this family was unknown and its original place of residence unascertainable; that there was no evidence worthy of reliance to show whether they were originally governed by the Mitakshara or by the Dayabhaga; and, "that being so, the Defendant is not entitled to the benefit of the presumption laid down in Sooren-

